WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Hurrying there accordingly, it turned out that I was pretty right. The carriage stood at the rectory gates, and the three ladies, madame, Mlle. Valdin, and Nat, were just coming down the path. The carriage was an open one, for madame's perfect health scorned anything else excepting in wet weather, and of course St. George and I hurried to put them in it. Nat clutching my arm on the spot and, under pretense of a whisper, avoiding the hand which he held out to her. The other two were in, and I had just put Nat into her place beside madame, who was bending over the further side of the carriage to speak to St. George, and had piled my armful of books on the seat beside her, when there came close behind me the sound of a man's firm rapid step. If it had never struck upon my ear before, I should have known whose it was by the flood of color which swept over the little dusky face before me and the sudden flash which shone in her glorious eyes. I let the last book drop where it would, and wheeled round, to find myself face to face with Roger Yorke.

"Why, Roger, old man!"—and I held out my hand and gripped his gladly—"you don't mean to say you are really back? When was it?"

"This morning. I haven't been in Whittlesford an hour."

Saying this hastily as he shook my hand, he passed me and raised his hat to madame in reply to her exclamation as she caught sight of him. And then, in a flash, I saw two things—that Raby St. George shot a swift glance filled with wrath and quick suspicion from Yorke's face to Natalie's, and then turned as ghastly pale as his swarthy skin would let him, and that Mlle. Valdin started forward for an instant with distended eyes, and then shrunk back into her corner, drawing her veil over a white and quivering face.

No one say it but myself, I think. Madame began to scold me for having dropped the major's book, and, stooping to recover it from among the rugs and the folds of the skirt was most charmingly unconscious of the pretty little tableau beside her, as the black and blue eyes flashed together, while Nat's little fingers were lost for a moment in Roger's broad palm.

It was only for a moment, though. Then the carriage was bowling swiftly down the High Street, St. George had said good-afternoon and taken

Psoriasis All Over Body

Doctors Said Incurable, But Now There is No Sign of Disease, Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mde. N. Massey.

Psoriasis is one of the most dreaded of itching skin diseases. It is a sort of chronic eczema. The itching it causes is almost beyond human endurance, and doctors are accustomed to give it up as incurable.

But here is a case that was given up and pronounced incurable. The result proves that Dr. Chase's Ointment almost works miracles in curing the worst form of itching skin disease imaginable.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Concession, Ont., writes:—"For five years I suffered with what three doctors called psoriasis. They could not help me, and one of them told me if anyone offered to guarantee a cure for $50.00 to keep my money, as I could not be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this ointment enough."

The soothing, healing influence of Dr. Chase's Ointment is truly wonderful. Eczema, salt rheum, barber's itch, ringworm and scores of such torturing ailments are relieved at once and as certainly cured if the Ointment is used persistently. Mothers find Dr. Chase's Ointment invaluable in preventing and curing the skin troubles of babies, such as chafing, irritations of the skin and baby eczema.

himself off across the road, and Yorke and I stood alone outside the rectory gate. Certainly I was not going to drive back to Chavasse now. Madame had not dreamed of asking me.

"Where were you off to, Roger?" I asked, slipping my arm within his. I was awfully glad to have him back again, and if I had been a girl, should have hugged him, I dare say. There was no mistake about it—I cared more for Roger Yorke than for anyone else in the world.

"Looking for you as much as anything else," he replied, with a short laugh. "I fancied it just possible that I might find you at the rectory. I was surprised to see madame though. How is she?"

"Madame? Oh, pretty fair, I think! Had a bit of headache this morning, but I believe it's gone off now."

"Fshaw!" he said, laughing again and giving my arm a shake. "What an idiot you are, Ned! Answer properly, can't you?"

"All right! Yes, Nat's well enough—I suppose that's what you are driving at. Looks so, doesn't she?"

"As far as I could see. Did you give her my letter?"

"Of course. You don't suppose I wanted it?"

"Pooh! Well"—impatently—"what did she do?"

"Read it," I returned, deliberately and sententiously. And really I seemed to me a sensible reply. What's mostly done with letters? But Yorke did not think so, I suppose, for he gave my arm another jerk.

"If you don't drop that precious rubbish, Ned Chavasse, I'll shove you into the gutter as sure as I'm a living sinner! Come—answer me, there's a good fellow! It was no joke to me having to cut away and leave her like that, I can tell you. I suppose she thought it uncommonly odd?"

"I suppose so."

"Of course she did. But I explained how it was in my letter, and that I really couldn't help it. She understood that?"

"Well, I should think she ought. She must know it by heart by this time. I won't swear that she doesn't sleep with it under her pillow. It's well you're back—it would have been worn out in another week. But why didn't you write again?"

"I thought it best not as things were," he returned, reddening. "You see," he went on, "I've no right to compromise her in the slightest degree, and had to be careful that I did not. Now that I am back it is different. I shall speak to Madame Chavasse to-morrow."

"That you won't," I returned, decisively—"that is, you won't if you're wise. We're all topsy-turvy at Chavasse just now. Take my advice, old man—wait until this blessed rumpus is over before you tackle madame."

"What rumpus?" he asked, looking at me and plainly forgetting everything but Nat.

"That precious ball. It's to-morrow you know, and I say, wait until it is all over and off madame's mind. It will be better on all accounts, for it will give you an opportunity of seeing Nat first: Your invitation went with Dizarte's."

"Perhaps 't would be better," he said, thoughtfully.

"I'm sure it would; and in any case I doubt if madame will be visible until the evening."

"I'll wait then. You will explain to her, Ned?"

"Oh, yes! I say, Roger, your brother-in-law is better, I hope. Dizarte told us about it."

"Better? Oh, yes, thanks; he is getting on all right now! Poor Clara was in an awful state—that's why she telegraphed for me. I thought myself that he was booked when I got there, poor fellow; but he pulled through, luckily! He was out of danger when I came away, I'm glad to say."

So frankly, readily, and easily he spoke that I felt my face burn, recalling the suspicion which had seized upon me when he went away. Confound mademoiselle! I thought. Why should her pale face make me doubt my friend, and what had she meant by turning so ghastly white at the sight of him just now? Hang mademoiselle!

"Was it an accident, Roger?" I asked.

"No—fever. That abominable French drainage is enough to kill an elephant—it was nothing but that, I say, Ned, who is that fellow—eh?"

