JOYOUS REUNION OF LONDON'S "OLD BOYS"

Detroit, Chicago and Toronto Close Competitors for the Honor of Having the Largest Delegation.

city, and London is glad it is so No welcome could exceed in sincerity that which was given them yesterday, but no effort was required to make them feel that the citizens were truly happy with them in their return to the old home. The streets were gay with colors, and all day they resounded with music. "A Hot Time in the Old Town" was the band's early morning forecast, and none then knew how exactly it would be fulfilled. The role of rulers became the visitors well, and everybody was perfectly satisfied with the way in which they took over the power so willingly abdicated in their favor. Immense crowds gathered at the railway stations, and upon the streets near by this they were assisted by those of the Old Boys, who had already arrived from Cleveland, Detroit, Toronto and other places, who helped with their presence and their bands, to make the and everywhere praised. reception of the new comers as enthusiastic as possible. When each contingent arrived it was taken in charge by members of the reception committee, and escorted to Victoria Park. It would be quite impossible to say whether Detroit or Toronto succeeded in sending the most Old Boys this year. Hitherto that honor has been held by the association of the great metropolis on Lake Michigan, and would have been theirs again but for the disappointment caused by the railways. In spite, however, of stupendous difficulties, the plucky westerners rose triumphantly from the despair into which they were once cast, and their crowd was splendidly large. Without Chicago, what would the reunion have been compared with what it is when the irrepressibles from Illinois are present? Think of a London Old Boys' reunion without Billy Small. It is useless to do so, for while Old Boys are in Chicago, and reunions are being held in London, we believe that they will climb over every obstacle and get here. Because, therefore, of having almost to give up the idea of an place, in point of numbers, to either Detroit or Toronto-it would be hard to say which—but they acknowledged no leader in the matter of pleasure at being here once more nor in enthusiasm while here.

The Old Boys completely possess the | body knows how thoroughly the First ! Illinois Infantry Band entwined itself about the hearts of the people last year, and if anything could have made yesterday more pleasurable than it was, it would have been the presence of the First Illinois and the Light Guards Bands of Detroit, which are both considered now as London Old Boys themselves. It was unfortunate that the Detroiters were unable to bring their former bandsmen with them, but the Delray Band was a popular substitute. The Toronto association was bound to outshine all others this year, not only in numbers, but in their music, and to this end were lavish in expenditure, bringing with them two bands, the Cadets and the Foresters' Trumpet Band, two excellent organizations. The Cleveland band, dressed as "Rubes," carried out the idea in most amusing style. The Sarnia "hobo" band were their competitors in the way of providing fun for the crowd, and St. Thomas Stratford associations brought and with them their regimental bands, the 25th and 28th, and they compared very their more pretentious associates. The Seventh was everywhere in evidence,

AT THE STATIONS. Before 8 o'clock the people began to assemble at the M. C. R. station to meet the Chicago train. When it pulled in the platform and the streets near by were jammed with people, some anixous for a glimpse of the dear faces they had waited so long to see, others there simply to show the Chicago chaps they were glad they'd come. A committee of the home guard met them, and they were greeted by the music of the 7th. An hour later this was repeated, only with even larger crowds, when the Stratford Old Boys came in on the Grand Trunk. The Stratford fellows fairly surprised the city with the vitality that they displayed. Members of the older associations laughingly said that the baby association Stratford was quite cheeky, with all its airs—its natty caps and fine band and that the older fellows would have to look to themselves when such an ambitious and healthy competitor hove in view. Their numbers was a complete surprise, and Stratford may well be proud of its representatives and

London of its Stratford Old Boys. The St. Thomas Association, with the 25th Regiment Band, and three or four hundred visitors who came to see the fun, arrived at 10 o'clock. Other crowds, such as the Old Boys from Sarnia, Aylmer, Strathroy, and several near by places, came in excursion, Chicago had to yield first trains, not running distinct excursions. The second Toronto train, which was due to arrive here at 11 o'clock on the C. P. R., was an hour late, and this interfered with the morning proto the city folk and visitors as well, and very many went home before the speechmaking began. The 28th and Delray bands helped to hold the crowd together, by playing almost continuously, and those funny fellows from Cleveland did more than any of them to keep the tired people interested. At last the Chicago contingent marched in, following the hardworked 7th, whose members seemed absolutetireless. Soon after the Torontonians came, too, marching to the inspiriting music of the Cadets' Band and the Foresters' Bugle Band. great crowd immediately surrounded the band stand and a shortened programme of speeches was carried out, amid much enthusiasm.

Words of Welcome.

MAGISTRATE LOVE.

Mr. Love essayed to speak when several bands were playing, and the contest was a noble one, while it lasted. Finally, however, the musicians got the better of the magistrate and he decided to let the band play on. Fortified by this breathing space, favorably-especially the 28th-with he made another start and maintained a good lead throughout. He was loudly applauded as he commenced to speak. "Ladies and gentlemen," said he, "the most pleasant duty devolves upon me, as the president of the London Old Boys' Association, to again welcome the visiting London Old Boys who have come from their far distant homes to visit their old city and their old friends here. (Cheers.) It affords me the extremest pleasure to do this because the London Old Boys who have gone away from this city are a credit to the city they have left, and in the places to which they have gone they have made themselves decent, responsible positions, and we all ought to feel proud for the credit they reflect on the city to which they belong. (Applause.) There is no question about it, that the London Old Boys have succeeded wherever they have gone. no question about it that the London

At this point the bands seemed to take a new lease of life, and Mr. Love waited patiently until he could be heard again, when he said: "And now, ladies and gentlemen, to resume, we ought to be proud, and we are proud of the visiting London Old Boys, for succeeded, as said before, wherever they went, and they are a credit to We ought to be proud of our little city, our beautiful little city-(cheers)-which attracts them back to the home of their childhood. We are proud of the friendly feeling that exists between the two countries, a feeling that exists, no doubt, largely because of the number of Canadians that are scattered through that country-(cheers)-and we welcome you, not only as London Old Boys, but as brothers from a brotherly nation. (Renewed cheering.) To those of you who have come from different parts of Canada, we extend a hearty welcome. We love the great empire to which we belong, we are loyal to our king, we are proud of the flag that waves over us—the flag that has braved a thousand years the battle and there is thing we should be a little prouder of still, in my opinion, and that is that we are Canadians. We are standing today on the threshold of a new century and lying before us is a country waiting to pour forth her wealth of gold and silver, and copper and iron, and other valuables, and asking us to take pos-session. And I believe, sir, that the Canadian people have the energy and the ability to develop this country, and before, long before this century ends, this country will be teeming with happy homes-(applause)-and among those who are working for the development of this country in the very front ranks will be found many of London's Old Boys and Girls. (Cheers.) We are glad that you have all come back to the homes of your youth. You will be the better for the coming. You will visit the scenes of your childhood and boyhood days, and hearts that probably have been seared by many a hard fought battle will become tender, and kind, and gentle again. You will visit those silent cities just outside our city, those cities which, if slowly are nevertheless surely, growing, and you will bow the head at the grave of loved ones gone before. They are dead and yet they live, beckoning us on to deeds of higher and nobler grandeur. All honor to the memory of the old pioneers who braved the hardships of the wilderness to make homes for us. (Cheers.) Again, I bid you a hearty welcome to the city of London—a city that, in my opinion, any man or woman might feel proud to own as home, a city in which you can travel north and south, east or west, or you can box the com-pass, and you find no slums, no streets where poverty and crime are mixed-(hear, hear)—but where you have, inbeautiful cottages and homes

SENATOR CARLING.

Hon. Senator Carling was loudly cheered as he responded to requests of the intersections of Dundas street with "Speech, speech." He said: "I did not Richmond, Talbot and Ridout streets, expect to be called upon to make a speech when I knew there were so the trolley. Car after car moved away many before me who could speak with every available inch of space inall that they have done on behalf of so much better. I can only say, Mr. our good city of London. ### The Parade.

It was considerably after noon when the speeches were adjourned, and all the Old Boys formed in parade at their conclusion. It was marshalled by Mr. J. W. McIntosh, and moved away between long lines of people. The route of march was out from the park along Wellington to Dundas street and west to Richmond, where it was dispersed to allow the members to dine and get ready for Springbank. Sergt. Major Cockburn was an impressive figure at the head of the Seventh, which led the column. The old-time firemen marched next in the place honor, and bandied remarks with the spectators by whom they were loudly cheered. The Sarnia band of musical hobos followed, with make-ups that were ludicrously funny. Mayor Rumball, with "Old Nick" and Sir John Carling marched together at the head of the home guard, who were dis-tinguishable everywhere by their broad-rimmed hats. Chicago was next in the line, and they were accompanied by a cheer that rolled along the street. Their distinguishable mark was an extremely handsome medal, like that of last year, with the flags of the United States and Canada upon it. The bar from which it hung represented a Canadian beaver. The Delray Band marched before the Detroit and Windsor men, who carried fancy umbrellas and wore distinctive caps, striking celluloid badge that rivaled theirs of last year as a unique souve nir. The Clevelanders, in shirt waists and carrying red, white and blue umband, which supplied much merriment for the onlookers. Stratford came next, with jaunty yachting caps and badges. Their good appearance was much commented upon, and the excellent playing of the 28th band fre-quently praised. The big crowd from Toronto wore red, white and blue yachting caps and carried Japanese parasols. They were well supplied with music by the Cadets' Band. They were followed by the St. Thomas crowd, headed by the 25th Regimen Band, and representatives were also in the procession from Hamilton, Aylmer, Strathroy, Omaha, and many other places.

