CHAPTER VIII.
A Choice Supper.

Another result of this system was that the supper was a very varied meal. The kitchen people were too busy "to bother about that supper," and Jane did not dare to take upon herself to purloin any of the good things that came out from the dinner. The result was usually that she prepared a very small amount of cold meat and some bread and cheese, which was grandly called Miss Crump's supper.

When Toney came in very hungry she found this fare spread out for her and Miss Crump in the sitting room.

"This is a cold collation, Crumpet dear! Is this your supper?"

"Oh, anything does for me, dear."

"I imagine that inside you're made just the same as Aunt Dove, and I know I am! What if I cooked a bit of supper for you, Crumpet dear? I'm first-rate at cooking. I can toss up anything."

"Oh, no, indeed! It's impossible; it mustn't be done."

"You bet, Mrs. Homes don't know how to do little things! Here, whisk all this into that work-basket, and I'll forage. We'll have a rare good supper to-night!"

"Miss Antonia—Toney, dear, what will Lady Dove say? I beseech you."

But Toney's actions, when she was in a hurry, were like lightning, and the loaf, the dry cheese, and the cold meat, wrapped up in the small tablecloth, were packed in a large basket and on their way to the kitchen.

Just then there was a full in the routine of the kitchen. Dessert had gone in, and Mrs. Homes was sitting down, directing Rosa about some dripping, when a scuffle and a rush were heard and Toney stood before her, holding up a large white bundle.

"Lor, miss, how you frightened me!" said Mrs. Homes.

"I didn't mean to," said Toney, cheerfully. "Did you think this white thing was a ghost? Well, so it is!"

"A ghost, miss!" Mrs. Homes started up, and Toney's merriment filled the kitchen.

"It's the ghost of our supper! We want the body of it. Now look, Mrs. Homes, Crumpet and I aren't greedy; but, look here, what would you think of that if it was your supper?"

Toney spread out the cloth and showed the cold mutton bones, the ancient cheese, and the dry loaf.

"Well, miss," said Mrs. Homes, raising her head in anger. "I've had no orders about supper upstairs. I've enough to do with the late dinner."

"Now, dear Mrs. Homes, don't be huffy with me! It's not your fault, I'm sure, it's somebody's mistake; but I don't want to give you any more trouble, so if you'll let me stand at your fire I'll soon make things straight. At home, you know, we let people come and have a bit of firing if they liked. We were just neighbourly there, you see, and I'm a first rate cook. Real talent that way."

"You, miss!"

"Well, yes, it's true. Puss often had nothing but what I could cook. This mutton bone will make a nice little hash. Rosa shall get me a little gravy, and Mrs. Homes, aren't muttons good? Ketchup will do, however, and pepper and salt. Stars, you'll see! There's no time for pudding, but we'll toast this old cheese, and there must be some fruit or something left from uncle and aunt's dinner! I mean to give my Chum, a treat. Her appetite's delicate. There's a look of slow liver, don't you think about Miss Crump?"

There was no withstanding Toney, in her busy, earnest mood, and gradually Mrs. Homes' anger began to melt. "Tisn't fit work for you, missy. Leave me to do it."

"Fit work! Why, Mrs. Homes, I'm real poor, lots poorer than you are, bet. Just a poor relation. But you see, it's as well to make the best of the situation, and Crumpet is tired to-night."

"Her ladyship wouldn't like you be here, missy. If you'll just go, I'll send you up something, and Rosa shall take it."

"But you can't do the cheese in just a homely way, can you, dear Mrs. Homes?"

"Yes, miss, my poor mother was that fond of it when I was a girl that I often did it for her."

Toney looked hopeful.

"Ah, that's right. Well, I'll go back if you say I must, and tell Rosa to bring me up a nice tablecloth. Puss was so particular on that score. I will have nothing on it, Toney, he of ten said, let's have it white and clean."

"I shouldn't have thought you minded such things, missy," said Mrs. Homes, laughing in spite of herself at Toney's remarks.

"I had to! I'll tell you what, cook dear, some day when we have time, I'll get a day off my time-table, I'll invite you to supper and do all the cooking."

"Oh, miss, whatever are you talking about! But if you'll just go up again I'll see what I can do."

Toney looked regretfully at the chest, but obeyed. In a few minutes she was back again in the sitting room. The room looked very different now that it was adorned with choice flowers, and that a woman's hand had been at work. Miss Crump, however, was sitting on the edge of her chair, trembling with fear. Suppose Lady Dove should come up before Toney returned! Suppose—At last Toney did burst in. Her entrance was always like the rush of fresh air into a hot room.

"I'm very sorry, Crumpet dear, cool wouldn't let me toss you up a little supper. That's what it is to live in a prison-house. You must make the best of it. You see we have lost what we had even."

"Oh, I don't mind about that, indeed I don't. I'm often too tired to eat the mutton; but you, Toney, you haven't had any supper."

Trik was curled up in front of the fire and cocked his ears at the word supper.

"I'm just famished, I'll own. It's dreadful to have an appetite like mine. Never mind, Chum, we'll tell stories, and I'll make my waist-band very tight. That's what the men in the bush do if they can't get any food. I assure you it does for some hours."

"The servants will be so angry! I will look as if I complained, and what will Lady Dove say? Oh, dear, I wish you were not quite so—" she started up, woke Triek, and began to examine the furniture, with a view to improving the comfort of Chum's abode.

