Happiness At Last; Loyalty Recompensed.

CHAPTER XXI.

"It is evident that he hasn't told you all," said Mershon. "I'm afraid, Miss Decima, that the case is worse than you guess. I don't know how bad it was myself until I had a talk with your father and brother together."

Decima looked at him with slowly growing apprehension.

"What do you mean?" she said faintly. "How can it be worse?"

"Well," he said, with a slight shrug of his shoulders, "you talk about paying me back, and your brother going into the army, but I'm afraid there's little chance of either event coming off--no, that I want to be paid back or should take the money. The fact is, Miss Decima, your father has been going in for this thing neck or nothing--what we call in the city, lose all or win all. It appears--mind, I didn't know it or I should strongly have advised him against such foolhardiness--that he has put every penny he possessed into this 'confounded' thing. And of course he has lost it. In fact, I'm afraid he has made himself liable for more than he has got. He says he is utterly ruined."

Decima stared at him with wide eyes; her lips quivered, but no sound came.

Mershon went and closed the door with his foot, then he came near to her, as near as he dared.

"Look here, Miss Decima," he said, "it's best to face these things straight out, and so I've told you the absolute truth. Your father's ruined, and your brother will have to give up all idea of the army and take his chance in the colonies, and a deuced poor chance it is, I'm afraid. That is, unless--he paused and looked at her and then down at the ground, for the terror in her eyes and white face daunted even him for a moment--"unless--" he went on. "Well--it all rests with you."

"With me?" Her lips formed the words; they were scarcely audible.

"Yes, with you," he said. "Miss Decima, I'm a straight man--we have to speak out straight in the city--and I won't treat you as a child, but as a girl, a woman, upon whom her father's and brother's happiness and welfare depend. This trouble's about as big as it can be. They must go under with it--unless you care to save them."

"I--I save them!" said Decima.

He jerked his head.

"Yes, you remember what I said to you the other night at the Leafmore Hall, I told you I loved you, and I asked you to be my wife. You said 'no' then, but I said I wouldn't take your answer; I haven't taken it. I ask you again--now! If you will say 'yes,' I will take this trouble off your hands. I will find the money your father's lost. I will double your brother's allowance, and pay his debts."

"His debts!" breathed Decima. Mershon laughed shortly.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too--children like it--and it is pure and good.

Four 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make 16 ounces--a family supply--but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

"Oh, yes, there are debts. He has been going the pace. I'll do more than this; I'll keep an eye on your father for the future and look after him. And I'll make a settlement on you as large as you like."

In his eagerness he had taken a step or two nearer. Decima drew back until she leaned against the window. Her brain was whirling; she felt as if she were suffocating, and her eyes were fixed on his shrewd, sharp face as if she were under a spell.

"Come," he said, "I've made the offer bluntly because it's business; but I could put it in another way. I love you, Decima, love you with all my heart and soul. I want you more than I've wanted anything before in my life. If you'd said 'yes' to me the other night, you'd never have heard anything of this trouble; I'd have paid up every penny and said not a syllable about it. That's my way. But you said 'no' and I'm obliged to tell you and make a bargain with you. You close with my offer, and I'll never refer to it again. No one need know anything about it; not even your brother; for I can tell him that things have turned out better than we expected. It will be easy to bamboozle him, for he knows as little of business as the rest of you. Do you mind me smoking, for I'm a little upset. I see your brother had a cigarette."

He lighted his cigar, and his hand shook as Bobby's had done, but with a different emotion. Decima put up a shaking hand and brushed the soft hair from her forehead. No bird in the fowler's net was more helpless than she was at that moment. As Mershon had said to his sister, he had got her tightly. Her father ruined, Bobby's future absolutely blasted! And by a word, a word of three letters, she could save them.

At that moment all Lady Pauline's lessons inculcating the duty of self-sacrifice flashed across her mind. To live for others, to suffer for others, it was the woman's ideal, the woman's duty, should be the woman's pleasure. No thought of herself rose to deter her. By saying "yes" she could save those she loved.

She thought of her father, broken-hearted by his failure, cooped up in a laborer's cottage, deprived of his work-shop, of all his dreams; she thought of Bobby, the bright boy, with his shattered hopes, starving in the colonies, and a shudder swept over her.

She could save them by the one word--yes.

At that moment--why, she knew not--she thought of Lord Gaunt. If he were only here to help her, advise her. But he was not there; he might be thousands of miles away. She was alone and helpless.

Mershon eyed her covertly. He knew that she was struggling, but he knew that there was no loophole in the net that he had drawn round her.

"What do you say?" he said at last. Decima seemed to wake as if from a dream, and turned her eyes upon him with a half-dazed, half-appealing gaze.

"Why should you hesitate?" he said. "You said the other night that you didn't dislike me. I don't expect you to love me, but I dare say you like me well enough to be my wife. All the rest will come after we are married; it generally does. Anyhow, I'll chance it. Give me your answer. Say 'yes,' Decima, and I'll go straight in and tell your father and brother that more needn't worry themselves any more about this miserable business. Your father can go on playing at making his fortune by inventions, and your brother can go into the army and be a general in time. Only say the word, and leave the rest to me."

There was silence in the room, broken only by the faint creak of the jackdaw as he preened his feathers. The slim, girlish figure, with its white face and dark-rimmed eyes, leaned by the window. Her heart, as if it were imprisoned by a hand of ice.

"To save them, the dear ones!" "Well," he said, "what is your answer?"

Her hands clinched at her side, the martyr's look came into her eyes. "I must--I must!" she breathed. "Yes."

CHAPTER XXII.

"Yes," Decima said; and almost inaudible as the word was, it sent the blood rushing to Mershon's face.

He took a step toward her, with outstretched hands, as if to take her in his arms; but something in her face, as she shrunk back, arrested him.

There was almost a terror in her eyes, and she went pale to the lips, which formed the monosyllable "No."

The color died from Mershon's cheeks, and his arms fell to his sides, as he stood looking at her irresolutely. But he was very much in love, and he was wise enough to know that a half loaf is better than none. Besides, she had not told him that she loved him, but had simply promised to be his wife; and he must be content with that--for a time.

"You have made me very happy, Decima," he said. "I've always got what I've wanted all through my life, and my luck hasn't deserted me; it's not a bad thing to marry a lucky man, my dear."

Decima winced at the "my dear," and shrunk back a little further. She was confused and bewildered, and the predominant feeling at that moment was the desire that he would go--if he would only go and leave her alone to get her breath, as it were.

"You'd better leave me to tell your father and brother," he said. "I dare say they won't be very much astonished; any one could have seen that I'd fallen in love with you. Yes; I'll tell them."

"Thank you," she said, almost gratefully; for she shrunk from the thought of having to tell them.

He still stood looking at her irresolutely; then took her hand half fearfully and touched it with his lips, which burned against the coldness of her hand.

When he had gone, Decima looked at the hand vacantly, as if it did not belong to her, then she sunk on to one of the cages, and sat staring before her, trying to realize that she was to be Theodore Mershon's wife.

Her very innocence prevented her realizing fully what it meant. Lady Pauline's system of perfect ignorance was bearing its fruit. If Decima had been impossible; and the knowledge would have saved her from a sacrifice all too common, but none the less wicked and unholy.

But all she shrunk from was the thought of leaving The Woodbines and her father, and going to live in the society of Mr. Mershon and his sister at The Pirs. She would have to be with him always, to go with him wherever he went; to live in the great new house, the splendor of which oppressed her; to spend long hours listening to Mrs. Sherborne's praise of her brother.

This was all which presented itself to her imagination; but it was enough. Only one thought consoled her--that she would still be near her father, and that she would be able to see him often; that she had saved him and Bobby from ruin, and that Bobby's future was assured.

After a time she went up to her own room. She caught sight of her face in the glass, and its expression startled her.

A knock at the door sent her hand to her heart; and she turned round with a look in her eyes, almost of terror, as if she dreaded to see Mr. Mershon.

But it was Bobby. "Decima!" he exclaimed, half anxiously, and yet with something like relief in his voice; "is this true--that Mershon has been telling us?"

She stood with her back to the light, and he could not see her face distinctly, or it would have told its tale. "Yes, it is true, Bobby," she said; and she managed--Heaven only knows how--to force a smile and speak cheerfully.

"Well," he exclaimed, "it's taken my breath away. I hadn't the least idea! But I suppose it's been going on while I've been away?"

Didn't Have a Well Day in Seven Years.

Montreal Man Gains Fifteen Pounds By Taking Tanlac And Says He Never Felt Better in His Life Than Now.

"I had lost fifteen pounds in weight but I've gained every pound of it back by taking Tanlac and don't remember the day when I ever felt better," said Aloide Desmaris, of 94 St. Denis Street, Montreal. Mr. Desmaris is conductor Number 1000 on the Montreal Tramways Limited, and runs on the St. Catherine Street line.

"For seven years I hadn't known what it was to enjoy good health. My stomach was so disordered that sometimes just a few bites of anything to eat would nearly kill me. I would blot all up with gas and have the worst sort of pains and cramps and at times if I even looked at any food it turned my stomach. My back ached a lot and I lost so much sleep that it pulled me down considerably in weight and strength.

"But to-day I'm glad to say that I'm a different man from that and the credit for it belongs entirely to Tanlac. I have the finest kind of an appetite and can eat anything I ever could and digest it as good as if I had never had stomach trouble. My back doesn't hurt any more and I sleep so sound that it takes an alarm clock to wake me up in the mornings. I'm back at my normal weight, one hundred and sixty-five pounds and feel as strong as I ever did in my life."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gullies by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, St. John's, by Mrs. J. ## Sugar Touches Rock Bottom.

New York Price Down to 6 1-4 Cents--Newspaper Controversy Rages Around Marshal Foch--Serbs Object to an Independent Fiume--London's Lord Mayor Inducted--Canadian Flour Coming Down.

FOCH IN THE LIMELIGHT.