At Springbank Park.

Soon as the noonday meal was over, London's citizens and London's guests began to move toward Springbank. The sidewalks were crowded with happy family parties and individuals making their way to Dundas and Richmond streets, for every available street car had been pressed into service on the hood, and all I ask you is that amid Springbank line, and as a consequence a majority of those bent on enjoying themselves with the Old Boys hai to walk to the central portion of the city before boarding a car. The service was

AN IMMENSE CROWD.

At Springbank the huge crowds swarmed through the pavilion, over the sward of the baseball grounds, and between the trees of the hillside and river bank, until even the park's spacious proportions seemed overcrowded. was a living sea that surrounded the scene of the afternoon's sports, and it is probable that never in Springbank's history has such a multitude been gathered within its confines.

THE BALL GAME. The feature of the day was, as last year, the baseball match between representatives of the United States and Canadian associations. The diamond cluster which represented Uncle Sam's domains was composed of T. Kennedy, Detroit; Fred H. Barron, Baltimore; Wm. A. Small, Chicago; R. Robertson, Columbus, Ohio; W. H. Humphrey, Detroit; Thomas Weston, Chicago; Sam Molland, Chicago; H. A. Hart, Detroit, and J. Hevey, Bay City, Mich. The team which endeavored to uphold the honor of Canada, but found the weight too much for them, included such chipper youngsters as Frank Love, Barney McCann, Tom Browne, Fred Wood, Ed Flock and Tom Gillean, while the remainder of the team were Charles Cowley, Sarnia, and W. Black and Jas. Lewis, of Toronto. The members of the teams were habited in uniforms of the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack respectively. The umpires were Ed Robinson and ex-Ald. Bob Carrothers. The former was in garb and makeup a typical Uncle Sam, while the latter's personal appearance was one essentially suggestive of a liberal use of the staple diet of John Bull, from time immemorial referred to so feelingly by the poet Campbell in the well-known | the city.

Five innings were played, and there was not a minute of the time in which the sated pienickers wending their way there was not something doing, even to their abodes found their tired limbs was only Gillean's unique combination of cakewalking and coach- ing strains.

tired in 1, 2, 3 order for the first two innings. In the third Barton laced out a two-sacker and waltzed home on Hevey's strike, and a minute later another of Uncle Sam's minions crossed the marble tablet. In the same inning Fred Wood, for the Canucks, hit the poor, inoffensive ball real hard; so hard that he won second on it, and later scored the first run for his side.

In the fourth, the pilgrims from across the imaginary line which separates us from the great republic, rolled their score up to 6, at which figure it remained till the end of the game. In the fifth, the loyal subjects of King Edward made a brave effort to tie the score, but it was not to be; and they rested from their labors with four runs to their discredit. It was probably a punishment on them for taking

Barney McCann out of the box and Police Magistrate Love from behind the bat in the fifth, and substituting Chas. Cowley and Fred Wood. The only incident which marred the game was the indignity offered by Barney McCann to Uncle Sam, on account of what he considered an over-ripe decision handed down by that supreme judge of the game. Unc'e Sam's whiskers were jerked bodily from his face, and the outrage might well have become a casus belli had not moderate counsels prevailed, and the disputants been parted before still further trouble Aside from its burlesque features, the game was a good one. Tom Browne at first toyed with the ball as familiarly as with a mail bag. Frank Love hauled down high balls from the circumambient ether with the same nonchalance and easy grace which he

AFTER THE GAME. During the progress of the game, and at its conclusion, music was ren-dered in the stands by the different bands present. Meanwhile happy pic-nic parties had dispersed through the beautiful park, and had begun the en-joyment of their alfresco meal. Many of the visitors strolled along the lovely riverside walks or rested on the banks, drinking in the restful beauties of na-ture, which the dwellers in large cities most delight in by contrast with endless miles of brick and stone, or the artificial beauties of city parks, and whose possession is a source of envy toward the people of London, at whose

The arrangements for the evening were not carried out in their entirety, owing to unexpected circumstances over which the circumstances over which the executive committee had no control. It was intended to hold a grand military tattoo, in which the different would take part, but an accident on the Springbank line delayed traffic so as to prevent the bandsmen from going to the city for supper and returning in time for the tattoo.

A concert was given by the Seventh Regiment Band, and the grounds were brilliantly illuminated by the bonfires and red fire.

Close of the Day.

The rush citywards began as the evening wore on, and every car as it left Springbank was crowded with people, who had to fight for their possession of the place occupied by them. Midnight had passed before the last of the holiday makers had been landed in

It was close upon 2 a.m. before the down-town streets were quiet. Bands of music escorting enthusiastic throngs of visitors paraded to and fro, and filled the night with music and mirth, and to their abodes found their tired limbs moving more willingly to the enliven-

Among all the merry scenes and happy gatherings none were more enjoyable than the reunion held by Typographical Union, No. 133, at Sherwood Hall, in the evening. Invitations had been sent out to all the London Old Boy printers, and their response was unanimous. They enjoyed it immensely, and were most profuse in their praises of the evening's doings and their hearty reception. It was an evening of reminiscent story, and many a good time and olden-day incident was recalled, and memories revived, that made the Old Boys feel as young again as in the sixties and seventies. Among the visitors were some who had not seen London, their native city, for many years. Rev. Bernard Bryan, an old Advertiser boy, left here for Toronto, in 1876. Bob Booth selected Toledo for his home 15 years ago. Charley Melbourne became a burden to Cleve land, Ohio, a dozen years since. Toledo would like to have sent Jimmy Ander-son back to London about ten years ago, but he's a "stayer." Charley ley and Sarnia were married "for bet-ter, for worse," more than 15 years ago. Dr. J. G. Layton has been dosing Clevelanders with his noxious decoctions since leaving The Advertiser 18 years since. "Tom" Johnson left the city 33 years ago, but he doesn't look that age yet, and was one of the hap-piest at last night's entertainment. His brother John was also a visitor. And the ever welcome William Doyle, who is now a prosperous farmer near the city, was one of the most familiar figures in the crowd. Among more recent members who had left the city were Messrs. Frank Plant, of Ottawa; W. P. Gleeson, Toledo; Alf Howell, Toledo; Charley Hall ("Jerry Gerard"). who hails from everywhere; Frank Porter, Cleveland; W. McElheran, Woodstock; John Pendergast, Detroit; Omar Colerick, Montreal; "Cy" Carter, Buffalo; R. McMartin, Toronto; -. Arnold, Chicago; Frank Tilt, Chicago; Ed Till, Toronto; R. Carrothers, Chicago; Tom Brown, Detroit; George Tuttle, Marion, Ohio, and others. Mr. John McLean, president of the union, on behalf of the committee, welcomed the Old Boys in a few terse sentences. He said he was certain the oc-casion would be enjoyable, and one that would live in the memorles of not only the visitors, but of city typos, who had the pleasure of extending the glad hand once more to their old com-panions. He remarked the numerous changes that had taken place in the "art preservative of arts" since many of them had left London, and good-humoredly referred to the many "reforms" that were evident even in the personality of some of the visitors themselves, who had been "devils" (in the printing line) in their younger days here. The craft were heartily glad to welcome them as guests, and hoped they would make themselves feel as much at home as of yore, and enjoy the proffered, but meager, hospitality to the fullest.

Mr. C. H. Fewings (chairman) then introduced the various numbers of a lengthy programme, interspersed by brief, witty and practical addresses from many of the visitors. The first speaker was Rev. Bernard Bryan, one of the oldest members of the local union, who gave some very interesting reminiscences of old printer days. He was pleased to think that after so long an absence from London he was still remembered as one of the old-time members of No. 133. This visit recalled some of the happiest periods in his life; he loved the city of London, for in it, 50 years ago, he was born, and here his father and mother were laid at

HON. D. MILLS HOME AGAIN

Results of the Conference Not Yet Public.

The Minister of Justice Has Several Meetings With the Colonial Secretary and Other Leading Statesmen.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.-Hon. David Mills, accompanied by Mrs. Mills and his private secretary, Mr. J. D. Clarke, reached the civt last evening, after an absence of some six weeks in England. Mrs. Mills tonight left for London, where she will be joined at the end of the week by the minister of justice. Mr. Mills will enjoy a short vacation on his farm in Western Ontario. During his recent trip he had no leisure for holidays, almost his whole time being taken up with public business. The chief purpose of the minister's visit to England was to represent Canada at the conference called to consider whether the present judicial committee of the privy council should be abolished, and another body created in its place, in which representatives from the colonies, as well as Great Britain, should sit. Hints have been given that at the conference strong opposition was offered by Canada's representative to the proposed change, the view of this country being that the present constitution of the final court of appeal is quite satisfactory. It has also been stated from an apparently reliable source that Canada's view carried the day, and the conference reported against the proposition referred to.

