Published by Authority.

His Excellency the Administrator has received a cablegram from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, intimating that His Majesty the King has expressed the wish that on Armistice Day, Nov. 11th, there shall be a complete suspension of all normal business throughout the British Empire during the two minutes silence, commencing at 11 a.m.

His Excellency and Ministers, feeling sure that the people of this ancient and loyal Colony desire to perpetuate the memory of our great deliverance and of those who laid down their lives to achieve it, direct that such observance shall take place throughout this Colony, and that at 11 a.m. on Saturday next, the 11th instant, all normal activities shall be suspended for the space of two minutes, during which time all thoughts will be concentrated in reverent remembrance of the Glorious Dead.

In St. John's the Gun at Cabot Tower will be fired at the hour above named.

For the two minutes as above trains will be stopped on the railways, traffic on the streets, ships at sea (as far as possible) and work suspended everywhere, in schools, shops, mines, factories, etc. During the two minutes there should be complete silence.

His Excellency the Administrator and Ministers believe that all will gladly interrupt their business and pleasure, whatever it may be, and unite in this simple service of silence and remembrance.

SCALE AND RASH ON CHILD'S HEAD

Scalp Sore and Inflamed. Cross and Fretful. Lost Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

"From early infancy my little girl had a scale and rash on her head and her scalp was sore and inflamed. She was cross and fretful and suffered loss of sleep. Her hair would not grow, and her head was disfigured. This trouble lasted for several months and finally sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and now she is healed." (Signed) Mrs. Lydia B. King, 749 Ashland Ave., Ocean Park, Calif. Use Cuticura for all toilet purposes.

LADY IRIS' MISTAKE; Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XXX.

"The man whom you called your friend, whom you professed to love, has gone away heart-broken, his life spoiled and blighted, his love and his hopes wrecked. 'Dead in life' he said he should be, and you, the man he called his friend and trusted, have done this for him. This is one part of your vengeance—perhaps the most cruel; for it has fallen upon the head of one who was your true friend and liked you for your own sake."

"Your words torture me!" cried John Bardon, burying his face in his hands.

She did not seem to know what he said.

"The second part of your revenge is upon me; and I have to tell you how well you have succeeded. I have been arrogant and proud of my name and race; but my pride has been destroyed. You have been very cruel to me, John Bardon; but you have helped by your vengeance to make a better woman of me."

He held out his hand imploringly but she did not seem to see him.

"Now," she continued, "you will like to know if you have made me suffer."

"WHAT YOUR HUSBAND NEEDS"

"One night my husband came home looking so ill and worn out that I thought he would faint. I knew there had been something wrong with him for some time, but I could not get him to tell me what it was. Finally he confessed he was tired and sore all over. I made him go to bed. Next morning he insisted upon going to work although he was anything but well. I knew that his trouble was partly due to worry because for some months before he had been out of work. This put us so heavily in debt that the grocer and butcher refused to give us more credit. It was being out of work that worried my husband. He wouldn't eat because he was afraid there would not be enough food for the children. We were so poor that we had to keep the children from school because they had no clothes. I knew that if I could only get my husband strong and well again everything would be all right. He is a carpenter by trade and when in good health earns good wages and he is always sober and industrious. But I knew that it was impossible for any man to do good work when he was ill and worried. I decided to speak to our old family doctor, who had retired from practice. When I explained how we were situated he gladly offered to do all he could to help us, although he didn't like to interfere with the new doctor's practice. Finally he said, 'What your husband needs is a good tonic and I know of nothing better than Carnol. I thought that if our old family doctor recommends Carnol it must be all right. On my way home I got a bottle and before the first bottle had been used, my husband was a changed man. After he had taken four bottles his appetite returned, he had more energy, his tired look in his eyes disappeared and what is most important his wages have been more than doubled and he is now superintendent of the wood working shop in which he formerly worked as a carpenter. Thanks to Carnol our troubles are over and we are once more a happy and contented family.'

Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money.

Alas, yes—my heart is broken! I care no longer for life; all its brightness has died out; and the only desire I have is for death."

"You can marry him," sobbed the man who had caused all this misery; "you need not be so unhappy, unless you wish it."

Her eyes met his calmly.

"You know that I shall never do that," she replied. "Unless you had been quite sure of that, you would not have introduced him to me. The very soul of your vengeance was that I should love him; for you knew that when I was acquainted with his story, I should never marry him. You have been false in your friendship. Shame on you!"

"I repent!" he cried. "I would give my life to undo it—believe me, Lady Iris!"

"Honor is better than life," she said, "and you have lost that. Your life must be of little worth to you without it, and you can never undo what you have done."

His strong frame trembled with emotion.

"I swear to you that I have never known one moment's peace or happiness since I did it."

"Then heaven is just," she said coldly; "I will finish what I came to say, as this may be the last time we shall meet. Your revenge is complete; you wished to make me suffer, and I am suffering as much as any one could suffer and live. You have been the cause of this, John Bardon. I may live many years, but I shall never be a happy wife; I shall never know what a husband's love is. While my father lives I shall have one friend; but when he dies, I shall have none; and when, weary of my solitary life, my turn comes to die, my name and that of my race will die with me. You have done this for me, so that your revenge should be complete. You have wrecked my life. I have enjoyed the world, and have loved its gayeties and pleasures; but no nun will live a more secluded life than I shall live now. I leave you to proclaim to the world that the blow from your traitorous hand has set me into solitude. Say, is not your revenge sweet?"

