WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are e letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, nach troubles and from the blues. It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering wostored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

NOTE AND COMMENT

William T Gregory, of Leamington, advocates through the press the forming of boys' potato clubs in all cities, towns, villages and hamlets throughtout the Dominion. Patriotic citizens could supply seed, and have the land prepared for planting. Prizes could be offered for the greatest yields. In this manner all vacant lots, back yards, untilled gardens, etc., could be utlized to good advantage. In fact many towns have enough vacant lots to feed the people. This rivalry among the boys would also result in the same among the farmers and in this manner the food production of the country could be greatly increased.

Some Ontario municipal councils are passing resolutions calling for the prevention of emigration to the United States of Canadians eligible for military duty. The indignation felt at such contemptible "slacking" is well warranted. Men may think little enough of their duty to the country as to refuse to enlist when they are able, but the man who rushes over the border in fear of possible compulsory service is doubly marked. Lake the rat that scampers out of a ship, he deserts his country in its hour of need—not only of men for military service, but of labor in industries.

When "womanhood franchise" is in force, the man who raises four daughters will have just as many votes in his family as the man who raises four sons. And why not? He spends just as much money raising them, his wife and he have just as much responsibility and work as the other man, his grocery bills mean just as much to the town he lives in as the other man's, he pays just as much taxes as the other man, and his daughters take as high a standing at school and in the community as the other man's boys. So, why not?

The Detroit News remarks that a town in Illinois gave a public funeral for a tramp, stopping all business for half an hour." Would it have given him a square meal, a job and friendship with as much enthusiasm? But it's the way of the world all over again, if it's a tramp or the finest man in town. As long as he's alive he will be the target for half bricks, and as soon as he's dead there's a grand rush on the part of the brick heavers to turn their brigade into a rose garden.

The Ontario Sheep Breeders' Association, realizing that owing to the lack of a central depot where the wool of its members could be properly graded and prepared for the market, it was not getting as higher price as the growers of other provinces, has deciced to establish such a depot at Guelph. It will utilize the entire poultry department of the Winter Fair buildings. B. W. Wade, secretary of the association, stated that the wool would be shipped to Guelph from all parts of the province, be-tween May 15th and June 10th. It will be properly cared for and stored, and after it has all been received, experts will be sent there, under the direction of the Dominion Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture, and they will proceed to grade the wool ready for the market. Expert clerks will also be provided, the wool will be weighed, and the names of the owners placed upon it.

On Marriage

Some marry for the sake of a good companion and never discover their mistake. This is fortunate.

Never marry a man for his reputa-tion. It is liable to be only a reported affair, borrowed from his an-

Many marry to spite someone else, only to learn that they themselves have the worst of the transaction.

Marriage is a lottery full of chances; herein lies its fascination. All like to chance it, because everyone thinks to win a prize. The affectionate people before marriage seldom hold out in the same proportion after the knot is tied. It is better philosophy to commence only as you would live afterwards. From the matrimonial market the saints of both sexes were culled long ago. Do not expect to marry one.

Woman is sometimes the real cause of unhappiness in the married relations of life, but in the majority of instances the case is reversed, and she is really the true character in it.

No man or woman is perfect, and in selecting a life partner compatability of temperament, a loving disposition, and a thorough knowledge of each other's character go a long way towards the promotion of lasting happiness.

Tommy To His Wife

Dear Wife,—When this great war is o'er And I return again to you, I mean to sleep upon the floor As for two years I've had to do.
I'll tell you just how you and I Can practice real economy.

Since I've been fighting Britain's foes
I've never even donned a nighty;
I've always slumbered in my clothes,
I'll do the same when back in Blighty
Por sleeping suits I will not crave,
Then see what money we shall save.

And, lovely, I would have you note That blankets you need never buy; My Whitney is my overcoat,

No matter be it wet or dry,

And pillows, dearest, you may bau,

I always use a petrol can.

And sweetheart, don't go buying crockery,
Dinner or tea sets, jug or plate;
Cash spent on these would be a mockery,
Food served in tins is really great.
You'll realize its merits fully
When dining—it the joint is Bully.

And so you see, dear, this great war, Although it has been one of strife, Has shown what one can ban and bar, And how to lead a simple life.

Are you not keen to try A life of real economy?

