OP—TOM—E—TRIST
"A SAVER OF EYESIGHT"

You may have noticed that I talk more about "Eyes" and "Eyesight" and "Service" than I do about glasses. This is because optometrists have something more important than glasses to talk about.

Any optical place is supposed to have eyeglasses and not carpets and furniture. Optometrists naturally attach more importance to what you want when your eyes trouble you—which is COMFORT and SATISFACTION and QUALITY and SERVICE.

That's what you get from competent optometrists. Glasses are tools, which, properly and scientifically handled, bring comfort and satisfaction. Should you require glasses we can supply them from $1 and upwards.

Presentation Postponed.

The presentation of colors to the 135th Battalion which was to have taken place on May 21, has been postponed and will be an event at some date about the middle of June.

The colors, which are a gift of The London Free Press Printing Company, have been in the city for some days.

Col. Robson, points out, however, that the battalion could not be mobilized and in camp on Carling's Heights by the holiday, as he had hoped, and there is the further reason for postponement that the farmers of the county, from which the battalion has been so largely drawn, are late with their seeding and ought not to be taken from their work at this time.

"Better weather will be assured to us in June, and all other conditions will be more desirable," said the colonel, in announcing the postponement.

Ekfrid Man Fined.

Richard England, of Ekfrid Township, charged with the attempted shooting of George Lucas, a neighbor, was before Squires Chittick and Robson Friday afternoon. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $10 and costs. This is the minimum penalty that could be imposed.

The affair occurred when England became incensed at Lucas, because the latter would not loan him a seed drill, which belonged to Lucas' brother, and which he (the brother) had to Lucas not to loan to England. He procured a 22-calibre rifle and tried to shoot Lucas. Lucas, however, closed with him and succeeded in wresting the rifle from him.

The two principals went to the city Friday morning and saw Crown Attorney McKillop, with the result that the hearing was fixed for Thursday afternoon. England appeared to be genuinely sorry for what he had done, and under the circumstances the magistrates decided to let him off as easily as possible.

The grounds committee will meet the fair board and make arrangements for the grounds. The president, the manager, J. Martin and N. C. Allingham were appointed to meet a committee from Thamesville in the matter of forming a league, and Messrs. Parrott, Elliott and Davidson were appointed to go around and collect funds.

A series of unusually interesting games is anticipated for the coming season.

Presentation at High School.

A presentation was made to Corporal Neil McCallum on Monday, May 22nd, at the Glencoe High School.

A fitting address was read by Miss Bayne, after which a signet ring and pass case were presented by A. E. Aldred. Corporal McCallum expressed his appreciation at the remembrance, and his regret at leaving the school.

An address was given by Miss McEachran, expressing the pride of the school at having Neil represent the G. H. S. in the ranks.

The National Anthem was sung.

"A Summer in Geneva."

The above was the subject of a bright, pleasing, very instructive and suggestive address by Miss Grace Blackburn, the talented and charming nom de plume of "Pan-Pan" in the London Free Press, given in St. John's Church school room on Monday evening.

Geneva the intellectual, the beautiful, the pleasure-loving and commercial were all portrayed. Her excellent descriptive powers made the beauties, the life and history of that interesting city very realistic. She carried her audience amid the beautiful panorama of mountain and lake, through the restful parks, down by the picturesque quays, along the romantic promenades, the busy thoroughfares and in front of the attractive shops in her elegant and vivid style. Her elaboration of the swan history and the beauty they add to the charms of Geneva, was an ingenious touch in the outline of the lecture. Her characterizations of that one might see among the tourists in the park were most excellent, that of the American being most enjoyed, as it was so typical and familiar. Geneva, "the citadel of the idea," the democratic and liberty-loving city, struck the keynote of the philosophical side of the lecture. She advanced some reasons why Switzerland was not in the present struggle in view of what she narrated of the history and development.

She gave her ideas of the present crisis, its causes, and suggested remedies for preventing war, closing a most brilliant address by the recitation of one of her own poems, "The Artist."

The address was prefaced by several musical numbers, making altogether a most enjoyable evening. Peter McArthur, as chairman, with his wit and humor, interspersed this part of the program, so well rendered by Mrs. McGeachy, Miss Jessie Humphries, Stanley Humphries and Mr. Owen.

Tells of Wounded Soldier.

Wm. Newport on Monday received letters from the front giving particulars of the spending of his son, Pte. Gordon Newport, on May 1st. Allan Newport, of the machine gun section 40th Battalion, writes under date of May 2nd:—

"Dear Father,—I am writing you a few lines to let you know the war is still going on. Gordie was wounded last night by a piece from a rifle grenade and is now I think in England. I guess you will hear from him before you get this. We had a terrible bombardment here just before dark for about 11 hours. Gordie and another fellow were coming up the trench with hot tea when it started and he was hit there. He got a bullet in the head near the right eye, hit pretty hard but not serious. I helped to carry him out after the bombardment. He was conscious all the time and glad when I came to him. I couldn't leave the machine gun till it was finished. We had a terrible time getting the wounded out, had to go through a woods that was full of shell holes and fallen trees and very dark. The worst of it we had to hurry to get out before daylight. Gordie was taken with the rest right away from the dressing station in an ambulance and I think is well taken care of now. The Germans started to come over but had to change their minds.

The matron of St. John Ambulance Brigade Hospital writes, May 6th:—

"Dear Sir,—I am sorry to tell you your son is a patient in this hospital suffering from a severe wound in his head. He asked me to tell you he was 'going on alright, and not to worry about him.' I hope very much that he really will be getting better. As he is unable to talk much or exert himself in any way. Everything that can be done for him is being by doctors and nurses.

Wedded in the West.

The Saskatoon Star of recent date says:—A quiet military wedding took place last night in the parlor of the King George when Miss Mary Bell McIntyre, daughter of the late Dr. McIntyre, of Glencoe, Ontario, became the bride of Pte. Charles McGregor, of the 65th Overseas Battalion. The ceremony was performed by Captain Olliver, chaplain of the 65th Battalion. The bride was given away by her cousin, Major P. D. Stewart, and was attended by Miss Riley of the Saskatchewan Hospital Unit. Cpl. Cole, of the 65th Battalion, attended the groom. Following the ceremony the wedding party enjoyed a tempting dinner served in the King George dining-room.

Remarkable Knitting Record

A correspondent of the Transcript at Winnipeg encloses the following copy of a letter of appreciation recently received by Mrs. Lynn, of that city, from a soldier at the front. Mrs. Lynn, who is a former resident of Glencoe, the correspondent incidentally remarks, "is now in her 74th year, and this week she is working on her 101st pair of socks, surely a creditable record."

"I am glad to hear that you are still working on your 101st pair of socks, surely a creditable record. The Glencoe Colony continues much as it always has—getting a pretty fair slice of prosperity and happiness and not forgetting the boyhood and girlhood days in the biggest little town in the world."

March 5, 1916.

Mrs. Lynn, 310 Simcoe St.,
Winnipeg.

"Dear Mrs. Lynn.—I have just received a new pair of socks, and one of them found the enclosed note so I take the liberty of writing this letter to thank you most kindly for them. You will never know, Mrs. Lynn, how much good you and the other ladies at Glencoe are doing for us boys over here, nor how much it cheers us to know that the folks at home are thinking of us."

"I am writing this letter while seated in my dug-out, with the Germans only fifty yards away, so that you can truly say this letter is from the firing line. We are having quite a difficult time at present, as it is very cold and it either is raining or snowing every day now. Also, the Germans are attacking us as consistently as the weather is, trying to find weak places in our line so as to break it, but, thank God, they have not found the place yet, if such a place does exist. I believe we are close to the end, as the Germans are giving themselves up every day, and when we attack they do not stand and fight as they did a year ago, but will drop their guns and run. I think by June or July we will be going back to dear old Canada, and to the West at that, for I came from Calgary."

"Now, Mrs. Lynn, please accept my thanks for the socks, and I hope if I get back to Canada that I can call and thank you in person."

"Will close with best wishes, and may God bless you is the wish of one of the boys at the front."

Yours truly,
C. W. WETMORE,
13th Batt. Royal Highlanders, B.E.F.

The commissioners appointed to investigate the origin of the fire which destroyed the parliament building at Ottawa have concluded their investigation. While finding many circumstances connected with the fire which lead to a strong suspicion of incendiarism, the commissioners state that there is nothing in the evidence to justify them in finding that the fire was maliciously set.

ENTIRELY DIFFERENT SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT FOR IRELAND

Premier Asquith to Frame a Proposal to Lay Before the British Cabinet.

A despatch from Dublin says: Premier Asquith has reached the conclusion from impressions gathered during his Irish visit that the old form of government in Ireland has had its day. The Associated Press learns from sources in closest touch with the Premier that Mr. Asquith's conversations and conferences have convinced him that the future government must be conducted on an entirely different system. The Prime Minister has taken care to learn the ideas and views of many persons other than those in purely official circles, and these persons have offered greatly varied suggestions. None of these, it is believed, could be adopted in its entirety, but it is thought they might be welded together to form a proposal to lay before the Cabinet. His Belfast visit gave a good hint to the Premier that the Ulsterites would not accept a direct proposal implying home rule. But it is believed that they might be induced to enter into a concerted plan which could possibly be arranged to meet their most serious objections.

