We Have the Best of The Overcoat Argument

IT isn't because we've had rare luck in buying "jobs"—it isn't because of the misfortune of the wholesalers, or the scarcity of money. The main reason is because we insist upon having our overcoats made up of the best materials—and by thorough tailors. We're willing to pay for good work and we get it. We will not except a garment that isn't up to the standard. Our $7.50 Overcoats are not exempt from these rigid requirements. Our $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00 patterns are not to be equalled at the prices—in this city or elsewhere. It is not stretching the truth to say that this store is one of the biggest outlets for overcoats in the whole country. Our stock at this time is something to enthuse over. It is barren of anything you should shun. You will admire the lowest priced garments, and you'll declare we have the best of the argument from all standpoints. You make a quick choice, and a pleasing choice, here.

SUCCESS IN SPHERE OF NOBLE EFFORT BY MISSION OF MERCY Large Addition to St. Joseph's Hospital Formally Opened—The Good Work Accomplished—A Delightful Program.

"And the King shall answer and say unto them, verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."—Holy Writ.

CHATHAM has every reason to be proud of her many fine public institutions, but none are more deserving of her greatest commendation than is the St. Joseph's Hospital. This institution is doing a grand work, of which, perhaps, many citizens are entirely ignorant, but which is none the less noble and praiseworthy. None are in a better position to judge of the excellence of the services rendered by the capable staff of nurses and matrons than the patients who come under their charge. Then it is, when the body is racked with pain and the fevered brow gives evidence of intense suffering, that the patient is able to appreciate the value of the attentive services, the cooling draughts, and the cheering words of encouragement, which are so liberally bestowed upon them by their sympathetic attendants. A nurse's life is one of the noblest

Keough, T. K. Holmes, Backus, J. H. Duncan and Geo. Musson. Those who took part in the program were: Mrs. John Cooper, solos (a) The Night has a Thousand Eyes, (b) The Night, (c) One More Clasp; Miss Florence G. Stephenson, vocal solos; Miss Stephenson, instrumental solo; Miss Laura and Master Harold McDonald, instrumental duet. Dr. J. L. Bray gave an exceedingly interesting address on the hospital and the modern conveniences of today as compared with the mode of practicing and operating in the early Chatham days. Dr. Bray was chosen as one of Chatham's oldest and most successful practitioners to prepare this address, which was listened to with interest by every one present. Rev. Fr. James was also called upon for an address. He took occasion to congratulate the sisters and nurses of the hospital, thanking them for their good will and kind co-operation with the doctors of the city in relieving the suffering. The First Presbyterian quartette, composed of Mrs. Cooper, Miss Ada Ross and Messrs. W. H. and R. L. Brackin, also gave three selections—The Rosary, Violets, and Good-Night. After the program refreshments were served by the nurses of the hospital. The new wing which has been added to the hospital has been gotten up professions provided for woman—attending to the sick and administering words of hope and encouragement to the dying. Their lives, too, are not all happiness and sunshine. They are human, and have all the little trials and worries of life, and yet they have to lay aside all of their individual cares and put on a cheerful countenance when they enter a room to attend to the patient. The responsibility which also rests upon them is very great and the long night vigils which they are often forced to go through are at times very trying. The doctors also rest their cases largely upon the nurse and in the majority of the cases the nursing is half of the cure. Too much cannot be said of the Mother Superior, who has charge of the hospital, and Miss Berthout, the head nurse. The hospital could not be left in better hands and this fact is being realized more and more every day. Their efficiency in this particular is plainly shown by the sanitary and orderly way in which the hospital is kept, also in the many critical cases that have been successfully treated by them. They are also provided with a very able staff of assistants, who help very materially in making the institution what it is today.

The hospital itself, which was established in 1891, is a very modern and up-to-date building and is supplied with all of the latest improvements and conveniences. Last May it was decided to build an extension on the west wing. The opening of this new addition was held yesterday and was marked by services both afternoon and evening.

In the afternoon Father James conducted a short service and blessed the building. He was assisted in the ceremony by Fathers Ladueur, Bodkin, of Walkerville; Langlois, of Tilbury; and Herbert, of the local parish. In the evening a voluntary concert was given and an excellent program rendered. There were a large number present, including Rev. Fr. James and Doctors J. L. Bray, Rutherford and R. V. Bray, G. T. on the latest and most modern style. Its dimensions are 44x22 feet and two stories high. It is provided with six private rooms and two wards for children and poor patients.

In this wing also has been built one of the finest, if not the finest, operating rooms to be found in Canada. It measures 15x17 feet and is 14 feet high, and is fitted up with what is known as a mosaic floor, made out of square tiles, also white enameled walls and a wainscoting made of glazed tiling three feet high, extending all around the room. The skylight measures 8x8 feet, as also does both windows, so that the room is provided with plenty of light. Off this, are also the sterilizing rooms, etc.

The hospital is fitted up with 30 private rooms and is in charge of six sisters and 10 nurses. Each ward is at present filled with patients, the most of these fever cases. There are three very serious cases in charge, but, fortunately, all are convalescing—which fact, no doubt, is largely due to the kind attention they receive from the sisters and nurses.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 2.

FORBEARANCE NOT FEAR.

The Chicago News says that while Americans do not desire war between Great Britain and the United States, many of them would like to see the President frown with just sufficient severity on John Bull to scare him out of South Africa. We do not wonder that anarchy flourishes in a country where the newspapers are so silly or so ignorant. Fortunately for the United States, however, there are a few people there who understand its true relationship to Great Britain, and who know that a rupture with her would bring upon the nation calamities from which it would take it many years to recover. Britain has been singularly patient with the Americans, because she looks upon them as belonging to her own family, but they must not mistake forbearance for fear, and they will have to learn some time or other that they and not Great Britain are the party which would lose most were the peace broken between them.

TORTURE.

"It is clear that the punishment of death is not sufficient for criminals of Czolgosz's class. Thus saith the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, and it voices the sentiments of too many people. And, as the London News properly points out, there are unfortunately in this land men who would with pleasure introduce in this country the Spanish inquisition, the thumb screw and the stake. The crime of Czolgosz was a cowardly one, but so is all murder. The Sentinel-Review complains because Anarchists do not fear death. All form of torture is barbaric, uncivilized and brutal. Death is the extreme form of punishment. It should be used upon citizens who create aggravated crimes to protect society. The Woodstock Sentinel-Review would examine into a man's religious views and punish him according as he did or did not believe in future life. These wild barbarian expressions breed negro lynching and other inhuman crimes of state. They should be discouraged.

