THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"Yes," she said, with another strong shudder.

"Great heavens! And how were you saved from your awful fate, Jaquetta?"

"God lives!" she said, looking up reverently. "And the same power that once saved Daniel in the lion's den, Jonah from the depths of the sea, saved Jaquetta from her living tomb."

"But how—how—Mr. De Vere did not know?"

"No; but what can it matter to you, lord Earl?"

The old look of cold hatred passed over her face and she turned away with a small, impatient motion.

"Oh, Jaquetta!" he reproachfully cried.

"Well, my lord."

"My lord! This from you? It was Alfred, once, Jaquetta."

"That time has passed, my Lord Earncliffe; and you had better forget it ever existed. It is not fraught with such pleasant reminiscences for either of us."

"Forget it? Never, while life remains! Oh, Jaquetta! you are free now; may I not hope?"

"Lord Earl, you forget yourself!" she imperiously cried. "Hope for nothing from me! Jack De Vere is Jack De Vere still!"

"Thank Heaven for that! Look on this, Jaquetta, and see if you know it yet."

He drew out a locket set with diamonds, and opened it, disclosed a small piece of paper on which a few faint pencil marks still lingered. She took it; and up over her neck, face, and brow flushed a hot, crimson tide.

"My lord! my lord!" she cried, in a choking voice. "I have not deserved this! I was insane when that was written."

"Then, let me hope you are insane still. Oh, Jaquetta! my life! my love! my hope! do not retract what you once wrote here. Tell me you love me still!"

"Lord Earncliffe, do you dare to speak thus to me? Do you forget the secret of that lonely room in old Fontelle?"

"Then, you do not know? Oh, Jaquetta! he is dead!"

"Dead!" she cried with a start, turning first red and then ashen white. "Oh, Alfred! I never heard this."

"He has been dead nearly a year now. You are free—free as air, Jaquetta! My heart, my hand, my fortune—my very life, lies at your feet. Oh, Jaquetta! speak, and tell me I may live!"

She looked at him with a strange glance and her cold look softened a little as she saw his eager, wild, passionate gaze.

"Then you have not forgotten Jaquetta yet, my lord?"

"Forgot you! Oh, Jaquetta! sleeping or waking, night or day, you have never for one instant been forgotten."

"You are blessed with a good memory, Lord Earncliffe; and yet there is one little circumstance you have ceased to remember for a moment. Allow me to remind you; you are a belied Earl, and I am—Lella, the actress!"

That drawing up of the small delicate figure—that proud lift of the head—that clear, bright flash of the dark eyes—that scornful curl of the shut upper lip—what a world of pride they betrayed!

"Neither you nor I care for that one straw—one whit! Wealth and rank are but a name, and mockery when put in competition with our love. You are not Lella, the actress, to me; you are Jaquetta—my Jaquetta—my liege lady—my darling—the one love of my life! Oh, Jaquetta!"

"Softly—softly, my dear lord. What a gale you do set into for a trifle! (And the provoking smile of other days broke over her pretty face.) "Let us talk this small matter over calmly, sensibly, and leave out all transports for the present. There are more heads to this indictment than one. I am Captain Nick Tempest's daughter!"

Disbrowe was provoked by this off-hand way of doing business, and exclaimed, imperiously:

"What the deuce do I care! I don't want to marry Captain Nick Tempest! Oh, Jaquetta!"

"There you are at it again! How often have you said that during the last ten minutes? So you are willing to forget everything but—"

"But that I love you more than life, Jaquetta—Jaquetta! you are torturing me. Speak, and tell me—am I to live or die?"

"She looked in his eyes—in his flushed, eager, impassioned face, so bright and beautiful in its fervent pleading—and she read there the strong, undying love that was to bless her whole life. A soft, tender smile came to her lips, something like a tear to her eye, and, laying her small, white hand in his, she said, brightly:

"Live, my lord! Forever and ever Jaquetta is yours!"

It is impossible to accurately describe how Lord Earncliffe felt at that moment. It was one of those brief, blissful instants of unmitigated sunshine that shine on us so rarely—more's the pity—in this life; and two of the wanderers in this vale of tears were, for the time being, perfectly and completely happy.

But Lord Austrey! What words can paint the astonishment, amazement, not to say horror, of that young Briton at hearing and seeing all this! The whole English language would have been inadequate to the task of expressing his feelings. So, thrusting his hands into his pockets, he began whistling, with the most piercing emphasis, "God Save the King."

Jaquetta looked at him and laughed.

"You think us crazy—do you not, my lord?"

"Well, really," said Lord George politely. "I am not prepared to say exactly that you are; but my private conviction is, that some one of us three is an idiot. Which one it is, I am not at liberty to say."

"Come, George, my dear old fellow," exclaimed Disbrowe, laying his hand on either shoulder, "wish me joy! I am the happiest fellow in the whole world!"

"Oh, are you? Well, of course, you ought to know best; but I'll be hanged if I can make head or tail of this whole matter!"

"All in good time, my boy! Jaquetta, will you not come with us to-night? Augusta, and Orrie, and Mr. De Vere are here."

"I know—I saw them. No, not to-night, Alfred. I have given you my address; come, the whole of you, tomorrow. I am not quite calm enough to see them to-night. Oh, Alfred! if all seems like a dream to me yet!"

"Thank Heaven, it is a reality! But, first, Jaquetta, will you not tell me how you were saved?"

"Simply enough. My father—Captain Nick Tempest—saved my life."

"Ha! How?"

"It appears he was at Green Creek when I was removed; and upon his return was furious to find what Mr. De Vere had done. At first, he was for going to Fontelle, and making a scene with Mr. De Vere; but Grizzle prevailed upon him to take a more prudent course, and substitute cunning for violence. He came to Fontelle that night, saw old Tribulation—poor Aubrey's nurse—and, through her means, obtained the key of the vault, entered, and found me—alive!"

"Heavens! what a situation for you!"

"I had scarcely time to realize my situation; for I had just awakened from my death-like sleep—my trances, or whatever you may call it; and Captain Tempest, who can be cool and self-possessed in a crisis, made no do-about-it, but carried me off, and got me on board the Fly-by-Night, where, by the aid of his surgeon, before morning Jaquetta was herself again!"

"How strange and terrible! I have often heard of such deadly sleep before. Good heavens! if he had not come what a fate might have been yours!"

"We will not think of it. Heaven was merciful. Do you know, that all the time I lay there for dead, I heard and understood everything that passed? I knew you watched by my side all that long, sad night—I knew they were going to bury me; but I could not utter a word, nor make the faintest motion. Life was suspended, seemingly; yet, oh, how vividly it all comes back to me now! I suffered an age of agony in those few hours."

"My poor Jaquetta! my own darling! To think there should have been such a strange destiny keeping us apart in this way! Truly, this world is full of paper walls!"

"We have broken them down at last, Jaquetta and Alfred stand on equal terms now—do they not?" she said, with a smile.

A CITY STREET.

A city street
Where hurrying feet
Move ever up and down;
Where day by day
Men seek the way
To fortune and renown.

And some the bound
For higher ground
And some for bleak despair
And some for fame,
And some for shame,
And some an hour of prayer.

And some are strong
That move along;
And some are pale and weak;
And some are faint,
With care and want,
And some are snug and sleek.

When these are gone
More will come on
To tread the self-same way
And they will be
Like you and me
Who walk the street to-day.

They, too, will strive
To keep alive,
They, too, will rise and fall
And God above
Will shed his love
And mercy on them all.

So view the throng
Which moves along,
To pleasure or to trade;
From those you meet
Upon the street
In time are angels made.

High Tariff

BLAMED FOR UNEMPLOYMENT IN UNITED STATES.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(By Canadian Press)—The tariff continues to be one of the chief issues of the campaign, although it has not become the leading issue, as some leaders believed it would last spring. Just now, the Democratic managers are making much of the charge that the Republican claims as to the usefulness of the tariff are belied by the heavy unemployment in a number of highly protected industries.

The charge of unemployment in some of the highly protected industries cannot be disputed because it is borne out to an extent by the official figures of the New York Department of Labor. These figures show increased unemployment in the textile and silk mills in August as compared with July of this year or with August of last year. In wool manufacturers and cotton goods factories there is an increased showing of unemployment. The same is true of a number of other industries. While it does not necessarily follow that the situation in New York is the same as in the rest of the country, there is no question that unemployment in the United States at this time is extensive.

The low tariff and moderate tariff men say this proves the tariff does not accomplish for labor what the high tariff advocates allege. On the other hand, the protectionists insist that without high tariff the conditions would be much worse.

Undoubtedly the attitude of many of the farmers on tariff has prevented Mr. Davis from making the utmost of the tariff issue. They are committed to the high tariff on agricultural products in connection with the McNary-Haugen bill. This makes it delicate for Davis to spend a lot of time hitting on the tariff.

