CHAPTER XIII.
A DEBT OF HONOR.

"Yes," he said, with a smile and a glance into the lovely eyes, "yes, I think I understand. That certainly seems one sufficient reason. And the other?"

"He was a great deal too rich. He had estates valued at thousands, here, there, and everywhere. He asked me to marry him; and I would have done so had he come back to me in good health and really master of himself, but he was not. It was naturally just as impossible for me to marry a man who might get mad with drink at any moment, as it was for me to take advantage of a man in his condition."

"Quite so, quite so," said Kenneth, with a touch of impatience. "So you refused him, as any honorable woman would have done under the circumstances."

"I didn't refuse him unconditionally, Mr. Markham," she said, sitting up a little straighter in her chair. "I told him that if he had the moral strength and resolution to save himself, or even allow himself to be saved, from drink and all that it brings with it, I would marry him, but not until he was cured. Then he swore that no one should cure and save him but myself. My aunt consented, and consulted our doctor, who has made a specialty of such complaints. So we went to his house at Hampstead, and, of course, you know what happened."

"Yes," said Kenneth, "it must have been terribly painful for you."

"It was awful," she replied, with a shudder. "But even now I have not told you what I came here for, and I must have wearied you very much, I am afraid."

"On the contrary," he said, remembering what she had told him about her husband and her father, "I am deeply interested. Pray go on, and tell me how I can help you."

"Thank you," she replied, with a little tremor in her voice. "It is most kind of you to say that. While Sir Arthur was under our care he went to his solicitors, with his cousin, Mr. Ashley, and made a will in which he left nearly everything to me, as though I had been his wife, although, of course, he provided for Mr. Ashley, who is not very well off. He also left the family heirlooms and some old furniture and jewels to his two elder sisters, who are very well off. This morning I had a letter from his solicitors, saying that these two ladies had determined to contest the will, on the grounds of improper influence. I think you call it—in other words, accusing me of fraud, of stealing, in short, I don't want the money, but I must clear my honor. Now, will you help me to do it, Mr. Markham?"

"Yes, I will," he replied. "My father owed your father and your husband a debt, a debt of honor, and I will do my best to pay it."

CHAPTER XIV.
THE LAWYER AND THE MAN.

The fact that, as Kenneth Markham believed, the husband and father of Lillas had died after being brought to poverty by the failure of the Markham group of mines in West Australia, fully decided him to take up her case and do his utmost to prove that the great fortune which Sir Arthur had left to her was really hers.

Moreover, a long series of careful investigations had shown him that, in spite of his infirmity with regard to drugs and alcohol, Sir Arthur had been, both in the legal and the moral sense, in the full possession of his faculties when he made the will. Indeed, he could find no evidence to show that Lillas or her aunt even knew that he meant to make it, and his own solicitors were prepared to swear, if necessary, that there was nothing abnormal in his behavior when he called at their office for the purpose of executing the will.

Another point very much in her favor was the fact that Arthur Ashley, Sir Arthur's cousin, who might naturally have expected to benefit considerably, but who had only been left a legacy of a couple of thousand pounds, at once admitted that, although he thought he had not been treated as he might have been, he saw no reason to believe that his cousin had been improperly influenced, and since his fortune was absolutely at his own disposal, if he chose to leave it to the woman who had been his first and only love, there was nothing more to be done in the matter.

There remained, however, the circumstances of Sir Arthur's death. As described to him by Lillas, her aunt, and the nurse, they were as follows:

When they opened the door of his bedroom they found him standing in the middle of the room, with a revolver in his hand, which he had fortunately emptied firing at imaginary enemies, and doing no more harm than breaking a couple of mirrors, into which he had probably fired at his own reflection, and smashing two or three pictures. He had continued snapping the empty pistol until they opened the door, when he had then flung it at them. It had passed between Lillas' head and her aunt's, and struck the wall with such force as proved that it would have very seriously injured, if not killed, either of them that it had struck.

He was obviously in a state of high fever and delirium, and unhappily Doctor Mathews had gone out to see an urgent case. A man was sent on horseback to fetch him, but by the time he returned, Sir Arthur had suddenly quieted down and had gone back to bed. The nurse and Miss Holroyd had remained in attendance till the doctor's arrival. He administered a sedative, and Sir Arthur had gone to sleep. The nurse had then gone back to bed, and Lillas and her aunt had taken turns to watch the patient until the nurse came on duty in the morning, so that the doctor might be summoned if necessary.

In the early hours of the morning,

GOOD HEALTH IS MAGNETIC

All Admire Strong, Robust, Healthy, Vigorous Men and Women

If You Are Weak, Run-Down and Ailing, Let Vinol Enrich Your Blood and Create Strength and Vitality for You

For the weak, run-down, anemic, over-worked, ailing men and women there is little joy in life. It is easy to drift into this condition, over-work, a neglected cold, or a severe sickness may have left in its wake, poor, thin, devitalized blood, a sluggish circulation, no vitality and you are simply dragging around from day to day, getting up each morning just as tired as you went to bed.

Now, why not change all this by taking advantage of your druggists' guarantee that VINOL will enrich your blood, quicken your circulation and carry strength and vigor to every part of your body, or return your money if it fails. Mrs. W. J. Nixon, of Vandeleur Hill, Ont., says: "I was sick for months. I had no appetite and could not seem to get my strength back. I told my doctor I was going to try VINOL, and he said it was fine. I found it gave me a good appetite and I rapidly gained in strength."

For all run-down, nervous, anemic conditions, weak women, over-worked men, feeble old people and delicate children there is nothing like VINOL.

her your word that you will take the case."

"But surely, Jack," said Kenneth, a little impatiently, "you don't mean a woman like that, one of the loveliest creatures a man ever set eyes on—"

"My dear Ken, I don't care a snap of a finger for her loveliness. Mind, I'm not saying a word against her; but if I were going to discuss this thing impersonally, we must shut our eyes to the fact that beautiful women have used their beauty for bad as well as good ends before now. The first fact in the business that I don't like, or perhaps I should say looks a bit suspicious to me, is her coming to see you herself, when, as you've just told me, Sir Arthur's own solicitors were willing to act for her."

"Which," said Kenneth, is another insinuation of undue influence."

"Yes," laughed Ackersley, "you can call it that if you like. I have not had the pleasure of seeing the lady, but after what you have told me about her, I should say that there is a suspicion—fascinated as you have been so far by pansy eyes, perfect features, shimmering, golden hair, baby cheeks, and red, tremulous, eloquent lips, and all the rest of it—that her looks must have had something to do with your inclination to advocate her case. You know you have never done anything like this before. It does make one just a trifle suspicious."

"In other words," Kenneth interrupted impatiently, "you think that I have allowed a pretty face to make a fool of me."

"I am not taking you for a fool," said Ackersley, with a touch of his Northern burr. "I am taking you for a man, Kenneth—not a lawyer, but just a man; and if you don't know what a man feels like when a beautiful girl—and as you tell me this Mrs. Ashley is no more than a girl in years—looks into your eyes, with nice, soft, pansy eyes, and tells you a story with those same lips, well, a man of your age who has blood in his veins is very apt to believe her assertions!"

"No, that's all very well, my dear fellow; I quite understand what you mean; but I think you are inclined to leave out the lawyer," laughed Kenneth, leaning back in his chair. "Mrs. Ashley told me her story, and I confess that I believed it, whether or not under the influence of pansy eyes and eloquent lips, doesn't matter, because after I had heard the said story I turned to and concocted another one, as far as possible the direct opposite."

"You mean the opposite to all she told you?" said Ackersley, in what Kenneth somehow seemed to think a somewhat doubtful tone. "Well, the one that you have told me has been positively interesting, but somehow I have an idea that your version ought to be more interesting still."

"Why?"

"Because, if it's as good as I expect it to be, it will go some way toward proving that you have managed to get to the back of this good lady's mind; and that's a thing that no man born of woman ever did yet. Secondly, it will prove that you are one of the greatest lawyers that ever wore stuff or silk. Now, what is it?"

For all run-down, nervous, anemic conditions, weak women, over-worked men, feeble old people and delicate children there is nothing like VINOL.

her your word that you will take the case."

"But surely, Jack," said Kenneth, a little impatiently, "you don't mean a woman like that, one of the loveliest creatures a man ever set eyes on—"

"My dear Ken, I don't care a snap of a finger for her loveliness. Mind, I'm not saying a word against her; but if I were going to discuss this thing impersonally, we must shut our eyes to the fact that beautiful women have used their beauty for bad as well as good ends before now. The first fact in the business that I don't like, or perhaps I should say looks a bit suspicious to me, is her coming to see you herself, when, as you've just told me, Sir Arthur's own solicitors were willing to act for her."

"Which," said Kenneth, is another insinuation of undue influence."

"Yes," laughed Ackersley, "you can call it that if you like. I have not had the pleasure of seeing the lady, but after what you have told me about her, I should say that there is a suspicion—fascinated as you have been so far by pansy eyes, perfect features, shimmering, golden hair, baby cheeks, and red, tremulous, eloquent lips, and all the rest of it—that her looks must have had something to do with your inclination to advocate her case. You know you have never done anything like this before. It does make one just a trifle suspicious."

"In other words," Kenneth interrupted impatiently, "you think that I have allowed a pretty face to make a fool of me."

