A Trade With the United States. Editor World: 1. The United States. Editor World: 1. The United States. Editor World: 1. The United States own Alaska; separated from the rest of her terri-tory by British Columbia. It is of little prac-tical value to the United States, but to the Dominion it would be very useful, being our sea.coast in the Pacific. It was given up through the carelessness of an ignorant treaty maker. 2. The United States also owns a small point of land at the northwest angle of the Lake of the Woods, of no use to her, which cost her nothing and which. Ilke Alaska, was lost to us through the stupidity of a treaty maker. The State of Maine and much more territory we were cheated out of, as late researches show, and as most Yankees who understand the history of the Ashburton Treaty acknowl-dege. This dishonesity was accomplished through the spondentured, carlies ignorance of His Magnificence the British plenipoten-tiary. Not only ware we wronged at the history of the Ashburton Treaty acknowl-dege. This dishonesty was accomplished through the supression by the Yankee nego-tiators of evidence the British plenipoten-tiary. Not only ware we wronged at the time by losing this territory, but the position of the northern portion is such that its separates between our Provinces of Gabbee and New Branswick like a wedge, and so is a continual menace to the indering restroads on the allows aready in building refiroads cost us millions already in building refiroads

they are gradually settling themselves—not by any new agreement, but by the better agreement of agreements made long ago. Cap-tains of American war vessels now in the dangerous neighborhoods have cautioned American fishermen that they must strictly comply with treaty requirements, and that otherwise they need no protection from the United States. Details as to what these treaty requirements are have been published, by order of the American Admiral, and noth-ing has been left undone that could be done to make American fishermen aware of what they have to take care of. This decided American position, in favor of enforcement of the law, has its present expla-ination in something which goes along with it. It may be American policy to refrain sorup dualy from fishing within Canadian limits, while still making it felt as actively by Cana-tion fishermen that they are excluded from selling in American ports. But this may be what is done meantime, preparatory to an agreement which is to come ere long—that there shall be free fisheries and a free market on both sides. This is the British offer of some time ago, and it looks a little nearer than it did some time ago.