PATRIOTISM.

The Presbyterian Church of Canada acted with wisdom, comments the London News, when it decided to set apart one Sunday for the children's day, and chose as the theme for that Sunday, "Canada." Loyalty to country should be taught in the home, it should be taught in the school, it should be taught in the church. When patriotism and loyalty are taught in home and school, they are inclined to be flavored with jingoism. But when patriotism is taught to children as a part of religion, in all its purity, freed entirely from all that is base and vulgar, it is a lesson of beauty and loveliness. The most patriotic people were the children of Israel. Patriotism is a part of religion. The love of country is taught by

Eruptions

Dry, moist, scaly tetter, all forms of eczema or salt rheum, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions proceed from humors, either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation.

To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous. The thing to do is to help the system discharge the humors, and strengthen it against their return.

Hood's Sarsaparilla permanently cured J. G. Hines, Franks, Ill., of eczema, from which he had suffered for some time; and Miss Alvina Wolfer, Box 212, Algona, Wis., of pimples on her face and back and chafed skin on her body, by which she had been greatly troubled. There are more testimonials in favor of this great medicine than can be published.

our religion as much as the love of family.

The Presbyterian Church acted wisely when it decided that one Sunday should be set aside for the children to listen to good men speak of patriotism, to hear something more of Canada.

CHATHAMITES PLEASE NOTE.

Armstrong Chronicle. The strict punctuality with which the royal party now touring Canada keep engagements is exciting comment. They do everything on schedule time and nobody is kept waiting after the hour—an hour announced weeks beforehand. Royalty's example is this respect might well be copied by the general public. Much annoyance would thereby be saved, much trouble averted. Punctuality has been defined as the first test of politeness; a great many people appear to regard it as the last.

MR. ROSS' DUTY.

Ottawa Citizen. What we would like to know is: What has Hon. G. W. Ross got to do with preferential trade relations anyway? The Dominion ministers who were over in England all summer are as mum as clams, and this Ontario premier comes home bulging out with preferential tariff information and immigration theories. A few pointed remarks on provincial cabinet ministers using their positions to boom immigration for Dakota would be more relevant.

A HIGH CHURCHMAN.

Bishop Huntington. The parish priest Of austerity Climbed up a high church steeple, To be nearer God, So that he might hand His word down to his people. And in Script He daily wrote What he thought was sent from Heaven. And he dropped this down On the people's heads Two times one day in seven. In his age God said: "Come down and die," And he cried out from the steeple: "Where art thou, Lord?" And the Lord replied: "Down here among the people."

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, Toronto.

THE EXPLANATION.

Montreal Gazette. Some papers are asking how the men who complain because they did not get knighted know that the Governor-General blocked the road to the goal of their ambition. If the facts are as have been stated, the answer is simple. Some of the Laurier ministers betrayed their trust.

Geo. Meynell, KING ST. 3 Doors From Market.

Hamlet's Island.

WILLIAM E. CURTIS has been visiting the Island of Elsinore, the scene of the tragedy of Hamlet, which stands off the northern point of the Danish peninsula. He says that although the present castle of Kronborg was not built for five hundred years after the time of Hamlet, the numerous graves will point out the platform where Hamlet played before the king, and the rampart upon which the ghost walked. The fact that Ophelia does not appear in the account of the monk named Sato-Grummatius, who first told the story of Hamlet and from which Shakespeare took his plot, does not interfere with the imagination of the poets and guide-book writers. They point out the place in the moat of the old castle where she was drowned, and in the park there is a spring which is christened in her honor. Near by is another spring that bears the name of Hamlet, and in a beautiful sequestered dale is his burial place, marked by a cairn of stones, partially grass-covered, and a rude shaft of granite which bears the inscription, "Hamlet's Grave." It is the favorite joke of scoffers to ask the guides "where the grave used to be," because, according to traditions that are said to be well founded, it has disappeared its present site less than a century, and was originally in the private grounds of a merchant at the other end of the town. This gentleman became so annoyed by the pilgrims who came to the spot, that he told the town council he would pay the entire expense of fixing up a more appropriate grave for Hamlet if they would designate a proper location in one of the parks. He did as he promised. The result has been satisfactory all around. He is not annoyed by eight-seers, and the present location is much more convenient to the public. But, upon the other side of the coin, the guides will point out the original grave. However, Hamlet's tomb, Ophelia's drowning place, the rampart where the ghost walked, and the grassy plain which Hamlet used as a stage for his celebrated outdoor performance, are a great attraction to tourists and support several hotels. They have brought much money to Elsinore, and public interest in them still continues. Notwithstanding the doubt that has been cast upon their authenticity, all of the great tragedians have been there, including Bernhardt, Irving, Forrest and Booth, and largely through contributions from the dramatic profession a statue has been erected by Nielsine Petersen, a Danish artist. Everything which is told is named after Hamlet or Ophelia, just as everything at Stratford-on-Avon is named after Shakespeare. There is a Hamlet-bicycle and a Hamlet hotel, a Hamlet biscuit and a Hamlet cigar, Hamlet perfume and Hamlet hams, Hamlet butter and Hamlet dressing-cases and traveling-bags, Ophelia does not fare so well, although there are several places named in her honor. The ghost has his promenade, but the king and queen are entirely ignored. They have a very bad reputation.

Diary of an American Abroad.

Monday, 10 a.m.—Reached England. Country half asleep.
4 p.m.—Reached London. Village awake, but not really spry.
4.30—Reached Hotel Magnificent.
4.45—Went all over it. Nice house. Do as a pied-a-terre for our directors when over here.
5—Bought it.
5—Dinner. Arranged to turn dining-room into apartment for callers. Tired. Counted checks. Bed.
Tuesday, 9 a.m. Read "Times" at breakfast. Leader disparaging our company. Must see to this.
10—Saw proprietors of "Times."
11—Bought "Times."
12—Heard of difficulty with staff. Editor resigned.
1 p.m.—Bought some editors.
1.05—Lunch.
3 to 4—Interviewed the company's competitors, three minutes each.
6 to 7—Wrote checks.
8.30—Theater. Play, The Ironmaster. Don't like the sound; suggests rivalry; must see if rights are to be had.
Wednesday. Curiously unglucky rhyming. Admiralty wouldn't sell fleet. War office refused to scrap guns. Colonial secretary declined to let me have Jamaica as a tip for our ashes. At this rate no use staying on. Picked up Thames steamboat fleet for an old song on way back. Will do to run on the canal inside our fitting shop.
Thursday, 5 p.m.—Things have been humming today. Steamboat deal evidently leaked out. Bought the P. and O. Cunard, White Star, Orient, Union Castle, and North German Lloyd. Bought the Liverpool docks. Bought the London and Northwestern. Cabled to my company that they might begin making.
Friday, 10 a.m.—Cable from company asking me to buy less and sell more. Nonsense. Plenty of time for selling. Much best policy to buy up all our customers first; sell to ourselves then and make sure of orders.
4 p.m.—Bought Holyhead harbor. Made an offer for St. George's Channel.
Saturday, 9 a.m.—Cable from home. "Rival trust formed. Underselling. Return at once."
10 a.m.—Returning—London "Punch."