"I am not taking you for a fool," said Ackersley, with a touch of his Northern burr. "I am taking you for a man, Kenneth—not a lawyer, but just a man; and if you don't know what a man feels like when a beautiful girl—and as you tell me this Mrs. Ashley is no more than a girl in years—looks into your eyes, with nice, soft, pansy eyes, and tells you a story with those same lips, well, a man of your age who has blood in his veins is very apt to believe her assertions!"

"No, that's all very well, my dear fellow; I quite understand what you mean; but I think you are inclined to leave out the lawyer," laughed Kenneth, leaning back in his chair. "Mrs. Ashley told me her story, and I confess that I believed it, whether or not under the influence of pansy eyes and eloquent lips, doesn't matter, because after I had heard the said story I turned to and concocted another one, as far as possible the direct opposite."

"You mean the opposite to all she told you?" said Ackersley, in what Kenneth somehow seemed to think a somewhat doubtful tone. "Well, the one that you have told me has been positively interesting, but somehow I have an idea that your version ought to be more interesting still."

"Why?"

"Because, if it's as good as I expect it to be, it will go some way toward proving that you have managed to get to the back of this good lady's mind; and that's a thing that no man born of woman ever did yet. Secondly, it will prove that you are one of the greatest lawyers that ever wore stuff or silk. Now, what is it?"

British Exchange Rising.

The Pound Sterling Rapidly Coming Back -- Snowstorms and Strikes on Chicago Railroads -- New York Socialistic Party Will Fight Legislature -- Foch Takes Control of Military Affairs in Ruhr District -- Religious Easter Fracas at Jerusalem.

BRITISH EXCHANGE GOES UP.

NEW YORK, April 5. The British exchange rate rose four dollars to-day after being low that figure since December last.

MORE RAILROAD TROUBLE.

CHICAGO, April 5. The train service throughout the Chicago district, already seriously hampered by a heavy snowstorm, virtually was demoralized to-day by the spread of an unauthorized strike of switchmen, according to reports from seven railroads affected. Fearing possible riots, John Garrity, chief of police, early to-day placed the entire police force on reserve. Five hundred policemen patrolled the switchyards last night, he said. Mr. Garrity said the situation was serious and added that it may be necessary to call out the militia and declare military control in railroad yards.

SOCIALISTS TO FIGHT.

NEW YORK, April 5. The determination of the Socialists to carry the fight to reinstate five members of their party expelled from the New York Assembly before the end of a special election was announced on Saturday night by officials of socialist organizations after a conference here. The Governor, it was said, would be asked to call a special election, and the five men would seek re-election, confident of success. It was announced that a meeting of delegates representing the Labor organizations of Greater New York would be held here on Wednesday to consider the situation.

GERMANS MUST WITHDRAW FROM RUHR BASIN.

PARIS, April 5. French military measures destined to force the German Government to withdraw its troops from the Ruhr basin, are now entirely in the hands of Marshal Foch, it was stated at the foreign office this morning.

RIOTING IN JERUSALEM.

JERUSALEM, April 5. One hundred and eighty-eight casualties, mostly slight, occurred as a result of a conflict on Easter Sunday. The military are in control of the situation.

PRESERVING ESQUIMAUX HUNTING GROUND.

OTTAWA, April 5. Trappers who had planned three years' stay on Bonks Island, in the far Canadian north, will be disappointed. An order in council has been passed prohibiting trapping on Victoria Island or Banks Island, northwest territories. The hunting ground in the Arctic, on the advice of the commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, is to be preserved for native Eskimos, and foreign trappers are to be excluded.

BOLSHEVIKI ADVANCE.

LONDON, April 5. On the Caucasian front the Bolsheviki are advancing along the Black Sea towards Nohougskata, northwest of Tonapee, according to an official statement sent out by the Soviet Government at Moscow to-day.

SAYS HOME RULE BILL WILL FAIL.

MONTREAL, April 5. A Dublin cable to the Montreal Star says the complete breakdown throughout Ireland of the Lloyd George Home Rule Bill which has passed the second reading in the House of Commons, was forecasted yesterday by Sir Horace Plunkett, President of the Dominion Home Rule League. If this bill becomes an Act, as seems probable, it will fall in Ireland simply because it will be to the Irish people what its predecessors have been for the British Government, "a scrap of paper." Plunkett declared in an interview with the United News correspondent.

ST. LAWRENCE CLEARING OF ICE.

MONTREAL, April 5. Thos. Robs, secretary of the Shipping Federation, stated to-day that it was expected that St. Lawrence would be clear of ice within the next ten days, when ocean navigation would be renewed.

LOOKING FOR UNDESIRABLE AMERICANS.

LONDON, April 5. In connection with the searching by the police of the Glasgow steamer arriving at Londonderry, the Times says it is stated that the authorities learned that certain persons were believed to be on their way to Ireland from America by way of Glasgow.

THE ANTI-BOLSHEVIK REMNANT.

LONDON, April 5. A despatch to the London Times from Harbin, dated March 25th, says that the fate of the army of General Voitzekoffsky, the sole remnant of Admiral Kolchak's forces in trans-Baikalia, calls for serious consideration. The despatch adds that tens of thousands of men and several thousand officers are anxious to leave Bolshevik territory, but that the consent of the Chinese and Japanese has to be obtained for exodus from Siberia, and that their attitude has not yet been defined.

NOT YET SOLD.

RIO JANEIRO, April 5. Reports that France had bought the German ships seized by Brazil yesterday, and cabled to Canada, are denied by Foreign Minister Marques. He says France has the opportunity to purchase the ships on the same conditions as those laid before the United States shipping companies, and has so far not acted.

ANTHRACITE WAGE CONTRACT.

NEW YORK, April 5. An agreement on a new wage contract for the anthracite coal fields is expected within two weeks, Philip Murray, international vice-president of the U. M. W., announced here to-day. As soon as the committee of miners and operators conducting the negotiations reaches a decision, he said, a tri-district convention will be called at Wilkesbarre to ratify or reject the proposed contract.

GOING BACK TO EUROPE.

NEW YORK, April 5. Since the signing of the armistice, 275,000 emigrants have left the United States, taking with them savings estimated conservatively at two thousand dollars for each emigrant, according to a statement issued by the inner racial council. When passport regulations and transportation conditions permit, it is believed one and quarter million more will leave.

NEW USE OF STRIKE WEAPON.

COPENHAGEN, April 5. A definite agreement to call off the general strike which resulted in forcing King Christian to dismiss the Liebe cabinet, has been reached by employers and workers here. The result of this strike is the second remarkable illustration within a few weeks of the entirely novel use of the strike weapon, which has hitherto been employed almost exclusively in industrial disputes. It has been employed with surprising effect in two important constitutional crises. The first was in Germany, where the reactionary Government set up by Dr. Kapp, was forced to relinquish power at the end of five days. The second was in this country, where it was employed with almost as quick success.

DEMAND FOR INDEPENDENCE DROPPED.

LONDON, April 5. The demand made of the Allies that the independence of Syria be recognized has virtually been dropped by Prince Faisal, who some time ago was made King of Syria, according to a despatch to the Daily Mail from Damascus, dated March 29.

Captain Hollett Carries Tanlac Across Atlantic

Dreaded to Put to Sea Without Medicine That Relieved His Stomach Trouble.

Before starting on his last trip across to Gibraltar with a load of 2,640 quintals of fish, Captain Fred Hollett, of Birin, called in at Connor's drug store in St. John's to get six bottles of Tanlac, as he expected to be away for some months. "So long as I've got Tanlac with me I don't fear the trip," said Capt. Hollett, "but I've been such a sufferer from stomach trouble that I just dread putting to sea without it, for Tanlac is the only thing that ever did it any good. Mine was a pretty bad case. I don't believe any one ever suffered more than I did without going out of his mind. For eight years I never touched a meal without severe distress and stomach pain afterwards that fairly doubled me up. I never seemed to get any good out of my food and always seemed played out and weak. I had such headaches that they made me lightheaded and I got dizzy spells. I never slept well of a night and would get up in the morning with a bad taste in my mouth and feeling so sick that I couldn't touch a bit of breakfast. I got advice both in European ports and here in Newfoundland, and was told that I had catarrh of the stomach. I took lots of medicine, but it was all money thrown away for all the good it ever did me.

"When I came in from my last voyage, everybody seemed to be talking about Tanlac, and after reading of several people I knew who had got help from it, I decided it was just about what I needed. And sure enough Tanlac fixed me up all right. Why, I can now eat anything the cook puts before me and it never has any bad after-effects whatever. I enjoy breakfast, which is a thing I haven't done for years, and I sleep just fine every night. I'm on deck for duty every day without fail, and to tell you the truth, I feel a different man entirely."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv

Boys and Their Uses.
The reaction against the stern parental rule of former days has gone altogether too far in the opposite direction. To-day the boy is pampered, petted and spoiled until he has been persuaded that work is objectionable and any sort of control is tyranny. We have Boys' Clubs, Boys' Associations, Boys' this, that and the other, the whole thing being terribly overdone. There is one place, however, where the boy is missed and that is at the work bench learning a trade. Whether it is the fault of our system of education or of the innumerable organizations for boys we know not, but we do know that it is hard to get boys to learn a useful trade to-day. Indeed, it is hard work to get them to turn their backs even for an hour upon play and sport and employ their time upon some useful line of labor. Advertisements for boys to fill certain positions remain in the newspapers for many days unanswered, because the boy is not at all anxious to go to work. It is a serious matter for the boy now. It will be a much more serious thing for the nation in a few years from now. Where are our carpenters to come from? Where are our masons, blacksmiths, and all the other true laborers to come from if not from the ranks of the small boy? Our generation is rapidly passing away; another can undertake no new duties now, and if the boys refuse to learn the necessary trades, another generation will find society bankrupt, lacking in the agencies for carrying on the necessary work. When a boy has completed the Common School Course or to the end of Grade Seven, if he does not intend to pursue any further educational course, his own good and the good of the Nation call for him to learn a useful trade without loss of time, for the fooling around club rooms idling away their time will not benefit or make him a useful citizen. The gospel of work should be more insistently taught and emphasized, for it constitutes the main duty in life for all, whether rich or poor, and the earlier in life this is clearly understood the better for all.—Acadian Recorder.