Sectional Feelings Played Upon by Politicians

WASHINGTON.—(By Can. Press)—One of the developments of the presidential campaign is the almost startling showing of sectional feeling that is being disclosed as the contest becomes intensified.

The feeling of the west that its interests are being overlooked and treated with something like contempt by the east is not only an important factor in this campaign but it is a factor which will be felt in legislation and in politics long after the campaign is over.

Broadly speaking, the agricultural population of the west and south is coming to the conclusion that the leaders who dominate the republican party and, to some extent, the democratic party, are out of touch and out of sympathy with the agricultural industry. This is one of the leading reasons for the strength of Senator La Follette, who is running on the third ticket. President Coolidge has to a large extent escaped the condemnation of the agricultural population. But he is getting more and more under fire. He is being more and more charged with leaning toward the east and away from the west. A recent speech of Senator Brookhart in which he declared the President belonged to the "Wall Street Bloc", has hurt the administration.

How far the sectional feeling of west against east is going to be carried on no one can tell. Much will depend on whether eastern leaders, especially eastern republicans, show a disposition to awaken to western demands and to listen to them. If they do not, there will be increasing feeling and factionalism. Western republicans are sure to split from eastern republicans before long unless the demands for legislation by the western men are met in reasonable measure.

This is one of the reasons why the third party movement is not a jest, but something to be taken seriously. In their bitterness, some western men are even saying the time will come, unless the east wakes up, when the west will secede from the east and set up a separate nation. This is carrying the matter to a point which will not be reached. The movement of 1861 will not again have its counterpart. Still, the mere fact there is such talk in some quarters reveals the depth of the sentiment of the west that the east must treat its problems with sympathy.

It took me a year to get round and it was a wonderful experience, he told me.

Conservatives Have 400 Seats in Parliament.

The Prince of Wales Officially Closed Wembley Exhibition on Saturday.—Train Brings Death to a Hallowe'en Party—Violent Storm in English Channel Does Much Damage.

CONSERVATIVES JUBILANT.

LONDON, Nov. 2. The jubilant Conservatives with 400 seats in Parliament as compared with Labour's 152 and the Liberals 40 have not yet ceased celebrating their victory. In contrast, former Premier Asquith and Lloyd George yesterday conferred together at the former's London home on how best to retrieve the fallen fortunes of the Liberals, while the members of the Labour Government were engaged in the equally painful business of preparing to quit their official residences in Downing Street and the other attractions of office holding. The usual explanation is that many thousands of ordinarily apathetic voters were induced to avert the supposed danger of Socialism. Many people argue that it was the Russian business that caused the Conservative flood tide, but this ignores the patent fact that the Liberals who were perfectly sound in their opposition to Labour's Russian policy suffered a much greater electoral disaster than did Labour. The completed returns show that in round numbers the Conservatives polled eight million votes, Labour five and a half million and the Liberals three million. Although the electoral register was increased by only 775,000 since the last election two million more persons voted than on that occasion. Labor lost seats but polled one million votes more than at the previous election, while the Liberals vote polled was reduced by one million. Given these figures it is claimed that the mere question of luck in the triangular fight had a good deal to do with the results. At the last elections luck favored the Laborites, this time it favored the Conservatives, as the results show. The Conservatives have a seat for every 20,000 votes. Labor one for every 36,000 and the Liberals one for every 76,000 votes.

WEMBLEY CLOSED.

WEMBLEY, Nov. 2. The British Empire Exhibition which opened April 23 was officially closed on Saturday, when the Prince of Wales, just returned from Canada and the United States, addressed a large audience in the Stadium as President of the Exhibition. The Prince declared the full measure of success it had set out to accomplish. It had given a picture of the Dominions to the people at home, he declared, which indicated the resources and boundless potentialities of their territories. It had also created a great demand for empire products as well as giving visiting peoples of the overseas territories a better knowledge of the manufacturing resources of Great Britain and a more sympathetic understanding of the problems of the empire in development and defence. Despite the unkind attitude of the British weather, the Prince concluded, approximately 18,000,000 persons had passed the turnstiles of the exhibition creating a record for Great Britain.

TEN KILLED BY FREIGHT TRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2. Ten passengers were killed and two score injured, three seriously, early to-day, when a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad freight train wrecked a crowded street car crossing the tracks. Most of the victims were neighbors returning from a hallowe'en party and many wore masquerade costumes.

VIOLENT STORM IN ENGLISH CHANNEL.

PARIS, Nov. 1. Several days of unseasonably mild and rainy weather culminated yesterday in a tempest of unusual violence, which did much damage along the Channel and Atlantic coasts. Fishing boats were obliged to remain in port and many coastwise services were suspended.

METRIC SYSTEM FOR ROMANIA.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 1. Beginning January 1, calculations as to the weights measures or values of commodities imported into Rumania, must be given in the metric system according to a Government announcement.

HAS THE GULF STREAM SHIFTED?

LONDON, Nov. 2. Englishmen of a scientific turn of mind are seeking explanation for the progressively worse climate of the last few years, and are wondering if they can blame it on a shift in the gulf stream, following disclosures that the English Channel has fallen steadily in temperature since 1921. Charts made from observations taken at the Plymouth station of the Marine Biological Association, show that the waters of the Channel reached their highest average temperature in 1921, and that the average has since fallen a few degrees each year.

THE DELORME CASE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 1. The movements of Fr. Adelard Delorme since he left the court of King's Bench yesterday afternoon, after being acquitted of the murder of his half-brother Raoul, on which charge he had been a prisoner for nearly 8 years, are shrouded in mystery. Several local reporters attempted to interview him last night, but as far as can be ascertained none of them succeeded in even finding him.

PLAGUE TAKES 17 LIVES.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 2. A pneumonic plague to-day claimed three more victims in Los Angeles raising to seventeen the total of those who have perished since the outbreak of the disease in the Mexican quarter about two weeks ago. Any doubt as to the nature of the malady which carried off Mrs. Luciano Samaraso on Oct. 19th last and then killed one by one practically all who attended her funeral, was dispelled today by Dr. W. H. Kellogg, Director of the State Hygienic Laboratory, on his arrival here to take charge of the situation. There is no doubt that the epidemic is pneumonic plague, he said, but I believe that the chances of bringing it under control are good. Strong police cordons, working in shifts, guard the infected districts day and night, and no one is allowed to enter or leave except physicians and others engaged in the battle against the epidemic.

KING AND QUEEN AS MOVIE FANS.

LONDON, Nov. 1. Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary will pay their first official visit to the movies to-morrow week, when they will witness a performance which depicts the attack of the British bluejackets on the German stronghold at Zeebrugge during the great war.

PARITY RESTORED BETWEEN CANADIAN AND U.S. DOLLARS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1. Railway traffic between Canada and the United States is again moving, with exchange at par. The railway commission announced that from to-day, till November 14, inclusive, there will be no sur-charge on either freight or passenger business.

TWO TO HEAR FROM.

LONDON, Nov. 1. The standing of the parties, with two constituencies still to be heard from, is: Conservatives, 410; Labor, 153; Liberals, 40; other parties, 11; unheard from, 2; total 615.

FIRE DESTROYS STEAMER.

MANAGUS, Nicaragua, Nov. 1. A fire on Saturday destroyed the steamship Jamaica of the Cuyamel Fruit Company, of New Orleans, and for a time threatened to cause an explosion of gasoline and dynamite which would have wrecked the town of El Bluff. Several stevedores were badly burned, one probably fatally. The fire broke out when the vessel of 1,133 tons net was tied up at a wharf at El Cluff, and sparks fell among gasoline drums causing minor explosions.

KLANSMEN MAROONED.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Nov. 2. One hundred members of the Ku Klux Klan were marooned in their meeting place in Henrietta this afternoon when 1,000 anti-Klansmen gathered about the hall and dared them to come out, it was reported here tonight. The Klansmen met to discuss plans for the election on Tuesday, it was stated.

THE CHINESE SITUATION.

PEKING, Nov. 2. President Tsao Kun, who resigned last week, surrendered the seal of office to the Cabinet which assumed the presidential functions. Tsao Kun remains at the palace with a portion of his personal guard. He is being accorded entire freedom of Peking in a message to Parliament he says he had been unable to fulfill the wishes of the people and that consequently it was necessary for him to resign in favor of a more capable person. Tzan Chi Jui, former Premier, has been invited to come to the capital, presumably in connection with accepting the post of president.

GIRL ANARCHIST ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

PARIS, Nov. 2. Germaine Berthon, the girl anarchist, who shot and killed Marinus Plateau, the Royalist leader, early last year, and who was subsequently acquitted after a sensational trial, Saturday attempted suicide in the Church of Notre Dame, in the Belleville quarter of Paris. ### "Human Wreckage"

MUCH TALKED OF FEATURE WILL BE SHOWN TO MAJESTIC PATRONS TO-NIGHT.