PARIS, Nov. 9. Marshal Foch has become the centre of an animated discussion which is occupying the attention of the French press and political circles generally to the exclusion of almost all other subjects. The main points turn on the relations of Marshal Foch and Premier Clemenceau in the crucial stages of the war and the circumstances leading up to the Marshal's elevation to the rank of Commander in Chief of all the allied forces. Marshal Foch has given his own version, declaring that he had only been appointed to the supreme command after Premier Clemenceau had yielded to the insistence of others, including Field Marshal Haig, and asserting his relations with Clemenceau were strained. On behalf of M. Clemenceau, Andrew Tardieu to-day replied to Marshal Foch declaring that it was in fact Clemenceau who secured the supreme command for Foch and that Clemenceau was throughout the champion of and defender of Foch instead of his enemy. Dealing with the statement attributed to Foch that M. Clemenceau only bowed and with bad grace "to my appointment as supreme commander," M. Tardieu offers the text of Foch's appointment written in the Premier's hand. "I was," says M.

Tardieu "French High Commissioner to the United States at that time and I can say that since the preceding January I have had instructions from Premier Clemenceau to work with the United States Government for the institution of a supreme command, and if one put the question who, the reply was Foch." Tardieu also reviewed at length Premier Clemenceau's cause in the French Chambers, quoting the speech in which the Premier defended Marshal Foch against attacks and strongly supported his military policy.

SERBS OBJECT TO INDEPENDENCE OF FIUME.

RAPALLO, Italy, Nov. 9. The question of Fiume was brought up for discussion to-day by the conference of Italian and Jugo-Slav delegates being held here for settlement of the Adriatic problem, although no agreement has yet been reached on the proposal of Italian delegates that the Istrian frontier be that established by the pact of London. The Italian delegates proposed that the independence of the new State of Fiume be recognized by both countries, but the Serbian delegates especially, Anto Trumbitch, Jugo-Slav Foreign Minister, strongly opposed independence for Fiume. They maintained that the port was indispensable to Serbia for economic and commercial reasons, declaring it to be their only safe and fit outlet to the sea.

SUGAR 6 1/4 CENTS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. Raw sugar dropped to six and a quarter cents a pound a new low for the season in the sugar market here to-day. The new price reflects the heavy slackening in demand and is a loss of more than seventeen cents from the highest of the season's quotation last May.

ST. LAWRENCE CLOSING.

OTTAWA, Nov. 9. The Marine Department will begin taking up its buoys on the twentieth of this month and navigation on the St. Lawrence will close shortly after.

INSTALLING THE LORD MAYOR.

LONDON, Nov. 9. This historic procession of the newly elected Lord Mayor of London, participated in by dignitaries of the Municipal Corporation, wended its way through the streets of the metropolis to-day following the formal induction of Alderman James Roll into office yesterday. To-day's ceremony lacked much of the customary pageantry which had been curtailed in the plans for the ceremonial owing to uncertainties over conditions brought about by the recent coal strike. Nevertheless thousands of people crowded the streets to watch the parade.

FLOUR DROPS BUT NOT BREAD.

CALGARY, Alta., Nov. 9. Flour was reduced eighty cents a barrel in Calgary to-day. Some of the bakers state that the reduction of eighty cents a barrel only represents about one-fifth of a cent in the price of a loaf, and for that reason they do not propose making any reduction in the price of bread.

NOT HERE THOUGH.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 9. For the first time in almost four years flour sold under the ten dollars a barrel mark at the mills here to-day.

McGILL DEFEATS TORONTO.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9. McGill defeated Toronto University on Saturday in the inter-university football game.

WILL PROVIDE 25 CENT MEAL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. Hotel proprietors attending the Fifth National Hotel Men's Exposition here will partake of a twenty-five cent meal on Ellis Island this week on invitation of Frederick Wallis, Immigration Commissioner. Skepticism on the part of the hotel men that the island's chief, D. T. MacGowan, can concoct a repast for that sum and still claim profit is said to have prompted the invitation and also the acceptance.

A POINT OF LAW.

OTTAWA, Nov. 9. The legal officers of the Canadian Government are now puzzling over the point whether the Government liquor vendors of Nova Scotia, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, four provinces which recently voted to go bone dry, can or cannot be classed as licensed vendors. The decision is important as it will make a difference of at least thirty days in the length of the period within which liquor may still be imported for personal use into the four provinces.

Million Dollar Hostelery for St. John's.

WILL BE ONE OF FINEST ON CONTINENT.

Dr. H. M. Mosdell, managing editor of the Daily Star, St. John's, Newfoundland, and Mr. B. B. Stafford, manager of the firm of Dr. F. Stafford & Sons, of the same city, reached North Sydney by this morning's express from Toronto and Montreal, where they had been negotiating with the president and general manager of the United Hotels Company in connection with the construction of a large modern hotel in the capital of the Oldest Colony.

Speaking to a representative of the Herald, Mr. Stafford expressed himself as very well satisfied with the progress the Newfoundland delegation had made. They had found the company very sympathetic and ready to do everything possible to co-operate in the building and the operation of the desired institution.

"The project has more than a commercial aspect," observed Mr. Stafford. "The intention of the Newfoundland promoters, assisted by the United Hotels Company, is to operate in St. John's a modern, fire-proof hotel of 200 rooms and to make it headquarters and clearing house for the tourist traffic which will be attracted to Newfoundland. This traffic will be directed to smaller hotels which are to be situated convenient to the great sporting sections of the country, so that the visiting sportsmen can be assured of the greatest comfort as well as the most satisfactory diversion whilst he is in Newfoundland."

Discussing the value of such a chain of hotels to Newfoundland, Dr. Mosdell stated that last season two transportation lines turned down eight thousand applications from tourists because there was no hotel accommodation for them. He argued that when a systematic advertising campaign was started by the government, the steamship and railroad lines and the hotel company, the number of tourists to Newfoundland during a season would run into a total almost inconceivable.

"Twenty million dollars is not too high an estimate of the probable expenditure in Newfoundland by tourists to that country, once hotel accommodation is provided and proper railway and steamship facilities are available," the Newfoundland Journalist declared.

It is expected that full arrangements for the construction of the hotel will be completed this winter and that construction will be started next spring or during the summer months.

"You don't seem to like Dr. Grenfell," the Herald remarked. "That is hardly the case," retorted Dr. Mosdell. "I admire Dr. Grenfell personally and I have a high regard for his work, but I don't think that the reputation of Newfoundland should be made to suffer to enhance the prestige of anybody. Dr. Grenfell has done much good on the Labrador, but there are others who are conferring benefits on the people of that section even though they do it in a less spectacular fashion. Grenfell's work is by no means exclusively philanthropic. He gets returns of various kinds for virtually everything he does for the fishermen and his institutions are subsidized by the government of Newfoundland. Perhaps our biggest quarrel with Dr. Grenfell is that probably unintentionally, his various drives for subscriptions for his institutions have been accompanied by publicity of the sort that gives a very erroneous idea of the condition of the people of Newfoundland and of the nature, climate and resources of the country itself. Even on this trip we met lots of prominent Canadians who were ready to sympathize with us because of the hardships of our lot in our own country. And they thought they knew whereof they were speaking because they had heard of a Grenfell lecture or so. Consider, then, how cross we felt when we had to remove a misunderstanding that to some extent jeopardized our project to help make Newfoundland a great tourist centre."—North Sydney Herald, Nov. 6.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

IS IT FAIR TO THE BEST MOTHERS?

Beautiful, devoted motherhood is the most beautiful thing in the world. Every one acknowledges that.

But is any motherhood at all no matter how far it comes from living up to its opportunities and its obligations, how resentful even of the coming of those opportunities—beautiful!

I know that there is a feeling that one should not so much as hint that motherhood is not always a beautiful and ennobling condition and superior to any other kind of service a woman can do the human race.

But, is it fair to the women who make their motherhood a beautiful service to thus class with it all the careless, the indifferent, the unwilling, the self-indulgent, the shirking motherhood?

Is it fair to the women who are denied, for one reason or another, a motherhood they long for and would unquestionably make beautiful, and who try to make up by pouring their hearts into some other kind of service, to maintain that whatever they may accomplish is of less beauty and value than the contribution of the most indifferent mother?

I cannot see the justice in this. We were speaking of two women the other day. One woman was the mother of an only child. He is a perfectly good child, but in no way extraordinary. He makes his own way in the world and is good to his mother, but he certainly does not add in any great degree to the happiness and welfare of others, so he cannot be regarded as any remarkable achievement.

She Has Reached Countless Lives. The other woman was for 40 years a splendid teacher of small children. She did not do her work in any mechanical way, but put her whole heart into it and reached out through the children of the slums (who were, by her own choice, her charges) into their homes and exerted a great influence for good there. She has touched and reached and inspired countless lives. Hundreds of children, though not her own, still rise up to call her blessed.

In some way a comparison was made between these two women and the claim was made that the first one's life was of greater value because she was a mother. Three women, out of a group of five, upheld this claim.

Is there any justice, any reason, in that? Here's another case: I used to know a woman who had two children who were both turned over to a nurse as soon as they were born, to be looked after through their babyhood. As babies they both preferred the nurse to their mother. She loved these children in her way, but she did not want them, she did not really enjoy them.

And yet if you should have hinted to this woman that by unwillingly bearing these children and doing what she had to do for them, she did not make herself far more valuable to the community than any woman not a mother, no matter what public service the latter might be rendering, she would have been highly indignant.

Once more I return to my original thesis—a beautiful, devoted, gifted motherhood is the most beautiful thing in the world. But to put all motherhood on a dead level of adulation is sentimentality and not sentiment, and is an insult and not a tribute to the real mothers.

Life's Splendor

There is so much of laughter on the earth, So much that's tender, gentle, fine and true, That all the hate and bitterness men do, And all the sorrow chilling joy and mirth, Are lost to memory when the skies grow blue.

Sin stalks in horror for a little while, Vice takes its victims only from the few, 'Tis the exception when a friend's untrue, But here and there the human heart is vile— Life's splendor never can be hid from view.

More sunshine falls upon the earth than rain, The days are touched with more of joy than woe, Despite the hurt and grief which men must know, The sin and shame—our hearts grow glad again, And gladness sets all honest eyes aglow.

