BAND PROBLEM NOW MORE COMPLICATED

Fair Board Charged With Failure To Notify of Change in Contract.

The band problem of the Western Fair Board becomes more complicated every day. On the heels of the announcement that the fair board wanted a twenty-piece band to play for the grandstand at the fair, and that the Musicians Union bylaws prohibit bands from playing at the fair with less than 25 pieces, W. A. Bluethner, president of the local musicians' union declares that the fair board has not notified the musicians of the change. Court Irwin, leader of the London Veterans' band, said that the band had signed a contract earlier in the year to play at the Western Fair, but that he had received a notice from the board a few days ago that the terms of the contract were to be changed, but that what the terms vere to be, the board did not say. An announcement in the Advertiser yesterday was the first inkling what the change in contract was. The fair board considers that a 20-

Lieutenant Harrison, leader of the R.C.R. band, said this morning, after a conference with Frank Healey, chairman of the attractions committee of the fair, that his band would play if it was asked. He would not say whether it had been asked to play or not. On what terms the band would play, he would not dividige. But the band would not divulge. But the play if it was asked.

Talkin' of Bobs

The neighbors like to sit a spell and talk about the folks they know, and criticize the style of bob adopted now by So-and-So.

Quite good it is at times to sit and listen while the women talk, to hear 'em speak about their friends, to hear them criticize and knock. I heard some chatter yesterday about the bobbin' of the hair, and some things that was spoke about was candid most beyond compare. Instead of givin' names in print it's safer far to hurry through, and speak of them as having been just Mrs. One and Mrs. Two.

Well Mrs. One, they dragged her up and spoke about her bobbish looks, and what they said about this child would crowd the covers of two books.

"She should have took a thought before as how her head would look, I think; it minds me of the brush they use for cleanin' out the kitchen sink. I hear she's sorry now she went and got her hair chopped off at all; she told me lots of times she goes and has a healthy weepin' bawl."

And then they turned on Mrs. Two, a lady of some doubtful years, who went and bent her queenly head and felt the tickle of the

The spokesman said somewhat like this: "She simply tries to please the men, it's stupid to see hair cut short on such a jaded, wizzened hen. I can't conceive her goin' at all, and have her hair all mowed away, and at her age it's ten times worse, she's fifty now if she's a day."

So Mrs. Three was brung in, too, and viewed by friendly tongues a spell, and some they thought she was a fright, while others held it looked right well. "She never kept her hair done up, it always looked to me as though the rats had slept upon her head and danced upon it in a row. So now that it's cut off quite short it can't look worse than what it did, although it makes her look, I think, like some lippainted flapper kid."

At length they came to Mrs. Five, "she looks too cute for words to me, I think the boyish bob she got the sweetest thing that one could see. If I was sure I'd look like her, and that's too good to be quite true, I wouldn't hesitate at all, I'd go and get mine shingled, too."

Bobbed hair is still a point of talk, a question very much alive, and now I'm itchin' for a chance to have a squint at Mrs. Five .--

WOMEN and THE HOME

NURSES WILL GO TO ELGIN HOUSE

Victoria Hospital To Be Represented at Big Student Conference.

The nurses of Victoria Hospital will send two delegates to the Sarnia. Students' Christian Movement conference at Elgin House, Muskoka, which is being held from September 16 to 26. This announcement was made at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Victoria Hospital Women's Auxiliary, of which Mrs. F. J. Greenaway is chairman. The nurses of the institution are being assisted by the auxiliary in financing the delegation. Miss Edna Moorehouse and Miss Grace Selman have been named as the delegates iary, with the result that a generous donation was forthcoming. The nurses themselves have also contributed largely to the scheme. Two picnics are being planned for September, part of the nursing staff to be present at each event. This is street, necessary, since part of the nurses must be on duty all of the time.

The members regretted to hear or the resignation of Mrs. W. H. Winnett as convener of the library committee, the resignation being made mecessary through ill-health. Mrs. Winnett's office will be filled in the near future by the Hospital Trust. Her work during the past year in this connection has been splendid.

The "Other Woman" Isn't Always to Blame for Husband-Stealing.