"Human Wreckage," said to be the greatest of all screen features, will be shown at the Majestic to-night. "Human Wreckage" is said to be one of the most expensive features ever produced; it certainly ranks with the best ever shown in this city. "Human Wreckage" is Mrs. Wallace Reid's greatest production, whilst James Kirkwood won fame as the brilliant criminal lawyer who contracts the morphine habit. Bessie Love as the young mother who in her helpless addiction to dope and drugs is wondrously pathetic. Knowing all this patrons know what to expect from "Human Wreckage." Dope garbed in the form of the hyena, the most savage of all beasts, wends his way causing untold destruction, havoc and depression to civilization, depicting heart-rending and soul-stirring scenes which will grip you from the first to the very end. Those who saw the censor's exhibit proclaim it marvelous, and will see it again during its booking days at the Majestic. In order to defray the cost of this expensive feature the Management are compelled to charge 30 cts. admission. Patrons are specially requested to come early. Two complete shows nightly.

FOR MONTH ENDING, OCTOBER 31st, 1924.

Visits to Homes	923
Special Visits	126
Attendance at Centre	208
New Admissions	30
No. Attending Dental Clinic	29
Operations Done	3

Child Welfare Work has gone ahead this month as the above figures show. It is fine to see our Welfare figures so high. This is partly due to our West End Centre, which is proving a success.

There is less sickness in town amongst the babies as the Infant Mortality is half that of last month, but many of the babies who have survived after being ill have a long way to go before they are their bonnie little selves once more.

Our Dental Clinic is on a firm basis and now we hope quite an amount of work will be done in the coming months. But there is a great deal of prejudice to overcome, and the outlook of dental education is another obstacle with which to deal. There being no Children's Hospital for Surgical Work, we are very gratified in being able to have minor operations done through our Association.

May we thank Mr. Ross, for milk given; Mrs. Fred Emerson, M<sup>rs</sup>. Grant Paterson, Mrs. Leonard Outerbridge, Mrs. H. D. Reid, Mrs. Alec. Winter, for clothes.

Prospero Returns From Northward

S.S. Prospero, Capt. Field, arrived in port at noon yesterday, from the Cook's Hr. Service route, bringing a large freight and the following passengers:—Messrs. Macpherson, Farthing, Peddie, Miller, Kelloway, Hean, Melandry, Tulk, Sturge, Humphries, Brown, Gent, Ovan Gaulton, Colbourne, Rev. Lockyer, Fowling, Templeman, Parsons, Cook, Colvidge, Parsons, Bailey, Barbour, Stone, Duddy, Spurrill, Earle, Jacobs, Moore, Curtis, Godden, Tucker, Byles, Padock, Marks, Andrews, Gardner, Reid, Mesdames Hann, Mullett, Andrews, Barge, Whitten, Ivany, Churchill, Winsor, Moulton, Parsons, Walsh, Crocker, Cooh, Moore, Penny, Gardner, Fradsham, Parsons, Purchase, Prose, Marks, Williams, Andrews, Anstey, Gardner, Misses Hewitt, Brown, Miller, Fowling, Floughman, Sparks, Chew, Follett, Siddons, Walsh, McCarthy, Emberly, H'cock, Fowling, Murphy, Parsons, Ivany, King, Fradsham, Fitzpatrick, Brooks, Purchase, George, Ashbourne, Pynn, Forward, Patey and 75 in steerage.

Capt. Field reports the fishery is now over and on the whole the voyage has been a fairly successful one. Fish is reported plentiful on the French shore, but the weather has been too bad for the boats to get out. The balance of the crews which operated between St. Julien's and Quirpon were brought up and landed in Conception Bay ports, while some 40 fishermen from the Gros Islands were brought on to this port. At Harbor Deep and Hampden logging operations are going on uninterrupted, although hundreds of men are needed at each place for the winter's work. About two weeks ago the steamer Paliki was at Harbor Deep and took on board 700 cords pit props. The work of loading was carried out in about 20 hours. When the Prospero was at Hampden a large steamer was there loading cords to be shipped to New Orleans. The epidemic of Typhoid Fever is now practically stamped out at this place. Nurse White is still stationed there and has done good work in stamping out the disease.

Beyond Redemption

Harold, aged six, had some trouble with a neighbour's children. "That night when he had gone to bed his mother asked him if he had said his prayers." "And did you pray for the heathens, too?" she asked. "Yes," he answered, hesitatingly, "all but the three next door."

Hall Caine's Great Story at the Nickel

"NAME THE MAN" ONLY SHOWN AT NIGHT PERFORMANCES.

"Name the Man" the great Hall Caine story which opens at the Nickel to-day, will only be shown at the night performances, and it is the intention of the management to give a special program for the matinees.

A genuine all star cast, fine photography, good direction and unusually powerful plot combine to list "Name the Man" among the best of the season's screen attractions.

The story, adapted from "The Master of Marl" is replete with dramatic action. It carries one through the hearts of its people. It deals with both the lowly and the great—and the intermingling of the two. And though the observer is totally unconscious of the photography, it is surpassingly beautiful.

From beginning to end "Name the Man" actually palpitates with vigorous action and conflict of human passions. It carries the spectators away on tidal waves of emotion, there is no glorification of vice, no hint of the climax is attained, and here again the film refuses to follow conventional methods, for it hero and heroine finally reach a haven of rest. It is not until the former has been severely punished for his sins.

Among the many big scenes of the production, the great storm, Bessie's sad home-coming, her trial, with the man who is her child's father occupying the position of judge; and that in which Victor Stowell, aroused by conscience, faces a furious mob.

Advertising makes thoroughfare out of side streets.

Both advertising and love lose their kick when spread out too thin.

Restoring Our Financial Stability

The following comparative statement shows the duties collected at St. John's from July 1st, 1924, to November 1st, 1924, and the amounts received during the corresponding periods in 1922 and 1923:

Table with 3 columns: Year, Revenue, Expenditure. Rows for 1922, 1923, and 1924.

The increase of $312,316.75 over the amount collected last year, and of $167,749.14 in excess of that of 1922, is the most convincing proof to the man on the street that the dark days are over.

This is likewise shown by the statement of the Revenue collected throughout the country for the same period:

The increases over the corresponding periods last year and in 1922 are respectively $537,420.69 and $351,132.86.

In the statement of current revenue and expenditure which appears below is a practical refutation of the charges made against the Government during the recent campaign, that while they were boasting of increased income, nothing has been done to end the waste and extravagance practiced by former administrations.

REVENUE. 1st Quarter 1924-25 $2,056,667.88

EXPENDITURE. 1st Quarter 1924-25 $1,437,487.64

Decrease $619,180.24

This gives a balance in favour of the country of $618,345.69.

GROSS EXPENDITURE. 1923 $2,097,358.12

1924 $1,473,712.28

Credit balance in favour of the Colony on account of Revenue and Expenditure for this period $356,104.46

The decision of the Minister of Finance to acquit the public with the financial position of the country at regular periods is most commendable, and it must be a source of much gratification to him that within such a short time the success of his methods has been so amply demonstrated.

While it is true that reviving trade accounts in a great measure for the increases in revenue, it is very evident that there must have been enormous losses in recent years owing to the failure of the authorities to make collections, or to the evasions of the Revenue Act which were permitted through their carelessness.

Canada's Pride in Their Judiciary

In commenting on the result of the trial of the former Provincial Treasurer of Ontario and of a financier of high social standing in Toronto, the Morning Chronicle characterizes the verdict of the jury and the sentence passed by Chief Justice Meredith as "a vindication of the impartiality of Canadian justice."

The Montreal Star says, "When Peter Smith and Aemilius Jarvis were summoned to stand up by the court, they received the same treatment that would have been accorded far humbler men. This country has no greater glory than the unshakable integrity and courage of its judiciary. We never wonder in the face of a challenging case whether our Canadian judges can be trusted. We know they can."

Reading the above comments one cannot but recall a recent trial in the Republic to the South, the result of which was a travesty of justice, and brought a storm of protest from many of the leading journals throughout the States. The outcry was not due to the sentence passed in that particular case, but because it was another instance, as Truth puts it, of "the arrangement which some describe as psycho-analysis, others, mental science, others, again, the Sermon on the Mount, and others, graft."

It is a proud boast that our sister Dominion makes, and as long as it can be as fully justified by facts as it has been in the case of the Ontario trials, she has little cause to fear the malignant influences ever at work in every community to show that Truth is nothing more than a figure of speech, and that Honesty is a rule of conduct followed only by fools.

