PROGRESS OF THE WAR

[June 8 to June 14] N the week under review the news

the several battle fronts has been even more meagre than usual, and more at variance, regarding the different sources from which it issued. Therefore, with such meagre and contradictory reports, it is difficult to sum up the net results of the week's operations. It is safe to say that no signal or decisive advantage was gained by any side, in any theatre of the war except in Gallipoli Peninsula, where the Anglo-French Allies have gained import ant vantage points from the Turks, and on the Austro-Italian frontier, where the Italians have met with much success. In the western arena continuous fight ing took place from Arras north to the sea, though the end of the week found the belligerents in much the same position as at the beginning. OBITUARY

MR. JAMES JOHNSTON.

News has been received of the death of Mr. James Johnston, who died in South Minneapolis on June 1, at the age of 46. Mr. Johnston, who had made his home in the west for a number of years, was engaged in the lumber business, and was seriously injured by being thrown off the pier among the logs in the river. He was taken to the hospital, where everything was done for his relief, but all proved unavailing. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Herbert Townsend, Salem, Mass,, and Mrs. Earnest Graham, St. Andrews, and three brothers, Kinsman, of Minneapolis and William and Simon, of Elmsville. The funeral took place in Minneapolis under the auspices of the Odd Fellows.

Chapman, a well-known essayist and dramatist:—

"The Germans, while they are very clever and talented, in almost every way, have in a political sense always been children. . . Thus it happened that the most learned nation in the world has fallen quite behind the other western nations of Europe in regard to certain rudimentary political matters as, for instance, in the knowledge of how to hold meetings, make speeches, get up protests; how to collect the men who agree with you about some matter and make their opinion prevail; how not to vote taxes which you do not approve of; how not to go to goal for free speaking. The German has been at the mercy of his rulers to an extent which it is hard for an American to understand. . This war has been made by the intellectuals; the philosophy of it is a study-bred thing: like the new German bomb-shells. That philosophy of destruction, which lies beneath both the siege-guns and the pamphlets, is
