CAPTURE OF KIMPALUNG AT FOOT OF CARPATHIANS BRINGS WHOLE OF BUKOWINA INTO RUSSIAN HANDS

Breaking Down Enemy's Last Defence, Czar's Armies Sweep Through Austrian Crown Land, Take Kimpolung After Intense Fighting and Capture 60 Officers and 2,000 Men and Enormous Booty—Armies Operating in North Gain More Ground.

GREAT DRIVE OF CZAR'S ARMY GOES ON SUCCESSFULLY

Petrograd, June 25, via London—Occupation of the entire Austrian Crown Land of Bukowina was announced today by the war office. Possession of the province was completed by the capture of the town of Kimpolung, in the southern part of Bukowina at the foot of the Carpathians. More than 2,000 prisoners were captured.

Petrograd, via London, June 24.—The capture by the Russians of the town of Kudi, in Galicia, across the Bukowina border at the foot of the Carpathian mountains, was announced today by the war office.

The text of the Russian statement says: "In Bukowina, west of Skiatyn, our troops are fighting their way and advancing. Last night they occupied the heights of the banks of the Rybnitzka.

"The town of Kudi has been captured by us. The Don Cossacks made 150 men prisoners and captured four machine guns near there."

"Russian troops further north are pressing along the river Pruth toward Kamea, and have occupied the villages of Kilkhof and Toulonkoff. The official statement says:

"Western front: West of Sniatyn (on the Pruth, 20 miles northwest of Chernowitz) our troops, fighting as they advanced, occupied the villages of Kilkhof and Toulonkoff. "On the evening of June 23 the town of Kimpolung was taken after intense fighting. Sixty officers and 2,000 men were made prisoners, and seven machine guns were captured. In the railway station whole trains were captured.

"With the capture of the towns of Kimpolung and Kudy-Wienitz we took possession of the whole of Bukowina. "It was found that during a hurried retreat in the region of Iakny station, the enemy left behind 88 empty wagons, 17 wagons of maize and about 2,500 tons of anthracite, besides structural materials, great reserves of fodder and other booty."

Garrison Bayoneted.

Petrograd, June 25, via London.—The Russian official statement issued today reads:

"German artillery violently bombarded numerous sectors of our High Pruth. A strong party of Germans attempted to approach our trenches near the western extremity of Lake Sniatyn, but without result.

"On the Dvina, between Jacobstadt and Dvinsk, the enemy artillery was also violently active. Enemy aeroplanes dropped twenty bombs on the station at Polotchny, southwest of Miodoceno.

"One of our airmen, during a daring flight over the enemy's lines, was hit by enemy artillery. Aviators Captain Dankeilf and Lieut. Pavloff, although wounded, succeeded despite the enemy fire, in descending near our advanced lines.

"On the Stry three versts (two miles) south of Sniatyn, in the region of Chortorysk, we took by a sudden attack, the redoubt of a fort whose garrison, after a stubborn resistance, were all put to the bayonet. We captured in the redoubt two cannon of great calibre.

"North of the village of Zaturitzky we pushed back by a counter-attack, the enemy who suffered severely in the hand-grenade fighting.

"North of Poulomsky, southeast of Srinlasky (southwest of Lutsk) the enemy attacked our lines yesterday evening but was received by our concentrated fire and penetrated as far as our trenches at only a few points, where our trenches had been virtually destroyed by his artillery fire.

"In consequence of heavy loss the enemy fell back on all this front. We captured about eight hundred wounded prisoners of whom half were Germans. We took 15 machine guns. The enemy trenches were filled with great numbers of dead and wounded men.

SACKVILLE BIDS SOLDIER LADS GOD-SPEED

Special to The Standard.

Sackville, June 25.—All the stores and manufacturing establishments were closed for two hours yesterday afternoon in honor of B. Company, 145th Battalion, who were leaving for Valcartier. When the hour arrived for the speaking making there must have been at least 2,000 people around the bandstand where the addresses were delivered. The troops marched up town under command of Major L. C. Carey and headed by the band of the 145th, which had come down from Moncton for the occasion, and the citizens' band of this town. Addresses were delivered by Mayor Wood and A. B. Copp, M. P., and a telegram was read from Lieut.-Gov. Wood wishing the troops farewell and Godspeed.

Major Carey replied on behalf of the soldiers, thanking the people for their kindness to them during their stay in the town. The ladies of the I. O. O. F. and Women's Civic Council had prepared boxes containing lunch for the journey and cigarettes which were distributed by the Boy Scouts after the speeches. At the conclusion of the distribution the soldiers gave three cheers for the citizens after which they marched back to the station and entrained for Moncton.

Travel Club Closing on Saturday Brought Out a Very Heavy Vote --- Miss Stout Worked Well, but Could Not Catch Up --- Miss Murray, Miss Winter and Miss Newton Successful.

- 1 Miss Alice Lockhart, St. John 180,090
- 2 Miss Florence Stout, Fairville 138,980
- 3 Miss Mildred Murray, Albert 79,194
- 4 Miss Hazel Winter, Fredericton 77,635
- 5 Miss Hazel Newton, Grand-Harbor 60,073

Above are the winners of the principal prizes in The Standard Travel Club which closed at eight o'clock on Saturday evening. During that day very large amounts of business were received from many of the members, particularly those near the top of the list, and for a time there was doubt as to the positions which these workers would hold. The competition between Miss Murray and Miss Winter was particularly keen, the former winning out with only a few hundred votes to spare.

During the course of this contest the utmost good nature has prevailed on all sides. The Standard has endeavored to carry on the work with absolute fairness to all, and believes that in this effort it has been successful. The results on the whole are very gratifying, and certainly to the winners named above the prizes will afford very considerable enjoyment. It is understood that with the exception of Miss Stout all will take the western trip. Miss Stout, with whom was associated Miss Compton, put up a remarkable fight, but was unable to catch up with Miss Lockhart, whose enterprise from the very beginning was deserving of every success.

The standing of all active members of the club will be found elsewhere in this paper.

GERMAN REPORT SAYS THIAUMONT CAPTURED

SPIRITED FIGHTING ON WESTERN FRONT SATURDAY AND SUNDAY—PARIS SAYS LARGE SECTION OF GROUND WON BY ENEMY AROUND THIAUMONT HAS BEEN WON BACK BY COUNTER ATTACKS—BRITISH CHECK ATTEMPTED RAID NEAR LOOS.

Bulletin—Paris, June 25.—Counter-attacks by the French last night north of Verdun, resulted in their regaining some lost ground, the war office announced today. Portions of trenches west of the Thiaumont redoubt were taken and hand grenade fighting resulted in some progress being made in the village of Fleury.

A German attack in the Dead Man Hill region was repulsed.

The official statement follows: "On the left bank of the Meuse, a German attack upon our trenches on the southern slopes of Dead Man Hill was stopped by our fire.

"On the right bank of the river the fighting continued during the course of the night in the sector of the Thiaumont work, where our counter-attacks enabled us to make a few elements of trenches to the west of the work. We have made some progress with hand grenade fighting in the village of Fleury.

"The bombardment has continued violent in the other sectors on the right bank of the river, but there has been no infantry action.

"In Lorraine, to the northeast of Pont-A-Mousson, a strong enemy reconnoitering party was dispersed in the Chimnot Wood.

"In the Vosges: An attempted attack on our positions in La Fave Valley completely failed.

"During the night of June 24-25 German aeroplanes threw bombs on Lunenville, Baccarat and St. Die. The material damage was unimportant.

"Some children were wounded at St. Die. This has been noted with a view to reprisals."

Thiaumont Fortress Taken?

Berlin, June 24, via London—German troops yesterday repulsed attempts of the Russians to advance south of Hloukat and north of Widzy, in the Dvinsk sector, according to the official statement issued today at German army headquarters.

Capture of the armored fortress of Thiaumont, north of Verdun, and the larger part of the village of Fleury further south, was announced today by the war office. Ground also was gained south of Vaux. The Germans made 2,600 prisoners.

Germans Used Six Divisions.

Paris, June 24.—The following French official statement issued today is as follows: "On the left bank of the River Meuse there has been continued great activity on the part of the artillery in the Avocourt Wood, at Hill 304 and at Dead Man's Hill. A German attack, with hand-grenades upon our position at Hill 304 has been repulsed.

"On the right bank of the river the battle continued with ferocity all last night on the western portion of this front. Our counter-offensive movements, conducted with vigor, made it possible for us to recapture in the vicinity of Hills 320 and 321, a large portion of the ground recently lost there by us and to drive the enemy back as far as the outskirts of the Thiaumont Wood. This the Germans still hold.

"The fighting became particularly violent in the outskirts of the village of Fleury.

"Between the woods of Pumin and Chenols our counter-attacks put us again in complete possession of these trenches which the enemy occupied during the night of June 21-22, the bombardment of the enemy was answered with energy by our batteries and this fire was maintained with intensity from the River Meuse to a point to the east of the Chenols Wood.

"According to the latest information as to the result of the German offensive actions yesterday evening on the right bank of the River Meuse, these movements were conducted by the enemy in superior numbers, six divisions taking part.

"At Eparges the Germans have caused the explosion of three mines, but no damage resulted."

No Infantry Attack Sunday.

Paris, June 25.—The official statement issued by the French tonight says:

"On the two banks of the Meuse no infantry action was reported during the course of the day. On the left bank there was intense artillery activity in the region of Hill 304, Le Mort Homme and Chantreaucourt.

"On the right bank the bombardment redoubled in violence from five o'clock in the afternoon in the sectors of Frol De Terre and Fleury.

"There was no event of importance on the rest of the front with the exception of the usual cannonading."

Belgian communication.

"In the northern part of the front, in the region of Dixmude, there were reciprocal artillery actions. In the sector of Stenstrecht the action with artillery and trench mortars was violent."

British Repulse Raid Near Loos.

London, June 25.—An official statement from Berlin headquarters, issued this evening, says:

"Last night after a short bombardment, a raid on our trenches north-west of Loos was driven off, leaving three dead on our parapet. North of the River Douve, a party tried to cut our wire but was driven off, leaving two dead.

"Today our artillery has continued to be very active along the whole front and mutual artillery actions have taken place at many points, the heaviest shelling being about Neuville-St. Vaast, south of Wailly and to the north of the Ypres-Menin road. About the Thiepval Wood and Hamel the enemy did a considerable amount of shelling with trench mortars, as well as artillery.

"Near Hulluch a hostile demonstration was destroyed by our artillery. Since yesterday evening the enemy has blown up four mines, two of them opposite Hulluch, one south of La Bassée road, and one north of Neuve Chappelle. No casualties were caused by these mines.

Turks' Statement.

