No opportunity was given to consider the matter. He

Blair—You had dropped it. Hanington—Oh, did we? Let us read from our last speech. Did we not there refer to it? But it only shows how reckless the leader of the Government is in his statements. What has his Government done as to his platform as to the abolition of the Legislgtive Council? Have they done Legislytive Council? Have they done anything? The answer is clear; because Blair was not sincere in his professions, they have not carried out any of their pledges. What have they done as to the Government House, the reduction of the executive, etc.? The country are watching for their reforms, but they may watch in vain. He prophesied that the end of 1886 would see several of their reforms not carried out.
