Select Poetry.

Times Go By Turns.

The sea of fortune hath not ever flow:
She draws her favors to the lowest ebb;
Her tides have equal time to come and go;
Her loom doth weave the fine and good;
No joy so great but ruineth to an end,
No hap so hard, but may in time amend.

Not always fall of leaf, nor ever spring,
Not endless night, nor yet eternal day;
The saddest time season find to sing,
The roughest storm a calm may soothe away.

Thus with succeeding turns, God tempereth all,
That man may hope to rise, yet fear to fall.

A change may win that by mischance was lost;
A net that holds no great takes little fish;
In some things all, in all things none are crossed;
Few all they need, but none have all they wish.

Unmingle joys here to no man befall;
Who least hath some; who most, hath never all.

Interesting Story.

The Husband's Present.

(CONCLUDED.)

"Ah, Wilkins," said the old captain, "What has brought you here?"

The poor man twice attempted to speak, but his heart failed him.

"Do you come for charity?"

"No, sir," quickly returned Wilkins, while his eyes gleamed with a proud light.

"Then sit down and out with it," said Walker, in a blunt but kind tone.

"Captain Walker," commenced the poor man, as he took the proffered seat, "I have come to ask you if you still own the little cottage beyond the hill."

"And is it occupied?"

"No."

"Is it engaged?"

"No," returned the captain, regarding his visitor with uncommon interest.

"But why do you ask?"

"Captain Walker," said Wilkins, in a firm and manly tone, even though his eyes glistened and his lips quivered.

"I have been poor and degraded, deeply steeped in the dregs of poverty and disgrace. Everything that made life valuable, I have almost lost. My wife and children have suffered—and oh, God only knows how keenly I have longed to wander in the path of sin."

One after another the tender words of friendship that used to bind me to the world have snapped asunder; my name has become a byword, and upon the earth I have been but a foul blot.

But, sir, from henceforth, I am a man! Up from the depth of its long grave I have dragged forth my heart, and love still has its home therein. I have sworn to touch the fatal cup no more; and in my heart there is no lie! My wife and my children shall suffer no more for the sins they never committed. I have seen my old employer at the machine shop, and he has given me a situation, and is even anxious that I should come back; and sir, he has even been kind enough to give me an order in advance for necessary articles of clothing, food, and furniture. To-morrow morning I commence work."

"And you came to see if you could obtain your cottage back again to live in?" said Capt. Walker, as Wilkins hesitated.

"Yes, sir—to see if I could hire it of you," returned the poor man.

"Wilkins, how much can you make at your business?" bluntly asked the old captain, without seeming to heed the request.

"My employer is going to put me on job work, sir; and as soon as I get my hand in, I can easily make from fourteen to twenty dollars a week."

"And how much will it take to support your family?"

"As soon as I get cleared up, I can easily get along with five or six dollars a week."

"Then you might be able to save about four hundred dollars a year?"

"I mean to do that, sir."

A few moments Capt. Walker gazed into the face of his visitor, and then he asked:

"Have you pledged yourself yet?"

"Before God and in my heart I do; but one of my errands here was to get you to write me a pledge, and have it made to my wife and children."

Capt. Walker sat down to his table and wrote out the required pledge, and then, in a trembling, but bold hand, Thomas Wilkins signed it.

"Wilkins," said the old man, as he took his visitor by the hand, "I have watched well your countenance. I know you speak truth! When I bought that cottage from your creditors six years ago I paid them one thousand dollars for it. It has not been harmed, and is as good as it was then. Most of the time I have received good rent for it. Now, sir, you shall have it for just what I have paid for it, and each month you shall pay me such a sum as you can comfortably spare until it is all paid. I will ask you for no rent, nor for a cent of interest. You shall have a deed of the estate, and in return I will take but a single note and mortgage, upon which you can have your own time."

Thomas Wilkins tried to thank the old man for his kindness, but he only sank back into the chair, and wept like a child; and while he yet sat with his face buried in his hands, the old man slipped from the room. And when at length he returned, he bore in his hand a neatly covered basket.

