CHAPTER XXVII.
ELLIOT'S NEW FRIEND.
Elliott went slowly upstairs, looking about him with a faint interest. Suddenly he started, as Cyril had done, and stopped before the portrait on the landing. He was amazed, and could scarcely believe his eyes, and his heart stirred with emotion; for the portrait was that of his father.
How came it there, in that old house, and why was it in the possession of Miss Ralston?
When Jacob came lumbering up with the hot water, Elliott turned to him with the question—
"Do you know whose portrait this is?"
"No," replied Jacob indifferently. "How should I? Some friend or relation of Miss Deborah's, I suppose."
Elliott tore himself away from the portrait reluctantly, and stood and gazed at it again before he went downstairs. He tried to remember his father's mentioning the name of Ralston, but he could not do so. The portrait was beautifully painted, and was doubtless valuable; it was probable that its present owner had bought it at some sale. He made a pretence of a meal, was driven to Portash, and took the train thence to London.
He went down to Lloyd's at once, but could get no information, and tried one or two of the Bristol shipping agents; but they had heard nothing of the running down of the Happy Lucy, and at one of the offices the manager convinced him that it was too early to get tidings through official sources, and that if the boy were saved, Elliott would very soon hear from him direct.
Compelled to be more or less satisfied with this result of his inquiries, Elliott went on to the man to whom Mr. Trustram had sent him. He found this gentleman up to his neck in business. He rapidly looked over the plans, and listened intently to Elliott's statement; then he pushed the drawings aside, glanced at his watch, frowned, and said—

"All right, Mr. Graham, I'll take it in hand as quickly as possible. Where are you staying? The 'Ocell' right? I'll communicate with you at the earliest possible moment."
Elliott went back to the hotel, and as he was entering the courtyard a big burly man, in escaping a hansom cab, sprang on to the kerb so suddenly that he bounced against Elliott.
"I beg your pardon," he said with a genial laugh. "Crowded place, this London of yours! I spend half my time dodging the cabs and the 'buses'—"
He broke off suddenly, and started at Elliott. "Why, bless my life! It isn't young Elliott Graham?"
Elliott looked at the man, trying to remember him; then he said—
"It's Mr. Wedderburn, isn't it?"
"The same, my boy," responded the stranger heartily. "Well, of all the odd things, meeting you here!"
They shook hands with warmth on both sides; for this Mr. Wedderburn had owned the nearest rancho to the Graham, and the two men had been great friends.
"You're staying here, I hope?" said Mr. Wedderburn. "I'm awfully glad, by Jove! Fancy running against you! I'd rather have met you than any man I know. My goodness! how many years it is since you and I saw each other! What a change!"
He stopped and surveyed Elliott from head to toe. "You were a mere slip of a boy then, and now you're a full-grown man, and a first-rate one at that. How time passes. Stopping at the 'Ocell' here, eh?" he went on thoughtfully. "So things have turned out all right, have they? You're flourishing, eh? I thought they would; always said so. Glad I'm right."
"Yes, I am flourishing," admitted Elliott.
"You must tell me all about it some day," said Wedderburn. "Hope you haven't had your dinner? That's right! We'll have it together. By George, I'm in luck! Got plenty of friends outside, but don't know a soul in this huge hotel, and feel quite lonely. By the way, now I look at you again, you don't look in very high fettle, do you? London air, I suppose; not that I've been able to find any yet! How on earth any one can live in a place like this, without air to breathe, or room to move their elbows, when they can come out to Australia, I can't understand—"
"Waiter, let's have the best dinner you can put on, and a bottle of that champagne I had last night."
They dined together, and Elliott cheered up somewhat; indeed, it would have been rather difficult to brood in the company of the genial, light-hearted and prosperous Australian. He had come over to London on business, but was combining a large amount of pleasure with it; and on hearing that Elliott had nothing particular to do, he insisted on their chumming together and becoming close companions.
They went to the theatre together that evening, and Mr. Wedderburn enjoyed himself exceedingly; but Elliott's mind wandered back to Lonsway and Cyril, and the childish entertainment failed to divert his thoughts. He spent a portion of the next day making inquiries at the shipping agents whom he had not yet tried, but without any result. At dinner Mr. Wedderburn said that he was going to a reception, and begged Elliott to accompany him.
"It's a place at the West End," he explained, "belonging to a big City man. It's rather a mixed affair, this party, with business attached to it, as is very often the case, so I am told. I wish you'd come with me. I know I can bring a friend."
Elliott consented to go, and after dinner they got a hansom, and were driven to one of the large houses in Kensington Palace Gardens. It was evident that the reception was a very large one, for there were a number of persons in the hall, and several footmen in gorgeous livery were busy taking hats and coats and announcing the arrivals.

"A sight like this would make some of our friends on the other side stare, wouldn't it?" remarked Wedderburn.
"I will say they have a style of doing things in London which looks the rest of the world. Just look at this place, and reflect that there are hundreds, thousands of houses as fine and large in London! Think of the money it means! I am told that Sir Joseph is one of the richest men in the City."
Before Elliott could get over his surprise at hearing the name, they had made their way up the staircase, and were announced.
CHAPTER XXVIII.
IN LONDON.
Lady Ferrand stood just within the handsome room to receive her guests. She carried a bouquet almost as large as herself, and as she shook hands, smiled mechanically, and murmured, as mechanically, the parrot-like formula—
"So glad to see you! So good of you to come!"
It is scarcely necessary to say that she did not recognize Elliott; it is doubtful whether she knew or remembered one out of a hundred of the people whom she greeted.
Elliott saw Sir Joseph standing in a corner of the room, the centre of a group of men with "City" written large all over them. They appeared to be hanging on his words and intently watching his face.
Elliott was wondering what it all meant, and how soon he could get away from the place, when he happened to tread on the skirt of a lady's dress. He turned and apologized, and found that the lady was Miss Florence Bartley. She murmured the conventional acceptance of his apology, then she raised her eyes, held him for a moment, and with a startled expression on her face, said—
"Mr. Graham!"
Elliott smiled.
"You are surprised to see me here," he said, in his frank, ingenuous way.
"Yes, I am," she admitted. "Tell me—take me out of the crowd; there is a little room over there, through that doorway."
She put her hand lightly on his arm, and he led her into the ante-room.
"And now," she said with a smile, "begin from the beginning."
Elliott had not the least intention of beginning at the beginning, or, indeed, of telling her anything of all that had happened to him since they had last met.
"I came with a friend," he said, "an old friend of my father's, from Australia."
She glanced at him quickly.
"How interesting! What is his name?"
"Wedderburn," replied Elliott.
"Are you staying in London?" she asked.
Elliott said that he was, and gave the name of the hotel.
"I am so glad," she said. "I mean that it is so pleasant to meet an old friend"—Elliott looked somewhat surprised at the term, and she went on quickly—"I mean, some one from that delightful place in Devonshire. Are you going to stay long?"
"I am not sure," said Elliott.
"At any rate, you must come and see me," she said. "I am staying with my father at his digs in Jermyn Street. Oh, there is my father!"
She beckoned with her fan, and an elderly young man, with a bald head round which was carefully wound a wisp of hair, and prominent eyes which seemed to be looking out hungrily for something, came towards them.
"Father, this is Mr. Graham, of whom you have often heard me speak."
Sir Terence looked mystified but for only an instant; his face wrinkled with an ingratiating smile, and he held out his hand, exclaiming—
"Of course, of course! Delighted to meet you, Mr. Graham. Florence and I were only talking of you last night; delighted to meet you!"
"I am trying to persuade Mr. Graham," said Florence, with a warning emphasis on the name, "to come in to tea to-morrow afternoon."
"Yes, yes," said Sir Terence. "Unfortunately, I shall be away. Board meeting; but you must come and see with us, Mr. Graham. Come, come, we can't take a refusal," he added excitedly, for he was quick to read the signs on his daughter's countenance. "Come and take pot-luck, as we say in Ireland. Ah! There's Sir Joseph! I want a word with him."
With the exclamation he went off, making his way through the crowd like a small jack in pursuit of minnows.
"My father's an awfully busy man," explained Florence; "they say that he's Sir Joseph's right hand. By the way, have you spoken to Sir Joseph yet?"
"No," said Elliott. "I see that my friend, Mr. Wedderburn, is making his way to him."
"Let us see if we can succeed in doing so," said Florence.
They insinuated a passage through the crowd, her hand still on his arm, as if she were afraid of his escaping. They got to Sir Joseph just as Wedderburn reached him.