A teaspoonful of soda boiled in the tea or coffee pot for an hour will remove discolorations.

THE LOSERS.

On the bosom of Salt River sluggishly their vessel floats, and their dismal dirges quiver on the air, in sobbing notes; we can hear their weary chorus: "Gloomy skies are bending o'er us, and there is no hope before us, for we've lost our William Goats." Ah, there is no joyous ditty, from the passengers or crew, and my eyes are wet with pity, as a lawn is wet with dew; it is sad to see them sailing, it is tough to hear them wailing, as they lean against the railing for a last and longing view. Up Salt River's weeping waters they must sail for years, perhaps, just because some tinhorn rotters voted for the other chap; they must sail while autumn melloes gather in the public snaps. Oh, it is a ship of sorrow that proceeds upon its way, and the heading done to-morrow will be louder than today; for each landmark will remind them of the snaps they leave behind them and the scalding tears will blind them till they hit the starboard hay. But the ship will be returning with its passengers and crew, and their bosoms will be burning with ambitions fine and new; and for office they'll be running, and for votes they will be gunning, on a platform simply stunning, and a nice fresh rag to chew.

For salads the Chinese cabbage is delicious.

Cedars of Lebanon.

CEDRUS LEBANU.

There are many varieties classed as cedars of Lebanon, and individual trees have been grown in England and elsewhere. This has occasioned much confusion.

The cedars of Lebanon grow in a basin at the head of Kedisha Valley, fifteen miles from the sea. This valley terminates in broad, flat, shallow basins, and is two to three miles across and about as long. It is four miles south of the summit of Lebanon which is 10,200 feet in height. The number of trees is about four hundred and is disposed in nine groups. The trees are of various dimensions from eighteen inches in girth to forty feet. Most of the single trees of antique growth average twenty to thirty feet in girth, but the enormous fathers of the forest are in reality a congeries of two or more which have grown together so as it forms a single trunk. It is calculated that the younger trees are about one hundred years old and the oldest about four or five thousand years. There are no trees less than eighteen inches in girth and no young trees. This is accounted for by the saplings being eaten by the goats grazing there and by the destructiveness of tourists. These latter have wrought havoc even to the older trees, by their insane habit of cutting initials in the trunks and breaking off the branches and cones for souvenirs. There are four other groves, some of which, it is claimed were started by the Maronite Bishops. Recently the natives of Baruk and other villages obtained roof beams and even fuel from these forests.

Dirty San Francisco.

San Francisco has some of the dirtiest streets in the United States, if not in the world, and what makes this condition more inexcusable is the fact that it should be an extremely easy city to keep clean and healthy, says the San Francisco News Letter. In the first place, we do not have to contend with the volumes of smoke and soot coming from hundreds of factories such as the eastern cities are cursed with; in the second place, we could devise a way of using the ocean water to wash streets and sidewalks with (salt water is a mild disinfectant); and thirdly, we are blessed with an equable climate thus making street cleaning an easy matter every day in the year.

Wednesday, November 10, 1920.

An Empire Silent.

From one end of the British Empire to the other, to-morrow at 11 o'clock, in the forenoon, there will be observed two minutes of pregnant silence, a silence so profound that scarcely the breathing of humanity will be audible. Entering upon the third year of the initiation of peace the second anniversary of the signing of the armistice ending the Great War, the varied races of the Empire will bow their heads before invisible Deity for the space of one hundred and twenty seconds, and countless millions of hearts will send a prayer to the King of Kings, in memory of our fallen yet glorious dead. From the confines of earth to the centre of Imperial dominion multitudes will bend the knee in token of thankfulness and in gratitude to the Omnipotent deliverer. The wheels of industry will be hushed, the tumult and the shoutings will be stilled: everything will be at a standstill while the second hand of the clock completes two circles of its dial. Steam engines on shore, steam engines on the ocean, wherever practicable, will cease their revolutions, and the flag of Britain will be lowered to half-mast, denoting that death is present, and that honor and a just tribute is being paid to the memory of those who fought the good fight, and went into the golden sunset glow of the West.

From the heart of the Empire, London, will be sent the signal bringing about this tremendous halt. The ceremonies there have a special significance and will be grandly impressive. The unveiling of the Cenotaph, that magnificent monument erected to the memory of those gallant sons of Empire, whose bones lie in foreign earth, will be performed by His Most Gracious Majesty King George V. in the presence of an imposing array of Royalty, Church Dignitaries, Statesmen, Ambassadors, Field Marshals, Admirals and representatives of the whole Empire. Following the formal unveiling, which is timed for 11 o'clock, the signal will be given for the two minutes' silence that will be kept throughout the Imperial domains. The difference in time will not permit a simultaneous silence, but as near as can be everywhere the instruction will be adhered to, and the wonderful spectacle of a silent Empire will be the result. Another impressive ceremony will be the laying to rest within the storied walls of Westminster Abbey, that magnificent fane in which the great dead of Britain sleep their last sleep, of the body of an unknown British soldier, which was brought from the battlefields of France, typifying in his last resting place the deathless glory of the soldiers of Empire who cheerfully laid down their lives in the Great War at the call. And not alone they but others before them who so nobly fought in every corner of the earth for the supremacy of Britain and the freedom that her rule ensures.

The men who fell in the World War, the men who fell at Minden, at Waterloo, at Chillianwallah, at Maiwand, at Lucknow, in the thousands of battles in which British soldiers have been engaged, are each and all honored in having entombed within historic Westminster Abbey, all that is mortal of one of their heroic successors. The solemn and beautiful words of the Office for the Burial of the Dead will be recited over the body of the unknown, as it rests in company with those of others whose names are illustrious and emblazoned on the pages of history, none perhaps more worthy of the last accorded honor to the brave than he who is miles incognitus.

"The tumult and the shouting dies, The Captains and the Kings depart: Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice— A humble and a contrite heart. Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget: lest we forget."

The "Literary" Star.

"Kamerad." We give in! In the face of the Star's latest attack we are helpless. We are fighting against an unnatural foe. We can do no more than we have done. Mercy, Star, mercy. What have we done to deserve this? Surely it is not playing the game to bombard us with Shakespearean quotations which cause us to quiver with—not fear, dear Star, but riotous laughter. Yes, we have not enjoyed anything so much for ages past. You undoubtedly take precedence of the Comic Weekly as the most humorous journal in the country. We cannot but congratulate you, in fact, your industry is so amazing that we cannot but applaud it, "and e'en the ranks of Tuscany could scarce forbear to cheer." Yes, we must admire your patience and industry in picking Shakespeare to pieces for the purpose of heaping abuse on the Opposition. It is really surprising that so much trouble should be taken by the Star about people of whom it quotes "Come gentlemen, we sit too long on trifles, and waste the time." The poor misguided person who contributes these Shakespearean quotations does not evidently believe in practising what he preaches. He considers the Opposition trifles not worth wasting his time over, but he sits down with complete works of Shakespeare before him and takes hours digging out foolish quotations, and by foolish, we mean as applied by the Star, for the purpose of getting, what he thinks, is a clever hit at his opponents. If you consider your opponents trifles, not worth wasting time over, O Star, why take all this trouble for the purpose of reviling them? Surely the journal such as yours should mind the criticism of its contemporaries no more than an elephant would object to a flea. Oh, Star, when will you learn not to contradict yourself? Take our tip and send your contributions of misapplied Shakespearean quotations to bed with a hot water bottle and a damp cloth round his head, and thus save yourself from being made more ridiculous than you are, if that were possible.

Sugar Dropping.

To-day's despatch quotes raw sugar at 6 1/2 cents at New York, a reduction of seventeen cents from prices quoted in May. Business men here have been receiving offers of sugar at extremely low prices during the past week but owing to the regulations they are unable to make importations and as a consequence people still have to pay 30 cents per lb. for the controlled sugar when they should be buying at 12 or 13 cents. The tax payers are, however, lucky that the newspaper discussion frightened the Control Board out of its insane intention of making further importations, as if they had meddled when they intended they would now find the market still falling from under them.

IN "EYES OF YOUTH" TO-NIGHT.
There was a large attendance at the Casino last night to witness the Klark-Urban Co.'s presentation of "The Man From Home." This play was voted as one of the best plays seen in a long time. To-night's bill is distinctly different as it somewhat deals with occult art and eastern mystery and magic, with a gripping theme throughout. The scenes of the play are laid near New York and has mostly to do with the adventures of a singer named Gina Ashling. The title of the play is "Eyes of Youth," by Max Garain and Charles Guernon, and comprises three stirring acts which are vividly portrayed by this clever company. For an unusual play of interest don't fail to see "Eyes of Youth" at the Casino to-night and to-morrow night.

Motor Association Dinner.

Donovan's will to-night be the scene of the first annual dinner of the Newfoundland Motor Association. The least list is an excellent one and as the musical programme has been put in the hands of Mr. F. V. Chesman it means that nothing has been left undone to make the affair a success. About one hundred members have signified their intention of attending many of whom will bring personal guests and the guests of the Association comprise representatives of the Government, of the Opposition, of the Municipal Commissioners, of the Press and the Road Commission. In order to avoid confusion and congestion in the parking of cars at Donovan's, the Association has employed an experienced chauffeur who will take charge of this detail and who will also be prepared to attend to any minor repairs or adjustments that may be required. This man will wear the Association's badge and will carry an electric torch. The Dinner Committee ask that car drivers will accept his instructions as to where they shall park their cars upon arrival at Donovan's. The Association has arranged that guests of the Association who have notified the Committee that they desire transportation, will be called for at their private residences and owing to the cold weather it has been decided that evening dress will not be worn. A full report of the dinner will appear in our issue of to-morrow.

Elks Hold First Smoker.

