The report has been freely circulated throughout the district that Jas. B. Saunders had ceased to have any interest in the mills situated at the east end of the village. On Saturday last the editor of the Reporter interviewed Mr. Saunders on the subject, and he gave the rumor an emphatic denial in the presence of Mr. Pierce, who fully corroborated Mr. Saunders' statement that he (Jas. B. Saunders) has still a half interest in the mills and property in connection therewith, and that he was general manager of the business carried on at the mills. The machinery has been thoroughly overhauled and put in first class running order, and they are now ready to do grinding, either by stone or plate grinder, and by both steam and water. The saw mill has also been put in first class shape for doing all kinds of custom sawing, and all work turned out will be guaranteed as perfect as correct sawing can make it. The firm of Saunders & Pierce are issuing hand bills this week, which fully explain what they are prepared to do at the old reliable Saunders' Custom Mills.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:
Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.
About five years ago my right ear began to ring, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.
I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.
I then saw your advertisement, accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and so-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours,

In the report as appeared in the Reporter of Jan. 8th, your scribe said the girls put a conservative for reeve in the person of Mr. Polk. Your scribe was mistaken in this statement, as Mr. Polk came out as an independent conservative, his nominator and seconder both being conservatives. The reform party had nothing to do with his being a candidate. The conservatives put the councillors, George Morris and Wm. Canton, and the reformers, R. A. Sheldon and Michael Dwyre. The election on the 6th, between A. Gallagher and I. H. Polk, for reeve was won by the former by 170 majority.

JANUARY WEATHER.
Rev. Irl. R. Hicks, of St. Louis, gives the following forecasts for January:
A Vulcan storm period covers the first six days of January, being central on the 3rd. Winter storms will develop and pass from west to east, followed by colder weather. From the 9th to the 12th there will be a return of storm conditions, with more rain and snow, again followed by colder and clear weather. The moon being at south declination, during the disturbance of 9th to 12th, the cold attending these storms will be general and severe. A mercury disturbance extends from 12th to 23rd, central on the 18th; during the first half of this a Vulcan storm period prevails, central on the 15th. Some of the heaviest storms of the month are probable from Tuesday, 14th, to Friday, 17th. Moon on the equator 14th will intensify electric conditions, causing in southern parts, thunder and lightning. Rain will turn to sleet and snow, ending in blizzards to north and west, with a sweeping cold wave bringing up the rear. About the 20th cold will abate, and rain storms may be expected from east to west; these will turn to sleet and snow, and during 20th to 24th winter storms and blizzards may be expected. The last storm period is central on 26th, covering from the 24th to 29th. After the 27th a high barometer and cold wave will close the month.

STORY OF THE HUNT, 1901

By the Reporter Hunt Club
At Lah-ne-o-tah Lake . . . .

In the Valley of the Maganetawan . . . .

As told by the Scribe of the
ATHENS REPORTER.

We left the party with four nicks in the tally stick as the result of the first days hunt. The incidents of the day were freely discussed around the table after supper and the plans for the morrow's hunt laid out. Phil was to again put out the dogs, Byron, Geo. M., Doc, and the Scribe were allotted stations down on the burned hills at the foot of the lake; Charlie was stationed on the peninsula; Ed. on Green Island and Len at the narrows. Billy was to have breakfast ready at five o'clock as the boys going to the burned hills had three or four miles to go in order to reach their watches. Phil took the dogs overland away across the woods back of Pipe lake and soon started a big buck which took to the lake about a mile down from where Charlie was stationed. He saw the deer take to the water and after a long hard pull he came within shooting distance and two shots gave him the coveted game. Len, who had taken choice positions for the day had not long to wait, as he had hardly got snugly settled when he saw a big doe swimming leisurely along and coming from the shore opposite to where he was looking for game. He rowed down in the direction of the animal which on seeing him, turned and made for the shore. Len had purchased a new Savage rifle, which he had been anxious to try on big game and now was the opportunity to do so. When still a long distance away he