PROTEST RESULTS IN RESIGNATION.

LONDON, June 15. Dr. Christopher Addison, formerly Minister of Health, and since last April, Minister without portfolio in the British Cabinet, has resigned his post, it was declared by the Daily Mail to-day. This latest development is described in anti-Government circles, the newspaper said, as a "revolt of Government followers." The manifesto, signed by 150 Coalition members of the House of Commons, was presented to the Government yesterday, protesting against the expenditure of public money without previous sanction of Parliament. It was asserted that this protest was made because of the appointment of Dr. Addison as a salary of £2,500 without submitting the matter to the Commons.

ANOTHER BIG STRIKE FEARED.

LONDON, June 15. Negotiations between Engineering Employers' Federation and Trade Union representatives on the proposed wage reductions have broken down and national stoppage is threatened on Thursday, when the employers' notice, reducing wages, becomes operative. More than 1,500,000 men are affected.

LOCKOUT POSTPONED.

LONDON, June 15. Steps toward avoiding the great engineering stoppage, affecting 1,500,000 men, were taken this morning when Dr. Addison, Minister of Labour, held a conference with representatives of employers. The result of the conference was that the employers agreed to postpone issuing lockout notices to to-morrow until the end of June, in order to enable the Union to submit the employers' latest proposals to ballot.

OWNERS' PROPOSALS VOTED ON YESTERDAY.

LONDON, June 15. British miners to-day voted on proposals of the mine owners' for a settlement of the coal miners' strike. The result will be announced on Friday. The question was placed before the miners without recommendation from the Conference of Delegates, which met here on June 10. The owners' final proposals included the establishment of a new standard minimum wage by raising the 1914 scale, or that of 1919, in case of piece workers, by twenty per cent. It was provided that this percentage would be

St. Bon's Sports Day.

The St. Bon's annual sports held yesterday proved a splendid success. The Campus grounds were gaily decorated and there was a large attendance amongst those present being Rt. Rev. Monsignor McDermott and the clergy, the Executive of St. Bon's Association as well as the Christian Brothers and many other prominent citizens.

The various drills and marching exercises by the pupils reflected great credit on the instructor Capt. J. J. O'Grady. The tea tables under the Supervision of the Ladies Association were well patronized. During the evening the C.C.C. Band rendered music. In the football five the B.I.S. won the final.

The programme of the events and the winners are as follows:—
 1. Hurdles—(semi-finals)—Senior, R. Halley; 2nd P. Phelan; 1st W. McGrath; 2nd E. Maher; Intermediate, 1st C. Egan; 2nd J. Rogers; 1st A. Collins; 2nd G. Halley; Junior—1st Nicosey; 2nd P. Cotter; 1st J. Cotter; 2nd O.V. Lynch.

2. High Jump—Senior, 1st W. Skinner; 2nd J. Howlett, height 5 feet 2 inches.
 3. Primary Races—Won by W. Redmond, W. Cotter, W. Duggan.

4. Junior Relay Races—Won by Boarders, R. House, J. Poliquin, J. Jackman, P. Poliquin.
 5. Indian Club Drill—By Preparatory students.

6. 75 Yard Dash—Senior won by R. Halley; 2nd W. B. Skinner; Intermediate, 1st C. Egan; 2nd J. Rogers; Junior, 1st J. Cotter; 2nd G. Lynch.
 7. Drill—Free exercises by preparatory classes.

8. Final Hurdles—Won by R. Halley, C. Egan, J. Cotter.
 9. Three Legged Race—Won by Raymond and Jerry Halley.

10. Relay Race—Present vs. Past, won by present, E. Phelan, W. Skinner, G. Egan.
 11. Football Five—C.C.C. vs. Felidians (1) won by C.C.C. (2) C.C.C. vs. B.I.S., won by B.I.S.

12. Polo Vault—Won by W. Fraser; 2nd E. Phelan, height 9 feet, 2 inches.

New Appointments.

His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to appoint Dr. W. W. Blackall, M.B.E., to be a member of the Nomenclature Committee, in place of Rev. Canon Smith, deceased; Messrs. A. E. Harris, D. Steele, E. Power, R. C. Goodyear, and K. K. Goodyear, to be Commissioners, under the provisions of the Local Affairs Act, for the proposed road from Grand Falls to Gook's Pond. Mr. A. S. Farnell, (Humbermouth), to be a Surveyor of Lumber. Dept. of the Colonial Secretary, June 14th, 1921.

Somewhat Mixed.

The annual Seal hunt is on for Newfoundland, and the season opens from May to November. Schra carrying from twelve to twenty men sail for the bays and anchor there, putting out their crews in pairs, in flat-bottomed boats, called dories, which contain trawls, or long lines fitted with hundreds of bait hooks that the fish swallow and are caught with. These trawls are "set" by the men, being stretched along the ocean bed with anchors at each end, and are "overhauled" daily, the fish caught on the hooks being removed and the hooks reloaded. While the men are off at this work, fog often arises and obscures the region, leaving them to drift about the ocean in a vain quest for their vessels. These crafts are also liable to be sunk by speeding steamers in the fog or swamped by popping seas, and few years pass without ten or twelve vessels and one hundred and fifty men being engulfed in the waves. —Family Herald June 1.

AND YET MR. COAKER IS MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.

Labrador Fishing which is a business peculiar to itself, is started. It is conducted by some 30,000 Newfoundlanders, who leave their homes every June and voyage to that sterile northern strand—men, women and children—where they live in turf huts or timber shacks, or on shipboard, until October, and then return home with the fare of cod. They divide into two classes—stationers and floaters. The latter cruise up and down the coast netting the cod where they can. The seaboard is uncharted, unlighted, forbidding and poorly harbored. —Family Herald June 1.

LISTEN TO REASON!

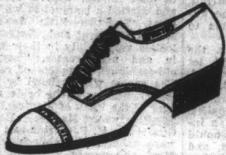

Common sense applied to the purchasing of your footwear will convince you of two things:—

That you cannot get value in a "cheap" shoe—because the materials which enter into their making must necessarily be "cheap."

That "cheap" shoes cost more than really good shoes—because their lack of durability necessitates more frequent purchases.

These are good reasons why you should buy

Steamer Lands Sick Man

The S.S. Canadian Ranger, bound from Montreal to Glasgow, stopped off port at 10 p.m. yesterday to land a cattle man, Robert Murnman, who is seriously ill of pneumonia. The tug Mouton, owned by the Furness Withy Co., met the ship in Freshwater Bay, and the sick man was transferred on board, later being landed at the Queen's Wharf and taken to the General Hospital in the ambulance. From information since received we learn that the man has passed away at the Hospital.