A Lambton Boy's Impressions of England.

The following extracts are from a letter written by R. A. Smith, a Lambton boy now in England with the 239th Railway now in England with the 239th Railway Construction Battalion, to a friend here. Purfleet Camp, Jan. 31,1917. We enjoyed the railway trip from Liverpool to Bramshott. The tracks are overhead, one can see the cities, birds-eye views. You never saw so many people in so small an area. From above the residental parts of the cities look like two long brick houses, every block the same. Narrow stone streets, nobody lives on the cross streets, there is no room, the main streets are only two houses apart. There is just enough yard to hang a few clothes in. From Liverpool to Birmingham is one line of cities and factories. We got off and had a lunch in Birmingham or Brume.

Brume.

The country around Bramshott in Hants county, is one never ending park. The weather while we were there was beautiful, mild and sunny. Your father told me England is the most beautiful country in the world in June. It is in January, What must it be in June? Hills and vales clad with one mass of flowering verdure.

There, the reads are not like Canada. what must to be in June? Hills and vales clad with one mass of flowering verdure. There the roads are not like Canada. They are dug down, not graded up. The roadway is stone. You must see the hedges to appreciate them. The beautiful, quaint, old hedges, no modern hedge can compare with their age. Old stone walls, covered with moss from the surface up, the bramble, whin, which even now is blooming, great trees, oak, beech and chestnut, form a roof overhead. Grand, eh? They say "Why don't they cut down the trees and grow grain?" England makes her revenue largely from industrial sources. What pleasure to see a country where greed for more gain has not slaughtered nature, where the love of beauty is greater than the love of gold. Devonshire is more lovely still, they say. Would that I could see Devonshire in June. We had route marches every day around Bramshott and enjoyed them, really we Bramshott and enjoyed them, really we

We have just been out for a route march.
We walked for two hours the fastest I ever walked in my life, for that long the stone roads in England. We left the mud in Canada, but shall be knee deep in it in France before long, I expect. Nearly all soldiers are fatalists:—"You die when your time comes," is the universal belief. It is comforting and makes the soldier more daring. It is not without foundation: It's all in a chance, we hear every day from the front.

Exhausted from Asthma. Many who read these words know the terrible drain upon health and strength, which comes in the train of asthmatic troubles. Many do not realize, however, that there is one true remedy which will surely stop this drain. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's 'Asthma Remedy is a wonderful check to this enervating ailment. It has a countless record of relief to its credit. It is sold almost everywhere. almost everywhere.

Spring Catalogues Here

The post office staff were deluged with The post office staff were deluged with catalogues from the big department stores last week and if every home in the district is not supplied with one it is not the fault of the department store's advertising departments. But as the old saying goes 'iyou can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink,' so while you receive one of these catalogues it is not necessary to send your series of the catalogues it is not necessary to send your series of the send you have the so while you receive one of these catalogues it is not necessary to send your good money out of town and purchase goods that you can buy to just as good advantage from your home merchant. Every dollar sent out of Watford makes the town that much poorer, and helps build the large centres to the detriment of the smaller places. To the public we say "shop at home," and to the merchant, "use printers ink freely."

Prevention Of Coal Shortage

This winter we have had a coal 'famine" and that suffering has accompanied the shortage of this necessity is undeniable. The average citizen has a notoriously short memory, but now is the time to impress upon him that, in many cases, the suffering was due to lack of foreholders demand that the coal dealers do the impossible, namely, that they supply fuel that is unobtainable Whereas, had they purchased their coal in the summer or autumn, there would be ample supplies available

While some large consumers, such as manufacturers, cannot store a six months' supply, most house-holders can, with their present bins or with enlarged bins, store coal to meet their requirements till March

THE IO In recent years, we have had two netery is the one sacred spot in China. To desecrate such a place is the worst of crimes. Some years since there lived in a village on the plain of the Yellow river a man called Tu. His Hittle farm furnished him with a comfortable living, but nothing more. Like all farms in that part of China, these was no fence to separate his fields from those of his neighbors. One of these neighbors was a rascal, who, knowing Mr. Tu to be of mild disposi-tion, resolved to impose upon him by ring a few furrows of Mr. Tu's land and thus incorporating it with his own. This act did not pass unobserved, but Mr. Tu was cautious as well as mild. He knew that litigation came high and was uncertain. "Better," he said to himself, "to endure the wrong than to suffer loss of both land and

The next year the neighbor repeated the experiment and plowed up a few more furrows. Again Mr. Tu consult-ed with himself and determined, as previously, that law was too expensive a luxury for him.