Always Remember Your Mother.
And manifest an interest in whatever interests or amuses her. Seek her comfort and pleasure in all things before your own. Don't forget that, though she is old and wrinkled, she still loves pretty things. Remember that she is still a girl at heart as far as delicate little attentions are concerned. Give her your full confidence, and never do anything of which you think she would disapprove, so far as your different ages will permit, in all your pleasures and recreations. Lift all the burdens you can from her shoulders and working for you. Never intimate by word or deed that your world and hers are different, or that you feel in any way superior to her. Treat her with the unvarying courtesy and deference you accord to those who are above you in rank or position. Study her tastes and habits, her likes and dislikes, and cater for them as far as possible in an unobtrusive way. Bear patiently with all her peculiarities or infirmities of temper or disposition, which may be the result of a life of care and toil. Consult her and ask her advice in regard to whatever you are about to do, even though you have no doubt as to what your course should be. Be on the look-out for every occasion to make whatever return you can for her years of sacrifice and planning for your happiness and well-being. Introduce all your friends to her and enlist her sympathies in youthful projects, hopes, and plans, so that she may carry her own youth into old age. Talk to her about your work, your studies, your friends, your amusements, the books you read, the places you visit, for everything that concerns you is of interest to her. Remember that her life is monotonous compared with yours, and to take her to some suitable place of amusement, or for a little trip to the country, or to the city if your home is in the country, as frequently as possible.

Nothing in the Way.
Lord Sumner, who has been spoken of as the man who will try the Kaiser, has a good stock of legal anecdotes. One that he is fond of relating concerns a well-known judge who vainly tried for some time to restrain a too loquacious counsel. Finding his blinks disregarded (says Lord Sumner) and tired of counsel's interminable argument, he at length remarked: "Mr. Blank, it's all simply going in here," indicating his right ear, "and coming out here," pointing to his left. For a moment counsel paused, then quietly retired in his rich brogue: "Just so, my lord—just so. But what is there to stop it?"

Blair's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

British Labor Returns to Sanity.
By a vote of more than three to one the trades unions of Great Britain last week declared against Direct Action, or as it is known on this side of the water, the General Strike. This decision encourages the belief that British labor is at last settling down to an intelligent view of the world's economic situation. Great as was the waste and distress involved by the transport workers' strike last autumn it may have been a blessing in disguise. Because of the vital part the railway systems play in the life of a country like Great Britain, where the urban populations largely exceed that of the rural districts, the transport workers' strike bore most of the outward aspects of a General Strike. It tied up most industries and interfered with all the unions had been simultaneously ordered to cease every form of activity except picketing and parading. The trades unions of Great Britain thus obtained practical experience of how oppressively a General Strike bears upon the working classes and it is quite obvious that they want no more such tragic nonsense. Robt. Smillie, the chief champion of Direct Action, who less than a year ago was regarded as the most powerful and dangerous labor leader in Great Britain, is to-day a discredited man. The vote in question was taken—a proposal from Smillie and his friends in the miners' union—that Labor as a united body resort to a general strike to compel the Government to nationalize the mines. Already the Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George, proposes a nationalization of mineral rights but stops short of taking the position of the mines themselves out of private hands. It is obvious that Smillie, in his nationalization plans, wished to attain a position which would make him a dictator of the extent of output, the hours of labor and rate of wages, under a nationalized system. Since a great number of British industries are in the last instance dependent on the coal, iron, and other minerals produced by British mines, the goal was plainly the control of industry by labor. British labor circles were last year flooded with literature aiming to prove that such a system had proven a success in Russia. The truth about Russia has been lately revealed in a manner that cannot be controverted by the mere assertion that all arguments against the control of industry by labor are the lies of the capitalists. The British workmen now know that the Soviet government though victorious in a military sense has suffered a defeat of all the principles on which it is founded. The control of industry by labor has ended in the conscription of labor at long hours and low wages and the re-employment at large salaries of the "bourgeois" who formerly directed industry. Last week's vote on Direct Action shows that not more than twenty per cent. of organized labor in the motherland remains still infected with Bolshevism. This does not mean that labor as a political force will be less powerful in Great Britain. By a vote equally strong the unions declared for political or constitutional action which means that they will endeavor to secure reforms in their interest by securing the support of a majority of the whole people. In this endeavor a casting vote of the folies of Bolshevism will strengthen rather than weaken the Independent Labor Party.—Saturday Night.

The Funniest Thing We Know.
The following lines on the woman question, by an English engineer, one John Swinburne, to wit, strike us as pretty near the funniest thing in the world, outside of the probable answers some explosive ladies might be tempted to write. The oracle says: "The war was a huge sex advertisement for women. Women wore comic opera uniforms and all their organizations had 'women' in their titles. (Probably they should have had something else,—say 'turpis' or 'petoties'.) The woman war worker wore breeches of some sort whenever possible, and cursed, smoked, swore, talked slang, and became as good an imitation of the lower type man as she could. "A woman cannot sharpen a pencil. She dabs her pen to the bottom of the inkpot and then, when she nib retires into the holder, she puts another in on top of it. She thinks water boiling violently is much hotter than water simmering. If a paring chisel is left within her reach, she uses it to break boxes open. All machinery is to her queer stuff that men understand. (Except the sewing machine.) "Women always looked best dressed as tablemaids, or nurses. The costumes are quite neutral, plain and in no way decorative. Give a woman her head and she makes a costume ugly by doing everything to destroy the appearance of her figure. For a decade or so, women have worn hats which gave them the look of hilarious insanity, so that, out of doors, one

WHICH WORKS HARDER?

Which has the harder time—the man who goes out and earns the money to run a home, or the woman who stays behind and takes care of the home?

A discussion on this subject arose the other night about a woman whose husband comes home every night and then she has to get the dishes. The woman regards this not as a special favor, on her part, but as a natural right on his.

Of course the first answer is, that circumstances alter cases.

Childless Woman With a Small Home.

In this particular case, I do not think it is by any means her right; she has only a small home to care for, and no children. Also, she has a man to wash and iron. The man goes out and works eight or nine hours a day. Her work cannot possibly take her that long. Why, then, should she expect him to help with the other hand, if a woman has several children and does her own washing and takes the whole care of the house, she probably works a good deal more than eight hours a day. Her work is from sun to sun, but her work is never done," you say. And while modern ways have shortened man's working hours, it is that was written, not so much for the benefit of woman. To be sure, she has many conveniences she did not use to have, but, on the other hand, the care of children somehow become a much more exacting profession than used to be. The mother of two children seems to devote as much to them, to-day, as the mother of five did fifty years ago.

Man Hire a Substitute and Give Her a Vacation.

And if a woman has got to keep on her job from six o'clock—until the baby wakes her—until half seven, when the dishes are done, the last child put to bed, I think man with a sense of justice will give her an hour or two of his time this eight hour day is done. Any woman who wouldn't do that, deserves to be sentenced to a few weeks of the hard labor he condemns his to. Or perhaps he might have

Drugs in Small Doses.

Dandelion roots yield a medicinal extract.

Rhubarb was originally introduced into this country in 1573 under the names of Turkey, Chinese, and Russian rhubarb. It is actually the root of the "Rheum," and the beneficial effects of our own cultivated rhubarb are well-known.

Liquorice is an extract prepared from the roots of the Glycyrrhiza Glabra. At the close of three years, the roots become first fit for use. Liquorice is largely imported from Spain, but its flavour is not reckoned as good as English-grown liquorice.

Samonils Flowers, from their tonic properties, were originally much used in fevers. The ancients used to call them "Cinchona." They are the dried blossoms of the "Anthemis Nobilis," found in dry pasture-land in England.

Hemlock affords a useful medicine—and resembles sheep's parsley. This plant, incidentally, was the one with which Socrates is said to have committed suicide.

Sarsaparilla is the root of a plant which grows chiefly in America and the West Indies. It is sent to this country in bales, and the long twigs are covered with a brownish, crinkly bark. It is in this bark that the medicinal property is to be found, but the Sarsaparilla one sees in bottles is a very strong decoction of the drug boiled down with several different ingredients.

The Chinese sometimes condemn a prisoner to be kept awake till he dies. A criminal under such circumstances lives nine or ten days.

The guinea was first coined in the reign of Charles II. Its predecessor being the laurel, a coin that was current in the reign of James I.