A PARIS OF THE BATTLEFIELDS

Life in a Town Behind the Front—Real Dinners with a White Tablecloth

By The Daily Chronicle Special Correspondent, Philip Gibbs.

With the British Army in the Field, June 1.

(Received yesterday.)

It isn't Paris, the town in which I had dinner last night after a visit to a much-shelled place not far away, but it is the nearest thing to Paris, and all that Paris means in light and humanity and civilization, within easy distance of the British trenches. Beyond the range of German guns, it is on the way to the battlefields to which so many thousands of our men go up week after week to take their turn in places of sinister repute. It is so close that a line of London buses can take a battalion from the Grande Place to the field of honor in less time than they used to go from Charing-cross to Hampton Court.

Not a long time when one knows the difference at the journey's end. I have seen this town in all weathers and on many days of war, and always it has been thronged with British troops, so that it seems to be like the capital city of the British army in the field, though it is far from some parts of our long stretching line.

Friendly, Human Place.

This town behind the battlefields is always a cheerful place, and in wet weather so fine it is crowded with troops who have had their turn in the trenches or are going in, and are glad to be here in streets again, with children about, and shops with plate-glass windows, and places where it is possible to get a good dinner and good wine—a friendly human town within a few leagues of the dirty ditches and their dug-outs.

These bustling buxom Frenchwomen behind the counters are marvelously quick at understanding the wants of killed men, whose English is a little difficult and whose French is worse. And it is good to see them. Only soldiers who have been a spell in the trenches know how good it is to see a few smiling, kindly, motherly women again, and a pretty face or two, and to get a smile in return for a flattering look.

It sets a man normal again and in tune with the ordinary melody of life. There are quite a large number of nice women and pretty girls in this town behind the trenches, and with their quick, shrewd wit they know how to manage these British soldiers as though they were not to be taken more seriously than when boys with their laughing impudence.

The "Fat Little Kid."

There is one hotel at least which will surely be an historic building, famous for all time by British memories of the great war. What crowds of young officers have sat down here to dinner—to a real dinner, with a white tablecloth, and everything of a civilized kind, and a bottle of Mouton-Vent to wash down the dust of the trenches—before they went away to that field of honor which is so barren and comfortless!

Forty years hence old gentlemen who are now young subalterns will say to their cronies in the club, "Do you remember those dinners we used to have at the Hotel," in between the fighting? Lord, how good they were after the muck of the trenches! Those two tall, buxom women who used to wait on us, and wonder if they ever think of them in broken French? And the little kid—the fat little kid—who, as must be over fifty now, and all that old memory of war just like a dream.

Last night, that memory was in the making and the two tall women were bustling round the tables to serve half a hundred British officers and the fat little kid was toddling out with the plates, cringing when a killed boy made a grab for her cotton frock or gave her hair a tug.

They were mostly officers of Scotish regiments with khaki coverings to their kilts—lallstrapping young men who greeted the two ladies as old friends—they have dined here often between spells in the trenches—and said "Hullo, Goldlocks!" to the fat little kid.

One young officer in tartan trousers set to partners to one of the tall sisters as she advanced with a dish of "Soupe a l'oisin," and danced at least four steps of the minuet between one table and another.

Tomorrow he may in the trenches where there is no room for such dancing and where the enemy is bombarding our front line heavily.

A French General came in, and all the officers stood up until he had bowed and taken his place. Outside the windows there was the clatter of horses' hoofs, exactly like the sound made by clappers in the wings of romantic melodramas when the King arrives, and a little shiver of excitement strag the gods.

Curiously, that was the only sound here which reminded me of war. For a little while the whistling puffs did rattle to the shock of distant guns.

The hotel to which I have referred in this town behind the trenches is a sanctuary from the evil of war—how good is the smell of its cooking which welcomes hungry soldiers on the very threshold before they have time to say "Bonjour, madame," to one of the tall and comely sisters and when history is written it will be remembered pleasantly.

PHILIP GIBBS.

BERLIN'S VERSION OF THE PAST TWO DAYS' EVENTS IN WAR ZONES.

Berlin, June 25, via London.—Violent attacks on the Austro-German front which have countered the Russian offensive in Volynia are being continued. The war office announced today that all these attacks, made repeatedly with strong forces, had been repulsed.

The statement regarding operations on the eastern and Balkan fronts is as follows:

"In the northern section of the front there has been fighting between re-concentrating detachments at various points during which we took prisoners and booty.

"Army group of Gen. Linington.—Strong Russian counter-attacks against our forward attacks were quite unsuccessful, especially on both sides of Zaturze, 25 miles east of St. Vladimir-Volynsk.

"South of Plaszowka, in the sector east of Berestochk (about 30 miles west of Dubno), enemy attacks in considerable force were repeatedly repulsed.

"Army group of Gen. Von Bothmer: There is nothing to report.

"Balkan front: The situation is unchanged.

On Western Front.

Berlin, June 25.—The British have developed pronounced artillery activity along the part of the Franco-Belgian front, they hold from La Bassee Canal to the Somme, the war office announced today. The British fire continued unintermittently all last night.

Violent engagements north of Verdun resulted in the Germans repelling all attempts by the French to regain their recently lost ground. The official statement dealing with operations on the western front follows:

"In the region from south of La Bassee Canal to beyond the Somme the enemy developed and continued during the night unbroken lively activity. He also bombarded Lens and its neighborhood with heavy fire and discharged gas without success over our lines in the region of Beaumont, north of Albert.

"On the left bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) the enemy fire attained great activity, especially at Dead Man's Hill. At night minor infantry undertakings were successful for us.

"Many violent battles developed under continuous artillery fire around the positions captured by us east of the Meuse. All attempts by the French to recapture lost ground broke down with the heaviest losses for them. The enemy lost over 200 men in prisoners.

"East of St. Die we carried out a patrol advance, as a result of which 13 French prisoners were brought in."

Well-merited chastisement has fallen on the to the of the Charlottenburg butcher, Stuhlman, for hoarding meat in order to command a higher rate for it.

Residents in the district had observed that Stuhlman, when darkness had set in removed meat from his shop to an adjacent building. One night he packed a large quantity of bacon in a washing basket, covering it with a layer of soiled linen. He was assisted by a number of children, and when the latter were carrying such a basket across the street the neighbors detained them, opened the basket, and found large supplies of bacon and strings of sausages beneath a load of shirts and stockings.

The police were summoned and the meats were conveyed to the shop and sold by the authorities in the absence of the butcher at reduced prices to an eager crowd of customers.

In the meantime, Stuhlman, who was guzzling in a cafe close by, was forcibly seized by a mob of women, who dragged him through the back door of the establishment into the yard, and there and then beat him to absolute unconsciousness.

The enraged avengers then repaired to the butcher's house, where Fraa Stuhlman was violently assaulted and subsequently dunked in a cistern, then rolled by the crowd in a heap of still smouldering cinders.

K. OF 'S MEMORY WAS HONORED AT CAMP SUSSEX

Memorial Service Yesterday Attended by Nearly 10,000 Persons.

CHAPLAIN LAWRENCE CONDUCTS SERVICE

Striking Address by Capt. Rev. F. S. Porter—Col. Fowler's Battalion Wins Praise of All for Fine Ap- pearance and Efficiency.

Special to The Standard.

Sussex, June 25.—This town was alive with visitors today from all over the surrounding country. They came in automobiles, special trains, horse-drawn vehicles and on foot, and when the time came for the memorial service to Earl Kitchener to begin on the camp grounds at least 10,000 people had gathered there.

The service, which was held by the 104th Battalion was in charge of the chaplain, Capt. (Rev.) Gordon Lawrence. The order of service was as follows:

The band played the hymn "The Church of England" and the address was given by Capt. (Rev.) F. S. Porter. After the service the battalion formed up and marched past in column of route, the O. C., Lieut. Col. Fowler, reviewing them as they passed. They marched well and created a splendid impression on those from outside who have not had the privilege of seeing them before. They all seemed to be in good spirits and overjoyed to think that the time was near when they would take their place alongside those who are now battling in France. The white tents with the nicknames of each platoon in front of its section made a very pleasing picture and one not easily forgotten.

Great love hath no end, and overjoyed to think that the time was near when they would take their place alongside those who are now battling in France. The white tents with the nicknames of each platoon in front of its section made a very pleasing picture and one not easily forgotten.

The president told those at the conference tonight of the note from Carranza, avowing the attack on American troops at Carrizal and of the reply that he had directed to be sent. Senator Stone was very emphatic afterwards in regard to the demand for release of the prisoners.

"We must have those men," he said solemnly.

The senator made no effort to hide his own belief that war virtually is here. A final report from Gen. Pershing was necessary, he said, in order that a clear knowledge of what happened at Carrizal should be at hand.

Give Mexico No Chance to Dodge Responsibility.

Gen. Carranza is required to place himself on record formally, and the plain intimate lies behind the restrained language of Mr. Lansing's communication that war virtually is here. Apparently, however, the Washington government is determined that the defacto government shall not evade responsibility before the United States.

The note and the military situation were talked over at the White House tonight by the President with Chairman Stone, of the Senate foreign relations committee, Senator Lodge, ranking Republican member, and Chairman Flood, of the house committee on foreign affairs.

After the conference, which lasted more than an hour, Senator Stone said the situation "was exceedingly acute." President Wilson had felt it necessary to acquaint Congress with the state of affairs and the action taken, through the foreign affairs committee. It was intimated that he might desire to address a joint committee was, what the term meant, it surely did not mean the physical man but the spiritual. The man that was endowed with a fine sense of duty to his country was a more potent force in that country than money.

The man in whose honor they were holding the service was such a one and the Empire mourned her "iron man," one whose value could not be computed in money. England's list of "immortals" was a lengthy one, but among them all none would be more revered than Kitchener. He had shared the fate of thousands of the Empire's sons and had as truly died on the field as those who fell in France or were sent to the bottom of the sea in a naval battle. He had been called to a big task on the outbreak of the war, and had grappled with it in his usual wholehearted way, and the result of his labors was now beginning to appear. While he had not lived to see victory rest on the arms of the Allies, he had lived to see it in sight, and the coming victory was in no small measure due to his work of organization. The key-note of his life was fidelity to duty. His record on his labors, but the fruits of the efforts he had put forth still followed.

HURRY UP CALL FOR AMERICAN TROOPS.

Washington Demands that Mexican Government Make Known at Once "Through Diplomatic Channels" its Future Policy Towards the United States.

Washington, June 25.—A demand for the immediate release of the American troops taken prisoner at Carrizal, since its only object is the protection of its own borders. He has formally notified all Latin-American diplomats that the Washington government has no aggressive purpose toward Mexico, but is resolved to free its citizens along the border of the danger of bandit raids.

