HAPPY HOUR THURSDAY

Artcraft Picture Corp. Presents
Cecil B. DeMille's Thundering Cinema

THE Whispering Chorus Special in Seven Reels

from the story by Perley Poore Sheehan

His conscience awakened by "The Whispering Chorus" whose clinging melody stirred his heart and brain and quickened gnawing remorse, John Trimble thief, fugitive and nameless wanderer, makes the supreme sacrifice to preserve the happiness of the woman he loves. This is a photoplay of unusual power and distinctive heart-appeal. It embraces all the elements of human interest and it is inevitable that in its development the gamut of human emotions is run. Its various details have been worked out with extraordinary skill of craftsmanship, the result being a cinema offering of exquisite artistry and effectiveness.

A Picture that will Set Newcastle People Thinking

"The Whispering Chorus" is a special Cecil B. DeMille production for Artcraft release and is particularly noteworthy on that account. Mr. DeMille is famous for his productions of "Joan the Woman," "The Woman God Forgot" and "The Devil Stone" and others, all of which established new and higher standards of cinema art.

Allies Still Forging Ahead

Tuesday
British troops have gained additional ground north of Roye and on the north bank of the Somme. The Germans last night attacked the British positions in the Merris sector, Flanders. They were repulsed.
The Germans delivered a local attack near Foquescourt, on the line between Roye and Chaulnes. It was repulsed.
German prisoners taken from Thursday to Sunday exceed 27,000, of which 2,000 are officers, more than 1,000 rannon and over 10,000 machine gun have been captured.
The total of enemy prisoners taken since July 18 is more than 70,000.

Wednesday
There was no infantry fighting during the night on the British sector of the Picardy battle front. The German artillery was active.
Tuesday the British threw back German local attacks on the northern side of the Lys salient, the German artillery was very active.
British troops have gained further ground at the apex of the Lys salient in Flanders. East of Meteren the line was advanced slightly, while east of Vieux-Berquin, south of Meteren, patrols established a new line.
The French Armies under General Humbert, following the successful advance of his right wing in the Oise valley, is now striking northward in that region, almost at right angle to the main battle front. This operation is now fully under way.
The French already possess Plessier and Locouville, the keys to this region.
The Germans have also subjected the valley north of Morlaucourt to heavy gas shelling, and have similarly treated Harbonnières and Gressaire wood region. No further counter-attacks by the enemy are reported.
In the regions of Bray, north of the Somme, as well as immediately south of the river, the British have been actively straightening and pushing forward their line. Northwest of Bray the British raided the enemy lines and found them unoccupied.
A battle is raging between Czechoslovak and Bolshevik forces along the middle Volga, especially around Simbirsk, according to despatches. The Soviet army is to number 150,000. The Soviet fleet on the Volga has seized all Czechoslovak vessels, breaking the latter's communication with their headquarters at Simbirsk.

Thursday
The British line has been advanced slightly east of Rainecourt, in the district northwest of Chaulnes, on the Picardy battle front.
German prisoners taken in the Picardy drive total 3,344. Field Marshal Haig announced today. Of these British have captured 21,844 and the French 8,500.
British patrols were active through out the night in the district between Albert and Ayette, where the Germans began their retirement yesterday. The patrols have maintained close touch with the enemy in the region.
The British made further progress at several points along this front.
The violent artillery duel between the Avre and the Oise continued during last night. A German raid in Champagne failed.
The French have captured all the high ground on the Lassigny Massif, and are working down the north and eastern sides, so that a further retirement of the enemy in that sector is probable.

Friday
The enemy has evacuated the village of Vieux Berquin, west of the Merris. South of Albert the British advanced their line slightly in the region of Morlaucourt. Further north the British have pushed their patrols eastward on a three mile front between Beaucourt-sur-Ancre and Puisieux Au Mont.
The French troops have made an important advance on a front of two and one half miles west of Roye in (Continued on page 4)

The bride looked girlish and dainty in a cream silk crepe dress and carried a bouquet of rosebuds and ferns. The ceremony which was very impressive was conducted by Rev. Geo. G. Lord Beaverbrook Remembers Namesake