The neighbor, encouraged by this complaisance, continued to add to his own acres at the other's expense. At length he became so bold as to incorporate in this way the family cemetery, where were buried Mr. Tu's an-

Then Mr. Tu saw the chance for which he had been waiting. By plowing up this cemetery the neighbor had committed sacrilege. The only difficulty was that the punishment was so severe that it might not be possible, unless he was careful, to get his neigh-bor punished at all. For the law was that if the magistrate should take notice of the suit he would have to send up a report to his superiors at the capital of the province and request that proper punishment be inflicted upon himself, seeing that so heinous a crime had been committed in the district for which he was responsible.

Accordingly Mr. Tu brought the matter before the magistrate in a way that did not involve that official. He brought accusation against his father, who was dead, for having moved his grave off his son's land to that of the encroaching neighbor instead of abiding in the cemetery where he properly belonged!

The Chinese love humor and greatly admire shrewdness. When, therefore, the magistrate read this amazing document he smiled with genuine appre ciation of Mr. Tu's cleverness, called up the offending neighbor, made him restore all the land he had appropriated and punished him with due severity for his robbery.-Youth's Compan-

HOW TO MAKE ALL BATTERS.

Weather Demands That a Tablespoonful of Shortening Be Added to Give Richness to Your Flapiacks.

To the woman in the home, especially one who does her own work, all batter mixtures seem to be somewhat of bother. She dreads the smoke attendant on frying, the long time required to prepare a plate sufficient for the family appetite, and she is apt to allow the head of the house to seek his cakes elsewhere.

But nothing, if well made, is so wholesome and sustaining as the hot cake on a cold morning. Batters of all kinds are extremely simple if important points in stirring and making them are noted. Contrary to the usual custom, it is better to sift the flour into the liquid than to pour the liquid into the flour. Add the two very slow-ly to avoid lumps. Beat over and over with a large perforated spoon or whip. Allow the mixture to stand long nough so that the flour may swell and the mixture not be unexpectedly too thick. If we notice the deft hot cake expert in various restaurants we will see that he pours the batter and does not spoon it. Yet few women have followed this common sense plan and stick to the old, inefficient method of ladling the batter instead of pouring it.

The important thing about the mix-ture is the griddle. Custom has decreed that it should be soapstone, but there are both aluminum and cast iron and iron griddles which give excellent results. The important thing is to have the griddle the right temperature before the batter is laid on it. The griddle should never be washed.

WAS OF LITTLE USE AT FIRST.

Not Until the Vulcanizing Process Was Invented Did Its Vast Possibilities Become Apparent-How the Amazon Monopoly Was Broken.

The average man believes that rubber is rubber, just as silver is silver and ivory is ivory; but, as a matter of fact, the different kinds of rubber run into the hundreds. If you were to take up one of the commercial dailies which devote their columns to the news of the different industries you would find prices quoted on thirty or forty different sorts of rubber. Some are called after their geographical location, some take their name from the method of preparation, and others have names descriptive of their form.

Originally all rubber came from the valley of the Amazon. When it was first discovered no one knows. At any rate, when the first white men, following along after Columbus, visited South.

America they found the Indians playing with balls made from the exudation of the bark of a certain tree. and these balls differed from any the Europeans had ever seen, for they bounded and rebounded and were full of life. But that was not the only use the Indians put this milk of the tree to. They smeared it on their blankets to make them waterproof.

Still, 200 years and more went by, and, while many wise men believed this elastic, cohesive, impermeable substance ought to be full of usefulness, nobody found any way to use it to any advantage—it was so brittle in cold weather and so disposed to get soft in hot weather. But in the fullness of time a Connecticut Yankee started to puzzle it out. It took him the better part of ten years, but he did it, and in 1839 gave the world his vulcanization. process, which is in use today.