to hunt at the lower end of the lake. Byron was given the post of honor, the middle watch on the lake, and came into camp at noon with a large doe in his boat. Charlie had decided at the last moment to take a roving commission for the day and got out at the Kentucky camp ground and started off over the hills in the direction of Smoke lake (a little pond about a mile and a half from the landing.) He stationed himself on a good runway and had not long to wait before he heard the hounds in the distance. They did not come his way however, and he had almost given up the thought of getting any shots when a rustling was heard in a clump of cedars a short distance away. He redoubled his vigilance and peering around the place, from whence the sound came, he saw a very large buck moving around in the underbrush. He fired and the deer disappeared. He ran to the spot and found where the ball had struck the side of a small sapling and splitting off a piece of the wood had passed on. He began to look for signs of the deer's footprints in the soft ground and was surprised to find blood marks on the leaves and bushes. He followed on a couple of rods and was agreeably surprised to find the carcass of the deer. The hall from his rifle being "soft-nosed" had flattened out as large as a copper and had glanced from the tree directly through the deer's heart. As the deer was far too heavy for him to think of getting it out to the landing than the one he had been on the day he was in that part of the woods before. He struck up on to a rocky ridge thickly strewn with fallen timber and then down in a valley where the walking was more free from obstructions. He kept his eyes and ears open, as he saw plenty of deer tracks in the soft snow, but the greater part of the forenoon passed and he saw no game nor heard the braying of the hounds. He finally struck up over a little ridge along which ran a well defined deer runway, as the marks of the hoofs could be easily traced even under the light covering of snow. Having walked several miles in his wandering from hill to hill he came to a fallen pine and decided to take a well earned rest for a few minutes, at least. He had scarcely got the snow scraped off and was looking around for a piece of bark to form a dry seat when his eye caught sight of a deer's head above a little raise in the ground a few rods distant. The deer must have seen his enemy at the same instant, as it wheeled and ran along the side of the bill, trying to circle around into the runway on beyond where the Scribe stood. The trees and underbrush was too thick for him to get more than an occasional glimpse of the animal as it bounded past. "Old Silver-plate" was kept to the shoulder however in the hope that the deer would give a chance for a shot. That opportunity came as the deer was getting a couple of hundred yards away drew a fine bead on the head of his game and had the proud satisfaction of splitting his head open at the first shot. The rest of the party got into camp a little after noon hour but they had little to report in the way of capture of game. Still the party were satisfied with the days results, and Billy cut two more nicks in the tally stick.

The next day being Sunday, and as no hunting was ever done on that day by the party, it had been arranged that the settler, Schmeier, should bring in to the shore of his lake a supply of milk and butter, as well as any mail matter that came to the post office for the party. Len., Byron and Charlie volunteered to go for these and the rest of the men concluded to go up the river and see if they could find a trail that could be made passable for the team and jumper when the deer and camp furnishings had to be taken out. It was a beautiful Indian summer day and the men spent a pleasant day in the woods, strolling around over the hills and along the old lumber roads to be found running in every direction. They came to the conclusion that the work of making a passable road was one requiring more time than they felt disposed to use for that purpose, and they decided to come back at the close of the hunting season and with saw and axes clear out the old trail of about a quarter of a mile around the two lower rapids, so as to make the work of portaging the game and luggage by land much more easier than formerly. The men who went out for mail and supplies spent several hours visiting a couple of hunters camps on the shore of Many Island lake and it was nearly dark when all reached the home camp.

Monday morning found the camp astray at an early hour. It was decided alone, he removed the entrails and started back towards the landing pretty well satisfied with his day's work. Two more notches were cut on the tally stick and all retired well pleased with the work done so far.