Monday night after the regular business session, the St. John's Lodge No. 1 Elks held a smoker, which is one of the first of a series on the order for the next few months. The Supreme Ruler, Dr. Arch Tait, presided, and Mr. R. H. Tait acted as Master of Ceremonies. The concert was highly entertaining and thoroughly enjoyed, a feature being the two instrumental trios by the Tait brothers with violin, harjo and piano. The programme was as follows:
Instrumental Trio—Bros. Dr. A. C. Tait, Dr. H. S. Tait, R. H. Tait.
Song—Bro. J. Henley.
Recitation—Bro. P. Halley.
Song—Bro. W. L. Woods.

B. I. S. Ladies' Association.

A large gathering of ladies attended the meeting convened last night by the Literary and Amusement Committee of the B.I.S. Mr. W. J. Higgins, President of the B.I.S., outlined the plans of the executive regarding a ladies' auxiliary to assist the committee in its contemplated social programme. At the outset he explained that it was not the intention to raise any special funds but merely to extend social activities during the Fall and Winter months. He felt that such could be achieved in this respect by the active co-operation of those present whose numbers no doubt could be considerably augmented later on. He was followed by Mr. P. F. Moore, who briefly supplemented his remarks and explained other details. The representatives of the society then retired, and the Ladies elected the following Committee:—
President—Mrs. W. J. Higgins.
Secretary—Mrs. E. H. Peddigrue.
Treasurer—Mrs. P. F. Moore.
After other preliminaries had been attended to, it was announced that the auxiliary would begin its work by holding an informal "At Home" on Nov. 17th in the Club Rooms.

O. K. Apples.

The S.A. Canadian Miner has just brought the first shipment for this year of the famous British Columbia Apples from the Okanagan Valley. The Apples grown in this valley have captured the highest prizes in all the International Agricultural Exhibitions of America. The verdict of the principal Grocers in town, who now have them in stock, is that there have never been any apples received here equal to them.

Yum Yum Sale To-Day.

A Yum Yum sale will be held in the Lecture Room of Cochrane Street Church this afternoon at 3.30. The Cochrane Street ladies will serve the dainty teas for which they are noted and everything in the food line will be on sale, potatoes, pies, and for the children, ice creams and candies. The proceeds are to go towards paying the debt on the church and those who patronize the sale have the satisfaction of knowing that they are also contributing to a good cause. The sale is bound to be a great success, and a substantial amount will undoubtedly be raised, thus rewarding the Ladies' Association for all the trouble they have gone to in preparing for it.

No Money for Transportation.

Yesterday Mr. W. J. Walsh, M.H.A., for the District of Placentia received the following message from Davis Cove.
"Please arrange six passes from here to Millertown next Argyle. No money. Reply."
RICHARD CAUL.

The above message is an indication of the serious condition existing in parts of the District of Placentia and St. Mary's and is a reflection of the hard times being experienced in every section of the country. "Work or relief" is the cry heard everywhere, and the former being far preferable, for an once independent people, they are asking for it. But the problem is transportation to the seats of industry. Poor fishery no sales, etc., have left hundreds without ready cash, hence the appeal for free passes.

Nordica's Crew Arrives.

After a very trying experience, which has already been related in the Telegram, the Captain and crew of the abandoned schooner Nordica arrived here yesterday by S.S. Rosalind. They are now staying at the King George V. Institute until arrangements are made for their passage to Grand Bank. While at New York the needs of the shipwrecked mariners were looked after by the British Consul. The two stowaways, Aug. Vering and Quito Americ, are being looked after by the authorities and will be sent to their homes in Portugal at the first opportunity.

Conditions in White Bay.

Reports from White Bay indicate that conditions there are worse than at any period during this past quarter of a century, and many families, owing to the price and the small catch of fish, are without provisions. The young men are leaving the settlements in numbers to seek employment in the lumber camps and elsewhere. Over one hundred people were landed at Lewisport on this southward trip of the Prospero.

Personal.

Mrs. R. C. Grieve was a passenger by the S.S. Rosalind yesterday from England, via Halifax.
Mr. H. A. Anderson arrived from New York by the Rosalind yesterday.
Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hawvermale were passengers from Halifax by the S.S. Rosalind yesterday.
Mr. A. J. Gould of the Canadian Gazette Publishing Co., Toronto, arrived here on the S.S. Sable I. on Monday. Mr. Gould is looking after the distribution of the Canadian and Newfoundland Business Directory.
Mr. H. P. Lewis, Marine Supt. of the Atlantic Coast Transportation Co., Jersey City, N.J., arrived by the Rosalind yesterday on a brief visit to his relatives in the city. Mr. Lewis has been making good in the land of Uncle Sam and his many friends are pleased to meet him once more.
Mr. Robert Rowell, of Push-through, has entered the General Hospital to undergo an operation. His many friends trust that it will be successful and that his stay in this institution will be short.

HELD OVER.—The publication of the communication from Mr. M. E. Condon, which was announced yesterday for to-day, has been unavoidably held over.

Chinese Laundries.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Kindly allow me space in your paper to protest strongly against the indiscriminate opening of Chinese Laundries in the residential sections of the city. It is almost incredible to think that no control whatever has been placed on this menace to public health and the safety of property. The terrible catastrophe which occurred at the Chinese Laundry on New Gower Street some months ago, apparently has not aroused the proper authorities to a realization of the grave danger existing. Under present conditions, Chinese citizens can rent a private dwelling in any locality, and turn it into a laundry. The citizens in the vicinity are compelled to "grin and bear," having their lives and property endangered.

It is not my intention to deal harshly with our Chinese citizens or prevent them from obtaining a livelihood, but surely it is beyond the limit of endurance to have adjoining residences permeated with noxious vapours from any laundry. Is it not possible to place these laundries on the same footing as local factories, which are restricted with regard to fire haz-

To-Day's Messages.

20,000 REPATRIATES.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 10. Twenty thousand Galicians will return home this winter from Western Canada, according to local steamship agents. Many of them will not return. They intend to get home in time to take part in voting as to whether Galicia is dissatisfied with Polish rule or will join the British Empire.

BOLSHEVICKS MURDER AMERICANS

LONDON, Nov. 9. Capt. Emmett Kilpatrick, representative of the American Red Cross in South Russia, and two nurses, were brutally killed during a Bolshevik cavalry raid on Salkova station, says a Sebastopol despatch to Reuters Ltd. to-night.

FRANGEL'S FORCES INCREASING.

PARIS, Nov. 9. The French Foreign Office hears that General Wrangel, commander of anti-Bolshevik forces in Southern Russia, has declared to the French High Commissioner that his army returned to the Crimea three times more numerous and stronger than when it entered Laurida five months ago.

LLOYD GEORGE AT GUILDHALL.

LONDON, Nov. 9. Lloyd George, in his address at the Lord Mayor's banquet at the Guildhall to-night, discussed briefly and pointedly the various problems with which the Government is dealing. With regard to Germany, he declared himself personally pleased with the proposals of that country for liquidation of her obligations. Coincidentally the Chancellor of the ex-Chequer, Austin Chamberlain, announced in the House of Commons that Germany had placed a large amount of bonds in the hands of reparations commission. The Premier spoke optimistically of Ireland, intimating that the situation there was well in hand. Referring to questions between Germany and the Allies, Lloyd George said that the real test of Germany's sincerity was disarmament, and he added the report, given on that subject, is very satisfactory. The German army is rapidly being reduced to a hundred thousand, but there are still too many rifles at St. Germain, but they are greater menace to German internal peace than to Germany's neighbors, especially where we have to do with men, professing the Red, crazy temper of Bolshevism, who fail to realize how important it is they should respect their obligations. He referred briefly to the industrial situation and the recent coal strike, expressing the belief that there is better temper now all around. Speaking of the Irish situation the Premier said, "unless I am mistaken by the steps we have taken, we have a harder by the throat. Do not pay too much attention to detailed accounts of disturbances, and what are called the horrors of reprisals, given out by partisans, who slur horrors of murder. There will be no real peace, no reconciliation, until this murder conspiracy is scattered. We are getting tight hold of the men and are dispersing terrorists. The Government will seek further powers, if necessary, to deal with the situation. If it is war, as terrorists say, then they cannot complain if the Government employs some of the rules of war against them." He referred to his offer to discuss any proposals with any one able to speak in behalf of Ireland, saying, "If I had given that invitation to Germany in the middle of the war, I would have had a response, but giving it to Ireland, no man dare respond, because they are intimidated. You must break the terror before you can get peace. What the Government is offering Ireland is a partnership in the Greatest Empire the world has ever known to the height of its power."

O'DOWD GETS DECISION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. Mike O'Dowd, former middleweight boxing champion, outpointed Jeff Smith in a fifteen round match at Madison Square Garden here to-night. The judges disagreed and the referee awarded the bout to O'Dowd.

TURKISH CONTUMACY.

PARIS, Nov. 9. A despatch to the Havas agency from Constantinople says as Turkish Government continue to postpone the execution of certain undertakings required by the Allies, notably ratification of the Treaty of Sevres, by the imperial Government, trade and financial aid given Ottoman Treasury will be curtailed, and if that measure does not produce results, delivery of an ultimatum is being considered.

SHOCKING CONDITIONS.

LONDON, Nov. 10. Conditions in Armenia, as a result of the pressure of Turkish troops, are reported to be desperate. Tens of thousands of refugees are fleeing in a futile state, for want of food, clothing and transport.

GERMANS CELEBRATE.

BERLIN, Nov. 10. After a proclamation, unexpectedly issued by the General Federation of Labor Unions, Greater Berlin's labor celebrated the second anniversary of the German revolution yesterday. The middle classes did not take a holiday.

NOT DEAD YET.

VIENNA, Nov. 10. The Austrian Government has formulated a memorial, requesting the admission of Austria to the League of Nations.

The Great War Veterans' Dinner.

On to-morrow night the grand dinner of all veterans of the Great War will take place in the Mechanics' (C. C. C.) Hall at 7.45 p.m. to celebrate the anniversary of "Armistice." The night itself, the toast list, the meeting of old friends, the concert with the old-time songs and the familiar regimental marches give promise of a notable occasion. The catering will be in the hands of one time Mess Sergeant John Robinson, whose catering abilities were so well known on the other side.

His Excellency the Governor will be present, and a representative of the Government and of the Opposition will propose the "Army and Navy" respectively.