"Eh? Who?" I questioned, staring about me, as we stopped at the gate of Redpots, for we had walked on as we talked. "Whom do you mean?"

"That fellow who was with you, of course. Who is he?"

"Oh, I see! His name is Raby St. George; he comes from Jamaica, and—"

"Comes after Natalie Orme," Roger struck in, coolly. I laughed.

"Your eyes are sharp enough. How did you find that out?"

"As easily as you would have done in my place. Who is he? What is he?"

In a few words as possible I told him—repeating, in fact, pretty much what Nat had told me. With his hands in his pockets, he listened, calmly, nodding now and again, but not speaking.

"Handsome fellow, isn't he?" I ended.

"Uncommonly."

"They say he's rolling in cash, too. Are you jealous, Roger?"

"Not I!" He laughed, pressing his strong hand upon my shoulder. "I'm like Othello, Ned, my boy; I say, 'My life upon her faith.' Not that I feel worth it, bless her! Well, good-bye, old man; you don't care to come in, I suppose?"

"No, thanks—I must get back to dinner. What am I to tell Nat? Shall give her a kiss for you?"

"You'll get it if I catch you at it, seeing that it's more than I've ever done yet! Tell her—no, don't tell her anything. She will understand, and I shall see her to-morrow. Good-bye."

I walked back to Chavasse at a rapid pace, but I was late for all that. It was madame, luckily, for when I went into the morning-room—where we were to dine, for the dining-room was decked out for the ball supper—only Nat was there. Laughing, I stooped down and kissed her.

"What's that for?" she demanded, indignantly, giving her cheek a vigorous rub.

"For you, my dear—all expenses paid."

"I mean, what do you mean by it?"

"That I don't retain other people's property, madame. I'm simply passing it on."

"As though I believed that, you ridiculous boy!" she cried, laughing and turning about as red as the ribbon at her neck. "Oh, Ned"—slipping a coaxing little hand within my arm—"tell me what he said; do—there's a darling boy!"

"A good many things—among others, that I was an idiot."

"I'm sure I don't wonder!" she cried, impatiently. "Oh, Ned, do tell me! I have been waiting for you all this time. He didn't say one word to me—madame would have heard. I know he sent me a message. Tell me what it was?"

Other People's Grievances.

By RUTH CAMERON.

There are some people in this world to whom righteous indignation seems to be a source of much pleasure. They feel it in behalf of other people, who have been mistreated by their friends or relatives, and who usually do not seem to feel it for themselves.

And they air this indignation at every opportunity, and appear to feel that they are adding to their own stock of virtue in thus championing the oppressed.

Do you recognize the class I mean? A neighbor of mine is a charter member of this class. She can find grievances for anyone; some of them I feel sure would astonish the unconscious sufferers. An interview with her seldom passes without one of these vicarious complaints.

Yesterday she dropped in to tell me about a wedding she had attended, and this was the part of her talk which she told with the most vim: "My dear, what do you think the bride's only brother gave her? Nothing but two silver spoons, and they are not poor people at all. It must have almost spoiled the wedding for her. I felt dreadfully when her mother showed them to me, for they had always talked so much about Harry and how kind he was."

Now I don't know the bride intimately, but I do know her well enough to realize that she is a placid, cheerful person, and not at all the sort to have her wedding spoiled because her brother only gave her two silver spoons. I don't think she'd be half so indignant about it as my kind neighbor is, if he gave her nothing at all. Again, we have a mutual friend whose only daughter is teaching in a distant city. Usually she comes home to spend Christmas with her mother, but this year for some reason, best known to themselves, she failed to. That vicarious grievance lasted my neighbor all the holiday season. She went about saying, "Wasn't it too bad that Emma didn't make the effort to come home Christmas? I feel so sorry for poor Mrs. Richards. I am afraid Emma isn't as thoughtful as she used to be."

Another neighbor of ours who entertains her relatives a great deal, seldom goes away from home. "Considering all the company Mrs. C. has, I don't think she gets entertained very much" fulminates the grievance bearer. "I should think that those cousins of hers who come here every spring and fall would have her visit them occasionally."

As it happens, Mrs. C. has very good reasons of her own for preferring to extend hospitality rather than accept it, and repeatedly refuses urgent invitations from those particular cousins.

Sometimes these grievance inventors cause real trouble, for it not un-naturally happens that their complaints occasionally reach the ears of those complained against, and are falsely credited to the people to whom the grievance really belonged.

And then, again, they sometimes become so bold as to try to persuade the unconscious sufferers themselves, that they are being mistreated, which, as everyone can see, is a fertile source of trouble.

On the whole, unless you are able to alleviate or smooth them out, other people's grievances are a good thing to let alone, especially when they are not troubling the owners.

Ruth Cameron

FOR WOMEN ONLY.

That is the nature of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the one remedy for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots. Dr. Pierce tells its every ingredient on the bottle-wrap per. Prominent physicians and some of the best medical authorities endorse these ingredients as being the very best known remedies for ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women.

This is what Mrs. GENETT E. COFFEY, of Longstreet, Ky., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I was a great sufferer for six years from a trouble peculiar to women, but I am thankful to say, after taking four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am not bothered with that dreadful disease any more. I feel like a new woman. When I first wrote you for advice I only weighed 115 pounds—now I weigh 135. I thank you very much for your kindness. You have been as a father to me in advising me what to do, so may God bless you in every effort you put forth for good. I hope this testimonial will be the means of some poor suffering woman seeking health."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition, answers hosts of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know.

Household Notes.

Whites of eggs should be cold if you want to beat them very stiff.

Fill pastry shelves with creamed sweetbreads; they make a delicious entree.

It improves prunes to add a little cider to the water in which they are cooked.

Steel knives can be very well cleaned by a paste made of emery powder and oil.

Muslins must be ironed wet. If allowed to get dry they will have a rough appearance.

All muslin should be starched wet. If they are starched dry they never look so clean.

Fruit jars can be easily opened if you will take hold of the top with a piece of sandpaper.

Scissors are excellent to shred lettuce; they are much more convenient than using a knife.

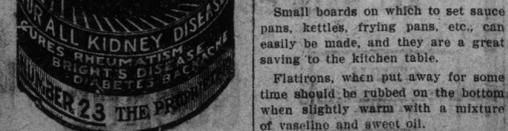

Food for late comers can be kept hot by covering it tightly and placing it in a pan of hot water.