Will Build and Equip Modern School at Beaverbrook—Work to be Started at Once

Through the munificence of Lord Beaverbrook, the little settlement of Beaver Brook, on the Intercolonial railway, about nine miles north of Newcastle, from which presumably, Lord Beaverbrook, took his title, is to have an up-to-date school house, thoroughly equipped in the best of modern style. The village has some half dozen families with about 15 children of school age, and the outlook for the erection and maintenance of a school, besides the maintenance of a suitable teacher, appeared dark until such times as there should be a much larger population. However, the people bethought themselves of the great man who used to live so near them and whose title had put them on the map, and the station agent, Mr. J. J. S. Boudreau, wrote to Lord Beaverbrook, explaining the situation. Promptly came back letters from Lord Beaverbrook notifying Mr Boudreau that a school house of the latest and best kind would be built and equipped, and authorizing Mr. Allan A. Davidson of Newcastle, Lord Beaverbrook's legal representative in New Brunswick and, along with Messrs E A McCurdy and W A Park, a trustee of Lord Beaverbrook's handsome endowment of Harkiss Academy. High Explosive Caused Air Shelter Disaster During Raid on London

MOST of the casualties in a recent London raid were caused by a bomb which fell on an air-raid shelter. The bomb, evidently of a high explosive nature, reached the basement, which was crowded with women and children.

Through the gaping shaft pierced by the bomb one could see the bare skeleton of the building, the fantastically twisted steel girders and charred beams of wood.

Province as Dry as Law Can Make It

No Liquor for Thirsty Ones Except by Doctor's Orders—And Then Hard to Get

Less than one year and a half ago it was possible for any one to secure as much liquor as they wished, providing they had the necessary cash. Today the story is a different one, caused by the enforcement of the New Brunswick prohibitory act.

The difficulty of purchasing liquor at present comes to those who do not really need it, for the legitimate user of alcohol in any form can purchase it by securing a prescription duly signed by a medical practitioner which, on presentation to a vendor, will be speedily filled.

A Lesson in Discretion. The story that is being told of the visit recently paid to London by two Basuto chiefs contains a lesson in discretion which might be laid to heart by many. The Basutos had been to the front and learned many things and had come back to London and learned many more; for one thing they had learned all about spies.

Lemons Make Skin White, Soft, Clear

Make This Beauty Lotion for a Few Cents and See for Yourself

What girl or woman does not dream of lemon juice to remove complexion blemishes, to whiten the skin and to bring out roses, the freshness and the hidden beauty? But lemon juice alone is acid, therefore irritating, and should be mixed with orchard white this way. Strain through a fine cloth the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing about three ounces of orchard white, then shake well and you have a whole quart of skin and complexion lotion at about the cost one usually pays for a small jar of ordinary cold cream.

Any druggist will supply three ounces of orchard white at very little cost and the grocer has the lemons.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal health condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

WHO LOOKS AFTER THE SQUARE

Newcastle has a nice little park of which the citizens could be proud, if it was properly looked after. At the present time papers and other kind of rubbish is allowed to accumulate along the walks and everywhere else. The fountain leaks and is seldom kept clean. One of the ornamental cannons has been lying on the grass for a month at least and no attempt has been made to put it back in its place. Some one is the caretaker and some one else is his boss; both are guilty of carelessness as a few hours work now and then would make the park appear decent and worthy of the town.

HOW TO MAKE THE SPOTLESS TOWN

We read in many of our exchanges, agitations by the editors for the various towns to clean up the streets. In this respect Alvinston leads many of the surrounding towns, as every Friday morning (weather permitting) the merchants get out on the street and sweep into piles all refuse which may have collected during the week, this being then hauled away. This makes a very presentable looking street and should be an example to other towns.—Alvinston Free Press.

Allies Still Forging Ahead

British troops have gained further ground in the neighborhood of Vieux Berquin at the apex of the Lys salient.
In Picardy British troops have made additional progress. The British lines have been pushed eastward north of the Amiens-Roye road and north of the Ancre.

Lord Beaverbrook Remembers Namesake

The work will be started as soon as plans are received from the Educational authorities.
Beaverbrook, though small at present has great possibilities. There is a road from the station to Ferryroad on the Miramichi, about nine miles, which a little repairs would put in good shape. Along this road, which runs back of Douglastown lots are good sites for many farms. The road to Newcastle could also be easily be made good, opening up more land for settlement. One Douglastown man has already applied for a homestead at Beaverbrook and hopes to be the pioneer of a numerous colony.
The local government's surveyors have recently examined the district. The strip of good farming land is said to run clear through to Maple Glen and Whitmeville.