All those who intend to be present are asked to be at the Hall at 7.30 so that it will be possible to start the dinner without delay on the arrival of the Governor.

When all are seated the old familiar and often long-wished for "Come to the Cook-House Door," will be sounded by three buglers.

After dinner the Concert will take place and such old time musicians as Mike Smyth, the Tait trio, Gus Summers, Lloyd Woods, and "Jaakey" Seymour will once again be to the fore. The Jazzola Orchestra will give the old selections that were know so well during the war. All the choruses have been printed and all will join in so that once again the old refrains will be shouted in their old time vigour.

All who were given tickets to sell are requested to report to the Secretary of the G.W.V.A. Attention is drawn to the fact that the dinner is for all those who served in the Great War.

More Appointments.

It is now reported that Mr. L. E. Earle has been appointed Trade Commissioner to the Pacific coast. There is some doubt about his territory overlapping that of Mr. F. Hue. A directory with the names and locations of our Trade Commissioners is next in order and an opening awaits some enterprising person. A directory will be an absolute necessity as with the possible collapse of the Coaker Regime, it may be difficult to locate many who are situated in far away outposts. In any case it will be necessary to have a "staff clerk" to keep tab on them.

Serious Conditions.

Passengers who arrived by S.S. Prospero report conditions North as very serious. Many of the places in White Bay are in a state of semi starvation. At Jackson's Arm, a once prosperous place, the people are without food. Help will be needed if the northern section of the coast, is not to become depopulated.

Coastal Boats.

GOVERNMENT. S.S. Fortia arrived at Belleoram at 5 a.m. and left at 10 a.m., going west. S.S. Prospero is expected to get away from here on Friday morning.

GOVT. RAILWAY COMMISSION.

Argyle left Flat Islands 5.05 p.m. yesterday. Clyde left Little Bay Islands 5.35 p.m. yesterday.

Seft left Herring Neck 7.10 p.m. yesterday. Glencoe at Grand Bank yesterday. Home arrived Lewisport 5 p.m. yesterday.

Melgie, no report since leaving North Sydney. Kyle at Port aux Basques. Watchful arrived Port Blandford on way out.

Not a Member of Union.

Dear Sir.—There seems to be an impression that it was one of the regular Truckmen that was caught with those 3 barrels of beef one night last week. I would like to state for the benefit of the Truckmen's Union, that it was not a member of the Truckmen's Union that carted said beef.

Yours sincerely,
J. BARTER,
President T.P.U.
Nov. 9, 1920.

STILL DELAYED.—The new rudder for the s.s. Delco, expected by a.s. Rosalind yesterday, did not arrive, but it will come by s.s. Tashmore which is due here Friday morning. The Tashmore belongs to Moore & McCormack, New York, and is bound to Belfast with general cargo.

Winnard's Linctament Cures Diphtheria.

Police Court.

A young man belonging to Catalina, and who arrived here yesterday with that "aha qua sea," a script, got gloriously drunk, entered a woman's house and falling through the cellar hatch, went to sleep amongst the coals. He was removed by two members of the police force from his comfortable resting place, and deposited in the lock-up for the night. He was discharged.

A halfwitted girl, who arrived from LaSce yesterday by the Prospero, was found wandering about the streets by two ladies and brought to the police station, where she was placed in a cell for safekeeping. The court gleaned from her statements, many of which were incoherent, that she had been sent on to St. John's by the magistrate of LaSce to enter the Poor House, in the care of a business man of LaSce, whom she had lost track of after arrival here. His Honor expressed his disgust at the idea of the unfortunate girl being sent to the Poor House, and said that she would be better in some unsophisticated outpost home. In the meantime he committed her to the charge of the Supt. of Police, until something could be done for her by the Poor Commissioner.

A young man belonging to Foxtrap, was charged with drunkenness. He had been picked up on the Waterford Bridge Road, where he said he had been going to work.

His Honor: "Go in and go to work."

The next case to occupy the court's attention was rather a complicated one, three different summons being issued, all in connection with the one case. The first two were issued against a man for assaulting an old woman and doing damage to a door. The third was issued by the defendant in the first two cases against the plaintiff in the second one for assault. The first count was dismissed, on the second the defendant had to pay $2 damage, and the defendant in the third charge was fined $2 or seven days.

Express Passengers.

The following passengers are on the incoming express:—R. Collins, Miss D. Ryan, Mrs. M. Read, Jno. Baggis, J. and Mrs. Poundan, Esmign Roberts, Adjt. French, Capt. A. Parsons, A. Gosse, Rev. F. Baird, Miss H. Rowsell, Thos. Cole, Mrs. M. Powell and son, Miss H. Meek, John Moore, Mrs. A. Moore, Miss I. Moore, Miss J. Shea, W. Baldwin, J. and Mrs. Cox, E. Chalk, A. Saunders, Miss E. Snow, Mrs. McKay and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. St. John and two daughters, Mrs. A. Garcin, C. and Mrs. Reid, F. Lewis, H. S. Crowe, J. H. Coll, J. T. Andrews, Mrs. M. Barry, Thos. Farrell, S. Higgins.

What New Yorkers Think.

Several gentlemen who arrived by the Rosalind from New York, being interviewed regarding our trade connections with that centre, told us that they would give information absolutely correct, that does not reflect creditably on us as business people, but that the Star and Advocate would quickly hound them should they do so. However, Mr. Shipman, who had also been in New York, referring to conditions there said that trade was little dull, though commodities were beginning to pile in. He said that New York business men laugh at our methods which are decidedly the reverse of any other peoples with a staple to sell. The regulations, although killing Newfoundland so far as trade with New York is concerned, did not prevent the concerns there getting all the fish they need. Fish caught off the coast and cured suitable for the market have been sold to Greece, and while at Boston Mr. Shipman saw the third shipment, some 600 casks of this fish, being sent to that market. There are also some 200,000 qts. of Lunenburg fish still unsold, most of which will go to the West India market where we are rapidly losing our hold.

Dominion Night Sports.

It is expected that Mr. Jack Kavanagh who met with a slight accident on Friday night last while practising in the Prince's Rink, will be able to have a spin to-night. Quite a number of runners are now going over the course, and as the night of the Sports draws near enthusiasm increases. Arrangements to have three creek runners from Grand Falls participate, are being finalized. A slight ridge on the floor of the rink will be removed and the management hope in a day or two to have everything in first class order.

Susu's Passengers.

S.S. Susu called for points as far as Cartwright at 10 this morning, taking the following passengers: K. Atwood, Miss Minnie Moulard, Rev. and Mrs. Davies, Mr. Welsh, Mrs. D. MacRoberts, E. P. Parrott, G. Gibbons, Stephen Angel, Miss L. Hudson, Jabez Abbott.

Japanese White Nape.

A sample of fish, over a year old, was to be seen at the Board of Trade Rooms to-day, it having been sent there by a member. The fish came from far Japan, and is white nape, obviously in imitation of the Coaker white nape Labrador. It had evidently been split by machinery; the top of the napes and neck are also squared. The sample will likely be sent to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries with the object of having the imitation improved upon. We, with fear, venture to suggest that the indefatigable minister get his regulations copyrighted and the White Nape fish process patented.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Vivian Ruth, 11 days from Halifax, to the Imperial Oil Co., has arrived in port.
S.S. Corunna, 6 days from Montreal, arrived this morning with a general cargo to Harvey & Co.
S.S. Rosalind sails for Halifax on Friday or Saturday morning next.
S.S. Canadian Miller leaves Montreal on the 8th.
S.S. Prospero hauled to Bowring's Southside premises this morning to take bunker coal.

Personal.

Mr. Carl Trapnell, lately of R. H. Trapnell & Son, will shortly start in business as an optician in St. John's.
Capt. Tom Connors, of the s.s. Portia, who met with a nasty accident when his ship was in Burin, has greatly improved.

Business Dull.

Business was dull along Water Street to-day, although many people were about viewing the different bargain sales offered. Amongst the displays may be seen a barrel of flour in the window of a hardware dealer, evidently the owner having secured one is making his luck known. A pair of boots made 44 years ago by the Newfoundland Boot and Shoe Factory is another display. The motto "Encourage Home Industry" is attached. Many articles are, however, reduced to cost, the only exception being Fireless Cookers, there being such a demand for these owing to the high cost of coal ($21.00 per ton), that there is no necessity for cutting their price.

One of the greatest worries to be faced to-day is the choice of gifts for friends, as we do not get and give such useless things. A great society leader once said, "There is safety in Flowers for all occasions." We agree with her, and suggest a bunch of our beautiful Chrysanthemums, several colors, or Carnations, or a pot of Snappdragon, etc.; many other kinds soon ready.

Try Valley sun seasoned Tomatoes for Sandwiches, they are the rage. Bouquets, Wreaths, etc., quickly supplied.

Wedding Bells.

FINLAY—McNEIL.

St. Shotts was the scene of a quiet, pretty wedding on the morning of October 28th, when Mr. George Finlay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Finlay, of that place, led to the altar Miss Madeline McNeil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McNeil, Trepassey, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock by the parish priest, Rev. Wm. O'Flaherty. The bride was attired in a pretty costume of saxe blue with hat and veil and bouquet of orange blossoms. She was attended by her sister Mary, and the groom's sister, Josephine, both of whom were attired in white. Messrs. Thomas Finlay and Augustus McNeil, brothers of the contracting parties, ably supported the groom. After the nuptials was performed and congratulations extended by the host of people present, breakfast was partaken of at the home of Mr. Finlay's parents. Late in the afternoon the bride and groom proceeded to their residence, Farm Hill, where a sumptuous tea was served to the immediate relatives and friends and an informal dance was held. Heartiest congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Finlay. May their journey down life's pathway be strewn with the roses of happiness, prosperity and success.—Com.

TWO TYPHOID CASES.—Shortly after noon to-day the Public Health Department received word that two women of Cuddahy Street were stricken with Typhoid fever. They were immediately taken to the hospital.