Half a Century of Faithful Service

A very appropriate recognition of faithful service took place on Saturday last at the firm of A. J. Harvey and Company, when Mr. Albert Osmond was presented with a substantial cheque by the head of the firm, and with a purse of gold by the employees, on the occasion of his attaining his 50th year.

Sagona Arrives in Port

S.S. Sagona, Capt. Tavernor, arrived in port on Saturday night from the Humber-Battle Hr. Service, and will enter the Dry Dock to undergo a thorough overhauling, which will occupy about two weeks to complete.

The Sagona, on her last trip from Humbermouth to Battle Hr., met with stormy weather, but through careful navigation on the part of the ship's officers, she behaved splendidly and suffered no damages.

Between Bourne Bay and Port Saunders the worst of the gale was felt. The seas swept her decks for several hours and made things for a time very unpleasant for those on board.

On Wednesday last the Sagona reached Red Bay, and it was found impossible to land any mail until the following day, due to the raging seas.

While at the latter port the ship rode out the storm with 90 fathoms of chain on one anchor and 100 on the other.

The following passengers landed here—Miss Hubbell, Miss Sloan, Miss MacLean, M. Spence, Leonard Spence, M. Maddock and J. Maddock.

After the Sagona comes off Dock she will continue the Strait's service until navigation closes.

Educational Heads Meet in Halifax

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE TO CARNEGIE CORPORATION REGARDING PROPOSED APPROPRIATION.

There was formed in Halifax yesterday a central advisory committee composed of heads of the leading educational institutions of the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, for the purpose of advising the Carnegie Corporation as to the proposed appropriation by that organization of a sum of money toward the development of higher education in this part of Canada and Newfoundland.

Dr. Mackenzie, of Dalhousie was elected chairman, and Dr. Trueman, secretary. Two recommendations were made to the Carnegie Corporation as follows:

That the Corporation make a substantial annual grant to Newfoundland to assist in maintaining a Junior college in St. John's.

That the Corporation place itself on record as approving of a grant to Dalhousie University to enable her to meet the annual deficits incurred through the operation of her professional schools.

Various educational questions were discussed and several committees were appointed to report at a meeting to be held in Halifax about the middle of January.

Feildian Ladies' Auxiliary Formed

At a largely attended meeting in Bishop Feild College on Saturday, the Executive of the Feildian Club placed before the lady friends of the College the plans they had in hand to make in the Tannery Grounds up-to-date playing fields for the boys, and it was suggested that a Ladies' Auxiliary should be formed to co-operate with the Club.

The idea was enthusiastically received and the election of officers was proceeded with. It resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. C. E. A. Jeffery. 1st Vice-President—Mrs. R. R. Wood. 2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Coen. Secretary—Mrs. F. Berteau. Treasurer—Mrs. B. Stafford.

These ladies, with a committee of seven, will form the Executive. A plan of work was then drafted and it was decided to hold another meeting on Thursday next.

After the meeting adjourned the class rooms in the College were visited, in order to ascertain the requirements of which the school stood in great need.

The enthusiasm shown by those who were present and the numerous communications from others who were unable to attend indicate that the Association will be a great success.

Meigle Arrives From Labrador

S.S. Meigle, Capt. Burgess, arrived from the Labrador Coastal Service on Saturday at 5.30 p.m. after a lengthy passage of 22 days. The ship made all ports to Hopetown, without any interruption, but the ship's progress was impeded on the run south, owing to stormy weather.

Upwards of 100 passengers boarded the ship on the return run; included in the number were the last of the fishermen between Spear Harbor to Battle Harbor, and landed at their homes in Carbonear, Hr. Grace, Bay Roberts and Cupids.

The light-house men from Pack's Harbor, Cape North, Indian Tackle, and Domino, also arrived, including the Mercant men from the various stations. The coast is now practically deserted and the only banker reported by Capt. Burgess was seen at Battle Harbor, last week, doing very little.

The Meigle brought a small freight and the following passengers for this port: J. Myrick, W. F. Chambers, Dr. W. E. Godfrey, Dr. A. Hodgkins, J. Badcock, M. Kennedy, W. Roberts, C. Penney, Miss M. Penney, Miss C. Domine, J. Balleau, S. Sturge, K. Mullett, Miss M. Duggan, Miss B. Duggan, and three in steerage. The ship sails at 10 a.m. to-morrow for ports as far as Rigoulet.

Patrons who attend the Grand Cosmopolitan Concert to be held this evening in the Aula Maxima will enjoy a song by Miss Barbara Gibbs.—Nov. 3, 11

Strike Along Water Front

MEN DEMAND SHORTER WORKING HOURS.

The working hours along shore from 9 a.m. to six p.m. were to come into effect to-day. On several of the mercantile premises the men turned to work at 7 p.m. but were knocked off by the Union Delegates. At other places the men went to work at 9 a.m. At 11 a.m. the men who were engaged loading fish on board S. M. Strudsholm at Harvey's pier, were knocked off by the Union Delegates because, so it is stated, part of the cargo belonged to firms not in sympathy with the new working hours.

Since then, practically all the Longshoremen along the waterfront have been called out. A meeting of the heads of the different business firms was held at noon, when the situation was briefly discussed. It was the unanimous opinion that the demands of the Union were unreasonable and would make working conditions impossible.

Two Workmen Slightly Injured Through Fall

Whist Capt. Tavernor and four men were walking ashore on a gangway from the Sagona in the Dry Dock basin at 10 o'clock this morning, the structure founded and precipitated the men into the basin some twenty feet below, though fortunately three of the five escaped uninjured. One of the men named Patrick Coleman, a carpenter, injured his hip on the edge of a step in the fall and rolled down to the bottom of the basin into the water. A number of men who were working near the scene of the accident quickly rushed to his aid, and upon getting him safely on terra firma he was removed to the boiler house alongside, where Dr. Fallon who was called attended his injuries and later had him driven to his home. William Wiltshire, a dock hand, suffered cuts and bruises about the legs, and later had his injuries dressed by the doctor in attendance. The accident occurred just after the Sagona had been successfully docked.

Supreme Court.

The Grand Jury assembled at 11 a.m. to consider the following bills of indictment:—Albert Malmford for escaping from the penitentiary; Thomas Hickey for forgery and altering forged documents, and Leonard Gillespie Reid for manslaughter.

Charity Entertainment at Corner Brook

The reception rooms at Glynmill, Corner Brook, were filled to their utmost capacity on Wednesday night when a "Three Arts Show" was held in aid of the funds of the three local churches and "N.O.N.I.A." as a farewell entertainment by the staff of Sir W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth & Co. Ltd. The proceedings commenced with a short, snappy concert by the Minstrel troupe, under the direction of Mr. A. R. Stansfield. Supper followed, during which the various details for loes, Candies, etc., were sold out completely. Mr. Gammell acted as auctioneer when the various handsome donations received by the Committee were disposed of. Dancing was the last item. During an interval, Mr. Alexander, thanking all those responsible for the success of the evening, announced that their effort had realized $2,000.00.

Reginal Denny in "Sporting Youth"

AT THE STAR MOVIE.
Slide curves everywhere!
Each inch of the dangerous open highway sweepstake race stared like death into the face of Jimmy Wood. Hills, valleys, and along an unfenced cliff that bordered a rock-strewn sea was the path which eight giant racers sped over, with Jimmy in the lead! A mere private chauffeur in the eyes of the world, he had escaped but an hour before the starter's pistol sent them flying over the way to fame—or death, all because of his love for a charming girl. His enemies had kidnapped him on the previous evening and held him a prisoner on an island, but love found a way.
In the grandstand stood the girl who was his incentive. She knew that he was not the celebrated "Splinters" Wood, the English racer, but love knows no ranks with the hearts of women—and men, too. Should he win the great international contest he would secure her love for ever, she had determined, despite their difference in social standing.
Reside her stood a sinister figure. He was handsome, wealthy, and one of the "splinters" chauffeur. Was he responsible for Jimmy's abduction? This beautiful girl meant more to Jimmy than any girl in the world. But he was indifferent to his advances. The runner-up to the daring chauffeur was driving for the man she was pursuing. He was a dangerous contender, and was edging up to the lead with one more lap to go.
Suddenly, to the surprise of the spectators, a powerful vehicle was crowded from the park. . . . Over the cliff it went. Then, in a flash, another car was side-stopped and wrecked. With the girl in sight, a third machine overtook, climbed the embankment and was hurled into the grandstand.
Jimmy, along to his wheel, tearing down to the time. To his dismay, he beheld his employer enter the grandstand. He knew the "boss" would never be contented to the racing of the car.
Instantly he sprang up. The car lurched suddenly forward—and the grand climax in the history of people youth and its daredevil exploits was then written.
But see Reginal Denny in his greatest Universal-Jewel, "Sporting Youth" which comes to the Star theatre to see a gripping series of wonderful, fast-acting thrills and absorbing romance.