GERMAN SOLDIERS ASK FOOD FROM SWISS ON THE FRONTIER

Food Situation in Rhine Towns Becoming Intolerable — Kaiser's Men Deserting.

A despatch from Geneva says: German soldiers along the Swiss-Alsatian frontier, chiefly elderly men of the Landsturm, have begun to ask food from the Swiss soldiers. The Germans say they have not eaten meat for weeks. Five German soldiers in uniform, although fired upon, escaped across the Swiss frontier at Rodesdorf, near Basel on Tuesday. They were interned at Berne. The Neue Stuttgarter Zeitung says the food situation in Rhine towns is becoming intolerable. The newspaper advises the Government to take drastic measures to change the mode of living of the people. It suggests that cooking in private families be prohibited, and that the population be ordered to eat in common at restaurants, where meat would be served once daily, at noon, and only vegetables in the evening.

Eighteen German cattle dealers arrived in Basel on Tuesday hoping to buy cattle, which are becoming scarce. A despatch from London says: A scheme of war pensions was announced in the Commons on Wednesday by William Hayes Fisher, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Local Government Board. It provides for grants of $50 yearly to married and unmarried men called to the colors where financial hardships result. This is irrespective of the allowances already given soldiers' wives. It was announced that the assistance would be extended to include rents, insurance premiums, taxes, loans, and interest installments.

CAMPS OF ENEMY IN EGYPT DESTROYED BY AUSTRALIANS

Successful Enterprise Carried Out Against the Turks at Bayoud and Magebra.

A despatch from London says: The following official communication concerning the operations in Egypt was made public Thursday night:

"The general officer commanding-in-chief in Egypt reports a successful enterprise against the enemy at Bayoud and Magebra, which was carried out by a column of Australian and New Zealand mounted troops

May 16. The enemy made no resistance and fled at once, pursued by us. The very great heat and the bad going over the deep sand made it impossible for the pursuit to be carried very far.

"Thirty-six camels, a quantity of Turkish ammunition and one Turkish soldier were captured at Bayoud, and the enemy camp there was entirely destroyed."

ALLIED SUBMARINES IN BALTIC SUNK THREE GERMAN SHIPS

Sea is Now Ice Free and Activity on Part of Underwater Craft is Reawakened.

A despatch from London says: A large number of Russian and British submarines are operating in the eastern and southern portions of the Baltic Sea, which is now ice-free. The German steamer Hera, 4,750 tons, was sunk on Thursday morning off Landsort, in the Baltic. Reports conflict as to whether a British or Russian submarine sank the vessel. The Hera left Stockholm on Tuesday to take iron ore to Oskolund, carrying a cargo of 2,000 tons. Her captain was ordered on board the submarine with the ship's papers, and made prisoner. Sufficient time was given the crew to leave the ship. Although the weather was rough, all on board were saved. The sinking of two other German steamships by a submarine, believed to be a Russian, is reported in a Reuters despatch from Stockholm. The steamships were the Kolga, Hamburg for Stockholm, and the Bianca.

BRITAIN'S NEW BEER ONLY KEEPS ONE DAY.

A despatch from London says: The Daily Mail says that the non-alcoholic beer recently approved by the Government has been put on sale in several London saloons and has met with astonishing demand during the hours when the sale of alcoholic drinks is prohibited. One saloon drew forty gallons of the new beer before 11 o'clock on Thursday morning. The trouble is, the Daily Mail adds, that the beer won't keep and the supply must be made fresh daily.

BRITISH BLOCKADE WILL NOT BE RELAXED.

A despatch from London says: Reply to the German suggestion that Great Britain, in response to the change in the German submarine campaign, should modify the food blockade, Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, informed the Associated Press on Thursday there was not the remotest possibility that British economic pressure on the central powers would be relaxed. He said: "We maintain that the blockade is fully legal under international law. Its real character is merely incidental, called forth by German use of submarines, but the rigid enforcement of the blockade is merely an extension of our rights which we had not hitherto found it expedient to use."

37,000 TURK PRISONERS TAKEN BY RUSSIANS.

A despatch from London says: More than 37,000 Turkish troops have been captured by the advancing forces of Grand Duke Nicholas in Asia Minor during the last three weeks. The Russians have also captured vast quantities of munitions, which had been sent from German factories and converted to the Ottoman front by the Russian effort. On every hand the Russian troops as they advance find evidence of Turkish cruelty. The Ottoman soldiers are massacring all Christians. Whole villages are left in flames as the Turks fall back. The Russian soldiers are feeding thousands of refugees, sharing their daily rations with starving women and children.

A despatch from London says: The compulsory bill was introduced by Premier Asquith in the House of Commons on May 2 last. It becomes operative a month after its passage. SON OF LADYSMITH DEFENDER TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Tried to Induce Aberdare Miners to Strike if Rebel Leader Connolly was Executed.

A despatch from London says: James White, son of the late Field Marshal, and formerly a captain in the army, was remanded to custody at Aberdare on Wednesday on the charge of making statements likely to cause disaffection and prejudice in connection with recruiting. The prosecution describes White as a "dangerous character," and claimed that it was able to prove that he went to Aberdare to induce miners to strike if John Connolly, the rebel leader, was executed. Documents found in the possession of the prisoner proved it is charged, that he was consorting with the enemies of Great Britain. White has figured previously in connection with the agitation carried on by Jim Larkin, who organized the street car strike of 1918.

FAIL TO BREAK VERDUN LINE

Germans Make Another Attempt on Hill 304 Front.

A despatch from Paris says: Another attempt was made by the Germans on Thursday afternoon to break through the French line on the Bois d'Avocourt-Hill 304 front, on the west bank of the Meuse. The French trenches were subjected to the usual violent preparatory bombardment before the German infantry left its trenches, but the moment the attack was launched the French fire-curtain was thrown out and the mitrailleuses were brought into action, checking the Germans, apparently with heavy losses before they had reached the French positions. The German artillery is still continuing its bombardment in this sector, indicating a probability that further attacks are to be launched. The French guns are replying.

ALLIES TAKE STEPS TO FEED THE POLES.

A despatch from London says: Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade and Blockade, in an interview on Wednesday night announces that the allies have taken steps to feed the Belgians, Poles and Serbs. "It is unquestionably the duty of Germany to do this," said he, "but as it has been neglected, the allies have undertaken steps, although the task is not obligatory on their part. The German militarists will regard contemptuously the allies' proceedings, but the latter are not prepared, even for military reasons, to see the Poles starved to death by the Germans. We hear of women and children perishing by the wholesale, and even of grown men dropping dead of hunger in the streets."

It is supposed here that the Austrians intend to make a strong attack on the Albanian town of Avlona, which is occupied by the Italians.

THE OFFICER'S LOOKING-GLASS.

What Kind of Officers a Battalion Has By Its Appearance.

"The company or the battalion is the best looking-glass of its officers. In the company and the battalion you see the image of the officers—you see yourselves. When you note a company on the march—black-looking, miserable, dirty, slow, and almost silly in coming to attention, with half a dozen stragglers creeping on behind, and the officers and N.C.O.'s taking no notice—you can tell at once that these are bad officers, and that no discipline and no energy exist there," said a senior officer to a school of young officers "somewhere in France," and reported by the London Times.

"On the contrary, when you see a company marching well closed-up, men with heads erect (even though covered with mud of trenches), and quick and energetic in the movements as they come to the salute—these show good officers, and a well-disciplined company. When you take your men into action, either in ordinary trench warfare or in a surprise attack, all this discipline will repay you and your men themselves a thousandfold.

"Keep up your own energy and that of your men, and maintain the offensive spirit most carefully.

To do this, don't overlook the fact that one of your chief duties is to be always thinking. You have not brains; don't forget to use them. That is what you are an officer for.

You must always be thinking. How can you make the trench or your position wherever it is more secure or more comfortable for the men? Or how can you attack the enemy? Or inflict some blow or loss on him? As soon as the thought has entered your head, put it into execution; issue the necessary orders, and see these energetically carried out. Thus you will keep up the spirit of energy and of the offensive, which are of such immense importance.

All energy is born of thought; therefore remember that to think is one of your great duties.

"Try and carry out these principles, and put the knowledge you have acquired here into execution when you return to your battalion. Do not overstep the fact that you must possess (and show that you possess) decision and resolution in order to instill discipline into your men—merely to insist on obedience, smartness, and compliance with all orders is not sufficient.

"Do not forget that the men are your comrades; and do not overlook the fact that the British soldier has a great soul, and can and does appreciate what courage, honor, patriotism, and self-sacrifice mean.

"Talk to your men often on these great qualities, both in lectures and to individuals personally. You will always find a ready response, which will one day stand you in good stead, and what is more important still, will stand England and the Empire in good stead."

Warning Against Mad Dogs.

The Provincial Board of Health is sending out its annual warning regarding the danger from rabies-infected dogs. The circular gives pointers upon how to detect rabies, and advises that where a person has been bitten the dog be chained up for ten days. In that time if the dog has rabies it will either be worse or will die. At the end of ten days, or before if the dog dies, the head should be sent to the Provincial Laboratory, Queen's Park, where an examination of the brain will be made. Where rabies is found to exist prompt steps will be taken to see that the person bitten is given proper treatment. Killing the dog before the disease has a chance to develop is not advisable, since it cannot be determined definitely whether the animal is infected or not.

Hotelmen Adjusting Things.