Up to that time rubber was so cheap that ships from South America some-times used it as ballast, taking their chances of selling it for what they could get in some American port With the discovery of the vulcanizing process rubber took on a new hue and a new value, and the tropics were searched for it everywhere. It was found in the vines of Africa, and gutta. percha, a sort of first cousin to rubber. was found in Borneo, and some years ago a large volume of rubber was found in the guayule shrubs of Mex-

As rubber grew in value the chemists fell to work and devised ways of recovering it from old shoes and hose and other articles into which it en-tered, and thus "reclaimed rubber" soon came to equal the new rubber in volume, and all these varieties found ome legitimate use. Gutta percha makes unapproachable insulation for ocean cables. Balata, which comes from the Guianas, is famous for belt-ing, and even "reclaimed rubber," taken from junk heaps, serves perfectly well for flooring and mats and other articles where resiliency is not needed.

For many years the best rubber was that which came from the banks of the Amazon. The people of that country enjoyed a practice? monopoly and determined to keep it. Not a rubber seed would they let get out of the country, under heavy penalties. But from time immemorial the fear of punishment has given way before the lure of shining gold, and in 1876, by means of generous presents here and there, a venturesome Englishman sailed out of the Amazon with 70,000 rubber seeds, and that was the start of the great rubber plantations of Ceylon and the Malay, peninsula.

The beginning was slow. It was twenty-nine years after these seeds left the Amazon before the first plantation rubber was ready for the market, and then the total was only 145 tons. That was in 1905. But since then the production of plantation rubber has gr enormously, until now it is about 100,-000 tons.

Various rubbers can be used for various purposes. For some purposes a lifeless rubber will answer well enough, while for other purposes the only rubber that will adequately serve is the one that has life and resilency and toughness. There are numberless rubber articles of commerce where resiliency and wear combined are necessary and where cheaper grades or too large a proportion of "reclaimed rubber" is the poorest sort of economy.

A Vegetable Garden for Every Home

N this year of supreme effort Britain and her armies must have ample supplies of food, and Canada is the great source upon which they rely. Everyone with a few square feet of ground can contribute to victory by growing vegetables.

Four Patriotic Reasons for Growing Vegetables

r. It saves money that you would otherwise spend for

2. It helps to lower the "High cost of living."

3. It helps to enlarge the urgently needed surplus of produce for export.

Growing your own vegetables saves labor of others whose effort is needed for other vital war work.

The Department of Agriculture will help you The Ontario Department of Agriculture appeals to Horticultural Societies to devote at least one evening meeting to the subject of vegetable growing; manufacturers, labor unions, lodges, school boards, etc., are invited to actively encourage home gardening. Let the slogan for 1917 be, "A vegetable garden for every home."

Organizations are requested to arrange for instructive talks by practical gardeners on the subject of vegetable growing. In cases where it is impossible to secure suitable local speakers, the Department of Agriculture will, on request, send a

The demand for speakers will be great. The number of available experts being limited, the Department urgently requests that arrangements for meetings be made at once; if local speakers cannot be secured, send applications promptly.

The Department suggests the formation of local organizations to stimulate the work by offering prizes for best vegetable gardens. It is prepared to assist in any possible way any organization that may be conducting a campaign for vegetable production on vacant lots. It will do so by sending speakers, or by supplying expert advice in the field.

To any one interested, the Department of Agriculture will send literature giving instructions about implements necessary and methods of preparing the ground and cultivating the crop. A plan of a vegetable garden indicating suitable crops to grow, best varieties and their arrangement in the garden, will be sent free of charge to any address. charge to any address.

A Kiss In a Coach

In the Days Before There Were Railways

By F. A. MITCHEL

I have always had a fancy for looking back into the past for items concerning those from whom I have descended. The doings of these persons who lived and moved and worked and loved and quarreled, just as others of my family are doing today, have always been of interest to me. I have before me a portrait of one of my grandfathers painted when he was the age that I am now, and one would suppose that he and I were twin brothers instead of being two generations apart. He was young in the last century, when the railroad was coming into vogue as a mode of travel and shortly before the use of electricity in telegraphing. Among family docu-ments, of which I have collected a great number, there is one written by this gentleman which I prize more than any of the others. I give it just as he wrote it except for a little editing where he referred to himself, for an autobiographer is always at a dis-advantage in this respect. I need to say that the writer at the time of the happenings narrated was twenty-three years old and considered handsome. His narrative reads:

I started to cross the Allegheny mountains on a business trip to Cincinnati, then the principal city in the west, and expected to be gone several weeks, having planned to spend a week in Cincinnati and a week returning. We left at 6 o'clock in the morning from the Antlers' tavern, there being eight insides and four outsides on the coach.