A Luxury in the Home

It is a real pleasure to wash in Ivory Soap. This fine cleansing, non-toilet soap does all that the most expensive soap can do, yet its costs far less than most toilet soaps. Truly, it has been said that a cake of Ivory is a luxury in the home, for the delightful, natural fragrance of this pleasing soap makes it a real pleasure to use. There is a certain distinctiveness about Ivory Soap that other soaps lack. You will love to wash in Ivory and all the family will like it too. Ask the grocer for Ivory and try a real sensible, and economical toilet soap.—oct13,m,t

Why Wembley Failed

10,000,000 PREVENTED FROM VISITING EXHIBITION THROUGH SUNDAY CLOSING.
"We have to thank the kiljoys of the country for the financial failure of the British Empire Exhibition." So said Rear-Admiral Sir Guy Gatt, M.P., and added: "If they had not opposed Sunday opening of the Exhibition there would be no adverse balance of £1,000,000."
"Lord Stevenson agreed that 10,000,000 people would never see the Exhibition if it were closed on Sundays. The mass of public opinion was overwhelmingly in favour of Sunday opening.
"If the Exhibition is opened next year the lesson should not be lost. Probably, however, the £1,000,000 loss will frighten future guarantors, and we shall be deprived of the nation's educational pleasure-garden at Wembley."

INTER COLLEGIATE FOOTBALL

Collegians Champions For Season 1924

The final football game of the inter collegiate series took place at St. George's Field on Saturday afternoon last, when the Collegians defeated the Pellidians by a score of 2 goals to 1. By the Collegians' victory they were acclaimed champions for the season of 1924, and received the congratulations of their supporters and friends. The afternoon was an ideal one for football, and throughout the game general excitement prevailed. All the scoring was done in the first half. The Pellidians lodged the ball in the desired spot shortly after the commencement of play, and about ten minutes later the Collegians had equalized matters. Play from then on was hard fought and saw many narrow escapes on the opposing goals. Shortly before the half time whistle blew the M. C. lads made a determined attack on the opposing goal and were rewarded in the efforts of Butt who scored the last and deciding goal. The second half was equally as exciting as the first, but no further scoring resulted. The personnel of the championship team is as follows:—Goal, Baggs; backs, Butler, Soper; halves, McLeod, Whalen, McLeod; forwards, Johnson, Butt, Cohen, Puddister, LeGrow.

The Collegians, under Capt. Whalen, went through the season without suffering a single defeat, and his team well deserved the victory and the hearty congratulations showered upon them. The season of 1924 has been a very successful one for the Collegians in the Athletic Field, they having won the hockey, rugby and football.

Nurmi will compete in a special 3,000 metres race and will try to establish a new record for this event.

Nurmi will arrive in this country about the end of November, and will require about one month's time to get in proper condition for the indoor campaign. His itinerary provides for his first competition at the Finnish-American A.S. games at Madison Square Garden on January 6, to be followed by the Municipal A.A. meet on January 15, and 28. He will also compete in several of the other important meets.

Clock Restored After 157 Years

MAKER'S STRUGGLE FOR £20,000 REWARD.

Lt.-Commander Rupert T. Gould, of the Admiralty Hydrographic Department, has succeeded in starting an ancient marine chronometer, nearly 200 years old, which had not been working since 1767—157 years. This machine, massive and intricate, is now at the Admiralty, keeping almost perfect time. Its errors, which there are hopes of reducing, amount to only a few seconds a day. Commander Gould worked for a year, chiefly in the small hours of the morning, in cleaning and repairing the clock. It has more than 500 parts and weighs 103 lb. The brass in the clock is of such fine quality that an ingot of it could be beaten out almost like gold leaf.

Its maker, John Harrison, began life as a carpenter in a Yorkshire village. The clock bears the inscription: "John Harrison. Fecl. Made for His Majesty King George II. By order of a committee held the 20th of June, 1737." The committee was known as the Board of Longitude. Of four marine chronometers made by Harrison and still possessed by Greenwich Observatory this is the second. The maker was striving for the £20,000 prize which Parliament offered, following a petition of sea captains and merchants in 1714, for any method which would determine a ship's longitude within half a degree.

With his fourth chronometer Harrison won this reward, but he received his money only after a personal appeal to George III. The clock now at the Admiralty took two years to construct, and the Board of Longitude gave Harrison £250 towards the task. It is a clock within a clock. There is a little clock which will go for 4 minutes only, and another clock which automatically rewinds the former every 3 1/2 minutes, and has to be wound itself once daily.—Daily Mail.

YOUNG-ADAMS CO. OPEN THIRD WEEK AT CASINO.

Opening on their third week of a most pleasant engagement at the Casino, the Young-Adams Company present to-night "Over the Hill S'Manthy," a beautiful domestic comedy-drama introducing characters such as live next door to you. It's a play of heart interest. The opening scene is on Granny Pelham's little farm where she and her husband work diligently year by year struggling to make a living. Finally the old man dies and not long after his death oil is found on the farm, and relatives come from far and near to make claims on Granny. So as not to spoil the interest in the story we will not tell too much of the story here, but advise all who want to see a real story beautifully interpreted not to miss "Over the Hill S'Manthy" which will be the week-opening attraction. Miss Adams and Mr. Young will be seen to excellent advantage in this play, whilst the remaining roles are particularly suited to each individual player. This play will be reproduced at the matinee on Wednesday. The vaudeville will be all changed, something worth seeing all the time. Everybody is waiting for "East

STEEL INDUSTRY BETWEEN 60%
AND 65%.

Is Showing No Definite Trend.

Pittsburgh—The steel industry has been operating between 60% and 65% for 60 days and is showing no definite trend at present. During this period there has been complaint about how hard it is to get orders, but the mills do get them. As average operating rate since the Armistice, during six years, has been about 66%, the mills are not doing so badly at present. The market has been a trifle dull the past week and is expected to be dull until after election. Most observers think it will brighten up afterwards, though no old-fashioned "buying movement" is expected. Such a performance is not necessary when there is so much productive capacity at command of buyers. According to recent precedent, the market would be dull early in December and then, if 1925 shows promise of good business there would be fair sized buying to replenish stocks after annual inventory. The past two years have seen such a movement inaugurated in December.

Prices of some finished steel products are rather unsteady, but there is no general or quotable decline. The new district steel market, following the abolished "Pittsburgh Plus," is in full operation. It means f. o. b. mill prices for the Steel Corporation and delivered prices for independents, who as a general rule are meeting the new prices everywhere and absorbing part of the freight when necessary. This cuts into profits of both Steel Corporation and independents. Whether prices will average lower in future than if Pittsburgh Plus had not been abolished is a question.

The freight car buying movement of the past few weeks is over, as a movement, but there may be a resumption late in the year. Rail orders on this movement, for 1925 delivery, total about 500,000 tons, making a good showing for this date, fabricated steel business is running seasonally light this month. September was much better than September of last year, making the nine-month period better, but deliveries in the past six months have run well ahead of bookings.

Tales of the Upper Ten

AMUSING STORIES OF SOCIETY
TOLD BY AN ANONYMOUS AUTHOR.

In the days when King Edward was Prince of Wales, society contained a number of practical jokers and wits. Lord Marcus Beresford was one of the greatest of the merry company. An acquaintance came up to him one day and complained indignantly that another man, hearing he had been elected to the Turf Club, had offered him £500 to withdraw his name. "He offered you £500, did he?" said Lord Marcus gravely.

"Yes," said Lord Marcus, "sit tight, sit tight, and I daresay he'll make it a thousand."

Lord Marcus' brother Lord Charles Beresford, was also a great practical joker. One night he and a Lord Aylesford stopped a little urchin and said: "See here, boy: we'll give you this sovereign if you'll knock that bobby's helmet off. Will you?"

The boy agreed, rushed at the constable and knocked off his helmet. He ran away, but was caught and taken to a police station.

The constable made his charge and then Lord Charles came forward to offer an explanation. The inspector interrupted him: "Who are you?" "I'm Lord Charles Beresford," was the reply.

"And who are you?" he asked Lord Charles' friend, "I'm Lord Aylesford."

The inspector turned to the boy. "What's your name?" The boy looked at the two who were in evening dress, grinned, winked, and replied: "Prince of Wales!"

Another story told about Lord Marcus was when a certain relative of a well-known peer was found cheating at cards. When he was accused, he tried to bluff it out by saying: "I don't care; when I see the Prince I shall know how to deal with the matter."

Lord Marcus replied with a smile: "Take my advice, don't deal any more; just shuffie and cut."

Among the many people the anonymous author of "Things I Shouldn't Tell" has known was Prince Herbert Bismarck, the son of the great Bismarck. The author describes the son as "the biggest cad I have ever met." When the ex-Kaiser was received by the Pope, he was received alone.