Hotel-keepers are beginning to set their houses in order against the day when the bar shall be no more. Hitherto in many cases the profits of the bar helped the quality of the table supplied and the service rendered. When that adjunct disappears travelers will have to make up the deficiency in the shape of higher rates for board and lodging, and already the London, Ont., bonifaces have had the matter up, with the result that in one case a new schedule will go into force on Saturday. Other hotels will sooner or later follow suit, though no doubt some will see an opportunity to maintain or only slightly increase the old tariffs and seek recompense in the exercise of greater economy in management. Things will settle down after conditions have adjusted themselves to a dry Ontario.

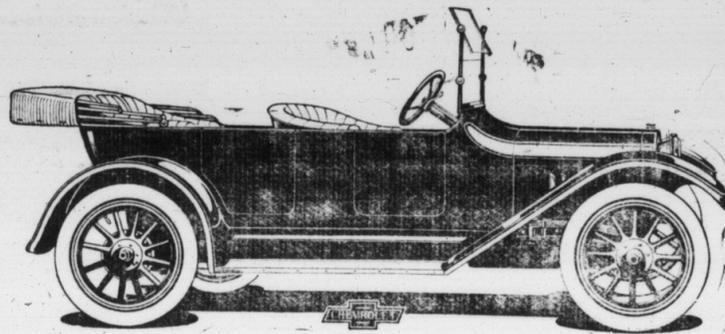

The Late Mrs. Johnson.

Victoria, wife of Hugh D. Johnson, Inspector of Public Schools in West Middlesex, whose death took place on Sunday evening, May 14th, in her 56th year, was a daughter of the late Samuel Laughton, of Ekfrid, and was born in Metcalfe township. When very young her parents moved into Ekfrid, where she resided till she was married to Mr. Johnson in 1882 when they settled in Strathroy. Of this happy marriage six children were born, two of whom died in infancy. She leaves besides her husband two sons and two daughters to mourn her loss. Mrs. F. J. Sadler, of the Collegiate Institute staff, Strathroy; Major Archie L. Johnson, of the 229th Battalion, Moosejaw, Saskatchewan; Mrs. Hugh U. Rorison, of Moose Jaw, and Dr. Kenneth Johnson, of Winnipeg. Mrs. Johnson took a deep interest in providing comforts for the soldiers since the outbreak of the war, and while in health she labored constantly in this work. She was a member of the Strathroy Baptist Church, where she was a devoted worker. Of her it can be truly said that she was a faithful wife, a loving mother, a good neighbor and a consistent Christian.

Richard Ralph, who has been an invalid for thirty years, put an end to his life at his home near Bothwell by thrusting the muzzle of a 22-calibre rifle down his throat and pulling the trigger. For thirty years Ralph had lived with a broken back, resulting from a log rolling over him when he was in his teens.

The Proven Asthma Remedy. Since asthma existed there has been no lack of much heralded remedies, but they have proved short lived and worthless. The ever-growing reputation of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has given it a place in the field of medicine which no other can approach. It has never been pushed by sensational methods, but has simply gone on effecting relief and making new converts.

CHEVROLET

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Public:—

The first of these popular cars was put on the market June 1st, 1916, after 3 years' preparation.

For 1917 the company is building 194,000 cars. It is the owner-driver that is causing this to be, for the Chevrolet Co. never spends a dollar in advertising.

If you are going to be an owner of some car soon it is a safe bet that you lie awake at nights sometimes and consider this car and its astonishingly low gasoline consumption and, lastly, your wallet.

Buy it and keep out of garages. It was designed to make the latter possible.

Tested out a new stiff car a few days ago—95 miles on 3 gallons. This is just one of many cases.

Come on. It's your move.

There are no perforated burner tubes to warp, bulge or become clogged with soot. You can bake a loaf of bread or broil a steak far better than with a coal range because the flame is continuously steady. The New Perfection gives perfect combustion and greatest economy.

A Tenderfoot's Wooing

By CLIVE PHILLIPS WOLLEY
(Author of "Gold, Gold in Cariboo," Etc.)

Five minutes later when he met his wife downstairs, he asked whether she had found anything of the old woman.

"Yes, I made up quite a bundle for her; a warm petticoat and all sorts of thick things, Kitty's and mine; but the silly old thing has gone without them."

Rolt looked grave. "Oh, you need not frown, Dick. We were rather long, I know, but it is so hard to decide what one really has done with, and if the old woman didn't get her clothes to-day, she will get them next week when she comes to give the house its monthly scrubbing."

Rolt looked over the darkening landscape. The November day was drawing rapidly to a close, and he knew that old Mary had several miles to trudge back to her rancherie, but it was curious that she had not waited. He could see the trail which led to the gulch through which ran Mary's road home, but there was no sign of Mary. Old as she was she must have moved quickly to have gained the shelter of the gulch already, or she could not have waited long for those clothes.

A question which Rolt wanted to ask was suppressed before it left his lips. Instead he asked his wife how long it was since old Mary had given the house one of her "thorough scrubbing."

"More than a month, I'm afraid, but you know they have all been away from the rancherie. Why? Do any of the rooms want scrubbing—very badly, old man?"

"Oh, no not a bit. I make a good deal of mess with my boots in the bath room, but you and Kitty look after the top floor, don't you, little woman. It is always as clean as a new pin in spite of my efforts to the contrary."

"What a delightful old humbug you are, Dick, where I am concerned," she said fondly. "I did not know that you would miss old Mary's ministrations. She cleans the whole house once a month, upstairs and down, but we ought to have kept up appearances at any rate in her absence. I will go and see to it at once."

This was more than Rolt had bargained for. He had obtained the information he wanted without alarming her, but by suggesting a fault where he knew none existed.

However, he followed his wife to the room, and was relieved to be shown all sorts of rick and disorder, which he himself would never have noticed, but no trace could be found of that for which he was looking.

Nothing had been touched; nothing that he could think of was missing. Even that damp outline on the boards had dried off now. He wished that he had examined it more carefully, but, after all, it could not have been old Mary in his room, though she apparently did know the way to it.

He paused for a long minute, and went over everything carefully with his eye. By George! his Winchester had gone. No, it hadn't. There it was behind his oilskin, and there was absolutely nothing else which she could have wanted.

That face peering around the doorway must have been a sick man's fancy.

and quiet, Mary Rolt had dinner served that night for the four of them in the bedroom, busying herself in making the pretty place as vivid a contrast as possible to the grim world outside.

A wood fire glowed merrily on the wide hearth, and the light of it was reflected by the silver and glass that nestled cozily in the folds of the rose-colored cretonne hanging.

"Do you want all the blinds drawn, Frank?" she asked with her hand on the last of them.

"Not unless you wish it."

"Well, then, I'll leave this one undrawn. I always smuggle into bed more cozily when I can peep out into a bitter night like that. Can you see down the valley from where you lie without moving? A peep at it will make the fire feel warmer and the room more homelike."

"It always feels homelike where you are, Mrs. Rolt."

She turned to him with a laugh, and then, turning to Kitty, who had just entered the room, bade her be quick with the dinner.

"And see, my girl," she added, "that is not the way to lay a table, and then with a few deft touches rearranged some of the silver."

Kitty for the nonce had donned cap and apron, and Anstruther was not the first to discover more charm and coquetry in a maid's cap than in her mistress's toilette.

"Does the family expect to be waited on or do it stretch?" she asked saucily.

"Where I was last, the family had to be waited on when it had a party, but when it was by itself it stretched like this," and reaching across the table she possessed herself of a salt cellar.

"You went as a lady-help, I suppose," retorted Mrs. Rolt severely, "all lady and no help, like Miss Moran."

"What was her story?" asked Anstruther.

"Oh, she came out to help the poor dear boys, her brothers. They could not afford to hire any help, and just pigged until she came. At the end of a fortnight their sister had discovered exactly ninety-nine different things, each of which was the only thing she never could do," and finally, guessing who it was who cleaned the boots, she put her head outside her bedroom door every night.

"And? Oh, and she married, of course, and her brothers do just as they did whilst she was with them, except that her husband cleans her boots now."

But Anstruther was not listening to Mrs. Rolt's libel on lady helps. Instead, he was gazing intently through the uncertain window at the foot of his bed, to which the others had their back turned.

"Who would be camping down the valley to-night, Mrs. Rolt?" he asked.

"In the hay meadows? No one."

"Is not that a fire? Surely, my eyes are not playing me false again?"

The Boss turned lazily in his chair.

"Yes, that is a fire sure enough. There are two of them. Do you see that little one just beyond the first?"

Suddenly Rolt's face changed. He sprang to the window, took one searching glance down the valley, and then turned sharply to his wife, his face working with some feeling which he strove to control.

"Mary, dear, I want to speak to you for a moment. Will you excuse us, Frank?" and laying his hand on Kitty's shoulder as he passed, he whispered, "Keep him quiet whatever happens. I rely on you," and then he followed his wife from the room.

Outside the door his manner changed. "It's our stacks, little woman. Those devils are firing our winter feed. Keep cool and run now and tell the men in the dining-room. I'm off to the mess house to get the half-breed. Keep your heart up; we'll stop them before they can do much damage."

He was running downstairs as he spoke, and snatched a Winchester from its rack as he passed out of the hall.