Asked whether he could confirm these statements, Mr. Mills replied that he must for the present treat the matter as confidential. All could say was that, pursuant to arrangement, the conference met, various colonial representatives being greeted by Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, colonial secretary, and Lord Halsbury, lord chancellor, who afterwards withdrew. The colonial delegates held a series of meetings, and having duly considered the subject, which was then handed to the imperial government. The nature of that report Mr. Mills did not feel at liberty to disclose. The minister justice came into contact with Mr. Chamberlain on several occasions, and regards the latter as an exceedingly able, well - informed and courageous He also met Lord Lansdowne, man. the Earl of Derby and the Earl of Aberdeen, all three being ex-governorsgeneral of Canada. They all manifested a kindly interest in Canadian affairs, and spoke in an appreciative way of the progress which this country is making.

A Chicago Young Man Twice Saves a Would-Be Suicide.

Chicago, Aug. 6.-Having to his credit fourteen lives saved from drowning, Arthur Egan, who is aged but 17 years, last evening saved A. J. Baker, a would-be suicide, twice, although the man struggled to be allowed to die. After first rescue Baker fought savagely, and finally threw his rescuer off and jumped into the lake a second time. Egan again sprang after him, and succeeded in finally dragging him to safety. Egan is an expert swimmer. His aim is to become a member of a life saving crew, and he accordingly took up his headquarters this year at the Barry Beach, where all his rescues have been made.

Ventilation.

The Resilia insole expands from outsole when foot is lifted.

It thus draws in fresh air, through a tiny valve in the heel, which locks it in.

When insole is borne upon, the air contained in the cross channels is then forced up around the stocking, through a row of perforations, under the hollow of the foot.

The valve works one way only.

It thus locks the air in, when foot is lifted, compelling it to circulate up around the stocking, and out at the boot top.

THOUGHTFUL CLEVELANDERS

Hold Memorial Services at a Comrade's Grave.

Old Boys Visit Woodland Cemetery and Place Flowers on Sidney Ham's Last Resting Place.

An impressive ceremony was performed by the Cleveland delegation this morning when a party of the visitors, headed by Cleveland's City Railway Band, took a car for Woodland Cemetery, where a memorial service was held in memory of a late comrade, Sydney Ham, who lost his life in an elevator accident last December in Cleveland, Ohio. The delegation marched to the grave, the procession being led by David Ham and wife, parents of deceased, a brother and a lady friend of the family, followed by the full band and the Old Boys' Association from Cleveland. Rev. S. J. Allin, pastor of Hamilton Road Methodist Church, a personal friend of the family, read appropriate Bible selections, after which "Nearer My God, to Thee" was sung by the company and played by the band. An impressive address, followed, during which touching references were made to the memory of deceased, and prayer was offered. Pleyet's beautiful hymn concluded a ceremony that will long be remembered by those thoughtful ones who assisted in performing it. After the band moved some distance from the grave, A. J. Kirchner sounded "Taps." A tower of white and pink roses was placed on the grave by the Cleveland Old Boys' Association.

Philadelphia, Aug. 6.-Six persos, all colored, are known to be dead as a result of the terrible gasoline explosion last night, which tore to atoms six buildings on Locust street, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, and wrecked over a score of others As to the number that yet remain in the ruins of the wrecked buildings, all is mere speculation. Only one of the six that perished has identified. This is Annie Harris, a child four year old, who lived at 1,033 Locust street, on the opposite side of the street from the building in which the explosion occurred. It was 7 o'clock this morning before the firemen, after working hard all night, had the smouldering ruins sufficiently cooled off to enable them to begin a search for the bodies suposed to be beneath the wrecked building. At 1,018 Locust street, the building occupied by Albert D. ### Old Age Pensions.

Mr. Chamberlain has again been heard from with regard to old age pensions. He no longer pledges himself, as he did in an election manifesto long ago, to make the provision of old age pensions a matter for the Government of which he was a member to settle, but he suggests that the subject might be taken up by the friendly societies, with a hope that any scheme they might agree upon would receive favorable consideration. Thus does Joseph deliver himself over to the Opposition, who have all along charged that even If he were serious on the subject of old age pensions arranged for by government, he had too many wicked partners opposed to any such legislation to allow of its consummation. Once more will Sir Wm. Harcourt be able to exclaim, "I told you so!"

The Beer Poisoning Commission.

It will be remembered that last year there was an epidemic of arsenical poisoning among the beer drinkers of Great Britain which caused somewhat of a sensation even in these far-off parts of the Empire. A royal commission was alone deemed sufficient to properly investigate the cause of the production of the death-dealing beverage, and that royal commission has just issued its report. It is pointed out that the trouble originated in the "brewing sugars" supplied to a wellknown firm of brewers. The brewing sugars are, it seems, used as adjuncts to or partial substitutes for malt, and rest. Speaking of the term, "Old Boys' while it is held by experts that a brewing sugar may be harmless, the sugar which caused all the trouble was contaminated by sulphuric acid, supplied by a seeds merchant, which contained the printers had decided him to return large quantities of arsenic. It is asserted that this firm did not inform their customers that the acid was arsenical, and, strange to say, made no effort to analyse the commodity, and continued to compound and sell the brewing sugars "under the impression that they were regularly receiving a pure acid made from brimstone." For the original manufacturers, the excuse is promulgated that they did not know for what purpose their sulphuric acid was to be used. Then the makers of the substitutes took it for granted that everything was all right, and the result was wholesale arsenical poisoning and the loss of a number of lives. "In the county boroughs of Manchester and Salford alone," say the royal commissioners, "the medical officers of health estimate that at least 3,000 persons suffered by it." The commissioners do not apportion the responsibility of the two firms affected, but consider they have done their duty by relating the ascertained facts. Probably they have been influenced in some measure by the action at law which the official liquidator of the firm that bought the contaminated sulphuric acid has brought against the original compounders. The brewers, it seems, are relieved of all responsibility for the scan-ish public are asking themselves how the beer drinkers-and they are very many in the mother country-are to be protected from similar trouble in the future. It is affirmed that as beer is now made, it is not enough to have pure malt, as it is liable to precisely the same kind of contamination as its substitute. This fact is attested by the leading chemists of the age, as well as by the royal commission. "We are satisfied," say the commissioners, "that by use of fuel containing arsenic material, quantities of arsenic may be deposited on malt, and so reach beer." The Daily News, which has been investigating the subject, reaches the conclusion that the only safety lies in enforcing an efficient system of analysis. It is necessary to lay down certain standards, and to provide means for enforcing them. It is contended that in England the existing arrangement for public analysis, whether of liquids or sollds, is most unsatisfactory and haphazard, and the commission propose to give further consideration to this vital department of administration. It is strange to find this declaration made, seeing that only a short time ago another royal commission on the adulteration of beer reported that there was no cause whatever for apprehension, and pooh-poohed the idea of an extension of the department of public analysis. In view of these experiences in Great Britain it is interesting to note that there have been no complaints on this score against beer made in Canada. Is it because of greater carefulness on the part of the brewers of this country, or in consequence of our law against adulteration? Perhaps both have contributed.

Helping the Submerged Masses. We are still in the age of practical Christianity. Mr. W. R. Sutton, a London, Eng., merchant who recently died, has left ten million dollars to trustees for the erection and endowment of dwellings for the poor of London and other commercial centers. Mr. Sutton is a veritable second Peabody, and the use to which he has put his great fortune is a highly commendable one. The submerged masses are the great danger of the British nation, as they promise to be in the great cities of the neighboring republic. This truth was well borne out in a recent address by Archbishop Connolly, of Nebraska, while on a visit to his native place in Ireland after an absence of more than forty years. He asserted that the flocking of great masses of poor people into the Council. great cities of the United States was alarming, and that the Irishmen in Ireland today are better off than their fellows in the big centers of population in the republic, and were likely to continue so. Such an assertion from so make us all pause and reflect what the condition of the poor in the great cities there is evidence that it will be, unless there is a radical change in the disposition of the people.

Saving the Boys. At a London, Eng., police court the other day, two boys were sentenced to be whipped with a birch rod for putting stones on a railway track. Sir John Glover, the magistrate, very properly held that the common jail was no place in which to punish children, and he inflicted the more wholesome and, to our mind, the more effective punishment of giving them a sound whipping, which would prove far more effective in restraining any criminal tendency that may be in them than They come in early, and are sold at would have been a sentence that would | high prices in the British markets. Mr. Bryan hoped that the same spirit of good feeling and fraternity so evident on this occasion would continue to exist among the printers both for their native city, and for No. 133, its members, old and new.