Herbert tried to get in and, when the door was closed on him, battered at the door, shouting: "Open! Open! I am Count Herbert Bismarck!"

"You mustn't do that," said a courteous official.

"But I am Count Herbert Bismarck!" shouted the Prussian.

The official with a smile replied: "That, of course, explains, but it does not excuse your conduct."

King Edward, when Prince of Wales, happened to meet Lord Charles Beresford, in conversation with a sailor who wished to sell a parrot. The sailor did not recognise the Prince.

"Does you par-r-rot talk?" said the Prince, rolling his "r's" as was his wont.

The man looked at him scornfully. "Talk!" he echoed. "Why, if the bird didn't talk plainer than you, I'd wring his bloomin' neck!"

Finally another story which illustrates the wit of Lord Marcus Beresford. A rich Canadian named Cass came over to England; he was said to be very clever in all financial matters but many society folk were ruined by taking his Stock Exchange tips.

The late Lord Roslyn said to Lord Marcus: "Why, I thought he was so shrewd!"

"Yes," said Lord Marcus, "so did I; and I dare say he was over there (in Canada), but I suppose crossing the C. he's become an ass!"

About Wedgwood Jasper Ware

THE ENDURING BEAUTY OF CLASSIC PIECES.

Jasper ware, originated and laboriously perfected by Josiah Wedgwood about 1775, has become, quite deservedly, the most popular of his works. In spite of some 20 different types of ware that emanated from his pottery at Etruria, faultless and beautiful as they all are, there is still a lingering fondness for his inspired classic pottery for the modern home.

A Great Potter.

Born in 1730, of a family of potters, Wedgwood gave his life's energies to establish in England a standard of pottery that could hold its own against the favoured Continental productions. In spite of a physical disability that followed a serious illness, he retained his ambitions unimpaired and lived to enjoy the fruits of his labours in wealth and world-wide admiration. So jealous was he of the reputation of his wares that one can visualise him on his journey of inspection, ruthlessly smashing pieces that might have passed a less critical eye, saying as he brought down his heavy stick on the offending pieces, "This won't do for Josiah Wedgwood."

The Jasper body ware, or "jasper dip," owes its success not only to its refined classic design—for which Flaxman was so much responsible—but to the distinctive sheen of its delicate colouring. Classic figures, mythological or historical, with ornament inspired by the same feeling is almost invariably left up in pure white on a ground of pure colour. Black,

What of Wembley?

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(By Canadian Press)—The time must come when the curtain is drawn finally on Wembley as it stands to-day. What is to happen next? The question is full of interesting suggestions, for these vast halls and spacious grounds are not like a theatre, from which the players may withdraw without leaving the public more than mildly interested in the problem of what is to happen next. The Times comments on the possibilities of the situation in a special Wembley number.

In large sections of the British Empire Exhibition grounds there is the permanence of a city. It holds buildings that have been built not for a season, but for ages. It has an elaborate transportation system, and gas, water and electricity "laid on." It is not to be supposed that when the last exhibitor has gone with his packing case and the lights are turned out and the gates closed, that this highly equipped town of steel and concrete will be left to rot in idleness.

The question of the evacuation of Wembley is worthy of some consideration before that of what purposes the buildings and grounds might be put when the Exhibition is over. Months of time and labor were expended in transporting the exhibits to their places at Wembley, but the problem of moving out, in this case, is a more complicated one than that of moving in. The task will be one of enormous magnitude, and will occupy three months at the least.

British efficiency is shown in the plans which have been mapped out for the moving. First will go the entrances to the big buildings, or rather, the steps, which were laid over the railway lines which run through the Palaces of Engineering and Industry. Then the big cranes now on show will have their work to do in slinging the heavy engines and other machines onto the lines. English locomotives can run right under their own power, but the South African one will have to be dismantled, because it is built on two wide a gauge for English rails. A great deal of material elsewhere will be moved by motor lorry, and road transport will be able to ply in and out of the buildings as well as the steps are removed and the railed inclines are uncovered. So thoroughly have the plans been worked out that in the storage sheds at Neasden there is a crate or box for every portable exhibit at Wembley.

Then, when the Neasden sheds are empty and the Wembley that Londoners and countless visitors have known for so many months is no more, what next? Will the lake be filled in, and the coal mine filled up? Will the Amusement Park—probably the most modern in existence—be silent? Will the Stadium be thronged only on the day of the Association Football Cup Tie?

But already there is a demand for repetition of the Empire Pageant, and nowhere is there so suitable a place to give it as the Wembley Stadium. There are a great number of uses, too, to which the pavilions might be put.

Buildings like the home of the British Government exhibit and the Palaces of Engineering and Industry are sturdy and strong enough to be used as workshops, and there is power right on the spot. In any case the leasing of them for that or for storage purposes would produce sound revenue, because they are so handy to rail and road transport.

No doubt some of the smaller buildings will be quickly dismantled—that is the natural destiny of the less permanently constructed buildings—but at a time when every industry is house-hunting and when questions of swift and adequate transport are becoming more and more pressing the utility of these structures must impress itself on all who are interested.

It would appear that the grouping of the buildings has made it possible for those of a permanent nature to be transferred into workshops or factories without such activities as would go on inside them interfering with the amenities of the park and pleasure grounds adjoining.

Mr. O'Grady's 2,700 Pounds

HIS SALARY AS TASMANIAN GOVERNOR—THE AXE ON EXPENSES.

An official announcement of the appointment of Mr. James O'Grady as Governor of Tasmania has just been made, writes The Daily Mirror lobby correspondent.

The difficulties which hindered the appointment two or three months ago have now been removed by the Tasmanian Government, who are prepared to make such arrangements as will enable the Governor to live on the comparatively small salary of £2,700. It is understood that Mr. O'Grady will not be expected to occupy Government House, one of the largest and most expensive buildings in the Australian Commonwealth.

Coming events cast their prophetic shadows before.

Minister's Sky Tour of Desert

LORD THOMSON COVERS 2,500 MILES IN "MESOPOTAMIA"

During the eight days he was in Mesopotamia, Transjordan, Palestine Lord Thomson, the British Air Minister, flew over 2,500 miles, an a bad sailor," he said, "but I did not a moment's discomfort."

"I sat in an armchair in a Vickers Vernon machine with a staff of wireless operator and mechanic. We were the two pilots. We were in wireless communication the whole time and knew what was happening everywhere.

"One sat there in the upper 6,000ft. up and--speaking as a pilot who likes comfort--my only regret was leaving the translucent fresh air and coming down into the burning air of the desert plain.

"If people had my experience they would go out as I did, if only to see the Tigris from the air. It was a thrilling experience.

"It should be within the reach of one with means, and such a journey as I took should be susceptible of development, so that it could be within the reach of people of moderate means." Lord Thomson said the most interesting moment of the whole was his visit to Suleimani.

In the old days, he said, this spot was a prosperous town of 20,000 inhabitants, and was on the caravan routes. Owing to the troubles that occurred at the beginning of this year most of the population fled, and in months ago only 700 inhabitants were left. Turbulent tribes in the neighbourhood had made things too hot.

Gratitude to British. "I arrived in the early morning," said Lord Thomson. "Perhaps 100 people were on the aerodrome, and they ran wildly to see us land."

"For three-quarters of an hour we made a circuit of the town, and the procession was so long that at the end we caught up our own tail."

"I met three delegations--one of Arab sheikhs from the country around one of the cities of the town, and one of merchants. The tenor of all the remarks was gratitude to the British whose presence had given them freedom from robbers."

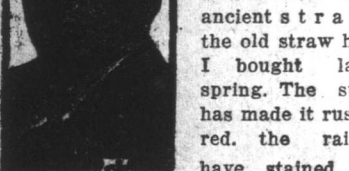

It will be a blow to impressionable young women afflicted with "class mania" to learn from Lord Thomson that the sheikhs of Arabia (or Arabia) are so unromantic as to drive motor cars over the desert.

Bombing Charges. "You have," added Lord Thomson, "seen a great many attacks on the Air Force for bombing towns. It should be borne in mind that the bombing has been an absolute minimum and the casualties have been extraordinarily light."

"A great deal too much of a song has been made about it. There is no desire to bomb or to be repressed. Our only object is to keep law and order and to let the people live."

"The swift, prompt action that has been taken by the Air Force in these districts has saved many lives among the combatants and still more among the civilians, who, but for this action, would have been driven into the desert."

Lord Thomson spoke with admiration of the mastery organization and splendid personnel of the R.A.F. in the Near East, and referred enthusiastically to the future possibilities of air transport there.