"Come, come," the captain exclaimed, "cheer up, my friend. Here are some tid-bits for your wife and children—take them home; and believe me, Wilkins, if you feel half as happy in receiving my favor as I do in bestowing it, you are happy indeed."

"Oh God—God will bless you for this, sir!" exclaimed the kindness-stricken man; "and if I betray your confidence, may I die on the instant!"

"Stick to your pledge, Wilkins, and I will take care of the rest," said the old captain, as his friend took the basket. "If you have time to-morrow, call on me, and I will arrange the papers."

"No."

As Thomas Wilkins once more entered the street his countenance was light and easy. A bright light of joyousness shone in every feature, and as he wended his homeward way, he felt in every avenue of his soul that he was once more a man!

The gloomy shades that descended in the night of the thirty-first of December had fallen over the snow-clad earth. Within the miserable dwelling of Mrs. Wilkins there was more of comfort than we found when first we visited her, but yet nothing had been added to the furniture of the place. For the last six days her husband had come home every evening, and gone away before daylight every morning, and during that time she knew he had drank no intoxicating beverage, for already his face began to assume the stamp of his former manhood, and every word that he had spoken had been kind and affectionate. To his children he had brought new shoes and warmer clothing, and to himself he had given such things as he stood in immediate need of; but yet, with all this, he had been taciturn and thoughtful, showing a dislike of all questions, and only speaking such words as were necessary. The poor, devoted, loving wife began to hope! And why should she not? For six years her husband had not been thus before. One week ago she dreaded his approach; but now she found herself waiting for him with all the anxiety of former years. Should all this be broken? Should this new charm be swept away? Bright o'clock came, and so did nine and ten, and yet her husband came not!

"Mother," said little Charley, just as the clock struck ten, seeming to have awakened from a dreamy slumber, "isn't this the last night of the old year?"

"Yes, my son."

"And do you know what I've been dreaming, dear mother? I dreamed that father had brought us New Year's presents, just the same as he used to. But he won't, will he? He's too poor, now!"

"No, my dear boy, we shall have no other present than food; and even for that, we must thank dear father. There, lay your head in my lap again."

The boy laid his curly head once more upon his mother's lap, and with tearful eyes she gazed upon his innocent form.

The clock struck eleven! The poor wife was on her yet, tireless, sleepless watch! But hardly had the sound of the last stroke died away ere the snow-crust gave back the sound of a footfall, and in a moment more her husband entered. With a trembling fear she raised her eyes to his face, and a wild thrill of joy went to her heart as she saw that all there was open and bold—only those manly features looked more joyous, more proud than ever.

"Lizzie," said he, in mild, kind accents, "I am late to-night, but business has detained me, and now I have a favor to ask of thee."

"Name it, dear Thomas, and you shall not ask a second time," cried the wife, as she laid her hand confidently upon her husband's arm.

"And you will ask me no questions?" continued Wilkins.

"No, I will not."

"Then," continued the husband, as he bent over and imprinted a kiss upon his wife's brow, "I want you to dress your children for a walk, and you shall accompany us. The night is calm and tranquil, and the snow is well trodden. Ah, no questions! Remember your promise!"

Lizzie Wilkins knew not what all this meant, nor did she think nor care; for anything that could please her husband she would have done with pleasure, even though it had wrenched her very heart-strings. In a short time the two children were ready; then Mrs. Wilkins put on such articles of dress as she could command, and soon they were in the road. The moon shone bright, the stars shone down upon the earth, and they seemed to smile upon the travellers from out their twinkling eyes of light. Silently Wilkins led the way, and silently his wife and children followed. Several times the wife gazed up into her husband's countenance; but from the strange expression that rested there, she could make out nothing that tended to satisfy her.

