

GERMAN LEFT WING DRIVEN BACK--VAN KLUK'S FLANK EXPOSED

not received assurance of the reduction of the forts at Maubeuge not already destroyed.

"The German press asserts the town has been seized and the municipal government interned.

THOUSAND PRISONERS TAKEN.

"On our centre, between Rheims and Argonne, we have captured the Village of Souin and taken about a thousand prisoners. In the western portion of Argonne our progress has been confirmed, but in Woivre there is nothing to report."

An earlier official notice says: "The situation remains unchanged. The German counter attacks yesterday afternoon and evening were repulsed with losses to the enemy."

GERMANS LOST GROUND GAINED.

The official statement issued tonight says that in violent fighting north of Soissons, the Germans gained ground, which afterwards was recaptured by the allies. The statement follows:

"On our left wing, north of the River Aisne, below Soissons, our troops were furiously counter-attacked by superior forces and yielded some ground, which, however, they regained almost immediately."

"On the other hand, we have continued our progress on the right bank of the River Oise."

"Likewise to the north of Rheims we have repulsed all the attacks of the enemy, although they were very vigorously conducted."

"On the centre, to the east of Rheims, we have made new progress thru our attacks."

"In the Argonne the situation remains unchanged."

"In the Woivre district the last rains have soaked the ground to such an extent that all army movements have become very difficult."

"Gen. L. E. de Maud'huy, 80th Infantry Brigade of the Sixth Army Corps, has received on the battlefield the Cross of Commander of the Legion of Honor."

ALLIES TAKE MANY PRISONERS.

An official communication issued Saturday night says that in a serious encounter near Craonne the allies have captured numbers of prisoners and a standard.

The Germans are reported to have gained no ground, notwithstanding their violent counter-attacks.

The situation on the whole is described as unchanged. The statement was as follows:

"On our left wing we have captured a flag south of Noyon."

"Following a rather serious engagement on the plateau of Craonne, we have made numbers of prisoners belonging to the 12th and 15th corps and the Guard Corps. The Germans, notwithstanding attacks, which were of extreme violence, were not able to gain any ground around Rheims, which they have been bombarding all day."

"The situation on the whole is unchanged."

"In the centre we have made progress on the western side of the Argonne. There is nothing new on the right wing."

"The general situation remains favorable."

FRENCH PRINCE WOUNDED.

Among the wounded is posted the name of Prince Paul Murat, son of Prince Joachim Murat, who is serving with the French army as a captain of Dragons. Three other sons of Prince Joachim—Charles, Alexander and Joachim—also are in the army. Two sons of Marshall MacMahon, one-time president of France, also are with the colors with the rank of colonel and lieutenant-colonel.

AUSTRIANS WATCHING ITALY.

ROME, Sept. 20.—Advices from the Austro-Italian frontier report that 300,000 Austrian troops are watching the Italian border. Trieste has been left with a garrison of only 20,000.

Reports say the factories of Austria in which explosives are manufactured are being worked to their capacity day and night.

According to the correspondent at Trieste, Austria, of the Mesagero, the municipal authorities of Trieste, the great bulk of whose population is Italian, have refused to permit a special church service imploring success for Austrian arms, on the ground that the war is contrary to the sentiment of the people of the city.

HUGE FORTIFICATIONS BUILT.

ANTWERP, Sept. 20.—In addition to the semi-circular line of defences to the north of Brussels and Louvain, the German forces have constructed a huge line of fortifications, strengthened by even greater breastworks from Namur thru a line passing across Mons to a point near Valenciennes. Like their northern defensive works these ramparts are remarkably stout and efficiently guard the line of communication thru Belgium, as well as leave a road 50 kilometres wide, whereby the northern German armies would be enabled to regain the fatherland.

It is reported that the Germans are rushing big siege guns forward toward Antwerp from Namur.

Your correspondent has received information from two independent sources respecting the prisoners at Maubeuge. In that city 30,000 French prisoners are guarded by 200 Germans. These captives are territorial army troops. Seven English prisoners are also among the captives there. They are guarded effectually by 30 Germans.

The Germans fired heavy projectiles into Maubeuge at the rate of 70 a minute.

ENGLAND EXPECTS LONG CAMPAIGN.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—England is making more than ever active preparations for a long campaign. The war department is building huts for the new forces now in the training camps.

GERMAN ATTACKS EASILY REPULSED.