WALT MASON

OUT OF SEASON. The autumn days are growing raw, the north wind has a nip and sting, and still I wear my ancient straw hat. I bought last spring. The sun has made it rusty red, the rains have stained it through, but it feels comfy on my head, as no new modern hat could do. But everywhere and all the time men taunt me as I carry on; they say a straw hat is a crime, when mid-September days are gone. At mornings when I leave the flat, my aunts surround me and implore that I will buy a decent hat at some smooth haberdasher's store. And jesters on the public street attack my hat with eager paws, they kick it roundly with their feet, and look around them for applause. There is a stern, unwritten law that holds all mankind in its thrall; no gent shall wear a hat of straw beyond a day in early fall. And I might like my rabbit friends the path of least resistance take, and join the catfist soul who wends to buy a cap or wide-awake. Like Hampden, with a dauntless breast I dare this fool unwritten law; men can't by violence or jest make me forsake my trusty straw. It has been slugged by ribald men, it has been trampled in the foam; and still I pick it up again, and fondly place it on my dome. I do not care an old dead cat what others do, what others did; I am the master of my hat, I am the captain of my lid.

An Aberdonian's View

OF PROHIBITION PROBLEMS IN THE UNITED STATES.

No account, however superficial and fugitive, of a visit to America would be complete without some attempt to mark into the results of the prohibition laws as they have been enforced over there during the past five years. British visitors to the United States constantly assert that prohibition does not prohibit; that liquor is sold openly and otherwise, in enormous quantities; that the law is violated by all classes, without shame; that the "moonshiner" and "bootlegger" flourish exceedingly; and that there is more drunkenness to be seen in the cities than there was before the proclamation of the national dry law. My own opinion on the subject, after a short visit to the United States, is less lurid, writes a contributor to the Aberdeen Journal. It is notorious that prohibition has not expelled alcohol; yet official statistics show a considerable decline in drinking during the past two or three years. It must be added, however, that it is not the principle, but the effect of prohibition that has brought this about—the simple fact that, while the rich man can get and use all the spirits he desires, the working man has largely to abstain, because the "real stuff" is expensive and dangerous to procure, while the "hooch" is easy to secure but more or less inadvisable to drink.

The plain fact is that in the United States, as in every civilized country in the world, millions of citizens desire to drink spirits. They resent a law, which, in their opinion, is a usurpation upon the domain of private conscience. And they have not the slightest intention of acquiescing in the present system, if they can afford to get the drink they want.

Violation Of The Law.

In every large city the law is openly violated. Citizens of the highest consequence, who have never violated any other law, openly and even smilingly admit that they recognize no obligation under this law. Many restaurants in large cities place alcohol upon their tables with the same openness as is to be observed in restaurants at home.

Men and women of the highest position openly use the expression "my bootlegger," and the working-man, while he steers clear, from sad experience, of adulterated drink, is by no means averse from getting all he can of home-brewed beers and an occasional "gram" of "Scots" when he is lucky enough to get the real stuff.

It is quite true that there are many small towns, and many more villages, where it is impossible to obtain alcohol. But in my journeys through several towns north and south of New York city, I was invariably informed that prohibition was not very strictly enforced there, but that if you went to another town (the name of which was obligingly given) you would there find that its full enforcement was effective.

Vast and Scattered Population.

When you have a population of nearly one hundred millions, of whom at least some millions desire to enjoy a form of refreshment which is exhilarating; when land boundary and when there is in addition, thousands, more of miles of maritime access; when the trade is profitable beyond the dreams of avarice; it is not to be expected that any Government, however resolute, could hope to enforce the laws of prohibition resolutely and irrevocably.

Spasmodic efforts are of course made from time to time. New York State has formally withdrawn its own resources from any attempt to enforce the Federal prohibition law, but every now and then raids are made. On my arrival in New York city I found that, that every week certain cabarets like "The Silver Slipper" had been closed for a period of six months for serving liquor, while one or two of the most magnificent hotels had been threatened with the closing of their roof gardens for the same violation of the law. In country districts again, the inland Revenue officers make an occasional seizure of a still of illicitly-made liquor, and the offender is fined and possibly sent to prison. But in such a vast country, with such a widely scattered population, it is to be expected that only the merest fraction of the actual offenders are caught.

Nature Entitled.

Not only does man, in the person of astute bootleggers and millionaire whiskey consumers, put immense difficulties in the way of the prohibition officers intercepting smuggled alcohol, but the very resources of nature are entitled against those who would dry up the gifts of nature: Apple-jack, a potent liquor, stronger than old brandy, can be produced on any farm where apple orchards cover acres of ground, while nearly every farm-house in the country can boast of growing some grape-vines, from which to make wine. The resourcefulness of the bootlegging industry are immense, its ingenuity is exceptional, and its influence and organization nearly as powerful as any of the wealthy Standard Oil companies throughout the United States.

Little is yet known in this country about the subterranean workings of the bootleggers in the United States. One millionaire I tackled on the subject informed me that he got his "Scotch" off the boats before they reached the harbor. A business man of my acquaintance got his by aeroplane from Canada, and a third dealt with a rum skipper who piled back and forth between Long Island and the Bahamas. While staying at Oyster Bay I got exciting details—which I shall not divulge here—as to some merry-making the farmers had had at their dances the previous winter when the local mills were working overtime. More picturesque, however, was the information I received about the tramp ships that regularly ply between Long Island and the Bahamas. Men from these ships come ashore to "stretch their legs" and a more raffianly crew it would be difficult to imagine. The groups include the scourings of the seven seas—deserters from a dozen different navies, beachcombers from Hawaii and men who have left fingerprints in police stations from California to New Jersey.

Rich and the Poor.

Summing up, I should say that nearly every rich man in the United States has a pre-prohibition cellar that he can reinforce at will, employing an absolutely reliable bootlegger. The poor man, on the other hand, has no such cellar, and the kind of bootlegger available for him is less than criminal. Accordingly, no one who has the wit to contrive it and the resources to secure it need fail to obtain reliable alcohol in any great city in the United States to-day. It must not, however, be assumed from this that the Prohibition Act is likely to be repealed over there. Despite the prevalence of the "mighty dollar," the poor working-man is in the majority throughout the United States, and the deterrent expense and difficulty in procuring reliable alcohol is, perhaps, rather than by inclination, changing him into a soberer and more serious member of the community.

Magistrates Court

The postponed case against a city shoemaker, charged with being drunk and disorderly and obstructing the police in a city club room on Thursday night last, came up for hearing in the magistrate's court this morning. After the evidence of the police and other witnesses had been taken, the accused was convicted and fined $50 or in default 30 days imprisonment.

A laborer charged with the larceny of a set of silver brides, the property of Patrick Gladney, was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $50 or return the brides.

Nine cabmen charged with a breach of the Street Traffic Regulations, were ordered to pay costs.

A cabman for driving a horse in a furious manner on the public street, was fined $2.00.

A laborer, arrested on New Gower Street, Saturday night, charged with being drunk and disorderly and assaulting the police, was sent down for 14 days without the option of a fine.

Two boys arrested under warrant charged with the larceny of a crown gold filled ring and one watch from the store of H. B. Lyon, was held over until to-morrow. It is alleged that the charge against one of the boys has been withdrawn. In the meantime the police are completing their investigation.

Slight Fire at Horwood Factory

At 5.10 this morning an alarm of fire called the Western and Central Fire trucks to the Horwood Lumber Company. Upon arrival they found a blaze in the chute that supplies the furnace with chips. The fire had burned its way through the furnace room ceiling and it was only prompt action on the part of the watchman that prevented a big outbreak. A stream of water was used with effect in a few minutes after the firemen's arrival; the all-out sounded at 5.30 a.m.

Stole Motor Car

Saturday night a motor car owned by Mr. Ed. Lawrence, was stolen from in front of the Lawrence Factory, Gower Street. The machine was discovered yesterday morning near Catherine Street, partly wrecked. The front wheel was smashed and the hood was also broken. It will cost about $100 to put the machine in working order again. The culprit who stole the car have not been captured.

Want Reduced Loans

It is learned that the truckmen are desirous of bringing into effect immediately the winter regulations which call for decreased number of packages per load. The regulations call for the cartage of eight barrels of flour during winter. Employers claim that the ten barrel load should prevail until the snow comes.

Shipping.

Schooner Phyllis Westhaver has cleared for Charlottetown from Bonne Bay in ballast.

Schooner Alastair has cleared from Little Bay Islands for Lunenburg taking 3,800 qts codfish and 22 barrels split tarring.

S.S. Silvia arrived at Halifax at 6 a.m.

S.S. Rosalind reached Halifax at 9 a.m. and is due here on Thursday.

The Mystery of Nature's Broadcasting

The realization, since the discovery of wireless telephony, that there are media capable of transmitting vibrations the very existence of which was previously unsuspected, has revolutionized our ideas of natural forces," writes T. A. Coward in the Contemporary Review.