This amused Toney immensely, s

"To be in this arm-chair is like sleeping on deck with no pillow! I'll tell you what, Chum, we'll undo it and stuff it again. Next time Uncle Dove goes shopping he shall bring back some nice horsehair. I wonder if we could get some from the horses' tails here. No, that won't do; but wool! A fleece dried, washed and carded; uncle could give us that."

At this moment Rosa, with a face wreathed in smiles, knocked at the door and entered, carrying a tray on which reposed a supper such as poor Miss Crump had never had in her life before. Mrs. Homes had been touched on her tenderest point, and everything was as if Sir Evas himself had ordered a private repast.

"Is there anything else you can think of, miss?" asked Rosa, who could now follow the dictates of her heart as Mrs. Homes had set the example.

Toney looked critically at the dishes.

"No, Rosa, I'm hungry, so I'm not very particular to-night. By the way, don't forget to put something in my hiding-place for to-morrow morning. Plain bread and butter and just something else will do."

Rosa said, "Yes, miss," and disappeared with quite a new excitement in her life.

Jane of course was much offended, and recounted her woes to Mrs. Stone. She had never had no orders, and if it hadn't been for her Miss Crump wouldn't have had any supper at all, etc. It need only be added that Toney was the subject of conversation in the housekeeper's room that evening, and that Miss Crump's supper was never again a thing without joy.

Lady Dove was congratulating herself that Antonia was upstairs and well out of mischief. Sir Evas, however, was anxious to know why Toney could not come downstairs.

"She has no frock for the evening. I must tell Rivett to do one up for her to-morrow. My old grey silk will do out."

"I've to go to town to-morrow. I might bring some stuff," said Sir Evas, who was rather tired of his wife's old grey silk, and had a wish to see Toney in something new.

"Stuff! Really, Evas, you don't know how to shop. You would get something that would not wear and that would spot. This wild girl ought to be dressed in sack-cloth."

"Hales would think she was an anchorite, he was preaching about anchorites the other day. After all, Melina, the girl brightens up the house a good deal."

"I'm glad you think so, Evas. I'm sure there has been no peace since the set foot here, but of course men—"

Sir Evas knew he had called down a storm on his head, so he said hastily that "as it was a fine night he would have a stroll in the garden," and taking a cigar he went off, leaving his wife to do some important accounts before she sent for Miss Crump.

His ill-luck took him round under the sitting-room window, and worse still, it made him cough just as he looked up at the light shining brightly through the uncurtained glass. In a moment Toney's curly head popped out, for a sound against a high wall carried very distinctly upwards.

Pneumonia from a Cold

PNEUMONIA is second only to consumption in the number of deaths which it causes, and like consumption always has its beginning with a cold.

Cold in the head, fever and chills, cough which gradually becomes dry and more painful in the chest, rapid difficult breathing, feelings of exhaustion and depression—these are symptoms of pneumonia.

You can prevent and cure pneumonia by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine the greatest of all treatments for the throat and lungs.

The only safe way is to regard every cold as serious. By frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can quickly break up the cold and guard against dangerous developments. 25 cent bottle, at all dealers, or Edmondson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

"Uncle Dove! I'm sure that's your cough! Uncle Dove!"

"Ahem! What is the matter?"

"Well, 'tain't a robber, or fire, or murder, uncle; but just your advice is wanted. Do you think you'd like to give it to us? We have set our hearts on a fleece of wool."

"A fleece of wool! Good gracious, what for?"

"I can't explain well from up here. I'd have to shout so. Uncle Dove, just step through the little door below, and come up the back stairs. Nobody'll see you. I don't mind your cigar; but Miss Crump does, and you must leave that weed somewhere on the way. Triek doesn't like it very much either. He'd bark if you brought it here."

"I don't think I want to come, Toney," said Sir Evas, coughing again. What would Melina say if he was heard of in Miss Crump's sitting-room? was his private thought.

"Don't want to come when two ladies ask you, Uncle Dove! Well, I won't ride with you any more, or—"

"Just for a minute then, Toney," and Sir Evas stunk in through the side door as directed, and crept up the back stairs.

Toney drew her head in again, laughing.

"It's just to make him sit on that hard chair that I want him. Experience is worth so much more than only words."

"Oh, but Toney! how could you! And this supper not cleared away, and—"

Poor Miss Crump thought seriously at this moment of resigning her situation. These startling doings were too much for her nerves.

"That won't take a minute, Chum dear, I did not notice it before, but your evening dress is really very shabby. How long have you had it? Puss let me dress as I liked by day, so that I pleased him in the evening; but when—Well, I made a bonfire of all my dresses before I left. Wish I hadn't. I know Aunt Dove will dress me in grey. I can't bear that colour. Oh! there he comes! Isn't he going softly, he's afraid of somebody."