"No," he cried, "I loved you with a passionate love; I hated you with a fierce hatred. It seemed to me that I could not rest until I had punished you; but now I would willingly die to undo what has been done."

"That cannot be," she said, turning away from him. "And now that I have said what I came to say, I will leave you. I have told you how completely you have succeeded in blighting two lives; you will perhaps enjoy your own all the better for thinking of that."

"I shall think of it with sorrow and regret," he returned.

A faint ripple of scorn passed over the pale face.

You have not even the courage of your crime," she said. "You tell a lie that ruins two lives, and then express regret for it. I really think that I should prefer a more hardened criminal."

She walked with her usual stately step to the door, but he threw himself before her; he tried to clasp her hand, but she would neither look at him nor listen.

"I have said all that I came to say, and I have not a word to add. Let me pass."

He was so overawed by her dignity, by the imperious gesture and the proud face, that he drew back; and she passed out of his presence forever.

CHAPTER XXXI.

"But you, had you chosen, had you stretched hand, Had you seen good such a thing were done, I too might have stood with the souls that stand In the sun's light, clothed with the light of the sun. But now who on earth need care how I live? Have the high gods anything left to give, Save dust and laurels and gold and sand? Which gifts are goodly; but I will none."

Lady Iris read these lines when she opened the letter sent by Allan, and to them were added a few words of his own. She would have heard, he wrote, that an outbreak had occurred among some of the frontier tribes of India, which it was anticipated would have serious results; he was exchanging therefore into a regiment ordered to India at once.

"And," he added, "Heaven being merciful to the miserable, I hope to die there. Life which parts me from you is a thousand times more bitter than death. If you see—as I pray you may—my name among the list of killed, say to yourself that Heaven has called home the most wretched of men."

It was the only letter she received from the man she loved; and she kept it amongst her most precious treasures. It reached her on the morning of the day that she was leaving Chandos, and she showed it to her father. The perusal of it moved him.

"You have thrown away a noble heart, Iris," he said. "He is a man who will always, whether you love him or not, stand in the light of the sun."

She never cared to remember her journey—it was so full of pain to her. As they drew near Fenton Woods, her father grew more sad and melancholy; and she began to remember—what in the midst of her own sorrow she had half forgotten—the fact that he had never liked the thought of going to Fenton. He had been so happy there with her mother that he could not bear the painful memories associated with it.

It was a beautiful place; the house stood on a hill, and the view of the surrounding country was magnificent. At the foot of the hill nestled a little village called Brook. The novelty of seeing the house for the first time, the pleasure of strolling in lovely woodlands, distracted her attention for the first three days. Lord Caledon began to hope that she had found a true remedy for her sorrows; but after the third day her melancholy returned.

The earl received a cordial welcome after his long absence. The bells of Brook Church pealed merrily, and the villagers came up in a friendly, simple, old-fashioned way to greet the earl and his daughter.

Lord Caledon and Lady Iris lived in close retirement. The wind that came from the pine woods was refreshing and invigorating, and the deathly pallor soon left Lady Iris's face. Her eyes grew brighter, and the dainty lady who had made her face look like a delicate rose came back; yet she was wonderfully altered.

"She is a great beauty," said the villagers. "Her face is like a flower, and her hair like gold. It's a pity she's so sad; she doesn't laugh and talk as other ladies do. She seems to be thinking of some one who is far away," and they little knew how near the truth they were.

Lady Iris was in the dining-room when her father sent for the butler and began to ask him about some of the villagers he had known. Some were married, he was told, and some dead and gone; but those that remained were very glad that he had come back. A sad thing had happened, the butler said.

"Your lordship of course remembers the old nurse Esther Rowgan, whom you pensioned off?"

The earl's face changed at the mention of her name, and he said, "Yes, he remembered Esther, and he hoped she was getting on well."

THE COME-BACK.

Grandfather Willard rised majestic in the gloom; "You're due for some surprises," we hear him bravely boom; "you've taken it for granted I was too dead to skin, already to be planted where none may tell or spin. Because my locks are hoary, because my hinges screech, you thought the field of glory was far beyond my reach. But soon I will be reigning a champion once more, for I've been busy training—though training is a bore. My elephantine labors with gloves and punching bag have so inspired my neighbors, they bet on me and brag. The critics have rescinded their fatuous decrees, I am not broken-winded, I have no spavined knees. I'll meet this Dempsey person, and on that fatful day some bard will write a verse on his tombstone, right away." "I fear when Dempsey whacks him with lusty blif and crack, 'twill merely prove the maxim that has-beens don't come back. I'd like to see Jess flourish like yonder green bay tree, but taint the hopes I nourish, they're sticky things to see. When to the ring I've motored I'll root for him all day, but while I'd boost a dotard, I would not bet that way."

When cooking prunes add about ¼ cupful of cranberries to each pound and sweeten to taste.

If double blankets are cut apart and bound separately, they are easier to launder and change.