People who complain of food being dear may be interested in knowing that on January 4, 1869, there were only four codfish in Billingsgate Market, for which a fishmonger paid fourteen guineas. Salmon soon afterwards was sold at a guinea a pound!

Previous to July 6, 1785, English money was in use in the United States. On that date the Continental Congress established the dollar, although the exact weight was not fixed until August 8, 1786, when it was made equal to that of the old Spanish dollar.

Mainly About People.

Henry L. Doherty who has made millions in oil, tractions, light and electric and water power began life at Columbus, O., as a newsboy and office boy. His school days ended when he was 12. He is the head of companies employing 14,000 employees.

Professor Jastrow, the scholarly scientist who heads the psychology department of the University of Wisconsin, does not agree with the views of the hereafter as presented by Sir Oliver Lodge. The professor declares the way to understand table tapping is to get under the table. Such matters are not for the scientist, but for a detective.

Robert Smillie, who some people think would succeed Lloyd George as premier in the event of the formation of a Labor government in Great Britain, is the acknowledged king of the British labor world—a man who wields a more powerful sceptre than many a king. And yet, powerful as he is in his own realm the world outside knows little of him. Forty years ago he was working as a lad in a Lanarkshire mine, and ten years later he was appointed secretary to a branch of the Scottish Miners' Union, of which he became president in 1894, when he inaugurated his tenure of office by organizing a strike, which lasted six weeks. In 1913 he was the leading spirit of the great coal strike, which he conducted with such resolution and ability that the following year saw him promoted to the presidency of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, with more than a million men under his control. He is said to have gained an ascendancy over the world of workers such as no other man in Great Britain has ever reached.

E. W. Beatty, president of the C. P. R., told one on himself at the company's banquet, recently. When he was a member of the company's legal staff, he began for the first time to exhibit signs of approaching wealth by contracting appendicitis, and was forced to undergo an operation. The surgeon required just thirteen and a half minutes to remove the offending appendix, and when the operation was completed, he asked his brother surgeon, who Mr. Beatty was. "He's only a poor lawyer, in fact a very poor lawyer," returned the assistant and the minimum fee for such an operation was charged Mr. Beatty. A few weeks later, addressing the Fifth Sunday Club in Montreal, Mr. Beatty told the story. After the meeting a G. T. R. employee met a C. P. R. employee and asked: "What did you think of the old man's speech?" "Well," replied the G. T. R. employee, "he said he was a damn poor lawyer, and a damn poor speaker and on the whole I think it was a damn poor speech."

Tuesday, April 6, 1920.

A WARNING TO ALL

For some time past the Telegram has been sounding the note that increased production coupled with economy in consumption is the panacea for curing the present high cost of living. We have furthermore suggested that in consequence of the condition of the European fish markets, Newfoundland should turn elsewhere with a view to opening up new avenues for our trade and the disposal of our products. The depreciated value of our currency is also something to which we have drawn attention, the present rates of exchange being almost ruinous to business, and adding extra to the cost of living. In corroboration of our writings and opinions on these important questions, a circular letter written to its customers by the well known firm of Harvey & Co., Limited, has since been issued, and a copy having been courteously handed us, for further circulation, we gladly avail of the opportunity offered to present conditions—as they appear to this long-established concern—to our readers, hence we make no apology for reprinting their circular in full, in order that all may have the advantage which the superior and intimate knowledge of the principals of a firm so widely known and respected brings to the present acute situation.

The trade letter is dated March 22 and reads as follows: The present serious condition of the fish markets, and the enormous losses which our merchants are making in the realization of the 1919 catch of fish, combined with the excessive cost of food, clothing and practically every article which we require to sustain life, make the outfitting for the fishery of 1920 a very serious problem. It is believed by expert economists that the depreciation in the value of the currency, which is the proper term for what is commonly called the High Cost of Living, has about reached its lowest level. The true situation is at last beginning to dawn upon the public mind, and politicians are getting up their courage to begin to undo the wrong they have committed. In the last English papers there is a speech of Mr. Lloyd George in which he frankly states that the High Cost of Living is owing to the depreciated currency, and not to profiteering.

In France, Italy and the United States the cause of the trouble has also been located, and the first steps taken to establish a sound currency, and to restore gold to its position as the standard of value. In a circular letter last November, we endeavoured to explain to our customers why prices had advanced. When we have all our lives been pricing goods in gold money, or the equivalent of gold, it is very difficult to realize that our money has lost half its value, and that consequently we have to give twice as much of it in order to buy the same article, but until we do get this idea into our minds we can never understand the problems which lie before us.

In that letter we stated that the deflation of the currency, and the restoration of gold as the standard of value, would be a long and painful process. Some economists are so staggered with the possible results of any attempt to carry out this design that they counsel its abandonment, and say that the world must work and produce until the volume of production balances the volume of currency, and prices become normal by this means. Others point out that this is work for a generation, and urge that more drastic means be taken to remedy the present desperate conditions. This is the policy which seems to have been adopted, as the process of deflation has already begun. It is most difficult to form an opinion as to the extent to which prices have to rise in proportion to the extent to which the currencies of the world have been inflated, but the ablest economists of the day believe that we are now at the crest of the wave, and that, speaking generally, within a few months prices should begin to decline. Not necessarily all prices, for the scarcity of some commodities seems to be so great that their values are likely to increase notwithstanding some appreciation in the value of the currency. The decline in prices will be retarded also by further advances in wages, or a continuance of the disorder in Europe. But on the whole it may be expected that the money realized next fall for our produce will go further, or buy more goods, than it can at the present time. As we said at the beginning of this letter, the price of fish has already declined in the foreign markets, and a corresponding decline must shortly take place here. This will have a tendency to increase consumption, and to get all the old fish out of the way before the new comes along, so that, because of the present slump, the markets may be in much better condition for the next campaign.

The chief industry of Newfoundland is catching Codfish, and whatever the prospects may be we cannot give up the voyage immediately we have a head wind. We must rather brace ourselves to overcome the difficulties. While the exact figures are not available, it is obvious that there have not been nearly as many men employed in the fishery during the past five years as there were before the war, yet the catch has been maintained at a high average. This is no doubt attributable to the introduction of the motor boat of which there are now between 10,000 and 12,000 in use in the Island. In spite, therefore, of the high cost of outfitting, we are of opinion that the catch per man has been so largely increased that the cost of production per quintal has not been very greatly increased; and that although prices during 1920 may be lower, it will still pay well to catch Codfish. There is no reason for discouragement in respect to the out-turn of next season's operations, but there is every reason for economy and increased effort.

WOMEN'S MASS MEETING.
On Friday afternoon at 8.30 p.m. sharp at the Casino Theatre, will be held a mass meeting of women only. Some of our veterans who have borne the brunt of battle and seen much of warfare, are being asked to speak on this occasion. We ask every woman who can to be present. We look to the sympathy of the women of Newfoundland at this time. Union is strength, and together we will work for the accomplishment of this great need—the ownership of Beaumont Hamel battlefield, the last resting-place of so many of our men, by the people for whom they fought. This will be our Service of gratitude.

We learn that no mail was brought from Louisburg by S.S. Meigle, one hundred and fifty bags having been left behind at that port, through some inadvertence—we would not call it blunder—on the part of the postal officials at either this or the other end. Meanwhile the public has to grin and bear the inconvenience.

The dance held last night in the C. C. C. Hall in aid of the Band Funds proved highly successful. During the night refreshments were served by the young ladies in charge of the affair. The programme of dance music furnished by the C.C.C. Band proved very acceptable.

The annual Easter Service of the Woman's Missionary Society of George Street Church, will be held this Tuesday evening, at 8 p.m., in the School Room. Rev. Dr. Bond has very kindly consented to speak and other interesting items will combine to make a profitable and pleasant evening—an offering will be taken during the service.

When Spring comes round comes the Sulphur and Molasses days. Most of the children do not like sulphur and molasses. There is however a way of giving the children what they need without offending their taste. That is by giving them our Sulphur and Cream of Tartar Lozenges quite as good and effective as a blood purifier for spring-time as the old fashioned rather repulsive mixture, and a very great deal more pleasant. One or more of these lozenges given every morning fasting for a week or so, will do what is necessary without recourse to the old fashioned Cream of Tartar and Sulphur mixtures. Price (box of 36 tablets) 20c.

Young Men's League.

The preliminary committee, appointed at a recent meeting in the Methodist College Hall to organize a Young Men's League, met again last night and continued discussion of the constitution and bye-laws drawn up by the convener, Mr. J. R. Smallwood. The constitution was approved and will be submitted at a general meeting to take place probably on Sunday night at 8 o'clock, when officers of the League will also be appointed.

Lord Rothermere Coming.

Lord Rothermere, owner of the London Daily Mirror and of big pulp and paper interests in this country, will come here this summer on a visit. Lord Rothermere is a great newspaper man—one of Britain's greatest, and local newspapermen are looking forward with interest to his visit.

Not Decided About Stamps.

In reference to a statement that it is contemplated by the Government to issue a new series of postage stamps in honor of the Prince of Wales' visit, Postmaster General Haldyard informs the Telegram that this matter has not yet come up for discussion, but that it possibly would later.

To-Day's Messages.

CAN BOTH RISE AND ALIGHT.