During the night it snowed a little making it somewhat disagreeable traveling but easier for the man putting out the dogs to get a start. Len and the Scribe were sent to the burned hills and the rest were given stations at the most convenient points. Len from his knowledge of wood craft and the fact that he relied on his ability to find his way with his compass, was allowed to take the lead in cutting across the hills and through the woods to the place appointed for him to guard the runway. He had not gone far in the woods before the Scribe began to protest against the course he was taking. Len was just as certain that he was leading off in the wrong direction. Len pointed to an opening in the woods as the place he was making for, and the Scribe told him to go there if he wanted to, as for himself he would take the course that seemed right to him. They parted, Len's parting injunction being, "Be sure you don't get lost," thinking no doubt of the time three years before when they started out in the morning and he did not get back to camp until the afternoon of the next day. Len kept on the course he had decided upon and came out on the shore of the river fully a mile from where he was to take his stand for the day. The Scribe on parting with his companion walked leisurely along and finally came to the trail that led to the place where he was to go. He decided however that he would explore the country a little and see if he could find a better runway and the rifle belched forth its missile of death to anything it struck. The aim was true and with a mighty bound into the air the deer dropped. On running up to the spot the deer was found mortally wounded and floundering on the ground. As the Scribe came up the animal tried to raise himself and spring at his slayer, but his strength was too far gone and he fell back with his head between two trees, which prevented him rising, and the Scribe ran up and placing his foot on the deer's horns drew his hunting knife, letting out the few remaining drops of his life's blood. He blew his hunter's whistle which was answered by Ed. from a hill opposite who came down to where the deer lay just as a couple of the hounds came along on the trail of the dead deer. The Scribe inquired where the little pond he could see nearby was located, and Ed banteringly replied that he thought the Scribe must have lost his bearings, when he did not know that the little pond was the end of Pipe lake and not more than a half a mile from where he had started from when leaving the boat to go to his watch in the morning. The Scribe excused his ignorance of the locality by saying that as he had never been in that part of the woods before, he could easily be mistaken in his surroundings. Ed. took the dogs and tried to get a start and the Scribe walked out to the shore of the lake and got help to drag his game out to the boat. It was by far the largest killed so far and had a beautiful pair of horns. Two notches were again cut in the tally stick although Charlie was not able to get help to carry his doe out and hang it up on the poles beside the others that evening.

Next chapter will tell of Phil's encounter with the bear, the Scribe's

Love's Young Dream

With bold heart in a kiss
And gues in the ice cream,
Fay, who can tell what will be
Of love's young dream?

One Way of It.
"You say this young man is writing
for a living?"
"Well, yes; he sent in a written application for a job."

The Gay Youth.
Some call him fast. I call him slow.
They say that all he gets
He spends right off. I only know
The way he pays his debts.

Does't Have a Chance.
Sylvester—I wonder if he thought twice before he married her.
"Afterthoughts—It isn't likely. She was a widow."

Boston's Plaint.
Junkman, spare that yacht;
Touch not a single stick;
The coast too big a lot
To break her up so quick.

Along the Seaboard.
Mr. Horse—Where's your hat, Lucy?
Mrs. Horse—Hat? This pink pompadour is the proper thing to wear after 6 o'clock.

Romance and Reality.
They were sitting in the hammock
They were planning to elope;
They had just mapped out the programme
When her brother cut the rope.

Against Divorce.
Gobang—What is your objection to divorce?
Enspeck—It encourages matrimony.

Any One Can Tell.
It does not take a palmit to Determine in a minute
That he's a lucky man whose hand
Has got four aces in it.

Summer Ethnology.
"So, what is a preglacial man?"
"Why, man before he had to pay ice bills, of course."

Not a Bite.
"What! Fishing on Sunday?"
And the parson's face was firm.
The archdeacon said: "Yes, you jest!
I'm drowned in this worm!"

Torpid Liver

Is sometimes responsible for difficult digestion, that is, DYSPEPSIA.

When it is,
What headache, dizziness, constipation,
What fits of despondency,
What fears of imaginary evils, conduce with the distress after eating, the moroseness of the stomach, the bad taste in the mouth,
and so forth, to make the life of the sufferer scarcely worth living!
Dyspepsia resulted from torpid liver in the case of Mrs. Jones, 2320 N. 12th St.,
Philadelphia, Pa., who was a great sufferer.
Her statement made in her 77th year is that she was completely cured of it and all its attendant aches and pains, as others have been, by a faithful use of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

That acts on all the digestive organs, cures dyspepsia, and give permanent vigor
and tone to the whole system.

CURES ECZEMA!

Dr. Agnew's Ointment can count its cured patients by the thousands.