Chopped green peppers, nutmeg and butter make savory seasoning for baked stuffed potatoes.

Halved boiled sweet potatoes are excellent cooked in casserole with partially cooked sausage.

If apples are rather tasteless add 3 tablespoonfuls of orange juice to them when using for pie.

Part of a head of cabbage will keep fresh if wrapped in oiled paper and placed in a paper bag.

Baked bananas served on toast with lemon sauce may substitute for meat in a vegetable dinner.

When baking orange marmalade, use 4 limes to 9 oranges and 6 lemons. The flavor will be delicious.

This slices of oranges and Spanish onion are appetizing served on lettuce with French dressing.

It adds to the food value of baked potatoes to brush them with fat or butter before putting them in the oven.

Mattresses should be cleaned with the wide-mouthed suction tool of the vacuum cleaner at least four times a year.

Free At your dealer's this week A 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent

Teeth People Show and teeth they don't—the difference lies in a new way to combat film

A new method of cleaning has brought better teeth to millions. Also cleaner, safer teeth.

You see the results wherever you look. Teeth now glisten which before were dim. They show in smiles now where folks once concealed them.

This is to tell you the reason, then to urge that you make a free test.

These millions have gained whiter teeth by simply combating film in this new way. Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. The ordinary tooth paste does not effectively combat it. The tooth brush, therefore, has left much of it intact.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. That is why teeth become cloudy and discolored. And some teeth—like smokers' teeth—become badly stained.

Film holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film. Those troubles have been constantly increasing for lack of a proper film combater.

Now you can fight it Dental science, after long fight, has found two ways to fight film. Many careful tests have proved their efficiency. Authorities now advise them, and leading dentists half the world over are urging their adoption.

A scientific tooth paste has been perfected to comply with modern requirements. These two film combaters are embodied in it. So one may now attack that film twice a day at home.

The name of that tooth paste is Pepsodent.

Other new effects

The saliva contains two great tooth-protecting agents. One is a starch digestant. That is to digest starch depositing on teeth before they ferment and form acids. The other is alkali, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Certain food elements will multiply those tooth-protecting factors. But modern diet often fails to supply those elements regularly. Authority, therefore, delects the tooth paste to apply that stimulation twice a day.

Pepsodent does that. It multiplies both the starch digestant and the alkali in the saliva. Every application gives these natural tooth-protecting agents many-fold effects.

Means a new dental era

Old-time tooth pastes, based on soap and chalk, depress these factors in saliva. They reduce this tooth-protecting power on which so much depends. And they do not end the film.

Prominent Guest at Newfoundland Club.

MANY WITTY SPEAKERS ENTERTAINED LARGE AUDIENCE. (McGill Daily, Oct. 23.)

A very enjoyable and enthusiastic smoker was held in the Union last evening by the Newfoundland Club. Several speakers, all of whom are very prominent men, praised Newfoundland and noted how proud Newfoundland men should be of their country.

The retiring president, Mr. L. J. Jackman, was in the chair, and introduced the speakers very aptly. After the singing of "Hall, Alma Mater," Mr. Arthur Mews, C.M.G., Deputy Colonial Secretary, took the floor and expressed his pleasure at seeing so many Newfoundlanders. He stated that in his travels he had met with many men from the old colony occupying all spheres and achieving success. The speaker here referred to the honorary president, Dr. Hatcher, as a good fellow. "He was in my Sunday School class, that is why he's a good fellow," he said, amid laughter.

He went on to state some of the ways in which Newfoundland has shone in the past: in the first place, it is the oldest British colony, and St. John's is the oldest British town in North America. The first cable line from England, was laid to Newfoundland, and the first wireless message from the other side was received there also. From there, as we all know, the first aeroplane to make the trans-Atlantic flight set out.

Mr. Mews pointed out how great and dependable an asset the fisheries are. It has been noted that over a period of 10 years the average catch has not decreased at all. Such an asset is a great thing for a country to have. He emphasized the fact that an attempt was being made to open up the timber areas, and that capital was necessary for this. Mining has not proceeded along efficient lines chiefly, again, because of lack of capital for development. "With capital and faith in her resources, Newfoundland could be made as prosperous a little country as you would find on the face of the globe."

Newfoundlanders, by virtue of their surroundings, have to battle with nature and grow stronger, and the people have initiative. The country is not down and out; it has had and is having a hard time for it is hard to make fishing pay at present. "Let us," concluded Mr. Mews, "look with faith and hope for the time when we shall have prosperity."

Mr. C. T. Milne, the British Trade Commissioner for Canada and Newfoundland, was the next speaker. He gave a short outline of his travels before and since his present appointment, he had previously been Trade Commissioner in Australia. He regretted that as yet, he has not visited Newfoundland, but stated that, at his office, they were not indifferent to its interests.

As the oldest colony, it receives in England very kindly consideration because the old land is always interested in tradition. Speaking of Newfoundland's position, Mr. Milne said of having it in South Africa, Spain, Portugal, and even in the interior of South America, 2,000 miles north of Buenos Aires. An interesting fact brought up was that Germany is purchasing iron ore from Newfoundland to such an extent that by the end of this year probably 700,000 tons will have been shipped.