LONDON, April 5. The first airplane to rise from and alight again on the deck of a warship, was one of those aboard the Furious, while the British fleet was off Vigo, recently, says the London Times. Airplanes used to ascend from the Furious during the war, but were unable to make landings on the vessel again. This time it was successfully accomplished.

GAVE WAY UNDER PRESSURE.

PARIS, April 5. The attitude of the French Government in the present German crisis is defined and explained in a note issued to-night. After reiterating that the Government has no hostile designs towards Germany but desiring, on the contrary, a resumption of normal relations with that country, and expressing the realization of a difficult situation of the Berlin Government, the note declares that the German Government has given way to pressure by the militarist party, "not fearing to infringe the imperialist and most solemn stipulation of the Versailles Treaty."

TAKING PROCEEDINGS.

WASHINGTON, April 5. The Federal Government moved today to put an end to the picketing of the British Embassy, which was renewed this morning by women sympathizers with the movement for an Irish Republic. United States District Attorney Laskery informed Matthew O'Brien, counsel for the women, that if his clients persisted they would be prosecuted under a Federal Statute, which makes the offering of an insult to a diplomatic representative of any foreign government or to his official residence, a felony punishable by a penitentiary sentence. Two women arrested were released soon after.

ADVOCATE UNITED ACTION.

TORONTO, Ont., April 5. A Toronto Star cable from London says the committee of the British Socialist party to-day voted by 62 to 11 in favor of a resolution advocating united trade union action, to improve the prospect for a successful overthrow of the present system prevailing in the world. The committee decided the time was opportune for the success of the workers program in a struggle which inevitably will arise from the present chaos, brought about by European capitalism. United action was advocated in preference to sectional strikes.

FRENCH TROOPS OCCUPY FRANKFORT.

MAYENCE, April 5. French troops will occupy Frankfort early to-morrow morning. Some detachments have already started.

GETTING AWAY IN TIME.

GENEVA, April 5. Thousands of German fugitives, the majority of them wealthy, are arriving here from the northern Swiss frontier, and unsuccessfully demanding entrance into Switzerland. The refugees declare they consider the occupation of Frankfurt, and other southern German cities, by the Allies a question of only a few days, and therefore are anxious to leave Germany.

HIGH LIFE FOR NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, April 5. Charges that wet revelry reigned nightly along New York's "gay white way," made in a sermon Sunday by Rev. John Roach Stratton, of Calvary Baptist Church, was not news to the United States prohibition enforcement agents here. James Shelvin, federal prohibition enforcement officer, commented to-night that the Rev. Roach Stratton declared he had made a personal investigation of "vice" conditions, and had found out that cocktails, highballs and whiskeys straight were sold freely, and that the "hootchikootch," "shlimmi shake" and "cheek to cheek" were being danced openly in various cafes and cabarets.

DROWNING FATALITY.

ANDERSON, B.C., April 5. Ten persons were drowned near Lowndesville, Sunday, by the capsizing of a flat boat used as a ferry on the Savannah River, which is about eight feet above its normal stage, due to recent rains.

TWO HUNDRED KILLED.

BERLIN, April 5. The Government forces have lost two hundred men killed in fresh fighting, in the triangle formed by Duisburg, Dortmund and Essen, according to official information given a correspondent to-day. Except in this triangle quiet gradually is being restored in the Ruhr district.

CARRYING ON.

DUBLIN, April 5. Though there was no Easter rebellion, Sinn Feiners gave the Government nearly as much annoyance as if there had had been. They demonstrated also their widespread organization, and the secrecy with which they are able to execute their coups, simultaneously in every part of the island. Not only were tax offices and police barracks attacked, but the private residences of tax collectors were also raided. Nearly one hundred police stations and barracks all over Ireland were demolished.

FREIGHT AND PASSENGER ADVANCE.

LONDON, April 5. North Atlantic Shipping lines have decided to increase freight rates very substantially from the United Kingdom to North America, as from April, says the London Times this morning. The decision is attributed to the high level of working expenses and the rise in price of bunker coal. The newspaper adds that a message received yesterday gave an intimation that American and other lines may increase passengers rates also.

BLIND MEN DEMONSTRATE.

LONDON, April 5. About eighty blind men set out from Manchester to-day, to walk to London, says the London Times. With other bands of blind men from various parts of the country, they intend to make representations to the Premier, urging that provisions should be made for the training and security of the livelihood of blind citizens. The band from Manchester, says the despatch to the London Times was a pathetic one. The men carried nothing but white banners, proclaiming the purpose of the pilgrimage. On their one hundred and eighty mile walk, they will trust to friendly organizations to provide them with food and shelter.

VIA THE AIR ROUTE.

WASHINGTON, April 6. Prohibition agents have been asked by Washington officials to keep a sharp look out for an aeroplane which flies over the Canadian border every night into Montana and drops a parachute. The information is that the parachute carries a quantity of whiskey, which is disposed of by bootleggers. After dropping the parachute the machine goes back into Canada without landing.

GOES TO BELGIUM.

AIX LA CHAPPELLE, April 6. An international commission, dealing with the question relative to new territories of Eupen and Malmedy, has decided that the Mont Joe Railway shall become the property of Belgium. British and Italian delegates held that Germany could easily build another railway.

BROAD PROGRAMME.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., April 6. A programme for increasing production to remedy the high cost of living will be outlined by four thousand leading American business men at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States here on April 26th. Transportation, Government policy with respect to anti-trust laws and taxation, international exchange, world production, labor and immigration are among the subjects to be discussed.

BOTH OF THEM BAD.

LONDON, April 6. A despatch to the Times from Dublin says that two morals are generally drawn from Saturday's incidents in Ireland. The first being that the Republican movement has become a really serious menace to British authority in Ireland, and secondly that the Government must devise a better method of combating the campaign of crime. The despatch says the brains of Dublin Castle are being outwitted at every turn by the brains of the revolutionary movement.

DARMSTADT, April 6. This city was occupied by French troops at seven o'clock this morning. The occupation was effected without incident.

VLADIVOSTOCK, April 6. Japanese troops yesterday occupied Vladivostock after eight hours of severe fighting in all parts of the city.

Amusing Case in Court.

HORSE "SWAPPERS" DISAGREE.

A horse swapping case, in which a well known horse dealer and a truckman were the principals, occupied the attention of His Honor Judge Morris this forenoon. It appears that the truckman swapped a horse, "tail to tail," with the dealer; but on consideration asked for $20.00 to boot. They agreed to toss a coin to decide, the truckman claiming that he won the toss; hence he sued for the amount. The defense also claimed he won the toss, so the Judge was left to decide. His Honor dismissed the case with the remark that it would be as well to sue for a sweepstake as the case before him.

RICKARD MAY GET THE BIG BOUT.

New York, March 26.—Georges Carpentier likes New York. He said so last evening after admitting that his arm was tired from shaking hands and that his head buzzed from the welcome he had received.

As a matter of fact, his impressions of New York were gained from glimpses only, for most of the day was spent in conference with those who hold contract on his signature.

No evidence was forthcoming as to just who will handle the big bout, if bout there is, although Tex Rickard, who brought Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries together at Reno, Nev., a number of years ago, and who also promoted the Willard-Dempsey bout last July 4, seemed to have first call on Carpentier's attention.

He was closeted with the French champion and his manager most of the afternoon, but after a long conference Rickard was noncommittal. He has ever been averse to discussing his plans before they are completed and contracts signed.

He did say that nothing of course could be done until Dempsey is freed of the charges now pending against him, and even intimated that it did not appear likely that a match could be arranged for the world's championship before next winter if then.

Carpentier will be the guest at several dinners in the next few days, the most pretentious of which, perhaps, will be one on Thursday evening under the direction of the International Sporting Club.

Several important announcements are expected to be made at this dinner which will be of interest to followers of boxing.

The formation of a league to represent various professional sport organizations is said to be in the making and may be made public as well as a statement from former Champion Jess Willard, provided the latter can reach this city in time to attend.

demonstration of his boxing skill if a suitable opponent can be secured to oppose him. The bout will not extend beyond a two or three-round exhibition and hinges upon consent being obtained from those promoters who hold contracts with Carpentier.

A prominent amateur with an A. E. F. boxing record was mentioned as Carpentier's opponent, but the question of the resultant effect upon his amateur status may prevent his appearing in the proposed exhibition.

The French boxer's hotel suite was besieged by a host of newspaper men and photographers most of the afternoon. The rooms were filled with gifts in the form of flowers, fruit and candy, many of which were addressed to Mme. Georges Carpentier.

Carpentier granted the reporters a few minutes' interview, appearing in a gayly flowered bath robe heavily trimmed with marooned silk which formed a sharp contrast to his blond hair, and fair complexion.

He smiled continually, but did not attempt to converse in English, answering all questions through an interpreter, much to the confusion of the interviewers.

A BUSY MAN.
NEW YORK, March 23.—I am anxious to box Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight championship as soon as the match can be arranged.

This was the first statement made by Georges Carpentier, the French heavyweight, on his arrival here this morning.

"I can get into condition on reasonably short notice, and am willing to meet the holder of the premier title anywhere the match can be held either in America or Europe," he added.

However, after several hours of mysterious conferences with various promoters, there was little evidence to indicate that the French pugilist would meet the title holder in the near future.

The abandon with which Carpentier and his manager, Deschamps, signed contracts recently, here and abroad, stunned promoters, and left them in doubt as to the possibility of bringing Carpentier and Dempsey together within the next twelve months.