Text of U. S. Note.

Washington, June 25.—The text of the note to the Mexican defacto government transmitted today to James Lynn Rodgers, special representative of the American government in Mexico City, says:

"Mr. Arredondo yesterday delivered to his government the following communication: 'I am directed by my government to inform Your Excellency, with reference to the Carrizal incident, that the chief executive, whenever they move from their present position, despite the friendly mission on which they are engaged and which is reaffirmed in the American rejoinder.'

The president told those at the conference tonight of the note from Carranza, avowing the attack on American troops at Carrizal and of the reply that he had directed to be sent. Senator Stone was very emphatic afterwards in regard to the demand for release of the prisoners.

"We must have those men," he said solemnly.

8 YEAR OLD LAD DROWNED AT FORTON

Little Son of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Brewer Loses Life —Companion Saved.

Special to The Standard.

Fredericton, June 25.—Arthur Brewer, aged eight years, was drowned and a young playmate named Collett had a narrow escape from a similar fate on Saturday evening at the old Aberdeen mill site. The boys were playing in a boat which was near the old wharf site and when they jumped for the wharf, landed in the water, and both sank. Young Collett was able to scramble out safely, but the Brewer boy got caught on a spike on the old wharf and was thus held under water until he was drowned. After he had been in the water for fifteen minutes or thereabouts his body was rescued, but life was extinct and he could not be revived. Dr. W. J. Weaver gave the necessary coroner's orders for removal of the body to the home of bereaved parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Brewer, Argyle street, and decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

It seems doubtful that a formal diplomatic rupture will be forced by the military situation may be influencing the diplomatic course, as well as the desire to make peace clear the world, particularly to the Latin-American nations, that the United States is being forced into warlike measures by the hostility of Gen. Carranza. The war department is making every effort to speed up mobilization of the national guard. A few companies have been mustered in. Others will take the oath tomorrow. In forty-eight hours, probably a substantial force will be brought to the front to back up Gen. Punston's line.

It may be four or five days, however, before war department officials would feel safe in withdrawing regular troops from the border patrol for the cutting edge of the force. They may hurt to the support of Gen. Pershing column should aggressive action be ordered.

One fact as to the conference is significant. There was no discussion of the possibility of mediation. The subject was not mentioned, either by the president or his callers. Senator Stone said this statement came in the face of a formal notification to Elbio Arredondo, Mexican ambassador designate, by his government today, that it approved the principle of mediation as proposed by several Latin-American countries. Mr. Arredondo expects early authorization to begin conversations with his Latin-American colleagues here, in an effort to divert the crisis to peaceful channels.

New Arrangement Between Canadian and U.S. Authorities Regarding Treatment of Canadian Shipping in American Ports.

Special to The Standard. Ottawa, June 24.—The passage of the Seaman's Bill by the United States Congress has been followed by a new arrangement between the Canadian and United States authorities regarding the treatment of Canadian shipping in United States ports. The new legislation on the other side lays down very stringent rules regarding the signing of vessels trading into or out of the ports of the United States. Where previous to the passing of this there was no requirement in respect to the number of able seamen to be employed on these vessels, the new law declares that forty-five per cent. of the deck hands must be able seamen, and definite information is given as to what constitutes an able seaman under the act. He must be 19 years of age; must have served eighteen months on shipboard, and must have sundry technical qualifications, all of which are enumerated. There are also a number of regulations dealing with the physical fitness of men employed on these vessels, badly impaired vision, color blindness, deafness, open tuberculosis or any of a variety of other ailments being sufficient for certification of incompetency. As these regulations would affect vessels of Canadian register trading in United States ports, both in the coastal and lake trade, the department of Marine here has made arrangements with the Washington authorities for the recognition of able seamen certificates granted in Canada. These certificates are provided by Canadian collectors of customs to seamen who have qualified under the provisions of the United States legislation.

The telegram stated that Private Hunter had been admitted to the Second Western General Hospital at Manchester, England, with wounds in his right arm and abdomen. He was wounded on June 16th in the second big engagement of the Canadians this month and has been at the front since April last. He enlisted on June 15th, 1915, with the 55th Battalion and went overseas with that unit. After a short period of training in England Private Hunter went to the front in reinforcements for one of the western battalions and has been fighting with that unit in France and Belgium. No further particulars were contained in the telegram received by Coun. Hunter and he has cabled to England to learn how seriously his son has been wounded. The wounded soldier's only brother, Sergt. F'CTON MEN MISS DEATH BY NARROW MARGIN

Special Train Hits Automobile, Cutting it in Two and Throwing Occupants Several Feet.

Special to The Standard. Fredericton, June 25.—Three members of the staff of Fredericton post office had a miraculous escape from fatal injuries when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by an I. C. R. special freight train at McConnell siding, about two miles from Fredericton, on Saturday night. Two members of the party, David Griffith and Harold Limerick, were badly injured as a result of the crash, while Ralph Sinnott, who was driving the car, which was owned by his father, Alex. Sinnott, escaped without serious injuries, but is suffering from severe nervous shock. The automobile was badly demolished, and the locomotive was also more or less damaged and will require fairly extensive repairs. The accident is said to have been due to the automobile party having mislocated the railway crossing which they came upon suddenly after running over a bridge and up an incline. The outcome was that they were crossing before they knew where they were and the train was right up on them. The locomotive struck the rear of the automobile, throwing its three occupants into the air and cutting the car practically in two. The accident happened about 10.15 p. m. Nearby residents and the train crew hurried to the assistance of the autists and three doctors were summoned. Messrs. Sinnott and Limerick were taken home by friends in other automobiles which soon arrived, and Mr. Griffith was brought to the city and taken to Richard's Private Hospital.

Tobacco Heart CURED BY Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Tobacco does not seem to affect all. Many men enjoy their smoke, live to a good old age, and apparently suffer no ill effects from the use of the weed. There are others, though, on whose heart and nervous system tobacco produces the most serious results. It causes palpitation, pain in the heart and irregularity of its beat, makes the hands tremble, beats the nerves on edge, and the breath becomes short. To counteract this demoralizing influence on the heart and nerves there is no remedy that equals Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They make the heart beat strong and steady, restore tone and vigor to the nerves, and remove all the evil results caused by the tobacco. Mr. Nelson Young, Brampton, Ont., writes: "I have had, up to about a month ago, a very weak heart, which was caused by smoking cigarettes. When I heard of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as a cure, I immediately gave up smoking, and started using them. It does you justice to be the founder of such a good remedy. They made me feel like a new man. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Chicago, Ill."

150TH MEN AMHERST FOR VALCARTIER

Citizens Give Men Fine Send Off—Public Address by Mayor of the Town.

Special to The Standard. Amherst, N. S., June 25.—Thousands thronged the depot platform at nine o'clock this morning when the 150th French-Canadian Carabiers Mount Royal left Amherst, the town that has been their home for the past four months, for the summer camp at Valcartier. Seven hundred men formed the main body of the battalion and were under the command of Lieut-Col. Hercules Barre, the veteran hero of the first contingent. Although the entraining was accompanied by cheering, nevertheless it was a scene of tears and regret, for the soldiers of the 150th have become endeared to the citizens of Amherst. En route to the station the battalion was halted at the court house. From the steps of this edifice Mayor A. W. Moffatt read an address to Col. Barre, voicing the regret of the citizens of Amherst at the departure of himself, officers and men. Lieut-Col. Barre and a few of the officers replied in a few brief words, all filled with appreciation. Entrainment proceeded apace, the guards from the detention camp acting as a guard of honor. A few minutes after nine and the soldiers were rolling along the rails to Valcartier, the regimental band playing "Auld Lang Syne." The advance party of one hundred men, under Major Stern, left on Wednesday evening. Capt. Louis Keene is in charge of the rear guard.

Perhaps the greatest romance of the matter is this—and so far it has escaped public statement: If those people who raised a vulgar and disgraceful hullabaloo about the Marconi contract a few years ago had got their way; that is to say, if the Government had not stood firm as a rock in the midst of a maelstrom of aristocratic and middle-class scandal, Germany might by now be mistress of the world. For the great competitor of our English Marconi was a German company; and I assure you it was actually on the cards that this German company might have been brought over to London to drive Marconi out of the national business. So violent was political malice at that time so unthinkably unscrupulous was the loathing and hatred in certain notorious quarters for one particular Minister, that there were those in this country who desired to smash the Marconi Company simply to drive their main enemy out of public life. To smash Marconi would have meant German wireless in England.

"We are fighting for a worthy purpose, and we shall not lay down our arms until that purpose has been fully achieved."—H.M. The King.
TO THE PEOPLE OF THE EMPIRE—Every fighting unit we can send to the front means one step nearer peace.

WHY?

Frank B. Carvell, Member of Parliament for the County of Carleton, N. B., and George W. Kite, Member of Parliament for the County of Richmond, N. S., have made serious allegations against a responsible minister of the Canadian Government and responsible Canadian officials.

These allegations and comments upon them by the men named and the Liberal press have had the effect of arousing throughout the world a contempt and prejudice against this country.

Free and full investigation of the allegations made by Carvell and Kite has shown there was no corruption or dishonesty on the part of the Minister of the Canadian Government or the Canadian officials referred to.

Why should Frank B. Carvell, Member of Parliament for the County of Carleton, N. B., and George W. Kite, Member of Parliament for the County of Richmond, N. S., be permitted to remain in Canadian public life?

THE CHILDREN AND PATRIOTISM.
There is no more important problem today confronting the world than that of the best methods for caring for the health of the children, and then, as closely connected with that, their proper education and culture.

On Saturday last, in the city of Berlin, a new organization was formed of national scope, whose sole and only purpose is the combating of infant mortality, by which it is confidently hoped to save to the state the lives of some 200,000 children annually.

In the new era, however, upon which we are entering, in which the problem of the human race has been accentuated by the effects of the war, the great desideratum will be not merely more children but better children. Quality as well as quantity will in the future, as in the past, largely determine the racial type which shall dominate in the world's large world shop.

Representative statesmen agree with the leading ecclesiastical authorities that no system of education is adequate which ignores the spiritual nature of the child. While chemistry and biology are important to humanity, yet the nation that builds up its educational system upon the physical sciences alone to the exclusion of idealism in thought and in life is certain, like Germany of today, to come to grief, for the result of this overlooking of the ideal in order to gain physical efficiency is the utter moral breakdown of the nation.

It is not necessary to choose between these two classes of influences in the training of the child, but if it should be, then, as has been said, by all means give our children Homer and Shakespeare and Milton and the Bible, for whatever the present demands of this war clamor for, we are going to get through it in time, and we are, as a nation, going to spend the future of our national life in making powder factories.