Trade relationships within the Empire depend largely on sentiment, and it is right that there should be an interchange of products as much as possible. However, the speaker urged that the policy should not be carried to exclusion, but merely be an attempt to "keep it in the family." "At the present time," he added, "Newfoundland purchases much from the U.S.A. that England could supply."

Mr. Milne also contended that, after all, the character of the people is the only true wealth of a nation, and this was Newfoundland's strong point. Far from being handicapped, the people are actually fortunate in coming from a country where the climate and topography is so unpromising. In the strength that it gives to their character.

He suggested the advertising of Newfoundland in England as a tourist resort, because of the hunting and fishing facilities. The parting advice to the students was that wherever they might go after finishing college, they should always think highly of their native land.

The Club was favored with the presence of Major Belcher, C.B.E., head of the British Empire Mission touring the colonies, who said a few words. He explained that he was the most fortunate person present, as he was just on his way to Newfoundland. One of his reasons for going was to find what the real Newfoundland "cod taste like, as he had had so many disappointments (laughter). His tour is in connection with the Exhibition in 1924; one of the advantages of this will be to make the different parts of the Empire known to each other. He told of the wonderful sport grounds which are being prepared; they will be permanent and will have architectural beauty, besides being an athletic ground for the Empire. The stadium will seat 140,000 people, and will be the largest in the world. "I expect," said Major Belcher, "that the Americans will have a larger one the week after, but we will have the record for at least a week." The Major told of the meet next year between British and American Universities, and of the one the year after for Colonial Universities. His remarks were interspersed with very witty stories, which were much enjoyed, as was his whole speech.

Mr. Chas. Whitten, President of the Newfoundland Society, expressed his pleasure at having heard the speakers and cordially invited any McGill Newfoundlanders to attend their annual meeting next Thursday.

Mr. Chas. Davis, an ex-president of the Club, in moving a hearty vote of thanks to the speakers of the evening-deplored untrue newspaper and magazine criticism of Newfoundland. He proposed censorship on such articles as the best safeguard of the interests of the old colony.

Mr. Cousins brought very cordial greetings from the Eastern Townships Club, and wished the Club all success in the coming year. He was loudly applauded.

During the evening, Mr. Murray rendered numerous McGill selections on the piano. Men were nominated for all the different offices, and the elections will be held at the next meeting of the Club. Refreshments were served downstairs, and were partaken of so heartily that one member found it necessary to loosen his belt. Pleasant associations were renewed, and the fifty members present joined heartily in God Save the King as the smoker ended.

Birth of Edward VII.

Shortly before eleven o'clock on the morning of November 9, 1841, Queen Victoria gave birth to a son—the late King Edward VII.—her second child and eldest son. The auspicious event threw the nation and the Queen's subjects everywhere into a state of the utmost excitement and delight, realizing, as it did, the hopes and expectations of English people the world over. From public meetings in almost every city, town, and village in the kingdom were sent congratulatory messages, and brilliant illuminations were to be seen in places without number, the household of her Majesty were plentifully regaled with "Black Punch," and, in fact, there was nothing but festivity, excitement, and joy (often extravagant in its expression) in all circles, from the Court to the cottage. As the event happened on the day when the mayors of cities and towns are elected, these gentlemen, being entitled to a mark of Royal favour, which was extended in the shape of a baronetcy for the Lord Mayor of London and a knighthood for mayors everywhere.

Wind-Tipped Lakes.

Under the force of great gales large lakes and tideless seas, like the Caspian, have been observed to experience surprising changes of level, as if they were huge basins of water tipped by the hand of a giant. In the Caspian a difference of level amounting to 12 feet has been noted during the prevalence of a heavy wind. In Lake Erie a difference of level of 15 feet has occurred in similar circumstances. Analogous observations have been made on other lakes and in the Baltic sea.

London Times Sold.

An announcement in the London Times of October 23rd, says: "It is announced that the shares in the Times Publishing Company owned by the late Lord Northcliffe, as well as those owned by Sir John Ellerman, have been acquired by John Walter and that Major the Hon. John Jacob Astor is associated with Walter in their acquisition. It is the intention of Mr. Walter and Major Astor to maintain the highest traditions of the Times, and to insure its continuance as a national institution, conducted solely in the best interests of the nation and empire."

It is said that the price for Lord Northcliffe's shares was £1,300,000. John Walter, who is now in association with Major the Hon. John Jacob Astor has taken over the shares of Lord Rothermere and Sir John Ellerman, is a direct descendant of the John Walter who founded the newspaper in 1775. During the Northcliffe regime he retained a large interest in it, but had little to do with its management. Major Astor has not heretofore had anything to do with the London press, but his father, the first Lord Astor, owned from 1892 to 1917 the Pall Mall Gazette as well as the Pall Mall Budget and Pall Mall Magazine. He also bought The Observer from Lord Northcliffe in 1911, and this has been inherited by his eldest son, the present Viscount Astor.