Always use cotton instead of silk when mending gloves. The cotton will not pull the kid.

In starching colored muslins, do not allow the starch to be too hot; it will destroy the color.

Stains on mirror glasses can be removed with a flannel cloth dampened with spirits of camphor.

It is good economy to save the bast-

When a sponge becomes slimy, soak it in strong borax water, wring out and renew the water. Continue this until the sponge becomes clean.

The juice can be kept in pies by putting one or two pieces of macaroni in the centre of the crust. This allows the steam to escape and prevents the juice from boiling out.

Fish Families in Ocean Deep.

When a disaster occurs at sea, and people read that some leviathan vessel has gone down to the utmost depth of the ocean, imagination is stirred in wondering what conditions surround her.

According to Sir John Murphy, one of the greatest authorities on oceanography, the bottom is a desert of pitchblack darkness, penetrating cold, and eternal silence. Worms, sea puddings, and coral polyps sluggishly crawl or sway in the almost currentless depths, and only two species of fish, both of them small, with much head and little body, have been found deeper than a mile and a quarter down.

The range of fishes in the sea is as though it were divided into layers, one above the other, and no fish can live above or below this layer. Thus many of the deeper fish—three-quarters of a mile below the surface—have been found floating at the top. They had swallowed a fish as large or larger than themselves and its buoyancy had lifted them out of the strata to which they were accustomed.

The physiology of a bottom fish is almost impossible to know, because they are built to resist a tremendous pressure of water, and when this pressure is released—as when they are brought to the surface in a net—sometimes the fish has burst—the organs are crushed beyond reconstruction.

Similarly, if a fish of a higher stratum attacks a bottom fish in the neutral zone where both can live, and as sometimes happens—his teeth become entangled so that he cannot let go, and he is dragged into deeper water, he struggles instantly, for his breathing arrangements are of no use to him under the pressure of water in the lower strata of the sea. As a rule, however, the fish of the various depths rarely feed on those above or below them.

There have been brought to light an astonishing number of forms of fish, and especially of prawns of a brilliantly red color, living in the ocean at a depth of 2,000 feet. But, astonishing as it may seem, these brilliantly-colored fish and prawns, instead of being conspicuous, the water at that depth, are nearly invisible, when almost any other color could be easily seen.

Surely Settles Upset Stomachs.

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends Indigestion, Gas, Sourness and Heartburn in five minutes.

"Really does" put bad stomach in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that just that makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with bile and indigestible waste, remember the moment Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction or your druggist hands you your money back. It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or at night. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.

Fire at York Hr.
A report from Inspector Bartlett to Inspector General Sullivan which came to hand to-day, states that three dwelling houses or shacks at York Hr. shingles were burnt down. They were occupied by men named Henry Byrne, Edward Hayes, and another named Green, with their wives and families. The houses with their contents were destroyed. It is not known how the fire originated, but it is thought that some of the children were playing with matches. The children suffered at the time, several of them being badly frostbitten; it is feared that one of them will lose his arm as the result.

Striking Record.
In another column will be found the report of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada for 1912. The report constitutes a glowing testimony of the public's faith in this great organization. Started early in the seventies, it has gradually forged ahead, until it now occupies the proud position of being the premier Life Company of Canada, and doing the largest business in the British Empire. The assets now stand at $49,605,616.49, and the outlook from every point of view, as evidenced by the report, is one which must gratify the Company's policy-holders.

The Police Court.
Three drunks were fined $1 each. Two young men pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly and to assaulting the police; one was fined $5 or 14 days for each offence; the other was fined $5 or 14 days for the first offence and $30 or two months for the second. A drunk and disorderly was fined $2 or 7 days. A young lad who pleaded guilty to obtaining money under false pretences was sentenced to 30 days imprisonment.

A Genuine Friend.
To do a favor which brings lasting benefits is true friendship. This is what the Mr. Thomas Fraser has done for the fishermen of Nfld., by inventing the FRASER KEROSENE ADAPTER which will use kerosene crude oil or distillate (in the FRASER engine) just as well as gasoline, and at one third the cost per mile. No other engine has anything like this ADAPTER, with it the FRASER has no competition, as everybody wants an engine which will run satisfactorily on a cheaper fuel than gasoline, and this we guarantee the FRASER will do to perfection. The FRASER is not expensive. As for catalogue.

MEXICO CITY, To-day.
Hostilities have been resumed with fierceness around the Mexican capital, after the truce which lasted only a few hours. The armistice which was signed at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, by representatives of both sides agreeing to suspend operations for twenty-four hours, was broken before noon. Soon the sound of heavy cannonading and whirr of machine guns announced the return of the Federal troops to their position in front of the arsenal. It appeared as if the words of Madero and Diaz might prove prophetic, that this time the battle would be to a finish. President Madero reiterated his refusal to comply with the suggestion that the Senators resign. He declared that he was still able to dominate, and that given time he would crush the rebel forces. Diaz had not shown himself to greatly in favor of an armistice but consented to it out of respect for the efforts of the American Ambassador and Ministers of the Powers to bring about cessation of hostilities until foreigners and other non-combatants, still within the zone of fighting, could be removed to a position of comparative safety. There is little actual suffering from lack of food or shelter within the city, but there is a vast amount of discomfort and great danger to those who remain.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
Sir Edward Grey's rejoinder to Secretary Knox's last note regarding the Panama Canal tolls question, is practically completed and is expected to reach Washington this week. It is understood this last note by no means settles the controversy, nor does it contain an assurance of an acceptance of the American proposition in exchange for ratifications of the pending general arbitration. The treaty under the terms of which the issue might be referred to a special Commission, six members proposed to be created by that Convention. The rejoinder is said to be a continuation of British argument in support of the contention that shipping of all nations must be on even terms in the Panama Canal.

Family Starving.
This morning a man named Kean reported to the authorities that there was a family of six, named Abbott, living near the Sanitary Stables, without food or fire and in destitute circumstances and unless cared for would eventually perish. There are four children and these are kept alive by neighbours as they are literally starving. One of the children is only an infant and his mother is very ill. The father is out of work all the winter and is penniless. To-day Supt. Grimes informed the Poor Commissioner of the case, which no doubt, will be deservedly attended to.