True education always must recognize the spiritual nature of the child, for as President Hyde has cogently declared: "To give the child six or eight years of mental discipline in the symbols of knowledge without opening his mind and heart to the apprehension of the real substance of the natural and spiritual world, is simply to sharpen his wits and throw him back on sensual passions, on vivid images and low ambitions, for the actual material to exercise his sharpened wits upon."

Hence it is that acknowledging these principles as necessary in any system of education that is worthy while, and by which the child will be enabled to make good in the work of life, the various Christian churches have all devoted increasing attention during the past years to the matter of the spiritual culture of the child. This indeed is felt by many to be the greatest problem of the modern church, and right nobly are all the churches endeavoring to solve it.

tion of love for Canada, the honor of Canadian leaders and heroes, and the teaching of loyalty to the Christian ideal. It provides every child with something to do and to learn the greatest factors in all educational work among children.

The ravages of this great war have made it more than ever apparent that if Canada is to take the place in the world to which she is entitled, there must be increasing care in the education and culture of the children. And the home and Sunday school are the proper places for that training to take its most important form.

Consequently any movement with that for its aim is worthy of the most general and conscientious support.

WHO IS TO CARE?
The Toronto Weekly Sun, discussing the Ypres salient, pertinently asks the question: "Who is to care for the Canadian soldiers and exercise the vigilance of the Canadian electorate, if not the Canadian Minister of Militia?"

The same independent newspaper remarks that Sir Sam Hughes' right to keep a watchful eye on the Canadian army at the front "merits serious consideration."
Those who have sought to turn the fact that the chief of the Canadian forces called the attention of the British Secretary of War to the dangerous Ypres salient into an accusation that Major-General Hughes was "telling Kitchener how to run the war," have either failed to grasp the serious facts of the situation or else are actuated by partisan motives.

The sentiment voiced by the Weekly Sun seems to have awakened a responsive chord elsewhere, for, commenting on the Sun's article, the London, Ont., Free Press says: "The British Secretary of War is responsible to the British electorate. But he is not responsible to the Canadian electorate. Apparently no one is responsible to them. Unless it be the Canadian Secretary for War, who is the Minister of Militia. Must the Canadian elector have no voice or court of appeal, though he is doing his full share otherwise?"

"Kitchener, had he lived, would have been the last to question the propriety and the right of Sir Sam Hughes to ask concerning the Ypres salient. As it developed, the question was answered. The British Government informed Canada that the salient was important and must be held. This was satisfactory. Canada held it. At the cost of several thousand casualties, she did her whole duty."
The newspapers quoted have the right idea. Canada is willing and ready to send men to fight the Empire's battles—which, after all are her own battles—just as long as they are needed. But, having sent them, it is reasonable to expect that she will still exercise a paternal interest in them and their welfare. It was with an eye to the welfare of Canada's fighting men that Sir Sam Hughes asked the question he did, and while he may be condemned for it by Grit party heeled and others who would rejoice in his downfall, the mothers of Canadian boys already at the front, or preparing to go there, will agree that his solicitude was not improper. On the contrary it is just what was expected of him.

THE REWARD OF WEAKNESS.
A most interesting view of the situation existing between the United States and Mexico is that taken by the New York Sun, which newspaper traces the whole of Mexico's warlike preparations back to what it calls President Wilson's "mistake" policy of watch and wait. Says the Sun: "The Mexican people, in behalf of whose right to slaughter and pillage the President of the United States spoke eloquently a few months ago, hold us in contempt. They believe that they are our superiors in courage, in devotion to country, in all the virtues that appeal to men not too proud to fight. In this lies the explanation of the humiliating occurrences that have compelled the war department to put our entire mobile army in Mexico or on the border to strip our coast defenses of men and finally to mobilize the National Guards of all the States."

The Sun says that in endeavoring to keep the United States out of war with Mexico President Wilson has seemingly obtained the opposite result. This must be most discouraging to the President, but at the same time the paper's opinion warrants more than passing attention. Was it wise for the head of a nation so great as the United States to go so far in the prosecution of his pacific desires that he succeeded in spreading the impression that he dared not fight? A sterner policy with Germany would have meant increased respect for Washington in Berlin. A sterner policy with Mexico would have engendered a wholesome fear of Washington in the Mexican capital. As it is that fear may have to be inculcated by force of arms and the operation is likely to prove tedious, costly and painful for surgeon as well as subject.

INTERESTING DISCOVERY OF PRE-HISTORIC INDIAN URN

To the Editor of The Standard:—
Sir—A short time ago, in my rambles about the city during convalescent period, it was my rare good fortune to stumble upon a most interesting discovery of pre-historic pottery of New Brunswick. In watching the operations of workmen engaged in a very deep excavation, pieces of the material attracted my attention by their symmetrical form and seasoned coloring. Exciting my attention sufficiently to induce further examination, and thereby discovering the pieces to form part of a very clearly defined whole. Upon reaching the Parks' Convalescent Home with my treasures I immediately set diligently to work cleaning and arranging them, until my delight knew no limits as piece after piece seemed so pleasantly to conform to the beautiful profile. Very unfortunately some of the more delicately formed parts have been worn away, but so much remains as to make it a delightful study to the artist or antiquarian. It seems almost vandalism to have disturbed it in its quiet obscurity and ruthlessly drag it as it were from a period of refinement and into a period of so-called shanty civilization of which the world has no parallel. The extreme dimensions of the urn in its fragmentary condition cannot be accurately given, but will approximate 14 inches by 10 inches. It is very strange to observe that the composition is undoubtedly a product of sun-baked pottery and of which some samples may be seen in the British Museum. Time and the elements have produced a most beautiful blending of colors, which pottery of modern times will find it difficult to imitate.

Mr. Newlands, the finder, has consented to allow it to be exhibited at the Canadian Club along with the returned soldier exhibits, notice of which will be duly given in these columns shortly, and he having studied for two years under a famous British sculptor, will also have on exhibit a few pieces of clay modelling which will undoubtedly command your admiration.
Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the use of your columns.
Yours truly,
J. N.

BRUSILOFF NOW A MAN OF DESTINY

Many Russians who hold that Tolstoi was a prophet as well as a philosopher say that he foretold this war, and indicated General Brusiloff as the great man who was to emerge from it. Not being partial to Grand Dukes, it was not to have been expected that Tolstoi would have referred to Nicholas, although from military achievement the Czar's uncle would appear to have accomplished all that was desired up to the present time. But Brusiloff—the accent being on the second syllable—seems to fit the prediction made by the Russian novelist. If he is not to be the great outstanding man of the war, he is at least the outstanding military leader of the present. He has had more important successes in a shorter time than any other leader on either side since the war began, and from what we can learn of his character he is likely to continue. He is not the sort of leader who can profit only when the enemy is temporarily demoralized. He is of the Moltke type. His moves are planned long in advance. They are made along mathematical lines. They are not to be resisted, except when an abler general with better troops opposes him, and so far the war has developed no abler general, no better troops than the Russians.

Until a month ago the name of Alexie Alexievich Brusiloff was absolutely unknown in this country. Now it is famous, and newspaper readers are in no pronouncing it. Yet the war is a small place, and General Brusiloff has a sister-in-law in Brooklyn. Mrs. Charles Johnston, whose husband has written for the New York Times on several occasions. Naturally he writes now of his illustrious relative, and the enterprising Brooklyn Eagle has secured an interview with Mrs. Johnston. From these accounts we are able to get a pretty clear idea of the kind of man that General Brusiloff is.

His sister-in-law says: "He is a good man, a kind man, a modest man. Personal triumphs have no lure for him. Honour? He could have had them by the bushel. He is deeply religious in a mystical way. Whatever may befall him he considers himself

Little Benny's Note Book

Pada Simkins' silly cousin Perry had his name in the paper yesterday on account of being in a raleo accident but not getting hurt, and as we fellows was all talking about it, saying to everybody, Did you hear about Perry, did you hear about Perry?
Leta go around and see him, maybe he got hurt somehow and the book didn't go out, and Sam Craws. And we all went around to Pada Simkins' house and Perry was rite out on the front steps reading all about the accident in the paper, probably not having stopped reading it since the paper came out.

How does it feel to be in a accident, Perry, I sed.
Wy dont you get in one and find out, sed Perry.
Dident you get hurt or wounded or anything, Perry, sed my cousin Artie.
You awt to see my nee, its all scratched, sed Perry.
Lets see it, will you please, Perry, sed Sid Hunt. Wich at first Perry sed he woodent, and then we all asked him to please let us see it, and he took down one stocking a little ways and there was a little red mark on his mother looked out of the 2nd story window and we all ran down the street like the dickins.

Proving it dont take much to make a perain stop being a hero.
planned in advance, and he has had years instead of months to plan a part of this war, because when Austria seized Bosnia-Herzegovina he was one of those who concluded that war with Austria was inevitable, and since that time he has been studying the ground over which he calculated that many of the battles would be fought.

With his staff came his wife, who was allowed, like the wives of other officers, to visit her husband for a fortnight once in three months. At the end of that period she had made herself so popular that it was suggested to the general that her stay should be prolonged, a privilege it was quite within his power to grant. He refused, however, on the ground that his wife was entitled to no more privilege than other officers' wives. He also refused the courtier-like suggestion that she be permitted to enter the trenches at some safe point, an act that would surely have won her a decoration from the Czar. But he sent his wife home, and with her the corps of newspaper correspondents who had been permitted to visit the front. Important events were pending. He smiled at their malcontents, but he was very firm—nobody should be in the camp but men who were going to fight.

Though Brusiloff has been a soldier from boyhood, and he is now nearly 60, this is the first time he has seen actual fighting. At the time of the Russo-Japanese War he was kept in Europe instead of being sent to the front because it was feared that there might be other foes besides Japan to grapple with. He has long been recognized as a strategist, as an "organizer of victory." His moves are

MANY WENT TO SUSSEX YESTERDAY

Idea of Special Train to Kitchener Memorial Service Proved Very Popular.

Between six and seven hundred people took advantage of the opportunity afforded them yesterday to visit Sussex and take part in the memorial service which was held there in memory of Earl Kitchener, under the auspices of the 104th Battalion. The train left here at 1:15 p. m., and long before that time crowds had been seen waiting their way toward the station. Numbers of them had friends in the battalion whom they wished to see once more before they move from their present quarters which it is understood will be very soon now.

Large numbers joined the St. John contingent at the different stops along the line and when the train reached Sussex there could not have been far short of a thousand on board. The members of the 104th Band came down from Sussex last night on the special and will return on Tuesday morning as every man has to be in barracks Tuesday at noon. In this connection The Standard representative heard an interesting rumor yesterday to the effect that Bandmaster Murray Long had been given a commission, to go into effect as soon as the battalion reaches England.