There was some shifting of passengers during the day, and at evening the positions of those inside was as follows-I give them minutely, for they are pertinent to an understanding of my narrative: I sat on the front seat, riding backward. There was one other person on the seat with me, a mid-dle aged lady. She sat on my left. On the middle seat, facing me, but on the other side of the coach, was an elderly gentleman, eminently respectable looking. The other two places on the middle seat were occupied by a young woman, very precise looking, whom he called Amelia, and his daughter, a girl of about eighteen. On the back seat were a man and two women. I do not describe them, for they have no part in what I am going to

The first night in a coach is very uncomfortable; it is only when one gets somewhat accustomed to the jolting and has met with sufficient loss of sleep to render him hungry for slumber that he can lose himself sitting straight up and continually bumped. But I on this first night ascending the mountains, having been up late eral evenings preceding my departure. slept fairly well. The horses were obliged to proceed at a walk.

In the middle of the night I was awakened by a pair of arms thrown around me and a pair of lips pressed against mine. My faculties not taking in the situation at once, it did not immediately occur to me to detain who-ever kissed me, and by the time I proceeded to do so it was too late. arms about me were unlocked and the lips removed from mine.

Not only was there no light in the coach, but the night was very dark. I could not see my hand before my eyes All I knew of the episode was by the sense of touch. There was no doubt in my mind that I had been kissed by a woman, but the principal evidence of this was that the lips that were pressed upon mine were soft and there was no beard. Had the matter occurred when my faculties were normally alive doubtless I should have lain awake the rest of the night deliberating as to who had favored me. As it was, my deliberations, assisted by the monotonous breathing, not to mention snoring, of the passengers put me to sleep.

In the morning we stopped at a tav-ern, and after cold water thrown over my face and a good breakfast of fried chicken, various kinds of game and buckwheat cakes, for which I expend-ed a Spanish silver half dollar, on returning to the coach my adventure of the night came back to me, exciting not only curiosity, but other emotions. I had scarcely seated myself when i made a careful survey of those persons some one of whom might have given me the kiss.

There were three women sitting sufficiently near me to have committed the act. There was the middle aged lady beside me, whose name I do not know; there were Amelia and the young girl, her niece, whom they called Agnes. I did not doubt that one of the three was the perpetrator. I scrutinized the face of each, but could see no trace of guilt. The lady beside me and Amelia met my gaze without a quiver, but Agnes, who sat opposite me, lowered

I made up my mind that Agnes was the culprit, partly from this bit of evidence and partly because I preferred to believe that it was her red lips that had been pressed upon mine. We had all become well acquainted, and the woman beside me was very cordial in her manner toward me, while Amelia was rather reserved. As to Agnes, she acted as any young girl would have acted toward a young man under similar circumstances. She certainly appeared to be the personification of innocence. But still waters run deep, and I am free to admit that I was influenced by this adage. The journey was especially interesting to me, because I had a problem to solve. I reckoned that the guilty one would betray herself before we arrived at the Queen City of the West. But the only one of the three who could have kissed me who showed a special predisposition for me was Agnes, and she gave no sign of guilt. At all events, it seemed to me that I had made a very favorable impression upon

On arrival at Pittsburgh those of us who were going further west took a steamboat to descend the Ohio river. Among those who were aboard were the elderly gentleman, whose name by this time I had learned to be Shotwell: his sister and his daughter. In the coach, crowded together as we were, there was no opportunity for a tete-atete between me and Agnes, but on the steamboat was plenty. We sat together on the guards ouside the ladies' cabin, and at times on deck. The Ohio was called by the early French settlers La Belle Riviere, and justly so. At the time of this journey, the autumn, her waters were clear, and the foliage on the multitude of hills on her banks was of many colors. No affair of the heart could have taken place under more propitious circumstances.

One evening, when the air was out of the south, Agnes and I went on to the hurricane deck, which is the highest deck of all. No one was there but ourselves. We stood looking out on a moonlit scene. The sounds were the throbbing of the engine below and the striking of the paddle wheels at the ides of the boat upon the water.