The Subtle American Joke.

An American once said to a German who claimed that he had the real New England sense of humor, "Did you ever hear the joke about the guide in Rome who showed some travelers two skulls of St. Paul, one as a boy, and the other as a man?" "No," said the German, beginning to anticipate a good story. "Tell me at once, mein friend, dat joke."

F. A. Minckoff has made an exhaustive study of the nails of the hand, some of the results of which he regards as of medico-legal importance. Among other things, he asserts that the nails of the right hand in a right-handed person are wider by from one-half to two millimetres than the corresponding nails on the left hand; while in left-handed persons the reverse obtains, and in the ambidextrous the nails are of equal size on the two hands. The thickness of the nails diminishes progressively from the thumb to the little finger.

Callisthenics

Are a benefit to healthy women. But to women who are suffering from diseases peculiar to their sex they are an injury. When there is weak back or bearing-down pains, headache or other indications of womanly weakness, exercise can only aggravate the condition. The womanly health must be first restored before strength can be developed by exercise. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It does this by healing the womanly diseases which undermine the general health. It stops the drains that weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. When I first commenced using Doctor Pierce's medicine, writes Mrs. George A. Strong, of Garscott, Saratoga Co., N. Y., "I was suffering from female weakness, a disordered bearing-down pains, weak and tired feeling all the time. I dragged around in that way for two years, and I began taking your medicine. After taking first bottle I began to feel better. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one of 'Pleasant Pellets,' also used one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Now I feel like a new person. I can't thank you enough for your kind advice and the good your medicine has done me." "I have a sister who is taking your medicine and it is helping her."

Proverbs From China.

Many of the following Chinese New Year and other proverbs have a familiar sound; others are not quite so familiar. They are all worth quoting: Time flies like an arrow, days and months like a weaver's shuttle. Our daily bread depends on heaven. Foremost thou not God; be still, O soul, and listen to the thunder roll. If one does good, heaven will bestow on him a hundred blessings. All things are according to Heaven. If one does bad, Heaven will send upon him a hundred evils. To eat one's rice looking toward the heavens. No sound can startle in the darkest night him who has kept his conscience clean and white. The kettle of him who has a wicked heart is full of rice. The kettle of him whose heart coincides with the doctrine of Heaven has none the first part of the first month no one has an empty mouth. To make a man of yourself, you must toil; if you don't you won't. Diligence has its reward; play is without profit. Do good regardless of consequence. To persuade one not to gamble is to win for him. Better take 800 than give credit for 1,000 cash. Correct one's self; then others. Think of your own faults the first part of the night (when awake), and of the faults of others the later part of the night (when asleep). An upright heart does not fear demons. He who does according to Heaven will be preserved. He who opposes Heaven will perish. True doctrine can't injure. True gold fears no fire. A stick's a stick, whether short or tall. A man's a man whether great or small. You can't open a book without learning something. No pleasure equals that of study. Youth is for learning, manhood for action. Learning is far more precious than gold. Empty is gold, and silver, too, is vain, since neither can the hand that's dead retain. Of a hundred virtues filial piety is the worst. Within the four seas all are brethren. You can't carve a rotten stick. When the Emperor is victorious millions will rely upon him. Heaven has not two sons, the people have not two Emperors.

A Day's Fishing.

THE fishing season having now positively begun, I think I will go down to the deep waters and try my luck. The great mistake made by so many fishermen is that they are lacking in the necessary patience for success in their hobby. Very often, after a man has sat for two or three days waiting in vain for a bite, he begins to feel the monotony a little tring, and wants to throw up the whole enterprise. The enthusiastic angler, however, never allows himself to grow weary. He will wait three weeks for a bite, and when the exciting moment comes, he wrenches his prize out of the water and feels that he has not lived in vain. When you have once cast your bread for whatever you are using for bait upon the waters, you should be prepared to stand by and see the thing through if it takes all summer.

No angler expects to be landing fish all the time. As a matter of fact, the biggest fish are never completely landed at all. If you have ordinary luck you will land a few small ones, but you can't very well make them any bigger than they are, and your friends can size up their dimensions at a glance; whereas the fish that you hooked out of the water, but couldn't manage to finally land, grows every time you talk about it. This fish is well known to expert anglers. Its dimensions are only limited by the powers of imagination possessed by the operator. Most anglers will let it go with a weight of about twenty to thirty pounds avoirdupois; and the man who insists upon anything bigger than that must choose his audience very carefully in these knowing times.

I have no sympathy with the man who hooks a fish that tries to wrestle him on to his back as it flies off the water, and then, almost crushing him at his head with its off-side fin. And when that kind of man tells you that he fought three rounds with his prize in the endeavor to down so that he could bring it away with him, you should not trust yourself to a comment on the narrative. That kind of man is wasting his talents on a modest job like angling. He ought to have been a politician.

When you have cast your line, you should sit by quietly and wait for the results. That delightful old prig, Isaac Walton, laid it down as a rule that anglers should avoid swearing, lest they be heard and catch no fish. It is not very clear to me why a man who has settled down by the water's edge for a day's fishing should want to swear. I don't see, in any of the hand-books on the craft, any hints that swearing has ever been considered half as useful as a wriggling worm for fishing purposes. As far as I can see, a man might as well use a strong and profane steadily for several hours without getting any more bites in consequence. If a fish will not bite at a tempting hook, I should doubt whether much whether it will do so because somebody on the bank is referring to its ancestry in disrespectful terms, and is casting rather red aspersions on its moral character. The injunction as to swearing appears quite unnecessary, but dear old Isaac couldn't help preaching a little in between the bites.