A close analysis of the situation disclosed the fact that the Frenchman was under contract with three different promoters, which bound him to perform certain services which are closely related, and which, apparently, prevent him from actually boxing Dempsey for some months, providing he is so inclined. The English promoter, Cochrane, has first option on Carpentier's ring services, providing he can secure Dempsey's signature for a match, the option extending to December 21, according to one report, and to July, 1921, according to another statement.

In addition, Jack Curley, the promoter, has Carpentier booked for a ten weeks' tour beginning May 3, with another five weeks' extension, if he desires to exercise it. Curley says that he expects to tour the country with the French pugilist, the latter giving sparring exhibitions.

A third contract is with a moving picture concern which has booked Carpentier for two seven-reel films, in which he will take the part of a college youth, combined with a boxing role.

The possibility of a match with English or French heavyweights in France in August, was also mentioned.

Manager Deschamps stated flatly that Carpentier has no intention of engaging to box Dempsey until the latter's "military affairs" was cleared up. A somewhat similar statement was credited to Kearns, manager of Dempsey, according to one of the interested parties, who said he was in receipt of a letter from Kearns to the effect that Dempsey would not consider a match of any kind until his name had been cleared.

Among those who assembled at the dock to meet the French champion on his arrival were Messrs. A. Jaquerhart, Narbonne and M. Singher, representing La Union Nationale Francaise, who came here to endeavor to arrange for Carpentier's appearance in Quebec.

Iron-bound contracts tie up Carpentier's movements for some time, but the Canadians hope to secure a visit from him.

Carpentier refused to express any opinion regarding the outcome of a match with Dempsey. He did say, however, that if he won the world's heavyweight title, he hoped he would be permitted to retire after defending the championship once.

FLEMING AND KILBANE TO FIGHT.
Buffalo, March 23.—Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion of the world, who is matched to fight Frankie Fleming the Canadian champion, at Toronto on March 26, has notified the promoters that he will insist on a referee from the United States. He has never boxed in Toronto and has been given to understand that there is a peculiar interpretation of the Queensberry rules in vogue over there, which might tend to mitigate against an American champion not familiar with them.

Walter C. Kelly, the well-known Buffalo referee, who has officiated at Toronto in scores of important battles in years past, has been suggested for the Kilbane-Fleming bout. Kelly refereed the Jack Britton-Ted Lewis fight at Toronto three years ago.

BRITISH SPORTSMEN THINK CARPENTIER WILL BEAT DEMPSEY.

London, March 20.—The sporting world regards Carpentier as a lucky fellow. He is practically the only man in the running for the world's heavyweight boxing championship, and the fortune it carries with it in these prosperous times. Anyone who reads the history of our defeated champion, Joe Beckett, in the recent action between him and his late manager, and grasps the fact that Joe learned to read "big hand" only when in the army during the war, must see how little prospect such excellent men can at the best have at a modern encounter with a man like Carpentier.

The old bulldog breed of sheer fighters is useless for modern fast scientific glove fighting. They were "the goods" so long as it was a mere slugging match, and a test of brute endurance, but can no more hope to beat an alert headfighter like the Frenchman than and old broadsworder could hope to win the modern chess championship.

And Dempsey, Carpentier's old obstacle to the world title, is obviously of the Beckett class. As just now they are running a strong campaign against Dempsey in the States. They object to a man who did not help to win the war as a soldier, attempting to represent America as the champion fighting man in the United States.

MYSTERIOUS STORY.

When the box was found to enclose a folded parchment, containing writing in letters of gold and marble. The ancient text was sent to decipher, but records that a priest in question, one of the best artists of the age, was the author of various sculptures, representing scriptural subjects, on the front of the High Altar; and the sculptured pulpit, which was a great ornament of the church, was his chief. The artist-curate had been, also in matters spiritual, one of the greatest men of his age. The body measured, from the tip of the head to the sole of the foot, seven feet eleven inches, Rhensish measure. The feet nearly covered by cassock, rested on a folio volume parchment—the first leaf of which bore the title: "Chronicon Saeculi XXI." To the educated or illiterate mind alike the above must come to human agency had nothing to do with the miracle revealed above, and it proves conclusively that the circumstances may be attributed to the supernatural. Yet there are many who would believe in spirits, Christian Science, crystal gazing, mediums, etc., and standing the most indisputable proof as recorded by those who possessed it a little over seventy years ago, when the discovery was made after the coffin had remained closed for over nine hundred years. It was an example of the sculptors of the Middle Ages—the sculptors of the Middle Ages—unable to repair the work of those of the Middle Ages, less plan, erect and beauty grand works of art, such as the Cathedral and other historic monuments of ecclesiastical architecture, many of them levelled to the ground by the brutal and barbaric attacks of the Prussian hordes during the late war. Napoleon knew them well when he stated that a Prussian was hatched from a cannon ball.

THE CHURCH TRIUMPHANT.

It was (and still is) with undiminished life and vigor, the piety, zeal and wonderful talent of such faithful servants of God, as that of the sculptor-priest of Urbach, that the Church raised the people from the lowest depths of barbarism, passed them through the alembic of piety and charity, and placed them on the high-road of eternity. And it was the knowledge of those facts that drew from the lips of the Grand Old Man and Prime Minister of England, William Ewart Gladstone, a few years previous to his death, that beautiful and well-deserved tribute, when he stated: "She (Catholic Church) has marched for fifteen hundred years (since the days of Constantine) at the head of civilization, and has harnessed to her chariot, as the horses of a triumphal car, the chief intellectual and material forces of the world; her greatness, glory, grandeur and majesty have been almost, although not absolutely, all that in these respects the world has had to boast of. Her children are more numerous than the children of the sects combined; she is every day enlarging the boundaries of her vast empire, her altars are raised in every clime and her missionaries are to be found wherever there are men to be taught the evangel of immortality and souls to be saved. And this wondrous church, which is as old as Christianity and as universal as mankind, is to-day after its twenty centuries of age, as fresh and as vigorous and as fruitful as on the day the Pentecostal fires were showered upon the earth."

A MARINE DEMONSTRATION.

Another case, and if it does not rank amongst the supernatural, I fail to account for it. It is a simple and true story, and can be vouched for by many who are living to-day. I can remember the vessel clearly and distinctly, but, unfortunately, the mystery occurred so long ago that the details have escaped my memory, although I heard the old folks describe the event many a time, in fact, it was a subject of general conversation. Probably I was five years old, and I remember the name of the vessel, which was the Eliza, owned by Captain Patrick Strapp of Harbor Main, father of the beloved Rev. Brother Strapp of St. Bonaventures College, who has been for so many years the idolized teacher of the pupils attending that historic and venerable institution. I should say that the event occurred nearly sixty years ago. The Eliza was a brigantine of about 135 tons, and was employed in the prosecution of the seal and cod fisheries by her owner for many years. After she was lost, Captain Strapp purchased the brigantine Ransom, a splendid vessel, and I was on board of her scores of times. But it is with the Eliza I have to do in my story of a supernatural occurrence, and if it was not supernatural, what was it? Wireless telegraphy was not thought of for forty years or more after the event I am about to record, and even if the wireless were in full swing as it is to-day, with all its manifold blessings in saving life at sea, and other great benefits conferred by it upon humanity, it would not in any way account for the mysterious notification that Capt. Strapp received upon the voyage. I am about to describe, and a mystery it has remained to this day, and I presume will remain so till the end of time.

THE MESSAGE ON THE SLATE.

About 1860 Capt. Strapp in the Eliza, left with a cargo of codfish for the West Indies, and for several days nothing of any importance occurred, the weather being fine and there was every indication of the good ship Eliza making a quick run to market. Suddenly a heavy gale sprung up, but the Eliza was a staunch and well-built vessel, used to buffeting with winds, seas and ice, and managed to come through without the loss of a sail or anything of any importance. After seeing that everything was all right on deck, Capt. Strapp went below to take an hour's well earned rest, but before doing so he went to the slate which was on the cabin table, and upon which he would write down any occurrence of interest previous to entering such in the ship's log-book. What was his surprise upon taking up the slate to discover written thereon in plain, unmistakable language: "Go immediately to latitude—longitude—a ship is sinking condition, and save crew." Capt. Strapp was astounded at what he saw on the slate, and immediately called the mate and asked him "what was the meaning of this?" The mate, a most reliable man and thorough sailor, was thunderstruck, and, of course, replied that he knew nothing whatever about it, as he had not been in the cabin for hours. The second mate could not read or write, nor could the steward. Capt. Strapp began to feel somewhat uneasy, but he rubbed the writing off the slate, and as usual with seafaring men, being busy, he forgot all about it in a few minutes. A short time after he went to the slate again and received a great shock when he discovered the same words written thereon, ordering him to hurry and rush to the assistance of the ship, giving the latitude and longitude as before. "In the name of God I'll go" said the Captain, and gave orders to alter the course of the Eliza and steer for the location given on the slate. After some hours sailing the Eliza sighted a large ship in a sinking condition, sails carried away, boats gone and crew exhausted by their terrible sufferings—all provisions spoiled by the salt water. Capt. Strapp bore down on the sinking ship, just in time, rescued the crew and conveyed them safely to the port to which the Eliza was bound.