But in no one skin disease has it so many almost marvelous cures as in cases of Eczema—this tenacious skin disorder which has baffled many a physician in seeking after a cure. One application puts out the fire, takes away the itching, stinging sensation, and after a few applications the eruptions begin to dry up, diminish, and eventually disappear entirely. The beauty of the treatment is, it leaves no scar or trace of the trouble—but a skin as soft as baby's. Cures piles in four to six nights. 35 cts.
Sold by J. P. LAMB & SON.

WOOD IN PUBLIC
Show Window . . . . .
—Manufacturers of all kinds of goods have adopted this plan. Watchmakers put their most skilled workers on exhibition to show how the finest garments are cut and sewed. Cigar manufacturers take the public into their confidence and let them see the process of rolling as performed by the cleverest hands. Men who deal in mechanical contrivances have found that it pays to have at least one machine set up near a window so the crowd outside may observe the intricacy of its parts and the rapidity of its action. Jewelers have stationed their most expert lapidaries within view of the street that possible customers may see how precious stones are cut and polished and set.

"It isn't everybody who can work in public. It takes a person with good strong nerves and concentration of thought to do difficult work in a show window. I have men in my employ who are excellent workers, but they get flustered when subjected to unusual surveillance and ruin everything they put their hands to. I have tried some of them as window operators, but they can't get used to it."
"A man who can run a machine at full tilt or paint a picture or fry pancakes or iron a shirt in the full gaze of the public eye and not lose his head is an artist and worth several dollars more a week to his employer than the more modest individual. And he gets it too."

MEN'S VIEW OF WOMEN.
Earth has nothing more tender than a plump woman's heart.—Luther.
Remember, woman is most perfect when most womanly.—Gladstone.
Lovely woman that caused our cares can every care beguile.—Beresford.
He that would have his guests let him have a fine woman.—Ben Jonson.
A woman's strength is most potent when robed in gentleness.—Kamartine.
Disguise our bondage as we will, 'tis woman, woman, rules us still.—Moore.
Oil and water, woman and a secret, are hostile properties.—Bulwer Lytton.
Women need not look at those dear to them to know their moods.—Howells.
Kindness in woman, not their beautiful looks, shall win my love.—Shakespeare.
Raptured man quits each dozing sage, O woman, for thy lovelier page.—Moore.
He is a fool who thinks by force of skill to turn the current of a woman's will.—Samuel Tuke.
The most beautiful object in the world, it will be allowed, is a beautiful woman.—Macaulay.
If the heart of a man is depressed with cares, the mist is dispelled when a woman appears.

Taking Sunday Collections.
An old and not yet obsolete mode of taking a collection in a Scotch church is by means of a ladle—a small wooden box at the end of a straight wooden shaft about four and a half feet long, the top of the box being sufficiently open to receive contributions of money. For all special collections this was the usual mode in the chief churches of Edinburgh when I was a boy at school there 50 years ago, but it has gradually gone out of fashion and is not often to be seen nowadays.
For ordinary Sunday collections the general custom has been to have a metal plate or basin on a small table at the church entrance superintended by an elder—a mode which was often called the brod. When ladies are used, they are banded round the congregation by elders after the sermon or after the last psalm, and the common Scotch phrase to "lift" the collection may have come from this custom.

Some Queer Verdicts.
What is "a reasonable state of intoxication" apparently just missed precise definition by a coroner's jury in Mississippi which stated in its verdict that "we, the jury, find that deceased came to his death by a stroke of an east bound train, No. 204, on L. C. Railroad, at Pentress, Miss., in Choctaw county, he being in a reasonable state of intoxication."
A somewhat similar indefiniteness of legal conclusion mars a verdict of a neighboring Georgia jury to the effect that "we, the jury, find the defendant almost guilty."
Equally as uncertain and ambiguous as these statements by laymen is the opinion in an early Maryland case which "acknowledges the corn" by saying that an occurrence referred to took place "at a former sitting when the court was full."

Wife—Here's an advertisement in the paper that you'd better look into. It says a man is wanted, and he won't be worked to death, and he'll get paid enough to live on.
Husband—Says he won't be worked to death, eh?
Wife—Yes; and they promise pay enough to live on.
Husband—Some catch about that!

Mary's Fractious Sister.
"I suppose your baby sister cries some?" asked one of the neighbors "Cries!" said Mary. "Why, she seems to look on the dark side of things all the time!"