Thanks for Inspector General.

Editor Evening Telegram
 Dear Sir,—The short article on Police protection for King's Bridge against furious driving of motor cars and the desired effect for a short time Wednesday afternoon, Inspector General Hutchings deserves great praise in acting as promptly in sending a Sergeant and policeman to regulate the traffic on Wednesday, and while the officers were on duty everything was very quiet and orderly. The most dangerous time or in other words, when the furious driving takes place is from three to nine o'clock in the evening. If we were to be asking too much of the Inspector-General I imagine he should have an officer stationed at the bottom of Kenna's Hill every evening until nine o'clock for the next four months for this season. When some of the drivers can't see a policeman in sight they certainly drive at such a rate to take the hill that you can't make out the numbers on the car. Therefore I feel that Inspector-General Hutchings will have a man stationed there for the balance of the season, as the traffic some days is as great as any part of the city, and the motor car drivers imagine that everybody and everything got to get out of their way. I look upon the crossing at the bottom of Kenna's Hill as a regular death trap, for you have the four roads crossing one another and it is not an usual thing to have motor cars going inside the tank to avoid accidents with horses and carts. One day last week a driver nearly killing three or four children who were playing around the tank. The King's Bridge mothers are very grateful to Inspector-General Hutchings in sending a sergeant and police-

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor. C. T. JAMES, Editor. Thursday, June 16, 1921.

Highly Applicable.

"Congress on Trial" is the subject of a recent editorial article in the New York Times, which seems singularly applicable to conditions here. The Times says that "public opinion is not favorable to the work of the new Congress."

The following letter appeared in the Times on the day succeeding the publication of the "leader" from which we have quoted. Were the subject matter written around or in connection with present day political conditions in Newfoundland, it could not be more apropos.

SPECIALISTS IN CONGRESS.

To the Editor of The New York Times: Your article, "Congress on Trial," in this morning's issue is distastefully sound and deserves cordial appreciation.

Our methods, or lack of method, in the selection of national legislators, results in the choice of men destitute, or almost destitute, of any real fitness for the important duties of shaping policies and making laws for a country with such varied interests and difficult problems as ours.

Partisan bias and the desire to produce a satisfactory impression upon their constituents are only too apparent. They seem capable of subordinating petty scheming for party and personal advantage to the judicial consideration of great national and international questions.

transportation, agriculture, sanitation and public health, manufacturing and labor be represented in Congress? Of course, it is easy to say that if the people are misrepresented in Congress, the fault is their own. And it is true that citizens generally are so engrossed with their own private affairs, their business obligations, professional duties, their pleasures and recreations as to have little time and less inclination for sufficient attention to civic and political matters.

Well Done, Archibald!

It is no small satisfaction to know that now, when men of real worth and patriotism are so few, a member of that Government which has for so long striven its utmost to ruin an independent people, has at last broken the political ties that bound him. Mr. Frank Archibald, M.H.A. for Hr. Grace, deserves the thanks of the whole country for his courageous action and self-sacrifice in removing his seat to the centre of the House as an independent member.

Absolutely Incorrect.

In connection with a copied item from a Canadian paper published in the Telegram on Monday last, referring to the business of the Gorton Pew Fisheries of Gloucester being in the hands of receivers, we have since shown Mr. Fred R. Emerson of Messrs. Higgins, Hunt and Emerson, who showed us a cable from Mr. B. A. Smith, Gloucester Manager of the Gorton Pew interests, stating that the report is absolutely false.

Extravagance Gone Mad

Further light on the extent to which the Government's extravagance has been carried, may be gleaned from a reply given by Dr. Barnes, Minister of Education, to Mr. MacDonnell, re the cost of educating or training a staff of supervisors.

Police Court.

Three men were remanded on a charge of burglary. A man was fined $100 for a breach of the Prohibition Act. For a breach of the Street Traffic Regulations a man was fined $5 or 10 days.

Prospero Sails North.

Sociable for Cartwright Mission.

Those who attended Canon Wood Hall on Tuesday night last, were well repaid for the $5c. admission fee which was charged. A most successful sociable was held under the auspices of the Women's Home Missionary Society, which now bends all its efforts to the support of the splendid work of Rev. Henry Gordon at Labrador. The concert opened at 8.30 and the various numbers well merited the repeated calls for response which they received. Miss Myrtle Williams and Mr. Gordon Christian kindly acted as accompanists. Apart from the programme there were several very interesting features during the evening. The most recent photograph of the new four-story Boarding School at Muddy Bay was passed through the audience for its inspection, and those present also had an opportunity to view the wedding cake which is to be sent down for the marriage of Mr. Gordon to Miss Ashall, the present head mistress of the school, which takes place early in July. This cake was made by Mrs. (Hon.) Tasker Cook, one of the most enthusiastic members of the W.H.M.S., and beautifully decorated by Mrs. S. Churchill. There was also exhibited the clothing made during the winter for the orphans in the Boarding School, including a donation sent by Mrs. Barton, wife of Rev. C. H. Barton, from a Cartwright Guild which she has formed in the parish of Ash, Canterbury, of which Mr. Barton is Vicar. Some personal presents in view of the festive occasion were also shown, among which may be mentioned a silver biscuit holder with engraving, the present of the Girls' Cartwright Mission Circle, and a large box of delicacies kindly sent by Mr. and Mrs. Felid Jones who have lately arrived from Africa and England. The President, Mrs. J. C. Oke and her officers, and the ladies who served a splendid cup of tea, may well feel repaid for all their labor by the great success of the evening. The programme is appended:

Song Mr. Stansfield.
 Recitation Miss Keegan.
 Song Mr. A. Williams.
 Recitation Master J. Bradshaw.
 Song Mr. Steele.
 Violin Solo Mrs. Brian Dunfield.
 Song Mrs. Churchill.
 Song Mr. Christian.
 Monologue Miss E. Barnes.
 Song Mr. F. Ruggles.
 Song Miss Major.
 Musical Monologue Mr. P. Halley.
GOD SAVE THE KING.

One for Mr. Ayre.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir--I am overwhelmed by the honor which has been done me by Mr. George Ayre in making me the subject of one of his effusive literary diatribes is really too much! Whilst not laying claim to the same ability in the art as yourself as your legal correspondent, nevertheless I cannot refrain from replying to some of his criticisms. Mr. Ayre has some peculiar ideas and not the least of these is that football games must only be criticized favorably. I can only conclude that Mr. Ayre did not think of what he was writing when he made that statement. It is really too ridiculous! Criticism, be it favorable or otherwise, makes a game. If a game be poor then unfavorable criticism--provided it be correct--would be a benefit to the players as it would show them their faults and so give them an opportunity to correct them. In any case, a reporter's duty is to write up the game as he sees it. This I have attempted to do to the best of my ability and I shall most certainly continue to do so despite the fantastic objections of would-be critics.

Yours faithfully,
 NINIUS DOLANS.

Moderates' Meeting a Necessity.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir--The opinion has been expressed in several quarters that the meeting which the Moderate Prohibition Committee is calling to-night is unnecessary, since the desired legislation is already before the House. This opinion may be natural, but it is unjustified. The fact that legislation has been introduced is no guarantee that it will pass in the form desired, or that, even if unamended, its passage will not be so much delayed as to endanger it. Various collateral problems are also in need of discussion, and the Committee feels that it ought to render an account of its stewardship at this critical time to the public. It will therefore be to the advantage of all who are desirous of securing a modification to attend to-night. In order to facilitate their attendance, the Committee has set the hour of the meeting for after the close of the football match.