Got Money Under False Pretences.
A sixteen year old lad named Martin was tried before Judge Knight to-day for obtaining money under false pretences. On Saturday he wrote a note to the employer of his father on Water Street, stating that the latter was sick and needed five dollars. The money was given the messenger who handed it over to Martin who 'blew' it in. Later in the day when Martin's father went to get paid he learned what had happened and informed the police with the result that Sergt. O'Riordan arrested the lad who appeared in Court to-day and was sentenced to thirty days imprisonment without the option of a fine.

Died of Injuries.
Last week it will be remembered three men and a boy were badly scalded in the boiler house of the D. I. S. Co., at Bell Island, by the bursting of the boiler tubes. The boy, Devereaux, who lived with his parents on the island, was the most injured of the four, and died last evening. The poor boy was only 13 years received a terrible shock and besides the scalding water and steam going over his body affected the vital organs. His parents are grief stricken over his early and cruel death.

What a Father!
Mr. Kuhn was thrifty in money matters, and cared little for his own personal appearance. He had worn the same old shabby overcoat until his sons were ashamed of him, and they tried to induce him to buy a new one. "Oh, no!" the old gentleman would always say. "I would rather have the three pounds that it would cost." One day the sons determined that he should wear a new coat, and believing that if he could get one at a good bargain he would buy it. Arranged with a tailor to sell him a three-pound coat for fifteen shillings, they to pay the difference. They then went home and told their father what they had seen and what a bargain it would be to buy it. So the father went and looked at it, and, after beating the tailor down to twelve and sixpence, took it and started for home. But when he reached the door he had no coat with him. "Didn't you buy the coat, father?" "Yes, got it for twelve-and-sixpence," replied the old gentleman. "Where is it?" "Oh, I was showing it to a friend in the tramcar, and when he offered me twenty shillings for it I let him have it. I cleared seven-and-sixpence on that transaction."

ANOTHER MINER KILLED.

CRUSHED BY FALL OF ROCK IN BELL ISLAND MINES.
Men over from Bell Island to-day say that a fatal accident occurred there Saturday afternoon, the victim being Wm. Seward, resident of Fox Harbor, T.B. The poor fellow, who was married and leaves a widow and six young children, was only a week at work on the island and was "face picking" in the deeps of the N. S. S. Co. mine over under the bay when without warning about half a ton of the roof—all rock—fell on him and he was felled to the earth with the great mass of material covering his head and body. A crowd of men quickly removed the material off him, and when this was done he exclaimed, "My poor children!" and died in a few moments. The man's head and body were terribly mangled and the sight was a great shock to those who worked near him. The body was soiled, brought here yesterday and sent out by the express to his late home. His wife and family were advised of the tragedy shortly after it occurred.

Here and There.
GOING WEST.—The s.s. Portia left Belleoram at 12.30 a.m. to-day, on her way west.

FINED AT BRIGUS.—A Naval Reservist named Green was before Magistrate Thompson at Brigus Saturday for causing a disturbance on the shore train on Feb. 6th, breaking the furnishings of a car and assaulting Conductor Lee. He was convicted, fined $5 and costs and received a lecture from the Magistrate which he will not soon forget.

For the convenience of men living a distance from home during the Mission, Mrs. P. Stewart will have Breakfast ready at half-past six o'clock every morning at ROOSEVELT RESTAURANT, Water St. East, opposite Harvey & Co.—Feb 17, f

GETTING BETTER.—The many friends here of Mr. J. B. McGarrick of the British-American House, will be glad to hear that he had a message from Margaree yesterday saying that his father, who was very ill, is recovering, and hopes are entertained that he will pull through all right. Mr. McGarrick could not get away in the Bruce as he had hoped.

Marine Notes.
The Antoinette hauled from Goodridge's to-day to Baine Johnston's to load fish for Europe.

Daring Burglary Attempted.

Window and Door of Grocery Store Broken—Burglar Unsuccessful. Invariably within the past few weeks the Telegram made exclusive references to burglaries, larcenies and petty thefts committed. Notwithstanding the very little due in their possession the police detectives kept working overtime, leaving nothing undone until they succeeded in bringing the thefts home to the proper parties. However, the nocturnal prowler or burglar is still active, and despite the fact that the police are on his trail, seems to be continuing his nefarious work with more daring and effectiveness than ever as on Friday night or early Saturday morning last some burglar made a bold attempt to burglarize the grocery store of Mr. C. P. Egan, at the junction of Long's Hill and Queen's Road. He tried to gain an entrance to ransack the shop by breaking a plate glass window and a door, but failed.

At ten o'clock Friday night Mrs. Egan closed the shop. She lives near the shop and she retired for the night about eleven o'clock. Between that hour and three o'clock the next morning she heard considerable noise. Some of it sounded like the breaking of glass but her suspicions were not aroused and she made no outcry, as she thought it was a cat having broken a glass case which was on the counter. On opening the store Saturday morning Mrs. Egan was amazed to find the eastern window broken. She then remembered hearing glass falling earlier and believed that someone had broken in. Fortwith she made a thorough search; she examined the counter and floor to try and find footprints of snow, but could find nothing to show that any person had entered, and everything in the shape of goods was exactly the same as when she left before retiring the previous night. Next she examined the cash register but that also was intact. Going to the side entrance fronting on Long's Hill she discovered the door battered and evidences to prove that it was through this aperture the burglar first tried to gain access to the place. He had been hammering at the upper portion of the door until he broke the hinges off it, as he was endeavouring to allow himself to release the iron bolt from the outside but was unsuccessful in entering. The would-be thief must have been working here with some sort of instrument. He made a lot of noise and suspecting he would be heard by any one passing along discontinued and turned his attention to the window where he operated for a short time. After breaking the glass he must have got frightened and decamped suddenly. The police have been acquainted with the facts of the case and will do their utmost to round up the perpetrator.

Dyspepsia.

Oh, the birds to their warbling in vain, and the zephyrs seem but to complain when your inward parts are thrilled by dyspepsia and filled with some fifty-six samples of pain. When your grub doesn't hit the right spot, all talk about sunshine seems rot; and you feel that the poet of the optimist note should be led out at sunrise and shot. When your stomach's the scene of a storm, 'neath the collar you're apt to be warm; and the uplift seems punk and true progress is junk, and you don't care three wops for reform. All maxims and proverbs are stale, to help you they hopelessly fail, and you're sore at the gent who would talk of content, and would give him a ride on a rail. It's easy to dance and to sing while your stomach is still in the ring; but it's hard to be glad when that stomach is bad, when it's broken a lever or spring. It's hard to be gay as a thrush when the pain in your stomach won't hush; when you have to go shy of the steak and the pie, and fill up your person with mush. I sing like a jay on a shrub when my stomach can handle the grub; but don't you come near with a message of cheer when I'm sick, or I might use a club!

