FRATERNAL INSURANCE

The tendency to increase the rates of insurance in fraternal societies is causing a good deal of anxiety among the members. A good many of the orders were falling upon embarrassing their finances and then wakened up to the fact that the rates of insurance to increase the rates. It would have been far better and far more business like if the rates in the very beginning had been higher. It costs about so much to furnish insurance, whether in fraternal or in straight line companies, and if proper business methods had been employed at the inauguration of fraternal societies it would have saved many heart burnings now. The new rates are causing a good deal of dissatsfaction, especially among the older members upon whom they bear most heavily. One society has advanced its ates so that it now costs members who have been paying assessments for twenty years about $64.00 a thousand for their insurance. This is surely an exhorbitant price, but over against that is to be put as a solace that for twenty years they had insurance at a great deal less than they should have had it Directly a big, mysterious crime occurs in London, Scotland Yard throws over the metropolis a strong but invisible net, from which only the very lucky or the very clever crimnial can escape. When you consider that the London over which Scotland Yard has power has over which Scotland Yard has power has a radius of fifteen miles from Charing Cross you will understand the wender-ful nature of the police organization. Within a few hours of the discovery of a sensational crime, the author of which has escaped, the 6,000,000 people in London are more or less under surveillance.

Imagine a terrible murder such as that at Deptford a few days ago. The local police immediately communicated with Scotland yard, giving the facts— stating, for example, that three people have been murdered in a house and that fair-haired man of 40, wearing a long leave house: From Scotland yard there radiate to the twenty-one metropolitan police divisions, from the "A" or White-hall district to the "Y" or Hingate district such facts as the authorities in the great central building on the em-bankment think it necessary should be

It is then only a mater of a few hours before the policemen in the streets are keeping their eyes open for a fair-haired man of 40, wearing a long gray overcoat. But this is only the begin-ning of the work. One of the chief deectives of Scotland yard is on the scene of the crime as quickly as it is possible for him to get there and possibly the assistant commissioner himself rushes down on his motor car. The chiefs, with their assistant, make a orough examination of the place and

That business looking commercial tra-veler who lounges round the bookstall or near the booking office is also probably a man from the yard. The methods vary according to circumstances, but in every direction there are the strong, unseen meshes of the police net. Up at Scot-land yard the finger prints on the piece of glass are being carefully compared with some of the finger prints of known criminals. For years finger prints have been stored and there are now on register more than 60,000 sets.

Prisoners have had to ink their fing slightly all around on a prepare slab and then place them on a piece of specially prepared paper, turning them slowly round by the direction of an official, until an impression of all the skin markings has been left on the paper, Finally the sets of finger prints are indexed and stored away until wanted for comparison either with finger prints subsequently taken or with accidental marks made by escaping criminals, such as those left on the piece of glass.

DEFIES THE DEFT FORGER.

Paper in Bank of England Note Can Never be Imitated.

Never be Imitated.

The Bank of England note is the most easily forged of ail, for it is the simplest, consisting as it does of black printing on a white paper. The great safeguard lies in the quality of the paper, the quality of the printing and the waterpark on the paper, at one and the safe that catual paper is beyond the shill of the cleverest forger. It is made at a small nown near London, but so well has the secret been guarded that the most skillful note printers in the trade do not undersand that, though they know most of the other secrets.

Note printing is one of the highly skilled trades which still is a virtual monopoly of the city of London. It has always been so and the great banks of the world come to the engravers and printers of London to have their notes or their plates made. They turn out the most beautiful printing in Europs, Some of it is of the most complicated description, and in this fact lies its great safety.

The steel plate itself is the work of many aftery.

The steel plate itself is the work of many hands and many brains. When the main design has been decided upon the parts of the picture have to be given over to several engravers , each of whom is skilled in one branch of his art and could not exharge his part with any of the others.

One is an architectural engraver and with a fine needle he labors for weeks in the effort to convey to the metal a pertuct picture of a while a fourth fashions the let tate it.

The complicated matter of tracery which you see on the back and front of Scotch and foreign notes is so minute that the camera can not effectively copy it. To reproduce with photography or zinc it is necessary to employ photography or zinc it is necessary to employ acid and the acid would eat away these fine lines. The work is done by a machine which is made on the principle of the pantograph.

There are at least 700 school savings banks in the United States. is made on the principle of the pantograph. Danks in the United States.

an deccentries and apparatus for guiding the checking the needle and sending it in new di-rections at all sorts of unexpected angles and rections at all sorts of unexpected angless and curves.