The official press bureau announces: "There is no change in the situation. The weather is very bad. Counter-attacks delivered yesterday afternoon and during the night were easily repulsed with loss to the enemy."

FIGHTING WAIST DEEP IN WATER.

Reports from the front, says the Exchange Telegraph's Paris correspondent, show that the British and French troops are fighting waist deep in water, the rains having flooded their trenches.

EXPOSED TO FLANK ATTACK.

The Exchange Telegraph's Paris correspondent, in a despatch sent at 7.40 o'clock tonight, says:

"The steady advance by the British and French on the left is highly important, as the German General Von Kluk's flank is now exposed."

SNEAK THIEVES RAID RAINSFORD RD. HOUSE

Ransacked R. Phillip's Home—Reported to Be Part of Auto Gang.

A gang of sneak thieves entered and ransacked the premises of John R. Phillip, 28 Rainsford road, on Saturday afternoon and secured a small sum of money and jewelry. Mr. and Mrs. Phillip were out when the robbery occurred.

During the morning and early afternoon four or five well-dressed men were seen going from door to door begging. When they received no answer to their call at No. 38 they went next door, and after satisfying themselves that the coast was clear they forced a cellar window in safety although the house they got away in the middle of the afternoon and three men were working upon a garage directly across the street, giving them a full view of the whole affair.

A couple of small boys told of seeing the strangers around the house, but they thought that the men were friends intending to make a call. From their appearance the neighbors believe that they are working in Parkdale with an automobile.

BATTLE STILL UNDECIDED THO ALLES ARE GAINING BRILLIANT CHARGES MADE

Germans Have Retaken Heights of Brimont Near Rheims, But Defences of La Pompelle Have Fallen Before French—Allies' Left Wing Has Gained—German Frontal Attacks Repulsed.

Canadian Press Despatch. LONDON, Sept. 20.—One of the fiercest battles of all times, which has been raging across Northern France for a week past, remains undecided. Two great armies, which have been fighting for a month with few, if any, intermissions, have dug themselves into entrenchments on rivers and mountain ranges on a front reaching from the Oise to the Meuse, and thence southward along the Franco-German frontier.

Artillery duels, such as never have been seen before, are being carried on with the hope of compelling the evacuation of the strongly held positions, with occasional successes to the opposing sides, while the infantry, in the face of a galling fire, have charged right up to the guns, only to make their opponents give way slightly, or to be repulsed with great losses.

The fighting has been fiercest on the left, which lies on the right bank of the River Oise in the vicinity of Rheims, the famous cathedral of which has been set afire by German shells, and between that town and the Argonne ridge it has been give and take all the time.

Frontal Attacks Repulsed. The French official report, however, again claims slight progress on the French left, and that the allies have again repulsed strong frontal attacks between Craonne and Rheims.

Around Rheims itself matters have been about equalized, as the Germans have recaptured the heights of Brimont, while the French have taken the defences of La Pompelle. The French also have scored a success between Rheims and the Argonne, where they have captured numerous prisoners.

In addition the French report progress on the eastern slopes of the Argonne, where the crown prince's army is opposed to them, while the Germans have retired beyond the frontier in Lorraine, evacuating Avricourt.

Losses Enormous. In many cases there are separate attacks and counter attacks by the armies lying in the trenches waiting for their artillery to compel the other side to slaken its fire. The losses in these attacks must be enormous, for being made the targets of the heavy guns posted on the hills above them.

The British apparently have learned something from the Japanese attacks on Port Arthur. They make a rush forward and when the fire becomes too heavy for them to make a further advance they again dig trenches for yet, but sooner or later they become other opportunity offers for them to gain a few more yards.

The Germans have most of their artillery at work, and the French are bringing up more and bigger guns. This kind of fighting, with both sides in strong positions, may go for days at a time.

Recalls Battle of Shaho. The battle resembles in many particulars that of the Shaho, in 1904, when the Japanese and Russians, with much more time to do it, established positions which each thought to be impregnable. Shells and infantry at-

Reports differ as to the progress of the great battle in northern France between the allied British and French armies and the Germans. Some insist that there is extremely heavy fighting, while others tell of the trenches, many of them in flooded condition, and that the Germans are yielding some ground to the allies. At some places at least fierce engagements have been fought, with the British in one direction, and then in the other. The allies have won a position here, and the Germans have gained one there. But all agree that there is much fighting yet to be done before any material advantage can be claimed by either side.