NAVIES OF THE WORLD:

A Review of Their Relative Strength by a United States Writer.

The relative rank of the seven great sea powers appears to be as follows: First, Great Britain; second, France; third, Russia; fourth, Germany; fifth, United States; sixth, Italy; and seventh, Japan.

This order of merit, except with two nations, has remained practically constant since the retrogression of Italy and when the other powers, Germany first began to count materially.

During the last two years the superiority of Germany over the United States has been definitely established. Previous to this period the small difference between their apparent percentages of sea strength could be made to swing either way, according to the treatment certain disputed facts were given or withheld.

The present attempted valuation of naval power is based on government returns and on other sources of information that are, in instances, more authoritative and reliable than official revelations. It will be seen that minor vessels, such as gunboats, auxiliary yachts, converted merchantmen and antiquated or obsolete vessels have been omitted.

It will be readily accepted that when this problem was extended to include the relative values of different types of groups of ships and finally separated into absolute deductions from any general formula constructed in armchairs, were bound to be unsound and foolish.

Even granting that the comparative value of material can be set down with some accuracy, such estimates are unbalanced and defective to a degree, because it is impossible to deal definitely with the human side.

Types of Warships and Their Number. The fighting squadrons of navies are composed of various types, which may be grouped in this order of importance: First, battleships; second, armored cruisers; third, protected cruisers; fourth, unprotected cruisers; fifth, torpedo craft; sixth, coast defence vessels; seventh, special types, and eighth, submarines.

First—All are building battleships and armored cruisers. Second—Except in Italy, protected cruisers, and, except in Great Britain, no unprotected cruisers are under construction.

Fourth—All are building torpedo boat destroyers, and, except in Germany, torpedo boats, this last being a smaller type, of such moderate speed and small displacement as to unfit it for anything but harbor work.

Fifth—None of the nations is constructing torpedo gunboats or similar types. Sixth—France has put out and Russia is experimenting with ships within limit, that only possess weak compounds between main elements and extreme imperativeness in the main.

Another type known as destroyers of torpedo boat destroyers. Here we have a reversal of the old rhyme about fleas and infinitum.

Sixth—Submarines are greatly favored by France and tentatively authorized by Great Britain, the United States, and possibly by Russia.

Seventh—Russia is laying down a large craft intended as a collector-transport-train ship—an extraordinary triple combination, fitted with practical utilities.

Real Strength of Nations. Including battleships, armored cruisers, protected cruisers and torpedo craft, the number and displacement of ships in the seven navies are in round numbers as follows:

Table with 4 columns: Rank, Country, No. of Displacement, Tonnage. Lists Great Britain, France, Russia, Germany, United States, Italy, Japan.

Confining the examination to sea-going armored vessels, built or under construction, the following totals in number and displacements, and the relative percentages will be found:

Table with 4 columns: Country, No. of Ships, Displacement, P.C. by Displacement. Lists Great Britain, France, Russia, Germany, United States, Italy, Japan.

Great Britain's Supremacy. The certain supremacy of Great Britain over any other nation, and her apparent superiority to France and Russia combined appear to be established by this analysis.

Lord Brassey, however, insists and shows with stubborn figures that the British fleet is equal to the two super powers in first class battleships and in important cruisers and auxiliaries.

For Battleship Giants. The present tendency is to build battleships exceeding 16,000 tons. Great Britain, for example, having under construction vessels of 18,000 tons, and the latest type recommended by our Board of Construction being 17,000 tons.

Page Woven Wire Fence. Owing to the variations of Canadian climate, considerable expansion must be made in all fences of this material.

6. In the morning, the Holy Spirit will call loudly and clearly at inner repentance always precedes conversion.

Teaching—However distant the heart may be from God, the Spirit will call loudly and clearly at inner repentance always precedes conversion.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON NO. III. JANUARY 19, 1902.

The Early Christian Church.—Acts 2:37-47. Commentary.—Peter continued his sermon, which was begun in the last lesson, and preached unto them Jesus of Nazareth.

37. They were pricked—These earnest words delivered by the apostle "pricked" in their hearts. This word denotes to pierce or penetrate with a needle; and thus to pierce with grief or acute pain of any kind.