After waiting a little while and looking at your float, you will probably see it begin to bob up and down. This either means that something is biting at the hook, or else that an empty sardine tin has got mixed up with your line. You must let the bobbing go on till the float is dragged under water, and then you pull in with both hands, and land the upper portion of a dilapidated boot which someone has left in the stream by an oversight. Fishing is called "the contemplative man's recreation," chiefly, I believe, on account of the very weird things that the average angler is called upon to contemplate in the course of a day's skirmish with the wonders of the deep.

Many anglers, however, do not recommend the practice of sitting down and fixing the eye on the bobbing float. After you have cast the line, you open the lunch basket and take out the first bottle. Then you light a pipe and take a glance or so at your float to make sure that it isn't bobbing. By that time you will be ready for the second bottle. When the second bottle has been properly and truly dealt with, the float will bob a good deal oftener than might be expected; but you don't need to take notice of low conduct like that. If a gentleman can't sit down by the water's edge and take a little light refreshment without being grieved by a mere decorative quill, it's hard luck, that's all.

By the time you have got on to the fourth bottle, you will begin to realize what a thoroughly enjoyable sport this angling business is. You will begin to wonder at first what you have been and thrown his line alongside yours, as there are two floats to be distinctly seen. You need not, however, bother about that. After all, you didn't come down to the water for what you could catch; but for the jolly sport of thing. Well, there's the fifth bottle ready anyway, and it's thirsty work looking on and waiting for a bite.

Of course, there are anglers who can be carried away by the sport so much as to follow a float with their eyes for a whole day, with scarcely a drop in between. These men will wade through two feet of water and carry the spare worms in their mouths on the chance of hooking a wriggler that has been hovering about playfully for an hour or two. But this isn't the weather for enthusiasm of any kind; and the only thing that you will find to admire in these rabid anglers is that their perspiring activity makes you feel so thirsty that the rest of the bottles can be opened in their right order without waiting. Some anglers reel up their line at the close of the day's sport and take it back home. But after a dozen bottles or so of the best, you won't want to be bothered with any dim nonsense of that kind. Just kick the whole kit into the water, and call for help to enable you to get home again without any trouble. Angling is a grand sport if you know how to take it—"Pick-Me-Up."

GOOD ADDRESS

Text of Dr. Bray's Interesting and Eulogistic Speech at St. Joseph's Hospital Last Evening.

Ladies and Gentlemen—I have been requested by the Mother Superior and Sisters to make a few remarks this evening, at the opening of the new wing, and the establishment of a Training School for Nurses in connection with St. Joseph's hospital, and, while I feel flattered at being thus honored, I am also embarrassed, and can only attribute the distinction conferred on me to the fact that I am the oldest practitioner in the city, and one of the first to take advantage of the hospital established some years ago on a very small scale on Centre Street. But as from little acorns giant oaks grow, so it has been with this hospital, from a very small and humble beginning with but three sisters and no outside nurses, with very inadequate accommodations for about eight or ten patients, and no operating room, it has grown to what you see to-night. To-day sixty or seventy-five patients can be accommodated in rooms, large and comfortable, and in all its appointments, second to none, and superior to many. In addition to the Mother Superior and five or six sisters (all trained nurses), there are no less than ten young ladies engaged in nursing and ready to enter on a course of study in the training school about to be opened. At the head of these is Miss Frances Bephorst, one of the most competent and capable nurses to be found in any hospital, who will have supervision over the class, and materially assist in their training. Lectures will be given weekly by all the physicians in Chatham, in alphabetical order, on special subjects. The course of study will extend over a period of three years, when examination will be held, and diplomas given to the successful students. With two such well-managed and equipped hospitals and training schools as we have in this city, the sick and suffering are assured that they will receive the best of nursing and attention. And this is a boon that should be appreciated not only by the poor and destitute, but by those in the better classes, and to the latter class, I would appeal for a continuance of that practical aid so generously given in the past. When I contrast the Chatham of forty years ago, I am amazed at the advances made, not alone in the growth, appearance and general prosperity of the city and county, but more particularly in the fact that the House of Refuge, erected by the municipality for the poor and needy, where they are clothed and fed; and the still more necessary hospital, built and maintained by the charitable citizens of Chatham and surrounding country, where the penniless and friendless sick are taken in, nursed and treated,—and just here let me say, I thank the Chatham of to-day with that of thirty years ago, for the fact that the pioneers of Hospital work in this city—and while the hospitals are a blessing to the sick, they are a great aid to the physician in his work, and to one who has practiced the twenty-five years of my practice in Chatham we were withdrawn to a hospital, and no matter what the operation, and no matter what the treatment, to be performed, and the second treated, at the home of the patient; and sometimes, these homes were mere hovels, surrounded by filth and infested with poisonous germs, so that, in the event of an operation under these circumstances, union by first intention was the exception and laudable pus and granulations the rule. This being the case, as physicians and teachers it is our duty to see that a high standard is maintained in the training school for nurses, and endeavor to frame a course of lectures that will accomplish this purpose; and, young ladies, it will be your duty as students to give your very best attention to our teachings, whether delivered in the classroom so that, when your course is ended, and you receive your diploma, you may go from the hospital, feeling satisfied that both we as teachers, and you as students, have done our best. In conclusion, let me personally, and on behalf of the medical profession of Chatham, tender our most sincere and heartfelt thanks to the Mother Superior, Sisters and nurses of St. Joseph's for the uniform kindness and consideration shown us while on duty in the hospital, and for the care and attention bestowed on our patients. We also offer our congratulations on the addition of this new wing, and modern and up-to-date operating room; and my warmest wish is that the hospital may continue to grow in size and usefulness, and that you, Mother Superior and Sisters, may long be spared to carry on the noble work in which you are engaged, knowing neither rich nor poor, creed nor color, but doing your life-work to the best of your ability, and in the interests of suffering humanity; for, of "all good works, the greatest is charity."

ADVISORY BOARD.

BIBLICAL CLOAK

The Well-Worn Garb Still Utilized—Counterfeiter Spoiled It Quite Brazenly.

"The police can't always judge by appearances," said Chief Young this afternoon. "When in our search for bad money, we opened the valise of Harry Cameron, arrested on the charge of passing counterfeit Dominion Bank bills, the first thing we discovered on the very top of the things in the valise was a handsome Bible. It was one of the finest I ever saw. Cameron told us, too, that he could 'pray like a streak,' whatever that means. When we asked him his name he said he had half a dozen different ones, and we could take our choice. He claimed to be a Scotchman and had some preference for the name Harry Cameron, by which he was known at Kent Bridge."