How the Ragman Succeeded.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

The ragman made his spring visit the other day, and in return for our winter accumulation of "rage, bottles, old iron," rendered us a small sum of money which, according to neighborhood custom, we have invested in plants and flower seeds.
 We call him the ragman, but rightly he should be called the ragboy, for he is not yet twenty years old. And yet, he has been in charge of the business, driving his own cart and his own bargains, ever since he was thirteen, and doing it, moreover, with such success that I suspect he is decidedly more prosperous than many of the customers from whose dirty cellars he cheerfully removes all kinds of rubbish.
 In the course of his last visit we asked him this rather unusual ragman if business was good this year, and he averred that it was. Then he added that business was always good with him, and explained that this was because he treated people squarely. "I tell you," he said, as he swung his bundle of rags on his broad shoulder, and turned to depart, "if you treat people good, you'll succeed, because they want to see you again and that makes business. But if you try to skin them, you may win out the first time, but you'll get yours in the end."
 Now the ragman was not expressing a precept of ethics with no foundation in real life. He probably doesn't know what ethics means. He was simply telling what his experience as a ragman had taught him—that the square deal pays.

One of the most successful business men I know said to me the other day: "I never did business primarily for money." Knowing something about his career, I believe him. He is a baker and I happen to know that to make the best bread possible for the money has always meant even more to him than financial success.

"I never chose the right thing when I had to pick between what I knew was right and what seemed expedient, without finding that the right thing turned out to be expedient in the end," says another business man. He, too, has been successful in almost everything he has taken up.

"Whether is all this tending?" you may ask. Simply to this, my friends: I think we are all apt to have the idea that one man's success in business means another man's failure, and that the dishonest, or, at best, the over-reaching man, is the only one who can make money nowadays.

Now, that may be true as regards the vast fortunes which are upsetting the country. I do not believe any man can accumulate such wealth without dishonesty; at least in the moral sense if not in the legal. But in regard to moderate business success I am daily more convinced that it comes from serving other men rather than from over-reaching them.

These three men I have quoted were all hard-headed business men, but they didn't find it necessary to be hard-hearted.

It is rather the fashion to be cynical about these things. Let's be un-fashionable.

Ruth Cameron

Are You Blue and Worried?

Nervous? Some of the time really ill? Catch cold easily and frequently suffer from biliousness or headache? The reason is that your system does not rid itself of the poisons in the blood; just as impossible as it is for the grate of a stove to rid itself of cinders. The waste does to us exactly what the cinders do to the stove; make the fire burn low until enough cinders have accumulated and then prevent its burning at all. Your liver is sluggish—you are dull and heavy—sleep does not rest, nor is food appetizing. In this condition illness develops. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery eradicates the poisons from the body—a glyceric alterative extract made from bloodroot, golden seal and mandrake root, stone and queen's root, without the use of alcohol. No matter how strong the constitution the stomach is apt to be "out of kilter" at times; in consequence the blood is disordered, for the stomach is the laboratory for the constant manufacture of blood.

MRS. BLAKE.

Mrs. BESS BLAKE, of Port Dover, Ont., Box 28, writes: "I have been a great sufferer for years from indigestion, female troubles, bloating, constipation and nervousness—at times I would be in bed, then able to get up again. Was under many different doctors' care, and would get better for a little while, then I would go down with chronic inflammation all through me. For nineteen years I had this disease, trying nearly everything I got worse. I read in The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. I have since used 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' and have used five bottles of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. I am now able to do my work and walk with pleasure. I feel like a new woman. I enjoy everything around me and thank God for letting me live long enough to find something that made me well again."
 Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate liver and bowels.

Household Notes.

As cleaners, oil newspapers have many uses. For drying window panes, for wiping out greasy pans and for polishing a stove, a crushed newspaper has few rivals, and when dipped in kerosene it cleans sinks well or removes rust from either porcelain or enamel when moistened with vinegar.

Bookmarks for cook books will save time in a kitchen as a cook may lose the place where a recipe has been found for her. For recipes used frequently, strips of cardboard of one color may be used; for special recipes to be followed some particular day strips of different color may be taken. For keeping dust out of closets where there are no silks under the doors, get some weather stripping with a felt edge, not rubber, and nail it to the bottom of the doors on the inside. The felt should just touch the floor. There will not be enough resistance to make the doors drag, and the dust will be kept out.
 A good way to clean a carpet-sweeper is to remove the brush, and after taking off all the hairs and lint rub it well with a cloth wet in kerosene (coal oil). Let the brush remain in the air till the odor has evaporated. The sweeper will leave the carpets and rugs looking much brighter after this treatment.

Newspapers are naturally moth-proof, as moths refuse to penetrate printer's ink. Winter clothing covered with many final wrappings sealed so that it has no opening is moth-proof; yet it is well to put camphor or moth balls inside the clothing in this newspaper case.

When buying souvenirs in a city you are visiting why not pass by the cheap stall commonly offered to strangers and get a book? If it is hardly possible to find a good one identified with the city, so much the better. Write in the book your name, place where you buy it and date and thus form a "souvenir library."

Covering a turkey with a cheesecloth will prevent it from getting scorched or drying too much while roasting. When the fowl is ready for the oven, sew it in a piece of cheesecloth and baste it through this covering, only removing the cloth at the time the turkey is ready to be served when you will find it has the requisite golden-brown color.

Here is a way to save time when warming the baby's bottle of milk: Cut in the cover of an empty lard pail a hole just large enough to permit of putting the bottle into the pail easily. When the time comes for heating the milk, pour into the pail enough hot water to surround the bottle without overflowing, place the cover on and put the bottle in the hole.

Do not throw away colored pictures if you have no children in your home. Keep a big envelope in the drawer of the library table and slip into it any pretty picture that comes to the house. Often an advertisement is worth saving after the type matter has been cut off. When an envelope is filled, address it to some child you know or to a children's hospital.