Mr. Robt. Booth recited some of his experiences since his Advertiser days. He complimented No. 133 on their progress, and said that all in all he was very well satisfied with the world in general, as it had handled but few hard bumps. Lance-Corporal Horner, of the Military School, gave a number of splendid phonographic selections, introducing the church scene from "The Old Homestead," the bagpipes and a couple of minstrel performances. Mr. John O'Neil sang "The Holy City" and had to respond to an encore. The Harpers also were present all evening and enlivened the intermissions, during which light refreshments served, in an adjoining hall. visitors, before leaving, were most profuse in their praise of the reception and hospitality accorded them, Mr. James Anderson and Robt. Booth acting as spokesmen. Mr. Anderson in- o'clock. cidentally remarked that the printers from London could "hold their own with any in America as machine op-erators, as fast typesetters, as job hands, or in any other department of the business." Their success in all with "Auld Lang Syne" and "They Are Jolly Good Fellows." During the evening the following letter was received from Chicago, and served as a "starter" of many reminiscent anecdotes:

"Chicago, Aug. 3, 1901.
"To London Printers at the Old Boys' Reunion:
"Fellow-Craftsmen, — Being one of whom 'Ned' O'Brien (Chicago) has happily termed 'The Ancient Order of London Old Boys,' a word of greeting to a gathering of London typos may be permitted me, though few of you know me personally. Passing years and varied experiences have worn off the face of much connected with my printer life in London; but some things are as sharnly London; but some things are as sharply cut as when fresh from time's foundry. The trepidation with which I made my entry as carrier and 'devil' in the office of the London Herald in 1856 is still a civil impression and so are some of the vivid impression; and so are some of the happenings in Henry A. Newcomb's office on Ridout street (opposite the Royal Exchange) in '57 and '58. Then Wilberforce Dawson ran the job department; 'Bill' Wigmore ran the presses; no one in particular ran the engine; but every mother's son of us ran pell-mell into the street over and over again when to save street, over and over again, when, to save stopping the machinery, someone turned cold water into the almost empty boiler and then raised a yell of alarm. Surely a merciful Providence watched over us for the old boiler never 'busted,' though by all the rules of physics we should have gone through the roof. "Some of the old-time printers remember the little building put up by Rev. J. H. Robinson in '58 or '59 in his back yard (on Dundas street, just east of Waterloo), (on Dundas street, just east of Waterloo). Here was housed the printing plant which Mr. Robinson secured after the Newcomb failure; here Dr. Cl. T. Campbell and 'Bob' Fulford learned to 'stick types'; here was printed (and how proud we all were of it!) the first church hymn book turned out of a London printing office. turned out of a London printing office.

It was an eventful day (in the early sixties) when we exchanged the little one-story brick in the back yard for a three-story building on the south side of Dundas street, half way between Talbot and Ridout streets. Here the Reform paper edited by Mr. W. G. Monorief uttered its first peep, lived its little day, and died. And here, in '63, was born The Advertiser.

"But a truce to this ancient history. I congratulate you on your meeting. I wish I were with you to enjoy it. Accept the best wishes of an old-tim London printer, and believe me, frate, nally yours, "H. R. CLISSOLD."

Notes and Incidents.

To Mr. John Thomas, telegrapher, who left London in 1860, and who returned with the Detroit Old Boys, belongs the honor of initiating Thomas Edison, into the mysteries of the Morse code. It was at Fort Gratiot, Mich., in 1863 or 1864, when the lad Edison applied for a position, and was given one under Mr. Thomas, and the latter was instrumental in procuring Edison his first position as operator on the G. T. R. at Stratford, Ont., when he had mastered his business.

Many citizens who could not get on the cars at Dundas and Richmond streets thought that it would simplify matters to walk down a block or two. They found that they were not the only ones who had been fired by the same thought. At every corner there were crowds of people anxious to catch the incoming cars. Very many waiked clear over to the overhead bridge, the first place where it would be possible to intercept a car. There and at the court house a band had been stalled, and played for the people's entertainment. The Cadet Band of Toronto did not get to Springbank until after 5

One of the bands was parading around the streets after midnight making musical announcements that they wouldn't be home till morning, and that date. One of the trips was down Simparts of the United States is sufficient coe street way, and the bandsmen evidence.

The evening concluded at midnight from one of the late cars. When the

this morning: Buyers and sellers were enjoying themselves yesterday, which no doult accounts to a certain extent for the slim attendance at the market. The first load of new oats of the season was sold today at 95c per cwt. Hay-Fourteen loads of hay sold quickly today at $7 to $7 50 per ton. Butter and Eggs-Very little of either product were marketed today; there was sufficient to meet the demand, and prices are unchanged, at 17c to 19c per 1b for butter in crocks and 19c to 21c per lb for roll butter. Eggs sold today at 10c to 101/2c wholesale and 11c to 12c retail.

Fruits-Two loads of thimble berries sold at 9c to 10c wholesale, and 11c retail. Peaches sold at 30c per 6-quart basket. Apples were more pientiful, selling at $1 to $1 10 per bu; the apples offered were as a rule a poor sample.

Vegetables of all kinds were well repesented, with the exception of potatoes, hich were in keen demand at $1 to $150 er bu: most of the offerings sold at $1 30 $1 40 per bu. Tomatoes are scarce, at per 1b wholesale, and 10c per 1b etail. Celery sold at 30c to 40c per dozen. Other vegetables are unchanged in price, Poultry-Very little offered today; the prices are steady, as per quotations:

Live Stock-Mr. D. McIntyre had 100 hogs weighed on the city scales yesterday, paying $6 85 per cwt. Messrs. Howlett & Bignell also had 25 head of cattle weighed; $4 60 to $4 75 was said to be paid

THE KAISER'S MOTHER DEAD!

Demise of the Dowager Empress Frederick Was Somewhat Sudden.

The Emperor and Other Members of Her Family Present at the End---Her Remains Will Be Buried Beside Those of Her Husband.

Frederick died at 6:15 p.m. Emperor William and her majesty's other children and Empress Augusta Victoria, were round the bedside when the dowager empress passed away, quietly. The death of the dowager empress was somewhat sudden. At 4 o'clock her physicians reported no change in her condition. Emperor William and her majesty's other children were in the sick room most of the day.

At 8 o'clock this evening Emperor William conducted the members of the dowager empress' household into the death chamber, and led them one by peaceful expression, almost childlike, having shrunk from its normal size In the course of the evening several telegrams of condolence arrived from European sovereigns addressed to Emperor William.

Her Imperial Majesty Victoria Adelaide Marie Louisa, Princess Royal of England, Empress Frederick of Germany, was born Nov. 21, 1840, and was married Jan. 25, 1858, to Frederick, crown prince of Prussia, afterwards (March to June, 1888) second German emperor, who died June 15, 1888, and has issue four sons (two deceased), the eldest, William, the present German emperor, and four daugh-

Soon after nightfall, Emperor Willianm, accompanied by the empress and the crown prince, drove back to Homburg.

KNEW HER DAYS WERE FEW. The dowager empress knew days were few. She had said farewell to most of the servants and had arranged for the future of nearly every one of them. She expressed a desire that not much should be known by the public concerning her disease lest some should be saddened by the knowledge of her sufferings. There was much reluctance in sum moning King Edward, as it was not desired that he should have a long wait. Cowes, August 6.-King Edward re-ceived the official news of the death of Dowager Empress Frederick on board the royal yacht. At a late hour King Edward intimated a desire that the regatta programme should be proceeded with, thus following the precedent kept by Queen Victoria at the death of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg.

The race for the king's cup will therefore be sailed Wednesday.

The time of King Edward's departure for Germany is still undetermined. He goes to London this afternoon. The royal yacht Victoria and Albert awaits his arrival at Port Victoria, to convey his majesty to Flushing.

REGATTA POSTPONED. Although the King decided that the Cowes yachting programme should proceed, the owners of the vessels entered for the king's cup (which was to have been raced for today have resolved, out of respect for the dowager empress not to start.

THE END WAS PEACE. Cronberg, Aug. 6 .- The body of the dowager empress still lies in the bed chamber overlooking the valley of the Maine. She died in a soft sleep, painlessly, and her features bear the most serene and peaceful expression. The gardeners and other outdoor dependents were admitted to view the remains this morning.

PRESS TRIBUTES.

London, Aug. 6-6 a.m.-This morning's newspapers, most of which are printed in mourning, refer in terms of deepest sympathy to the death of Empress Frederick. It is generally admitted that she had only one enemy. Prince Bismarck never forgave her for being English by birth and nationality, and he pursued her with intrigue and resentment. It is an open secret that even state papers emanating from the German foreign office during Prince Bismarck's chancellor-ship contained the grossest and most insulting allusions to her. All social fixtures in London will for the present be abandoned or postponed, and, it is probable, that throughout the United Kingdom mourning for the King's sister will be of six months' duration for the court and three months for the general public. The coronation festivities will not, however, be affected by the empress' death.

A LIFE OF SADNESS

Cronberg, Aug. 6. - Ex-Empress | Consort. She was born Nov. 21, 1840, at Buckingham Palace, and christened was known as the princess royal. All accounts agree in ascribing to the princess during her childhood, quickness, brightness and intelligence. mingled with haughtiness and pride of position. She was a bright and vigorous child, more sprightly than her brothers and sisters. She especially showed early a de cided taste for drawing, like Queen Victoria, and throughout her life she has spent much time with palette and brush. A foreign artist said that if Victoria Adelaide had not been a princess and therefore freed from financial worries she would easily have earned an excellent living by her art. She also displayed considerable talent as an actress.

HER MARRIAGE. death chamber, and led them one by one past the bedside to take a last farewell of their mistress.

CONSCIOUS TO THE END.

The remarkable vitality of the dowager empress astonished her physicians. She retained consciousness to the end.