"We didn't find any money on him either good or bad. When arraigned before Judge Houston Cameron pleaded guilty and was remanded till next week for sentence. The prisoner acknowledged his guilt was rather a surprise and has saved a lot of trouble."

On the occasion of the departure of C. M. Brandt, for Blenheim, the employees of the Hadley Co. presented him with the following address:—

Mr. Brandt.—It was with surprise and regret that we learned you were about to leave us. Most of us having been associated with you for some three years, more or less, in different capacities, and having always been used in a gentlemanly and considerate manner, we have decided to present you with this little token in order to show our esteem, gratitude and appreciation for your generous treatment.

We also wish you success in your new undertaking, hoping that you be blessed with health and prosperity.

(Signed) THE BOYS.

Mr. Brandt's reply was as follows: To my friends, the employees of the S. Hadley Lumber Co., I herewith extend my sincere thanks for your beautiful gift, the couch, and I assure you that I will enjoy many a comfortable hour; with pleasant remembrance.

$500 DAMAGES

Awarded in the Clunis-Sloan Suit—Railroad Case Disagreement.

Last evening the jury disagreed in the case of Brewer vs. the Lake Erie R. R., an action for damages for injuries sustained by the plaintiff while driving across the track of defendants. The case has in consequence been adjourned and will be tried again in June.

The case of Clunis vs. Sloan, an action for slander, occupied the attention of the court nearly all morning.
The plaintiff, Clunis, asked for damages for slander on the grounds that the defendant had circulated a report to the effect that the plaintiff had stolen binder twine.

The judge charged strongly against the defendant. Clute, K. C., counsel for the defense, objected to the judge's charge, claiming that his honor had made certain statements to the jury which should have been left for them to decide themselves. The judge, however, held that he had acted within the limits of the statute.

Then, after a short recess, only a short time, returned a verdict awarding the plaintiff, Clunis, $500 damages. Clute, K. C., Toronto, and W. F.
Smith for defendant, M. Houston, for plaintiff.

The case of Carroll vs. McVean came up this morning and was continued this afternoon. This is an action for $2,500 damages for injuries received by one Joseph A. Carroll, of Dresden, in the mill in Dresden owned and operated by O. & W.
McVean.

The plaintiff, who was employed as a wheel driver, claims that, on the day in question he was working in the mill and had occasion to run the buzzer plainer. He was in the habit of doing this work when his own work was slack. While he was doing so William McVean came along and changed the plainer to do some work for himself. After he had finished Carroll resumed his work on the plainer, not knowing that it had been changed. As a result his left hand was caught in the machine and cut off.

The defendant on the other hand, however, claims that the action was caused by the want of prudence, care and caution on the part of the plaintiff.

The evidence for the plaintiff included that of three medical men,
the foreman of the Sawyer-Massey Company, of Toronto, one from London, and the foreman at Blonde's.
All favored the guards.

The evidence for the defense is still in progress.

Following this case that of Carter
vs. Woodward will be taken up.

IS SETTLED

Trouble Over the William Street Sidewalk a thing of the Past—And Future.

The trouble which has arisen over the William St. sidewalk has been settled. Mr. Marshall, chairman of the Board of Works, and Mr. McKay met yesterday afternoon to discuss the situation of affairs. After viewing the walk and considering the manner in which Mr. McKay wants it laid and the manner in which the engineer states it should be laid, he decided to lay the matter over until next year, when the walk would be extended from Parks' foundry to the Grand Trunk track, and it would then be laid under the supervision of the city engineer.

BANFF THE BEAUTIFUL

J. W. Young Was Especially Impressed with the Watery Place of the West.

Another of His Entertaining Letters to the Planet—On the Home-ward Journey.

(Concluded.)

Calgary itself is a rambling city, scattered all over a large hill-side. The hills rise all around the town, so that stand almost any place in the city and look around and you see the hills that circle the town. Time travels back and you imagine that you are in the old walled towns of England. These natural earthworks of defense insinuate into the quiet and peaceful western city quite a martial aspect. Yet, within there isn't a more peaceful or a busier place of its size in all the Dominion. Here, some 2,000 feet or more above the sea, the sun shines and the wind blows just the same as it does at home, only the air seems more invigorating. There is no war, only the suggestion in the natural surroundings of the town. There are two rivers that meet just below the city and the following standing riddle perhaps holds, too, a good description of Calgary: "Why are the Calgary ladies particularly blessed?" is asked of the guileless tenderfoot from the east. "Because they have the Bow on one side and the Elbow on the other," is the answer, too deep for the innocent easterner. The Bow and Elbow are the two rivers between which the town is built. Their current is swift and fast.

As Calgary, so it is all over the west, Ontario is the password. "Where did you come from?" "Ontario."

"So did I. How is Toronto?" This is the conversation that you indulge in with most everyone you meet, with Toronto changed to Ottawa, Owen Sound, Hamilton, eastern or western Ontario, but otherwise there is no difference. If Ontario is distinguished with her census and wants to know where her population is, let her look through the Canadian Northwest. She will find her stalwart sons at every milestone almost. They are more plentiful than the stars and are all doing well. In Calgary alone there are many Chathamites. There I found Hugh Neilson, once a Chathamite, but now known to Chathamians as owner of the business carried on under the name of the Hugh Neilson Furniture Co. Mr. Neilson is doing an exceedingly large trade both wholesale and retail, and intends next year building a large block to accommodate his business.

Mr. Neilson was glad to meet one from the home-town. He had just returned from a fishing trip of one day down the Bow river. The current in this stream is very rapid and the residents of Calgary go up stream by train and fish down. Mr. Neilson said that he and his friend didn't have very good luck. They only got six green trout.