Squares of hemmed-up cheesecloth kept in the kitchen or pantry drawer will be found useful to put over bowls or pitchers containing soup, milk, etc., or to throw over a cold roast before putting it away. Of course, the cloths should be fastened snugly over the dishes, and a box of rubber bands kept with the pile of cloths will be found more convenient than string for this purpose.

Should you be annoyed by the great amount of steam which usually accompanies the cooking of cabbage, onions, etc., take a deep lid, or turn the lid of your cooking pot upside down and put cold water in it. As the water becomes heated, empty it out and put in fresh water. This will not only keep the steam from your kitchen, but will lessen the odor of cooking throughout the house.

Mend your boy's trousers by machine to save both time and labor. These tears never pull out if properly done, and the patch shows very slightly. Take a piece of material as much like the trousers as possible and baste well under the torn or worn place. Put the work under the machine needle, stitch backward and forward across the tear, being careful not to turn back until well over the worn place. Stitch as close as you find practical. When finished, cut out from underneath any unnecessary material and press well.

The Fly.

BY H. L. RANN.

H. L. RANN.

The fly is an agile and prolific insect with four feet and one of the most industrious stingers known to profane history. It is looked upon as a pest and pursued with ceaseless energy by people clad in night and day.

The fly lives upon bread crumbs, babies and the sensitive apex of the baldheaded man. The average fly will forsake a custard pie or a pineapple ice without a moment's regret in order to turn a few handsprings on a head which is not covered with anything but pure, fresh air. Many a baldheaded man has been roused out of a tuncful siesta by the rude footsteps of some able-bodied fly with no sense of propriety and a ball-bearing punch. We do not now recall a more pathetic sight than that of a bald man trying to spear a large, active fly with a palm leaf fan and profane protests that would burn a hole through an asbestos roof. The fly is the greatest little multiplier now engaged in padding the census returns. He does not live to himself alone, but scatters sunshine and blue-nosed offspring over the pathway of life in the most reckless and prodigal manner. The fly is beset by pitfalls on all sides, ranging from the calloused hand of the hired girl to the poisonous finger bowl. Every year millions of flies walk carelessly into the embrace of a sheet of sticky fly paper, rear agonizingly on their hind feet in an attitude of deep concern, then sink calmly to rest in a gully grave. The fly does not work at his trade in the winter time; he devotes himself to sharpening his stinger and educating what is left of a once happy and united family. The favorite pastime of the fly is to secrete himself in a bedroom on a hot night and walk up and down the face of some belligerent citizen who slaps himself to the verge of the vertigo. People have consigned the fly to the cold and silent tomb in large quantities for 6,000 years, but every spring he bobs up with a fresh crop of relatives and renews his attack upon infuriated man.

MONDAY, June 10, 1912.

Awaiting Replies.

On Saturday we pointed out that ten weeks had elapsed since the transmission of the first Memorial to His Excellency the Governor, directing his attention to the connection of one of his Ministers with certain transactions connected with the acquisition and disposal of enormous areas of timber land on the Labrador. A short time afterwards a second Memorial was presented, directing the attention of His Excellency to the text of a letter written by the Hon. Donald Morrison some weeks after he became a Minister of the Crown. The text of the letter is one of the most remarkable ones which probably ever emanated from a law officer of the Crown. We republish it because it is so long ago since we published it last in order to refresh the memory of our readers:—

St. John's, Nfld.,
April 6th, 1909.
Mr. R. W. Strong, Boston.

Dear Strong,—Your letter of 25th ult. came duly to hand and I note contents. I hope that you will succeed as well as you anticipate in disposing of the timber properties and that before long you will have something definite to communicate to me in that direction. I enclose you a plan of the Orange Bay property, which will show its location clearly. You will notice that the land has been taken on each side of the main river and its two branches. From your experience of timber lands in Newfoundland, and particularly in that part of the country, you will know that the land in the river valleys is always the choice location for timber. The man who holds timber abutting on a river can log and drive his timber the cheapest, and until some other person locates behind him, there is nothing to prevent him from getting a good deal of timber from the adjoining Crown land. The river will furnish a satisfactory power for a small pulp operation, and I do not see, for the size of it, a better property or one that can be more easily or more cheaply worked than this Orange Bay property.

I note what you say about the electric franchise for Bonavista and Trinity, but nothing can be done in that direction until the House of Assembly meets. The House opened on March 20th, but on account of the political deadlock we could not elect a Speaker. The House was then adjourned until to-day, and it has since been postponed until Saturday next. Between this and Saturday I expect the House will be dissolved and an election proclaimed, which will take place in the early part of next month. Nothing, therefore, can be done with regard to the franchise until the House of Assembly meets and is in a position to do business. I will see if I can get hold of two copies of the charter of the Twillingate Electrical Co., and if so, will forward same to your address under separate cover.

Yours truly,
D. MORISON.

Not only was the writer of this letter a law officer of the Crown, but since the two Memorials have been presented to His Excellency the Governor, and since Sir Edward Morris left for England, he has been Acting Premier. We are directing attention to these matters at present inasmuch as it seems not unreasonable to remind His Excellency that answers to the two Memorials are awaited.