Imperial's Feature Very Powerful

'The Whispering Chorus' a Thunderingly Strong Story

The story is exceptionally strong in conception and treatment, and its various details are worked out with unusual skill of craftsmanship. John Trimble, an employe of a large corporation, is harassed by creditors and in a mad effort to make both ends meet, he resorts to theft of money from his firm. Confronted by the imminence of arrest and conviction, he deserts his wife and aged mother to become a hermit on a lonely island in the Ohio river. To create the impression that he is dead, he dons the clothing of a drowned man whose body he has found in the river and places his own on the body. This done to his satisfaction, he drops out of sight.

With the finding of the body, it is surmised that Trimble was murdered and the police begin a search for his slayer. Trimble has assumed the name of Martin and by a strange pervasivity of fate he is suspected of being his own murderer. He eludes arrest after a fierce battle with the police and goes to San Francisco where he becomes a stevedore. Remorse fills him when he thinks of his mother and he returns to her. She fails to recognize him as her son, but when she does so finally, she faints. Trimble runs for a physician into the arms of the police and Mrs. Trimble dies.

Arrested as Martin, Trimble reveals his identity and refers the police to his mother for proofs of his statement, he being unaware of her death. Trimble is tried, convicted of murder and sentenced to death. Meanwhile, his former wife who had remarried under the impression that she was a widow, is appealed to in his behalf, and she visits him in his cell, but when he recognizes her, and realizes that she is happy in her new-found love, herself sacrificially convinces her that he is Martin, an assassin, and smilingly sees to his doom.

Miss Florence M. Bird of Marysville, who has been home a year from Japan where she is a missionary in Tokio, left home on the 10th for San Francisco, where she will call for Japan.

CIGARETTE BURN

Men who smoke know how painful a burn of this kind can be. Just smear on a little Zam-Buk and it will give you no more trouble. Even a little burn, if neglected, may develop into a very sore place, as Mr. J. A. Savard, of Doucet, Que., found. He says: "I burned one of my fingers with a cigarette. I applied some ointment and thought it would be all right, but instead of getting better it got worse, until the sore covered the entire top of my hand. I suffered such pain that I could not sleep, and tried everything I could think of but could not cure it. Finally a friend recommended Zam-Buk, which gave me wonderful relief, and the continued use of it completely healed the sore."

For cuts, blisters, rash, eczema, ulcers, blood-poisoning and piles Zam-Buk is equally good. All dealers 50c box.

Lord Beaverbrook Again Criticized

Radical Claims He Wants To Control The World News

London, Aug. 16—The director of the Ministry of Information was debated in the House of Commons on an allegation of waste of money.

Leif Jones, a Radical, complained that Beaverbrook wanted to control the news flashed all over the world and contended that the propaganda in foreign countries had been of little value.

S. Baldwin, financial secretary, defended the ministry and said Beaverbrook would be glad to meet the members and discuss matters; meanwhile he asked the House to recognize that Beaverbrook had taken up a most delicate and thankful task, and hoped the members would not quaver the pitch.

The Times in an editorial says Beaverbrook has given the work of the ministry coherence and energy in many parts of the world, notably in Canada and United States, and results were already visible.

The Daily News asks: What have Beaverbrook and his colleagues done. What are they capable of doing in the direction of interpreting the spirit of Britain to the world? Who is there in Britain or Canada who would be ready to take Beaverbrook as a political guide?

POSTAGE OF PARCELS

The cost of postage on parcels to the boys at the Front is quite a heavy burden on some people, and an exchange asks if arrangements cannot be made with the Imperial postal authorities to decrease that cost. In case this would not be done an exchange suggests that the government defray all postage above a purely nominal rate from the consolidated revenue fund.

Regular Meeting of Women's Institute

Not Much Business of Importance Taken up—A Flag Pole for Harkin's Academy

The Newcastle Women's Institute met at Mrs. Leard's last Tuesday night in the absence of the President, Mrs. A. J. Ferguson, Mrs. Gilmour G. Stohart took the chair. Miss Miriam McIntyre of Marysville, demonstrator of canning to Home Efficiency Clubs, was present and gave some practical information in food conservation. She exhibited the attractive little booklets of the Canada Food Board (those on fish Recipes; Vegetables Recipes; Fruit and vegetables; Canning, Drying and Storing; Bread Recipes, etc.—which sell at five cents each. The Institute is ordering a number, and they can be had from Mrs. E. A. McMillan or Mrs. Leard.