THE REALLY OCCULT.

I am sorry I cannot give the full details of the wonderful and mysterious occurrence which has been a source of argument from that day to comparatively a few years ago. I have asked Brother Strapp, but he knows only the outlines such as I do, and I have asked many old timers, but they, while they remember the event, can add nothing to what I know myself. So there stands the mystery. But Mr. Frederick Martin, the veteran chief engineer of the S.S. Fiona for so many years, who possesses a most retentive memory, has given me a most interesting bit of information, which, to say the least, only intensifies the mystery. Mr. Martin remembers the occurrence distinctly, and has informed me that when the mate of the abandoned ship was brought on board the Eliza, he gazed round in a dazed condition, and informed Capt. Strapp that as he became exhausted he dreamed that he and his comrades were rescued by the very ship Eliza, after he had written a message on the slate in her cabin. Capt. Strapp was astounded, and going over to the table, took up the slate and asked the mate if that was his writing? The mate was no less surprised than Capt. Strapp, and unhesitatingly replied that it was his own hand-writing, and proved it to the satisfaction of all, and was corroborated by his own captain. There is not a shadow of doubt as to the truth of this mysterious occurrence, and, as I said before, it was the subject of conversation amongst sea-faring men, as well as the public generally, for many years after.

CORROBORATED BY THE LOG.

A few years ago Rev. Brother Strapp came across an old diary of his father's amongst some family paper in which it was stated that the name of the Captain of the unfortunate vessel, the crew of which was rescued, was Cummins, and the name of Capt. Strapp's mate was Walsh, for many years his chief officer. It was also stated that Capt. Strapp was considerably injured by falling from aloft—having his teeth knocked out, and he went to fix it whilst his crew were conveying the shipwrecked mariners on board the Eliza. If it was not performed by supernatural agency, how was it done? As certain as I hold this pen in my hand no person on board ship wrote the warning on the slate. How could they? They spoke no vessel, and no person, officers or crew, even dreamed that there was a vessel in distress. So I give it up.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DAND. RUFF.

Heyday of the Muskrat.

The modest muskrat has at last obtained his proper meed of appreciation. His coat, the "Hudson seal" of commerce, has become the most fashionable of furs, and costs just about treble the price that it fetched before the war.

For the latter fact there is another reason, viz., that the extraordinary cold of winter before last froze multitudes of muskrats to death, thereby reducing very largely the available supply of the animals. The value of the muskrat to-day seems strange to many a middle-aged Canadian who trapped these little animals, about a quarter of a century ago, when he was a lad attending high school, and received from 10 to 25 cents a skin.

Some muskrats are stream-dwellers, and make their homes in burrows in the banks thereof. But mostly they live in swamps, and build for themselves houses of twigs and refuse vegetation two or three feet high. The house has a hole, for entrance and exit, beneath the surface of the water; and in winter time the occupants make their way out under the ice to look for water-lily roots, mollusks or other food.

In the winter before last, however, the ice over many marsh areas froze right down to the bottom, so that the poor rodents, unable to get food, starved to death.

A muskrat is nearly as big as a fair-sized cat. It "molts" in summer, shedding its hair, and its new pelage is not well grown until early in the following year. Skins taken in February and March (known to the trade as "spring" pelts) are in best condition and fetch the highest price. About seventy skins are required to make one of those long and beautiful coats that are so much admired nowadays. But the average person who buys a muskrat coat does not realize that one may be worth more than twice as much as another, even when the two are fashioned exactly alike. How far this is true may be judged by the prices paid for skins at the great annual fur auction in St. Louis last September. On that occasion 552,396 muskrat pelts were sold in wholesale lots at 92 apiece for "fall" skins, $3.05 for "springs," $3.50 for "spring dark," $3.90 for "spring, extra large," and $5.10 for "spring extra large and dark."

The Tragedy of Annie Pritchard.

By John LAURENCE. (In Pearson's Weekly.)

Annie Pritchard was an exceedingly good-looking Birmingham girl of twenty-five, and though not exactly engaged, her family were given to understand that she had only to say the word, and she could be married any day she liked to a man named Guy Anderson.

Her lover, however, lived in Liverpool, and had never been seen by any of the Pritchard family, except by Annie herself.

One day Annie suddenly announced to her family that she was going to Liverpool to get married, and she began to pack several trunks. A few days later the railway carriers called and took away a box and sewing-machine, but instead of being addressed to somewhere in Liverpool, the labels had on them "Mrs. Anderson, 33, St. John Street, Northampton."

Loved a Married Man.

"I thought you were going to Liverpool," said her brother, on noticing the address.

"So I am," replied his sister. "Then why send your things to Northampton? I hope you are not going to fool about with Andrew MacRae any more. He's a married man, and you ought to have nothing to do with him."

Annie Pritchard shook her head defiantly. "I'm not going to Northampton," she replied. "I am going to Liverpool. What's more, I'm going where I like in any case; and it's none of your business."

But Annie Pritchard was not telling the truth. Actually she followed her luggage to Northampton, where she posed as Mrs. Anderson.

The veiled accusation thrown at her by her brother was only too true. Next door to the Pritchard family in Birmingham there had lived a man named MacRae. A married man with two children, he had made love to Annie Pritchard, and in spite of the warnings of her family, she had returned his love with unexpected strength. In fact, if the truth must be confessed, Andrew MacRae found Annie's love more than he could cope with, and he moved to Warwick.

But Warwick is not a far cry from Birmingham, and though her family hoped that now MacRae was in another town Annie would soon get over her infatuation for him, she more than once took the train to Warwick.

Lived a Double Life.

But sooner or later clandestine love-making is bound to be paid for in one way or another. Annie Pritchard, in her blind infatuation, had given herself body and soul to Andrew MacRae, and she was to pay as most women have to in the long run. But a short while after her lover had left Birmingham for Warwick, she found herself about to become a mother.

It was for that reason that she left home so hurriedly, and told everyone she was going up to Liverpool to get married. Actually she went to Northampton to join her lover. He had obtained a post there as manager for his brother, a Northampton provision dealer. At the shop he passed as Mr. Andrew MacRae, a respectable married man with two children, whom he had left temporarily in Birmingham, but in another part of the town he was known as Mr. Anderson, whose wife was shortly expecting her first child.

A few days after Annie Pritchard had arrived in Northampton a traveller at the station who was booking a ticket to Liverpool was spoken to by her.

"Excuse me, sir," she said, "but didn't I hear you ask for a ticket to Liverpool?"

"That is so," replied the traveller. "I am going by the next train."

"Would you be so kind as to do me a favour?" said Annie. "Would you post this letter for me in Liverpool? I ought to have written from there yesterday, and I forgot."

The traveller took the letter and agreed to post it as he was requested. But he had a feeling that the woman who had spoken to him had run away from home and did not want to let her parents know, so he made a note of the address on the letter—"Mrs. Pritchard, Highgate Road, Birmingham." The wisdom of the course he took was fully borne out by after events.

The Pritchard family were surprised at the contents of the letter. It announced that the writer had been married in Liverpool to a Mr. Guy Anderson, and that she and her husband were sailing immediately for America.

Annie Pritchard, however, was living all the time in Northampton. During this time her baby was born, and shortly afterwards she gave the landlady notice she was leaving her rooms. She told her exactly the same tale as she had written to her parents.

"We are going to emigrate to America," she said to the landlady. "There are much better chances for my husband out there than here."

One fine day in July she left with her baby and MacRae, and that was the last ever seen of her alive. Her luggage was directed, as she had arranged with her landlady, to the provision shop where Andrew MacRae was manager, though of course the landlady only knew him under the name of Anderson.

What happened to Annie Pritchard and her baby will never exactly be known. For the next few nights, however, her lover slept at the shop, and then he took new lodgings in a fresh part of Northampton. During those nights he was exceedingly busy in the warehouse belonging to the shop.

A Workman's Gruesome Find.

In that warehouse was a large store of bacon which MacRae told several people he had to wash and get ready for sale, and it was that which kept him working so late at night. Certainly he was working late at night, and he made an extensive use of the copper in the warehouse, burning, burning, always burning—and boiling.

Once only for those nights did he leave off burning and boiling in secret, and that once he hired a horse and trap and went for a long and lonely drive along the road to Rugby. That he had driven at a furious pace was evident by the state of the horse on its return to the stables.

A little over a fortnight after Annie Pritchard was supposed for the second time to have sailed for America a labourer, walking along the high road from Rugby to Northampton, was attracted by a large parcel lying in a deep ditch. He began to open it, but found to his horror that it contained human flesh, and he promptly called the police. The parcel contained the headless, armless body of a woman wrapped in sacking, but in such a state that it was impossible to identify it. By one of those amazing oversights of the most careful murderers, however, the sacking itself contained a clue which eventually brought Andrew MacRae to his well-deserved fate.

On the sacking was a label which read, "E. MacRae, Northampton," and it did not take the police long to discover that Edward MacRae was a well-known provision dealer of Northampton, but naturally he was unable to throw any light on how the sacking could have been found where it was.

Body Boiled in a Copper.

The police, however, in the course of their inquiries, found that Andrew MacRae, the provision dealer's brother and manager, had been lodging in Northampton as a Mr. Anderson. Added to that, he had been living with a woman who had not been seen for the past fortnight or so, and suspicion began quickly to form in their minds and he was promptly arrested.