Some time ago the mayor was given authority to arrange for contributions to the comfort funds of the several battalions which were quartered in St. John for the winter, and it was felt at the time that as the band of the 104th was practically a St. John organization that they should be included, and Saturday Commissioner Wetmore journeyed to Sussex and carried with him a cheque for $100, which was presented by him to the band on behalf of the city. Bandmaster Murray Long accepted the gift on behalf of the band in a neat speech in which he thanked the council for the gift and particularly for the kind spirit which prompted it. They appreciated it very much as an expression of the good wishes of the citizens of St. John for their welfare. The band had intended to give a farewell concert on the King Square and regretted very much that they would be unable to do so, but their first engagement when they come home would be a concert on King Square for the people of this city. They were going to do their bit, but they were hoping to return bright and come back to their native land once more, and provide music in St. John as they had in the past.

A MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR J. B. HIPWELL

Rev. R. Taylor McKim Preached Impressive Sermon in St. Mary's Church Last Evening.

The memorial service held in St. Mary's church last evening in commemoration of Lieut. John Basil Hipwell, who died of wounds received in the last battle of Ypres, on June 17, was largely attended. The regular English form of service was used by the curate, Rev. R. Taylor McKim.

"Though I never had the pleasure of making his acquaintance," said the pastor, "yet since hearing of his death by reading only the newspapers, and by speaking with those who knew him, I have been able to form a good estimate of his character. He died that you and I might enjoy the goodly heritage of the fair land."

"For the second time in the history of St. Mary's church we gather here this evening to do honor to one of our brave lads in khaki who has died for his King and Country."

"He was known everywhere as Jack. Wherever he went he made friends. When the call to arms sounded throughout the length and breadth of Canada he was one of the first who responded. He did not enlist, however, without careful consideration and prayer."

"His mother told me," continued the pastor, "that he spent the whole night in prayer before he took the step. He counted the cost and he has paid in full with his own life-blood the awful price of war."

"He went as went our sires of old, across the surging seas of war. Not for the lust of fame or gold, but for the British heart he bore! He heard the motherland afar. Calling her children scattered wide; He went as woke the pots of war. To face the conflict at her side."

"He, with the very best education obtainable, enlisted as a private in the Field Battery mobilized at Fredericton in 1914, and soon became a bombardier. His stay in England was short ere his battery was ordered to the front. There he saw much fighting and spent 15 months in the thickest of the fray. He fought through that memorable Canadian victory at Ypres."

"On two occasions," said the pastor, "he was recommended to take the officer's course, on account of his splendid ability, and gallantry on the field of action, and about two months ago he crossed over to England where he qualified as Lieutenant."

"And last of all," said the pastor, "is the message for you and for me from the young officer's life. It is his thoughtfulness for others. 'Others' was the motto of his life. He enlisted not for himself but for others; he laid down his life not for himself but for others. For King and Country; for mother and father; for sister and brother; for you and for me."

"Let us not forget that," said the pastor.

The last letter written by the gallant hero before he died was read to the congregation by the pastor, after which the impressive service was closed in prayer.

MASONIC LODGES ATTEND ANNUAL DINNER SERVICE

Rev. J. A. MacKeigan Preached Powerful Sermon to Members of Masonic Fraternity Yesterday Afternoon.

New Brunswick Lodge together with the Grand Lodge and A. M. attended a special divine service at St. David's church yesterday afternoon at three o'clock.

Various lodges assembled at the Freemasons' Hall on Germain street at 2:30 from where they paraded to St. David's church, headed by the Temple band.

MacKeigan preached from the text: "Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness." "Light," said the preacher, "has been the desire of mankind in all generations. It is the cry of the infant, the quest of the student, the sob of the sufferer. Even in the brightest day the encircling gloom is never far away. There is the baffling struggle for personal power over evil, the social problem groping for solution, political vice and international strife, mysteries of pain and bewildering sorrow alike blinding us in tears. But amidst the darkness the confusion of changing standards and the crash of conflicting ideals there breaks upon the listening ear the glad message 'Unto the Upright, Light!'"

"Man thus possesses the secret of light, but he must be fed from the hills of God. The ford of the Jordan warns us that while we may deceive the very guards by our appearance the password of truth must be in our hearts and our eyes must be fed from the hills of God. The ford of the Jordan warns us that while we may deceive the very guards by our appearance the password of truth must be in our hearts and our eyes must be fed from the hills of God. The ford of the Jordan warns us that while we may deceive the very guards by our appearance the password of truth must be in our hearts and our eyes must be fed from the hills of God."

IF YOUR THROAT IS HUSKY, CATARRH MAY BE STARTING

A weak or irritated throat is the first step towards Catarrh. Everything depends on your remedy. A cough mixture cures quickly over the weak spots, but the stomach and does little but harm digestion. Its altogether different with Catarrh—cures because it gets right at the trouble. You inhale Catarrh, breathe in the vapor of the weak balsam that strengthens and restores the weak throat tissues. You'll never have colds or coughs. Throat trouble and catarrh will disappear with the use of Catarrh. Get the large dollar outfit which includes the inhaler, it lasts two months and is guaranteed to cure. Smaller sizes 25c, and 50c, sold everywhere.

LATE NEWS AND VIEWS FROM SPORTING WORLD

BASEBALL OWNERS ASSURED BIG RETURNS ON INVESTMENT

Highly Prosperous Year for Every Major League Club is Almost Certain Now Since Tremendous Crowds at Early Games.

Physically baseball has returned to the nation since the days of the prosperous seasons of 1908 and 1909. In practically every major league city the crowds have been larger, the enthusiasm greater and the playing better than in years. The country speedily is going baseball mad and the owners fortunate enough to be in possession of franchises right now are reaping the harvest.

Never in the history of the Yankees have so many persons paid to see the local American League club in action. The new owners, Colonel Jacob Ruppert and Captain T. L. Huston, are entrusted not only with the patronage but the success of their team. Financially the local men are looking forward to a big return on their enormous investments.

Cleveland, too, new owners are getting quick returns. The Indians, thanks to early successes, have attracted crowd after crowd to see them play. One Cleveland critic avers that already the actual yearly expenses of the team have been met and that from now until the end of the season the cost of the franchise can almost be paid for.

Even when the Giants were playing poorly and losing consistently at home thousands of "fans" attended the games daily. The fact that the team was losing or winning did not seem to enter into the question of seeing the games. Now, with the club winning constantly and even spectacularly, the attendance records probably will be shattered.

There are several good reasons that might be assigned to the prosperous conditions attached to the national sport. Probably the best of these is the death of the Federal League. During the life of the independent family there were so many back fence quarrels, late starts in the open, even rabid "fans" became disgusted. Baseball was put on a purely commercial basis, with the sport eliminated, and the "fans" who do not care a fig whether or not the owners make money, lost interest.

Every article known was used by each side to throw mud at the opposition. Players who were almost idolized before were torn from pedestals and rolled into oblivion by the different factions. Baseball became little more than a personal, jealous war between men of means. The struggles of the diamond were lost sight of in face of those in the courts.

Just when "fandom" appeared ready to retire from the odor of baseball there at the helm decided drastic action was needed. The olive branch was extended palm upward, differences were forgotten, serenely displaced, friendly, maligned players were taken to the bosoms of the faithful and the way was prepared for the ration most of the men interested were certain was bound to come. The nation was informed by baseball leaders that the war was over and that from now on only the daily games would receive consideration. And the nation, gullible always, has been credulous to a greater extent than even the leaders of the game could have allowed any other than itself the right of cognate, but, nevertheless, many there who have a dollar now where a penny lodged a few years ago. The nation is healthy and ready to smile on all its pleasures.

Therefore, baseball must share some of those smiles. Baseball is a good barometer of business conditions. When the glass is clear baseball gains, and there were no clouds in sight at the latest reading. Under the head of improved playing comes another strong reason for the renewed popularity of the game. The influx of Federal players into the teams, new faces everywhere, new stars coming into prominence and a thousand other differences in styles or play has warmed the hearts of the patrons. The Giants alone present each day four players who were not on the club last year. The Yankees have four outstanding stars performing daily who were not with the club last season. One could go through the two leagues and find convincing arguments of this character without missing a club.

Upsets in the "dope" of boosters, critics and "fans" has increased the interest. The sensational spurt of Cleveland, with the spectacular "Trips" Speaker supplying most of the driving power, practically has made over the American League. The ability shown by "Connie" Mack's Athletics has aroused sleepy Philadelphians. Washington's spring advance has kept the staid Senators away from their duties. New York's unrepented dash through foreign territory, in which a road record of seventeen consecutive victories was established, has created an air of enthusiasm that sweeps over the other National League cities in quantities almost as great as in New York.

Only in St. Louis does there appear a doubt that the season will be a physical success. Unfortunate "breaks" and poor pitching has kept the two St. Louis entries fighting to keep out of the cellar. Few "fans" can enthuse over a tallent contest.

New York Has Penant Fever.

The pennant race is jizzling around New York louder than ever. Local "fans" believe that it is not impossible that both the Giants and Yankees can get to the wire first. Both teams rest in second place and both teams are playing a brand of baseball as good if not better than is being shown by any of the other aggregations. In each team there is strength which as yet has not arrived at normal capacity. When this latent spark is fanned to life victories may come often.

The power at the bat of the Giants should bring a pennant even with only mediocre pitching. There are eight men in the line-up, any one of which can break up a ball game with a mighty drive. Should Tesreau, Mathewson, Benton, Perritt and Anderson continue sending the ball across the plate with the ability they have shown in previous games it seems nothing can keep the Giants out of the world's series.

There are several players on the Yankees who have not reached their known efficiency yet. Baker and Mace especially have much room for improvement. Should these two players hit their proper stride and begin driving the ball there is little doubt that the Yankees can keep on winning as consistently, as now. With this improvement the club has a mighty fine chance for the pennant. Five pitchers of the Yankees are exhibiting a power on the mound that will prevent the run making machines of the opposition from doing any great damage.

THEY'RE GOING BACK.

One by one they're going back! Donlin, Bresnahan, Hoffmann and Sullivan, Ibbell, Bradlee, Coughlin and Mullin and the host of other former greats will soon welcome new members into the Has-Beens Society.

Applications are now in from Napoleon Rucker, Brooklyn's "ace" peerless southpaw and "Big" Ed Walsh of the White Sox, once master spitball artist, according to reports from the east.

Walsh's mighty arm has worked its last miracle in major company. The iron man is slated for an umpire's berth, and next season may hear him calling balls and strikes in the American League.