A convention of all the Women's Institutes of this County will be held in Newcastle towards the end of next month.

The fact that Newcastle Superior School building has no flagpole was brought up and discussed. The Institute did not see their way clear to take steps to procure one at the present, as their hands are full with other patriotic enterprises. Some thought that the school children would appreciate the flying of the flag better if they themselves procured a flagpole by their own exertions. The matter was laid over until next regular meeting.

Mrs. Leard gave a reading on Domestic Science, which was followed by a very profitable discussion.

An Age of Weak Nerves

"No heart for anything" is the cry of thousands of men and women who might be made well by the new, red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make.

Misery day and night is the lot of hosts of men and women who are to dry the victims of weak nerves. Their pale, drawn faces and dejected attitude tell a sad tale, for nervous weakness means being tortured by morbid thoughts and unaccountable fits of depression. These sufferers are painfully sensitive and easily agitated by some chance remark.

Sleeplessness robs them of energy and strength; their eyes are sunken; their limbs tremble, appetite is poor and memory often fails. This nervous exhaustion is one of the most serious evils afflicting men and women of today. The only way to bring back sound vigorous health is to feed the starved nerves which are clamoring for new, rich red blood. This new, good blood can be had through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which fact accounts for the thousands of cures of nervous diseases brought about by this powerful blood builder and nerve restorer. Through the fair use of this medicine thousands of despondent people have been made bright, active and strong. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

The Explosive Powers of Gasoline

Many automobile owners do not fully realize the danger connected with the careless handling of gasoline in a general way they recognize the explosive power of the liquid but few of them know how great that explosive power is. A writer in one of the magazines devoted to the auto trade seeks to make this clear and more impressive by comparing the explosive power of gasoline with that of dynamite. He points to the fact that gasoline even at low temperature constantly develops an explosive vapor. Five gallons of gasoline will generate 8,000 cubic feet of gas which, if ignited, expands 4,000 times. One gallon of gasoline, properly mixed with air and compressed, is equal to about 33 pounds of dynamite in explosive force. What makes gasoline particularly dangerous is the fact that it is more rapidly ignited and exploded than dynamite. One can never be too careful in handling gasoline under any and all circumstances.—Popular Science Monthly.

The Stowaway

By LOUIS TRACY

Her heart sank when she discovered this new maelstrom in her sea of troubles, but here was Carmela herself speaking to her in English.

"So you are Iris Verity?" the girl was saying. "I have heard so much of you, yet you are so utterly different from what I imagined."

"You have heard of me?" repeated Iris, and surprise helped her to smile with something of her wonted self-possession.

"Yes, on board the steamer. We sailed from Southampton and had little else to talk of during the voyage. But, of course, you cannot understand. Among my fellow passengers were your uncle and Mr. Bulmer."

Iris had long relinquished any hope of communicating with Bootle until the present deadlock in the operations of the two armies was a thing of the past. Completely mystified now by Carmela's glib reference to the two men whose names were so often in her thoughts, though seldom on her lips, she could only gaze at the Senhora de Sylva in silent bewilderment.

Carmela, feeling that she was gaining ground rapidly, affected a note of polite regret.

"Please forgive me for being so abrupt. Perhaps I ought to have prepared you. But it is quite true. Mr. Verity and Mr. Bulmer came with me from the West Indies yesterday. Indeed, if it were not for them and the assistance they gave me I would not be here now. No one recognized me, fortunately, and I hope you will not be vexed—I passed as Mr. Verity's niece. In fact, I took your place for the time."

"If Mr. Verity and Mr. Bulmer are in Brazil?" Iris began tremulously, but Carmela broke in, with a shrill laugh.

"There is no 'if.' Look below there, near my father's tent! They have arrived. They are asking for you. Come, let us meet them! I must see my father before he departs."

Iris's swimming eyes could not discern the figures to which Carmela was pointing. But this strange girl's triumphant tone rang like a knell in her heart. She was not thinking now of the complications that might arise between San Benavides and his discarded flame. She only knew that by some miracle her uncle had come to bring her home, and with him was the man to whom she was pledged, while Philip only had told her he would not see her again until the following evening.

So this was the end of her dream. Bittersweet it had been and long drawn out, but forthwith she must awake to the gray actualities of life.

She felt Carmela dragging her onward irresistibly, vindictively. She saw as through a mist David Verity's fery lined face and heard his harsh accents. Yes, there was no mistake. Here was Bootle transported to Brazil, Linden House to Las Flores!