Mary Rolt's heart sank as she saw him snatch the rifle, but she did his bidding as he would have had her do it, with the utmost coolness, and when the men had rushed out after their master, she went back to the sick-room. There was no need for any explanation there.

Through the uncertain window a glare of red light proclaimed the work that was on hand even if the noise of saddling up and the hurrying of hoofs beneath the window and the short sharp sentences of the mounting men had not told the tale.

meadow of about a thousand acres in a long parallelogram and down the middle of it ran a chain of hay stacks, each fenced in, the feed upon which depended the safety of Rolt's stock if a hard winter should come.

There are years, many of them, luckily, in which these stacks need not be touched. In an open winter the cattle are carried without having resort to the store laid up for a hard spell, and in consequence some men trust to luck and keep little or no reserve of hay.

The men who fail in the cattle business. Sooner or later a deep snow comes; so keep that the cattle cannot paw it away to get at the grass beneath and then the men who have not provided against such times lose every head of stock.

It means ruin to the improvident, but Dick Rolt was not such a fool as to take any chances where the safety of his cattle was concerned. Three years' hay was stacked in the thousand acres, and if none of it should be used the next year's crop would be cut and stacked just the same.

The sight which met the eyes of those who watched at the window would have been weirdly beautiful if the meaning of it had not been so hideous. The night was one which not only precluded any possibility of accidental ignition, but made it difficult to understand the rapidly with which the stack after stack burst into flames.

The heavy Scotch mist with which the valley was filled—a freezing mist, which was almost rain—was crimson now.

Over twenty stacks, beginning with the one nearest to the ranch house, were in flames, one here and there which had failed to ignite standing out back and exaggerated in size, in the fierce light made by its fellows, whilst the roar of the burning could be heard where the watchers stood.

Down in the middle of the valley ran a chain of red fire. Whirls of the walls of it were still darkness made darker by contrast, and in this, imagination could paint the twelve or fourteen men who rode with their weapons in their hands and murder in their hearts.

Once or twice a figure was seen near the farthest of the stacks, thrown out in bold relief for a moment as the devil's work succeeded and the flames took hold, but though Mary Rolt held her breath to listen, there came no rattle of fire arms.

"Twenty-three, Mary, but it is ten minutes since the last blazed up."

"Stop where you are, Kitty. Mr. Anstruther, for God's sake, don't try to move. You can't help now," was Mrs. Rolt's only answer, and then she ran through her husband's bathroom and they heard her taking the stairs in headlong flight.

"Phon, oh Phon," they heard her call, "bar the kitchen window, quick! Indians come out your throat," and whilst she spoke they heard her turning the keys in the main doors and putting up the great bars.

"Run to her, Kitty, and help her. I shall be all right."

"Will you swear to keep till, Frank?"

"I swear, Run, dear."

The girl obeyed him, and a few moments later Mrs. Rolt, Kitty, and the frightened Chinese cook re-entered the room.

"They can't get in now unless they burst the doors," sobbed Mrs. Rolt, breathless with her exertions. "Watch that back door, Kitty, whilst I call the men," and she ran to her husband's room, again for the revolver which hung there.

Tearing away the curtains, and throwing the little window open, she peered out, but the light inside was too bright. She could see nothing.

"Put the lamp out, Kitty," she called, and as the light went out in obedience to her order, she saw dimly something moving in the shadow of a house where the stacks were kept.

The Farm

From Stall to Pasture.

Regularity is one of the important rules in a successful dairy stable. The aim is to feed the same kind of feed, at the same hour each day. If a change of feed is made, it is done gradually, as a sudden change tends to affect the animal system and decreases the flow of milk. Milking must also be done at a certain time each day, and by the same person. Any deviation from the accustomed time is readily noticed when the milk is placed on the scales. If it is necessary for the dairyman, who has a herd under test, to closely follow a schedule in order to get the most from his cows, it is equally important that the same regularity be given the ordinary herd in order that they may produce to their maximum. In a few weeks a decided and in many cases a sudden change will be made in the feed of most herds. From dry fodder to fresh, green grass in a day is sufficient to disturb the best bovine digestive system.

It is a mistake to turn stock to pasture in the spring before the grass has attained considerable growth. The young, immature grass contains a large amount of water, and a considerable quantity must be consumed in order that the animal may receive sufficient dry matter, or food nutrients, to sustain the body and accomplish the regular amount of work in the form of producing milk. Not only is too much of the "washy" grass injurious to the animal, but the pastures are kept cropped short and never supply the amount of feed through the season that they would have had, the grass been given a chance to get a start in the spring. The effect of soft grass is not noticed on young stock, but is plainly shown by the milk cow. At first the flow is slightly decreased, but as she becomes accustomed to her new ration, and the grass becomes more mature, a favorable influence is exerted upon both the quantity and quality of the milk. When the animals have an opportunity of consuming a large quantity of grass without too much exertion, they obtain a rational gain in nutritive value to the grain. The fresh grass is also more digestible than dry fodder or cereal concentrates.

To Balance the Ration.

Fresh grass contains a higher percentage of protein than older grass. It is not a balanced ration, and for economical feeding some dry roughage or concentrates should be fed the first week or two that cows are on grass. By the middle of June a good clover or meadow grass pasture will provide a ration that will permit a cow to do her best. Analysis of red clover cut at certain dates show that the amount of protein and mineral substance is greatest in the young plant, but gradually decreases, and carbohydrates and fibre increase as the plant matures. This points to the fact that feeds to supplement new grass should be of a carbonaceous nature in order to balance the ration, but as the summer advances and pasture become drier, feeds that will bolster up the protein side are necessary.

The change from the comparatively dry feed of winter to the succulent grass should be made by degrees. Give the cow her regular feed of dry fodder before turning her out on grass the first few days. Once the cow secures a good feed of grass it is well to avoid feeding legume hay or bran, as these feeds are rich in the same substance that fresh grass contains. Something is required that is rich in carbohydrates in order to balance the ration. When the season opens up warm, grass soon becomes firm, and may be considered a perfect feed in itself. So long as there is sufficient of this kind of pasture, supplementary feeds are not required. As the season advances, grass becomes more or less mature and is frequently rather short. It is then a little heavy on the carbohydrate side of the ration, and additional feeds should be of a protein nature.

Divide the Pasture Fields.

Cows do better if given a frequent change of pasture. It is a mistake to allow grass to be too closely cropped, although it is difficult to avoid in a dry season. A ten-acre field, divided into two fresh grass lots, and cows pastured on it week about will give much better results than the same area with the cows on it continually. By use of a temporary fence the pasture field could be divided in order to give the grass every chance.

Early in the season the nights are usually chilly and the ground damp. Both these conditions have a detrimental effect on the animal system as well as on the udder. In order to run no risk of cows becoming disabled, it is a good plan to stable them at night for the first week or two and also on wet nights during the summer. This may entail a little more work, but a cow's life may be saved by it. Extreme changes should be avoided if possible. If the cows are kept in the stable in the spring until there is good picking in the pasture field, the increased amount of feed resulting from giving the grass a chance will amply repay for the extra work of feeding of dry fodder in the stable.—Farmer's Advocate.

Successful Calf-Raising.

More attention should be paid to the babyhood of the cow. Many cows are ruined by being stunted when in the calf period through lack of proper feed and care which hinder their development. This is in evidence in many parts of our country. The undeveloped cow is more subject to disease, and from this class we get the great number of "boarders." The calf should be well fed, new milk at first, gradually turning to skim at about three weeks old. The calf should be kept in a growing condition so that full development at maturity may be insured. The feeder should watch carefully and see that the calf will not take coarse, the bane of the dairy cattle raiser. This is usually caused by overfeeding. Milk should be fed to the young calf three times a day. As the calf grows the skim milk ration should be increased, and after each feed of milk a small portion of meal should be given. When the heifer is six or seven months old the task becomes easier, as she then can handle and assimilate coarser foods as the digestive organ develops. From this time on she should be kept thrifty, but not fat. When the heifer should drop the first calf depends on her breed, size and development. Some claim that early breeding develops the milking propensities of the heifer. Where such is practiced on 18 to 20 months should elapse before the second lactation period to allow for growth and development. The cow milking a large amount of milk will be hard as any horse and must be well fed and cared for. The rearing of the calf under these conditions, along with skilful feeding and good care, will improve a very mediocre herd into a fine herd of producers.—Neil Sanger in Farm and Dairy.

Treating Seed Oats for Smut.

Last season was particularly favorable to smut in the eastern part of Canada, resulting in a great increase of loss from this source. The grain crop will also be worse infected than usual, hence farmers should treat their seed oats very carefully this spring. A small expenditure in time and money may, in this way, increase the yield per acre by five to fifteen bushels.

The prevention of smut in oats is as follows: On the evening before the seed oat crop to be sown, prepare a solution of formaldehyde (formalin) 1 pint to 40 gallons of water. Spread the oats five inches deep on the barn floor and sprinkle one gallon of the solution to each bushel. Shovel over thoroughly, and cover the pile completely with the oat sacks, blankets, etc. The following morning spread the pile out to dry. Much of the moisture will have been absorbed by the grain hence the seeder should be regulated to allow for the swelling of the seed.—Seed Branch, Ottawa.

Fire Waste.

The annual average fire loss in Canada for the past three years has been $35,000,000. Add the cost of insurance protection in excess of the losses paid, and the cost of maintaining waterworks and private fire protection, another total annual cost will aggregate over $61,000,000. These are colossal figures, and when you add to them the cost of fire waste in the United States, it makes a grand aggregate of $250,000,000 a year in the United States and Canada.