Depriving Ourselves to Make Others Wealthy

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir—I am glad to see that my letter of the 6th drew forth some enlightening information on the possibility of Newfoundlander Coal. Mr. McCook's remarks with practical knowledge of the Cape Breton Coal Fields, being a Newfoundlander, I have no doubt he has the best interest of the country at heart. We may therefore take the information he gives in the letter as authoritative. If, as he says, our railroads should be getting three dollars coal from St. George's Coal Fields, what has the Government been doing the past couple of years? They certainly did not import coal for the railroad one cent more than ten dollars per ton, and taking Mr. McKay's figures as a basis for the local coal, say at three dollars per ton, a considerable saving should have been made. The railroad and passenger steam boats consume at least thirty or ninety thousand dollars per year, and that being so the government should have saved something like five or six hundred thousand dollars per year on fuel account, if local coal were used, besides providing employment for Newfoundlanders in the operation of these mines. Mr. McKay tells us we are sending out of the country an average of six thousand dollars per day for coal, and that expenditure of roughly forty thousand dollars at a price considerably less than we are paying at present. This means that we are consuming roughly three hundred thousand tons of coal yearly and we take three hundred as the average number of working days in each year. It means a production of one hundred tons of coal for each working day, and if a miner on an average produces four tons of coal a day means the employment of at least twenty and fifty miners the year round to cater to local requirements say nothing of other necessary employment that would naturally follow.

Some two or three years ago, a prominent commission with Mr. Coaker as chairman visited these areas and nothing was expected. Sufficient has elapsed to have realized an anticipation, but nothing seems to have been accomplished. In view of other operations that have been made in the public are entitled to know that the quantity of coal is sufficient in these areas why some steps are not been taken towards production.

The Advocate would throw light on the subject.
Yours truly,
ECONOMIST.
St. John's, Nov. 8th 1922.

Labrador Gold.

ANALYSIS SHOWS GREAT PERCENTAGE.
It has been informed that from analysis made from the soil from the recent Stag Bay gold mine that the claims show values ranging all the way from nine dollars to twelve hundred dollars to some of the areas. We understand that the analysis was made on only 7 samples, and no doubt if these samples show this percentage of gold, the claims may or may not show all those that have been staked in the same value of gold. The possibilities, however are in favor of the travel in the area named containing gold in the same proportion to analysis already made.

Women's Missionary Society.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the Women's Missionary Society of St. John's District opened its session yesterday afternoon at 3 p.m. Mrs. C. H. Hutchings the District Supt. in the chair. After singing the Convention Hymn, prayer, and roll call—to which quite a number of delegates responded—the business of the evening commenced. Mrs. (Rev.) Joyce of Wesley Church in a short, concise, and business like way gave the address of welcome, and the response was by Miss Hull of Bay Roberts. A duet entitled, "Alone" was very sweetly rendered by Mrs. J. Goble and Mrs. (Rev.) Joyce. Mrs. A. Parkins of Cochrane St. then followed with a very fine paper on the "Duties of a Delegate." She told us to be elected as a delegate was a great honour, with a big responsibility, and a glorious privilege. The Financial Report was given by Miss Fenwick, the District Supt. showing that the interest in this great work was by no means waning, but rather some forward, and the reports from the different auxiliaries, which followed, also showed an increase in members and money in more than two or three auxiliaries. Mrs. Lindsay, Pres. of the Nnd. Branch of the W.M.S. then gave some echoes of the W.M.S. Board of Managers, which meets annually in Toronto, and of which she is a member. She said that she could not tell us all, because it could not be told and very humorously said, it was like what the old darkey man said, in trying to describe something that he appreciated very much, that it was trying to explain the unexplainable, to explore the unexplorable to unscrutinize the unscrutinizable. Mrs. Jos. Peters the Cor. Secy. of the Nnd. Branch, and another member of the Board followed, giving us some of the new ideas that were put forward by the Board for the coming year. "Man shall not live by bread alone" nevertheless we cannot do without it even if we so desired, and the good deeds of Wesley Church, with their beautiful tables of good things provided, showed that they were believers in satisfying the natural appetites of the inner man. Everybody was satisfied.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening meeting opened, a large audience present, Miss G. Parsons, the Branch Secretary of Bands and Circles presiding. It was to be the young peoples meeting, and it was a good one, as the following will show: Miss Edna Parsons, Assistant Band and Circle Secretary led in prayer, and read the Scripture. A very solemn and lovely exercise entitled "Art Thou Worthy?" from George St. Band was then given. Reports from Cochrane St., Gower St., and Wesley Bands and also from the Circles of Cochrane and Gower, George St. Wesley and the College showing that the work was continuing and being blessed. Exercises were very beautifully performed by Wesley and Gower St. Bands and a chorus by nine little girls from the Orphanage. Recitations were given by Marjorie McKie, Cochrane St., and from Miss Estelle Barnes of George St. Of the latter special reference cannot be withheld. She recited "Kapiolani" (John Oxenham) in a very eloquent and dramatic manner and kept the large audience spell-bound while she was reciting. Duets were also faultlessly rendered by the Misses Portles, D. Sparrow, Moore D. Davis, Bishop D. Moore, Mew and Bowden, and a solo entitled "The Silent Voice" by Miss Jean Taylor. Miss Ada Herwood gave us the paper of the evening entitled "Our Aims." She said the aims of the Society were the same as our Lord's, as high as God and broad as His universe. Mrs. Lindsay in a sweet and persuasive manner spoke for a short time of the great possibility of girlhood, and recited at the close of her remarks the poem entitled "Thank God For the Girls." Mrs. Peters followed and spoke of the "Pain Branch" the juvenile paper edited by the W.M.S. showing its great value in the educational line, and that it is to us as a Society. Space and time forbid me to tell all the details, but it was good to be there and it was the opinion of one and all that the services of the day were a decided success. Services continue this afternoon and evening. M.C.H.