Marine Notes.

The S. S. City of Sydney was expected to leave New York Saturday night for here. The bright Galatea is 37 days out to Pernambuco from this port. The S. S. Bonaventure sailed yesterday for Sydney. The S. S. Almeriana leaves Halifax to-morrow for this port. The schr. Dorothy Duff is now ready to sail for Bahia, fish laden by Job Bros.

At the Nickel.

Before leaving for Canada and the States Manager Kiely, of the Nickel Theatre, arranged a pretty and artistic programme for this evening's Nickel. It will open with a Pathe weekly, as usual, showing a number of leading events, the world over. There will be three others reels, the whole making one of the best programmes presented for some time.

Fire at Church.

At eight o'clock yesterday morning, a telephone message was received at the police station that a fire was in progress at the Congregational Church. An alarm was then sent in and the Central and Eastern Fire Companies responded. The fire was caused by the extreme heat from the pipes in the vestry igniting the ceiling and a blaze ensued. The fire was extinguished by the firemen quickly but not before some damage, though not serious, was done.

Narrow Escape.

As Thomas Moores, a man who is deaf, was going down Hutching's St. Saturday, he was overtaken by a horse the driver of which yelled to the man and did not realize he was deaf till he was knocked down. He went under the horse which fortunately did not trample him, and the slide, which was heavily laden, barely escaped going over him. He received only a few bruises. Last winter the same man was run over by a horse and so seriously hurt that he had to go to Hospital.

Edifying Sight.

After the services for men given by the Redeemptorist Fathers in the R. C. Cathedral last night fully 4,000 remained behind in the Church and performed the devotion of the Holy Year, an edifying one. At the 5.30 exercises this morning the Cathedral was packed with a congregation of men and fully 2,000 were present at the Mass and instructions which began at 8.30 a.m.

MAY BE AMPUTATED.—By Saturday's express there arrived an eight-year-old girl from Curling, and was conveyed to the General Hospital. Recently she had her right hand frost-bitten and may have to get it taken off.

The Tenor.

BY H. L. RANN.

The tenor is a human being with a sky-scraper attachment to his voice and a desire to monopolize the conversation. A strong peaty grand opera tenor will throw his voice ahead of the accompaniment for several miles and burn large sulphurous holes in the atmosphere, in order to remind people that he is still on the stage. Nothing will give a tenor an acute attack of the artistic temperament quicker than to lose out in a brisk debate with the kettle drums. The tenor is a very scarce article, and when one strays into a village choir he is greeted with the fatted calf and allowed to perpetrate a solo every Sunday morning. Every tenor wants to sing higher than nature intended him to, and in order to accomplish this he frequently has to unbutton his collar and set his teeth. Some tenors never take a high note without assuming an apoplectic hue and landing one full tone below the required altitude; thereby causing critical members of the congregation to wish that they had remained at home and read some diverting book. There are two distinct varieties of tenor—robust and lyric. The robust tenor is one who can be heard at the farther end of the next township, on a still night. If he is real robust, people sitting in the twelfth row of the second gallery have to change their seats in order to get out of the draft. Robust tenors are seldom bothered by any particular method, but simply open up and go to it. The lyric tenor is a human flute with a tremolo stop. His chief business in life is to sing cradle songs at pink teas and draw tears from the eyes of guests who take their wailing variations. The long suit of the lyric tenor is hydraulic love songs which assure everybody that the undersigned will never forget the last lingering kiss at the gate, just prior to father's appearance with a hickory cane.

For some reason or other, nearly all tenors become fat before they have gotten far upon their career in crime. This is no doubt due to the fact that they breathe deeply. Occasionally they cause people who hear them to breathe deeply, too.

Fairbanks is a Dandy.

Of engines here, I do declare, the Fairbanks is a dandy, each fisherman in Newfoundland, declare 'tis nice and handy; it can't go wrong, it is made strong, and always does its duty, Fairbanks is neat and very fleet, and may be called a beauty. At far St. Barbe in humble carb, dressed are the homely fishers; and they give thanks to Fairbanks, they all are its good wishers. On Western Coast they say and boast those hardy fishing brothers, Fairbanks for them has proved a gem it knocks out all the others. So can and buy this engine, try, embrace the chance, don't lose it now Fairbanks fame is what we claim, one hundred thousand use it; they're strong and neat and most complete, and they all sizes are. Sir, begin to-day, in every bay, and order one from Barr, Sir.

Agent, Water Street, St. John's, Feb 17, 13.

Here and There.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE.—While the schooner Dorothy Duff was coming here from Brazil, Capt. Dean was injured and came near being swept overboard. The vessel was 'holed' in a heavy gale when a huge sea boarded her dashing Capt. Dean, who was at the wheel, against the rail. He escaped being washed overboard by holding on grim death to a cleat. His right shoulder and leg were bruised.

AN ICE BLOCKADE.—Heavy ice now blocks this port and yesterday no water was visible eastward or northward from the Cabot Tower or Cape Spear. The northeaster which has been blowing the past few days, is packing the slob ice inshore, and if it continues much longer must drive up the Arctic floe. Vessels ready to leave this port and steamers due here will not be able to get along until the embargo is raised.

BEING EMBELLISHED.—The interior of St. Patrick's Church is being embellished and given some necessary improvements. Four large arc lights suspended from the ceiling by chains, have been put in position and new bulbs are being fitted to the branches which run along the side of the centre aisle. These lamps will afford a very brilliant light and will enhance the appearance of the interior of the handsome apartment.

Mysteries Which Baffle the Police.

London's Missing Thousands.
About twelve months ago an old lady walked out of her house at Chiswick, and from that moment to this no trace of her has been found. She has disappeared as completely as if the ground had opened up and swallowed her, and when application came before the courts to presume death the judge expressed his astonishment that a person could so completely disappear in the Metropolis.