Yours very truly,
 W. Smith, Chairman.

Princes Settle Problem of Life.

Two victims of the dethronement of the Central European dynasties have solved the problem of life for royalty in exile in a diametrically opposite direction — Prince George of Bavaria by entering holy orders and Archduke Leopold Ferdinand of Austria, better known under the bourgeois name of Leopold, by accepting an engagement on the variety stage.

Prince George, who is a grandson of the late Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, once before attracted public attention by an unfortunate marriage with Archduchess Isabella of Austria, which was annulled, despite all efforts at reconciliation by the head of the dynasty.

He fought as colonel during the war and then laid aside the royal dignity and military rank to become a Benedictine monk. He was ordained a few days ago and a remote little monastery in the Bavarian Alps opened its gates to the princely warrior.

His cousin, Leopold, less dignified in choice, appeared in a Berlin cabaret wearing the uniform of an Austrian admiral, to which he was entitled before he sacrificed his royal rank to marry a commoner. Since then he has had a checkered, eccentric career, and has resorted to various devices to earn a living, one of which was the recent publication of his reminiscences of Austrian court life. He is billed, after Berlin, for a tour of European capitals as a vaudeville performer.

A British Labor Leader.

In their strike the British coalminers expected to be supported by at least two other great groups of workmen, namely the railwaymen and the transportation workers. The simultaneous striking of these three bodies, it was expected, would paralyze the life of the country and enable the miners to dictate to the nation. Almost at the last hour the National Union of Railwaymen refused to support the miners, and the transport workers took a like stand.

The guiding officer of the Railwaymen seems to have been the General Secretary of the Union, the Rt. Hon. James Henry Thomas, who since 1910 has represented Derby in the interest of the Labor Party. He was born of laboring parents and was educated at the board school. He commenced work at the age of nine as an errand boy. Then he became an engine-cleaner and advancing stage by stage was a fireman and then an engine driver.

He began his public career as Town Councillor of Swindon in Wiltshire, England, and for some time was chairman of the Finance Committee, and of the Electricity and Tramways Committee. In 1910 he was elected President of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants.

In June, 1917, he was sworn in a member of the Imperial Privy Council. During the railway strike of September, 1919, he was a leading figure in the conferences which finally brought about a settlement. In 1920 Mr. Thomas was President of the Trade Union Congress.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.

THE QUIET ONES.

MIKE GIBBONS

Some people quietly proceed, and take no part in fuss or broil; they do their stunts with grace and speed, and make no racket as they toil. Retiring gent, they are not sharks for any pony or circumstance; they do not rise to make remarks whenever they see half a chance. They do not ask us for our votes and argue in the busy marts; and if perchance they lose their goats they bear their sorrow in their hearts. And in this world of endless noise, where human sinners rant and roar, we learn to love the quiet boys who smoothly do the useful chore. They jog along their even groove, and draw good pay and earn it all; and read choice volumes to improve their minds when evening shadows fall. They'll be on time, as sure as fate, on time for work when morning comes; they'll have no stories to relate of high adventures in the slums. All through the years they work serene, these quiet, self-effacing lads; and this old world is worse, I ween, when they are gathered to their dads. Oh, these better times of blatant sound, of strident boast and loud harangue; the men who make the wheels go round are not the fizz-and-fireworks gang.

Dempsey Not Hard to Hit, Says Mike Gibbons

New York—Mike Gibbons, who boxed with Irish Paddy Flynn for fifteen rounds the other night without doing his opponent any more harm than that contained in winning on points, is strongly opposed to the term "slugger" and all that it implies. In discussing the subject Gibbons said:

"When the word 'slugger' is eliminated from the art of boxing the sport will be elevated another notch. This fault rapidly is being eliminated. One sees far less slam-bang fighting at boxing shows than one did a few years ago. True, some fans prefer the old arrangement, but they are in the minority. Boxing has survived many difficult tests. Slugging has not.

"A fighter who depends upon a hay-maker to win usually lacks brains, gameness, resourcefulness, speed and cleverness. This being true, he hasn't very much in his favor. He cannot be a champion except by accident. He eventually is forced to realize the fact. He either must try to acquire the elements he lacks or drop out.

"I think it is a bit unfair to Carpenter to declare that he will not have a chance to hit Dempsey hard if he elects to box the champion. The opposite is closer to the truth. He never will get to first base unless he does box Dempsey. I know that I am not alone in my contention that Carpenter is the type of boxer best suited to give Dempsey a real row. The big fellows move so slowly that Jack can keep out of their way and at the same time he can pound them to pieces. Dempsey must fight differently against a fast opponent. Dempsey is not a hard man to hit. Therefore, a good boxer who can make the most of openings should do very well.

Red Flag a Church Emblem.

Nowadays the red flag is flaunted as the emblem of revolution, but it used to have an entirely different significance. Originally red was the recognized color of the Roman Catholic Church militant, and it still figures prominently in papal and cardinal vestments. Crimson banners, emblazoned with white crosses, were carried by the Crusaders; and all-red flags were displayed by the French Catholic soldiers of Charles IX. and Henry III. during the religious wars of the sixteenth century, those of the Protestants being white. The red flag as the emblem of revolt dates no further back than the first French Revolution, but even then the people who hoisted it were not "the extreme 'Red Republicans,'" but the very moderate National Assembly, the members of which, though favoring constitutional reform, were, at all events in the beginning, monarchists almost to a man. The first red flag to be carried in public in England was hoisted in 1848 by the Chartists on Kensington Common, their design being to march thence in procession to Westminster. They were, however, dispersed by the military, and their crimson banner—improved from a drayman's red apron—confiscated.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHEN WOMEN HOLD THE PURSESTRINGS.

The Authorman insists that he can tell by looking at her, any woman who has the financial supremacy in the home—that is who either earns more money than her husband or who has inherited money.

That is, of course, a statement made stronger than the facts justify in order to carry home the idea, but I think we all recognize the truth under the over emphasis.

Financial dominance in the home often does impart a hard look on the face of the woman who possesses it.

A Face As Hard As A Back.
I have in mind a woman who inherited money shortly after she was married. Her husband was a scholar but no money-maker, and they lived largely on his wife's money, which she conserved and invested. That woman's face is as hard as a rock. And that look has all come since she inherited the money.

Nor is it merely in their faces that the women who have this financial upper hand, show it. All too often they betray it in their manner, too. I once knew a woman who had been much more successful in business than her husband and it really made me uncomfortable to go into her home, because she had a manner toward her husband that made me blush for both of them. More than once I have heard her say to him when she had asked him to do something and he had had the hardihood to demur, "Do as I tell you, Robert." A mother could not speak with any greater authority to a refractory child. If she knew how unbecomingly it sounded, I am sure she would find some more gracious way of enforcing her commands—if they had to be enforced.

I heard of another case where a

MY COLUMN

BRIDGE.