Samples O.K.

He was a typical farmer. His first visit to a city restaurant, however, had taken away none of the appetite he had at home, where everything was placed in large dishes on the centre of the table and each one helped himself.

The waiter had piled the food around the plate in the customary little dishes, which the farmer emptied in turn. Settling back in his chair, he hailed the passing waiter. "Hey, there, young man! Your samples are all right. Bring on the rest of the stuff."

Artificial Eyelashes

ADORN PARISIAN WOMEN. A superb set of silky eyelashes, secure for all time and impervious to loss through laughter or tears, may be had in Paris for a price, or rather two prices, the cost in francs charged for the operation and the pain which this same operation entails. There are Parisian women who gladly pay both. The lashes are sewn into the edges of the lids by a deft surgeon, and take root there after about twenty days. Seen close at hand, they show no scar or rim around the lid to betray the surgeon's touches.

Norway Struggling to Enforce Prohibition.

OSLUNDA—Norway is confronted with a unique problem in attempting to enforce the prohibition laws in her country, in spite of the commercial treaties which are in force with France and Spain. Under those treaties Norway agrees to import huge quantities of strong wines, which are prohibited under the prohibition laws. The Government has agreed to import 400,000 quarts of wine to be used for medical and hospital purposes, and from Spain 1,000,000 quarts of wine which contain more than 14 per cent of alcohol. Included in this amount is 50,000 quarts of medicinal wine, which are of no use except for medical purposes, accordingly, to census figures, there is only 350,000 quarts of these imported goods for general consumption. The Government has provided that these wines may be re-exported, and the alcoholic content may not be lowered by mixing with water.

PORTUGAL'S INSISTENCE.

At present there is a misunderstanding between Norway and Portugal over Norway's exports of fish, and as a result Portuguese merchants have cancelled shipments of fish to Norway. Negotiations for a new treaty have been going on some time but have made little headway. Portugal is insisting that Norway import a million quarts of wine, port and Madeira, and return for the fish trade to Norway. According to the Norwegian law, strong wines may be sold only in drug stores on a doctor's prescription. In this way no more than 150,000 quarts can be disposed of a year. Prohibition politicians favoring a more lax prescription have expressed themselves in favor of lifting the lid on strong

WARD'S LINIMENT. Remembered Great Personages of the Early Victorian Age

LONDON—Lady Georgiana Peel, the death occurred recently, the sister of the famous Prime Minister Lord John (afterwards Earl) Peel, knew intimately many of the personages of the Victorian age. Remembered, as a little child, being taken into the dressing room of the Victoria and being danced around by the young Queen, she only a little over twenty years ago, with her hair streaming all over her shoulders, Lady Georgiana remembered several little things about Queen Victoria, whose marriage she could just remember. One was when she dressed in Chinese clothing, she remembered too, as a child going over to Ireland with the Lord Chamberlain, to stay with the Lord Chamberlain. She went with her father on the Mission of Peace after the Crimean War, and during his absence, while they lived at the Lodge, given him by the Duke, and in Chessam Place, she was everyone of note at that time, including Dickens, Thackeray, Bright, Brougham, Garibaldi, Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, Longfellow, Tennyson, and Clarendon. Lady Georgiana's marriage to Archibald, son of General and Lady Alice, the nephew of Sir Robert Peel, a union of Whig and Tory. After her marriage, they lived chiefly in the country and brought up a large family of children. After her husband's death, 1810, the King gave her Carlisle's House in Hampton Palace as a residence. Lady Georgiana was beloved by everyone who knew her, for her clever, witty and kindheartedness, her charm, and all the softer falling gay courtesies of life. She never showed deep grief, but was always glad to see her friends, and was interested in all that was going on. She was the centre of a large and devoted family, both large and her step-children, and she died for many of her friends, and she has left will never be

Monarchist Groups Back Their Favorites.

LONDON (Associated Press).—Something akin to consternation has been caused in Russian monarchist circles by Grand Duke Cyril's recent manifesto claiming succession to Czar Nicolas II, and a conference will take place at Wiesbaden to find a way out of the difficulty caused by rival groups of Russians who will not admit that the Russian revolution terminated Czardom. The Belgrade group of monarchists, which considers itself most representative, was not warned of Grand Duke Cyril's decision and would not in any case have supported him either as the guardian of the Russian throne or as a candidate to it, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Times. The Belgrade monarchists' hopes are centered around Grand Duke Nicolas Nicolaevitch, and they have been endeavoring for a considerable time to persuade him to place himself at the head of their movement.

ALL AT LOGGERHEADS.