This, however, is but one of hundreds of cases of mysterious disappearance of which the public never hear, according to the report of the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis. Readers will doubtless be amazed to learn that during 1911, 28,955 people were reported to the London police as missing. Of these, 10,445 were found and restored to friends by the police, while 18,975 were found by friends or returned home, leaving 467 still unaccounted for. Where they have gone, or whether they are still alive, no one knows. Maybe the sixty-one unknown and unidentified bodies found by the police in 1911 accounts for some of them.

And the misery and tragedy of London's underworld is illustrated by the grim figures in the report concerning suicide. There were no fewer than 625 suicides committed during the year mentioned, while 545 other people, who attempted to put an end to their lives, were prevented from doing so by the police.

One gets an interesting insight into the multifarious duties of the police from this report, duties which "are yearly increasing in volume and in number," to quote the words of Sir Edward Henry, the Commissioner. During the twelve months there were nearly 25,000 policemen on duty at fires, and the man in blue himself extinguished 244 conflagrations. He stopped 302 runaway horses, restored over 8,000 dogs to owners, and seized 27,382 other dogs which were found wandering about the streets.

And the carelessness of the household is illustrated by the fact that the police reported during 1911 that they had found in London 24,887 doors and windows open, or insecurely fastened and that 2,095 houses, with no person in charge, had been entered by thieves.

Again, there were no fewer than 73,618 articles, including bags, jewellery, clothing, opera-glasses, watches, rugs, articles and umbrellas deposited in the Lost Property Office. Of these 32-

469 articles of the declared value of £36,423 were restored to their owners the unclaimed remainder being, with a few exceptions, returned to the drivers and conductors of vehicles who deposited them.

YET UNREPORTED.—There is still no word of the scaling steamer Kite, since she left Westerville for Conche. She has not reached her destination nor has she harbored anywhere. The belief expressed is that she got jammed in the northern floe.

Smartly Done.

A certain fellow possessed of an abnormal thirst, and with but little to relieve it, saving his wits, called one day upon a publican, and placing an ordinary black bottle on the counter, besought him to fill it as full as it would hold with his choicest whisky.

Having done as he was directed, the "bung" placed the bottle on the counter, retaining one hand carrossingly upon its neck, while he extended the other for the ready coin.

"Ah," said the would-be purchaser, "this is indeed a disappointment for me. On going over my pockets, I find I am positively stony as the Marble Arch, and having nothing wherewith to pay you. Oh, what a surprise!"

"Not much to me," retorted the publican, as he poured the whisky back into its jar, and handed the impudicus customer his bottle in return.

After having reached a secluded spot, and when, by means of pressing a thick stick down the bottle, he had obtained two goods tots of whisky from the loosely-packed sponge at the bottom thereof, the customer reflected that a game is not so often won by the cards which are dealt us by the way they are played.

'Barrelling' Around The World.

The two enterprising Italians who are making their way round the earth cooped up in a barrel have no monopoly of strange methods of progression. Two members of a Piccadilly club recently tramped to Brighton for a wager, one clad in evening-dress and hatless, the other in cricket-shirt and shorts, and both wearing thin socks and shoes; whilst it is but a short time since Rudolf Hanslika returned to Vienna after a 14,000 miles' tramp, during which he had pushed a perambulator containing his wife and child the whole way.

Not long ago a mysterious figure left Trafalgar Square, his face concealed behind a black iron mask, and pushing a perambulator before him on a jaunt round the world, during which, in order to win a heavy wager, he must find a wife; whilst William began a 40,000-mile "globe-trot" clothed only in a suit fashioned from a couple of newspapers, which he wore until he was able to earn more weather-proof clothing.

Antarctic Tragedy

SCOTT, WILSON AND BOWERS

Died From Exposure, March 29

Health of Remainder of Expedition Good--History of the Expedition--Relief Party Forced to Return Owing to Persistent Bad Weather.

Christchurch, New Zealand, Feb. 10. The steamer Terra Nova, arrived at Cape Evans on January 16, of this year, and obtained the following information from a shore party there: Captain Scott reached the South Pole on January 18, 1912. Found Amundsen's tent and records. On return journey the whole Southern party perished. Scott, Wilson and Bowers died from exposure during the blizzard about March 29, 1912. Their last camp was eleven miles south of the One Ton Depot, or 155 miles from the hut at Cape Evans. Oates died from exposure on March 17. Seaman Edgar Evans died of concussion of the brain on the 17th of February. The health of the remainder of the expedition excellent, including Lieut. Campbell's party, who wintered in Terra Nova Bay. The history of the expedition is as follows:

The Western Party.
Before the Terra Nova left for New Zealand last March, Surgeon Atkinson, who had been left in charge of the western party until Scott's return, despatched Garrard and Demetri (dog-driven) with two dog-teams to assist the southern party whose return to Hut Point was expected about March 10th, 1912. Atkinson would have accompanied this party, but was kept back in medical charge of Lieut. Evans, second in command, who, it will be remembered, nearly died of scurvy.

The Relief Party.
This relief party reached One Ton Depot on March 3rd, but was compelled to return on 19th March, owing primarily to the dog food running short, also to persistent bad weather and the poor condition of the dogs after the strain of the hard season's work. The dog teams returned to Hut Point on the 16th of March, the poor animals mostly frostbitten and incapable of further work. Garrard collapsed through an over-stained heart, his companion was also sick, and it was impossible to communicate with Cape Evans, the ship having left on the 4th of March, and the open sea lying between Atkinson and Keohane.

The only men left sledged out to Corner Camp to render any help that might be wanted by the Southern party. They fought their way out to Corner Camp against the unusually severe weather, and realizing they could be of no assistance, were forced to return to Hut Point after depositing one week's provisions. In April when communication with Cape Evans was established, gallant attempts to relieve Lieut. Campbell were made by Atkinson, Wright, Williamson and Keohane. This party reached Butter Point when they were stopped by open water. Their return was exciting, and nearly ended in disaster, owing to the sea ice breaking up.

The Searching Party.
The search party left Cape Evans due to faulty organization, but to misfortune in all risks which had to be undertaken, one of the loss of pony transport in March, 1911, obliged me to start later than I had intended, and obliged the limits of the stuff transported to be narrowed. The weather throughout the outward journey, and especially with a long gale in 83 degrees South stopped us. The soft snow in the lower reaches of the glacier again reduced the pace. We fought these untoward events with a will and conquered but it ate into our provision reserve. Every detail of our food supply, clothing and depots made on the interior ice sheet and on that long stretch of 70 miles to the Pole and back, worked out to perfection.