Tonight the children of the deceased placed floral tributes about the body. The face wears a singularly peaceful expression, almost childlike,

The tragic story of Victoria's fight for her husband's life in order to allow him to succeed his father on the throne of united Germany is well known. It was a hard and bitter struggle for the Eng-lish princess against overwhelming odds, but she succeeded, and Frederick survived his father three months, dying of cancer of the throat on June 15, 1888. OPPOSED BISMARCK'S PLANS. Though popular at first in Germany, the empress later incurred the ill-will of many of her husband's subjects. One reason was that she opposed Bismarck's plans, another that she displayed an-tagonism to the semi-despotic government prevailing in Germany, her ideal of rule being a limited monarchy such as exists in England. The Empress Frederick had since her marriage been a close and conscientious student of government and sociology, devoting much time and attention to socialism, although she did not agree with its tenets. She had wonderful influence over her husband, so much so that she was accused of domi-

It was rumored some time ago that the dowager empress had been married secretly to Count Seckendorf, a German gentleman and official of high connections. Some color was lent to the tale tions. Some color was lent to the tale by the fact that it was never denied by the imperial family, and it was believed in some quarters.

nating the generous, open-hearted "Fritz."

THE FUNERAL.

Cronberg, Aug. 6.-Emperor William will arrive here at noon, when orders will be issued for the various funeral arrangements, concerning which nothing definite is yet known. No strangers have yet been admitted to the castle. Wreaths continue arriving. Among the earliest was one brought by a deputation from the village of Cronberg, headed by the burgomaster. Another wreath was brought by the pastor of the village.

FRIGHTFUL EXPLOSION !

Five Buildings in Philadelphia

First Estimates Place the Number of Fatalities as High as 20-Scores of Persons Injured.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 5 .- A terrific explosion in a block of six buildings on Locust street, above Tenth, tonight completely wrecked five of the structures. Over two score of persons were more or less seriously injured. Some of those taken to the hospitals will die. It is estimated that at least 35 persons were in the five buildings when the explosion occurred, and the exact number will probably not be known for

The buildings were occupied as follows: Locust street-No. 1,008, House man's pool and billiard rooms; 1,010 Morris Rosenthal's second-hand cloth-ing store, occupied by Rosenthal, his wife and five children; No. 1,002, Wm. Jones (colored), restaurant, occupied by Jones and about ten boarders; No 1,004, George McLemmy's grocery store, occupied by McLemmy, clerk and servant girl; No. 1,006, Patrick Quigley's grocery store, occupied by Quigley, his wife, three children and his uncle: No. 1,008, Albert Mountain's grocery and meat store, occupied by Mountain, his mother, sister and clerk.

The explosion occurred about 9:30 What exploded and how it o'clock. happened is not known at this time, but it is believed to have been a barrel of gasoline in one of the grocery stores. With the exception of 1,008, the iron walls of the buildings were blown outward to the street, while the floors and roof upwards were blown upward and fell straight to the grounds. Almost every building within a radius of two blocks about the scene of the explosion had windows shattered and were otherwise damaged. Every building on the opposite side of Locust street was more or less wrecked, but none of them fell.

A terrible cry went up from the ruins the moment the explosion occurred. Women, children and men could be seen crawling from the debris, while the agonizing cries of others were heard in the wreckage. From all the surrounding buildings people came running and fell unconscious. To add to the horror, fire broke out in the debris the moment it settled to the ground, and in less than five minutes the great pile was burning fiercely from end to end. A general alarm was turned in for fire apparatus and ambulances, and in the meantime the work of rescue was voluntarily begun by people in the neighborhood that were not injured.

The work of digging away the ruins was then begun in earnest. Near the edge of the debris several colored men were taken out and sent to the hospitals. While the firemen and policemen were digging into the debris and hauling away heavy timbers in several sections of the wreckage, cries were heard coming from the cellar of Mountain's grocery store. Fifty men, with rope and tackle were immediately put to work at that point, and pulled away the roofing and flooring which had fallen into a massed heap. From the bottom of the pile, doubled up were taken a man and woman. The man was able to speak, but the woman was apparently dead. While the work of rescue was going on in the exploded block, hospital attendants and others made a search of all the damaged houses on the opposite side, and almost a score of persons were taken to various hospitals from these places. The Jefferson and the Pennsylvania hospitals were soon crowded with the injured. None of those taken to the hospital have died up to midnight. Two hundred men are now at work clearing away the wreckage. The building containing the pool rooms, clothing store and the restaurant were three-story brick struc-tures, while the other three buildings were two and a half stories.

THE DEATHS Philadelphia, Aug. 6.-At 1:30 a.m.

the only known deaths are those at the hospitals—that of an unknown colored woman and a two-year-old colored child. At the Pennsylvania five of the patients will, it is thought, die before daylight. These are two colored women, one colored man an two colored children. These unfortun ates are so badly injured and under going such severe suffering that their names could not be obtained. Others at the various hospitals will also die Among these is Samuel Gale, aged 40. white, and his daughter. Florence Gale aged 20. Both are badly burned, in addition to other injuries. Of the Rosenthal family, Minnie, aged 12, was taken from the ruins seriously injured,

Dr. Pitcher's BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS

(Formula of Zina Pitcher, M.D., Late Professor of Materia Medica and Genite Urinary Diseases, Michigan College of Medicine, Detroit, Mich.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are the quickest and surest relief for Bachache and Kidney troubles, and can show more evidence to that effect than all other advertised remedies combined. Dr. Pitcher stakes his reputation on these tablets for Backache and Kidney troubles, and will not allow them to be advertised as a "jack of all trades" medicine. Mrs. Sarah Bevan, of Port Hope says: "Thirteen years ago I fell and injured my back, and since then have known very little comfort with Backache or Kidney troubles. I have tried all kinds of medicines and seen many physicians, but got no help until I began the bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets that I got from R. Deyell, druggist. They have done me a world of good. I feel stronger; the dizziness and pain are gone, and I cannot tell you how pleased I am, and everyone else says the same of them. They are just what everyone wanted. I hope others will use them and get

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are put up in wooden bottles, with green wrappers, bearing the portrait and signature of Z. Pitcher, M.D. Each bottle contains 50 tablets; price 50 cents per bottle. Manufactured by The Dr. Zina Pitcher Company, Toronto, One.

has proved nearly as popular an organization as that which came from Chicago last year, and has been untiring in its efforts to make things merry. There was great competition among the bands in Cleveland for the our brother and friend, Smith Spence; privilege of joining the celebration here this year. London's profuse hospitality was well known, and all were anxious to pay a visit to the Forest City. This organization is the pet of Senator Hanna, who thinks nothing too good for his boys, and makes provision for them every time they leave home, besides furnishing them with good positions in the service of the Little Consolidated when in Cleveland. They have been engaged to remain for Thursday, when the band will be a feature at the Irish Benevolent picnic at Port Stanley. They were a big feature in yesterday's procession, and the cakewalk of Harold Miller, who marshaled the Reuben crowd caused much merriment. Miller is a heavy-weight prize cakewalker of prominence in Cleveland, where he is classed among the best. While the crowd was unable to reach the river park yesterday afternoon the band gave a concert in front of the court house, where many hundreds were gathered. and last night they entertained a big crowd from the balcony of the City Hotel. The band afterwards serenaded Dr. Layton at the residence of the late B. J. Nash, Stanley street. William Bogg, leader, deserves great praise for the efficiency of his men. Mr. John Wainwright is their man-bidden fruit" to many persons so consti-tuted that the least indulgence is follow-ed by attacks of cholera, dysentery, griptent if they have on hand a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, a medicine that will give immediate relief, and is a sure cure for all summer com-

He leaves a widow and five sons, Geo. H., jeweler, Fort William; Wm. chant, and Thomas J., commercial tra-veler, of this city. Mr. Coo was in his 67th year.

AN ARTISTIC WINDOW.

Woods' Fair windows, as at present decorated, show excellent taste in the arrangement of the goods. The flags and bunting are carefully and exquisitely entwined so as to give a handsome effect. Besides this, many souvenirs suitable for the Old Boys are displayed in both windows. The art of window-dressing in these large windows is Give the Old Boys pure, sweet milk most creditable and suitable for the present occasion.

THE SUSPECTS.

The city detective force anticipated that yesterday would be made the occasion of a harvest by pickpockets, and were prepared, as usual, for any emergency. Walter Murray, Charles H. Phillips, Charles Gorman and Arthur Leonard were all arrested early, charg-ed with "touching" Messrs. Houston, Long and Davis, while on the way from Detroit, but the theft could not be proven at the police court this morning and they were discharged, and in company with Robert Jones were remanded for vagrancy.

Thomas Mitchell and John Brinscombe, the two men found wearing clothes belonging to J. W. Little, were found guilty and remanded for a week.

REUNIONS HEREAFTER

So Decided at Annual Meeting of Old Boys.

Headquarters of the International Association Have Been Transferred to London.

Mayor Rumball Elected Honorary President and James S. Bell Secretary of the International Body.

The annual meeting of the International London Old Beys' Association took place in the city hall this morning with the largest attendance of any annual meeting yet held. The most important matter considered and acted upon was the making of the Old Boys' reunion a biennial instead of an annual affair. After a full expression of opinion from members of the international body and the home organization, a motion was carried providing for the next reunion being held in August, 1903.