Have you ever played Bridge? If you haven't, take my advice and don't. Never let yourself be trapped into taking a hand, not even if its "just to fill up." If you do, you are lost. I was caught once. I happened to be at a party and I was asked if I played Bridge. I said no, and asked if it were a round game and if you played it out of doors. My hostess replied that you played it with cards and that it was "so interesting." My excuse that my state of health debarred me from participating in "interesting" games was not accepted. "You really must help me out and fill up such a simple game too," is the command I received. What was the use of raising any more objections. I had no choice. I was asked if I "led" advisedly—to a table at which two women and a man were seated. I was pushed into a chair opposite one of the girls and my hostess departed. "I really don't play Bridge," I apologized, but my partner was not having any. "You'll soon learn," she said. "It's so very easy." The cards were shuffled and dealt. I looked at mine. Somebody said "two hearts." The person on my right said "three clubs." I said nothing. My partner looked at me expectantly. "Six diamonds," I said. The sudden silence that followed caused me to look up. Expressions of astonishment showed on the faces of my three companions. "You don't mean it, do you?" asked my partner. "Why, yes," I said. "Look and I threw my cards down on the table. Amongst other things, my hand contained six diamonds. Another silence ensued which was broken only by the other man. "Don't you think we had better play Old Maid," he suggested. That was my first venture at Bridge.

RIMES OF THE TINES.

THE STRIKE HABIT.

If you're asked to play a game
You don't like
And an excuse you can't frame
Go on strike.

That's the modern thing, you know
Everywhere you'll find it so.
Doesn't matter where you go
There's a strike.

If you're ever forced to go
On a "strike"
Don't plead that you've grass to mow,
But just strike.

Don't look like a frightened "chow"
Don't show worry on your brow.

woman with an independent income of many thousands married a salesman making a couple of thousand at the most. She decided that he did not have sufficient prospects to justify his continuing with the work and persuaded him to give it up so that they could travel whenever she wanted to. Eventually we heard this story. They were in the habit of making an all-night trip from their home in New York to visit her parents. The baby, who had been added to the menage, interfered with her mother's sleep on the train. Therefore she sent her husband with the nursemaid and baby one night, and came over herself the following night.

If I were a man and had my choice between the job of stone, crushing in the road or being the wife of a man with money and without fine feelings, I think I would choose the former.

Hard To Be The Wife.
On the other hand, I do not think it would be easy to be the wife with money. It would take infinite tact and sensitiveness to fill the position gracefully.

As I wrote, I have been wondering whether the possession of money makes women any harder than it does men; or whether the hardness shows up more in contrast to femininity. And I have decided that it does actually make women harder. But that is not in any way an argument against the entrance of women into the business field. I think it is merely because they have been financially starved so long that they react so violently. I believe greater economic independence for women is going to bring a readjustment of power and obligation that will be better for both sexes.

Everybody does it now.
Go on strike.—THE CUB-EDITOR.

HE WANTED TO KNOW.

At his customary rising hour of 4 a. m. the employer got up, dressed, lit a lantern and went forth to start the chores. He fed the stock, milked three cows, split some wood, and single-handedly ministered to the chickens, meantime filled with wonder, which turned to disgust, at the unaccountable tardiness of his employee.

At ten minutes after 5 o'clock, when the first pink streaks of dawn were reddening the eastern sky, the new hand came around the corner of the barn.

The farmer dropped the fork he was wielding and stared long and hard at the tardy one.

"Well," he asked, in tones of heavy sarcasm, "what have you been the hull forenoon?"

TRUTHFUL COPY.

The reporter was sent to write up a charity ball. His story came in late and it was careless. The editor reproved him, the next day by quoting an extract:

"Look here, Scribner, what do you mean by this?—among the most beautiful girls was Alderman Horatio Dingley. Old Dingley ain't a girl. He's one of our principal stockholders."

"I can't help that," returned the realistic reporter. "That's where he was."

CITY MAN IN THE COUNTRY.

A Scotch minister was asked to pray for rain and his prayer was followed by such a downpour that the crops were injured. During the storm one old farmer said to another: "This comes of trusting side a request to a minister who 'sna acquaints wi' agriculture."

A CLOSING ARGUMENT.

Agent—"Morlarly, I came to-day to close up that life insurance contract we've been talking over."
Morlarly—"What's th' hurry?"
Agent—"Dolan heard that you called him a liar, and I want our medical examiner to see you before Dolan comes."

PERTINENT QUESTION.

The Frenchman did not like the look of the barking dog baring his way.
"It's all right," said the host;
"don't you know the proverb, 'Barking dogs never bite?'"
"Ah, yes," said the Frenchman, "I know ze proverb, you know ze proverb, but ze dog—does he know ze proverb?"

A DIFFERENT ADDRESS.

A San Francisco woman, whose husband had been dead several years, went to a medium, who promised her satisfaction the spirit of her dead husband.

"My dear John," said the widow to the spirit who appeared before her.
"I am very happy," John replied.
"Happier than you were on earth with me?" she asked.
"Yes," was the answer. "I am far happier now than I was on-earth with you."
"Tell me, John, what is it like in heaven?"
"Heaven!" replied John, "I'm not in Heaven."

ANY ONE AT ALL.

The owner of a menagerie was in Chicago on business when a telegram was handed him. It read: "The leopard has escaped. Proceeding about town. What shall I do?"

Bill was one of those fellows who have to have explicit directions to do anything even in an emergency. He was always afraid of making a mistake. The owner rushed from the table and sent a reply.

"Shoot him on the spot," he wired. Being unusually busy, he forgot all about the affair until about two hours later, when he returned to the hotel. Another telegram was handed him. It proved to be from careful, conscientious Bill, and asked:

"Which spot?"

THE OTHER FELLOW NEVER HAS.

Engineer—"Well, Dan, we decided at the meeting last night to strike. Why wasn't you there?"
Fireman—"I couldn't get there on account of the trolley strike. Then trolley men ain't got no consideration for the public."

CHIP OFF THE OLD BLOCK.

"Does the baby take after your husband?"
"Yes, indeed. We have taken his bottle from him, and the other day the little darling tried to creep down the cellar steps."

THE LAST CALL

Do you hear it, Newfoundlanders? It is the call to each and every one of you to help your fellow countrymen to employment and independence.

We have during the past ten weeks brought before your notice Newfoundland's depressed trade conditions. The numbers of unemployed increase daily--unless ALL of you pull together and in the right direction where will it end.

There is only one means by which this can be accomplished, and that is by your CONSTANT purchasing of LOCAL MADE GOODS the manufacture of which keep your country men and women employed.

Below we list many articles made in New Newfoundland that equal and in many cases are more suited to the needs of the country than the imported article. Buy the goods made at home and help to save your country.

Religion and Business.

What a Hard-Hearted Business Man Says of the World's Need.

Roger W. Babson, the celebrated statesman of the United States, has written a rather remarkable book called "Religion and Business," in which he deals with present-day social and business conditions in a rather trenchant but practical way. Mr. Babson is not what might be considered a religious man in the sense of being "evangelical" and there is much in his book to evoke the strongest criticism on the part of the orthodox, but he gets at the marrow of things without sectarian bias. He accuses the Church of failure to bring its followers up to the standards of Christ, and at the same time flouts the idea that the great Teacher was in any sense a socialist. He devotes considerable attention to the relations of capital and labor, and says that religion is the only solution for industrial harmony. By "religion" he means harmony with the teaching of the Sermon on the Mount. He says: "The need of the hour is not more factories or materials, not more railroads or steamships, not more armies or more navies, but rather more education based on the plain teachings of Jesus. The prosperity of our country depends on the motives and purposes of the people. These motives and purposes are directed in the right course only through religion. Legislation, bounties, or force are of no avail in determining man's attitude toward life. Harmony at home and peace with the world will only be determined in the same way. Religion, like everything else of value, must be taught. It is possible to get more religion in industry and business only through the development of Christian education and leadership. With the forces of evil backed by men and money, systematically organized to destroy, we must back with men and money all campaigns for Christian education. We are willing to give our property and even our lives when our country calls in time of war. Yet the call of Christian education is to-day of even greater importance than was ever the call of the army or navy. I say this because we shall probably never live to see America attacked from without, but we may at any time see our best institutions attacked from within.