TORONTO, June 6.—Reports still persist that Archbishop McNeill of Vancouver is to be the new Archbishop of Toronto. The official notice must come from Rome.

Opening New Organ at Wesley Church.

The very fine organ presented by the Hon. Jas. S. Pitts, C.M.G., and the Trustee Board of Cochrane Street Church, that has been erected in Wesley Church, was used in yesterday's services. From the celebrated firm, P. Conacher & Co., Huddersfield, Eng., it came for Cochrane Street Church some years ago. It contains over a thousand pipes, has eleven stops in the Great Organ, trumpet, principal, flute chimenee, horn diapason, double open diapason, clarinet, fifteenth dulciana harmonic flute, open diapason and bourdon, and ten stops in the Small Organ: cornopean, oboe, mixture, vox celeste and others. Besides four couplers, several improvements have been added, and it will be blown by a Kinetic blower in future, which will arrive by the Stephano. Arthur Mews, Esq., who had brought out its best qualities during many years, very kindly re-opened it, and demonstrated in such a manner as only a master hand can, its rich and powerful tones, as well as its sweet serpentine notes. The Rev. Dr. Rogers delivered a very able sermon in the morning, on the influence of music, its place in the church, its association in the praise of God from earliest times; the impressiveness and majesty of orchestral music in the ritual of the temple, the grandeur of the combination of instruments and voices in the antiphonal singing of the early church, its attraction for those in agamism to the worship of God; and proceeded to speak of the magnificent effect of the music from great organs in massive Cathedrals in the cities of the world. At the close of a vivid word-picturing of the power of music when reaching the fountains of thought and feeling, fostering in the heart the sentiments of patriotism devotion and worship, he congratulated the congregation on receiving such a fine instrument; for its loyalty and aggressiveness in Christian work and service, and hoped that for many years its usefulness would be felt in the West End of the city.

At night Rev. F. R. Matthews, B.A., was the preacher, and spoke from the words in Revelation V, 8th verse: "And they sang a new song." He referred to the song of Miriam and the women of Israel after the overthrow of the Egyptians in the Red Sea. The playing upon the harp, flute, viol and other instruments by various people. Most instruments, even the piano had been brought to perfection, but the pipe organ, with all its possibilities, was not perfect yet. Its notes could resemble the voice of a weeping child or the roar of the angry waves on the rock cliffs; the gentle rustling of the summer breeze or the thunder of the tempest. But the vision of the seer had a far wider purview as he heard them sing the new "Song of Moses and the Lamb" and only those who have loved to sing the songs of Zion here can have part in the great "Hallelujah Chorus" unto "Him who hath loved us and washed us in His blood to Him be the glory forever." Though music may ponder to fashion, the great composers have all been Christians, and inspired by their theme unto outburst of glorious harmony. Education only can open the eyes of the mind, but redemption only can open the eyes of the soul and when materialism and earth's pleasures or difficulties are over, out of the discord shall involve the bliss of the redeemed and the harmony of heaven. After the lesson, Miss Flora M. Curtis sang "Fear ye not O' Israel," from Elijah.

The heartfelt congratulations must be accorded to Mr. Walter Vey, on the completion of the rebuilding of the organ to his own satisfaction, which means a great deal to gifted ears and hands, and also to the gratification of the Hon. J. B. Ayre and other qualified judges. To Mr. James Pratt, however, will come the greatest pleasure in having such a splendid instrument from which his talented mind and skillful fingers will, we trust, for many years bring its choicest strains in Divine Worship. Taft's Column is Growing.

Special to Evening Telegram.
CHICAGO, To-day. More delegates of the Republican National Convention were turned in to the Taft column by the National Committee's decision upon contests from Arkansas Florida, Georgia, Roosevelt contestants lost every case in ten Georgia districts. Twenty delegates went to Taft in one blanket decision both sides agreeing. These being decided upon, same arguments had served to choose four delegates at large which had just been given Taft. Two remaining Georgia districts with their two delegates a piece went same way. Twenty four delegates sixteen from Alabama and eight from Arkansas were placed on temporary roll of convention as the result of Saturday's hearings. The day's work runs up to 72 added to Taft list since taking up early this week cases upon which Roosevelt people are laying far more stress than upon those from south such cases for example as those from Indiana, which probably will be taken up this week. There still remains before these cases can be taken six delegates at large from Arizona, and the fourth congressional district California.

Mr. W. W. Horwood, son of William Horwood of the Horwood Lumber Company, was married Wednesday in St. Matthew's Presbyterian Church, Montreal, to Maud G. Henry, daughter of Mr. Mrs. William Henry, of Montreal. Rev. Dr. Gibson officiated. The bride was attended by her sister, Georgina Henry, and was given away by her father. Mr. J. W. Smith, best man, and a brother of the bride, Mr. J. A. Henry, was one of the ushers. The bride was attired in a gown of white satin with pearl trimmings and wore a veil with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold bracelet and to the bridesmaid a gold ring. The honeymoon will be spent in New York, after which the married couple will reside in Montreal. To them we extend our wishes.

Was Forced to Suspend.