Among those present were President Thos. Weston, of Chicago; vice-president Dr. F. T. Leys, Detroit; Secretary Small, of Chicago; Treasurer Thos. A. Duff, of Toronto; James H. Mustill, president Buffalo association; Wm. Keiller, Toronto; Thomas Brown, Detroit; J. W. Bowen, Chicago; S. Molland, Chicago; Frank Plant, Ottawa; F. A. Wilson, Buffalo; J. H. McConnell, Windsor; C. J. Wall, Windsor; John D. Macpherson, Detroit; J. W. Burriss, Detroit; J. Fred Jennings, Detroit; Col. Charles Stone, Toronto: C. D. Mac. pherson, Chicago; H. Lancaster, Omaha; T. G. Winnett, Bay City; E. E. Wilson, Detroit; W. J. Fox, Chicago;

G. O. Weston, Chicago. A letter from J. Fred Cryer, New York, notified the committee that an association had been formed in that city in July. There are now eleven associations affillated with the central body. The only new association since the meeting in June is Buffalo.

The treasurer's report showed re-ceipts of $70 and disbursements of $63 19. The report was adopted. Atwell Fleming, president of the To-ronto association, moved that the London organization be made a member of band will be detained here two days, the international association without the payment of fees.

President Weston favored the motion and suggested the locating of the association's headquarters and secretary in London, as a great deal of the correspondence in connection with the movement comes first to London, and as this city is naturally the best place for central work.

Messrs. Atwell Fleming, C. D. Mac-pherson and C. J. Wall were appointed a committee to interview the execu tive of the home association and obtain their views in the matter. The committee retired and returned with several members of the home executive. President Frank Love, Nicholas Wilson and J. M. Logan expressed their entire accord with the suggestion and their confidence that the home guard would be pleased to become affiliated with the international association.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR THE OLD BOYS

Excellent Vaudeville Bill at Springbank This Week.

Visiting Old Boys should not forget that their stay in London is incomplete without a visit to the new open air theater at Springbank, where nightly performances are given by well-known and clever vaudeville entertainers. The enjoyable nature of the trip to Springbank and the delightful coolness to be found at the beautiful riverside park should be sufficient to attract a very official court reporter, London, and large crowd, but when to these attract.

H. A. E., engraver; Alfred B., mer- tions is added such an excellent bill as is presented this week, the attendance today should be a record-breaker. The artists for the week are Ozar and Delmo, re-engaged from last week for their clever and original juggling turn; Heck, in a musical sketch; the La Dells, "crobats," and Shea, in a monologue and dancing specialty. Visitors and citizens alike should be found in large number at Springbank tonight.

BY THE LORDS

An Interesting Decision Rendered Regarding Trades Unions.

London, Aug. 6.-The House Lords yesterday rendered an important judgment affecting trades unions. The case was brought up on appeal from the judgment of the Irish courts, awarding a wholesale butcher damages against the Butchers' Assistants' Association, which brought pressure to bear on retailers to boycott the plaintiff until he dismissed a certain nonunion employe, threatening otherwise to call out the union employes of the firms concerned, and finally it induced the non-unionist to leave the plaintiff. The Lords dismissed the appeal, on the ground that the acts of wrongful and malicious conspiracy were not undertaken to advance the interests of the workmen themselves, but solely to injure the plaintiff.

EASEBALL.

Automobiles and dirigible balloons were in great demand at the baseball game between St. John's A. C. and the local druggists yesterday morning. the former, by constant hitting, being driven around the diamond thirty times, while the druggists only succeeded in making three round trips. Glover and Collins were in the points for St. John's, while Chapman and Tom Woolley performed for the druggists. Mr. Gorman umpired very satisfactorily.

Don't Forget that to remove corns, warts, bunions in a few days, all that is required is to ap-ply the old and well-tested corn cure— Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Sure, safe, painless. At druggist.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 5.-Just a glimmer of hope that the great steel workers' strike will be settled was embodied in a statement given out by President Shaffer, of the Amalgamated Association, tonight. When asked if he would pursue the same policy in ordering a strike in the mills of the Federal Steel and National Steel and the National Tube Companies as he did in calling out the men of the mills of the American Tin Plate Company, he replied: "If it had not been for this determination on my part, the general strike would have been ordered on Saturday night.' TEN DAYS' NOTICE. Before calling out the tin workers, and after failing to get any satisfac tion from the officials of the American Sheet Steel and American Steel Hoop Companies, President Shaffer telegram to Vice-President Warner Arms, of the American Tin Plate Company, notifying him that under the constitution of the Amalgamated Association he would be obliged to call out the tinworkers in all of the mills owned by the United States Steel Corporation unless the difficulty was settled within a period of ten days. In order to be equally fair to the other constituent companies of the United States Steel Corporation, President Shaffer has sent a similar notice to the officers of the Federal Steel Company, giving them the same time in which to make any effort they may desire to bring about a settlement, or he will put in force this same clause in the Amalgamated Association constitution. It is presumed that the delay in issuing the general order will be at least until the end of the present week. Possibly it will not be issued until early next week. In the meantime the men in the mills of these three companies will be prepared to come out when the strike order is is-

The possibility of a settlement of the strike is based on the bare hope that officials of three additional companies will bring to bear sufficient influence to urge an adjustment of the difficulties before the strike order is issued. President Shaffer did not express any hope that this would be done. STRIKERS GO BACK. Erie, Aug. 5.-The Anchor Line strike was settled tonight at a con-ference at the Hotel Reed, between Frank Coyle, of the contractors firm of Kane & Coyle, and President Keefe and Vice-President Walsh, of the longshoremen, and President Coyle, of the scoopers. Kane withdraws from the firm and the contract system will go on under Coyle. The old men will be taken back as far as possible, but the present force will not be discharged.

R. PARKER & CO., 400 Richmond street, near corner of Dundas, London, Ont.

"A close shave, that," said Mr. Fenwick. "I'm afraid he has hurt himself, though."
For a group of men had gathered round Douglas, and the ladies looked pale and wartled. It was apparently nothing, however, only that instead of riding away with them, the horse he would have rid.

with them, the horse he would have ridden was led away, and Douglas stood watching them ride off, lifting his hat, and then returning slowly up the broad steps and disappearing within the porch of the hotel.

In the moment when he had raised his hat, those eager, loving eyes at the window above scanned his face. She saw he looked ill and worn, that the tall figure was bent and had lost a little of its former stately proportions, but she saw mer stately proportions, but she saw the pleasant smile which rested upon his face, and the thought, even in the con-fusion and bewilderment of the present, came to her loving, aching heart that at least he was happy, and she could bear all better now.

least he was happy, and she could bear all better now.

Then, without a word, she turned and left the room, throwing herself into a chair when she reached her own apartment, in an ecstasy of mingled feeling. She had seen him again—her love, her husband; he was in the house with her; one minute would bring him to her, one word would betray her presence. The mingled joy and pain of the thought were almost too much to bear.

Wild visions of going to him, of kneeling at his feet and entreating the forgive-

Wild visions of going to him, of kneeling at his feet and entreating the forgiveness he would not withhold—he was too generous, too noble for that; of praying for one word of love, one tender look, were succeeded by maddening fears that he would discover her presence, and come there to reproach her for her conduct; to tell her the old love was dead, killed by the knowledge of her father's sin, her own unworthiness. He should never look upon her with disdain—never!—never! He thought her dead; and she recollected that both he and Hugh wore mourning. that both he and Hugh were mourning. It was for her, no doubt—they thought her dead—she was so to them, and it was

He was happy-he had forgotten; and there came like a stab to the young wife's heart the recollection of his gentle manneart the recollection of his gentle man-ner towards the fair young girl he had assisted to mount; of the smile he had given her; of the instant action when her safety was concerned; of her pale, startled face when it was feared that he was hurt. Andree wanted him to be happy, but she felt that she could not want him to be happy in the laye of anhappy, but she felt that she could not want him to be happy in the love of an-

want him to be happy in the love of another woman, Almost as swiftly as the feeling itself the revulsion came. As long as he were happy, she would not care—he should never know. Heaven bless him, and heaven bless the fair young girl he loved!
When Margaret Fenwick came up to look for Andree to go for a drive, she found her lying in a darkened room, and the girl pleaded headache in a faint voice, which carried conviction. Andree felt that her only hope of concealment was in feigning illness during whatever stay the gay party intended to make at Rome; but on this day there was no Rome; but on this day there was no necessity to feigh. Head and heart were aching, and it was a relief when Pearl left her, to put her head on the pillow and let the tears flow unrestrainedly. In the afternoon Pearl brought her some tea, with her brother's condolences on the headache, which deprived him of the "light of his eyes," as he had named Andree during the days when she was so literally.
"Russell is in despair, Andree," said his sister; "his only amusement has con-sisted in finding out all about the English nilords' and 'miladis,' as Euphrasie calls them. They have just come home from their ride. Will your head allow you to listen to the important details?" added Pearl, as she sat down by Andree, and laid her soft, cool hand on her hot brow. "Yes?—that is well. Listen, then. That handsome young fellow is Sir Hugh Marchanott hand land the soft lates t handsome young fellow is Sir Hugh Marchmont—have I hurt you, dear child, that you started so?—and Euphrasie thinks he pays his court to the Prettiest of the two girls—that brilliant little coquette Russell admired so much this morning; but she has a host of admirers, and Euphrasie's only ground for thinking him the favored one is that they quarrel so! The pretty little widow is quarrel so! The pretty little widow is flancee to the shorter of the two fair men, who is a medico—M. le Docteur Clement; while Euphrasie thinks the other man, that tall man with the grand face, like Millais' Huguenot, is engaged to the other damsel. gaged people! How they must bore the poor fellow who is not engaged—Sir something Donaldson, they call him. Have I tired you, dear child? Forgive me, and if you don't feel better tomorrow. Russell insists that you have some advice."