At length, a slight turn in the road brought them suddenly upon the pretty white cottage where years before they had been so happy. They approached the spot. The snow in the front yard had been swept away, and a path led up to the piazza. Wilkins opened the gate—his wife tremblingly followed, but wherefore she knew not. Then her husband opened the door, and in the entry they were met by the smiling countenance of old Capt. Walker, who ushered them into the parlor where a warm fire glowed in the grate, and where everything looked neat and comfortable. Mrs. Wilkins turned her gaze upon the old man, and then upon her husband. Surely, in that greeting between the poor man and the rich, there was none of that constraint which would have been expected. They met rather as friends and neighbors. What could it mean?

Hark! the clock strikes twelve! The old year has gone, and a new, a bright winged one, is about to commence its flight over the earth!

Thomas Wilkins took the hand of his wife within his own, and then drawing from his bosom a paper he placed it in her hand, remarking as he did so: "Lizzie, this is your husband's present for the new year!"

The wife took the paper, and she opened it. She realized its contents at a glance; but she could not read it word for word, for the streaming tears of a wild, frantic joy would not let her. With a quick nervous movement she placed the priceless pledge next her bosom; and then, with a low murmur like the gentle whispering of some heaven-bound angel, she fell half fainting into her husband's arms.

"Look up, look up, my own dear wife," uttered the redeemed man, "look up and smile upon your husband; and you, too, my children, gather about your father—for a husband and a father henceforth I will ever be. Look up, my wife. There—Now, Lizzie, feel proud with me, for we stand within our own house! Yes, this cottage is once more our own; and nothing but the hand of death shall again take us hence. Our good, kind friend here will explain it all. O Lizzie, if there is happiness on earth, it shall be ours! Let the past be forgotten, and with this, the dawning of a new year, let us commence to live in the future."

Gently the husband and wife sank upon their knees, clasped in each other's arms; and clinging joyfully to them, knelt their conscious, happy children. A prayer from the husband's lips wended its way to the throne of grace; and, with the warm tears trickling down his aged face, old Capt. Walker responded a heartfelt "Amen."

Five years have passed since that happy moment. Thomas Wilkins has cleared his pretty cottage from all encumbrance, and a happier, a more respected family do not exist. And Lizzie—that gentle, confiding wife—as she takes the simple paper from the drawer, and gazes again and again upon the magic pledge it bears, weeps tears of joy anew. Were all the wealth of the Indies poured out in one glittering, blinding pile at her feet, and all the world added thereto, she would not for the whole countless sum, give in exchange one single word from that pledge which constituted her husband's present.

Death from Strong Drink.

While for many years we were firmly convinced that the liquor habit was an evil, and more than an evil, and that continually; and while we believed that the moderate use of alcohol in health or disease was fraught with great danger, and while we believed and still believe that the absolute safety against the formation of this liquor habit with its inseparable evils, is total abstinence from their use, yet we were skeptical somewhat in regard to the alleged annual mortality from the use of alcohol in its various forms. When the statements were made that sixty (60) thousand people perish annually in the United States alone from inebriety and disease induced by the use of alcoholic liquors, we believed the figures large, if not greatly exaggerated.

Rev. Dr. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate, a very careful and reliable paper, in the last issue of that paper, says:—

"Dr. Norman Kerr, an eminent physician of England, believing the statement of temperance people to be extravagant, that 60,000 people die annually from effects of strong drink, began as early as 1870 a personal inquiry, in connection with several medical men and experts, expecting to quickly disprove the same. According to their deductions the latest estimate of deaths of adults annually caused through intemperance is, in Great Britain, 120,000; in France, 142,000; in the United States, 80,000; or nearly half a million each year in three countries aggregating a population of 120,000,000."—Etc.

A Father's Gift.

There was a German bride who had a wise father. Among his wedding gifts he bestowed upon her a small and exquisitely beautiful golden casket, which he charged her on no account to intrust to other hands, "for," said he, "it holds a precious charm against many of the evils that inexperienced housewives have to encounter. You are to use it by taking it every morning to the kitchen, the cellar, and the table, and setting it down on each for three minutes. You will have to retain by it, for the magic will not work otherwise; it has a mysterious connection with you alone. At the end of three years you may open the casket (I will send you the key on the third anniversary of your wedding day) for then it will have done all the good it can." When opened its sole contents was a little strip of parchment on which was written, "The eyes of the mistress is worth a hundred pairs of servant's hands," and he felt that a habit of three years, standing might be left to itself.