"Any suggestion offered a few years ago that sound and light could be conveyed by something that was neither normal sound nor light vibration, or due to electrical phenomena, as we then understood them, would have been scouted as wild speculation. Now that we know that forces of which we had no conception do exist, forces that we can utilize but cannot actually explain, speculation may be allowable, may even have value."

"Speculation it must be, for so far we have too little evidence to propound theory, yet speculation associated with known facts may direct investigation, and thus help to solve the mystery." "Investigators have ordinary users of wireless telephony complain that there is confusion and jamming caused by a multitude of inexperienced dabblers in the new science. Yet the very popularity of wireless is an advantage, for amongst the irresponsible experimenters are many genuine researchers after knowledge. The great discoveries may come from the masters, but the humble worker may add new light, new uses, and simplification."

"No one now can deny that these forces exist, and that in a very few years we have learnt how to control though not to generate them. The power, the force, the energy is there, whether we utilize it or not. Is it then foolish speculation to suggest that these or similar forces may be perceptible by the sense organs of other animals? The behaviour of animals is ordered and in the main regular; the animal, whether amoeba or man, performs certain actions in a more or less ordered manner, and certain results, usually beneficial to the species, are the natural sequence. The biologist knows how most of these actions appeal to his sense organs; he can foretell probable results; but his philosophy is at fault, or at any rate obscure, when he strives to account for the actual stimuli of each action. For want of a better description he calls the actions either reasonable or instinctive, and spends unnecessary labour upon the decision by which class any action shall be defined. The struggle between the upholders of Instinct or Reason is an ancient one, and is marred by much bad feeling."

"We are still on the threshold of knowledge, and like children allow imagination free play. The child imagines many beautiful and some useful thoughts; the child is a dabbler in philosophy. We with our newly discovered mastery of ether vibrations are children playing with a new toy; we imagine that it will perform wonders, and it does. When we see how we can make the toy obey our will we believe that we understand its secrets and say that it is all natural. We cease to wonder."

"What are we doing? Calling to our aid electricity and radio activity, harnessing and enlaving extraordinary forces, and our school-boys talk glibly in technical terms which neither they nor we can define. What is electrical power, what is radio energy? What, indeed, is this globe we live on and talk about so lightly? What is the sun that supplies energy and permits life, and what is life itself?"

"Every successful experiment, every realization of natural laws and forces leads us nearer to the Truth. Each step, even each speculation, may bring fuller knowledge of the great mystery of Life and help in the solution of the long hidden riddle of the Universe."—Public Opinion.

The Cost of a Presidential Election

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(By Canadian Press)—The cost of a national election in the United States is roughly estimated at $30,000,000. About one-third of the cost is paid by the States out of revenue raised by taxation. The remainder is paid principally by the dominant parties out of funds made up by campaign contributions.

No accurate figures have been compiled upon the cost of holding elections to the States, but $10,000,000 is a conservative estimate. The cost in New York State alone is about $1,750,000. This includes the printing of ballots, the renting of polling places and the payment of judges, but does not include the cost of registering the voters and holding primaries.

The campaign of 1920 was admittedly the most expensive in the history of the country, but the Grand total of expenditures, as reported by the party committees, and given in the following table, amounted to only $10,338,509.92, as follows:—

	Republican	Democratic
National Committees . . . . .	$5,319,729.32	$1,318,274.02
Congressional Committees . . . . .	375,969.05	24,498.05
Senatorial Committees . . . . .	326,980.29	6,675.00
State Committees . . . . .	2,078,060.55	888,323.84
Totals . . . . .	$8,100,739.21	$2,237,770.71

These figures do not include bills paid after the close of the campaign, which were represented by a Republican deficit in 1920 of $1,600,000 and a Democratic deficit of $300,000. Nor do they include the outlays of Senatorial and Congressional candidates for country and local committees, which aggregated a considerable sum. The expenditures in Presidential primary campaigns are likewise excluded from the above table, although they may properly be taken into account as a part of the cost of national elections. The total amount spent in 1920 on behalf of ten Republican aspirants for the Presidential nomination in the pre-convention campaign was $2,859,551, and on behalf of seven Democratic aspirants $120,482.

London Letter

LONDON.—The 736th Lord Mayor of London, counting from Henry FitzAylwin in the year 1189, has just been elected. The election, which takes place in the historic Guildhall, is a species of stately farce, for everyone taking part knows what the result will be, though several "candidates" are supposed to put up for the honor. The platform of the Guildhall on this occasion is strewn with sweet herbs and spices after the pretty medieval custom, and the aldermen, sheriffs and members of the City Companies carry each a bouquet of autumn roses, caryophyllus, and other flowers. When the new Lord Mayor has been invested with his chain of office, a peal of welcome is rung by the bells of the City churches.

The chain of office is part of the city's ancient regalia. Presented by Sir John Allen, a former Lord Mayor, who died in 1544, it consists of 26 links formed of the letter S, with alternate knots, or bows of roses, in gold and enamel. Joined by a Tudor portcullis—the heavy grating once used to strengthen a fortress gateway. From this hangs the "Jewel," made in 1607, representing the City Arms in a wreath of roses, thistles and shamrocks, of brilliants and diamonds.

With the chain of office, the Lord Mayor also receives the City Purse (never used save on this occasion) and the Sceptre, a wonderful object, older than anything among the Crown Jewels of England in the Tower. It is a shaft of crystal engraved with a spiral thread, about a foot and a half in length, and said to date back to Saxon times, which would make it somewhere about 900 years old. Its head is a sort of coronet of gold, set with pearls and a band of sapphires and large uncut rubies. Except at the mayoral election, its only public appearance is at some great public ceremony such as a Coronation, in which the Lord Mayor of the day takes part.

These city treasures are hardly ever seen by the general public, but many visitors from the Dominions have seen them this year while enjoying the hospitality of their guardians.

WORLD'S LEADING PUDDING.

We believe that it was that mysterious Scottish dish, the haggis, that a poet hailed as "champion of the pudding race," but most Britons would confer that title on the noble pudding of rump-steak, kidneys, larks and oysters provided during the colder half of the year at the "Cheshire Cheese." Canadian visitors to London usually take at least one lunch at that hostelry in a Fleet Street court; but those who go home before the beginning of October do not make the acquaintance of the pudding.

The opening day of the pudding season is now marked with some ceremony. Several distinguished guests are invited, of whom two (this year Dean Inge, of St. Paul's Cathedral, and Paul Moncheur, the Belgian Ambassador) help to cut and serve the famous dish. Among those present was a handsome old gentleman of 93, who first visited the House of the Pudding in 1851 (first Exhibition year) and has been a constant customer ever since.

Dr. Johnson and his friends are believed to have frequented the Cheshire Cheese and the great man's favorite seat is pointed out to enquirers, who usually manage to sit in it themselves, if only for a second or two. The Octor's house, 17 Gough Square, in which he lived from 1748 to 1753, is close by, and is open for public inspection.

THE BLACK MUSEUM.

The King and Queen of the Belgians, who spent a few days in London last week, found time for a visit to the so-called Black Museum at Scotland Yard. This museum contains relics of many years of crime, and is maintained for the education of budding detectives. The ordinary public is not admitted, but distinguished visitors from the Dominions and abroad, and persons with a recognized personal interest in criminology are sometimes granted permits by the Criminal Investigation Dept. One section is devoted to burglars' tools, from skeleton keys and "jimmies" to an oxy-acetylene blowpipe, with the help of which $125,000 worth of jewels was carried off from a safe in Piccadilly. Another consists of gamblers' devices, of which the most elaborate is a thermometer with prism ornaments, which once hung in a gambling saloon. Behind it were two peep-holes. The prisms, together with mirrors on the walls, enabled a man in the next room to overlook each hand. He then signalled to the "crook" players with a sort of Morse code by means of a hidden wire.

KING JOHN'S LAST DINNER.

One of the few facts of English history retained after schooldays in the average child's mind is the death of King John "from a surfeit of lampreys"—the lamprey being an eel-like species of fish. The River Sever, in the West of England, has been for many centuries a celebrated source of lampreys; the City of Gloucester used to send the King a 20 pound lamprey for his Christmas dinner and keeps up the custom after 700 years.

A well known sportsman the other day gave a lamprey lunch to a few friends at his club in Pall Mall, but nobody came within measurable distance of King John's fate, or even confessed with Queen Elizabeth that the queer fish "were one of his passions." The general opinion seemed to be that the port wine was all right, but the 13th century delicacy tasted too much like balled chewing gum.

"TREE OF LIFE!"

Keepers of departments at the British Museum have to wrestle from time to time with people who want to sell them rubbish of various kinds. Perhaps the queerest of these alleged treasures was a twig, which the bearer said had been won by a sergeant-major friend of his from a band of wild Arabs who were guarding this relic of the original Tree of Life! He was not at all pleased when the