Sir Hugh Marchmont! Her father was dead, then! Had the shame killed him?—had it been her doing? All through the long evening she tossed about among her pillows; he had never for liven her—he was her father, and he was dead! As she lay she could hear the sound of music in the salon beneath; she recognized her brother's rich tenor; sne heard sweet, giriish tones thrilling out gay sweet, girlish tones thrilling out gay French romances and ballads; she heard Mrs. Clarence's powerful and beautiful contralto in old, well-remembered favorcontraito in old, well-remembered favorites. She pictured the happy group around the piano, and buried her face in the pillows to shut out the sight.

Later she heard voices on the stairs, for some of the party had rooms on the same floor as themselves, and one she recognized as her husband's. She heard, too, that when he entered his room, the one adjoining hers, that someone else went in with him, and there was a few minutes' conversation. one apparently minutes' conversation, one apparently asking, the other answering questions; then the door was opened, and she heard clearly and distinctly, in her husband's

"Good-night, Clement."

The door was closed; but she listened still. Douglas had not retired to rest; sometimes she heard a restless pacing up and down the room—an old habit of his when disturbed or annoyed. At last all was still and silent. Andree waited, listening; then, when profound silence reigned everywhere, she stole out of her room, and on her knees by his door, even as on the eve of her wedding-day, she had bowed her head at the threshold of her father's door, prayed for his happihad bowed her head at the inreshold of her father's door, prayed for his happi-ness—his and hers. Ah! if Douglas could have known, if he Ah! if Douglas could have known if he

Ah! if Douglas could have known, if he could have guessed how near she was to him then, would his sleep have been so still? Could he have lain tranquilly there had he known that the wife he loved so well and had mourned so sincerely was kneeling there, imploring a blessing on his head?

"You had music downstairs last night, Euphrasie," said Andree the next morning, when the little French chambermaid, a dainty little coquette, whose face was so pretty that Russell Fenwick had broken the oculist's orders to take a sketch of the vivacious countenance, came into her room with some tea.

"But yes, madame." she answered,

"But yes, madame," she answered, brightly, "we have it every night nearly. They make such lovely music. Madame was musicienne, perhaps, and loved it?" "Yes, they made lovely music," answered Andree, in French. "And sang well tou."

"Ah! but madame did not hear Mon-sieur Lancaster" (Euphrasie's prenuncia-tion of the English is unrenderable); "he did not sing last night; such a voice, madame. Ah, Signor Castanis, of the Grand Opera, was not finer."
"Does he sing much?" asked Andree, turning away her face as if the light

"Helas! non, madame," replied the maid, "not often; but madame should hear him. She would never forget."

Andree, feeling that the girl's words were but too true, that she would never forget, said she would like to hear him tery much

"Would she?" said Euphrasie, eagerly.
"It was not difficult. When madame is better, if she will trust herself to me, I will take her down in the evening and let her hear the music from the balcony.
No one can know, madame. I go there myself but no one else."

myself, but no one else."
Eagerly catching at the idea of a nearer view of Douglas and his companions, Andree assented, and then lay still with her head upon the pillows, and her face turned away from the light.

CHAPTER XXIII. "Are you joking, Kathle? If so, the joke is neither a kind nor a delicate one."
"Dearest brother," and Kathle brought her sweet face beseechingly near his, "I would not hurt you for the world; but I believe what I say is true, and I hoped you saw it also."

"Have you so far forgotten the past, Kathie, as to think that even if I knew I was free I could forget?"

Kathleen was silent. When she had remained behind from the riding party that morning with the intention of opening her brother's eyes to the evident partiality which Constance Staveley, Mrs. Clarence's pretty niece, entertained for Clarence's pretty niece, entertained for him, she had no notion that the news would displease him, and when she recog-nized her error it was too late to retract

'I am sorry, Douglas," she murmured, "I am sorry, Douglas," she murmured, flashing her bright eyes up to his for a moment. "I did so hope it. Really, I don't think I am the only one. I am sure Sir Kenneth—"
"I thought he cared for her," said Douglas, in the same pained voice.
"So he does," said his sister, lightly, "But she has eyes only for you, Douglas," "Do you mean that she"—he hesitated a moment—"loves me?"
"Well, no, perhaps not; but unless you manage to stop it, her affection for you now will grow into love."
"Does she know?"

manage to stop it, her affection for you now will grow into love."

"Does she know?"

"Partly," answered Kathie; "but she believes, as we all do, dear Douglas, that if you will you are free to marry again."

A spasm of pain crossed his face.

"It may be," he said, sadly; "but it could make no difference, Kathie."

And with that answer Kathleen was forced to content herself; but her words sorely disturbed Douglas Lancaster, and he pondered over them much during that day, resolving that by a great effort he would tell Constance Staveley as much of the past as would check any embryo aspirations towards himself.

They were gathered in the drawing-room that evening, a gay and well-matched party. Hugh and Mrs. Clarence were at the piano. Kathleen, looking lovely in her white evening-dress, with pearls twisted in her harr and circling her throat, was chatting to Sir Kenneth and a gentleman whom we have met betered to ret Marchmont Husse as Mr Graham. her throat, was chatting to Sir Kenneth and a gentleman whom we have met before at Marchmont House as Mr. Graham, now, through the death of his father. Lord Drotsford. Miss Staveley, dressed in pale blue which showed off her delicate beauty to perfection, stood with Doctor Clement at a table looking over some photographic views, and ever and anon glancing through her long lashes at Douglas, who was leaning back in a deep arm-chair, apparently immersed in a periodical.

"Won't you give us one song tonight, Douglas?" said Kathleen, suddenly break-ing off her flirtation to come to her bro-ther's side, bending over him with a little sing touch of her hand on his brow.

"Only one?"

"Ask my tyrant," he answered, laughing. "May I, Clement?"

"Oh, yes," said the physician. "You are well enough to defy me tonight."

"What shall it be?" asked Douglas, going over to the plane and taking the place Mrs. Clarence resigned to him, running his fingers over the keys as he did so.

"'Il Balen,' " said Hugh, who had taken "'Il Balen,' " said Hugh, who had taken up a position by the chimney-piece and was looking over at Kathleen Lancaste as she stood with Lord Drotsford at her side, with rather dissatisfied eyes. "Looking Back," suggested Kathleen. "No," said Constance, eagerly. "I am sure you sing 'My Queen,' Mr. Lancaster. Do let us have that."

She came eagerly to his side, but he answered her in a low tone and a little coldly:

coldly:
"Not 'My Queen,' Miss Staveley. Some day I will tell you why I never sing 'My Queen' now;" and he began softly and dreamily the accompaniment to 'Il

"Why so serious?" said Kathleen, in a low tone to Hugh. "Which of his num-erous 'smiles' is Sir Hugh Marchmont meditating on?" "I fear you judge by yourself, Kathie," he said, coldly and gravely. "Is it because there is safety in numbers that you have so many strings to your bow?'

She pouted cannot help it. People will come—"
You can help encouraging men so nly," said Hugh; "and then throwing "You can openly," said Hugh; "and then throwing them off with less compunction than you would throw aside an old glove." pouted again, tossed her pretty she pouted again, tossed her pretty head, and sailed away in a state of dudgeon. Hugh did not smile, evidently Kathie was not in his good books just then. She sailed across the room, glanced a minute at the views which Lord Drotsford and Sir Kenneth were admiring with Philip Clement and Mrs.

Clarence, then, quietly opening the win-dow, she stepped on to the balcony with-out any covering on her bare white shoulders or arms, save the necklet and shoulders or arms, save the necklet and bracelet of pearls.

Poor Kathie, once alone on the balcony, the pretended haughtiness faded, and an expression of intense unhappiness came over the bright lovely face. At that moment any of her admirers would have wondered at the sadness and weariness of the pround little coquette.

"He will never love me," she murmured to herself, "Oh, Hugh, I wish he would—I wish he would; I can never love anyone else."

And then tears came, and she cried and then tears came, and she cried softly. The music died away, Douglas, rising from the piano, had joined Constance Stavely at a distant sofa and was talking to her earnestly and low. Sir Kenneth, looking pale and melancholy, was trying to interest himself with the photographs, although for the life of him he could not refrain from a glance at the fair, bowed head, which was so near Douglas Lancaster's—at the fair face which looked so moved and agitated at the words he was speaking. Acute as his own momentary pang was, Acute as his own momentary pang was, a feeling of surprise mingled with it to think that Andree should be so soon forgotten. Yes, it was a love story that Douglas was pouring into the attentive ears beside him—of a love, changeless and unalterable, to end with life only; but it was his love for Andree Marchmont, for the woman he had loved and lost, not for Constance Staveley. The girl was touched at the confidence, and her eyes filled as he went on. ITo be Continued.1

SUNNY WOMEN.