HOSPITAL REMEDIES.

What are they? The growth of intelligence in medical matters has given rise to a demand for a class of genuine, reliable medicine. The opportunity of the ignorant quack, who grew rich curing everything out of a single bottle has passed. To supply satisfactorily this demand this list of remedies has been created. They are the favorite prescriptions of the most famous medical practitioners of the day, gathered from the hospitals of London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna. Prescriptions which cost the patients of these specialists from $25 to $100 are here offered prepared and ready for use at the nominal price of one dollar each. No one of them is a cure all; each one has only the reasonable power of curing a single disease, and each one keeps its contract. Sufferers from Catarrh, Disinfecting Lungs, Bronchitis, Asthma, Consumption, Rheumatism, Lymphatic, Liver and Kidney Complaints, Fever and Ague, Neuralgia, Female Weakness, Leucorrhoea or Nervous Debility, should send stamp for descriptive catalogue to HOSPITAL REMEDY CO., 303 1/2 West King St., Toronto, Canada. If your druggist does not keep these, Grand Depot direct.

When You Need

An Alternative Medicine, don't forget that everything depends on the kind used. Ask for Ayer's Sarsaparilla and take no other. For over forty years this preparation has had the endorsement of leading physicians and druggists, and it has achieved a success unparalleled in the history of proprietary medicines.

"For a rash, from which I had suffered some months, my father, an M. D., recommended Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It effected a cure. I am still taking this medicine, as I find it to be a most powerful blood-purifier."—J. B. Cooke, Denton, Texas.

"O. H. Hax, Druggist, Bransville, Ind., writes: 'I have been selling Ayer's Sarsaparilla for many years. It maintains its popularity, with many other preparations, formerly as well known, have long been forgotten.'"

"I have always recommended Ayer's Sarsaparilla as superior to any other preparation for purifying the blood."—G. B. Kuykendall, M. D., Pomeroy, W. T.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., MAY 3, 1889.

The Water Vote Carried.

The election on Wednesday last resulted in the adopting of the act by a majority of 56 votes. The poll stood 73 for, 17 against. We congratulate the people of Wolfville on their enterprise in embracing this opportunity of placing our town on a level, so far as water is concerned, with other progressive towns.

Our Public Schools.

The examinations of the Wolfville Public Schools took place on the 26th and 27th of April. There were some parents and friends present—not many. It is a shame there were no more. The public heart is not stirred in this matter as it should be.

But it is not my purpose to deliver a homily. The above remarks are as much for the writer as for others. Peccavi should be each one's cry. But let the dead past be, and resolve to redeem the time. The writer made an effort, last Friday, to do this, and under the impulse of this resolve soon found himself in Miss Denison's department of our public school.

Monday afternoon was the time appointed for testing the acquirements of Mr. Bishop's pupils. When we entered the room the work of examination was in full force. Fractions in Arithmetic was the subject—the terminus a quo, so to speak. What I especially liked in the exercise was this: there was nothing in it to indicate cram—nothing cut and dried. The teacher did not blush when his pupils hesitated in their replies. The answers came after the questions were duly weighed. This is always the process when it is preferred that the pupil draw the answer from his own consciousness—from his knowledge of the subject.

Municipal Council.

Council met in Court House, Kentville, on Tuesday, the 22d April, Warden Curry presiding. W. E. Roscoe was sworn in as Councillor for Ward 3.

Report of committee to adjust matters between County and town of Kentville was read and adopted, Kentville to pay $1,000 to county.

Resolved that the road and bridge moneys granted by Legislature be expended by commissioners.

Resolved that the fire wardens in Canby be allowed to place their engine house on the bank near the bay scales.