There has been a review off the Island of Halkir by the sultan of the Turkish fleet, including the former German cruisers Breslau and Goeben. All eyes were turned to the German cruiser Pegasus, while the latter was overhauling her machinery in Zanzibar harbor, killing twenty-five men and wounding more than three times that number, and the German cruiser Emden has sunk six British merchant steamers in the Bay of Bengal.

An official statement from Petrograd says that the Russians are bombing the strong Austrian fortress of Przemysl. It also reports the repulse of the Austrians with heavy losses near Baranow and Ranichow in Galicia.

Magee states he does not for a moment consider that while he was in duress and under protest. As to the warrant, Magee says efforts will be made to have the same reviewed, but this cannot be legally done as that of civil nature is now on active service, and Magee also claims that while he was at the barracks a file of soldiers called at his office and took away papers belonging to the firm, including the subscription list, which he says cannot be replaced, and that all papers were seized and officers went the rounds of news vendors and took up the papers remaining unsold.

EDITOR SEEKS TO IMPRISON MAJOR

Knox Magee Alleges Arrest for Criticizing Militia Department Unwarranted.

CAN'T SERVE WARRANT

Major Lawless Has Left for Valcartier and Cannot Be Reached.

Canadian Press Despatch. WINNIPEG, Sept. 20.—A warrant was sworn out at 7 o'clock last night for the arrest of Major W. Lawless, district staff adjutant of military district No. 10, and placed in the hands of Chief Elliott of the provincial police by Knox Magee, the editor of a Winnipeg weekly.

Major Lawless, however, had left for Valcartier, and the warrant could not be served. False imprisonment is charged by Magee against Major Steele at Valcartier, in the absence of Col. Stoneham of the 24th Fort Osborne Barracks, where he was interrogated as to an article he had published, commenting on conditions at Valcartier, and on Col. Hughes' address according to the general law in question, belonging to the military authorities, and it is made a mistake which he says cannot be replaced, and that all papers were seized and officers went the rounds of news vendors and took up the papers remaining unsold.

CHINA SWARMING WITH JAPANESE

Captain Maxsted of British Army Considers German Position Untenable.

SILK TRADE IS DOOMED

Industry Built Up by Teuton Skill Will Be Wrested Away.

Germany's position in the far east is in a precarious state, and the silk trade which that country has built up will inevitably fall into British, and Chinese hands, according to Captain Hugh Maxsted of British officers, who is returning to England after a prolonged stay in the east. While proceeding to San Francisco on board the India Company steamer Mainai of New Zealand, he saw two German cruisers, Nuremberg and Leipzig, which by clever manoeuvring that the captain saw through and gain the port of San Diego. The captain has some anxious moments, as besides a number of British officers he had a German consul on board. Captain Carson finally made San Diego, said Capt. Maxsted, by putting out all light.

Captain Maxsted has been in China for over two years, and during his travels in the Chinese Empire saw a great deal of the revolution. He found that the Chinese were unwilling to interfere in anything possible to their safety and comfort. He paid three visits to the German consuls, and the German province. The German consuls, he stated, were very friendly, and every German in the east had orders to go to Tsingtau, the east capital of the country, as soon as anything untoward broke out.

Envy to blockade, said Capt. Maxsted, "to blockade the German port, regardless of the strength of their fortifications as Japan is within twenty-four hours of Tsingtau, and the northern part of China is swarming with Japanese. The Germans themselves are not prepared to fight, and they are not prepared to fight."

Playing the Game of War

Much has been said of the brutality of the German forces in Belgium, a country which should not have been involved in war at all, and which merited nothing but the most considerate treatment from the Germans when they did break their treaty and violate Belgian territory.

The wanton destruction of property, both public and private, has been a feature of the German policy, and the only explanation is that it has been the intention of the German Government to drive away the Belgian people or exterminate them, so as to leave Belgium, now that it has been annexed, a German province, ready for settlement by Prussians.

The ethics of the case are exactly those of a highwayman, who demands your property, and if you refuse, punishes you for your non-compliance, by taking your life. There is no moral right whatever in the German methods. In fact German war philosophers, if we may so describe them, repudiate all ideas of honor and good faith as absurd.

Their idea of war is to conquer, regardless of the merits of the case. The British idea of war is to resist oppression, to maintain freedom, and to spread the reign of law and order. It is founded on truth and justice.