POULTRY

Mate Up the Strongest Birds.

Poultry-raising is considered only a side-line on most farms, but there is no reason why a side-line should not be made profitable as possible. There are good, better and best birds in every flock, but eggs are saved promiscuously from the entire flock for hatching purposes. The bird with a poor constitution that has never been noted for laying heavily when eggs are a high price, is permitted to propagate its kind as well as the strong, robust bird which has been a producer all winter. Naturally the poultryman prefers his best birds, but if like tends to produce like it is impossible to improve the flock unless a selection is made at breeding time. On the average farm possibly one hundred and fifty eggs are required for hatching purposes during the season. This number could easily be supplied by ten or a dozen birds in the time required. Instead of buying two or three cockerels to put with the entire flock, purchase one good male bird to mate with a pen of the choicest females, and use the eggs from these birds to produce the next year's flock. The remainder of the flock could be used for producing eggs for market purposes. Raising a flock from selected birds every year will materially improve the birds' appearance and increase their value. Selection is of paramount importance in working toward profitable poultry breeding. Yearling hens mated with a cockerel will usually give a higher percentage of fertile eggs than will pullets which have been laying heavily all winter. An endeavor should be made to have all chicks hatched by the middle of May. Pullets hatched during the latter part of April or the first of May should be developed sufficiently to commence laying in the early fall.

It is rather a difficult matter to select the most productive hen by her appearance. Very often it is not the most showy bird that is the heaviest producer. By trap-nesting is the only accurate way of picking out the birds that lays the most eggs, where trap-nests are not used a square-built, strong-framed bird, showing good constitution, that is first to leave the roost in the morning and last to go to roost at night with a full crop, is the hen that usually pays her way. By paying close attention for a few days it is possible to pick out fairly accurately the hens for the mating pen. With the white-lobed and yellow-shanked breeds it is usually believed that the brighter the color the better the bird. However, it is claimed by some poultrymen that these birds are not always the best layers. The color of the lobes or shanks, is decreased with the increased number of eggs laid, owing to the yolk of the egg absorbing the pigment matter. If this is the case the bird with poorly-colored ear-lobes and shanks in the spring would be counted the best layer. Endeavor to pick out the best birds and mate them rather than save eggs from the entire flock for hatching purposes.—Farmer's Advocate.

Sitting Hens.

In all probability it is the sitting hen that suffers most from lice and mites, though sick hens have much the same trouble. Inactivity on the part of the hens means a great increase in the number of the lice at all times, and offers the best opportunity for the attack of mites. Many sitting hens are literally driven from their nest by these pests, and it is not a rare thing to find that the hen has been killed by the mites.

Not only is the sitting hen inactive, but the nest made for her is very commonly placed in dark recesses where she will be less likely to be disturbed by other hens or by the keeper, hence she is placed under conditions best suited for the mites to work, not only during the night but much of the day. A close examination of the nests may reveal swarms of these mites well filled with the blood of the hen that was covered or too far away from the direct sunlight. In order to guard against this it is well to prepare for such emergencies, painting the nest boxes with carbolicum late in the winter or in early spring, giving time for them to dry thoroughly before they are to be used, by using clean nesting material, by placing the nests where some sunlight will reach them, and if covering is needed, wire will be found preferable to board.

In case the hen has been treated not long before sitting with mercurial ointment, no further treatment may be necessary, but if large numbers of lice are found on the hen, use the ointment sparingly so as to avoid any excess that would grease the eggs, as this might injure the developing embryo within by cutting off the supply of oxygen coming through the pores of the shell.

If dusting is practised, it will be found necessary to repeat the application if the numbers are to be reduced, hence further disturbance with more danger of broken eggs will occur.—Storrs Experiment Station.

About the House

Useful Hints and General Information for the Busy Housewife

Dainty Dishes.

Strawberry Tarts.—Roll pie dough one-eighth inch thick and cut into rounds of correct size to cover inverted circular tins. Cover tins with dough, prick several times with fork and bake until delicate brown. Fill with fresh strawberries cooked in rich syrup, or other desired fruit.

Lamb Chops With Peppers.—Two pounds lamb chops, three tablespoons butter, two small onions, two green peppers, one cup canned tomato, one and one-half cups stock, one teaspoon curry powder, one and one-half tablespoons flour, salt and pepper. Fry minced onions and chopped peppers in butter until tender. Add tomatoes, stock and seasoning and thicken with flour. Moisten with a little cold water. Boil chops slightly, season, lay them in baking dish, pour sauce over and bake until tender in hot oven.

Cream of Asparagus.—Wash bunch of asparagus, removing and reserving tips, and cutting rest into small pieces. Pour over cut pieces three pints boiling water, add one cut stalk of celery, spray of parsley, one chopped onion and teaspoon salt. Cook thirty minutes, run through sieve, return to saucepan and let come to boil. Beat into it yolks of three eggs and one cup of cream. Cook tips separately, press through sieve, add three tablespoons cream, pinch of salt and well-beaten whites of three eggs. Pour this over soup mixture, place in oven to brown and serve.

Strawberry Sponge.—One tablespoon granulated gelatin, four tablespoons cold water, six tablespoons boiling water, three egg whites, one and one-fourth cups sugar, two tablespoons lemon juice, one cup mashed strawberries and juice. Soften gelatin in cold water, add hot water and set over steam until dissolved. Add sugar and lemon juice and, when cooled, whip berries. Set in ice water and beat occasionally until it begins to solidify, add stiffly beaten egg whites and whip until almost stiff. Turn into mould wet with cold water, let chill until solid and garnish with sweetened whipped cream and strawberry halves.

Stuffed Roast Fowl.—Three or four pounds fowl, three cups of bread-crumbs, one-third cup boiling water, salt, pepper, sage and flour for dressing. Clean, singe and stuff fowl as for roast chicken, with butter, and place on rack of muffled rings in saucepan containing enough water to cover rack or fowl. Sage dressing may be used, if desired. Cover saucepan closely and steam fowl about two hours, or until tender. Be careful water does not evaporate. When fowl is tender, remove from saucepan, dredge with flour, place in dripping pan and roast in oven until brown, having enough water in pan to baste frequently while broiling.

Scum Dressing.—One large leaf of stale bread, two tablespoons melted butter, one scant teaspoon salt, one teaspoon finely powdered sage, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, two tablespoons finely minced onion (optional), two eggs and water as needed. Remove crumb from bread and cut bread into cubes, mixing on enough cold water to moisten well. After a few moments, take up small handfuls and press dry, pick apart into light, fluffy mass and add all seasonings. Heat butter in skillet, add onion and cook (don't brown), add well-beaten egg to bread mix with onions and butter, toss all about in skillet until heated and free from superfluous moisture. Then fill cavity of fowl lightly, leaving plenty of room for dressing to expand.

Italian Meat Balls.—Press two pounds round steak and two ounces of beef and through food chopper, add one-half cup of bread crumbs, two beaten eggs, one tablespoon grated onion, one teaspoon salt and sixteenth teaspoon pepper. Mix thoroughly and form into small balls. Put one can tomatoes in stew pan, add one-half cup water, one slice onion, one green pepper cut in small pieces, three cloves, bit of bay leaf, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon sugar and one teaspoon salt, let simmer half an hour and pour through sieve. Pour sauce into casserole, heat to boiling point, add meat balls cover and let cook one hour. Place meat balls on heated plate, surround with cooked spaghetti, pour sauce over whole and sprinkle with grated parmesan cheese.

Good Salads.

Celery and Walnut Salad.—Wash and clean celery. Cut into small pieces one-third the quantity of English walnut meat broken in two, and enough mayonnaise to moisten well. Garnish with lettuce.

Egg Salad.—Cut hard-boiled eggs into thick slices or into quarters. Use a sharp knife, so the cuts will be clean. Arrange each portion on a leaf of lettuce partly covered with mayonnaise and arrange the lettuce in a circle on a flat dish, the stem of the leaf toward the center of the dish. Place a few fillies of the valley or tomatoes in the middle.

Spring Salad.—Peel, chill and slice tomatoes. When ready to serve, cover each slice with thinly sliced new onions and radishes cut in same way to give crispness to each mouthful. Instead of thin slices of radishes, just as thin slices of kohlrabi may be used. Serve with French dressing or mayonnaise in French dressing and serve with mayonnaise.

Cauliflower Salad.—Wash well in cold water. Boil in plenty of salt water until the vegetable is soft. Drain off the water. Break the vegetable into flowerets, season with salt, pepper and a little vinegar and oil. Pile them in a pyramid on a dish and pour over them a white mayonnaise. Arrange around the base a border of carrots or beets, cut into dice or fancy shapes, to give a line of color. Place a floweret of cauliflower on the top.

Banana Salad.—One head lettuce, six ripe bananas, one cup diced pineapple, one-half cup mayonnaise mixed with one-fourth cup whipped cream, berries or cherries to garnish. Arrange light, crisp lettuce leaves on individual plates. Place one banana, with peel removed, in center of each plate and with sharp knife slice it into round slices, without separating pieces. Cover with spoonful of pineapple and generous spoonful of cream mayonnaise. Garnish and serve cold.