Message to the Public:
"The causes of this disaster are not due to faulty organization, but to misfortune in all risks which had to be undertaken, one of the loss of pony transport in March, 1911, obliged me to start later than I had intended, and obliged the limits of the stuff transported to be narrowed. The weather throughout the outward journey, and especially with a long gale in 83 degrees South stopped us. The soft snow in the lower reaches of the glacier again reduced the pace. Met Bad Weather.
"The advance party would have returned to the glacier in fine form and with surplus of food but for the astonishing failure of the man whom we had least expected to fail. Seaman Edgar Evans was thought the strongest man of the party and Beardmore glacier is not difficult in fine weather. But on our return we did not get a single completely fine day. This with a sick companion enormously increased our anxieties. I have said elsewhere we got into frightfully rough ice, and Edgar Evans received a concussion of the brain. He died an admiral death, but left us a shaken party, with the season unduly advanced.

"But all the facts above enumerated were nothing to the surprise which awaited us on the barrier. I maintain that our arrangements for returning were quite adequate, and that no one in the world would have expected the temperatures and surfaces which we encountered at this time of the year.

Terrible Weather.
"On the summit in lat. 85 degrees to 86 degrees, we had minus twenty to minus thirty. On the barrier in lat. 82 degrees, 10,000 feet lower, we had minus thirty in the day, and minus forty-seven at night pretty regularly with continuous head wind during our day marches. It is clear that these circumstances came on very suddenly, and our wreck is certainly due to this sudden advent of severe weather which does not seem to have any satisfactory cause.

The Last Blow.
"I do not think human beings ever came through such a month as we have come through, and we should have got through in spite of the weather but for the sickening of a second companion, Capt. Oates, and a shortage of fuel in our depots, for which I cannot account, and finally but for the storm which has fallen on us within eleven miles of this depot at which we hoped to secure the final supplies. Surely misfortune could scarcely have exceeded this last blow.

Found the Bodies.
On November 12, Wright's party sighted Scott's tent. Within it were found the bodies of Capt. Robt. Scott, Royal Navy, Dr. E. A. Wilson, Chief of Scientific Staff and Lieut. H. R. Bowers, Royal Indian Marine.

Brave To The Last.
"We arrived within eleven miles of our old One Ton Camp with fuel for one hot meal and food for two days. For four days we have been unable to leave the tent, the gale blowing about us. We are weak, writing is difficult, but for my own sake I do not regret this journey, which has shown that Englishmen can endure hardships, help one another, and meet death with as great a fortitude as ever in the past. We took risks we knew we took them. Things have come out against us, and therefore we have no cause for complaint, but bow to the will of Providence, determined still to do our best, to the last.

"But if we have been willing to give our lives to this enterprise, which is for the honor of our country, I appeal to our countrymen to see that those who depend on us are properly cared for. Had we lived, I should have had a tale to tell of the hard-ship, endurance and courage of my poor companions which would have stirred the heart of every Englishman.

"These rough notes and our bodies must tell the tale, but surely, surely a great rich country like ours will see that those who are dependent on us are properly provided for."

Party Pushed On.
On March 16 Oates was really unable to travel but the others could not leave him. After his gallant death Scott, Wilson, and Bowers pushed northward when the abnormally bad weather would permit them, but they were forced to camp on March 21 in latitude 75 degrees 40 minutes South, longitude 169 degrees 40 minutes East, eleven miles south of the big depot at One Ton Camp.

This they never reached owing to a blizzard which is known from records to have lasted nine days, overtaking them, and food and fuel giving out. In Capt. Scott's diary Surgeon Atkinson found the following which is quoted verbatim:

Stood By Companions.
It should here most certainly be noted that the Southern party nobly stood by their sick companions to the end, and in spite of their distressing condition they had retained every record and thirty-five pounds of geological specimens, which proved to be of the greatest scientific value. This emphasized the nature of their journey. The search party then turned northward, having decided to next direct their efforts to the relief of Lieut. Campbell and the northern party.

The despatch was written and signed by Lt. E. R. G. Revans, R. N., who was Captain Scott's second in command.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 16.

An armistice has been arranged between the Federals and Rebels, to become effective from 2 o'clock this morning till 8 Monday night. These terms have been agreed to by Madero and Diaz.

LONDON, Feb. 16.

Commander Evans declares it was impossible for the supporting parties to see Scott and comrades, according to a despatch from Christchurch, which adds that Surgeon Atkinson alone examined the bodies and performed the last sad rites. The others were obliged to stand aside. Commander Evans denies there were any dissensions among the members of the expedition or that the supporting parties had any disagreement. He says Scott forbade searching parties to leave the base to search for him.

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 16.

The Island of Crete was finally evacuated by the protecting powers, to-day, amid enthusiastic demonstrations by the Cretans. The British cruiser Yarmouth landed a detachment of blue-jackets and marines in Suda Bay. There the men hauled down the flag of the Powers, which had flown since 1898, as well as that of Turkey, and handed them with full military honors to the consuls of the respective countries, Turkey's being placed in the care of the German Consulate.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.

That Captain Amundsen came near leaving ten gallons of oil at the South Pole, was learned here to-day. The fuel might have saved the lives of Scott and his companions. Amundsen spoke of the oil by chance. According to him, the day was bright and not very cold when the outfit was inspected before starting back, and he debated with himself whether or not to leave behind two five-gallon cans of oil he did not expect to need. In the end he did not leave it, as he had no reason to suppose it would be of use to anyone at the Pole. That he had not left it was a melancholy reflection, he said.

LONDON, Feb. 16.

In a lengthy despatch from Christchurch, Commander Evans narrates the adventures of the Northern and Western parties of the Scott Expedition, showing that they underwent many perils and hardships. He says that Lieut. Campbell and his party were always under the impression that the Terra Nova had picked up Capt. Scott and his comrades. Both parties were engaged in scientific research. They found fossils, tending to prove that South America and Australia were at one time connected through the Antarctic Continent; and that twice in the history of the world the Antarctic had a temperate climate. The various parties made valuable scientific observations, and collections of fossils, rocks and other specimens. Even the Southern party, which lacked a geologist, made collections with excellent judgment.

LONDON, Feb. 16.