Budapest, Hungary, June 6.—The proceedings of the Diet to-day looked so much like developing into a free fight that the President, Count Tisza, suspended the sitting within a few minutes after the opening.
The Count's appearance on the rostrum was the signal for an outburst of curses and personal opprobrium, and a chorus of toy instruments drowned all attempts to speak. The passionate verbal altercations of opposing elements raised the temper of the members to dangerous heat and all indications pointed to the probability of the factions coming to grips. Accordingly Tisza declared the sitting suspended. All the approaches to the Parliament were held by detachments of Gendarmes and Police.
During the recess the members of the ministerial party left the House and the police entered, and after a scuffle expelled thirty members who had been named by the President for systematic disturbance. When the sitting was resumed the Opposition stirred another melee and then withdrew in a body.
At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

Touring the Provinces.

A large number of strangers were in town last week, remaining in Windsor on their way through the valley. On Wednesday a party of five ladies—Mrs. H. B. MacDonald, Mrs. Holland Lonsbury, Chatham, N.B., Mrs. John Russell, Mrs. John Robinson, Newcastle, N.B., and Mrs. Fred. V. Chesman, St. John's, Nfld., arrived from Wolfville, where they attended the closing exercises of Acadia Seminary, of which institution Mrs. MacDonald is a graduate. They left Chatham May 22nd in Mrs. MacDonald's five-passenger Brockville "30" car, with Mrs. MacDonald at the wheel, and had a most delightful trip through the Province, going as far as Yarmouth. They left there on Thursday morning for Halifax, to remain until the following day, when they would leave for home. At Truro Mrs. Chesman expected to leave this happy party and go to Sydney en route to her home in St. John's.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Trappell and daughter, Jean, returned to Windsor on Friday, via Truro, from a very pleasant trip to Sackville, Montreal, Toronto and Niagara Falls. On their way they left Don at Jonquiere, Quebec, where he will do surveying work until the College re-opens. These always welcome visitors left for Halifax on Monday evening, and the following day sailed on the steamer Florizel for St. John's, Nfld., accompanied by Grant, who has been here while the others were on the tour. While here the party were guests at the home of Mrs. Blackwood, Mrs. Trappell's sister. — Hant's Journal, June 5.

A Much-Needed School.

One of the things our Hospital will do will be to start a school for drivers. Few things irritate more a good driver than to see the stupid, ignorant, utterly irrational methods pursued by many boys, and even men, who have been entrusted with horses, and who know no more about driving than they do about steering a boat. The yanking, the sawing of the mouth, the jerking of the head, the constant nagging of the horse by reins and whip, the urging the horse forward and then pulling him back at the same time—these and other evidences of total lack of knowledge of how to guide and control a horse through the sensitive organ of his mouth, or by the voice, force upon us the desire to see such a school for drivers established as we can make possible when our new Hospital is built. This is a dream which we expect to see realized. A certificate from such a school would be worth something to a young man looking for a driver's position.—F. H. R. in Dumb Animals.

CONCERNING BREAD

And of Special Interest to the Millions Who Eat It.
The housewife together with every lover of good, pure bread, will welcome the announcement that it is possible to obtain Flour from which can be made Bread possessing all the wholesome nutritive and digestive properties contained in the Best and Purest Spring Wheat. Bread made from "ARUNDELL" flour in addition to these merits has that distinctly sweet and wheaty taste obtainable only from the best spring wheat.
"ARUNDELL" goes largely into competition in London and throughout the U. K. with these flours milled by special process and which have become so deservedly popular by reason of their retaining all the best properties of the pure spring wheat none of the merits of which are sacrificed to obtain the maximum of whiteness.
Try a barrel of "ARUNDELL" and be convinced of all that is claimed for it; also that by reason of its strength and absorbent qualities it is the most economical flour for family use.—may 27, 61, eod.

Marching On

My sisters want to vote to-day but they are in despair! The lady barber didn't come in time to fix their hair—they want to help the uplift, but they don't know what to wear—the girls are marching on! Some vital issues are at stake and every girl should vote; but should she venture to the polls in common walking coat? Perhaps 'twere better far to wear the new style redingote—the girls are marching on! The ballot is a sacred thing, and when that boon is hers, the bones of ancient prejudice will shade her sepulchre; but should she take her parasol or wear her winter furs? The girls are marching on! "The right to vote," my sisters say, "is quite so sweet, we wist; it is a wholesome pastime that we long have sorely missed; for we have soured on crockinole and we are tired of whist!" The girls are marching on! I ask my sisters how they'd vote if they should vote to-day; they give the problem weighty thought, and this is what they say: "We'd note how Mrs. Jimpson votes, then vote the other way." The girls are marching on!

Begone Unbelief.

The following was the late W. T. Stead's favorite hymn and was sung at his memorial services in London, together with "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Oh God Our Help in Ages Past."
Begone, unbelief,
And for my belief
Will surely appear;
By prayer let me wrestle,
And he will perform;
With Christ in the vessel
I smile at the storm.
Though dark be my way
Since He is my guide,
'Tis mine to obey.
'Tis His to provide;
Though sisters be broken,
And creatures all fall,
The word He hath spoken
Shall surely prevail.
His love in times past
Forbids me to think
He'll leave me at last
In trouble to sink;
Each sweet Ebenezer
I have in review
Confirms His good pleasure
To help me quite through.
Why should I complain
Of want or distress,
Temptation or pain?
He told me no less;
The heirs of salvation,
I know from His Word,
Through much tribulation
Must follow their Lord.
How bitter the cup,
No heart can conceive,
Which He drank quite up.
That sinners might live!
His way was much rougher
And darker than mine;
Did Jesus thus suffer,
And shall I repine?
Since all that I meet
Shall work for my good,
The bitter is sweet,
The medicine, food;
Though painful at present,
'Twill cease before long,
And then, oh, how pleasant
The conqueror's song!