Bird's-Nest Salad.—Rub a little green coloring paste into cream cheese, giving it a delicate color like a bird's egg. Roll it into balls the size of bird's eggs, using the back or smooth side of butter pat. Arrange on a flat dish some well-crimped lettuce leaves. Group them to look like nests, moisten them well with French dressing and place five of the cheese balls in each nest of leaves. The cheese balls may be varied by flecking them with black, white or red pepper. If preferred, the nests may be breaded with lettuce leaves.

Useful Hints.

If the leisurely meal of the family is supper, it is a good idea to use the best china and linen for that time.

If the custard in your pies shrinks, the oven has been too hot. The custard should not boil in the oven.

Olives, celery and cold macaroni on lettuce leaves make a good salad.

Any soft wood may be used for a cedar chest if the inside is thoroughly oiled with oil of cedar.

Save the liquor in which meat has been boiled and use it for the foundation of vegetable soup.

Bread pudding with prunes in it can be served with a lemon sauce, and the whole family will relish it.

Before popping corn put in a sieve and dash cold water over it. The kernels will be large and flaky.

Milk and cream stains should not have hot water put on them. Wash them out in cold water, followed by soap and water.

If your slippers do not cling to your heels while dancing, gum a tiny bit of velveteen and place it inside the back of each heel.

When garments of any kind are washed in gasoline, add a few drops of oil of cedar. The disagreeable odor will not be noticed.

To stretch kid gloves when new, place them between the folds of a damp towel for almost one hour before they are put to wear.

Add a pinch of cream of tartar to the whites of eggs when they are half beaten. This keeps them from falling before being used.

KING HAS 2,000 CANES.

Collection Includes One Cut From Horn of Rhinoceros.

The inclusion of a number of walking sticks which have belonged to famous men in the British Red Cross fund sale held not long ago in London is a reminder of the interesting collections which have been formed. King George perhaps has the most notable collection. His Majesty possesses no fewer than 2,000 walking sticks, which once belonged to his father, who, like many famous men, regarded his stick almost as a friend, and was rarely seen without one.

His favorite was regularly carried by Queen Victoria. This remarkable stick was fashioned from a branch of the Bosobel oak which once hid Charles II. when escaping from Cromwell's soldiers. Queen Victoria had it altered somewhat, and a little idol from Serpentina was inserted as a knob.

Another notable walking stick of the royal collection, which also belonged to the late King Edward, is cut from the single horn of a white rhinoceros, a species now extinct, from which the heraldic unicorn is supposed to have originated. This horn stick was given more than 40 years ago by a Kaffir chief to Louis Solomon, a South African pioneer, and enclosed in a case of native bamboo, was presented to King Edward when he opened the South African exhibition of 1907.

EX-CHANCELLOR VON BUELOW

WILL PROBABLY BE ASKED TO SAVE GERMANY.

Who Held Kaiser and Militarists in Check, May Seek Terms From Allies.

An important event which the present fighting at Verdun is expected to decide is the question of the return to power of Prince von Buelow, who, according to one recent report, has returned to Berlin. He has been absent from Germany almost all the time since the beginning of the war, literally living in semi-exile in Switzerland.

Even regardless of the outcome of this phase of the great struggle, it is believed by many to be certain that the hour is imminent for the Prince to resume the Imperial Chancellorship.

In well informed circles no doubt is entertained that Prince von Buelow will be at the head of affairs when the day for making peace is at hand. He has had no part in any of the acrimonious controversial questions, in the ruthless methods of applying submarine warfare or in the throwing of bombs from Zeppelins on women and children. He will return, as it were, with a clean slate, as a man who has been absent, and who, on coming back, can undertake to some extent the role of mediator between his own country and those it has tried in vain to ruin.

As a diversion of public sentiment in Germany, when it is realized that the hope of reopening a road to Paris or that the rolling up of the French line is impossible of accomplishment, it is said that even the great general staff will welcome the return of Prince von Buelow. And yet between Prince von Buelow and the great general staff no love certainly has been lost.

The Prince when at the head of the German Administration was accused by the military party of being too radical of weakening the obedience of the people to the State, as represented by the army, and of allowing democratic and even Socialistic ideas to spread.

The middle classes now recall that the Prince was the great promoter of German industries and the greatest single factor in developing German commerce. The Prince has begun to loom up like a savior to whom the nation may turn in its distress and perplexity. No other person in Germany of conspicuous eminence is in a position to receive any consideration from the entente Governments.

Germany Needs Him. In connection with the prospective return of Prince von Buelow, a prominent personage in Switzerland, whose name is withheld, is quoted in the Paris Journal as saying:

"Prince von Buelow is in retirement simply because he is reserving himself for a great task. He is the only political hope of modern Germany. It was he who started the Liberal empire in spite of all opposition, and it was he who brought about a new era for the empire by starting a line of policy which would have created a greater Germany, but which the incapacity of violent leaders of the military party upset in a few weeks.

"The empire feels itself already so bruised by the war that it wishes to appeal to its old physician of the days of its prosperity. And if the whole constitution should be shaken as a result of the war and those who have been the conspicuous figures at the head of the State should be liable to be cast aside who better than the great leader of prosperous Germany could come forward to support an unpopular throne or to reconstruct the edifice from the debris that he will find on hand?"

Von Buelow became Imperial Chancellor in 1900 and entered on a career which is to-day recognized as having been prolific of benefit for the empire. His aim was to create a great industrial and commercial Germany and to him is to be attributed an extraordinary measure of the credit due for the amazing progress which Germany made in the decade during which he was Chancellor.

In his efforts for the material benefit of the Empire Prince von Buelow had the co-operation of Emperor William, but he utilized the Emperor and did not allow himself to be the instrument of the latter.

No other Chancellor had ever dared openly to oppose the Imperial methods. Not even Bismarck in his most powerful days would have dared, it is believed, to deal with his Imperial Majesty as did Prince von Buelow.

Checked the Kaiser. Emperor William sent some indiscreet telegrams, a notable one being to President Kruger, and suddenly it was learned that the Emperor's telegrams were being counter-signed by Prince von Buelow—a humiliating check, the purpose of which was taken in European capitals to be a guarantee of German discretion and good sense in public acts in the future.

The Emperor uttered a rash statement about the "yellow peril," which proved highly offensive to the Japanese, and Prince von Buelow in September, 1905, made a public statement rectifying the matter. For every single open misdeed which he committed the Kaiser found himself openly taken to task by his Chancellor.

In 1907 the latter referred in his Reichstag speech to the "Court Camarilla" and in the following year he publicly referred to the blazing indiscretion of the Kaiser's letter to Lord Tweedmouth.

A few months later occurred the crowning indiscretion, the interview given by the Kaiser for publication in an English newspaper. Prince von Buelow immediately offered his resignation.

On retiring he proposed Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg as his successor and the latter was made Chancellor. The Government, however, soon passed out of his hands to a considerable extent, as successive Ministers of Foreign Affairs usurped the administrative position which Prince von Buelow had held.

When the Prince retired he chose Rome as his future home, his wife being an Italian princess. They selected the palace known as Villa Malta and renamed it Villa of the Roses.

THE FASHIONS

The Fluffy Petticoat.

There is something particularly appealing to the dainty, well-groomed woman, about ribbon-trimmed, befrilled petticoats; they cannot be banished for long from the wardrobe. This season the petticoat has returned in all its old-time fluffiness to keep our airy, bouffant frocks in countenance.

Paris sends us, of course, the daintiest possible of linen, hand-embroidered, lace-trimmed, ribbon-banded novelties, many of them so extremely fascinating that one is tempted to wear the sheerest of organdy, chiffon or Georgette frocks in order that their beauty may be shown. Many of these petticoats are boned, corded or wired, in order that the frocks, under which they are worn, may have the proper swing. For the dance there are net and taffeta creations, made with tulle upon tulle, in rose-like formation, the edges of the petticoat ruffles pinked or piped. For the ordinary afternoon frock, the slip is favored, of net and organdy, lace and ribbon-trimmed. The bodice of the slip is usually a straight, wide band of ribbon, lace, or a dainty embroidery flouncing, held in place with shoulder straps of ribbon or lace. It is not unusual to see a frilly petticoat of dark blue or red taffeta, the ruf-

Awning Stripes in a Morning Dress. One of the novelties of the season is the breakfast set consisting of coat, petticoat and bodice cap. The coat and skirt illustrated here show a particularly good combination; the band of moire ribbon held over the shoulders by narrow pink ribbons. The upper edge of the bodice is effectively trimmed with small silk rosebuds.

coats is developed in pongee, and the skirt is of taffeta, banded in the same taffeta, the bands edged with narrow Valenciennes lace. The deep strap pockets on the coat give it the appearance of a sport garment. A charming little cap of net and ribbon comes about the set most attractively. Many of these sets are developed in plain materials, voile, wash satin, lawn and the like, and are trimmed with bands, collars, cuffs, and pockets of the charmingly colored cretonne. A cap banded in cretonne is practical and becoming.

Novel Ideas in Negligees.