Mr. Neilson's foreman is J. A. Kenzie, once with Mr. Locke, of Ridge-town, and a right pleasant man to meet. James Linton owns Linton's block and also has a book-store. John Kerr is a merchant tailor with a good business. John Hicklin, brother of Charles Hicklin, foreman of The Planet press department, is one of Calgary's prosperous carpenters. Then the Gallans came into the neighborhood. He couldn't stand them as neighbors, so he sold out and came down to Calgary. He was working at his trade of carpenter when I met him, but he told me that in company with Will McGregor, of Blenheim, and his brother, Robert Townsend, he was going to start a ranch near Calgary in the spring. Mr. Townsend intends visiting Chatham at Christmas. Edward Townsend, another brother, is farming near Edmonton. He has 480 acres of land and is making money. John Bishop, formerly clerk in Ed. Snook's grocery, is now in partnership with John Hunter, a former Doverite. They are contractors and carpenters, and have all they can do. There are quite a number of Doverites in Calgary and vicinity. Besides Messrs. Bishop and Hunter there are Geo. McKinnon, Walter Hunter, David Fryer and Geo. Hardy. Mr. Hardy has a ranch about eight miles distant from Calgary. He is a brother-in-law of Mr. Gould, of Ridge-town, and is the C. P. R. station, Chatham. Mr. Gorman, formerly of Park Bros. Chatham, is now locomotive superintendent at the C. P. R. station, Calgary. Geo. Sessmith, once a prominent Maple City Orangeman, is still true to his golden colors in the far western city of Calgary. Wilbert J. Thomson, cousin of Alfred Bisset, of Blenheim, is another of the Kest county people who I met. Charlie Biggar, of Blenheim, and his cousin, Alfred Biggar, of Michigan, are partner carpenters. They are distinguished as Biggar and Little Biggar. James Hornby, of Ridge-town, lives in the hill, is also a Calgary carpenter. Powell & Baird, two former Blenheimites, have a large ranch about 40 miles from Calgary. Mr. Powell has a nice residence in Calgary.

In Calgary I met Alfred Langford, ex-Kent Bridge, who is taking a group trip through the west. It was more than a pleasure to meet someone just from home. Mr. Langford and I missed each other by a narrow margin at Winnipeg. Brandon and Moosejaw. At these places he got off the train that I got on. We spent two or three pleasant days seeing Calgary together. That was really right for Calgary is very much apart. Let me rather say, we together spent many pleasant days seeing scattered Calgary. Mr. Langford had just come from spending a week with "Thad. Arnold" near Moosejaw. Mr. Arnold is a product of Kent's

He reached Moosejaw eight years ago, secured a home of 160 acres and began to build himself a shack with only $15 in his pocket. Now he has 640 acres of land, a nice house, 14 head of horses, 12 milch cows. He could easily sell his farm for $5,000 or $7,000 did he desire to. Such are the opportunities that the west holds out to all, and in this wonderfully fertile land everyone can make his living from the earth, and, if he is careful, can in a few years become comfortably well off. Mr. Langford drove the binder for Mr. Arnold for three days and he says that the crop was splendid. He used 5 lbs. of twine to the acre.

In Calgary I also met another ex-Maple City resident in the person of Jos. Ryan, of High River, who happened to be spending a day in Calgary. Mr. Ryan told me that he was a cousin of Jacob Ryan, tailor, Chatham, and that in 1872-73 he himself had worked for the late Chas. Poole. Mr. Ryan was asking after Tom Gledhill, J. B. Reid and other Chathamites. Just tell J. B. Reid you met me and see what he will say," was Mr. Ryan's parting salute. Alfred Clause, of Cedar Springs, is another of the carpenters from home that I met. Mr. Langford and myself called on the Chief of Police, who proved to be Thos. English, cousin of Capt. Sim Smith, of Chatham. I told the head of the Calgary police force that my father was chief at Chatham. "Then your name is Young," said he. "I know the names of nearly all the chief police officers in Canada. I never forget a name."

Mr. English was asking after his cousin and wanted to know if he had his Fenian Raid medal. The Calgary chief of police has a Fenian Raid medal, too. He was one of the Canadians who had thought that their mother country might need them. Such an exhibition of loyalty was well worth more than a medal. George Walden, one of the police officers, also came from Ontario, from London township, near London. He is a cousin of Westman Bros. and asked to be remembered to them. I mustn't forget William Howell at one time janitor at The Planet office. Unfortunately, William was away from Calgary cooking on a C. P. R. work train, so I couldn't see him, and I missed his friendly and good-natured smile. I met a number of his friends who said that William was improving some in health but not as much as could be desired.

On Friday afternoon, Sept. 13, I left Calgary for Banff. How horribly suggestive of ill luck "I wouldn't have done it" I hear the superstitious say. Yet I never had a more enjoyable trip in my life, and I shall always look back at my visit to Canada's natural hot baths as one of the milestones in my life. A mark to date events by and if you should ever see any event mentioned as happening three days, three weeks, or three years, "after my visit to Banff," you will easily understand the meaning. Banff is a suggestive of something unusual, unexpected and out of the ordinary. I, not having access to books of reference, have wondered if this wonderful spot has been renamed from some place in Scotland, or has some genius coined the word. If he did he was an artist. If the name has been taken from some other place, and I have since learned that it was, it shows how nature in its improvement can rob man of power to think. He cries as he gazes on the site of Banff; how glorious, how grand, beautiful, merely reiterating the exclamations of hundreds before him. Then, at a loss for a name for the place, he feebly calls it Banff, after some place of inferior resemblance, that he has known.

Banff, the name seemed meaningless when I first saw it, and if not some place, at least just a name of a place, and aroused a "don't-care-it-go-there-or-not" feeling.

What different feelings the very mention of the name now awakens! The five little letters that make up the word Banff now seem charged with meaning. It recalls one of the most marvelous spots, where nature draws near, and man overcome by her majesty is humbled, recognizing her in the presence of some mighty power. In his sudden realization of his insignificance stoops to kiss the work-manship of Nature's hand. So full of awe is he that he would not if he had the opportunity, seek Nature's presence to offer homage. Banff is a place where the humblest resident of the earth feels that Nature surrounds him and makes him understand that after all men are equal, all are made in the image of God. "A little touch of Nature makes all the world akin." I thought I understood it, but I was deceived. I understand it now.

I had been told by those who had been there "See Banff, don't miss it." I thought that the people were just talking for something to say. I didn't really care whether I went or not and it was in a spirit of indifference that I purchased my ticket. I believe that if anything else had suggested itself I would have missed Banff. It is only a word the name of a place, but how much it expresses of Banff after dark. I registered at the Sanatorium and went to sleep. Imagine one going out through the night into an unknown country and lying down to sleep alone, to awaken in Paradise. Then you will have some idea of the feelings of those who awaken in Banff.