Nasty!

Sir George Reid, the Australian Commissioner in London, has been on a visit to Germany, and some people are saying that there is some deep political motive behind his journey. One never knows, of course, what the politicians may be up to these days, but Sir George's mission must be very deep indeed, because so far nobody has been able to guess farther below the surface than that he has simply gone on a holiday with his wife.
One of the stories told of Sir George is in connection with a parliamentary election in Australia. He was addressing a meeting of electors, and one of them, a pasty-faced man, repeatedly accused the speaker of being "two-faced."
Sir George turned on him at last. "Well, it's pretty clear," he said, "that you are not two-faced."
The man, rather staggered, blurted out: "Why?"
"Because if you were two-faced," retorted Sir George, "you'd have left that one at home and brought the other!"

Montreal, June 6.—The Grand Jury respectfully desire to bring to the notice of the court the advisability, in their opinion, of coupling with any other sentence the use of the lash when prisoners are convicted of assaults on women and children, realizing that no other punishment is likely to deter this class of criminal from such crimes.
This was the recommendation presented yesterday by the grand jury in the Court of Kings Bench as the most effective means of stopping the increasing number of offences against women and children.

Cable News.

NEW YORK, June 9. A London cable says: Sidney Lee's biography of King Edward VII has evoked criticism on the ground that so critical an estimate of his late Majesty's career should not have been published so soon after his death. The Telegraph is particularly severe in its denunciation of what it describes as an act of gauderie and tactlessness. Lee replies in a letter explaining that the Dictionary of National Biography, in which the memoir appears, is a work of historical reference, which exists to furnish the historical student with critically treated facts in as concise a form as is consistent with completeness. The Telegraph says:—"My source of information are chiefly conversational. I have discussed the material for the biography with most of the leading men of the present day, and have had access to many published papers such, for instance, as the diary of the late Sir Charles Dilke." If these are the foundations, says the Telegraph upon which he has built up his biography of King Edward VII, no further comment is needed to justify our condemnation of a work, which shows such deplorable want of judgement and tact."

Obituary

MR. JOHN CARNELL.
It is with profound regret that we record to-day the passing of Mr. Jno. Carnell, whose sudden death occurred at his home on Quidi Vidi Road at an early hour this morning. Deceased was in his 62nd year, was unmarried and the eldest son of the late William Carnell, one time East End Road Inspector. He was apparently well until last evening, although a constant sufferer for several months past from asthma. Mr. Carnell was a carpenter by trade, noted for his straightforwardness and integrity, and was held in the highest esteem by his fellow-workmen. He was a good type of citizen. Besides a sister, and brother, William, of the Lighthouse Department, with whom he was staying up to the time of his death, Mrs. Jpison (widow) and Mrs. John Parsons, two other sisters, are left to mourn, and whom together with other relatives and friends general and sincere sympathy will be expressed to a bereaved family, in which the telegram joins.

HALIFAX, June 9. The U. S. Scout cruiser Birmingham, put in here to-day for 1,400 tons of bunker, after three weeks spent cruising for icebergs along the path of the trans-Atlantic steamers. Capt. Hughes reports he did not sight one iceberg since his ship left Philadelphia three weeks ago. The cruiser Chester has been sent out to relieve the Birmingham. On memorial day, May 30th, when at the scene of the wrecked Titanic, the Birmingham fired the National salute.

Supreme Court.

(Before the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Johnson.)

Robert Freeman vs. the Government of Newfoundland and R. B. Job.

This is an action by the plaintiff to have a mining license granted to R. B. Job set aside, and for an order from the Court directing the Department of Agriculture and Mines to issue said license to him (the plaintiff). F. A. Mews for plaintiff opens his case and argues that the onus of proof as to the right to the issue of the license lies on the defendants.

Warren, K.C., for the defendant, R. B. Job, is heard and states he is ready to proceed.

Morison, K.C., Minister of Justice, contends that plaintiff must proceed and prove his case.

The Court holds that the defendant, Job, must begin and prove his case. Warren, K.C., calls Mr. Job, who is sworn and examined.

Mr. R. B. Job was then cross-examined by Mr. Mews.

Thomas J. Thorburn, clerk in the Department of Agriculture and Mines, was called and sworn, examined by Warren, K.C., and cross-examined by Mr. Mews.

The clerk in charge of the Government account in the Bank of Montreal was called by Mr. Mews in order to identify certain deposit slips from the Department of Agriculture and Mines. Mr. Thorburn was recalled and Mr. Mews continued his cross-examination. Mr. Warren re-examined this witness. This closed the case for the defendant, R. B. Job.

Robert Freeman was called by Mr. Mews and sworn and examined by Mr. Mews. At one o'clock he was still in the box.

Blocked Street.

It was almost impossible to get past the Right House on Saturday night. A tremendous crowd of shoppers were attracted to the windows by a shipment of Job Suits which Mr. Devine had just opened and displayed. Unquestionably this is the finest line of linen dresses that ever was shown here. In the selection of the suitings the daintiness of design, the twirling of the trimmings New York has certainly excelled itself. The whole staff was kept busy until a late hour. All should see them and see them quickly as they are going fast.