On him were found keys which were known to belong to the dead woman, but on being questioned he asserted that she had gone to America. The difficulty of testing the truth of his statement lay in the fact that the dismembered remains were quite unrecognisable as any definite person, and it could only be by the strongest circumstantial evidence that the body could even be assumed to be that of Annie Pritchard.

That evidence was forthcoming. The accused man's second landlady handed over to the police a number of presents which had been given to her by MacRae. These were all shown to be articles belonging to the dead woman, while a second-hand clothes-dealer in the town, came forward with various articles he had bought from the accused man a few days after Annie Pritchard had disappeared, and which were shown to belong to her.

Then neighbours recalled those busy nights of horror which Andrew MacRae had spent burning and boiling in the copper at the warehouse. The copper, when examined, still contained pieces of bone and hair, which the medical experts declared were human.

But all the time Andrew MacRae strenuously denied that he had murdered the woman he had once loved. He asserted that she had gone to America exactly as she had told her relations she was going to do.

The Sensational Trial.

The very stars in their courses, however, seemed to be fighting for Andrew MacRae at times, for at his first trial, by some extraordinary oversight, one of the jurymen became separated from his companions and went to his own house one luncheon interval. The law is very strict, but just, when trying a man for his life, and it is a rule that once the jury have been sworn in to try a man they must remain together, and have no communication with anyone outside till they have returned their verdict.

His second trial began almost as sensationally as his first, for one of the jurymen was suddenly taken seriously ill, and a fresh jurymen had to be sworn in to take his place. It was on Christmas Eve, finally, when it was Day, that Andrew MacRae was found "guilty."

"You are murderers!" he cried, when the verdict was announced. "And you will have my fate on your consciences for the rest of your lives. Annie Pritchard is alive!"

During the terrible days of waiting for the scaffold to claim him the condemned man never lost an opportunity of asserting his innocence.

But the Home Secretary refused to interfere, and he was right. A cold, callous murderer, Andrew MacRae paid the penalty of his crime, and Annie Pritchard and her baby were avenged.

Young-Adams Co'y.

Popular Presentation of "The Butterfly on the Wheel."

The opening engagement of the Young-Adams Company, so long awaited, began at the Casino Theatre last night, with the presentation of that great Society Drama, "The Butterfly on the Wheel," in which Miss Marjorie Adams starred, supported by Mr. H. Wilmot Young and the full company. It would be detracting from to-night's enjoyment of the play to give the plot and theme in detail. To see it is the only way to get at the insidious manner in which innocent women, though with a tendency to flirt, are traduced and persecuted by false friends, who are also society rivals. Peggy Adamston, "The Butterfly," was ably sustained by Miss Marjorie Adams, who is an emotional actress of no mean ability, her portrayal of a difficult title-role being true to life. Miss Gladys Butler, as Pauline, Mrs. Adamston's French bonne, was particularly good, whilst Jacques, the waiter, acted by Mr. Donald Mack, was a perfect delineation of the French Hotel servant. Collingwood, the man over whom all the trouble rose, was played by Mr. Perry Norman, who omitted no portion of either acting or dialogue, and carried through a very intricate character with much acceptance. Mr. John Gregory, as Lord Ellerdine, was there to the last button; and Miss Vivian Mayo, who took the part of Lady Atwell, was the incarnation of the modern society woman, ready to prey upon her kind in all cases where her own advantage was concerned, without compensation and apparently without contrition. The Hon. George Adamston—Mr. H. Wilmot Young—those Parliamentary duties left him no time to devote to Peggy—his wife, the wronged husband almost too well, giving the lady no chance whatever to explain away the web of circumstantial evidence in which she was involved, but "all's well that ends well" and he eventually made up for his doubt and disbelief. Mr. Young also took the part of Sir Robert Fyfe, K.C., as counsel in the divorce proceedings for the petitioner Adamston vs. Adamston and Collingwood. Mr. George Denton, as President of the Court and Mr. John Simmonds, as attorney for Mr. Adamston, played minor parts in a manner which demonstrated their capability to handle larger roles. Miss Marjorie Young and Mr. George Caruth, had walking on parts, thus completing the cast. Altogether "The Butterfly on the Wheel" is well worth seeing, and patrons to-night are assured of something out of the line of the usual stage plays put on by visiting companies. A novel and thoroughly interesting feature, and one which captured the whole audience, was the introduction of just enough vaudeville between the acts to give a soupçon of real comedy and juggling skill to the theatrical appetite. The hoop performance was a masterly exhibition and has to be seen to be properly appreciated. The Irish and Scotch characterisations were thunderously applauded and judging by last night's reception, the Young-Adams Company, have already climbed into the hearts of St. John's audiences.

Band Concert Successful

The band concert given in the Methodist College Hall last evening by the C.L.B. Band proved a success. The Governor and Miss Harris attended. The concert was probably one of the best ever given by the band and was certainly enjoyed by all present. The programme follows: March—Militaire—by F. Schubert—C.L.B. Band. Song—Selected—Mr. J. O. Williams. Selection—William Tell—by J. Hartmann—C.L.B. Band. Recitation—Selected—Miss Mary Keegan. Selection—Bohemian Girl—by M. W. Balfe—C.L.B. Band. Cornet Solo—Le Reve D'Amour—Corp. H. Noseworthy. Song—The Valley of Laughter—by Sanderson—Miss Mary Ryan. Overture—Rosamunde—by Schubert—C.L.B. Band. Song—"Hungarian Folk Song," accompanied Korbai.—Where the Tisza's Torrents through the Prairies Swell—Mr. F. Emerson. Song—Selected—Mr. C. Trapnell. Selection—A Patriotic Review—by W. Rimmer—C.L.B. Band. C.L.B. Regimental March. God Save the King.

Bonavista Methodists Support Prohibition.

A resolution passed at a packed Sunday evening congregation at Bonavista on Sunday evening, March 28th and forwarded to Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C., Premier of the Colony and the members of the House of Assembly.

Having heard with regret that there is a movement on foot for revising the Prohibition Law, enacted by the plebiscite of Nov. 4, 1915, and recognizing the great benefits of this measure to the Dominion in general and Bonavista in particular, at a large and enthusiastic gathering, the following resolution was carried by a standing vote and ordered to be forwarded to you and the honorable members of your government:

WHEREAS: This community of more than 2100 Methodists, recognizing the great benefits of the Prohibition Act, having heard of the movement on foot to secure a modification of the said Act, so as to permit a more liberal and frequent supply of alcohol than is now permitted, which would practically nullify its beneficent object, desire to place on record our firm conviction that the measure is alright if faithfully administered or carried out, and we strongly oppose any alteration, and most emphatically declare that the remedy for the manufacture and sale of "moonshine" and the abuse of scripts issued illegally is to be found in the legal machinery already in existence. Any modification to permit the use of alcohol as a beverage would have a demoralizing effect on the whole Dominion. We strongly recommend no interference with the Act, but urge enforced vigilance on the part of those whose duty it is to properly administer the law.

Moved by Herbert J. Swyers, Esq., seconded by Henry J. Abbott, Esq., and carried by a standing vote.

This is the verdict of the Methodists, who form more than half of a population of over 4,000. Other papers please copy.

Doesn't hurt a bit and costs only a few cents

Magie! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn. Instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers. Truly! No humbug!

Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.

Thanks to their generosity and through the special grant made by the Government we are able to hand Mr. Bartlett $25 which will enable him to refurbish the new house and set him up once more. ### No Second Trip for Seal.

The captain of the Seal, yesterday, called the crew together and asked them if they would prosecute a second trip if such arrangements with the Government could be made. Five only of the steamer's crew volunteering, it is not likely that she will sail, as from 80 to 100 men, at least, would be required.

The Premier and the High Cost of Living.

Editor Evening Telegram Dear Sir,—In your issue this evening (Monday) referring to the big profits made by the meat dealers of this City who it is reported buy fresh meat at the cold storage for twenty-two cents per pound and retail it to the people for as high as sixty cents per pound, you have brought to light something that is indeed of great importance to the workman. When Hon. Mr. Squires was addressing us in the Majestic Theatre before the election, he spoke out very forcibly about the People being fleeced by profiteers and made a promise, fair and square, that if his Party were elected no stone would be left unturned to set matters right. Since his Government came back I understand that a Food Control Board has been appointed and, as an humble workman, I hereby call upon that Food Control Board to make an investigation into this fresh meat business and let the People know just how much we are getting fleeced. All winter there have been rumours around the City that the People were

Sagona to Dock.

Sable I. Arrived This Morning.

HAILS FOR BUT 225 SEALS. S. S. Sable Island, Capt. Murley—the second sealing steamer to arrive from the Icefields—made port at 3 o'clock this morning. She brought 225 young and old seals. Her luck was not actually as bad as that of the Seal, but in substance it amounts to the same thing—a blank voyage. Jammed in heavy ice for the greater part of the time, she missed the main patch, as all the other ships did. Shrinking bunker coal caused the return to port. The few whitecoats taken last week and since were from a patch of about 15,000, which was first struck by the Thetis. The entire fleet was north of the herd on the 20th, is the opinion of the Sable I.'s crew. Capt. Murley reports the Thetis, Neptune and Eagle working their way home, short of coal, and that they would probably give up the voyage after to-day.