"By gum, lass," he was bellowing, with a touch of real sentiment in his voice, "you've given us a rare dance afore we caught up w' you. But 'ere you are, bright as a cherry, an' 'ere is Dickey an' meself come to fetch you. Dash my wig, there's life in the old dog yet, or we'd never ha' bin able to ride forty mile through this God-forgotten country. An' damme if that isn't Coke, red as a lobster. Jimmie, me boy, put it there! Man, but you're a dashed long way from port!"

Happily Iris was too stunned to betray herself. She extended a hand to the sun-browned, white-haired old man standing by her uncle's side.

"YOU'VE GIVEN US A RARE DANCE," he had told her he would not see her again until the following evening.

CHAPTER XVII
SHOWING HOW BRAZIL CHOSE HER PRESIDENT

TWO thousand five hundred years ago the prophet Jeremiah expressed incredulity as to the power of an Ethiopian to change his skin or a leopard his spots. The march of the centuries has fully justified the seer's historic doubt, so it makes but slight demand on the critical faculties to assume that two years' residence in Europe had not cooled the hot southern blood flowing in Carmela's veins.

She had hated Iris before she set eyes on her. She hated her now that she had seen her rare beauty. She gazed on the suffering inflicted by the presence of the faded old man who claimed her as his bride. Though it was of the utmost importance that she should hasten to her father, she returned to Las Flores to her rival's company, their arms linked in seeming friendship and the Brazilian girl's ears alert to treasure every word that fell from Bulmer's woe.

So Dickey contented himself by listening to Coke's somewhat obscure narrative of the Andromeda's wrecking, and if he interposed an occasional question and thus drew the girl's sweet voice into the talk it was invariably germane to the strange history of the ship and her human freight.

Coke's narrative was picturesque and lurid. Every incident centered in the striking personality of Phillip Hozier. From the instant the second shell struck the winch and laid him apparently dead on the forecastle to the very hour of this coming together at Las Flores, Hozier held the stage. It was he who took Iris on his shoulders and brought her to safety through the spume of the wrathful sea, he who carried her to the hut, he who crossed Fernando Noronha alone to protect her.

Coke was impartial. He would have minimized his own singular bravery in running up the ship's signals had not Iris given him a breathing space while she enthralled the others with her description. Otherwise Coke skipped no line of his epic.

"You'll recollect," he wheezed in a voice that rasped like a file, "you'll recollect, Mr. Verity, as I said to you that Hozier was good enough to take charge of the bridge of a battleship. By—well, any'ow if I'd said the channel fleet I shouldn't 'ave bin talkin' through me 'at. Look at 'im now. 'E's the only reel live man Dom Wot's name 'as got. Sink me, if it wasn't for the folks at 'ome an' the fact that the Andromeda's skipper ought to keep clear of politics in this crimson country I'd 'ave a cut in at the game meself."

It might be hoped that Carmela's mood would soften when she discovered her rival's harmless love, but that would be expecting something which her bursting southern heart could not give. A volcano pours forth lava, not water. It scorches, not heals. Iris, willing or not, had sapped her Salvador's allegiance. Carmela wanted to see those curved lips writhing in pain, those brown eyes dimmed, that smooth brow wrung with the grief that knows no remedy.

A fierce joy leaped up in her when Verity spoke of an early departure.

"You see, Iris," he explained, "these Brazilian bucks may be months in settling their differences. Dickey an' me 'elped a lot by our consul, squeezed a pass out of the president—beg pardon, miss, but 'e is president, in Pernambuco at all events," he said in an apologetic aside to Carmela—"an' the sooner we make tracks for ole England the better it'll be for all of us. Wot do you say to an early start tomorrow? We'd be off tonight only I'm feared my rheumatically bones wouldn't stand the racket."

The color ebbed from Iris's face, but she said at once:

"I shall be ready, uncle, dear. I promised Dom Corria to look after the hospital appliances that are so much needed by the poor soldiers, but the Senhora de Sylva will attend to that much more effectively than I."

"Good! Then that's settled."