Beothic Reaches Battle Harbor.

The S. S. Beothic arrived at Battle Harbor at 1.30 p.m. yesterday and Captain Parsons sent the following report to the Reid Company: "Loose slack ice in straits; icebergs numerous; wind west weather fine; passed S. S. Diana at Cape Bauld. Several schooners gone north of Battle Harbor."

Vessels Hung Up

Desertion is becoming more and more popular every day. The sch. Nellie Louise, Capt. Burton, was ready for sea to-day, having all her crew aboard. Just as she was about to let go her lines two members of the crew made their escape and the police are now on their trail.

The butter production of the United States for the year 1909 was 1,620,766,000 pounds, valued at $405,054,000. Poultry on 5,655,154 farms in the same year laid 1,591,311,371 dozen of eggs, valued at $306,688,960.

The size mania has affected others than the builders of ocean steamships. From Rome comes news of the making of a very imperator of candles. It is 11 feet three inches in height, and is calculated to burn steadily for six years.

Divorce and separation of parents are responsible for 51 per cent. of the population in public and private orphan asylums in Denver and other Colorado centres, according to a speaker at the semi-annual conference of the State Board of Charities and Corrections.

A special from Paris says that a "Matin" article stated that the Paris post office clerks have been subjected to an investigation on charges of laxity in the discharge of their duties. An inspector stated that he found concealed in office desks snails, which the clerks spent their time training to run races.

Flies are so few in Bavaria that they cannot be regarded as a pest. This is said to be due to the extreme cleanliness of Bavarian cities. Court-yards, alleys, vacant lots are all kept clean, and the hallways and entrances to the houses are as fresh as soap and water can make them.

The golden poppy, the State flower of California, is to be planted in the vacant lots of San Francisco by club women, who are preparing their city for the coming world's fair. The waste places of the surrounding hillsides will also be made to glow with the poppies.

Sympathetic women suffragists in New York have founded a society called the Daughters of Liberty, whose members are pledged not to buy English made goods so long as Mrs. Pankhurst and her friends in tribulation are in jail. Emerald Mine Found in Peru.

San Francisco, Cal., June 5.—C. R. Kehler, a noted mining engineer, who has arrived here from Lima, reports that a Greek tavernkeeper named Kalafatovich has discovered in the little town of Acomayo, in Southern Peru, an emerald mine which bears evidence of having been worked by the ancient Peruvians.

The Kaiser presided at the launching of the Hamburg-American Company's 50,000 ton steamship, and named it the Imperator. The Germans see in the new giant of the seas a vessel that will bring back to the Fatherland the laurels won by England with the Lusitania, Mauretania, Olympic and Titanic. Their joy may not be long-lived, however, as the Aquitania is being built, and greater ones will surely follow. Then it will be Germany's turn again to build. The race for greatness in the merchant marine is as keen as the striving after naval supremacy.

Controlling Your Horse.

We wish every horse lover who has a horse that pulls, or lolls its tongue, or "slabbers," might know of a simple device that we have used with most gratifying success. A beautiful mare that took hold of the bit so strongly that the pleasure of driving was often spoiled, has been made so easy to handle that now a lady drives her anywhere. We refer to the Little Giant Controller. This invention is simplicity itself. Instead of causing the horse any suffering it relieves the mouth from any pain a bit might inflict. By fit the bit is kept from crowding the tongue back between the jaw-bones and so suppressing circulation until the parts become numb. With this device the pressure is taken from the tongue and the tender gums of the lower jaw. For a hard mouth or a tender mouth it is a marvel of comfort both for horse and driver. We have used it for two years and if we could not replace it would not part with it for fifty times what it cost us.—F. H. R., in Dumb Animals.

Improvements in Gas.

The Old Year is closed, and in looking back, the advocates of Gas have no cause for complaint; indeed, it has been a year of great progress in this industry.

Each year Householders realize more and more what Gas (intelligently used) can do for them in Cooking, Heating and Lighting.

A great improvement in gas appliances is shown in all directions and the growth of knowledge as to how Gas may be used to the best advantage is one of the most satisfactory features of this past year.

Captured.

This forenoon Constable Keeffe arrested a young labourer who was caught loitering at a business house on Water Street. For some time past Mr. A. Tooton, photographer, had been missing articles from his premises and so frequently that he had to acquaint the owner of the building, Mr. Phillips, who keeps a shop next door. The latter instructed Mr. Tooton to notify the police which he did and all three kept a close watch for the unwelcome visitor. This morning Mr. Phillips caught the culprit red-handed. The culprit gained access to the place through a window at the rear on George Street. He was taken into custody and later handed over to Constable Keeffe who escorted him to the police station. An attempt to burglarize Rankin & Co's. store a few night ago was also mentioned in this column. Deceased leaves a wife, child and parents.

Sudden Death.

Deputy Minister of Justice Hutchings had the following message today from Magistrate Scott, of Twillingate: "Stature Ward, aged 31, married, of Leading Tackles, fitting out for fishery here, died suddenly Saturday evening of hemorrhage. He was working all day, but not hard. Dr. LeDrew was summoned, but although responding promptly was too late. The body was sent home by schooner. Deceased leaves a wife, child and parents."