Now, I had not thus far regarded my affair with Agnes Shotwell as any more serious than those I had had with other girls. I had by this time made up mind that she had given me a kiss in the dark and that her innocence was assumed. Acting upon this theory, I suddenly clasped her in my arms and rained kisses upon her cheeks and lips. A man may sometimes kiss a girl without having declared himself and not appear disrespectful. I, having assumed that Agnes had overstepped the boundary of feminine modesty, gave her too many kisses.

As soon as she could release herself she turned from me without a word, went to the steps leading below and disappeared. There was that in her manner to tell me it would be useless to follow her; that she was incensed beyond measure and if I obtained for-giveness I must wait and strive for it. have feared that she would make it unpleasant for me with the others of her party, but my limited knowledge of her made me fear that she would.

I confess I was very much disgruntled. To have made such a mistake troubled me very much, for I was at an age when a man is especially sensitive to the good opinion or condemnation of women. I brooded over the matter during the day and lay awake thinking of it at night.

I did not see her again till the afternoon of the next day, when I approached her while she was with her father and aunt. She received me neither kindly nor unkindly, there being nothing in her manner to indicate to the others that she was offended with me. But when I again met her alone she passed me without recognition.

I was now badly cut up. I knew from her manner that she was not acting a part, and it was plain to me that the kiss given me in the coach had not been imparted by her. I was in a di-I must either acknowledge myself a culprit or excuse myself by telling her of the kiss in the coach, a story so improbable that it was not likely to be believed.

Very soon after my offense we arrived at the landing at Cincinnati. That Mr. Shotwell did not know of anything amiss between his daughter and me was made plain by his giving me an invitation to call at his house. I looked at Agnes to note if she acquiesced, but saw no sign that I would or would not be welcome. We parted on leaving the boat, the Shotwell party driving to their home in the city, I to my botel.

After much brooding over the matter I concluded to make the call. I had in me the consciousness of not being quite so bad as I appeared and I must bide my time for an opportunity to explain. Upon entering the Shotwell residence received the surprise of my life. Agnes came into the drawing room alone and with a very different look on her face from any I had seen there since my transgression. It was very cordial I was of course relieved, but puzzled. I did not believe for a moment that Agnes had pretended to be offended with me, and yet as a sensitive girl how could she suddenly return to her former treatment of me without even an apology? I started to make one, but she checked me and went on talking about something else. By this time I was madly in love, and love overcame curiosity. Be she good, bad or indifferent, Agnes possessed me. Instead of staying a week in Cincinnati, I remained there a month. When I left I was engaged to Agnes. After our engagement I asked her why she had forgiven me without my having asked to be forgiven. She only said, "Let that pass." But a mo-ment later she added, "Forgive me for my part in that matter, will you?"

I forgave her and felt very complacent at my magnanimity. I left her to be gone till the following spring, then returned for our wedding.

Nov. 15, 1855 .- My wife's Aunt Amelia died a week ago. This morning Agnes came to me and told me that the change toward me without explanation or apology for my transgression was due to her aunt's having confessed to her that she had kissed me in the coach.

Good Cows Plus Fifty Per Cent

The man familiar with cows may make a fairly close estimate of what anyone in a given herd will give, possibly per day, per month or per year. Does it follow she is the "best" cow? It depends somewhat on what the owner is after; he may look for a large flow of milk, he may require plenty of cream, or, wisely, he may expect a substantial profit above the cost of feed. So your cows, as a herd, may 'average' 6,000 pounds of milk and 200 pounds of fat, but is each one earning a good profit? Cow testing, checking up each individual, will answer this and many other questions. It will also help, as it has helped many dairymen, to add at least fifty per cent. to their income from the same number of cows, because they keep those that are known to be efficient. Your average may be 7,000 pounds, but in three years perhaps you can make it over 10,000 pounds, but it won't be unless each one is up to a good standard. Write the Dairy Commis-Ottawa, for milk record forms. profits, however. Your letter does not need a postage stamp.

Because of the activities of fake "magazine agents," the postal authorities are warning the public to beware of this type of swindle. Bogus subscription agents were operating in Western Canada for some time, purporting to be representatives of the Canadian Subscription Company. A Special Short Course In Farm Drainage

The practice of farm underdrainage has grown to such importance that it is now almost impossible to obtain the services of men having sufficient knowledge of drainage methods that they are capable of taking charge of the installation of a drainage system, either by hand or by machine.