This group asserts that the chief instigator of Grand Duke Cyril's unexpected declaration is a Colonel Balashoff, at one time a secret agent, and a paid guard of the Russian Ministry of War. The monarchists on the whole regard Colonel Balashoff with great disfavor as he only recently left Soviet Russia where he was in the service of the Bolsheviks. On coming out of the country he became Cyril's closest advisor. Cyril's supporters maintain that his energy, military experience, and finally the fact that he is now the head of the family, are all facts which render him the most suitable candidate for the throne. Supporters of Grand Duke Nicolas retort that Cyril is unpopular not only among the masses of Russia, but also in the Romanoff family itself, while Grand Duke Nicolas' popularity is so great that this factor alone decides their choice. Many monarchists seriously deplore the whole controversy and condemn the supporters of the unpopular Cyril as well as the supporters of Nicolas. These, they say, are endeavoring to bring into the contest the figure of an old soldier who has repeatedly declared that he would devote the remainder of his strength to the service of the Russian people only if he were called upon to do so by their general vote, but that he was loth to place himself at the head of any movement outside Russia.

More Free Publicity.

Wherein does news stop and free advertising begin? has been a question much discussed in newspaper circles. Recently the Eastern Underwriter, an insurance weekly published in New York, asked the editors of 100 or more newspapers why they discriminated against insurance news. The replies were prompt. They said that news is news, no matter what or where the source. It was left to the judgment of the editor to decide just what was news. Which, of course, was the only answer that could be given. Now come a striking example of a news-advertising item in the insurance paper's own field. The Journal of Commerce, a daily paper which devotes much space to insurance topics, printed a 25-line double column ad from an agent and headed "Poison Pie Insurance," directing its appeal to lunch rooms and bakeries in New York and elsewhere. The recent fatalities which followed the eating of pie in the bakeshop of a Broadway lunch room being fresh in mind, the New York dailies "hopped to it" to use the slogan of the go-getters, and gave columns of space to the story, carrying prominently the name and address of the broker. On an article line basis the advertising thus gained, would have cost the agency thousands of dollars.

Nor was the "free reader" confined to the New York papers. Correspondents of out town dailies, and there are two-score of them in New York, put the item on the wires and gave full play to their imagination. Even London and other European capitals were apprised of the "news" by cable at many cents a word. And all this to convey to pie eaters in general the fact that the men serving the pastry would be immune from payment of damages should poison be found therein. In other words "Ich Ka-bibble." Does it pay to advertise? Verily it does if the job is done cleverly.—Newspaperdom.

Traveler's Tree.

Among the romantic stories of far-off lands that have long maintained their circulation and commanded more of less belief is that of the "traveler's tree," credited with possessing a reservoir of pure water filled to save the lives of wanderers in the desert. An American scientist declares, from his own experience, that the tree grows only in the neighborhood of swamps and springs, and that, although it has a considerable amount of water in a hollow at the base of its leaf, the water possesses a disagreeable vegetable taste and, of course, is inferior to other water found in the vicinity.

Mrs Joan Rendell and Mr. Frank Bennett will give an exhibition of Dancing at the Highlanders' Dance on Thursday, November 9th, C.C.C. Hall.

Bankers Open Bowling Contest.

ROYALS DEFEAT MONTREALS—RULES OF THE GAME.

The opening game of the Bankers Bowling League took place in the alley of the Seaman's Institute yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, between the Royal Bank of Canada and Bank of Montreal teams. The series of games were officially opened by Mr. Alex Marshall, Manager of the Royal Bank of Canada (West End Branch), who rolled the first ball over the surface and knocked head pin No. 1 clear out of the centre, thus declaring the season's game officially opened. A large attendance of bankers and spectators present heartily applauded Mr. Marshall on his splendid performance. The players of the respective teams (four men each) then lined up, and played in their order throughout the entire three games, which consisted of 10 frames to a game. The team winning the best two out of three to be declared the victors. The players started the balls rolling, and in a few minutes much excitement was in evidence, the balls shooting and pins flying in all directions. The match proved interesting from the very outset, several strikes having been recorded. Carmichael for the B. of M., and Robertson for Royal, having several credited to them: When the first set had finished the scoreboard showed that the B. of M. had won by a margin of 8 points.

The players immediately afterwards settled away to the second set, which was marked by good clean play, Harrison for the Montreal, and Rowe of the Royals, being chief scorers, while DeMers for the same team was playing true to form. When the second game had concluded the scorer announced that the Royals had won by the small margin of one point.

The teams played the third and final game to decide the winners. The Royals managed to make slight gains on their opponents from the very start and gradually increased their lead as each inning passed. The B. of M. players appeared to be in hard luck, though Hibbard of that team, who was playing a consistent game all through, made a score of 116 points, while Williams for the Royals, who showed up to advantage in the final session, ran up the splendid score of 148. The game ended in a win for the Royals, who defeated their opponents by 65 points, thus winning the best two-out of three games. The highest individual score of the evening was Mr. H. Rowe of the Royals, having a total of 501 points. The following were the players who participated, and the scores for each game:—

"The Restless Sex."

(Herald Examiner—By Observer). All the opposite sex seemed to be down to see "The Restless Sex," and all the sterner sex seemed to be along to see that no restive ideas acquired. It is a fine example of picture-making. What you see holds you and what you see has to do with what went before and what is to follow. Everything it does is understandable in terms of pictures. You can SEE this story, and you see it roll across the white silver sheet with a smooth, quick lucidity that is almost lyrical. Indeed, as a picture it is a SONG. No false notes, romantic, emotional, colorful, keyed high and kept keyed, it swings with rhythm, tight strung.