A story has been circulated in the British press recently which is sufficiently in contrast with German conceptions of conduct under similar circumstances, to be made familiar. We quote from The London Chronicle:

It is a passage occurring in Sir William Fraser's "Words on Wellington," and is a message which strikes you as being curiously up to date for its five-score years. "Before the Battle of Orthez, the bridge over the Gave de Pau had been passed by the French army. The Duke of Wellington sent a note to Marshal Soult saying that a battle would, of course, take place on the following day, but that, as it was desirable in the interests of the inhabitants of Orthez not to destroy the bridge, would obtain from blowing it up no soldier of the British army should cross it. Soult trusted him, and the bridge is today intact."

Wellington was known to be truthful and honorable. Soult was big enough to recognize the character of his antagonist. It is on a basis of this kind that the two nations, once enemies, now allies, have developed what must be regarded as a higher type of civilization than that of Germany. If the best survives, and if the laws of the universe tend to preserve the best, there should be no doubt of the issue of the present conflict.

Will Italy Intervene?

Italy has never been at ease as a member of the triple alliance. To begin with, her adhesion in 1882 was an act impelled by political considerations, largely concerned with the unsatisfactory character of the relations with France. Italy had long contemplated the extension of her influence in North Africa, and that ambition brought her into conflict with French designs in the same region. The Italian Government was also anxious for protection in the Mediterranean, and had insisted on this being accorded by Germany and Austria in return for Italy's support of Austrian expansion in the Balkans. This, however, was refused, and Bismarck in the end induced Kalnoy, then the Austrian foreign minister, to consent to a clause by which reciprocal territorial integrity was guaranteed on condition that Italy would withdraw her demand for protection in the Mediterranean. In this form the treaty was signed and the triple alliance constituted.

Crispien, the famous Italian statesman, and then the most influential of Italian public men, was an ardent admirer of Bismarck and entirely in accord with the latter's policy of keeping France isolated and weak. That policy also contemplated an understanding with Britain, which, at that time and for years later, had many points of difference with France. This found expression in the secret treaty made in 1888 between Britain and Italy providing for mutual protection in the Mediterranean. This arrangement had the unqualified approval of Bismarck, because he recognized in it a further means of reducing the strength of France in that sea. Thus all this period of negotiation British policy leaned to the side of the triple alliance, the attitude of France towards Egypt and the North African situation being regarded as prejudicial to Britain's interests.

But the whole position changed with the gradual clearing of the Anglo-French atmosphere, which found its first expression in the convention of 1894, allowing, among other things, Britain to have a free hand in Egypt and France in Morocco. This entirely transformed the Mediterranean question and brought Italy again into line with her natural allies. For Italy, apart from international exigencies, had many reasons, sentimental and political, to remain in close friendship with the United Kingdom, the sincere supporter of her struggle for independence and reunion. This is the key to the attitude of Italy in the present war, for, although the triple alliance was renewed in December last for a further period of six years from May 20 of this year, the Italian Government officially explained that it was made plain Italy's adhesion could only be relied upon in the event of her partners keeping her fully apprised of all diplomatic negotiations which might result in the terms of the alliance becoming operative.

One of the grounds Italy has advanced for her maintenance of neutrality is that the Italian Government was not informed of the Austro-Hungarian note to Serbia previous to its despatch. But she had other equally valid reasons for that decision. The treaty also provides that it shall only become operative if the territorial integrity of any of the contracting nations be aggressively attacked. Italy rightly holds that Germany and Austria-Hungary are the aggressors in this war, and therefore that she is not bound to come to their assistance. But there is also a further proviso in the treaty that it is not to be invoked in an aggressive war against England, and here again Italy finds justification for the course she has pursued. Events, however, may compel Italy to abandon her neutrality and take up arms with Britain and her allies. Italy wants to round off her continental territory by regaining the Italian parts of Austria on the Adriatic and to extend her sphere of influence in that quarter. Russia is reported to have warned the Italian Government that unless active assistance in the war is given Italy's claims will not be considered, and the mobilization said to be contemplated on the 28th of the month may indicate her decision to cast her lot with the allies.