Captain Oates walked out in the blizzard and practically committed suicide, because on account of his hands and feet being frozen, which was a drawback to the others, who died like English gentlemen, as Capt. Scott said in his diary. Oates was named 'No Surrender Oates,' by comrades in the army. As Lieut. in command during the Boer War, he was attacked near a river bed. As each man exhausted his ammunition, Oates ordered him to crawl away. After 4 hours he was left alone. The Boers unaware of the strength of the patrol sent an officer with a white flag demanding surrender. Oates sent back this reply: "We are here to fight, not surrender." The Boers retired, but the last shot fired wounded Oates in the thigh and he was invalided home.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 16.

The rebels obtained their first personal revenge when they burned the private house of President Madero, located at the corner of Berlin and Liverpool Streets. It was a handsome structure, and, since the incumbency of Madero, had become one of the show places of the capital. The rebels had driven a detachment of the federal forces to retreat on Barcelona Street. Only the servants occupied the house, since the members of the President's family took refuge in the Japanese-legation. The rebels entered the building, and carried off whatever took their fancy. A moment later the building was in flames. As the fire mounted, the cracking of cartridges revealed the fact that the structure had been practically an arsenal. The third Secretary of the American Embassy, Mr. Tennant, accompanied by a messenger in an automobile, was stopped in the streets and robbed.

Mr. T. E. Cartwright is confined to his room at the Grosvenor Hotel, with a severe attack of Grippe.

With the Puck.

The Wanderers Hockey Team are expected to leave to-day for St. John's coming via s.s. Bruce and rail. Owing to the heavy ice in the Cabot Straits, it is thought the steamer will be detained so that the visiting team will not reach here before Thursday morning. The games will be played here on Thursday, Friday and Monday nights.

At 10 o'clock the city fourteen will hold practice.

Head Stuffed? Got A Cold? Try Pape's!

One dose Pape's Cold Compound gives relief — Care in few hours.

You will distinctly feel your cold breaking and all the Grippe symptoms leaving after taking the very first dose.

It is a positive fact that Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours, until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs.

It promptly relieves the most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Get a 25-cent package of "Pape's Cold Compound" from your druggist and take it with the knowledge that it will positively and promptly cure your cold and end all the grippe misery; without any assistance or bad after-effects and that it contains no quinine — don't accept something else said to be just as good. Tastes nice — acts gently.

The Father of Shorthand.

Just one hundred years ago—on January 4th, 1812, to be precise, Sir Isaac Pitman, the "father of modern shorthand-writing," was born. He was a Wiltshire boy—Trowbridge being his native place, and his father was first a factory overseer and afterwards a cloth manufacturer.

Young Isaac Pitman started his working life as a clerk, and from that he went to teaching in small parish schools. In one of his schools, Wotton-under-Edge, Gloucestershire, he introduced shorthand as a subject and published a book which he called "Stenographic Sound Hand."

Gradually he gave himself up to developing and popularizing shorthand, his usual working day being 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., with only three hours free for meals and rest.

Millions of his books have been sold; his "Phonographic Teacher" had at one time an annual sale of 150,000 copies, and it is estimated that fully half a million people write shorthand under his system.

But although Pitman's shorthand is probably quite the most popular system, it was a long way from being the first one.

The ancient Romans had a way of abbreviating longhand writing, and one Tiro, a slave, to whom the credit of the invention has been given, was employed by Cicero as secretary on account of his ability in the art!

In Queen Elizabeth's reign, a Dr. Timothy Bright published "Character: an Arte of Shorte, Swifte, and Secrete Writing by Character," while in the same reign Peter Byles came along with "The Writing-School-master."

Pitman, who was knighted in 1894, first published his system in 1837, and this marked a new era in shorthand. His system was legible, and though exhaustive, simple in comparison with others.

Train Notes.

A local express arrived here at 6 p.m. Saturday from Port aux Basques. The local arrived here at 10 o'clock Saturday night.

No. 1 rotary left Millertown Junction yesterday for Kitty's Brook going over the Gaff Topsails.

An express which was waiting at Kitty's Brook for the clearing of the Topsails comes this way and is due here to-morrow.

The express which left here on Tuesday and Thursday of last week arrived at Port aux Basques Saturday afternoon.

A Bruce express with freight, mails and passengers left here for Port aux Basques at 6 p.m. yesterday.

The Bruce will henceforth make 3 trips each week between Sydney and Port aux Basques if ice conditions permit and trains will leave here tri-weekly to make connection with her.

WORK ON ESKASONI.—A large staff of engineers, boiler makers and others are now at work on the Eskasoni which should leave here Wednesday. Saturday afternoon her engines were given a trial and worked well and at 2 p.m. yesterday the engineers and others again turned to on the ship and will continue until she is finished.

ASSAULTED THE POLICE.—At 6 p.m. Saturday, two young men, who were under the influence of drink, created a disturbance on Queen St., and when Sergt. Olliphant with officers Turk and Pitcher, put them under arrest, the prisoners became very violent and assaulted their captors repeatedly. After a hard struggle the men were captured and handcuffed and later conveyed to the lockup.

SOLWAY'S LONG RUN.—The S. S. Solway arrived at Port aux Basques at noon yesterday after making the run in nine days which is one of the longest yet recorded. A succession of storms and heavy slob ice blocking the whole coast, with intense frost freezing up the harbours was the cause of the delay and the ship had to be handled carefully to get through under such trying conditions.

A POWERFUL DISCOURSE.—Last evening, at St. Thomas's Church, the Rev. H. Uphill, Rector of St. Mary's Church, Southside, occupied the pulpit and delivered an eloquent and powerful sermon. The Rev. gentleman held the closest attention of the large congregation; he also referred in touching terms to the sad fate which overtook Capt. Scott and his brave companions, drawing several lessons from it. Next Sunday evening, Rev. A. Clayton will occupy the pulpit.

CAPE RACE, To-day.
Wind E.N.E., fresh, weather dull. A steamer, supposed to be the Bonaventure, passed west at noon yesterday; an unknown schooner was jammed in the ice near Mistaken Point, Saturday evening, but there is no sign of her since. The ocean is covered with heavy slob ice to-day. Bar., 29.90; ther., 26.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.
Some time ago I had a bad attack of Quinsy which laid me up for two weeks and cost a lot of money.
Finding the lump again forming in my throat, I bathed freely with MINARD'S LINIMENT, and saturating a cloth with the liniment left it on all night.
Next morning the swelling was gone and I attributed the warding off of an attack of Quinsy to the free use of MINARD'S LINIMENT.