Carmela, of course, did not believe in a woman's complacency in such a vital matter. She was ever prepared to spring, to strike, to wrench their plans to suit her own ends; but, contrive as she might, she could not succeed in leaving Iris alone with Bulmer. Full of device, she was foiled at each turn. The day wore, the sun went down, the starlit sky made beautiful a parched earth, but never a word in privacy did Iris exchange with her husband to be. Carmela's malice was not hidden from her, but she despised it. There was some ease for her tortured brain in defeating it. If the Senhora de Sylva had only understood how thoroughly the Englishwoman loathed her petty jealousy it was possible that the few remaining hours of their enforced intimacy might have been rendered less irksome.

The future is the most cunning of playwrights. No man may tell what the next scene shall be. And no man nor any woman could guess the mad revel of hate and war that would rage that night around the placid homestead of Las Flores.

Behind the veranda was a huge ball-room converted by the exigencies of the campaign into a dining hall for the many inmates of the flaca. The Brazilian ladies, the sailors, some sick or wounded officers who were not confined to bed, even the household servants, took their meals there in common. Supper was served soon after 9 o'clock. When cigars and cigarettes were lighted and the company broke up into laughing, gossiping, noisy groups, the place looked more like a popular continental cafe than a room in a private mansion.

Though De Sylva, General Russo, San Benavides and some score of members of the president's staff who usually dined at the flaca were now absent, there was no lack of lively chatter. A very babel of tongues mixed in unity. The prevalent note was one of cheery animation. Carmela exerted herself to win popularity, and a president's daughter need not put forth very strenuous efforts in that direction to be acclaimed by most.

Iris was listening with real interest to Verity's description of the finding of Macfarlane in the Andromeda's boat by a Cardiff bound collier three days after he had drifted away from Fernando Noronha.

"The yarn kem to us through the consul at Pernambuco," he said. "Evidently from wot you tell me, it's all right. Poor ole Mac 'ad a bad time afore 'e was picked up, but 'e was alive, an' I'm jolly glad of it, for 'e'll be a first rate witness w'en this bustness comes up in court."

"Wot court?" demanded Coke sharply.

"The court that settles our claim, of course," retorted Verity, with a quick furtive look at his fellow conversator.

"There'll be no claim. The president means to stomp up in style. You take my tip an' shut up about courts," said Coke.

"It'll cost Brazil a tidy penny," remarked Bulmer thoughtfully.

A criado, a nondescript manservant attached to the household, stooped over Iris and whispered something. She gathered that she was wanted in the patee, or courtyard, which, owing to the construction of the house, stood on one side instead of in front, where the lawn usurped its usual position.

"Who is it?" she asked.

"Colonel San Benavides, senhora."

"Tell him to wait," she said, hoping to gain a moment wherein to decide how best to act.

"It is urgent, senhora—ao mesmo tempo, the colonel said."

"Go! That is my answer."

Iris had no wish to meet San Benavides. If she were seen with him in the dark patee at this late hour fuel would be added to the fire of Carmela's foolish spite. She was aware of Carmela's covert glances watching her from the other end of the long room. What was to be done? Why not send Carmela in her stead? They were almost of the same height and dressed somewhat alike in flowered muslin. It would be an amusing mistake, though annoying perhaps to San Benavides. At any rate, Carmela would not object, and Iris was fully resolved not to keep the tryst in person.

She walked straight to her enemy.

"Colonel San Benavides awaits you in the patee," she said in English.

"Awaits me!"

There was no mistaking the gleam in those jet black eyes. The smoldering fire flamed into furnace heat at the implied indignity of such a mandate being delivered by Iris.

"I suppose so," said Iris carelessly. "A servant brought the message. He came to me in the first instance, but I am just going to my room to pack my few belongings. We leave here at daylight, you know."

So at last Carmela would learn the truth. Salvador was out there alone. She would soon judge him. If he were innocent she would know. If he had merely been made the sport of a designing woman she was ready to forgive. In a more amiable mood than she had displayed at any moment since her arrival at Las Flores, Carmela hastened along a dark corridor, crossed a bare hall, passed through a porch and scoured the shadows of the patee for the form of her one time lover.

A voice whispered in French:

"Come quickly, senhora. I pray you!"

It startled her to find San Benavides talking French until it occurred to her that Iris and he must converse in that language or hardly at all. The thought was disquieting. The volcano stirred again.

"Senhora, je vous prie!" again pleaded the man, who was on horseback under the trees.

She did not hesitate, but ran to him. Without a word of explanation he caught her in his arms, drew her up until she was seated on the holsters strapped to a gaucho saddle and wheeled his horse into a gallop. Filled with a grim determination, she uttered no protest. Not a syllable crossed her lips lest he should strive to amend his woeful blunder. She noticed that they were not going toward the camp, but circling round the inclosed land in the direction of the hills. Though the night was dark, the stars gave light enough for the horse to move freely.