Advance of Democracy

This war is going to strengthen the democratic movement in Britain on the side where it has hitherto lagged—that of the breaking down of the class distinctions which have been so marked a feature of her social life. Lord Kitchener's call to arms of the manhood of the nation has been answered from every rank of society. The aristocrat, members of the learned professions, even the church, tradesman and artisan, squire and peasant, employer and employed, are drilling shoulder to shoulder and with their training are also realizing in the best of all schools their equal and common humanity. For however they differed in appearance and garb at the moment of enlistment, the uniform is a great leveller. Even more of the spirit of democracy will come when they find brother each other in the field and find by experience the comradeship of arms.

Britain will not be the same after this war. Neither will the empire. The war has hastened the change that was already in progress. It will bring the dominions of the great Indian dependency appreciably nearer realization of that idea of close independent co-partnership and co-operation which has been the goal of hope. It will demonstrate the strength of union and deepen the sense and sentiment of brotherhood. All this tends to the triumph of free democracy, to the welding not only of the people of Britain but of the peoples of the empire. Sharers in the battle for free institutions, they will be better equipped for the friendly rivalries of peace.

WHICH WAY?

REMEMBER THE CHILDREN.

Editor World: The efforts put forth by the many organizations for the comfort of those going to the war and all who are depending upon them, has warmed the hearts of the citizens of the whole Dominion, and we thank God for the kindly spirit shown and the valuable gifts bestowed. And yet without interfering in what is being done, we would earnestly solicit help for the children of the unemployed, whose names are not on the patriotic fund, and who will be in Toronto during the coming winter. All who are interested in the poor will find me out when I say that the hardest thing to provide is clothing for the little ones, for the reason that the young members of families are allowed to wear out their garments, and few are given away compared with what we get of men's and women's apparel. It would be a wonderful help to the many workers about the city if small bands of ladies and young people's societies would meet and make things necessary to protect these little tots from the extreme cold. The clothes that are mostly required are dresses and underclothing fit for those from babyhood to the age of twelve. I am sure any worker would be glad to give information on the subject if asked, and without much cost and a small percentage of time many mothers' hearts would be cheered and perhaps the lives of children saved. David's words are still true: "As his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff; they shall share alike." H. C. Dixon, Trinity Rectory, Toronto.

BANKING REFORMS.

From The Winnipeg Grain Growers' Guide, Sept. 18: The service rendered to the public generally and to the agricultural community in particular by the chartered banks in Western Canada is one of vital importance to every farmer. Many farmers in good standing know to their cost that the banks have not generally given the service which it has been expected they would render, while for those farmers whose security consists of little beyond their character the present banking system is of very little use. Two years ago the Bank Act came before parliament for the regular revision which is made every ten years. Representatives of the farmers from both Eastern and Western Canada were called before the banking committee to recommend improvement. Almost without exception the suggestions offered by the representatives of the farmers were rejected and no attempt whatever was made to ensure better service to the public. Up to the present time the business of banking in Canada has been enshrouded in mystery and banking authorities have discouraged any effort to acquaint the general public with a knowledge of the banking business. The banking system in Canada is a part of our national fabric and for the protection and safety of the public it should be understood as clearly as any other public business. The present tendency to discuss banks and their methods is a very hopeful sign. W. F. Maclean, M.P., is one of the few members of the house of commons who have prepared a definite scheme for banking reform, and in this issue we publish an article approved by himself which outlines his plan. Mr. Maclean would have some of the present power withdrawn from the banks and placed in the hands of the government and would also provide a larger issue of national currency to supply the needs of the country. When the fact is considered, as Mr. Maclean explains, that $133,000,000 of money which the Canadian people have deposited in Canadian banks is now locked up in Wall Street, New York, it indicates that there is something radically wrong with our banking system. Another large sum is tied up by the Canadian stock exchange operations. If all this money could be utilized for legitimate business in Canada it would go a long way towards easing the present financial stringency. The banking business of Canada is today practically a monopoly and the banks enjoy very valuable privileges extended to them by parliament. Naturally such a radical proposition as that set forth by Mr. Maclean will find little favor in banking circles, where it is considered that the general public should not meddle in such highly specialized matters. There is, however, a widespread opinion that some drastic reforms in our banking system must be effected, and the more general the discussion becomes upon the subject the better for the public.

STRATEGY

By William Henry Taylor, author of "Canadian Seasons"

Both you and I have met the gent At the office, shop or store, Devores Farmer with his roar, On boat or car, the street or bar, He oft explains the law Of military strategy, With automatic jaw.