Three divorced women were talking together the other day and one of them said: "When we wives lose our husbands

we always accuse some other woman of having stolen them from us; and we cry out that our husbands are cruel ingrates, who have taken the best years of our lives and then thrown us aside like broken toys when we were no longer young and beautiful. And we pose as blameless martyrs who are the pitiful vic ims of man's perfidy. "Of course, it saves our faces to be able to lay all the blame for our wrecked homes on others, and it soothes our hurt vanity to be wept over as a poor, innocent, deserted wife. But in the still watches of the night, when we have it out with our own souls there are mighty few of us who can shrive our consciences and know that we are blameless.

"Most of us know in our heart of hearts that if our husbands' love died, we did our part in administering the lethal dose. We may have done it through ignorance, through carelessness, through blundering stupidity; we may have even done it with the best intentions in the world and with the firm conviction that we were forcing down throats a remedy that would cure them of all the little ailments and weakness of charicter from which they suffered. But the point is, we did it. We were accessory to the crime, and we could have prevented it if we

I called heaven to witness that I was innocent and that I had been a good, true, virtuous woman, who had always done her duty to her family.

"It took me a long time to see that, if my husband grew weary of me, I had made him tired by my incessant nagging and faultfinding; that if he ceased to love me, it was because I was no longer lovable, and that the other woman had not really stolen him from me. "My husband was a gay, pleasure loving man," said the second divorcee. He always wanted to be going somewhere. He loved to be in the thick of crowds. He adored dancing, and restaurants, and the bright lights. He loved fine clothes, and always wanted me to look like a fashion plate.

"Now I am a serious-minded woman and was brought up to take a serious view of things, and I felt it my duty to cure my husband of his frivolity by leading him up to what considered the higher life.

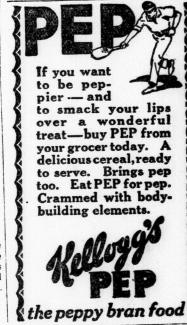

"I began by trying to wean him away from his old friends, on whom I turned such a cold shoulder that they soon ceased coming to the house. I lectured him about his extravagance and the way he threw away money, and finally got possession of the family purse and doled out dimes to him. I wouldn't go out with him of an evening, and I rarely let him go without a scene.

and the Colts, with five hits and four boots and wild heaves by the local enterenies, scored four runs and established a lead. It was short-lived, as in the fifth the local braves chucked six clean hits into the affray, good for five runs, and were never in danger from that on. They tallied two more to make sure in the next round, as the Colts refused to be quietly subdued by Two-Gun Pete Harris, although the latter bore down in the last three innings when there were men on the paths, and didn't seem to be greatly concerned.

George Orme rattled a two-bagger out to start his charges off on the right path. Gallagher sacrificed, and Orme romped on home when Cross' throw to get a double play was wild. Loenn singled and Spring was hit, but Hill lined to Vermilyea, who tossed to second for a dual slaying. Lose Lead In Third.

In London's half of the first, Sand quist's scratch single to first base and Baker's single to center put them on first and third. Hill's throw to first and third. Sandy Somerville has been selected as among the qualifying golfers for the American amateur open to be played at Pittsburg shortly, by Walter Hagen. Hagen says in explanation of his choice that Somerville has the right temperament to enter a qualifying round in which only the first sixteen will enter the actual competition.

Don Carrick, Canadian champion, and Frank and W. J. Thompson are also chosen. That will give Canada a quarter of the qualifying field if all four favored by Hagen come through, which is out of all proportion to the number of Canuck golfers.

MORE BASEBALL FARMS.

President Tom Halligan, who was here watching his Colts perform, has the brand of optimism that adjusts itself to At the first of the season the president expected one of the biggest years the Mint has ever had, and when that didn't come about, he laid other objectives. As things broke more badly, he adjusted his sights and is still shooting at the mark. Now he's tickled to death that the Mint league is going to finish its schedule.