Rucker has been placed on the disability list by Manager Robinson just a few days ago he went in against the Giants. The old cunning was not there. The drop ball that made him famous was no nip to his fast one. He was knocked from the mound.

MANAGER'S CRY IS FOR TEAM PLAY

But Ty Cobb, World's Greatest Ball Player, Favors Individual Work.

The Baseball Magazine maintains Ty Cobb is the greatest player in the game through his phenomenal batting average. He is the greatest player in the game by virtue of his wonderful base-running. But the things above all others which have stamped him as the true king of players are those trick plays and dazzling feats bordering on the miraculous which the cold records cannot express. The following is an extract from Cobb's story in the July Baseball Magazine:

There is a tense quality in Ty Cobb's conversation which is unique. Other players state opinions, the Georgian give facts. In the presence of the game's greatest player the listener feels intuitively that here is the one man who knows absolutely what he is talking about. For if Ty Cobb hasn't seen a particular play or tried it himself, or seen it tried, it has never been and probably never will be attempted. The Tiger's experience prevents the gamut from merely simple plays of everyday occurrence to those sheer flights of genius which border on the impossible. He is the last word in baseball achievement. If he comes to a certain play beyond him, the outlook is hopeless. It simply can't be done.

I have always thought the records give a player either more or less credit than he deserves.

There are many details of good playing which can't be expressed in terms of base hits and runs scored. You can't express St. Peter's cathedral in terms of stone and mortar. Those things might be used just as aptly to express a warehouse or a brewery.

The records themselves do not distinguish the genuine ball player from the fellow who doesn't have it in him to be a star.

Stretching hits is important. It is no less important to have the man all ready on stretch a base as well as the batter.

After all, the offensive play has it on the defence every time.

The Tigers didn't score more runs than any other team last year on batting alone. They scored part of them through demoralizing the defence.

The daring base-runner knows what he has in mind. The defence doesn't. I take advantage of the psychology of the thing continually.

The infielder can't work so well when he is laboring under a cloud of uncertainty.

He can't work so well when he is hurried.

I try to keep in the dark as to my intentions and to make him hustle every minute.

To illustrate what I mean, I remember a game at New York. A Detroit player—I don't recall who—was on third base. I sent a slow roller to Maize. The man on base was prevented from the nature of the play.

And that is just what they would have said had the play I intended to make gone wrong. I kept on at full speed for second base. The play looked like suicide, but that is just what I intended to have it resemble. As I neared second base the fielder was waiting for me with the ball.

LAST WEEK ON NEW YORK MARKET

Mexico was About the Only Topic on Wall Street.
PRICES TOOK THE DOWNWARD PATH

Special to The Standard.
Montreal, June 24.—Mexico formed almost the sole subject of discussion in Wall Street this week. Among bankers there was conjecture respecting a possible government bond issue to meet expenses connected with the mobilization of troops and maintenance of border patrol. It was stated by competent authorities that the pending negotiations with British and French interests for new loans or a similar conclusion regardless of home requirements.

In stock market prices suffered a very irregular downward revision, especially in certain of the more speculative issues. Heavy declines in shares like U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Tennessee Copper and some of the other metals and specialties were due to specific causes, notably in the case of Tennessee Copper whose directors ordered a suspension of dividend disbursements. Bulls of the better class together with U. S. Steel and other stock of recognized merit, yielded only nominally.

Railroad earnings continue to show satisfactory rates over the corresponding period of recent years, and although domestic demand for iron and steel is generally below the high pressure of the early months of the year, most mills are well booked with orders running into 1817.

The success of the Russian movements against the Austrians was more clearly reflected in the increasing heaviness of exchange rates to the countries of the Central Powers. With improvement in rubles, sterling was only slightly altered from its lower rates of last month, despite the steady accessions of British gold from Canada, which now stands at $75,000,000 with no signs of abatement.

LAST WEEK ON NEW YORK MARKET

Mexico was About the Only Topic on Wall Street. PRICES TOOK THE DOWNWARD PATH

Exchange Rates to Countries of Central Powers Reflected the Success of the Russian Advance.

Special to The Standard. Montreal, June 24.—Mexico formed almost the sole subject of discussion in Wall Street this week.

In stock market prices suffered a very irregular downward revision, especially in certain of the more speculative issues.

Railroad earnings continue to show satisfactory gains over the corresponding period of recent years.

With improvement in rubles, Sterling was only slightly altered from its lower rates of last month.

Heavy shipments of British gold from Canada, which now exceeds $75,000,000 with no signs of abatement.

CLOSING LETTER OF N.Y. MARKET BY E. & C. RANDOLPH

(McDOUGALL & COWANS.) New York, June 24.—The market today was irregular and short covering accounted for some upturns in prices at the close. Beet Sugar was weak. On the other hand the Zinc stocks showed more strength, largely as a result of covering. Additional gold arrived from Canada, which brings the total deposited in New York and Philadelphia on this movement up to $99,000,000. Northern Pacific made an excellent statement of earnings for May, showing forty per cent increase in gross and eighty-two per cent in net. The surplus for the month was more double that of May last year. For the eleven months its net earnings have shown $9,000,000 or forty-six per cent increase. The efforts of the South American countries to bring about arbitration of the trouble between Mexico and the U. S. were reported to have been rejected by Carranza, who is now standing on the ground that his country has been invaded by the United States, and its honor compromised. There was no development in Washington to change the situation which continues to look like a rupture between this country and Mexico. The market has again adopted a waiting attitude. Sales 185,900. E. & C. RANDOLPH.

NEWS LETTER FROM MONTREAL EXCHANGE

(McDOUGALL & COWANS.) Montreal, Q. June 24.—There was not much change in either of the markets today. The Mexican situation is holding the markets in check, and there is liquidation. The only stock which showed any activity in strength in our market today was Weyburn, which is evidently being bought on earnings, all the paper companies are doing a wonderful business. Gilt edged stocks in Wall street are holding up remarkably well. It is only the weaker issues which are declining.

SIDELIGHTS FROM GERMANY

Kaiser Up a Tree Near Verdun—War as Regenerator of Men's Souls.

The "Tagliche Rundschau" publishes some incidents from a Sunday spent lately by the Kaiser in the neighborhood of Verdun. His Majesty had been to church, and he then visited this particular locality in order to see "his wounded warriors." He entered the courtyard, filled with men slightly wounded.

"Morning, boys!"

"Morning, your Majesty!"

"And then rapid questions and answers. At first the Kaiser asked a bit timidly, but the Kaiser's adroit camaraderie and jolliness soon put everyone at his ease, and they soon felt as though they were talking to a popular captain. You should have seen the men whom he spoke to—the unconscious convulsion in their battle-scarred visages, the deep breathing. Sometimes it was only a word or two about their homes. To one man the Kaiser said, "Ah, yes, I know your place. Was there on manoeuvres. Beautiful place, you might willingly let your home be smashed with shot for a home like that. Fancy, if we had let the Russians into it!"

But it was not exactly what the Kaiser said which we are asked to admire; it was his genial and cordial laugh, his congenial and inspiring humour. It is this which stiffens the boys' necks, which brings radiance to their eyes. It is this which makes them say, "I have been in his neighbourhood, I have seen him face to face, the man for whom I have bled and died, and for whom hundreds of thousands have already died without hearing the Kaiser's thanks from his own imperial lips."

Laurel Twigs and Iron Crosses.

The Kaiser then entered the hospital where the seriously wounded lay. There was a board at the head of each bed, with particulars of the case. Those who had won the Iron Cross had their ribbon on the board. Here the same jolly atmosphere, only slightly dimmed as the men were very weak. It is astonishing the jollity caused everywhere by the Kaiser's coming. From bed to bed he went and on each bed the War Lord laid a twig of laurel and a picture-postcard of himself, which he took from his side-camp. The Schmock of the "Tagliche Rundschau" tells us that sometimes the "August Visitor" took from a parcel the most treasured of all war decorations, the Iron Cross and its ribbon, and presented it to the suffering man. "Ah," says Schmock, "how our souls' eyes see the joy of the homes, when the letters come, written with trembling hands, which tell us that the Kaiser has spoken to the writer, and has laid on his Iron Cross and a sprig of laurel on his bed!" "That laurel sprig and Cross will occupy the place of honor on the wall, and go down to the children's children. What proud blessedness for their owners!"

Every Drop is British

Everything in the manufacture of READY'S LAGER BEER is so carefully selected; every process of the brewery is so skillfully carried out, and such close scrutiny is exercised as to cleanliness, that anything in the nature of an impurity is quite impossible.

As an additional recommendation READY'S LAGER BEER is BRITISH—every drop of it is British—and loyalists will drink it in preference to the foreign beers now selling in this market.

error was that he gave expression to his honest views in a manner dangerous to the security and internal peace of the country.

How We Stole Joan of Arc.

"Those English thieves" are still pursuing their inglorious career. In cooperation with the "Irish" English, the English, the English, they have now, according to the "Cologne Gazette," stolen Joan of Arc!

We are living in times of portentous epoch-making events. One of the most portentous of them all is the adoption by England of France's very latest saint, Joan of Arc, as her very own celestial guardian and patron.

The stupendous fact was solemnly announced amid the strains of the organ and vibrant notes of the singer Frau Klara Bott in the Queen's Hall, London. So now we may prepare for the worst, because Holy Joan, in her joy at her emancipation, will surely move all the heavenly hosts to return to earth once more, in order to aid the English in their fight with the French.

Slowly, thoughtfully the Kaiser descended from his tree, and then with rapid step to his waiting car, soldiers throwing their caps into the air and yelling "Hurra! Hurra!" It was once more quiet on that hilltop, with its giant beech bursting into leaf. The beech must have thought, says Schmock, "What a precious burden I have borne today, him in whose person Germany's sacred struggle for life and prosperity is personified!"

Police-men and Butter-Shops.

The "Deutsche Tageszeitung" states that, with a view to avoiding the assembling of large crowds of would-be purchasers in front of butter-shops in Berlin, it has been decided to station policemen in front of each shop, who will hand each person in the crowd a numbered ticket, entitling him to enter the shop when his turn comes. This will enable persons receiving high numbers to quit the queue and return later in the day for their share of butter—should there be any left.

Whale's Blubber.

The local authorities in the rural district of Solingen have, according to the "Frankfurter Zeitung," purchased a quantity of smoked whale-flesh, and are selling it at M3 per pound. It may be purchased on meatless days, and has proved very popular.

A "Bitter Harvest."

The Berlin "Tagblatt," which has not endeared itself to the Government by its habit of calling public attention to more serious matters, deals with another aspect of the food question.

Great indignation is felt in Friedenau at the fact that the Central Purchasing Association, established by the imperial authorities, has issued "preferential food tickets" for its employees.