Resolved that the supervisors be authorized to lease lands adjoining E. M. Beckwith's to him and require him to keep gate across the road.

WE HAVE . . . . .

HIT

. . . UPON A PLAN

To Benefit Our Subscribers.

THE ACADIAN is pleased to announce the completion of special arrangements whereby it is enabled to offer its readers two of the best family journals for but little more than the price of one.

FOR $1.50

We will send, for one year, to any address,

THE ACADIAN

and the Famous Family Weekly,

The Detroit Free Press

The Free Press is without question the Greatest Literary and Humorous paper now before the American people. It is not a new aspirant for public favor; established over fifty years ago, it has stood the test of time, and is to-day stronger, better and more popular than ever—120,000 subscribers affirm its surpassing excellence. The funny sketches and sayings of the Free Press are everywhere quoted and laughed at, while its reports to literary excellence it will compare favorably with the expensive magazines.

"M. Quad," "Luke Sharp," "Eva Best," "Rose Hartwick Thorpe," "Chas. F. Adams," "Hamilton Jay," "Lizzie York Case," "Bronson Howard," "H. G. Dollop," and a host of other favorite writers, contribute regularly to its columns. Recognizing the growing demand for first-class fiction, The Free Press has offered prizes for the three best Serial Stories of 60,000 words each. A number of the best writers have announced their intention to compete.

$3,000.00 IN CASH

In addition to the many other special features it is the intention to publish sections of Three Serial Stories Each Week, written expressly for The Free Press by the best American and English authors.

It will be seen, therefore, that by subscribing for THE ACADIAN and the Free Press, the entire family can be supplied with all the News and with the best of current Literature for a year, at a cost of Less Than Three Cents A Week.

The Free Press is a large eight-page seven-column paper, and the regular price is One Dollar per year. Remember that for $1.50 you can have The Free Press and your favorite home paper also. Sample copies can be seen at this office.

We hope that our friends will show their appreciation of our efforts in their behalf, by making up their minds to take advantage of this splendid offer—

SUBSCRIBE AT ONCE.

"Charles Haddon Spurgeon."

Monday evening a large audience assembled in College Hall to hear Rev. Mr Adams, of Yarmouth, deliver a lecture on "Charles Haddon Spurgeon." After hearing the very able efforts of the Reverend gentleman on Sunday the hopes of all ran high, and it is needless to say that none were disappointed. In a very pleasing and clear manner the lecturer outlined the early history of "The Prince of Preachers" and then took up, one by one, some of the most important institutions brought into existence by this tireless and amazingly successful worker. The secret of Mr Spurgeon's wonderful success as a pulpit orator was then discussed and a number of his literary works alluded to; the lecturer ended with a most glowing tribute to his former pastor and instructor—whom Gladstone calls "the last of the Puritans." At the close of the address a vote of thanks was tendered Mr Adams from the College Y. M. C. A., under whose auspices he spoke, coupled with the assurance that if at any future time he should favor us with another visit, he would be most cordially welcomed by all present.

C. W. Bishop wishes to inform the people of Wolfville and the neighboring country that he is prepared to do all kinds of painting, paper-hanging, kalsomining and glazing in best style. Send along your orders. 3mos

Presentation at Lockhartville.

Miss Annie B. Best, who has been teaching at Lockhartville for some time past, resigned her position at the close of last term. On her departure from that place she was made the recipient of a handsome case of shells and silver butter-knife by the Division of the S. of T., at that place. The former is a most valuable present, having been brought from the West Indies, by Captain Nasson, over 30 years ago, where it was made by a blind negro. It is a beautiful piece of work containing many varieties of beautiful shells, arranged in a most tasty manner. Below we publish the address which accompanied it and Miss Best's reply:

ADDRESS: To Miss Annie B. Best, DEAR SISTER,—We, your brothers and sisters of "Newton" Division, knowing you are about to leave our circle, do hereby present to you this address and the accompanying tokens as a slight reminder of the esteem and regard we cherish for you as a member of our Division. Wishing you prosperity in all your future life; and may joy and happiness attend you till the setting of life's sun and you hear the gavel of the Great Patriarch above'ting upon the sounding board of eternity; and then may you have the pass that will insure you a seat in the "Grand Lodge" of Heaven.