After the design has been worked out on the machine in accordance with the secret code, which is kept by the proprietor locked in the safe, the machine does the work itself if the operator will go on turning the driving crank slowly and steadily. The plan is taken out with numbers, which represent he wheels and the code of figures, showing the work which is to be done by each wheel and how it comes into play. But the operator can not know that secret. The machine simply goes on its own way, and the least slackening of any of the parts will put it all out. A work-man can not repair the error, for he does not know the code, and the whole work will be spoiled until the master comes along and resets the wheels and other parts in their proper order.

Only a small part of the design is worked out by this delicate machine—just enough to give a complete representation of the pattern.

out by this delicate machine—just enough to give a complete representation of the pattern. Then that portion is stamped on soft steel, which is hardened by another secret process and made into a sort of a die, which is used to impress other plates of steel till the tuil border is thu scompleted or a band made to go across the whole face or back of the note.

In the best of the colored notes three In the best of the colored notes three or four tints are used, and generally you find that one of them is blue. It defies the camera, The different colors are put on with different plates, and each means a separate printing. The result is that if you hold one of the notes up to the light you will find that the lines of the different colors run into and through one another, making it impossible to take a perperfect copy, even if the camera could catch the mail, which it can not.

No forger can get the tracery done by hand, the mall, which it can not.

No forger can get the fracery done by hand, because no engraver could do it, and he can not get the machine. If he had the machine it would take years to work out the secret combination of figures which make any particular design. There are only three or four of these machines in the world. Then for his design, in the shape of portraits and architecture and scenery and lettering, he would want a combination of four or more engravers of high ability and bad character, which would be as hard to come by as the machine. It can not be done.

rould be as hard to come by as the machine, tean not be done.

But the English note is protected by none of these things. Its lettering and general lesign can be copied quite easily by the amera and a good plate reproduced on zinc or printing. It can be photographed on tone and the printing is ready at once if the orger can get paper of the right sort.

Delicate Balance of Power,

The balance of power in Euprope is a very delica te one. To prevent its alterati n few powers that are interested would hesitate to appeal to arms; indeed, some that may be nameless are preparing steadily for the great day when intervention will go hand in hand with necessity. and Repairs the Nerves.

Professors of dietetics tell us that the banana is not, as so many fruits are, a flavor and nothing more, but a food and a source of real nutriment. It is at once useful and delicious. It not only gratifies the palate, but supplies material for combustion and the maintenance of animal heat, while L also builds up the muscles and repairs the worn and threadbare nerves.

The flour made from it in its dried state is equal in nutritive value to rice, and how invigorating and sustaining rice is has been demonstrated in the recent achievements of the Japanese. Dried and sprinkled with sugar, a form in which it has been recently introduced into this country, the upstart banana is, weight for weight, as nutritious as the venerable fig.

But it is in the fresh state clad in its primand Repairs the Nerves.

ana is, weight for weight, as nutritious as the venerable fig.

But it is in the fresh state, clad in its primpose tunic—the stripping off of which is in itself a fascinating operation—that the banana chiefly appeals to us. Its creamy succurrence and delicious odor are inviting and its pleasant sapor is a prelude to good digestion. Dependent as that sapor is on an ethereal body which the coal-tar investigators have not yet been able to imitate by any chemical essence, it is a subtle stimulus to all subsequent alimentary processes. And thus it is that the banana is an eminently digestible food. No sense of oppression or drowsiness follows a meal of it, and a meal of it may be bulky enough.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Marylander Landed Large Fish After Three Minutes' Struggle.

Dr. E. E. Tull, the noted gynecologist came to New York from the eastern shore of Maryland, commonly supposed to be a part of the Garden of Eden transplanted. Last Saturday a shark appeared in the shallow water under the pier of the Wa-Wa-Yanda Club on Cap Tree Is-land. In less time than it takes to write it, Dr. Tull shed his clothes, leaving on nothing but his shirt, and was wading in the direction of the monster, tiptoeing so as not to disturb him. The tiger of the sea appeard to be hypnotized. "Hand me a gaff," the Marylander whispered, and a small instrument, such as we fish ermen save a seven-pound bass with was passed to him. The water was just up to his knees. When within five feet of the shark he drove the gaff into its neck, at the same time plunging forward and grasping it by the tail. The struggle lasted three minutes, then Mr. Shark was dragged ashore. It measured 41-2 feet.