For the information of those who are not conversant with the bowling of the fine pin game, the rules are as follows:—

- BOWLING RULES.
- There shall be five pins placed upon regulation spots, each pin being numbered. The head pin (no. 1) is placed on the same spot as the head pin in the game of ten pins. Pin No. 4 on the same spot as no. 10 in ten pins. The pins numbered 2 and 3 are placed on spots exactly half way between, and in line with head pin and pins numbered 4 and 5 respectively.
  - It is necessary to knock down pin number 4 or no score is made except in the case of a strike or spare on the 10th frame.
  - (a) THE COUNT. Three balls shall be allowed for each frame, except when a strike is made, or when a spare is scored in the last frame, which must be completed before leaving the alleys, and on the same alley as made. (b) "A strike" is credited when a player bowls over the first pins with the first delivered ball, which is designated on the score-board with a cross (X) in the upper right hand corner of his frame and the player is credited with whatever pins are made with the next two successive balls. (c) SPARES. A spare is credited whenever a player bowls over the five pins with the first and second balls. It is designated by a small diagonal line ( / ) in the upper right hand corner of the right hand frame in which it is made and the total score in that frame is left open until the player shall have rolled one ball in his next turn when the number of pins knocked down by such ball is immediately added to the first.

- The opposing team can declare a misplay if a man delivers the ball with his foot over the foul line. The ball should be delivered so that it meets the floor immediately after leaving one's hand. A ball which strikes the floor 3 or 4 feet from this line is called lofting and is considered bad form, and also damages the alley.
- "SCORING." In league games it is necessary to have an independent person act as the official scorer. This should be arranged for by the team whose name is first mentioned in the schedule.
- A team failing to turn up at the opportune time defaults the game. The team which keeps its appointment is required to bowl the three regulation games in order that they may have the advantage of high score records.

Seed Trees for France.

A second shipment of over one thousand three year old saplings of white spruce, which will produce a large quantity of spruce buds for seeding purposes, was made by S.S. Schemm from the Militia Department to the head office in England, from whence the seeded species will be transhipped to France, where they will be transplanted for decorating purposes at Beaumont Hamel and other battle sites where memorials are being erected. A need of praise is due Mr. A. E. Canning and staff of Bowling Park for their untiring efforts in doing all possible for the Militia Dept. in getting these sapplings. The young trees were procured near Mount Pearl and vicinity after much difficulty.

Discharging to Suppliers

Yesterday a number of schooners were discharging cargo, most of the fish being shipped off to suppliers. Very little difficulty is experienced in selling Labrador at $4 per quintal, but shore fish is not in such great demand, and is selling at from $5.50 to $6 but the cull is considered very strict, so that a much lower price would be the average.

Mahogany.

The observations of the conservator of forests for southern Nigeria, held to be an eminent authority in the matter, indicate that the mahogany tree grows much more rapidly than the number of so-called annual rings suggests. He thinks that they show three or four well marked zones of growth each year, corresponding to the four seasons. Both forest trees and those grown in the botanical garden exhibit the same phenomenon. On the site of the town of Ijaye, destroyed 60 years ago, a forest has grown up containing mahogany trees with trunks exceeding 10 feet in girth.—Washington Star.

ANYONE COULD TELL HOW CRAZY I AM ABOUT PEACHES WHEN I SPEND MY LAST TWO BITS FOR A BASKET OF THEM?

HAVE ONE OF THESE LUSCIOUS PEACHES, JEFF?

NO THANKS, MUTT!

SINCE WHEN DID YOU STOP CAREING FOR PEACHES?

I NEVER HAVE CARED FOR PEACHES!

DON'T THEY AGREE WITH YOU?

IT AIN'T THAT! THE DARN SEEDS SCRATCH MY THROAT SOMETHING AWFUL!

Fifty-Three Years in the Public Service--The Evening Telegram

EDEN!

"To a little house in the evening
Home shall men come,
To an older town than Eden,
And a taller town than Rome"

—and when the wandering feet have all come home again, a cup of golden Blue Bird Tea comes like a benediction.

I'm coming around to see you!

I'm the Fuller Man.
I represent the largest manufacturer of brushes for personal and household use, in the world.
I am located in your city. Hope to call on every woman who reads this ad.
To every one I wish, I give a Fuller Handy Brush—with no cost or obligation—to prove the quality and usefulness of my line. By this token, you'll know why Fuller brushes are to-day used in over 5,000,000 homes.
Identify me by the Fuller trade-mark button I wear on my lapel. Identify Fuller Brushes by the Fuller Red Tag and the Fuller trade mark on their handles.
Till we meet!

A PROMINENT AMERICAN MILLIONAIRE SAYS:

"Early in my business career I made it a rigid rule to invest a third of my net yearly income in Life Insurance. Now, at age 56, and with an estate of a few million dollars, I can truthfully say that the third I invested each year in Life Insurance to-day constitutes the greater and best part of my estate."