38. Peter said—Peter does not act as superior to the other apostles, but as spokesman for the entire group.

39. For the promise—The promise of the Holy Spirit, and of pardon and forgiveness, and repentance and faith in the Redeemer.

40. Many other words—Thus we see that this account is only a brief report of Peter's discourse.

41. Then—Immediately, at the close of the sermon, "A prompt acceptance of the word is the beginning of true conversion."

42. They continued steadfastly—Perseverance is the result of a fixed purpose. Peter was definite in his preaching. The people were definite in their decision.

43. Fear came—Awe and reverence took the place of human philosophy. No frivolous conversation had place among them.

44. All things common—Themselves and all they had belonged to God, to whom also belonged their poorer brethren, and they had possessed in trust for God and His saints.

45. Possessions—Lands, houses, goods—Personal property. Particularity indicating that the sale and distribution took place from time to time as called for.

OLD GRACEFULLY. Grain receipts were light on the street market today, only 1,200 bushels of wheat.

Wheat—100 bushels of white sold at 70 to 82 1/2 per bushel; 100 bushels of red at 70 to 81 1/2, and 100 bushels of goods at 67 1/2 to 68 1/2.

Following are the closing quotations at important centres to-day: Chicago, May, 87 1/2; Chicago, 81 1/2; Duluth, 79 3/4.

English Live Stock Market. Liverpool, Jan. 11.—Cattle are strong at 12 1/2 to 13 1/2 per lb. (dressed weight); refrigerator beef is steady at 10 to 10 1/2 per lb.

Business at Montreal has been picking up this week. The travellers are out on the road.

At Winnipeg the past week trade has been rather quiet. Retailers are well satisfied with the results of the holiday trade.

Reports to R. G. Dun & Co. show liabilities of commercial failures for the first week of January $4,040,839, of which $85,292 were in manufacturing.

The mule draws the line at a canal towpath. A busy little bee will sometimes divert the greatest mind.

Some men never do anything wrong because they never do anything. The first thing a wise man learns is to dodge an interrogation point.

Any man is willing to do for a woman—if she will allow him to fix the date. It takes a genius to induce other people to furnish money to carry out his ideas.

Because a quarter with a hole in it is worth twenty cents it does not follow that a quarter with two holes in it is worth forty cents.

Residents of Pitcairn Island have little to worry about. One of the most delightful spots on the habitable globe is Pitcairn Island in the South Seas.

These people are entirely isolated from the world, with the exception of a religious mission near one of the great ocean routes to induce the captains of vessels wishing fresh meat or fruit to make a slight deflection from their course.

According to the official report, the islanders are under the government of one of their number, who is elected by the people.

The system of control is evidently largely socialistic. From 8 a. m. until 2 p. m. all of the male grown population are engaged in public works of various kinds.

Some poets write because they are inspired and others because they are hungry. Colds That Will Never be Cured.

"Colds that will never be cured." A startling sentence, but you know it to be true. Scarcely a day passes but some death from consumption, pneumonia or similar ailment emphasizes the truth of this statement.

But what treatment is to be chosen from the great number of remedies that are recommended? You can sense the truth in buying medicine, just as you can in the purchase of a piano, a bicycle or a sewing machine.

If you apply this test to medicines for coughs, colds and similar ailments, you will select Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linsseed and Turpentine, because of the extraordinary merit which it possesses, and which have become known to the public generally through years of use.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linsseed and Turpentine is prized especially because of its far-reaching effects, even in the most serious cases of bronchitis, whooping cough, croup and asthma.

—Everybody wonders how the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, secured the right to publish that remarkable story, "The Man From Glengarry," written by Rev. C. W. Gordon, of Winnipeg, under the nom de plume of Ralph Connor. It is easily the best story of the day, and it is said thousands of new subscribers are flocking to the Family Herald and Weekly Star so as to be in time for the first chapters, on January 29th. Family Herald subscribers are certainly in for a big treat. Their three pictures—the King, the Queen, and the beautiful "Duchess of Devonshire"—are alone considered by many to be worth a five-dollar bill, yet one dollar pays for the whole outfit.