On all the great lakes of China are found floating islands, which are enornous rafts of bamboo, overlaid with earth, and upholding above the surface earth, and uphoiding above the surface of the water pretty houses and gardens. They are, in fact, aquatic farms, bearing crops of rice and vegetables. The rich bottom mud, utilized as an artificial soil, bottom mud, utilized as an artificial son, is extremely fertile, and yields bountiful harvests, though on a small scale. In a country where there is such a lack of available land, owing to the overplus of available land, owing to the overpas of population, these floating plantations are most serviceable, large sails being attached to the dwelling house as well as to each corner of the island whenever it is desired to move about. After gathering a crop of grain or garden truck from the surface of the lake, the floating farmer each his pets into the waters and mer casts his nets into the waters and from their depths brings up a supply of fish for his family.

Making Marbles

Germany maintains a monoply of making stone marbles in spite of various efforts made to wrestle the trade away. In the marble and agate quarries there are innumerable chips and bits of stone from the cutting of the large blocks, and this refuse is broken into cubes about the size of a marble.

An experienced worker produces these cubes of stone at an incredible speed and with remarkable uniformity. When about a bushel are ready they are dropped between a grooved bedstone and a revolving runner. Water is kept constantly supplied, and in half an hour the stones are turned out perfect spheres. With abundant water power the cost is slight, as a couple of men can keep a decompany to the stones are publicly and the raw management of the stones supplied and the raw management of the stones of the stones

In other countries the cost of prepar-ing the blanks eats up the profits and competition with the German made pro-duct is impossible.

Mr. Riddell, for the Wabash Railway, said there were three objections to the appeal to the Supreme Court: First, that it was unauthorized; second, that it was academic, no legislation having yet been passed which affected the case, nor did it follow that there would be any, even if their Lordships held that it was within the power of the Provinces to pass it; third, that all the questions have already been decided by their Lordships' judgment.

Some of the members of the Lord's Day Alliance were inclined to accept the decision as final and made application to the Minister of Justice at Otawa to have legislation passed in accordance with the new situation. RUSSIAN POPULACE DISPLEASED WITH THE KAISER FOR GUIDE.

They Have Doubts of His Wisdom as a Diplomatic Tutor to the Czar.

A St. Petersburg cable: The circumstances attending the meeting of the kaiser and the Czar make it clear that the Kaiser's was the guiding hand. An intimation of his wish to meet the Czar aboard the Imperial yacht Hohenzollern reached Peterhof on Wednesday, the day of M. de Witte's departure for Paris. The Czar immediately accepted the invitation, and made final arrangements to tation, and made final arrangements to start on Friday and meet the Kaiser in Swedish waters. The brief postponement and the transferance of the meeting of the transferance of the meeting of the meetin and the transference of the meetingplace to the coast of Finland were Neither Alexieff nor Vladimir is disposed to mix directly in Russia's present political trouble.

The Czar's brother-in-law, the Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch, has recently shown signs of instability on the subject of a National Assembly. Besides, there has been an estrangement between him and the Czar on account of the Grand Duke's implacable antagonism to M. de Witte.

Of all this the Kaiser was well informed. He holds strongly that, as a sovereign ruling by divine right, it is not only permissible for him, but incumbent on him, to give counsel to the only other Christian sovereign holding the title to the throne on the same grounds. He considers the Czar's struggle with the socialistic and revolutionary forces in Russia as of direct consequence to the ruler of Germany, whose greatest internal anxiety springs from the same source.

THE GRAY WOLF.

His Cunning Is Marvelous, and He Is

The cunning of the gray wolf is marreicus, and it is most difficult to catch napping. He somehow seems to know that fron is associated with man. A piece of iron anywhere will keep him at a distance. If you shoot an antelope, for instance, and just put your spur on the carcass you may leave it as long as you like and no wolf will touch it. A pocket handkerchief will