I am offering Christian education as a protector of property because nearly all the great progressive and liberal movements of history have been born in the hearts of Christian educators. I do, however, insist that the safety of our sons and daughters, as they go out on the streets this very night, is due to the influence of the preachers rather than to the influence of the policemen. The safety of our nation, including all groups, depends on Christian education. At no time in our history has it been more greatly needed. We insure our houses and factories, our automobiles, and our businesses through mutual and stock insurance companies, but the same amount of money invested in Christian education would give far greater results. Besides, Christian education can insure what no corporation can insure--namely, prosperity. As the life insurance companies are spending huge sums on doctors, scientific investigations, and district nurses to improve the health of the nation, so we business men should spend huge sums to develop those fundamental religious qualities of integrity, industry, faith, and service, which make for true prosperity. I repeat, the need of the hour is--not more factories or materials, not more railroads or steamships, not more armies or navies--but rather more Christian education--Baker and Confectioner.

The only known flock of snowgeese in existence, containing more than 5,000, weigh an average of 8 pounds each, arrived recently at Cape Tourmente, Quebec, on its annual northern migration from the Southern States. Each year the birds makes this a stopping-off place on their way to the Labrador coast, and have been known to do so for more than 40 years. The flock has been closely protected, and this year moving pictures were taken of them by the moving picture service of the Dominion parks branch, Ottawa.

Wedding Bells.

MOULTON-ANTEL.

On the evening of June 15th the S.A. Citadel, Adelaide Street, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, the contracting parties being Mrs. Adj. Moulton of the Salvation Army and Thos. P. Antel of this city. Colonel Martin, Leader of the Salvation Army in Newfoundland, conducted the wedding and some of the officers of the Salvation Army spoke on behalf of the bride and groom and paid tribute to their long service, both as officers and soldiers. Miss Lily Moulton, daughter of the bride, soloed "God will take care of you." The reception was held in the Young People's Hall and upwards of two hundred guests spent an enjoyable evening. Many and costly were the presents received by Mr. and Mrs. Antel, testifying to the great esteem in which host of them are held.--E.F.P.

Discrimination.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir--One of the greatest causes of the incapacity of the present Government to help the unemployed question is in the discrimination of the giving out of Government patronage, particularly so when it is entrusted to some of the most pronounced big game hunters, and well paid heelers at that, to give such work to their particular friends. I am led to believe that one tailor shop in the city has at least one hundred and fifty suits to make, fifty of these coming from one Government department alone. Now, sir, may I ask is this the way that other shops and tailors should be discriminated against? And with all appearance of a slack season during the coming fall and winter, why were not these orders divided up as evenly as possible to help allay the unemployment question? I am not unreasonable enough to suggest that the party followers should not get the greatest share, but times and conditions are so acute at the present time, or in the very near future, when a proper distribution of work would be more acceptable to the Government and unemployed than charity.

Your truly,
E. D. SPURRELL.

M. C. Wins Rugger Championship.

The Methodist College team defeated the Felldians in yesterday's rugger game by a dropped goal and a try, seven points to 0, thus winning the Inter-Collegiate Championship for 1921. The game was quite a good one, the M.C. forwards pushing their opponents off the ball practically throughout. Since 1917 the Felldians have won the championship and out of the eight years for which the shield has been played the Methodist College has won it three times and the Felldians five.

Just Folks
GRIEF'S ONLY MASTER.
Into the lives of all
The tears of sorrow fall.
Into the happiest hearts,
Grief drives her dark dart;
No door however stout
Can shut Death's angel out.
Vain are the things we prize,
Treasure and pomp's disguise;
They cannot stay the tear
When the true griefs appear
Where Death will strike to-day
Gold cannot bar the way.
There is no joy secure,
No peace that shall endure,
No smile that man shall keep,
God wills that he must weep,
And in his darkest hour
Vain is all earthly power.

What, then, should guard the gate?
How shall a man be great?
Through the dark days and long,
What power shall make him strong?
Wherein does courage lie,
Since all he loves must die?
When sorrow binds his hands,
Helpless the strong man stands,
One master only grief,
Bows to, and that's belief--
Faith that he'll some day know
Why God hath willed it so!

Famous H.B.C. Captains and Ships.

(By H. M. S. COTTER, Cumberland House, in "The Beaver.")
For two hundred and twenty-two years sailing ships bore cargoes to the Bay, but in 1892 the first steam-propelled vessel took in the York Factory supplies. This was the Erik, formerly a noted whaler in the Greenland seas. The Erik and her sister ships, the Hope and the Windward, were owned by the Greys, of Peterhead, Scotland, a name that was a household word in the whaling industry for three generations.
Captain Alex. Grey, one of the three brothers, was in command of the Erik on this first voyage for H.B.C.
The Erik was a fine ship, and like all vessels in the Polar seas, massive in her construction. Though steam-propelled, she carried sails, and was square rigged.
The sailing ships continued operating to James Bay until 1906, when the Discovery, Capt. Scott's ship of Antarctic fame, came into the possession of the Company and sailed for Charlton Island, James Bay, under Capt. Grey.
From 1761, when the Sea Horse (Captain John Fowler) cast anchor on the Moose Roads, up to 1905, when the Stork, commanded by Captain Norman Frenkeloy, arrived at Charlton Island, Moose Factory had its annual sailing ship.
Such a record must be unique in the annals of shipping, and surely bears testimony to the character and quality of the officers and crew. They were no "fair weather sailors." It is worthy of note, too, that during the long and protracted wars of the latter part of the 18th and early 19th centuries when privateering was considered the sport of the day, the H.B.C. ships arrived with unflinching regularity at the Bay ports. No doubt this was in great measure due to the activity and vigilance of Nelson's frigates.

When the Battle of Trafalgar was fought on October 21st, 1805, the Prince of Wales, (Captain Hanwell), was nearing England, or perhaps had just arrived for she had sailed from Moose on September 14th of that year.
In 1815, the year of the Battle of Waterloo, two H.B.C. ships, the Edystone, (Captain John Turner), and the Hadlow, (Captain John Davidson), were sent out to Moose Factory. Both ships wintered at Stratton Island in James Bay, arriving October 29th, presumably having run back from the Straits on account of ice.
In 1901, the H.B. Pelican came on the scene, replacing the Erik on the Labrador, York Factory and Churchill route.
The Company's establishments on the Labrador coast date back to the early years of the last century. In 1880, when the Governor, Donald A. Smith—(Lord Strathcona), was su-

REINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

Midnight Sensa- tion in House.

Mr. F. Archibald, M.H.A. For Harbor Grace, Breaks With Government -- Others May Follow
Lead Thus Given--Government
Indifferent to Unemployed.

Yesterday afternoon's session of the House was taken up in a discussion of the unemployment situation. The Opposition members appealing to the Government to grapple with conditions which are daily growing more serious. The member for St. George's, Mr. MacDonnell, moved that the session adjourn for that purpose. The Govern- ment by a vote of 16 to 18 turned down the proposition and the session ad- journed at 6.30 without any business being done.