However, he isn't such a dweller in the land of happy make-believe that he doesn't see changes ahead in minor league baseball. He doesn't see the minor leagues passing out of existence eventually as so many blue-goggled pessimists insist is coming to pass, but he does believe that for their own salvation and the salvation of the minor leagues themselves, more and more clubs will be taken over by major league

"The baseball farm idea is going to be adopted openly before many more seasons are past," insisted the Mint prexy yesterday, as he sat on the steps over at the box office at Tecumseh park and strained his ears to hear the infrequent tinkle of Canadian quarters and dimes as they fell into the cash box. "Clubs partly supported by major league affiliations and by local men must come. It is too big a gamble to ask of ordinary citizens unless they are rich enough to afford the luxury of owning a minor league club. It would be better for the majors because they'd have their own picked managers developing players, and the players themselves would feel that although farmed out, a close eye was being kept on them, and they'd not lose heart as they often do now, These managers, too, would be constantly on the alert for new players, knowing that they had a ready-made sale if they had the goods

President Halligan believes that if the Mint does not start next season that there will be Class "D" leagues operated in all the cities which have been in the Mint league in the past three years. He thinks that the Mint might be resumed in the space of three or four years, providing the various cities keep up organized ball.

AN ALIEN SOIL.

If amateurism is fast going to seed in America, it is because the delicate plant should never have been transplanted here in the first wace. The soil of the social organization on this continent is not favorable to its growth. Amateurism had its roots in England where through many generations of practice, certain of the people have been able to develop the art of making sport a life work in itself. The polo fields of this continent will show you young scions making a fair fist of making play their work, but these same gentry still maintain business offices as formal, perhaps useless, offerings on the altar of a social organization which after several centuries still refuses to tolerate the presence of drones.

In the British Isles the two plants once flourished strong and unmixed, but there is evidence that the winds of change have miscarried some of the pollen. And yet the old lines are hard to deface, as witness the mess Walter Hoover brought about in his disregard of certain conventions surrounding certain rowing events. It came as a shock to Yankees to find that workingmen were not eligible for membership in several English clubs nor were certain prized events open to them. The original distinction which marked the boundaries between amateurism and professionalism never had its counterpart in America, unless, perhaps in the early colonial days. It seems rather silly in view of what is happening in every line of sport every day, to try and maintain the pretence of hoary traditions which are not doing any

Farmers Fight Fire in Timber All Day at Lake-

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Correspondent. Lakeside, Aug. 25.-Damage, not yet estimated, but likely to reach several thousand dollars, was done today in a fire which swept through E the underbrush and the 20-acre bush on the farm of J. W. Graham near here. The fire also involved about 15 acres of farm land.

From about 10 o'clock this morning until after 5 o'clock tonight a large number of residents of the district put up a strenuous fight to prevent spread of the fire to an adjoining 50the underbrush and the 20-acre bush Associated Press Despatch.

Workmen on the farm started a brush fire early this morning. A light wind quickly fanned the flames until they spread over land recently it cleared of crops and into the bush. There was no water available, and farmers who responded to the call for assistance used shovels and limbs of trees to fight the blaze. It was impossible to do any plowing around the fire, and the "throw-back" furcows had to be thrown up by hand. This was a trying task because of the smoke and heat, but the scores of men stuck valiantly to the task until they saw the fire "cornered" in the bush.

Galt, Aug. 25.—A bubble that has been in process of inflation at Preston since Saturday evening broke this afternoon and now the championship crown of the London Braves instead of resting easily is in the balance. This afternoon President W. A. Smith of the Intercounty league announced that Preston had filed a protest with him against London's two straight victories over the Riversides for the Intercounty bunting, alleging that Players Silverstein and Fillmore of the London team participated in tournaments in villages west of London for cash prizes. Locally the news did not come as any surprise because since Sunday there have been reports that such developments were likely, but the Preston management took time before acting, quietly investigating before filing the protest. It is understood that representatives of the Preston club made a special trip into Western Ontario gathering information. It is said both of the players protested took part in a tourney as late as Aug. 5.

After the Braves eliminated the Tom Cats in two straight, reports leaked through to this section of the Intercounty circuit that St. Thomas had the "goods" on a couple of Braves, but there was no action. This became general goossib. and it is believed this is county circuit that St. Thomas had the "goods" on a couple of Braves, but there was no action. This became general gossip, and it is believed this is what gave the Preston management their clue resulting in the protest. Immediate action will be necessary, but President Smith has not announced when the protest will be aired.

There are rumors that players of other smatter teams in Western Ontario also took part in several tournaments, and it would not be surprising if there is a house-cleaning.