Lobo, a great gray wolf who was the king of the pack at Currumpaw, a wast cattle range in New Mexico, was a thinker as well as a ruler. His pack ate nothing but what they had killed themselves, and thus poison was no good. At last a thousand dollars was set upon his head. This brought a noted wolf hunter from Texas, with his pack of great wolfhounds. But again there was failure. Then two other hunters came with subtly devised poisons to work his undoing. Then I came on the scene. First I tried poison, and there was no combination of strychnine, arsenic and prussic acid which I did not use. I put the poisons in cheese melted together with kidney fat, and during the whole process I wore gloves steeped in hot blood. And I scattered the bait all over the ranch. The next morning I went out and found Lobo's tracks, with the bait gone. I was delighted. I followed the track and found another bait gone and yet another. Then I found the three baits piled upon another one and covered with filth. Lobo had evidently carried the first three in his mouth and had taken this means of express ing his utter contempt for my devices. But Lobo's downfall came about through a big white she wolf who was always with him. I managed to catch her in a trap. Then I knew we should soon have Lobo. Night after night he estead and mourned his mate in long, plaintive howls. I knew he would try to find her body. I set 130 strong steel wolf traps, and in one of these I caught him-a martyr to constancy. And that was the end of Lobo.—Interview With Ernest

Two Ways of Doing Business. I have seen in London only one office where there is any real enthusiasm. And the employees seldom have any in terest in the business beyond drawing their salaries. In most of the factories and even in the offices, they are taught a certain round of duties, and they are allowed to do nothing else. They seldom suggest improvements for fear of losing their places, where in America they'd soon lose their places if they didn't make suggestions. Here it's the firm in its private offices and everybody else doing as little as possible and never stepping out of the rut they're put in, and there it's everybody working together, coats off, and the head of the concern glad to listen to the office boy and to do as he says if it means reReported Appearance in Manitoba.

A German epicure comes to the rescue of the Chinese in regard to their alleged habit of eating rotten eggs. He thinks there are no better cooks in the world than the When he went to live among them his friends predicted he would starve, but he had a good time and gained weight-more than he wanted

Balky Steam Boilers. According to an engineer, though there may be every reason present why a steam boiler should steam there are occasions when it simply will not. It refuses duty and sulks without any cause that can be detected. On such occasions every one takes a hand at the fires, but the result is the same no steam or only enough to keep quarters speed. Marine and stationary hollers are both thus afflicted. There are "good days" and "bad days" in the performance of each.

medical ingredients necessary to regulate and strengthen every organ of the female system. And that is just what these tablets do. In taking the ordinary remedies you may miss the very ingredients your system requires These tablets contain every ingredient. They go to the weak spot wherever it may be.

It is not necessary to guess at the cause of the trouble and perhaps take the wrong medicine half a dozen times. It is not necessary to even know exactly the cause of the trouble.

Dr. Hugo's remedy contains something for every organ of the female system; something for the stomach to help indigestion for the bowels to cure constipation-for the nervous system to tone up the nerves-for the liver and kidneys to make them active in carrying off impurities-something for the uterine system to stop alldrains, allay inflammation and make women regular.

The tablets are sure to go to the right spot and get there the first

The remedy is now recognized beyond doubt or question as the best adapted to the special needs of sick and run-down women, no matter what the cause.

"Stomach Catarrh"

It is a fatal waste of time to trifle with snuffs, powders, inhalers, or other dangerous postrums, with the idea of curing Catarrh of the Stomach. Once Catarrh has reached the stomach it can only be eradicated by creating pure, rich blood. Catarrh is a germ disease. The stomach and intestines become nests for myriads of these tiny germs. Local applications have no effect on them. They must be driven out -the stomach cleansed, the blood purified, the system toned up. "PSYCHINE" will positively cure the worst form of Stomach Catarrh, by purifying the blood, cleansing the stomach, and destroying germ life. Thousands have been cured of the prevalent malady, through this remarkable discovery, "Psychine." Druggists recommend it.

Perhaps the most ingenious and the curing autographs was from a lady in a western town. She was raising funds for the building and support of a public library, and she had conceived the idea of issuing a volume to be called "The Authors' Recipe Book." Authors from Authors' Recipe Book." Authors from all over the country, the most distinguished of authors—always authors with a capital A—had been good enough FROM BROCKVILLE $75.50 of their own construction, with their method of making them.

The cookbook was one of the many forms of literature to which the recip ient had never turned his attention. He had no more idea of cooking than he had of milking a cow or of harnessing a horse or of setting a hen or of build-ing a dynamo. He did not even care what was cooked for him so long as it contained none of the ingredients of tripe and none of the essence of tomato. But he was asked to contribute a Solo Organist, Pianist and Voice paper, which she would have reproduced in facsimile, stating what he could prepare most to his liking upon a kitchen range or in a chafing dish, with his manner of procedure. This quite nonplused him until he bethought imself of one particular and peculiar delicacy in the evolution of which he could safely trust his reputation as an expert. In reply, for which he received no thanks, he said: "Take a long paper cutter; attach to the same by means of rubber bands. and securely, an ink eraser; insert the ink eraser firmly into a marshmallow plug and hold the same over a student's lamp or study fire until the marshmalbegins to sizz, drops into the ashes, puts out the light or burns your hand. And eat while hot!'