Negligees and petticoats for the June bride are dainty and fascinating to a degree. The negligees are simple and most becoming. Chiffon or crepe Georgette are the materials most favored for these airy garments, destined for the bride or the woman who has time to luxuriate in their charm. Pale blue, with touches of gold or yellow; rose pink, with a touch of orchid at girdle or throat; white, with pale green, and similar combinations selected to harmonize with eyes and hair. It is not unusual to find the negligee of chiffon, belted with a crush girdle of roses, or other artificial flowers; it is an attractive and artistic notion. The combining of several tones in the girdle, which is usually of net or chiffon, is another pretty way of introducing interesting combinations; for instance, a pale pink negligee is girdled with a wide sash, having long ends of several folds of vari-colored net or maline, in pink, blue, orchid and similar French colorings.

Bayadere Striped Skirt.

For sports and morning wear, the awning striped materials, linens, ducks, and canvas weaves are particularly well liked. The stripes may run up and down, or around the figure as shown here. This skirt is fashioned of linen, combining several of the vivid colors now modish, and is worn with a shirt blouse of voile with veal of the linen. The square neck is a becoming feature. Among the simple waist models of the summer are many with the outside peplum. These are of voile, organdy or Georgette, in pink, blue, pale green and similar shades, intended for wear with skirts of black taffeta or with white and colored wash skirts. Pongee is also favored for these outside blouses. Tiny buttons, steel, gilt or gunmetal, and a belt of black or colored ribbon are about the only trimming for these unless it be a second collar of a contrasting shade.

Collars and cuffs are interesting details of blouses; the cuffs usually fit tightly about the wrist, flaring becomingly over the hand. The open throat is of course the modish arrangement for summer, although most of the shirt-waists and other blouses are made with the adjustable collar which may be worn high or low, as fancied.

2,000 GIRL BUS CONDUCTORS.

Large Number Now Employed By London Company.

The London General Omnibus Company have now 300 young women as "conductresses" on their vehicles or in training, but before long it is expected that at least 1,000 will be required. Even that may not exhaust the demand, for there are some 1,400 conductors liable to be called up in the later married groups. In that event the company will require something like 2,000 young women to take the places of the men. Most of the girls had previously been in domestic service. Their training occupies on an average fourteen days, and during that period they receive a food allowance of two shillings a day. When they start on their duties they receive the male conductor's minimum wage, which averages about £2 a week.

Aim of Charity.

"Sweet charity is always gratefully received."

"I don't know about that. Once in London I saw a lovely lady throw a penny to a street beggar."

"And wasn't he pleased?"

"Well, he wasn't so blooming pleased. You see, it was one of those English pennies, and it hit him in the eye."

Accidentally Sarcastic.

Mistress—Bridget, I told you twice to have muffins for breakfast. Have you no intellect?

Bridget—No, mum; there's none in the house.

HEALTH

Rest Cure.

When Dr. Weir Mitchell introduced his "rest-cure" treatment, he used to say that he feared lest it should be over-used or wrongly used rather than not used enough. It is very easy to prescribe rest, and so, when a case shows itself obstinate to other methods of treatment, the physician is tempted to try the rest cure—and sometimes to let it go on too long—without giving sufficient thought to the subtle psychological effects that may be involved.

First of all, in presenting the rest treatment, the physician must understand his patient's disposition and character as well as his physical symptoms. If the patient is a lazy and sluggish person, most of whose symptoms can be traced to a slothful body and an inactive brain, the best prescription is a five-mile walk every day, with less food and more fresh air. A rest cure has often resulted in turning such a patient into a bed-ridden or a house-bound invalid.

There are persons who are constantly talking of their need of a rest cure. As a rule, they are not the ones who do need it; the poor creatures who really ought to take a rest cure are too hard to work to talk or even to think much about it. Some people there are who work altogether too hard, and some there are who do not work hard enough to keep well. It is the first class who benefit by a properly conducted rest cure.

It is a mistake to think that they rest it only in a sanatorium, under expensive conditions. Two sensible members of the same household are all that is needed, one to take the treatment and one to superintend it, and keep the patient quiet and undisturbed. The patient should have the most cheerful and best-ventilated room in the house. A very simple but palatable diet list must be decided on, and friends must be warned to stay away.

In ordinary cases, if you begin with a complete rest cure, in which the patient sees no callers and does not even read or write, you can gradually modify the rules as improvement appears, until the patient may see occasional visitors, and enjoy books and music in moderation.

A real rest cure should always include some form of massage, because that takes the place of exercise, breaks the long hours of inactivity, and keeps the blood in circulation. If professional massage is out of the question on account of the expense, an occasional amateur rubbing is better than none.—Youth's Companion.

A Bad Breath.

Unless there is a catarrhal affection within the nose, or the teeth are decayed, there is no reason for a bad breath, except from indigestion and constipation. Gas in the stomach and a sour taste in the mouth are sure indications that one needs a laxative. For this purpose an inexpensive and sufficient preparation is the phosphate of sodium. The correct dosage is a heaping teaspoonful in a tumblerful of hot water half an hour before breakfast. In severe bilious attacks, where there is headache and vomiting, a half teaspoonful in a half tumbler of hot water may be taken every half hour until four doses are taken. There is no better household remedy for indigestion, headache and constipation than the plain phosphate of sodium.

PERSONAL POINTERS.

Little Scraps of Gossip About Well Known People.

Prince Alexander of Teck has a ring that belonged to George I. It takes a day to get through his official correspondence.

General Smuts began his career as a lawyer, and is still regarded as one of the ablest jurists in South Africa. Soup, fresh herrings, currant-pudding, and coffee is a favorite menu of the Princess Arthur of Connaught.

The Duke of Abercorn has one of the finest gardens in London at Hampton House, his Grace's town residence. A room at York Cottage has been set aside for the reception of various war trophies brought home by the Prince of Wales.

Mr. Leopold de Rothschild is said to have declined over twenty times in the past seven years to write a book of "Recollections."

The Empire Room at Marlborough House contains one of the most valuable collections of relics of the First Empire period in the world. Splendid work has been done by Lady Lawrence, wife of Lord Lawrence, in organizing canteens for the workmen in armament factories. Her ladyship has put in extremely long hours at the offices in Victoria Street, London, in order to bring the scheme to fruition.

Success has come Sir James Barrie's way, but one thing that he tried he has never accomplished: he has never hit Lord Rosebery on the head. "The first time I ever saw Lord Rosebery," says the creator of Peter Pan, "was in Edinburgh, when I was a student, and I flung a clod of earth at him. He was a peer; these were my politics. I missed him, and I have heard a good many journalists say that he is a difficult man to hit."

Born—on 19th, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Biddle, a son.

Dr. and Mrs. McVicar were in London on Friday to see their daughter-in-law previous to her leaving for her home in Regina.

Expressions of sorrow were heard on every side when the news came that Ernest Gay had passed away Sunday morning about nine o'clock at the home of Mrs. Guppy, Ouellette ave., Windsor, where he and his family have been since his illness became so acute. Ern was a general favorite here and his long and serious illness with pernicious anemia caused his friends much anxiety. Deceased was a prominent Mason, belonging to the Windsor Lodge, who conducted the funeral on Tuesday afternoon, and a charter member of the I. O. F. here, and one of the most zealous workers at the old boys' reunions. His wife and daughter, aged father, three sisters and brother, have the deepest sympathy of the community, most of whom feel they have lost a dear and personal friend.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Women's Institute was held in the town hall on Wednesday last. Mrs. J. W. Hammett was re-elected president and Mrs. Matt. Armstrong secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Henrietta Miller passed away on Sunday morning after two weeks' illness with pneumonia, in her 83rd year. Besides her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Hammett, with whom she lived, are two sons, Ben and George. Funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon.

to Wardville. Sympathy is extended to the family.

Miss Sarah Fletcher, of Detroit, is visiting relatives here after an extended visit to California.

John Sullivan, wife and daughter returned home on Tuesday.

On Friday, at 2:30 p.m., the District Convention of the Women's Institutes for West Middlesex will meet at the Newbury town hall. Reports of the various Institutes will be read, as well as papers of general interest. All ladies are welcome, whether members of the Institute or not.

Mrs. H. A. Wilson, of Wardville, district president, will preside, and an interesting convention is looked for. Delegates are expected from the various Institutes in Middlesex.

The 3rd Batt. have left Shorncliffe, Eng., and are in the trenches, according to word we received on Monday.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

The people of Berlin, Ontario, decided by a majority of 81 votes out of a total polled of 3,057 to change the name of that city.

Crinan

Communion services were held in Argyle church on Sunday.

The Willing Workers will hold their regular meeting in the church on Thursday afternoon.

Crinan cheese for April sold for 18 cents, the highest price in the history of the factory.

"Billy" Stalker has purchased a new cat.

Evans, West Lorne, who has been visiting friends here for some time, returned to his home on Monday.

On account of the very wet weather, very little seeding has been completed in this district.

Mrs. J. A. Matheson received word this week of the accidental shooting of her nephew, Norman Evans, of Ridge-town. Mr. Evans was rushed to Chatham hospital and is doing as well as could be expected.

Quite a number from here attended the races in West Lorne on Sunday. Several also went to St. Thomas where the 91st received their colors.

Melbourne

Melbourne, May 22.—Miss Agnes E. Campbell has accepted a position in the Home Bank branch here. Mr. Collins is appointed teller in place of Mr. Grazele, who was recently moved to Walkerville.

The 13th anniversary of the local lodge of the I. O. O. F., No. 341 was observed on Sunday by a special church service in the afternoon in the Methodist church. A very large turnout of the local and visiting brethren and their friends made this anniversary the most successful yet.