The session opened at 3 p.m. when after the Minutes were read Mr. M. S. Sullivan and Sir Michael Cashin gave notice of questions. Mr. MacDonnell in speaking on the unemployment charged the Govern- ment with hair splitting, low tricks and bartering in dealing with the situation. The present, with a great number of people, was a question of live or die and the Government's duty was to see that means were provided to keep people from starvation, and if it could not provide the means of livelihood then it ceased to be a Govt. and became defunct. Why tie up the resources of the country, said the member for St. George's, to provide an Employment Bureau, was not grap- pling with the situation. He warned the Government to get busy before it would be too late.

The Prime Minister explained that approximately 160 men had received employment from the labor Bureau, and that up to ten 150 pressing cases had been reported to Major Butler, and about 511 names had been regis- tered.

Mr. MacDonnell wished to know if the Prime Minister implied that there was only 511 cases of unemployment in the city.

In concluding Mr. MacDonnell moved that the session adjourn so that the matter could be discussed at a later date which it warranted.

Mr. M. S. Sullivan in supporting the motion said the country was going to be faced with more trying conditions than at present, and that it was of no use waiting until it was too late to be seeking a remedy. The country of no work is being heard all over the coun- try and it was apparent to everybody that the Prime Minister had not the faintest idea of the conditions exist- ing, especially in Placentia Bay. The share of the per capita grant, $34,000, was not nearly sufficient to carry the residents of this district through the terrible times they were experiencing, said the Hon. Member, who contained enumerated cases where whole fam- ilies are dying of starvation, without prospects of relief, the relieving of- ficers being powerless to render fur- ther aid.

Mr. Higgins urged upon the Govern- ment the necessity of dealing with the unusual situation in an unusual way. He thought that 500 men was the very minimum of those unemployed, and he would state in the Municipality of St. John's alone there was between 900 and 1000 heads of families without any work, to which must be added the girls and young men formerly working in the factories. Mr. Higgins gave his hearty support to the motion.

The Prime Minister informed Mr. Higgins that he had conferred with the Road Commission and had offered $2-000 to be expended on roads in the West End, provided the commission would expend an equal amount.

Mr. J. R. Bennett in speaking on the situation said that it could not be over- come by a grant of 10 or 12 thousand dollars. There were hundreds unem- ployed besides those that had register- ed, and the numbers were being added to as the days go by. The Sales Tax imposition has not improved matters said the speaker and it may result in further remaining factories closing down. Temporary relief would only tide the country over until the House closed which under the circumstances should not be considered, and he advised the Government to adjourn the House so that should the occasion arise the As- sembly could meet within 24 hours and deal with any situation.

Mr. Walsh thought it was only wast- ing time to talk of 2 or 10 thousand dollars relieving the situation. At least there were 10,000 people out of em- ployment. There were 500 fishermen in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's that were not earning a cent, because they could not get supplies. It was useless to look anywhere for employ- ment and the chances of getting it out- side the colony were very slight. Men who had gone to Sydney are being de- ported from that place because they had not sufficient funds upon landing. Something concrete should be done to overcome the present crisis, and he agreed with the suggestion of Mr. Ben- nett that the House should not close.

Mr. F. Moore explained to the House that he did not vote to cut out the $10,000 to the Motor Association, which was under discussion at a previous session. He would vote ten millions to relieve the situation. He supported the motion made by Mr. MacDonnell.

Mr. N. Vincombe also supported the motion. He taxed the Prime Minister with evading the unemployed situation in the city by throwing the respon- sibility on the Municipal Council. The latter had $50,000 loaned by the Gov- ernment, which the Prime Minister could use immediately to give employ- ment. This would be better than build- ing a Long Bridge, perhaps at discon- tinuing time.

Dr. Jones thought that the labor situation was serious the whole coun- try over, and while serious now would become appalling during the coming winter. He emphasized the necessity of the Government doing something im- mediately.

Mr. MacDonnell, interjecting, said it was not a question of getting more money, but was one of opening or de- vising some big proposition that would assist the whole country. The fisher- men had been pauperized, the work- man had been put out of business and a whole day had been spent by the Government quibbling over $10,000.

Such a proposition as putting the rail- road in shape would be something like what was needed, and if the Govern- ment could not handle such let them resign. They had proved to be either totally incapable or totally indiffer- ent.

Sir John Crosbie proposed that the $10,000 vote to the Motor Association be earmarked for immediate work in St. John's East and West. Speaking of unemployment in the Outports, Sir John said he had messages from his district appealing for help. In many instances these referred to large fam- ilies who are absolutely starving. In answer to a question the Prime Min- ister informed him that no more men were to go to Sydney, as there was no employment to be had there at present.

Captain Lewis said that St. John's only represented the condition of 40-000 people, but there were 200,000 more in better off and the Govern- ment members had not said one word to get help for the constituents they represented. It was the duty, he thought, of the Government to try and make some arrangement with the A. N. D. Co. at Grand Falls. The distress in the Outports, said the member for St. John's, was even greater than in St. John's, and it was being aggravated by the new taxes imposed. The latter makes the dollar only worth about 50 cents. The outrageous duty of 70 cents had been imposed on a barrel of flour, this he thought should not be and if the Government needed extra revenue the tax should not be placed on the man who catches a cod fish, but rather on champagne, silk stockings, motor cars and the like. The tariff has been camouflaged charged, Capt. Lewis, but the people will not be fooled that way.

It is necessary that something big be done and done quickly, and if the country had to go into Canada it was as well to enter with 70 million dollars. Concluding the speaker ad- vised the Prime Minister to get some competent person to revise the tariff.

Mr. C. J. Fox in seconding the motion made by Mr. MacDonnell referred to an article in the days issue of the Evening Telegram on the unemployed. He wondered as to how far it was logical or competent for anyone to ask the Government to move in matters that had been brought up in the House often during the past six weeks. The Prime Minister said, smiles in the face of the most serious matter he ever faced the country. After reading the article referred to he had replied to the Prime Minister if he had replied to the appeal made, the latter said that the matter was referred to Major Butler. After receiving the answer Mr. Fox gave the Government a vote of censure for its indifference. Some of the Government members, are of as much service to the country as the Wooden Indian in Cash's tobacco tin. There were only one as voting units. The time had come when the Government as such must justify its existence. It had written itself down as the most unskilful and incapable crowd that the world had ever seen. The present method of relieving the distress was not at all adequate, and he would ad- vise adopting the motion of Mr. Mac- Donnell without delay.

The Prime Minister put a divi- sion called for the vote showed:

For the Motion.—Sir M. P. Cashin, Sir J. C. Crosbie, Messrs. MacDonnell, Fox, Moore, Vincombe, Higgins, Walsh, Sinnott, Sullivan, Jones, Lewis, Bennett.—15.

Against the Motion.—Premier Squires, Foote, Barnes, Warren, Win- sor, Abbott, Coaker, Target, Halfyard, Bond, J. J. MacGregor, Scammell, Cave, Hibbs, Samson.—16.

After the vote was taken the House went into Committee on supply, and after some progress had been made, adjournment for tea was announced by the Speaker.

MR. ARCHIBALD LEAVES GOVT.
A most brilliant and lengthy speech in which he stated that he would fol- low any leader who would take the country out of its present mess Mr. F. Archibald, member for the district of Harbor Grace created a sensation in the House last night by removing his desk to the centre of the House as an independent member, amidst up- roarous cheering from the galleries.