Another fired his gun at ducks, which knocked him over on his back and fairly got away from him. When he nicked up the gun he found a narrow raised band around the barrel fourteen inches from the muzzle. In this case a wad had probably lodged there. This cus tomer thinks the manufacturers ought to give him a new set of barrels. I tell him if the barrels had not been good ones it would have been a burst instead of a bulge, which might have maimed or killed him. Another man lying on a point brought down a duck with broken wing which scurried for the water. The man ran and struck the duck with the muzzle of the gun and in so doing got sand in it. He blew most of it out and shot out the rest of it. Well, after that shot he found a little blister two inches from the muzzle about the size of a man's little fin-

GREAT EXCITEMENT CAUSED ON WINNIPEG EXCHANGE.

Wninipeg, July 31.—The corner in July wheat caused great excitement on the Exchange here this morning, the price at one time touching nineteen cents above yesterday's close and clos ing at $1.30, an advance, of fourteen cents. It is believed the Ogilvies and the Van Dusen Harrington company are the mainsprings of the movement which has placed wheat 20 to 25 cents above the export price. The corner has resulted in Robert Muir & Co issuing an injunction against the Clearing House Association to prevent them paying out money or buying grain.

The corner as it now stands is a pure gamble, and of no henefit to the country as a whole, as the number of the farmers who have wheat to sell to wards the end of July is always small The result of the injunction will be awaited with great interest as the rules of the exchange endeavor to prohibit the forcing up of wheat prices be-yond the point at which there is a mar-ket for it. The adoption of Chicago tactics on the Winnipeg Exchange is not looked upon with favor.

Bradstreet's on Trade.

Montreal reports to Bradstreet's say: Midsummer quietness still effects the whole sale trade here and the volume of business actually moving is light although it compares fairly well with that of this time last year. The markets for country produce holds up well. There is an especially good export demand for dairy butter and cheese and prices for these are higher. Shipments of cattle are large. Collections here and there

The fruit and grain crops about here are in good condition and the harvest promises well. Collections are fair. Trade reports from London say: The volume of business here, taken all around, is good, although wholesale trade is a little quiet.

SAWED BARS OF PRISON CELL.

Kingston Convict Awaited Chance to Make Escape-Uproar Over Food.

A Kingston, Ont., report: A convict named Macdonald, undergoing sentence in Kingston Penitentiary, had such confidence in his ability to escape the vigilance of the guards that he sawed all traces of the work so successfull that it was by mere accident the weak ened bars were discovered. It is pre-sumed that Macdonald was only await ing a favorable opportunity to spring apart the bars and make his escape. Upon discovery of the condition of af-fairs Macdonald was removed to another cell and will be kept under close surveillance.
There was a decided uprour in the penitentiary vesterday at noon, which startled people. It was, however, only one of the usual disturbances of the convicts when the food previded was not up to their wishes. They shouted, hooted.

In these times when we hear so much about microbes, and when a war aaginst spitting is being actively waged, it is omewhat reassuring to find that there is something to be said for sunlight, air, and even dust, as germicides . Dr. Cassidy, of the Provincial Board of Health, writing in the Sanitary Journal, combats the alarmist views that have prevailed in some quarters. He does not deny the possibility of the spread of tuberculosis thinks the wight of evidence goes to show that the germs are dangeous only in proportion to the extent to which they have been shielded from air and sunlight. He conetnds that the street dust has really a strong disinfectant power on the sputa of scarlet fever, diphtheria, meases, whooping cough, influenza, etc., destroying instead of enhancing its virulence. Germs in a closed room will retain their virulence for a considerable time, while they are soon destroyed by fresh air and sunlight. This view finds support from no less an authority than the New York Medical Record. The anti-spitting campaign is good as a matter of cleanliness; it is vile to spit on the sidewalks and floors; but as a matter of sanitation it is no less bad-it may even be worse-to spit in the grass. Cast into the sunlight of the paved streets there is reason to think the life of the germ of tuberculosis is likely to be short. Sunlight is a great purifier; if we lived more in the sunlight and inhaled more pure air we should have less consumption.