Municipal officials, who maintain themselves on the communal contributions paid in the form of tax, are thus given the means of providing themselves with food whenever they choose to do so, leaving the people who keep them to struggle for it as best they may.

Nobody would object if a factory or other industrial concern sought to facilitate the supply of food for their workers, but the arguments that apply to a factory cannot be employed in such a case as that of the Central Purchasing Association, because the latter, through its monopolizing powers, furnishes itself with its foodstuffs, not through free and open purchase, but mainly by confiscation.

It is intolerable that the association's employees should be placed in a position to procure the food they desire at reduced rates while their fellow-citizens, after waiting for hours in the street, cannot even obtain what they need at fair prices.

The issue of preferential tickets must cease at once, or the Central Association will reap a bitter harvest.

Food at Any Cost.

Munch is feeling the pinch so bitterly that the local "Neueste Nachrichten" calls loudly for a food dictator.

To secure the rapid, equitable and effective distribution of food Germany would even welcome the establishment of a dictatorship.

The idea is ridiculed in certain quarters, but those who regard it with such disdain would be wiser and more patriotic if they recognized that the situation demands drastic treatment.

It may be added that Herr Hebbel, whatever be his errors, did not act from any base motives. On the contrary, he thoroughly recognizes what were the crying needs. His fatal

RECIPES
Cream of Lima Bean Soup.
Cook one pint of shelled lima beans with the minced onion and half a cup of dried carrots until soft; press through a sieve, thicken with one tablespoon of flour, add salt and pepper to taste and one well beaten egg; thicken with hot milk and serve with croutons.

Cream Cheese Soup.
Boil an onion for 15 minutes in a pint of weak stock, then strain it out and return the stock to the fire. Heat a pint of milk to scalding and thicken with two tablespoons of flour rubbed into one tablespoon of butter. Season with white pepper and celery salt and add to the weak stock. Stir in slowly the beaten yolks of two eggs and four tablespoons of grated Parmesan cheese and serve.

Rice Cream.
Cook two tablespoons of rice in a double boiler with one pint of milk until the rice is very soft. Then add a pinch of salt, half a cup of sugar and a sprinkling of cinnamon. Dissolve a teaspoon of gelatine in cold water and stir into the hot rice mixture. Cool and fold in a cup of whipped cream. Put into a mould to harden. Serve with a little whipped cream and a teaspoon of sherry, if desired, on each portion.

Sponge Cake.
Bake sponge cake in a sheet and when cool cut into two-inch strips three or four inches long. Spread the strips with currant jelly and top with a plain strip. Frost with white icing to hold the strips in place.

FASHION NOTES
Hat Trimmings.
Wheat, in colors of gray and white, as well as black, is used in profusion and in many clever ways to trim the latest hats from Paris. A single band of it is used around a small hat as the sole trimming, the long hair-like threads that extend from the grain give a softening touch. It is also combined charmingly with colored boules or popples, that is, the white wheat.

Thornless roses are banked in masses on the crown of brimless hats that are as charming as they are chic and becoming.

Bunches of ribbon streamers in a variety of colors are used to trim the large leghorns that are usually faced with a soft pastel-toned Georgette crepe.

All-white blouses will be less worn than those which show a touch of color, but to have the 1916 look the blouse must be much more white than the dress. Instead of the colored blouse with touches of white has arrived the white blouse which has collar edgings or some other detail of colored material, often in a squared design.

The gypsy collar, which looks like a small handkerchief tied in a knot, is a becoming novelty. An attractive model of butcher blue linen with tucks hemstitched in back has a gypsy collar of white silk with large black spots.

The fashions say, skirts longer, but boot tops seem as much in evidence as they have been.

The mitten sleeve, over the knuckles with stitched division for the thumb, is nice and warm for summer.

If you wear a Victorian gown you must wear your hair in curls.

Glittering hair ornaments are seen on the big sailor hats and on the linen shapes an insect is sometimes embroidered.

All-white blouses will be less worn than those which show a touch of color, but to have the 1916 look the blouse must be much more white than colored. Instead of the colored blouse with touches of white has arrived the white blouse which has collar edgings or some other detail of colored material, often in a squared design.

The gypsy collar, which looks like a small handkerchief tied in a knot, is a becoming novelty. An attractive model of butcher blue linen with tucks hemstitched in black has a gypsy collar of white silk with large black spots.

The fashions say, skirts longer, but boot tops seem as much in evidence as they have been.

The mitten sleeve, over the knuckles with stitched division for the thumb, is nice and warm for summer.

If you wear a Victorian gown you must wear your hair in curls.

The Watteau Coiffure. Glistening bees and beetles are seen on the big sailor hats and on the linen shapes an insect is sometimes omitted.

Tilted hats of the Watteau type are shown to wear with the fantastic little afternoon frocks of silk, but they are only successful with exactly the right frock and the right coiffure. With all the new hats the hair must be worn high and brushed well up from the nape of the neck, but an especially firm piled up coiffure is required to make a Watteau hat appear to "be long" as the Americans say.

To Remove Chewing Gum. Should you happen to sit down on a piece of chewing gum, do not try to scrape it off and risk spoiling your skirt. Simply take a piece of ice and hold it tight over the gum for a few moments. This hardens the gum and causes it to crumble. It may then be brushed off with no injury to the cloth.

Homemade Fly Paper. An excellent fly catch paper is made by adding a little resin to linseed oil and boiling it until it forms a stringy paste. Spread on a heavy brush paper with a brush.

A white lawn collar in three layers, each with a scalloped edge, and coming all down the front of the blouse, is likely to be a general favorite, especially on figured cotton voile blouses. Cotton voile has proved itself a good material for blouses, as it does become limp after a few washings.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

How to Test an Oven.

Test your oven before putting in the cake by throwing on the bottom a spoonful of dry flour. If the flour takes five or six minutes to brown, the oven's temperature is too high, and you should allow the oven to cool a little. If the flour remains white after it has been there a few moments the temperature is too low. If the oven is of the proper heat the flour will slightly brown and look a little scorched.

Flower-Basket Laundry Bags.

Some attractive new laundry bags are made of the popular unbleached muslin, with a large basket of flowers, cut from gay colored chints, applied slightly below the center of the bag. The basket is caught down with an over-and-over stitch in black, which gives a curious effect of depth to the design. This same idea may be used for curtains, luncheon sets for the summer bungalow or even for bed coverings.

Baby's Pillow.

A baby's pillow cover can be simply made as follows: Sew together as for a pillow slip three-fourths of a yard of eight-inch linen cambric embroidery of fine quality. Run blue or pink ribbon through small eyelets in scalloped, thereby closing the cover. Run ribbon of suitable width through the larger eyelets, forming a bow of the ends on top.

To Replace Washcloths.

A handful of absorbent cotton may be used to good advantage as a substitute for the old-fashioned washcloth. It is said that a Queen who was famed for her beautiful skin used the absorbent cotton washcloths.

WOMEN'S WORK

The Girls' Association of St. John's (Bonne) Church made a complete set of Communion linen which has been sent to Capt. (Rev.) Kauring. This was work in which all who participated felt it was the highest privilege to be allowed to have a share. A letter from Capt. Kauring will be found in another part of this issue in which he describes the "Church Tent" where services are held.

Had a Nervous Breakdown, Could Not Sleep or Work

Is Now Cured and Attributes His Recovery to the Use of Dr. Chase's Medicines.

Some splendid results have been reported to us from the combined use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. In complicated cases they work together with great success.

While the Kidney-Liver Pills arouse the action of liver, kidney and bowels, and so overcome derangements of these organs, the Nerve Food enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves and builds up the system in a general way.

Mr. R. B. Hillman, Furber, Muskoka, Ont., writes: "About four years ago I was all run down and could not work, and as to writing a letter, I could not do so on account of my hand shaking so badly. My nerves were unstrung and I was troubled with a nervous breakdown. I could not sleep soundly and would start up so suddenly as to almost jump out of bed. My kidneys were bad, too, and I had awful pains in the back all day. I doctored with our family doctor, but he did not seem to know what I needed. I was recommended to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and could sleep well three nights after starting the use of the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. I take great pleasure in recommending these medicines, as I have proved that they do all that I claimed for them."

When used together the Nerve Food should be used after each meal and at bed-time, and the Kidney-Liver Pills only as often as is necessary to keep the bowels in healthy condition. Dr. Chase's medicines are for sale by all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Letters Received by Uncle Dick From His Boys and Girls

TODAY'S LITTLE JOKE.

"Were you carefully brought up, my boy?" asked the merchant of the applicant for a situation.

"Yes, sir; I came up in the lift," said the respectful youth.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS.

Uncle Dick wishes many happy returns to the following kiddies whose birthdays take place today: Blanche Baker, Athol, Archie McLean, 66 Elliott Row, Alton Underhill, Underhill P. O.

A New Member. Dear Uncle Dick— Salt Springs. I would like to join your Corner. I have one sister and four brothers. My sister is two months old. We live on a farm five miles from the nearest station, and we have only two mails a week. I go to school in summer, but in winter I have to miss a lot of days as I have over a mile to go and the road fills with snow.

I am next oldest in the family. I suppose that you will have another contest next week.

From your niece, Marton Mercer.

Trying Hard For Prize. Dear Uncle Dick— Ledgo, N. B. I have not written to you for a long time. I hope I will get a prize. I didn't get any last time, but I am going to try again. I am enjoying the Corner very much.

Your loving niece, Josephine Wormell.

Making Book For Soldiers. Dear Uncle Dick— Mt. Hebron. I am going to try the Jumble Word Contest. I hope I may get a prize. I have got two to join the Corner. My seatmate at school and in the third grade is in the country better than a city. We have twenty-four head of cattle, three horses, two colts and ten pigs. I am going to school and in the third grade. I should like to know the date of your birthday, mine is on August 18th. I will then be twelve years old. I am making a book for the soldiers. I wish Uncle Dick much success.

From your loving Florence J. Long.

Trying Again. Dear Uncle Dick— MacDonald's Corner. I am sorry I did not get a prize, but I will try again. I hope I will get a prize. Wishing you and the Corner every success.

Your loving niece, Freda Briggs.

Held Successful Concert. Dear Uncle Dick, I thought I would write and tell you what we made at our concert. We made $72; I think that is quite a bit, don't you? The money is to go to the Belgium Relief Fund. I must tell you about my brother catching three fish, one weighed two pounds and three-quarters, another one-half pound, and the other three-quarters of a pound. Well, Uncle Dick, I can't think of any more so I will close.

From your loving friend, ELLA OSBURN.