New York, Aug. 25.—An increased demand and an advance of 1-32c to the basis of 4.40c for Cuban, duty paid, marked trading in the raw sugar, market today. Sales were estimated at fully 300,000 bags of Cuban and Porto Rican for prompt and early September shipment to local and outport refines at 4.40c, duty paid.

Reflecting the increased activity and strength in the spot sugar market, a firmer tone developed in raw sugar futures. The issuance of 194 notices at the otening caused some irregularity, but they were promptly stopped by trade interests, and a raily followed on increased covering and outside buying, which advanced prices 1 to 5 points above the previous close. Offerings increased on the unturn, however, and a slight reaction followed, which left prices unchanged to 3 points net higher at the close. September closed at 2.53, December 2.65, March 2.71, May 2.80.

A better inquiry was also reported for refined sugar, prompted by the advance in raws, and prices were unchanged to 10 points net higher. List for reinied sugar, and prices were un-changed to 10 points net higher. List quotations ranged from 5.50c to 5.60c for fine granulated.

Westminster Council Cuts Off Access To Summer Camp.

At yesterday's meeting of the Westminster township council interest settled about the close of the second concession road which runs down to the water's edge at Pond Mills.

William Gilmore and Col. W. G. Lawless, a tenant of Gilmore, appeared to lodge another complaint against the closing of this road, which they said would work direct injury to Gilmore in the depreciated value of his farm, to which he claims the present road is the logical outlet. Colonel Lawless stated that he would be cut off from the use of his summer camp, and that his tenancy under Mr. Gilmore would have to cease, a further injury to the latter.

The council showed no inclination The council showed no inclination to asseure that if the closing of the road meant the closing of Col. Lawless' camp, so much the better.

ORANGE ELECTION CANDIDATE FRANCE'S BALTIC IS THREAT OF LONDON LODGE AFTER INSULT AT TORY PICNIC

E. T. Essery, K.C., Calls For Opposition To Gauthier's Attitude.

WINS SUPPORT

Lodge Lauds Move To Enter

Standard-Bearer in Campaign.

That London Orangemen are prepared to nominate a candidate for the next federal election as the result of an insult offered their order by Louis Gauthier, speaker at the Conservative picnic at Springbank last week, was the assertion of E. T. Essery, K.C., at a meeting last night. The meeting was called to hear an address on Ireland by Thomas Lavery, member of the Ulster parliament. The feature of the meeting, however, was the speech made by Mr. Essery, who is high in the councils of the Orange order.

"The other day I went out to a picnic of the Conservative party. I am an Independent Conservative, always have been and always will be I heard Gauthier's address, which was the best of the day, but I also neard him offer an insult to our late British Empire Labor conference, Grand Master Thomas Wallace. I who declares that the leadership of want to tell the Conservative party that if they take the Orange element out of their ranks they lose the cream of the party. I will tell them that if there are any more insults offered the Orange order we will put up our own man in London, and we will win the election," declared Mr. "Political machines of both parties have tried to cut our throats, but we have always cut theirs. We have defeated the czars of the Conservative party and we are prepared to do it again," asserted Mr. Essery.

Wins Approval.

Mr. Essery's speech met with entire approval of the audience, which was representative of the Orange order in the city, and cries of "We'll win," and "We'll lick the Tories" came from those present.

Like approval met those parts of Mr. Esscrys speech which dealt with the proposal "to deface the Union Jack by inserting something on it."

Attacks Paroles.

Mr. Lavery attacked Mr. Asquith, then prime minister of England, who, instead of ordering the rebels imprisoned at Easter, 1916, to be shot, patted them on the back and told them not to repeat their mistake.

Valued at $15,000 to $20,000. One of the boats destroyed was a 30-foot motor launch belonging to C. C. Cleverdon, president of the Gies Gear Company. Several employees of the Strausburg-Wilson Company, whose plant is just south of the destroyed sheds, rowed themselves to safety.

He knew that the Nationalist doctrine was that England's difficulty placated these rebels.

Mr. Lavery charged the Roman hierarchy for being responsible for the fact that conscription was not enforced in Ireland. Ulster, he said. had sent every available man to the war, but the Roman parts of Ireland had been disloyal. The imperial parliament was afraid to pass the act for Ireland, because of the opposi-