CAB COLLIDES WITH STREET CAR.—Last night whilst Mr. Matt Kelly, the well known caddy, was turning his vehicle on Water St., near the City Club, the rubber slipped off one of the wheels and caused the cab to collide with a street car which was approaching. One of the shafts of the cab was damaged, but otherwise no harm was done.

Fancy Fair.

The ladies of the Presentation Convent Association are busy preparing for a Fancy Fair, the end of the month, and this event promises to be a great success. There are three reasons why it should appeal to bazaar patrons viz.—The object which is to finish the debt on the new building, the quality of the goods which will be offered for sale, and last but not least, this is a great chance to secure your Xmas gifts at a reasonable price. The various stalls will be abundantly supplied with plain and fancy goods. Children wear a specialty, handkerchief stall, candy stall, toys for the little ones, and the Magic Fish Pond. A refreshment table will cater to the tastes of the inner man, and afternoon teas, and most teas will be served by some of the ladies who are noted for their dainty teas at the various entertainments held by the association in the past.

As the North Sees It.

(Twillingate Sun.)

The fishery situation is in a tangle that is still very far from being unravelled. Nor is it easy to make head or tail of it from the city papers, since both Government organs and those of the Opposition mix politics indiscriminately.

The situation seems to be something like this, the merchants can get $5 a quintal advance from the banks to buy Labrador fish, for which about $8 or $8.50 is being paid. Certain of the merchants, through Mr. Coaker, are demanding that the Government guarantee the balance necessary to buy the Labrador catch, a sum estimated at about $400,000 or nearly half a million dollars.

While it might perhaps help the fishermen some to get paid for their fish it is argued, and with apparent justice, that the merchants will benefit by good profits at $8, the Government will run all the risk, and through the Government the people, and the fishermen will come off not very well at $8.50 for Labrador.

Another point rather bears out the claim we made last week that Big Business in St. John's, among which Mr. Coaker is now numbered apparently, is working a cute little game to secure Labrador codfish at a low rate.

Mr. Hawes still continues to act as Italian agent, though the Italian buyers have refused to deal through him. Rumors from the city say that Hawes has a contract with certain of the big merchants in St. John's, by which he gets a commission on sales of fish and returns them part of it so that whether it hurts the prospects of the Italian market or not Hawes will still be retained as agent for Newfoundland. This, if true, also bears out our claim that a little game is afoot.

The shutting out of the New York buyers has put the small man pretty much out of the fish buying business, and the control of the fish business is passing into the hands of the big fish merchants we fear much to the disadvantage of the fishermen, for whom the competition of the smaller man meant increased prices for their fish.

What happened to "white naped" shore fish we don't know, but "white naped" Labrador is "napoo" as the soldier boys used to say.

One shipment of this grade of fish sent to Liverpool was turned down on the ground that it was too much like Iceland fish, and a fisherman who took some to St. John's last week was compelled to sell it for $5.00 although ordinary Labrador was fetching $8. That fisherman, at any rate, will make no white naped Labrador next year.

"There will be no one fishing next year" is the cry that one hears continually. Men don't know how best to make their fish; the fishermen are given no consideration at all by a Government which they really believed at the time was to look after the fishermen's interest, and which they find is now in league with Reids and the big merchants. And it was not an enemy that did it but the man who posed as the uplifter of the underdogs, and the saviour of the country. That is what makes the fishermen feel it so keenly.

Will there have to be another Reid arbitration? The Government has abrogated the contract with Reids by taking over the Railway and steamship lines under the commission of which Mr. Coaker is chairman. Reids, it is said, will at the end of June refuse to take back the railway and will claim that the Government's action has annulled the contract, and a series of claims involving some millions of dollars may be in evidence.

This country has already had to pay Reids a million and half dollars on the Telegraph Award and this should have warned Mr. Coaker to tread cautiously; but he seems to have gone mad, and will hear neither reason nor advice.

Of Interest to Masons.

MEMORIAL WINDOW.

A Masonic Service was held at the famous old England Church of St. Nicholas, Deptford, S.E., on Sunday, 28th September, at 3.30 p.m., under the banner of the Justice Lodge, No. 147, assisted by local Lodges and several Grand Officers. A stained glass window to the memory of the late Bro. Rev. Arthur Hart, for many years Vicar of the Church, was unveiled. The sermon was preached by Bro. Rev. H. G. Rosedale, D.D., F.S.A., P. G.C.

ST. JOHN'S IN MASONRY.

St. John the Almoner, son of the king of Cyprus, was born in that island in the sixth century. He was canonized for his generosity and assistance to the pilgrims at Jerusalem. St. John the Evangelist was much revered for his constant admonitions to the cultivation of brotherly love and the mystical character of his writings. St. John the Baptist is the original patron saint of Masonry. He is venerated for his stern integrity and unshaken firmness with which he met martyrdom rather than fall in his duty. The Grand Lodge of England was revived on St. John the Baptist's day in 1717, and continued to celebrate this anniversary until 1727 when the celebration was changed to that of St. John the Evangelist.

CHARM FOUND INSIDE FISH.

From Milford, Ohio, comes the story that a Masonic emblem worn as a watch charm by Herbert C. Reed of Milford, and lost by him nine years ago, has just been returned to him by a Cannelton, Ind., fisherman, who found the charm in a 3-pound catfish he took from the Ohio River. Reed is auditor of Clermont County and for many years has been active in Masonic work.

One day in 1911 he was aboard the steamer Greenland, which was about to leave the Ohio River wharf at Huntington, W. Va. He was leaning over the side of the boat and while he was in this position the charm dropped from his chain into the water.

PROPOSED LODGE IN SAMOA.

A petition for a Lodge at Apia, Western Samoa, from fifteen English, Australian, and New Zealand Freemasons resident there, has been re-

Villes Flottante.

Jules Verne it was who, back in the sixties of last century, first applied the term "floating city" to those leviathans of the sea, the giant steamships, comments the Christian Science Monitor. Of course he was thinking of the mother of all big vessels, Brunel's nautical marvel, the Great Eastern. But just now "Une Ville Flottante" is brought sharply to mind by the published statement that the former Vaterland, renamed the Leviathan, has virtually ended its short career on the high seas. To be sure, there are big ships and big ships, but the super-ships can be counted on the fingers of one hand. It, as is reported, the Leviathan, the victim of too long disuse in its American dock, is for sale without any bidders, then the Olympic, the Aquitania, and the Imperator, flying the British flag, are the only real sea monsters still in active service.

It was something like half a century ago that the spinner of fascinating romances of natural science wrote his memorable "Une Ville Flottante," a book which since then has had time to reach the stage of a school classic. You can buy it to-day in convenient pocket size, closely annotated for the budding youth in Anglo-Saxon schools, with a copious English-French vocabulary, and the familiar explanatory preface avowing that the work "has been prepared with a special view to the needs of both teachers and pupils." It is a vivid recital, though not in the author of "From the Earth to the Moon," of his personal experiences upon the Great Eastern, when, in 1867, he set forth from Liverpool to cross the Atlantic as a passenger. At the time of her launching she was the largest vessel in the world. In fact, it was not until 1901, when the Celtic, of the White Star line, a comparatively small vessel to-day, came on the scene, that her equal in size was produced. Thus it came about that Jules Verne could not withhold his astonishment as he caught sight of the ship lying in midstream at Liverpool. To him she was of "imposing mass" and, besides her, three-masters looked like small boats. He stands on the tender looking up at the vessel and exclaims, "What thunders must be engulged in that cavern formed by the paddle-box!" The deck, to him, is simply an immense workshop alive with an army of workers. When he goes on an inspection tour of the vessels he likens himself to a tourist who makes a tour of a city unknown to him. The deck is a boulevard and he marvels over the 200 stewards detailed to serve the passengers.

It is a singular feature of big ship-building that it did not follow a gradual process of growth or evolution. Like the fabled Minerva, the Great Eastern sprang suddenly into being. Brunel's vessels was a daring experiment, and time has shown that his plans were 50 years ahead of his age. There was something of Napoleonic impulse in his ignoring of established precedent. There was little ready to hand for him. The maker of ship's plates, the boiler maker, the carpenters, stateroom and saloon designers, the upholsterers, and a caught, as it were, napping. The most of other craftsmen, were limitations of steamship comfort of that period can best be gauged by the account which Char-ceived by the Grand Lodge of England through the Fiji Lodge, No. 1815, meeting at Suva Na Viti Levu Fiji—says the "Times." It is proposed to name the Lodge "Calliope," that being the name of the British warship which went to the rescue of the men in the five ships which were driven on to the coral reef at Apia on 15th March, 1889, and totally wrecked.

The proposed first Master is Bro. J. C. McGill Nutt, a member of several Craft Lodges, Arch Chapters, Mark Lodges and other Masonic bodies in London, Bournemouth, and New Zealand. Bro. McGill Nutt was a delegate of the N.Z.E.F. Masonic Association during the war, and visited a large number of Lodges in Great Britain. The remaining proposed Founders are principally connected with New Zealand Freemasonry.

MASONRY IN INDIA.

The "Times of India," recently said. The installation ceremony which took place at Lodge Orion in the West last Saturday, when nearly one hundred Masons were present recalls to one's mind, amidst the distractions of the Poona Season, something which is far removed from the madding crowd. Calmand screen, this wonderful assembly of man—an order which existed before the Golden Fleece of the Roman Eagle, working through its marvellous symbolism of life and death, quietly pursues its powerful course, despite all the blatant clamour of the outside world. How truly the ancient peoples understood the hidden value of unseen effort in securing the stability of the world:—

In the elder years of art Builders wrought with greatest care Each minute and hidden part. For the God's self everywhere.

When the forces which make for the disintegration of all that makes life worth living are everywhere apparent one turns with a sign of contentment to anything which has for its principles Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth.