Tried to Get Fountain Pen. Dear Uncle Dick, I have been a long time since I wrote you. I did not get a chance to do the contest lately. I have been busy studying my lessons. I am doing the one in today's paper. I hope I shall win a prize, as I should like to have a fountain pen. I guess I will close. With love, from your niece, DOROTHY E. WHITNEY.

Wants to Join Corner. Dear Uncle Dick, I would like to join the Children's Corner and am trying the contest. I hope I will get it right.

From your new niece, HILDA VAUGHAN.

Though naturalists have long since dispelled the illusion that the cockroach buries its head in the sand in the vain hope of thereby escaping the eye of the enemy—the fact being that "the female of the species" is merely engaged in the purely domestic duty of hiding her eggs—the fabled expedient is still practised by the majority of the German newspapers.

While the Berlin "Tageblatt," the "Vorwarts," and a few other more or less independent journals admit frankly that Germany is at the end of her tether so far as food is concerned, the bulk of the Kaiser's newspapers still boast that the British blockade is a farce, and that Germany has everything she needs. At the same time they publish, within safe limits as the censor permits, accounts of food riots which tell their own tale only too plainly.

Miss Gladys Brockwell is happy. The Pacific Ocean is calling to the company of photographers and she only hears the call when the sun has gotten in its steam heat work and put the temperature up to 72 Fahrenheit. And that's where it is at present. Therefore, Miss Brockwell already has divided into trunks, packed last October, and brought up bathing suits—creations rather—and is trying to decide whether something newer is needed or whether the last year's style is still in vogue.

Meanwhile the ocean calls and residents at the beaches are daily expectant of seeing a little, young figure perched on the end of a pier waiting for the "tallest wave" and opportunity for a dive. For Miss Brockwell is a swimmer of merit and many times casts an eye on the misty outlines of Catalina Isle, twenty miles away, and asks herself if someday she shall not attempt to swim to that island, something no woman yet has done.

WEEKLY BIOGRAPHY.

Tom Moore of Ireland. Tom Moore, who is co-starred with Anna Nilsson in the Arrow Film Corporation's production of "Who's Gilty?" the newest Pathé series, was born near Kells, County Meath, Ireland, about twenty-six years ago. He was thirteen years old when his parents came to America and settled in Toledo, where Tom, with his brothers, Owen and Matt, was placed in school. But adventure got the better of Tom's schooling, and he visited his brother Owen in Chicago. Owen landed him a job as a super in the stock company's performance of "Secret Service," and for twenty-one consecutive days Tom was a stare here in a Yankee uniform. Then the juvenile of the company left, and Tom got the juvenile's place.

After a short season with the Wilfred Varnay stock company, Tom Moore came to New York, joining the Boll stock company. First he went to New Haven and then to other Pol theatres, breaking a two years' engagement with Fall long enough to play fifteen weeks in a New Orleans stock company. There he met George LeSore, who prevailed upon him to try picture work with the Kalem Company.

The picture work at first failed to hold Tom, and, though in his Kalem engagement he had met Alice Joyce (whom he was destined later to marry) he went back to the Pol players Kalem sent for him and so did Miss Joyce. He talked it over with her and finally summoned all his Irish courage and wit and proposed—no, not to Miss Joyce—to Kalem that if he were permitted to play opposite Miss Joyce in all her pictures he would stick with them. The proposition appealed to them. So in 1913 Tom became a permanent screen player.

After he had played with Joyce for more than a year, appearing with her in nearly forty photoplays, he was made a Kalem director. He acted in his own company as well, with Marguerite Courtet as his leading woman. With her he played in more than fifty pictures. Many of these he wrote himself, as well as directing and acting in them. Among them were some of Kalem's most successful one-reelers, including "Prejudice," "The Secret Room," "The Adventure at Briarcliff," "The Double Harness."

With three years' service with Kalem to his credit, Tom Moore left that organization, shortly after his marriage to Miss Joyce. For a while he took the rest he so well had earned. When he returned to the screen it was to join the Arrow forces for the "Who's Gilty?" series.

In the new Theda Bara picture now being taken at Lillian Fox's Fort Lee studios, Miss Bara does a dance on a platform before the soldiers. Director J. Gordon Edwards imported a photographer from Manhattan, to regulate her steps, and a frequent amusement of the actors between scenes, was to listen to the latest dance music.

During one of these recreation periods, Miss Bara thought she would have some fun with her maid. A piece from "La Tosca" was being played. "I love Puccini, Lizzie," said Miss Bara. "Don't you?"

"Lizzie looked puzzled for only an instant.

"Yes, I do, Miss Bara," the maid said. "But I think these accordions play pretty, too."

How would you like to have to sign this often? This is the name Albert Chevalier answers to: "Albert Ernesta Britannicus Gwathwood Louis Chevalier."

New York film circles were surprised to learn this week that William A. Brady, Treasurer of the American Surety Company, who secured a lot of newspaper attention when he compelled the Universal to change the name of a character in "Where Are My Children?" from "William Brandt" to "Mrs. Carroll," had attempted to take his life in the Hudson Terminal Building.

Mrs. Brandt's prominence made the newspapers go after the "story" when he fought with the film company over the change question. It was characterized as changing the name of a character in the picture meant throwing away vast quantities of title stock, advertising, and lithographs. It was also announced by the film company that making such a change established a bad precedent in laying producers open to hold-ups by irresponsible persons who might be mentioned in the cast of a film. It would be hard, the Universal stated, in reply to Mr. Brandt, to use proper names.

Changes come so often in baseball that a player who spends a decade on one team is looked on by the average fan as a decrepit old man. That has been the reason largely that Terry Turner of Cleveland has been regarded as one of the here and yellow. He has been so long with Cleveland—as longness goes in baseball—that it's hard to figure otherwise. Turner is no spring chicken, but he's not nearly as old as some would have him. Acknowledging 38 summers, and member of one team 13 years, Terry's still as young as any of them, and laughs to scorn those who would intimate to him that the time must come when Father Time will get him. Thirteen years do not cover his span of baseball life by any means. Before joining Cleveland he was with Columbus in the American Association two years and he was considered pretty well seasoned when he joined that club, for he had seen several years' service in the lesser minors. Turner's experience proves that little men generally last longest. He is not much on size, but he's a grand prize done up in a small package.

LEUT. ROY EDWARDS OF THE "FIGHTING 26TH" IN THE CITY

Popular St. John Man Tells of Ten Months in the Trenches—Will Now Accept Commission With Nova Scotia Regiment.

It was a pleasant surprise to a great many friends of Lieut. Roy Edwards of the "Fighting 26th" Battalion when that brave young officer arrived in the city on Saturday and took up quarters at the Victoria Hotel.

LEUT. ROY EDWARDS.

When seen yesterday by Standard reporter, and asked if he had anything to say about the work at the front, Lieut. Edwards made no hesitancy in saying that he had not come from Flanders to "talk shop."

When asked how the boys of the 26th were making out when he left them at the front, Lieut. Edwards said that they were all in good spirits and fighting just as hard as they were the first time they got into action.

CHAPLAIN REV. G. A. KUHRING'S LIFE AT FRONT

In Interesting Letter He Tells of His Work Among the Men of the Empire's Army

The following very interesting letter has been received from Rev. G. A. Kuhring, who is stationed at No. 3 Stationary Hospital, "Sawbushers" in France, in which he describes very fully his work among the soldiers and his church tent.

I have been very happy today, with lots of real work—three services and visiting between. The R. C. Padre wanted a place to say mass so I offered him my "church tent," and he accepted it.

I was visiting the hospital this afternoon and found Ludlow from my old regiment, 6th Mounted Rifles, and at another hospital, three miles away I saw McClear from St. George's, N. B., also W. J. Swetka, of St. John, of the 26th Battalion.

I had the pleasure of meeting the Archbishop of Canterbury last week. He has been nine days at the front and passed through this place on his way back to the York and Canterbury convention.

He is much impressed with what he has seen at the front, said he had not realized until this visit what unparalleled opportunities the churches had to reach men here at this time.

He would make it his duty to impress the Bishops of York and Canterbury with the fact that chaplains at the front must not be recalled but they must be ready to leave their best men in the field.

A description was given of Duffy and it was said that he came to St. John. The case was given to Detective Barrett and in about half an hour later the detective arrested Duffy on Sewell St.

His parents and friends are hoping that the wounds will not prove fatal.

Officer Beaten. Walter Hayes, Fred Lupee and Roy Hayes, three colored men, were acting disorderly on the corner of Pitt and Duke street last evening. They refused to move when ordered by Police Constable Ward and used profane language. When the officer placed one of the number under arrest the three turned on him and there was a general fight in which the officer was kicked in the mouth and had a couple of teeth knocked out. The officer and the men were still fighting when Detective Barrett and Constable McLee arrived on the scene and the trio were locked up.

A Slick Cheque Worker. A well dressed man wearing a ring that looked very much like a diamond, is said to have worked an up-town hotel manager with a cheque to the extent of $110 one day last week. The man had been stopping at the hotel for a few days, and from his prosperous appearance was thought to be all right, so much so in fact that when he presented the cheque the manager cashed it. Shortly after the cash was handed over the man disappeared and it was found that the cheque was worthless. It was learned that the thief was in Amherst and a wire was sent there to hold him, but he had departed, and yesterday was seen to leave the train at Moncton. Up to a late hour last night there had been no word of his arrest.

BOY THIEVES SOON CAUGHT

Good Work of Police in Connection With Recent Small Robberies.

On Tuesday last Chief of Police Simpson received information that the premises of W. H. Thorne & Co. Ltd. had been entered the night before and robbed. He handed the case over to Detective Barrett, with the result that on Saturday the detective rounded up three youthful robbers, while Sergeant Sullivan captured the fourth.

In addition to the Thorne robbery, the boys are charged with robbing the lunch wagon on the corner of Princess and Canterbury street, a residence on Queen street, a wholesale house on Union street, and McMillin's store on Main street. All these places have been broken into within a week, and the work of rounding up the gang of thieves speaks well for the police department.

69TH ANNUAL MEETING NEW BRUNSWICK AND N.S. CONGREGATIONAL UNION

The sixty-ninth annual meeting of the Congregational Union of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick opened in the Congregational Church at Brooklyn, N. S., on Wednesday evening with a large number of ministers and delegates present.

The break into the McMillin store was made by cutting out a pane of glass, and the whole cash dropped out while the boys were crawling out. The break into Mrs. MacFarlane's house, 61 Queen street, was made by removing a fly screen from a rear window, and after stealing three dollars from one of the rooms the thieves left the house by the front door.

Speaking of the want of men at the front, Lieut. Edwards said that men were needed, and it is a shame to come back and see the hundreds of young men walking the streets while their chums are at front fighting for them.