Service was conducted by Rev. J. B. Currie, the local pastor, who preached a very fine brotherhood sermon from 1st Cor., 13th chap., 13th verse—"Now Abideth Faith, Hope, and Charity." An anthem by the choir and a fine rendering of "A Perfect Day" on the violin by J. E. Dyer were greatly appreciated by the large congregation.

Melbourne's new garage is nearing completion.

Mr. Myers, of Appin, occupied the pulpit in the Presbyterian church on Sunday.

Mr. Macfie, of Appin, preached in the Methodist church Sunday morning.

We are pleased to learn that Miss Nina Long, who has been seriously ill, is improving slowly.

The Patriotic Society of this place are arranging for boxes of red cross efforts to the soldiers who have gone to the front. The boxes will be sent weekly.

Kilmartin.

Kilmartin, May 17.—Miss E. Frank-ford, of Comber, is visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. W. McAlpine, in Detroit on a visit.

Mrs. Wm. Leitch visited friends in Cairo recently.

Mr. James Frank Allen, of Enphemia, spent Saturday with the latter's sister here.

Kilmartin, May 24.—Mrs. D. W. Munroe and Mrs. D. Graham spent the week-end in London.

We are sorry to report the serious illness of Mrs. Mitchell Innes, of London, daughter of Wm. Munroe.

Born—on May 23rd, to Mr. and Mrs. David Leitch, a daughter.

Mr. John Secord is visiting in St. Thomas.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. John Leitch, of Metcalfe, in the death of their only son, Harold N., aged 18 years, in Victoria Hospital, London, on Thursday, following an operation. The funeral took place from the family residence on Monday afternoon. Services were conducted in Burns' church by Rev. Dr. Smith, and interment was in Kilmartin cemetery.

Nurse Verda Fotheringham, of London, visited Miss Jessie McLachlan last week.

Miller's Worm Powders work so effectively that no traces of worms can be found. The pests are macerated in the stomach and pass away in the stools without being perceptible. They make an entire and clean sweep of the intestines, and nothing in the shape of a worm can find lodgment there when these powders are in operation. Nothing could be more desirable than their action.

Wardville

Wardville, May 17.—The Wardville War Relief Society to the Red Cross has sent this month 12 day shirts and 12 pairs of socks to the soldiers' comfort department; also $100 to the Duchess of Connaught Hospital for the maintenance of four cots for one year, and $10 to the Belgian relief fund.

Miss Sangster, of London, is visiting Miss M. Atkinson.

Mr. Goodling, of Wheaton, Ill., is visiting his sister, Mrs. A. Douglas.

Mrs. (Dr.) H. A. Wilson and Mrs. R. J. Tetch visited the Napier Ladies' Institute on Friday.

G. Stillwell, the blacksmith, spent the week-end at his home in Warwick.

L. M. Buckberrough, formerly manager of the Royal Bank, Wardville, has resigned his position as receiving teller at the head office of the Royal Bank at Toronto and has accepted a lucrative position as cashier for the Western Canada Flour Mills Co. Ltd., at their head office, Toronto.

THEY ARE CAREFULLY PREPARED—Pills which dissipate themselves in the stomach and are expected to have much effect upon the intestines, and to overcome costiveness the medicine administered must influence the action of these canals. Farmelee's Vegetable Pills are so made, under the supervision of experts, that the substance in them intended to operate on the intestines is retarded in action until they pass through the stomach to the bowels.

THE ESKIMO'S DOG.

How the Husky is Tamed Up From Puppyhood.

The Eskimo, residing in the black stretches around Hudson Bay, has perhaps no equal as a breeder, raiser, and trainer of strong, big bodied sleigh dogs. And in the making of his train dogs this resident of a harsh Arctic land applies some methods that show him a close student of animal psychology.

When the pups are a few weeks old they are harnessed with a miniature harness. The end of the harness ends about the middle of the pup's back, and to this is fastened a single trace. This trace is a few feet long and the end of it is fast to a tightly driven peg. Naturally the first thing the puppy does is start to run around, only to be brought up short when the trace runs out. Then he tugs and tugs. Thus in earliest infancy is instilled into it the instinct to tug always against the resisting trace. Ever after, once it is harnessed to a sleigh and feels the tightening trace, instinct bids it pull.

During this early apprenticeship, the instinct to bite through the restraining trace is eradicated. Sooner or later, every pup turns upon his trace and strives valiently to sever it. The Eskimo trainer has been carefully watching for this and, immediately the pup makes this move the man administers a severe thrashing, continuing this treatment until the idea of physical pain in connection with this action is thoroughly instilled into the dog's mind.

How deep this impression is may be judged from this one incident which occurred near Fort Churchill, Hudson Bay Territory: A dog team of five animals, driven by an experienced member of the North-West Police, was caught in a blizzard. The man, instead of giving the dogs their head, in which event the team would have returned to the post, kept driving them in what he thought was the direction of home. Instead, he was going the wrong way. In a few hours he succumbed to the cold, lay down, and was frozen to death. Once detached from human command, the dogs started back for the post, but passing through a small slump of trees the sleigh became hung up.

On the man's failure to return to camp at the expected time, a searching party was sent out. The body was found and taken back to the post within 24 hours. No attempt was made to look for the dogs, knowing them, the commander expected them to return to camp at any minute.

But not for 72 hours did the animals show up, and a later investigation revealed the fact of their being hung up. So well had the training of their puppyhood stayed with them that only after this length of time, when hunger drove them to it, did these animals have courage to bite through that thin strand of hide that kept them from liberty.

The Eskimo uses the single trace. Traveling, as these people do to a great extent over hummocky ice and rough, rocky country, the single trace system proves much superior to the double trace, single file system generally used in the Mackenzie river district. When running an Eskimo team spreads out far wide.

For traveling over rough country the Eskimo has constructed a unique sleigh known as a commateek. This is about 42 feet long and only 18 inches wide. The runners are made of red earth and moss, and then water is poured over to form a thin face of ice. The Eskimo keeps this always freshly leed by blowing the water on the runners from his mouth. This affords a slippery runner superior to steel. The commateek by its great length does not get hung up in short dips and draws as would the ordinary sleigh or toboggan.

Marching Song.

This is the unofficial marching song of the Montreal officers' training corps:

The road is hard,
The end is far,
The Colonel's riding in his motor car,
Puffing at the end of a big cigar,
While we just tramp along.

Chorus—
Tramp along, tramp along,
Swing those arms and sing a little song,
Keep in step, keep in step,
Now, boys, show a little pep.

The Colonel slams,
And the Major swears,
The Captains ball things up for fair,
The Adjutant goes right up in the air.

But we just tramp along.

Chorus—Tramp, etc.

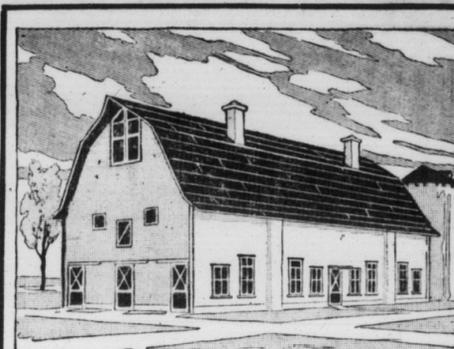

At the end of each verse the Battalion lets out a yell which sets the echoes rolling round the Mountain.

Major MacPhail's Exploit.

The story of how Major Alexander MacPhail, in command of Queen's Engineers at the front, and formerly a professor at Queen's University, won the D. S. O., has just reached Kingston. One of the men who served under him states that Major MacPhail had the supervision of the building of a bridge over the La Bassee Canal under a heavy artillery and machine gun fire. The Canadians lost very heavily, many were struck with German bullets while they were at work on the structure, but those who remained kept pluckily at their work and the bridge was completed.

Old Canadian Stamp Sold.

An early Canadian postage stamp, the twelve-pence black variety of 1852 issue, sold for $457 at the auction of the late Charles Gregory's collection, which was conducted recently in the rooms of the Collectors' Club, Thirty East Forty-Second street, New York. It is the highest price paid for a rare stamp in several months. J. C. Morgenstau, who conducted the sale, said that it had been bought by a prominent New York collector. It was called the gem of the Gregory collection.

The foundation is not the most important thing

True, you can't have a good barn without a good foundation, but don't forget either that the roof has to stand most of the punishment. Upon it falls the burden of resisting the destructive influences of weather and changing seasons.

Now, the question is "Where am I going to find a roof which will meet these conditions?" Certainly not in wooden shingles which have rapidly deteriorated during the past few years. Not in anything so perishable as wood, nor yet iron, which lets in driving rain, but rather in a permanent mineral composition such as Brantford Roofing.

Now, let us look at a section of Brantford Roofing. First, you notice it has a pure, long-fibered felt base. This is thoroughly saturated with a filler coat of asphalt or mineral pitch. Then it is given another coat. Finally, the surface is thickly covered with crushed slate. You can imagine what a job rain, snow, fire or heat would have penetrating a roof like that. As for comparing with shingles on the score of permanency, or protection, or appearance, or even economy, there is no comparison. You put a Brantford Roof on once, and it will last as long as the building; it will always look well and it will never need repairing.

Why not let us send you samples, also a copy of our booklet which explains how Brantford Roofing is "always on the job"? Or, if you will give us the dimensions of your barn or house roof we will gladly submit estimates without charge, or obligation.