C. C. C. Basket Ball.

The basketball games previously announced, will be played in the C.C.C. Armoury to-night. The public will be given opportunity to see this sport in all its stages, as three games will be played beginning with a Junior contest in which 'A' Co. will meet 'B' Co. The youngsters are well trained and will give something worth seeing. The next game, which will be a thriller, will be played between teams who fought hard for superiority last year with about even honors. The White vs. Blue games will be alone worth the admission fee. However, the game of that night takes place as a final when the Sergeants meet the N.C.O.'s. In last year's series the Sergeants proved champions, but the others are determined this year shall see the reverse so that this game will prove exciting from start to finish. For the benefit of those not familiar with the game, it may be stated that basketball is played with the hands. To touch the ball with any other part of the body is a foul, for which a free throw is awarded the opposing team, which if scored, tallies one point and to score from the field means two points for the team scoring same. Charging, shoving, etc., is forbidden and also awards the opposing team with a free throw. These are just rough outlines of the game, but to appreciate it in its true light it must be seen. There is room for everyone in the Armoury, so let the attendance be large to-night, as the Cadets guarantee an interesting game.

LONDON GOSSIP.

THE MARRIAGE OF THE PRINCE.

LONDON, Oct. 25, 1920. The first leader in the London Times on the marriage of the Prince of Wales has aroused a good deal of speculation. Those versed in the practice of "reading between the lines" in the relations between the Court and the Times in its Delane past put the construction upon it that either there is a struggle going on in the higher altitudes on the limitations of the Prince's choice of a consort or that the Prince has already chosen an English wife and the Times is breaking the fact to the people. The tenor of the article is that marriages of policy with a princess of foreign birth are now no longer necessary and do not make for happiness, and that the Prince's wife should be one of his own race. From one who can speak with some authority on Court matters I am told that there is no foundation for the second theory. The Prince has shown no inclinations for any particular lady, except perhaps in one instance, which is now a few years old, and the lady is now married. As to the idea of a difference of view at Court about the limitation of the Prince's choice, it is no secret that there is a strong desire in one high quarter for his marriage with a Rumanian princess, and that to another high quarter a marriage with the daughter of a British duke of a family long and closely associated with the Court would be the ideal arrangement. Apart from the natural desire that the Prince should marry an English girl there is another consideration. There is no eligible princess of Royal birth in Europe who has not German blood, and that alone would be sufficient explanation for the Times taking a hand against any but an English consort for the Prince.

UNVEILING THE CENOTAPH.

It is a common trait in man that, be he what he may, he finds a certain pleasure in feeling the hand of sentiment sweep over his responsive emotions. And so it is with a nation, which, even in its darkest moments, finds comfort in having its imaginative and sensitive soul stirred by some appeal to the heart. The ceremonies around the Cenotaph in London on November 11th may, therefore, have a stronger influence on the affairs of this trouble-racked country than many dream of. At present the Cenotaph still rears itself from the roadway of Whitehall behind close barricades and scaffolding, but by the anniversary of the Armistice it will be complete, and the impressive ceremony of unveiling by the King, the members of his suite, Ministers of the State, naval and military chiefs, and representatives of the Church, will be there in front of the memorial. Around it will be troops. Behind them to the north 10,000 representatives of the bereaved of North London will gather, and a similar number on the opposite side will represent the South. A short religious service will be held, on the stroke of 11 the concourse will, amid surroundings playing a vital part in the efforts towards a solution of our national difficulties, uncover in tribute. But in so doing it will not only honor the dead, but bring to itself an access of hope and strength for the troublous times which still lie before.

GERMANY'S COMMERCIAL OBLIGATIONS.

London's banking and commercial centre as a whole is anxious about the financial situation in Germany. It does not believe all the statements that she is on the brink of bankruptcy. But the story is disquieting all the same, for, during the past month or two, there have been heavy sales to Germany from this country. In this alarmist story many people detect the hand of the German propagandist, and the fact that the Dutch, who are nearer neighbors, plumped whole-heartedly for German stability, and have been selling even more heavily than the British merchant, provides little comfort. Men in the city point out that Germany's exports have been very heavy recently and they estimate that at the present time there is more than enough money due to German firms from foreign countries to pay for the imports. They are, therefore, not afraid that the Germans will fail to meet their obligations, but they would like to see more clearly into future conditions of the country if we are to continue trading.

HER WATERED CURRENCY.

We have been complaining badly about the amount of paper money in this country, but Germany is in this respect a great deal worse, and this is one of the factors which is causing British traders uneasiness. They find it hard to believe that the policy of the German Government, by which the currency is being continually watered with fresh paper money, is not a deliberate one. If it were not for that they are sure the mark would depreciate in value. As it is, the Government is keeping the printing presses at work, and the internal indebtedness is now more than twice the figure at the time of the Armistice. The German theorist seems to be obsessed with the idea that borrowing at home is immaterial. The manager of one of our joint stock banks has expressed the opinion that, owing to the enormous number of marks held by speculators outside currency, the German Government will do everything it can to prevent the foreigner from reaping benefit from any improvement in German finance. He predicts that the value of the mark will go still lower before Christmas.

DISTURBANCE IN WHITEHALL.

The fight in Whitehall last week between the police and the unemployed was an ugly business. The disgusting thing was a new strain of violent unreason in the post-war crowd. In the old days a conflict of the kind between demonstrators trying to get into Downing Street (a turning off Whitehall, where is the official residence of the Premier) and policemen keeping them out would have produced nothing more than a rough horseplay more or less good-humoured. But this crowd, or the active element in it, was composed largely of men who have learned violence in a terrible school. The good humour degenerated with curious suddenness into viciousness, and we had the sight—unexampled in anyones memory—of the mob tearing up stones to pelt the police with, and mounted police charging down Whitehall laying about them with their long truncheons. I do not think such a thing could have happened in the centre of things before the war. The actual trouble was caused by a few scores of aggressive men. The mass of the unemployed demonstrators were quiet and orderly. In any case, such things do not happen without deep cause in this most good-tempered of cities. The ex-service out-of-works—there are 60,000 in London alone, I believe—are worked up to real exasperation after many months' semi-starvation on the dole. This affair may be only the first rumble of a big storm this winter. The police are not to be blamed. They did their distasteful duty patiently and efficiently under the unparalleled provocation (in West London at any rate) of a hail of stones. In all hands I hear condemnation of the un wisdom of the authorities in forbidding the unemployed to hold a meeting in Trafalgar Square. That would have drained off the excitement and kept the men quiet until the deputation was over.

MILLIONS FOR THE ROADS.

The Government estimates that the cost of repairing the roads of England, and making them fit to carry the enormously increased bulk of traffic will be $36,000,000 next year. The Ministry of Transport, therefore, is encouraging surveyors to give very careful consideration to the problem of obtaining a good and sound surface at a reasonable cost, and also foundations to bear the added strain of heavy motor traffic. Sir Worthington Evans is understood to have put before the Government a plan for starting this work wholesale and quickly if many men are thrown out of work this winter by bad trade.

COMMERCIAL HYDROGLIDERS.

The trials of a 40-knot hydroglider—a weird sledge-like motor boat with an aerial propeller—caused a lot of attention on the Thames the other afternoon. Most people noticed her on account of her very high speed, but the trials were really held to prove her suitability for commercial work to Colonial people who were interested. Up to now hydrogliders have been considered suited for mail, passenger, and express freight service on inland waters. The present slow toil up the Nile by native craft, for instance, offers an excellent example of the opportunities of the new vessels, for they can cover in a few hours distances which now take days, even by modern steamers. The fact that they only require a few inches of water renders them almost immune from the handicap of adverse tides, while they are capable of running up very sizeable rapids. If the steersman has the nerve to keep them up to them. When their carrying capacity and fuel consumption are compared, the aeroplane is at a great disadvantage.

Famous Island.

The Chilean Government is said to be contemplating the making of a national park, and tourists' resort on "Robinson Crusoe's island of Juan Fernandez." The islands of Juan Fernandez were, as is well known, the scene of Alexander Selkirk's five years' exile, but Robinson Crusoe never saw or heard of them. They are in the Pacific Ocean, some hundreds of miles west of Chili, whereas Robinson Crusoe was said by Defoe to have been wrecked in the Atlantic Ocean, off the north-east coast of South America not far from the mouth of the Orinoco River. In the face of these indisputable statements what reason is there to associate Juan Fernandez, many thousand miles away on the opposite coast of the South American continent, with Robinson Crusoe?

First Feminine Angels.

Fra Angelico was the first painter to depict angels of the gentler sex. This was deemed a bold and unscientific innovation by churchmen of his time, inasmuch as it was always understood that there was no such thing as a female angel. Modern picture angels, however, are often of the female persuasion; and it will be noted that usually they are blonds. But the arch-angels are invariably represented as of the male sex.

Brakes Rated Most Important Part of Car

The brakes are the most important parts of an automobile, but few motorists are aware of this fact. An automobile without brakes would be like a man with hands manacled and feet shackled. What good would a car be to the driver if he were unable to stop it whenever it was necessary? To start a car is easy, but it is more essential to be able to stop it. In a campaign which The San Francisco Chronicle is now conducting, urging motorists to give brakes the strictest inspection, it was asked: "What is the most important part of an automobile?" Answers ranged from the motor to the water pump, and vice-versa, but only fourteen motorists really guessed right. Faulty brakes have been responsible for numerous accidents, when a thorough inspection would have saved the motorist a great deal of trouble. Traffic policemen are instructed to see whether or not the drive of a car had his brakes applied immediately after a collision. A suggested plan is simple, and involves virtually no expense to the motorist, only a little of his time. The system is to have the brakes on motor vehicles inspected at regular intervals during the year and a certificate issued, with the date similar to the system used on all railroads of the nation. Car brakes are inspected and the date stamped on the compressed air tank and this inspection is made at regular intervals, so that there is no chance of failure. It is often that you hear of the brakes on railroad coaches falling to work. A motorist can see what an important role the brakes of his car play. Not only his own safety, but that of the passengers in his car and the pedestrians depends on the condition of the brakes, and there is no reason why these brakes should not be inspected just as often as railroad car brakes.

Heavy Metals.