Carmela's head was bent.

But San Benavides wondered why the cold Ingleza had surrendered so silently. He expected at least a scream, a struggle, an impassioned demand to be released.

"One word, senhora," he muttered. "You must think me mad. I am not. All is lost. Our army is defeated. In an hour Las Flores will be in flames."

The girl quivered in his arms. A moaning cry came from her.

"It is true, I swear it!" he vowed. "I mean you no ill. I fought till the end, and my good horse alone carried me in advance of the routed troops. Dom Corria may reach the flaca alive, but even so he and the rest will be killed. I refused to escape without you. Believe me or not, you are dearer than life itself."

Carmela, with a sudden movement, raised her face to his and threw aside her veil.

"Salvador!" she said.

His eyes glared into hers. His frenzied clutch at the reins pulled the horse on to its haunches.

"My God, Carmela!" he almost shrieked.

"Yes. So you are running away, Salvador—running away with the English miss, deserting my father in the hour of his need! But she will die with the others, you say. Well, then, join her!"

Relatives of Late James LeGalley to Sue For Damages

Town Council Asked to Appoint Solicitor to Accept Writ--Other Matters Taken up by Council at Thursday's Meeting

That the relatives of the late James LeGalley, who was killed by coming in contact with an electric wire in July last intend to take action against the Town for damages was the information given by George M. McDade, of Chatham, in a letter to the Town Council asking that a solicitor be appointed to accept a writ, and the Town Fathers have instructed the town solicitor to act in the matter. The only other matters of interest before the council was the adoption of Ald. Doyle's motion providing that property holders be asked to pay half the costs of installing sewerage, the granting of $100 additional for Board of Health purposes and granting a license for William Standard Shows to exhibit here.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Troy, Aids, Doyle, Durick, J. Russell, P. Russell and Stuart present.

A communication from George M. McDade, asking that a solicitor be appointed to accept a writ in the action of the relatives of the late James LeGalley was read and on motion of Aids, Durick and J. Russell, the matter was placed in the hands of the Town Solicitor.

An application from the chairman of the board of health for an additional grant of $100 to meet bills incurred by the Smallpox outbreak was read and on motion of Aids, P. Russell and Durick the grant was made.

An application from Mrs. Charlotte Jones for reduction of back taxes was read and on motion of Aids, Doyle and Durick was referred to the By-Laws and Petitions Committee.

An application from W. J. Hogan for license to conduct a pool room was granted.

On motion the following bills were passed: Finance.

North Shore Leader	$5.00
F. J. Desmond, M. D.	5.00
On motion of Aids, Doyle and P. Russell, the Town Clerk was authorized to pay the bills of the light and water Committee as presented to the Council on the sanction of the chairman of that Committee who was not present as follows:
Lanark Engineering Co.	$182.87
V. O. Phillips & Sons	15.00
Fraser Co.	193.13
Maritime Foundry	30.15
T. McAvity & Sons	7.13
Summer Co.	139.00
H. S. Miller	75.00
H. Russell	12.75
Can. Oil Co.	121.10
Eastern Electric Co.	5.46
Can. Cotton & Wool Waste Co.	110.98
B. F. Malby	70.28
John Maloney	10.00
D J Buckley	1125.00

Ald. Doyle moved, sec by Ald. Durick that By-Law no 21, Section 4 be amended to read "No extension shall be made to the sewerage system along any of the streets of the town, except on the presentation to the Council of a request for the same from the majority of the property owners on such streets and should such sewerage be installed the cost shall be borne in equal proportion by the Town and the owners of the property on each side of such streets."

Ald. Stuart agreed with the spirit of motion, but it may be necessary from a sanitary point of view to sewer streets, on which the majority of the property holders do not ask for sewerage and would not be possible to put sewerage where it was necessary. He would like to have the wording changed so that Town could put sewerage on any street that it wished.

Ald. Doyle said it was to do away with the "one man" sewer that some people were talking about. It would not be necessary where one man wanted a sewer and the rest did not to put an extra burden on the others. He always understood that it was left to the discretion of the council as to where sewerage was to be put. He did not think a case like Ald Stuart had brought would arise. The day has come when every one wants sewerage. It also adds to the value of a man's property and he should pay something for that.