Following recess the Debate on Sup- ply was continued after Sir John Crosbie had concluded his lengthy ad- dress. Mr. Archibald rose to speak. He stated that he had no intention of making any statement until the Govern- ment laid their future policy on the table of the House. The people in his district were despairing in spite of his efforts, and in spite also of the sup- plies provided through the Govern- ment. He wished to tell the Govern- ment that he was drifting towards ruin. He shocked the House by stating that he had met with people in his district whose very bones were protruding from their skin although he had done all he could to relieve their wants. The peo- ple, he said, had been looking to him for supplies and relief and in every way possible, he had rendered assist- ance. He was at an end. Those men willing and able to go to the fishery should be helped to go and those who had to stay behind through no fault of their own should receive protection. He for one, had no intention of deceiving anyone in the country. He had sacrificed the sacrifice of his own personal honour, and the honour of his district. He had done with people with such a party who is inexcusable, or not big enough to do something for a struggling country."

Continuing, he referred to Sir John Crosbie's remarks in the earlier part of the session and said: "I am not," said Mr. Archibald, "prepared to sit any longer with such a party who is inexcusable, or not big enough to do something for a struggling country."

Mr. Archibald then went on to deal with the Government's attempt at economy and suggested that at the least, for the present, the vote for the Department of Agriculture and Mines, should be cut out. Speaking of the Fish Regu- lations he said that last year he had cast his vote for them with honesty of pur- pose but as soon as the House had been prorogued they had become subject to the Governor in Council. If mistakes were made through the operation of the Regulations, and such had been made, they should have been annulled by the Governor in Council instead of allowing them to remain, to ruin the country. He had also voted for the Railway Loan little dreaming of what was to be done. After the House had closed last year the Executive Admin- istration took everything into their own hands and governed the country as they pleased. He had no intention, however, of discussing politics. The only thing that should be discussed under present circumstances was the salvation of a misgoverned country. The man who could step out from either side of the House and solve the problem which was now staring us in the face, would have his entire sup- port. Until then he would sit alone. Amid enthusiastic applause for his courage in being the first to break the ties that bound him to an incapable Government Mr. Archibald then moved his desk to the centre of the floor. It now only remains to be seen who will be the next to follow the example of the member for Harbor Grace.

Saints Defeat Briton

In Fair Exhibition of Football

The Briton met their second defeat for the season when last night they lost to the Saints by a score of 2 goals to 0, before a fairly large number of spectators. The game was a fairly good one and some excellent play was evidenced at times. Both teams were fairly well matched and the game was quite lively at times. Wild shooting was indulged in often during the game, particularly in front of goal, but on the whole play was most interesting. During the first half play was evenly divided and the ball was generally rushed from one end of the field to the other in quick succession. Fifteen minutes after the start, Munn scored for the Saints, and despite all their efforts, the Britons were unable to equalize. The second half was a fast one, both teams getting in some excellent work during the first few minutes. Before long the Saints scored their second and last goal for the game, through Young. The Britons tried hard to score after this, attacking their opponents' goal with a vim, which deserved better success. At one time a shot from a Briton forward just failed to enter the Saints goal, the ball striking the crossbar. No further scoring was done during the game. The line-up was:—

SAINTS.—Goal, Joyce; backs, Carmichael, Calvert; halves, Clouston, Foster, Brown; forwards, Young, B. Savvys, Munn, Elton, H. Sawyers.

BRITON.—Goal, Burry; backs, Hulls, Williams; halves, Silcock, Sudd, Harter; forwards, Smith, Whitehead, Pullman, Sharpe, Bearna.

To Replace Lost Stadium.

To replace the Stadium, lost at St. Pierre in March after leaving Halifax, Fred. H. Ellis, of St. John's, Nfld., has purchased the former Yarmouth tug Hugh D. The Yarmouth Telegram of Friday says: "The tug Hugh D., built in Shelburne in 1908 for Hugh Cann and Son, Ltd., and sold by them in 1918 to the American Star Line, arrived in Yarmouth yesterday and will remain for a few days to undergo some repairs and cleaning. This steamer, so widely known along this section of the Nova Scotian coast, has recently been purchased by Fred H. Ellis, of St. John's, Nfld., and will be used there for towing purposes in place of the Stadium, wrecked on that coast a few weeks ago. The tug Hugh D. left New York on Saturday and has come along by easy stages, stopping a night in the Cape Cod Canal and also in Gloucester, Mass. Since leaving Yarmouth, and although the tug as she lies at Baker and Company's wharf looks quite familiar, there has been considerable change made in her. The house on the upper deck has been lengthened, adding another room, while surmounting the pilot house is a large golden eagle. The forward part of the main deck has also been changed, by closing up the hatchway and placing there the companionway leading to the forecastle, which has been so enlarged as to comfortably accommodate twelve men. The winch, which was formerly just forward of the hatch, has been removed and is now immediately forward of the foremast. Mr. Ellis, her owner, arrived from Boston this morning to join the tug Hugh D. here and proceed to Newfoundland in her."

Gold for Magistrate.

On Monday, 13th inst. a presentation of a purse of gold and an address was made to Mr. Levi March, Spendiary Magistrate, by the people of Bay of Islands, upon his retirement from the position which he has occupied for the past 23 years. The address was made by Rev. W. J. Morris and the purse presented by Mr. Jas. P. Roche, J.P. Mr. March replying to the expressions of regard and kindly reviewed the events of the twenty-three years he had spent at Bay of Islands.

Series of Burglaries.

The arrests made yesterday of two drunken men by Sergeant Keefe, was the culmination of a series of burglaries which occurred during Tuesday night. At least three stores were broken into, and a robbery committed in a fourth by certain parties who are believed to have had accomplices in LeMarchant Road, where was made to Parson's Drug Store, the burglars smashing a fanlight to gain entrance. Here some liquor was sought. Bottles of olive oil were taken and were smashed outside the premises when the thieves found out their mistake. At the Avonlin Drug Store, New Gower Street, entry was made by breaking in the shop door. Here some Port Wine was secured. Pelley's Variety Store was also entered and goods taken away. It is supposed that it was one of the same gang that got away with a purse of change belonging to a storekeeper, while she was in the act of selling them some fruit.

Rural Route, No. 1, Masouche, Que. The Minard's Liniment People.

Sirs,—I feel that I should be doing a wrong if I neglected to write you. I have had four tumors growing on my head for years. I had them cut off by a surgeon about fifteen years ago, but they grew again till about three months ago I had one as large and shaped like a lady's thumb on the very place where my hair should be parted, and it was getting so embarrassing in public that it was a constant worry to me. About three months ago I got a bottle of your Liniment for another purpose and saw on the label good for tumors. Well I tried it and kept at it for exactly two months, with the result that it has entirely removed all trace of the tumor, and were it not that they had been cut fifteen years ago, no mark would be seen. I have not been asked for this testimonial and you can use it as you see fit.

(Signed) FRED C. ROBINSON.

P.S.—I am a farmer and intend using Minard's Liniment on a mare for a strained tendon, and am hoping for some results. FRED C. R.

YOUR TEETH

DR. LEHR, Dentist,
329 Water Street.

PYORRHEA.
Pyorrhoea is the most destructive, the most difficult to treat, yet one of the commonest of all the diseases of the teeth. It is present in the mouths of countless thousands of adults who fondly think their teeth are in perfect condition. It progresses slowly, and in its early stages, painlessly. The gums become soft and bleed easily, then they grow sore and become inflamed. Pus forms at the roots of the teeth and they loosen in their sockets. When the disease reaches this stage it affects the general health and usually extraction is the only remedy.