It is a grand sight that greets you as you step out into the morning air. All around you huge and massive rocks tower to the skies and beyond. Rough and ragged these mountains of stone look, but the view is sublime and awe-inspiring. A sense of oppressiveness and exaltation seems to strike you at the time. You are weighed down by a sense of the insignificance of man and uplifted by the grandeur of the lofty, stately mountain peaks, standing ever still and motionless like some grim and solemn monsters. Then in wondrous admiration you gaze all around trying to take in the whole panoramic view. To the right rises the twin peaks, two rough grey masses of rock, scarcely high enough to reach the snow line. Nearer and south, Tunnel mountain, just like a huge loaf of bread in shape and covered with vegetation and trees all over. Behind rises Cascade mountain, the highest peak of all. It is 9,875 feet high, and this summer was scaled for the first time by two Swiss guides and a tourist. Next to Cascade rises Squaw mountain, with its wooded heights and up the Bow River to the westward can be seen the distant heights of the main range. Just behind the Sanatorium rises Sulphur mountain, but it is impossible to picture on paper the sublime majesty of the scene. I heard a young lady describe the view as superb. It is that—whatever it may mean—and far more. A man leaving a city and becoming a farmer was described as going "near to nature's heart." I felt that I had been permitted to come near to nature's art and I was at a loss for words. Subdued and silent, I retired to the hotel and even now I am at a loss for language to describe the glories of Banff. For the scenery alone I commend this divine spot to Canadians. It is a relative of Mr. Hyslop, once of the firm of Hyslop & Ronalds, he sang at a Scotch concert in Chatham 20 years or more ago. He is just the man to be in such a place.

The cave is a large circular dome some fifty feet high. It was first discovered by a prospector who seeing the hole in the hillside left himself down inside the cave by means of a rope. Instead of gold the man found sulphur spring of water. The over-flow was lower down the hill. The government has cut an entrance to the cave where the over-flow came out, and built a bath house at the mouth of this entrance. If you like you can bathe in the pool in the cave, and looking up you can see the hole down which the prospector descended. The party I was with, however, found the cave too warm, and we preferred to bathe in the basin, which is out doors. Just Imagine bathing out of doors with the thermometer almost at freezing point. It might suggest cold and chills until you know that most delightful of all bathing places—the pool in the basin at Banff.

The pool is protected on two sides by the hills and on the other two by the bath houses and a fence, so that the wind cannot get at the bathers. The bathing place is about 35 feet in diameter and about 8 feet deep in the middle. The water is deep blue, which color it gets from the sulphur in it. In the centre of the pool, warm water bubbles up from the earth and diving, you can plunge your arm to the shoulder in the loose sand. There is a cave at the east end of the pool where the adventuresome can crawl in. The opening isn't very large and you have to crawl in with your head under water. The overflow pipe is about six inches in diameter and the water keeps running steadily. There is an entrance change of water in the pool every two hours and a half. We generally stayed in an hour and the last time we were in an hour and a half. It was really the finest bathing I ever enjoyed. The warm water was not too warm, just comfortable, and, if your shoulders became cold all you had to do was to put them under water. The air, of course, was a little chilly, but a couple of quick sips and you were in by the fire-side. After the bath was, perhaps, the most enjoyable time. When dressed, you felt as warm and full of life as a grasshopper. In fact, it required some restraint to keep from hopping all the way back to the sanatorium. I can imagine nothing more delightful than sitting in the basin at Banff, and as the excellence of this place gets noised abroad and as towns build up near it, the time will come when the hot springs at Banff will be too few to accommodate the multitude.

For the information of those who go to Banff, it may be well to mention that there are two hotels there, the E. P. R. hotel, a modern palace with a delightful view, and the Sanatorium. The E. P. R. hotel is perfect in everything, and a delightful place of residence. The rates are $3 per day. At the Sanatorium the rates are from $2 to $2.50.

The Government Museum at Banff is well worth visiting. It contains a splendid collection of birds, mammals, reptiles, eggs, minerals, woods and a few animals. There is also quite a large collection of Indian ornaments and articles of war, including the scalps belonging to Chief Red Shirt, Blackfoot Indian chief. One of the scalps is of auburn hair, soft and silky as if it had belonged to some young girl, and caused a shudder to pass over me when I touched it. The museum is in charge of the museum. He told me that the highest recorded temperature at Banff was 89 degrees on August 5, 1893, and the lowest temperature was zero in January, 1893. Curious that the records should be both in the same year. The past two winters have been very mild, however, and during both there was scarcely a frost, weeks of snow. Mr. Sampson said that the Government were intending to extend the limits of the Park, which already contains 290 square miles. The hot springs, of which there are five in use, are all contained within a radius of three miles and all have been found to be of the same nature. The next stopping place. I think that the power that gave the pile of bones substance forgot to give it life. For a quieter place I never met. Really I see no future for Regina either. It is built out in the prairie away from water and as now so in the future, it will depend for its life on the farm trade. This is large already for the capital of the Northwest is the centre of a very fertile farming and ranching country. The town, too, is so situated that a sewer system of waterworks system is impossible. It is true that the Government buildings, the police barracks, and the Indian Industrial school are situated here, and I haven't the slightest doubt but that had Regina a good river flowing through it that it would long since have surpassed me. A day in Calgary satisfies me. I had intended to visit the beautiful Qu'Appelle valley, of whose fertility and beauty many have spoken to me. Every visitor to the Qu'Appelle valley, whom I met, was in raptures over this fruitful section of Canada, but fate didn't permit me to see it and this is my one regret. On the train that I came eastward on was the Rev. Mr. Stearns, a Scotchman and a Quaker. He asked to be remembered to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Macaulay.

Time passes on and I must stop writing, as I am just about to leave for Winnipeg to properly welcome the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York to the West.

ROYAL PARTY AT VICTORIA

Duke of Cornwall and York Spoke at Parliament Buildings

Told British Columbians That Their Offering for the Cause in South Africa was Another Gain for Imperialism.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 1.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York arrived at Victoria at 11 o'clock today, having made the trip from Vancouver to Victoria on the steamer Empress of India, which was conveyed by the ships of the North Pacific Squadron. The warships were dressed in bunting, and the British Columbia imposing one as it steamed through the Gulf of Georgia and into the straits of Fuca.

The Royal party, the Countess of Minto and Premier Cameron, were formally greeted by Lieut.-Gov. Sir Henri Joly, and driven through cheering crowds to the parliament building, where addresses of welcome were presented by Mayor Hayward in behalf of the city and John W. Pratt, of Seattle, for the British-American citizens and Presbyterians of Victoria. The Duke thanked the people for their welcome, saying in part:

"I desire to assure you of the gratitude which the Duchess and I feel for the kind words and good wishes which have been extended on behalf of the citizens of Victoria, the residents of Seattle, and other parts of the State of Washington, and the British Columbia Synod of the Presbyterian church in Canada. I shall have much pleasure in informing my dear father, the King, with what special satisfaction I have not your strong declaration of loyalty to the throne and pride in the heritage of citizenship. I know what proof of this spirit you have already given in the blood of your sons which has been shed on the South African field. I am confident that the sacrifices you have made have not been in vain. They have forged another link in the golden chain which binds together the brotherhood of the Empire."