The County Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the Drainage Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, will hold a One Week Short Course in farm drainage, beginning Monday, March 26th, 1917, in the Agricultural Office, Petrolia.

OUTLINE OF WORK

Instruction will be givin in homemade and standard types of surveying levels. Their care, construction, adjustment and use will be taken up in detail. Taking levels, map reading and map making will be followed by easy steps so as to be within the grasp of a beginner.

Lectures will cover the principals of drainage and various soil types

will be studied in so far as they influence the removal of water by means of underdrains. Depths and grades of drains, distance between drains and capacity of title will be dealt with. The study of the Ontario Drainage Laws will also be taken up.

This Course is specially designed for farmers and farmers' sons and will be limited to a class of twentyfive men. This is an opportunity to receive real practical knowledge that you may be in a position to know if your tile are being placed in the ground at a grade for successful working; that you may be in a position to check up after a drainage machine or others who are doing the work.

This course will be in charge of J. R. Spry, Chief of the Drainage Department of Ontario Agriculture College, Guelph, and W. P. Macdonald, District Representive. Send in your application for attendance at Course to the Agricultural Office, Petrolia. Admission to course free.

Lambton Fruit Growers

The Annual Meeting of the Lambton County Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association is to be held in the City Hall Sarnia, on Wednesday, March 21st, 1917, beginning at 1.30 p. m. There should be an effort on the part of every fruit and vegetable grower in the County to attend this meeting. A special officer of the Dominion Fruit Branch will address this meeting on the Grading and Production of Fruit for Market. Lambton County produces fruit second to none in the Province and every effort should be put forth to increase the production at this time.

The Late Benjamin Evans.

(From the Yale Expositor)

The death of Benjamin Evans, a pioneer of Brockway township, occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs Walter Knapp, northeast of Yale, on Wednesday, February 28, 1917. Benjamin Evans was born in Warwick, Lambton county, Ont., July 31st, 1836. In 1861 he was married to Evalina O'Dell and came to St. Clair Co. settling on a farm 1 mile north and 3½ miles west of Yale, then Brockway Centre.

Ten children came to bless and make happy the home life, living:—Cornelius, Sarah, Mrs. Waltar Knapp, Yale; Morris, state of Washington; Elizabeth, Mrs. Charles Dudley, Black Duck, Minn.; Susan, New York city; Frank, St. Paul, Minn.; Evaline, Mrs. Van-Dorn, New York city; Carrie, Mrs. Walter Williams, Sandusky; May, New York city; Isla, Mrs. Charles Clark, Springfield, Ohio.

Twenty-two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Evans moved to Yale and became indentified with the public life, spirit and interests of the town beloved and respected citizens.

The wife and mother passed away March 2nd 1915, and soon after the home was broken up and Mr. Evans was taken to live with his daughter, Mrs. Knapp, on the farm about three miles northeast of Yale, where he passed his last days.

The funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at one o'clock from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Knapp.

NERVOUS CHILDREN

The Trouble is Often Really St. Vitus Dance—Do not Neglect It.

Many a child has been called awkward, has been punished in school for not keeping still or for dropping things when the trouble was really St. Vitus Dance. the trouble was really St. Vitus Dance, This disease may appear at any age, but in most common between the ages of six and fourteen years. It is caused by thin blood which fails to carry sufficient nours rishment to the nerves, and the child becomes restless and twitching of the nuscles and jerking of the limbs and body follow. In severe cases the child is unable to hold any thing or feed itself. St. Vitus Dance is cured by building up the blood. The most successful treatment is to remove the child from all mental exe blood. The most successful treatment is to remove the child from all mental excitement, stop school work and give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills renew the blood supply, strengthen the nerves, and restore the child to perfect health. Here is proof of their power to cure. Mrs. S. Shaape, Oakville, Ont., says:—"When my daughter was nine years old she was attacked with St. Vitus Dance. She was sent to a sanatorium where she remained for nine weeks, without any benefit. Indeed when we brought her home she was as helpless as a baby. I I got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and continued giving her half a pill after each meal for several mouths, when she had fully recovered and has never had a each meal for several months, when she had fully recovered and has never had a sympton of the trouble since."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pilis through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