Signed in behalf of the Division, STANLEY FULLER, W. P. MARSHALL JENK'S, R. S.

REPLY: To the Members of "Newton" Division, DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS,—It is with much appreciation and heartfelt gratitude that I wish to thank you for the beautiful tokens tendered to me upon the dissolution of these pleasant associations that have existed between us for some eighteen months. It has ever been a pleasure for me to labor in the Temperance cause, and it is with feelings of deepest thankfulness that I have watched the prosperity and advancement of "Newton" Division; and I trust, during my sojourn with you, I may have added my mite to a grand and glorious cause. May you continue to advance upward and onward until we meet in the "Grand Division" above, Yours in Love, Purity and Fidelity, ANNIE B. BEST.

Ladies be sure and ask your druggists and grocers for the Excelsior Dyes they are only 8 cents a package, and will dye brighter and dye more goods than any dyes sold.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the ACADIAN:

DEAR EDITOR,—If you will allow me a small space in your valuable paper I would like to say a few words about the sawdust which is being unlawfully thrown into the Gaspareau river. There seems to be considerable talk about having it stopped immediately, but I think it will end in talk unless new commissioners are appointed, as the present commissioners seem incapable of doing anything except apparently aiding a certain mill owner in breaking the law. It has been reported that this mill owner has been fined a trifling amount, which I doubt very much, it does not stop the sawdust at all events, as the river is full of it every day. Now what in the name of common sense is the use of fining a man if the fine is not collected, it won't stop him that's dead sure. To draw the wool over the commissioners' eyes, which, by the way, seems an easy matter in this case, a few wheelbarrow loads of sawdust is already and whenever an official shows up the sawdust is stopped running into the river and the wheelbarrows are started. Now, what happens after the officials go away can be imagined at least. This miller should be compelled to close up the ditch he has opened which allows the sawdust to pass into the river by a small stream which is turned on for the purpose, then the dust could not run into the river when the commissioner's back was turned as it does at present. It is evident that while this place is left open it will be impossible to stop the sawdust unless some one is appointed to watch. It is not fair that while one mill is compelled to take care of its sawdust that this other mill owner, with a thousand times as much and further up the river, is apparently allowed to do as he likes. I understand on good authority that a petition is being circulated for the purpose of having new commissioners appointed, but I am sure if the present commissioners would only do their duty the petition would surely drop, beside having the thanks of the community at large. FAIR PLAY.

W. A. Payzant, dentist, has just returned from dental college and is prepared to do finer work than ever. All kinds of dental work done by the latest methods. Office at his residence, Station street, opposite Acadia Hotel, Wolfville.

Special Announcement.

We have made arrangements with Dr B. J. Kendall Co., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," which will enable all our subscribers to obtain a copy of that valuable work free of charge by sending their address (enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) to Dr B. J. Kendall Co., ENOSBURGH FALLS, VT. This book is now recognized as standard authority upon all diseases of the horse, as its phenomenal sale attests, over four million copies having been sold in the past ten years, a sale never before reached by any publication in the same period of time. We feel confident that our patrons will appreciate the work, and be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity of obtaining a valuable book.

It is necessary that you mention this paper in sending for the "Treatise." This offer will remain open for only a short time.

The Excelsior Dyes will dye more goods than any dyes made and will dye brighter and more brilliant colors, they are sold at all druggists and grocers at only 8 cents.

Early Closing.

We, the undersigned merchants, doing business in the Town of Kentville, do hereby severally agree, we will close up our places of business every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at six o'clock p. m., sharp, commencing Monday, May 15th, 1889. We do so in the full belief that it is an act of justice we owe to ourselves and our clerks, and that it will not be detrimental to business, and desire that this agreement may be inserted for one month in the Acadian, New Star and Acadian that the public may have due notice thereof.