After the presentation of medals to the South African volunteers, the Duke, with Admiral Bickford, this afternoon the Duke formally opened the Victoria Exposition. To-night there was a state dinner at Government house, and a reception at the parliament buildings. The return trip eastward commences to-morrow night.

New Westminster will be visited Thursday and will stop after that will be made at Banff, where the party divides for a few days. The Duchess will remain at Banff and the duke will go on to Manitoba for two days' shooting. From Manitoba the party will go to Toronto.

Theatrical

The patronage accorded "A Brace of Partridges" on such a disagreeable night as last Saturday was most favorably commented on by both H. Brownie Smith and his manager, Mr. Muesner, who were agreeably surprised at such a number venturing out in such a storm. Manager Briscoe advises us that his box-office statements showed $79 paid admission, which, with the usual free list, made a very fair showing.

"THE BROWNIES" TO-MORROW.

At the Central Drug Store seats are on sale for the big production of "The Brownies in Fairyland," which will be witnessed to-morrow and Friday nights at the Grand Opera House for the benefit of the Kent Children's Aid Society. One of the elaborate spectacles, which will be presented at the popular scale of 25, 35, and 50 cents. Among the principal characters Clara Tefft, seen as "Queen Flora"; Belle Kiddell as "Aesthetica"; Ray Peck as "Prince Aldebaran"; and Herman Schewler as "Cholly Boutonniere." Little Danella Foreman and Erva Thompson will be "Todelekins" and "Bippies." Orvil Linn will be "Chauncey Trotter"; Garnet Shag "Major Telloff"; Herbert Pritchard "Patrolman Mowen"; William Hoyt "Billy Tackler"; Allen Timmer and Walter Peck the "Brownie Twins"; John Bull; John Waller "Uncle Sam"; James Boyd "Prof. Katchakoff"; Richard Pope "Wagner von Strauss"; Wilfred Peck "Afraid of the Day"; and Claude Sharpe "Paraskins." Many novel dances and specialties will be seen in the course of the two acts. "The Brownies in Fairyland" is one of the grandest successes before the public, and it should crowd the Grand Opera House to the doors.

That wonderfully realistic play, "The Span of Life," which has never failed to attract large and enthusiastic audiences in this city, will be seen at the Grand on Saturday, Oct. 19th. It is more than a year since "The Span of Life" has been seen here and during that period of time it has been translated and produced in French, German, Belgian and Russian, and has been secured for principal tour of Australia. This is a record that cannot be claimed for any other melodrama ever written. There is no doubt that this favorite play will be greeted by large audiences.

Gertrude Zimmer, a dainty young soprano of the Alice Nielsen type, is a recent recruit to the Bostonians, and has been secured for principal soprano roles. Miss Zimmer is vivacious in manner, sings and dances gracefully and will be heard here in the role of Anabelle in "Robin Hood." Her voice is of exceptional range and quality and its flexibility and sweetness appeals irresistibly to the ears. At the Grand Thursday, Oct. 17th.

FOR SHOVING THE QUEER

Counterfeiter Cameron Joins his Colleague Within the Portals of Castle Mercer.

Detectives Campeau and Mahoney Had a Long Chase for Him—He Was Finally Landed Yesterday in Watford.

The alleged counterfeiter, who passed spurious money in Chatham two weeks ago last Saturday, has at last been caught and landed in the cells here. Detectives Campeau and Mahoney, of Windsor, have been working on the case ever since the capture of Shene and succeeded in tracing their man to Watford, where he was caught.

The man gives his name as Thos. H. Cameron, but is possessed of a variety of signatures. After Shene's arrest he went from Tibury to Detroit. Here he took the rapid railway to Algonic and from there he took the G. T. R. to Watford, where he put up at the Roche House. Here he received his letters under the name of H. D. Smith, but it is thought that he did not try to pass any money.

Campeau and Mahoney arrived in Watford yesterday morning and found their man in bed. They at once arrested him and brought him to Chatham. He arrived in Watford two days after he left Jeanette's Creek. Both Cameron and Shene are residents of Jeanette's Creek, and it is now supposed that it was a put up job between them. Cameron did not have any money on him when arrested.

Cameron told a very queer story to Detective Mahoney when he was being brought to Chatham. He said that Monday morning about one o'clock he felt that the detectives were after him and he could not sleep. He went down stairs and asked the landlord whether any one was enquiring for him. He replied that there was not. He went back to bed and yet he could not sleep.

"When I heard you rap at the door I knew the jig was up," he said to Mr. Mahoney. He looked for the window and saw that the leap was too big. I had intended to defend myself, but when I saw you two big fellows I threw up the sponge. It serves me right, though. I should not have taken such a stupid fellow as Shene into my confidence."

Cameron will come up for hearing next Monday.

HIGH TENSION

It Permeated the Court Room This Morning When Mysterious Sounds Were Heard.

The barristers' door in the court room stood ajar this morning, while the judge was addressing the jury.

Suddenly, without warning, mysterious rumblings came from below through the half-open door. From the sounds, the officials and lawyers were scarce able to realize whether a howling alley was in operation, or a thunderstorm had been caged, or an anarchist bomb was going off by degrees in the broad corridors of the judge's entrance.

Sheriff Gemmill hurried out of the court to investigate. He was closely followed by Deputy Clerk Blackall and Barrister J. G. Kerr. They soon returned and the mystery of the commotion was briefly solved for the calamity breathing powers suppressed.

Said Mr. Kerr on his return—"It was only that Jack of a drayman putting my exhibits in the Carroll vs. McVeen case, in the judge's private room."

WARM WELCOME

Neil McMillan Describes the Royal Reception at Winnipeg.

Neil McMillan, Harwich, returned Monday night from Manitoba. McMillan went west on the harvest excursion on August 5, and worked near Morden. On his return he stopped over in Winnipeg, and saw the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York and the welcome which the warm-hearted westerners extended to their royal visitors.

Mr. McMillan admired the arches erected by the Prairie City very much. They were massive in appearance and covered with sheaves of wheat. After the parade the wheat on the arches was pulled down and carried away by the spectators as souvenirs.