Who has not known the woman whose disposition is described by that one word "sunny?" There's always a laugh lurk-ing on her lips. Her cheeks are ever ready to dimple in smiles. Her household influence is as brightening and stimulating as the sunshine. Nothing can be crueler than to have this sunshine blotted out by disease. But this is a common cruelty. The young wife who was the sunshine of the home becomes its shadow. Every young wife should know the value of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in the protection and preservation of the health. It promotes regularity, dries the drains which enfeeble body and mind, and cures inflammation, ulceration and female weakness It nourishes the nervous system and gives to the body the balance and buoyancy of perfect health. It is a strictly temperance medicine.

"I can say that your medicine cured me," writes Mrs. Maud Pearce, of Stoutsville, Fairfield Co., Ohio. "I had suffered about twelve years from female weakness and I had almost given up, thinking there was no cure for me. Then I heard about Dr. Pierce's medicine and thought I would try it, and can say that seven bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' made me well. I am now able to do my own housework. I took about twelve bottles in all of Dr. Pierce's medicines. Took some of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' Favorite Prescription' and some of the 'Pleasant Pellets.'" temperance medicine.

BAKERS PLAY BALL.

The city bakers laid aside their usual work of making bread yesterday and tried their hands at making a few runs in a game of baseball played with the drivers at Springbank. They succeeded in making a few runs, but as the drivers drove the ball all over the field, the bakers found themselves in the dough at the end of the match. Umpire James Black did his best to keep the two teams in order, and succeeded fairly well. Carroll made a three-bagger and Collins a two-base hit, feats that for-ever establish their reputation as

A large crowd from Stratford and London watched the red, white and black win from the strong Iroquois, of Stratford yesterday. There was joy in the London camp when the last whistle blew and the score stood 4 to 2 in their favor.

The whole team played well for London. From goal keeper to inside home every man was on the jump. Stratford presented a new face in "Peck" Johnstone, and were supposed to have their strongest twelve. The referee gave fair decisions and general satis-

Just before time in the third quarter, after a beautiful piece of com-bination between Brennan, Fleming and West, Fleming drove the sphere into the net. There was a dispute as to the time of the goal, but the referee had given his decision and could not reverse it. Dunn said things to the referee and looked at the remainder of the game from the bench. The last quarter was all London, West batting the ball through after 14 minutes play. "Buzzer" Gordon went down to help the Stratfords home, but could not get by the London defense. The call of time left London in possession of the big end of the score, and the crowd cheered loudly. When Referee J. A. Tune called the players out, the line-up was: ·London-Swackhamer, goal; Blackford, point; Kelleher, cover; Graves, Hawkshaw, Kerrigan, defense, Jefferson, center, Ross, Brennan, Gibbons, home field; Fleming, outside; West, inside; Smith, field captain. Stratford—Laughton, goal; Gordon, point; Pengelly, cover; Forbes, R. Easson, Gifford, defense; Farquharson, center; W. Easson, Johnston, Rankin, home field; Dunn, outside; Daly in-

HORTICULTURAL ASSOCIATION

Canadian horticulturists Convene at the City Hall.

Interesting Addresses by President J. H. Dunlop, Dr. Bethune and Others.

The Canadian Horticultural Association is holding the fourth annual convention in the city hall. It began yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and Kingston, Toronto and other places. Mayor Rumball delivered an address of welcome, which was replied to by Mr. Thomas Manton, of Eglinton. The president, Mr. J. H. Dunlop, of Toronto, then delivered his address. He extended a hearty welcome to the members of the association, which has for its aim and object, he said, the lifting up and carrying forward all that pertains to horticultural and particularly that branch known as "floriculture." The speaker referred to the present day improvements in the products of our greenhouses, over the products of twelve or fifteen years ago, the difference has been in both quality and quantity, and the ex-cellence has been met by a demand for all that has been raised. Mr. Dunlop also spoke of the success achieved by Canadian growers who exhibited at the American Rose Society's exhibition at New York. Ten first prizes were taken. Highest honors were also taken by Canadians at the carnation show at the Pan American. Such a showing should prove an incentive to still further effort on behalf of those who have chosen such a calling. In con-clusion, he referred to the loss of the Canadian Gardeners' and Florists' Exchange, a paper which had ceased publication. He hoped that some time during the present convention steps would be taken towards resuscitating this trade journal, and establishing it on a firm financial basis.

The judges appointed for the trade exhibition are: Thomas Manton, of Eglinton; George Robinson, of Montreal; and E. Dale, of Brampton.
At the evening session Dr. Bethune delivered a very instructive address on the subject of "Insects Injurious to Floral Culture." He stated that more taste was displayed this year, than ever before in the matter of floral decorations in this city. This, he believed, was due in part to the influence of the Horticultural Society. He dwelt upon the necessity of a careful know-edge of insects. Through lack of this knowledge people often destroyed their best friends—those insects that are ne-cessary to plant life. Insects might be separated into three classes-noxious insects, beneficial insects, neutral insects. The noxious insects were of two classes as regards to structure, those that take their food by biting and those that take it by sucking. The remedy for insects that bite was to poison the foliage. The second class sucked the juices from inside the leaf or stem, and consequently escaped the poison. The proper way to destroy the latter class was to apply something to the body to kill it. He emphasized the treatment of those insects which infest flowers. Wasps were really beneficial insects. The number of insect remedies were constantly increasing. Almost every year entomologists found that some new pest or other comes to the front. Very few of our noxious insects were native born; the majority of them come from Europe and Asia. Most of the scale insects to accommodate the congregation that had come chiefly from tropical region". Dr. Bethune gave directions for the destruction of some of the most troublesome pests. through their mouths, but by a series of breathing pores along the body; these the different emulsions close up and the insect is smothered to death. Many fruit growers had suffered loss from the San Jose scale, which at-tacked all kinds of fruit trees and spreads very rapidly. Scale insects were common also among plants, and in these cases fumigation with to-bacco was often very effective. Something very penetrating was necessary to pierce the outer scale in order to get to the insect, and if the tobacco fumes failed, hydrocyanic acid gas was effective, but the utmost care should be exercised in handling it, as animal life would live only a few seconds in it. This treatment, however, should be resorted to only as a very last resource, owing to its dangerous nature as a friend to the gardener, and reconimended that a toad or two be kept in the greenhouse. They were very effective insect destroyers. "No one," said the doctor, "should destroy an insect unless he is sure it belongs to the destructive variety. He should not de-stroy it because it is an insect." Mr. W. Lawrence, president of the Toronto Gardeners' and Fiorists' Association, spoke on the subject: "The Advancement of Horticulture." He compared from a commercial point of view the flowers of the present with those of fifteen or twenty years ago. The successful florist of today is very different, he said, from the florist of the In the up-to-date florist's establishment everything was clean and bright with attractive surroundings. There was a difference also in the arrangement of flowers. The change had taken place by degrees, and for the improvement credit to a large extent should be given to the floral exhibits at the fall exhibitions.

The speaker stated that there was in Canada a growing demand for roses; and in New York also there was a demand for Canadian roses. He thought we had every reason to feel proud of the progress Canadian growers were making from a commercial roint of view.

Upon the invitation of the president and directors of the London Horticultural Society, the delegates this morning took a trolley ride through the city and to Springbank, where luncheon was served.

delegates are present from Montreal, And Four Persons Received Painful Injuries.

Shaken Up and Both Cars Were

An accident occurred on the Springbank line shortly after 6 o'clock yes terday afternoon by which four persons received painful injuries and several others were more or less bruised. The injured perosns are John Aikenhead, of 123 Horton street; Thomas Stephens, of 26 Saunby street; Miss Edna Mansbridge, Pipe Line road, and Miss Nona Donnelly, of Appin.

A trolley with two trailers attached was proceeding toward the city, followed closely by one of the large new cars. When near the county club the bell rope on the leading car was pulled, and the car was stopped. Motorman Temple, of the car following shut off his power and endeavored to apply his brake, but he was hemmed in my passengers, who saw the danger of impending collision, and in their efforts to get off they crowded upon him, preventing him from using the brake. The car's momentum carried it on until it struck the trailer ahead of it, smashing in both platforms of the trailer and damaging the headlight and vestibule of the big car.

Thomas Stephens, who is 70 years old, and who was on the back platform of the trailer, had two ribs broken and his right thigh severely bruised. He was removed to his

John Aikenhead had his right leg badly jammed, but no bones were broken. Mr. Aikenhead, who is 28 years old and in delicate health, suffered severely from shock.

Miss Edna Mansbridge was thrown over a seat and had several teeth loosened by striking on a seat back. Her thigh was severely cut and she was rescued with difficulty from the crowded car by Mr. Joe Paladino, of Cleveland. Miss Donnelly, who is visiting Miss Mansbridge, had her legs severely bruised and received a bad shaking. Other passengers received minor hurts. Dr. J. M. Piper and Dr. Cligord Reason were passengers on the cars, and they attended to the injured pas-