Anybody who has been allowed to handle a gold brick perhaps on the occasion of a visit to the mint, must have been astonished to find how heavy it was. Gold is, in fact, twice as heavy as lead. Yet it is not the heaviest of metals. That rank is held by osmium, which is one-sixth heavier than gold. At the other end of the scale of weights we have lithium, which is so light that it will float on water. It is queer stuff! Put a small chunk on your desk and you will observe that it is growing smaller. Before long it will disappear entirely, vaporized. Magnesium is nearly three times as heavy as lithium; yet it is

The Indifferent Cat.

Of all the beasts which man has long tamed, the cat appears at first sight to have the least trace of occasional relapses into barbarism, says the London Times. But it is truer to say that the cat has lost none of her primitive instincts than that she remains none. Cats are essentially undomesticated, though for their own good purpose they condescend to use our fireplaces and tables. They were originally solitary animals, as the wild cat or the lynx is to-day; and while the gregariousness of the dog and horse enables them to transfer their affection to mankind, the cat makes no such deep friendships. What dog could have endured the desolation of the ruined and deserted villages in France? Yet when all else had left the cats dwelt on, in lairs among the felled fruit-trees; because at heart they are indifferent to man.

A President's Duties.

A man suffering from mental breakdown was still President of the French Republic less than two months ago. He has resigned. His successor reigns in his stead. But there were no political conventions to name candidates for the Presidency. There was no campaign. There was no voting by the French people. Members of Parliament went to Versailles, and there, in the ancient chateau, chose a President of the Republic.

Seen from afar, the French method might appear to be a very practical suggestion. It saves time, money, excitement and bother. But in France, the President is not a President; he is a sort of elected king, reigning for seven years, while the powers and duties involved in actually ruling belong mainly to the Premier. An ornamental figure and little else, the French President lives showily in a palace, entertaining visiting sovereigns, lends the dignity of his presence to state occasions, and, quite as did the old French monarchs, personifies France. Great is his pomp.

The founders of American democracy took pains to strip the Presidency of whatever might too closely resemble monarchic grandeur. The President has no military guard, no chamberlains or grooms-in-waiting; his every-day life is simple; his wife enjoys precedence over all other ladies, but is visited and received just like other ladies; he is surrounded by no such pomp and enforces no such etiquette as that which belongs to the governors even of second-class English colonies, not to speak of the viceroys of India and Ireland.

Only impeachment can remove a President, and no President has as yet been successfully impeached. Four years he lasts, if he lives that long.

The President is the head of the national administration. It is the duty to see that the Constitution, laws, and treaties of the United States, and judicial decisions rendered by the Federal courts are duly enforced everywhere throughout the United States.

The President is Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy and of the State Militia when called into the service of the United States.

The President appoints all military and naval officers by and with the advice and consent of the Senate—except militia officers, who are appointed by the respective States.

The President is not limited in the conduct of war to the direction of the armed forces; he may do whatever a commander-in-chief is warranted in doing under the laws of war to weaken and overcome the enemy.

Under his war-power, the President may govern conquered territory, appoint officers there, make laws and ordinances, lay and collect taxes of all kinds, and, in short, exercise practically every sovereign right, until Congress has acted.

The President may use armed forces in carrying into execution the Federal law against resistance that can not be overcome by ordinary civil process.

The President is the official spokesman of the nation in the conduct of all foreign affairs, and he is primarily responsible for United States foreign policy and its results.

The President appoints ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls, subject to the confirmation of the Senate; he makes treaties with the consent of two-thirds of the senators present; and he receives ambassadors and public ministers from foreign countries. As Commander-in-Chief of the Army he might move troops to such a position on the borders of a neighboring State as to bring about an armed conflict.

The veto power, taken in connection with the message and the appointing power, is an effective political instrument in the hands of the President. By using a threat of the veto, he may secure the passage of bills which he personally favors; and at all times, in considering important measures, Congress must keep in view the possible action of the President, especially where it is a party question and the correct attitude before the King Succumbs to Effect of Monkey's Bite.

King Alexander of Greece died at Athens. His death was due to wounds he had received in an attack by a pet monkey early in October, the King being badly mutilated. Alexander succeeded to the throne of Greece in June, 1917, when his father, King Constantine, abdicated in response to the demands of France, Britain and Russia. The three powers had guaranteed the constitutional liberties of the Greek people. Alexander was the second son of Constantine, and at the time of his accession was not quite 24 years old. His elder brother, Crown Prince George, was considered ineligible for the throne because of alleged pro-German sympathies. In any event, King Constantine designated Alexander to succeed him. The fall of Constantine had been brought about through the agency of a French senator, M. Jonnart, who had been sent to Athens in June, 1917, as a representative of the three great powers. He found that this step would destroy the unity of feeling among the Greeks and greater security for the Greek forces then operating in the Balkans. Constantine had been accused of pro-German sympathies partly on account of his marriage to the Princess Sophie, sister of the then Emperor William of Germany, and it also charged that he had not acted impartially toward the Allies. Alexander, on the other hand, was reported to be free from pro-German proclivities. Constantine left Athens and took refuge in Switzerland. Alexander took the oath of office in August and promised to carry out the policy of his father. He was said to have shocked the European powers. It soon was reported he was at odds with Premier Venizelos and had refused to abandon his idea of continuing his father's policy. Some doubts were raised as to the advisability of permitting him

World's Mystery Mountain.

Enormous interest has been aroused by the announcement that the Royal Geographical Society contemplates fitting out an expedition to attempt the ascent of Mount Everest, in the Himalayas. For not only is this the highest mountain in the world; but it is the world's mystery mountain. Although it was discovered seventy years ago, no European has yet succeeded in getting anywhere nearer than about fifty miles of it, much less setting foot on its slopes. This is because it is so high that it is situated partly in Nepal and partly in Tibet, and the Governments of both these countries object to the presence of European explorers.

Besides this the Nepal base of the giant mountain is in any case practically unapproachable, owing to the dense jungle growth, extending for a width of sixty or seventy miles all round, and into whose depths no white man may venture and live. The proposal now is to attempt the ascent from the Tibetan side. This is doubtless possible, but whether the summit can be reached or not is another matter. Most experts say not, and point to the fact that the Duke of the Abruzzi's attempt to scale Mount Codwin-Austria, Everest's mighty neighbour, and the second highest peak in the world, resulted in failure. He ascended as far as 24,000 feet, but was then obliged to turn back owing to the difficulty of breathing, due to the extreme rarefaction of the air. Mount Everest is more than 29,000 feet high.

John Brown.

John Brown, the abolitionist and anti-slavery leader, was born at Torrington, Conn., on May 9, 1800. He removed with his parents to Ohio in 1826, learned the trade of a tanner and currier, and in 1840 became a dealer in wool. Having conceived the idea of becoming the liberator of the negro slaves in the South, he emigrated in 1845 to Kansas, where he took an active part in the contest against the pro-slavery party. In August, 1856, he gained a victory at Osawatimie over a superior number of Missourians who had invaded Kansas. On the night of October 18, 1859, he seized the arsenal of Harper's Ferry, Virginia, at the head of a small band of followers, with a view to arming the negroes and inciting an insurrection. He was captured on October 18, was tried by the Commonwealth of Virginia and condemned to death, and was executed at Charleston on December 2, 1859.

Bitten by Monkey.

On October 3 he was bitten by a monkey while endeavoring to protect his dog from an attack. His wound became infected and several operations for the removal of flesh were performed. His condition for several days was reported to be critical.

The monkey's attack on the King recalls a somewhat similar episode that occurred in the spring of 1919, when the youthful monarch was bitten by a dog which had been presented to him by an admiring member of the Scottish Women's Hospital at Salonica. The correspondent who visited the King at his palace in Athens at that time found the King wearing his right arm in a sling. "Did you shoot the dog?" he was asked.

"No," replied the King, "he's only a pup, and I decided to give him another chance. He bit me only in a playful spirit."

King Alexander was tall, of medium build, blond hair and light complexion. He invariably wore a monocle. He had many of the features of his other, Queen Sophie. His education was gained from private tutors and he had an excellent command of English. His favorite pastime was automobilism. He owned several cars which he used to drive through the streets of Athens at high speed. He was personally popular among his people, but was not liked by the followers of his deposed father, King Constantine, who were anxious to return the older man to the throne. He exercised little power in the affairs of his country, all state and foreign matters being handled by Premier Venizelos and his ministers.

Paul Proclaimed King.

Prince Paul, younger brother of the late King Alexander, has been proclaimed King by the Greek Parliament. Earlier in the session Admiral P. Coundouriotis was elected regent. Prince Paul was born in Athens, December 1, 1901, and is not married. Since his father, former King Constantine, left Greece, Prince Paul has been with him in Switzerland.

Criticism of the Government's policy in making Prince Paul's accession to the throne conditional was answered in the Parliament by Venizelos with the declaration that it was intended that if Prince Paul were made King he should not be a proxy for ex-King Constantine. Admiral Coundouriotis was sworn in immediately as regent after his election.

Proposed Yacht Races.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Paul Hammond, of New York; Guy Lowell, of Boston; Paul Drexel, of Philadelphia, and E. W. Stewart, of New York, have challenged British yachtsmen to a race which, it is hoped, will become an annual event, says the Daily Mail. It has been suggested, according to the newspaper, that the first race be held in British waters next summer, and thereafter alternately in United States and British waters.

The challenge, it is said, virtually has been accepted, on behalf of four prominent English yacht clubs, by a well known yachtsman to whom the challenge was sent.

The Mail understands that Sir Charles Allen and W. H. Burton, Captain of the Shamrock IV, in the America's Cup races last summer, are among those interested in the challenge.

20% First ten per cent.—then twenty per cent. It is incredible! We thought when we staged our famous "Back to '14 Campaign" that ten per cent. was a generous reduction, though the effect it produced was well worth it. It showed to other stores the necessity for protecting the customer, and they followed our lead. Now—twenty per cent! But there it is in black and white—"orders from headquarters," sent from New York, the buying centre of America. Kearney is there—and Kearney knows!

Everything goes into this Sale—lock, stock and barrel—giving you the benefit of next year's prices now, and selling you Quality Goods no matter how sheer the reduction.