He speaks the language of the war With ease and reads ardent The serried ranks of fighting men, His Crocus of Maxims and thunder, His Grenada of Maxim, Hotitzler, And Krupp's with muzzles grim, In ghastly chorus smask the foe, When made to bark by him.

He paints the Kaiser as a fool, And Nicholas no better, As well as French and Joffre, with Von Kluk and Donnerwetter; He said he wired to Kitchener, And told him how to plan A scientific game of chess, And never lose a man.

In Russian, Czech, and Polish, he Is rather off his base, The place called Przemysl beats him bad, But others he can chide; Tough Ruzkivinski, Tschizewski, With Schwarzenbrod he chide, And snarls Toufeldammer down, Beside the Alsne or Meuse.

He says that Britain needs his aid As strategist, and he Would screw the morale of the troops Up to the highest key; He fed them with made of dope Which would their courage swell, And make them charge the Devil's And capture them in hell.

This jawsmith went a week ago To visit Farmer Brown, And in the yard he laid the lines Of Europe's battles down; With stick and voice he hammered hard To show to Brown how he Would soon surround the Limburgers, By brilliant strategy.

A bold bull calf was frisking near, Who thought he was defied, He feinted, then he fled, And then he tried A flanking movement tried; He butted at his base so hard His trousers split in half, He ran and yelled for Brown to hold That fractious calf.

Old Collie was a dog of vim, And peeled his nearest leg As he was hurding o'er the fence, And then he did best, The tender hissed him from the yard, The turkey gobbler, too, Joined with the rooster when he crowed His cock-a-doodle-do.

MEICALF DE FOUR WINNERS

Auspicious Opening of O.J.C. Autumn Races at Woodbine Park—Today's Card.

The directors of the Ontario Jockey Club were well pleased with the result of the opening Saturday at Woodbine. The attendance exceeded expectations.

Four of the successful runners were second choices—Zindel, Weldship, Rubicon II, and Astrologer.

In the Woodbine Autumn Steeplechase, at two miles, Weldship, who made all of his own pace, staggered home a head in front of Exton.

The apprentice Metcalf landed four of his mounts in the last race, the only favorite to run outside the money.

Rockville broke down hopelessly in the Tercentenary Handicap. The Seagram sprinter won this race last year, and incidentally it was his first appearance since that time.

Another good card of seven races is down for decision today, the features being the Royalster Steeplechase and the Dominion Handicap.

ST. LAWRENCE MARKET. Again the market was filled to overflowing, a number of wagons having to line up on West Market street. It is not that the garage was removed?

Caullage, the predominating vegetable on Saturday, and they have previously been so scarce and of such poor quality that everyone seemed eager to have some, especially as they were of such good quality and sold at 10c to 20c per head.

WHEAT GOT ABOVE EXPORT LEVELS

High Price at Winnipeg Not Met by Overseas Buyers at Montreal.

Canadian Press Despatch. CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Broadening European demand carried wheat prices up Saturday with a rush.

The extreme advance was 2 3/8c, but not all of the gain was held and the market closed unsettled 1 3/4c to 2c above last night.

Corn bulged 1 1/4c to 1 3/8c net, and oats 7/8c to 1c. In provisions the outcome was unchanged to 2c higher.

Foreigners taking wheat and flour faster than supplies could be readily obtained from farmers and mills was the way the trade situation was described by one usually well advanced authority.

The radical bulls, however, were surprised by the drop in the December price of Liverpool over night. It was explained that stocks there were falling off and that calls from other trans-Atlantic countries had widened to a notable extent.

Offerings of wheat here were very limited until the market has reached the level for the year. Reaction followed, but soon the upward sweep was on again.

Afterward there was considerable week-end realizing which would tend to enlarge receipts from the spring crop belt.

Diminished arrivals and liberal lake shipments helped to make corn prices steady. Besides export sales in the market, Sweden and Holland were reported to be bidding for shipments from the United States.

Seaboard demand for oats continued strong. Offers by cable to Baltimore were said to be the highest of the year. Buying of lard on the part of houses with European connections was a feature in provisions. Meat sales were slow.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE. Manitoba wheat—Old, No. 1 northern, $1.12 1/2; track, bay ports, old, No. 2 northern, $1.10 1/2; track, bay ports, old, No. 1 northern, $1.10 1/2; track, bay ports.
