Lawrencetown Methodist Sunday School.

The Annual Rally Day of the School was held on Sunday. Unique post cards had been sent out by the enterprising superintendent, Mr. F. A. Palfrey, and a very large attendance of scholars and adults resulted. The programme was a printed one supplied by the Sunday School Department of the church and consisted of hymns, prayer, responsive reading of the Scriptures, and an exercise by fourteen scholars, showing the extent and unity of Methodist Sunday Schools in Canada and Newfoundland. This programme was splendidly rendered by the School. The Roll Call showed a total of about one hundred and twenty scholars and teachers. Except for lack of teachers, the school is in a healthy condition. Several classes are organized, and an Adult Bible Class is shortly to be organized. An interesting feature of the Rally Day was the presentation of Rally Day buttons to each scholar by our esteemed teacher, Dr. Hall.

A PLACE FOR COL. ROOSEVELT.

The old problem of "What shall we do with our ex-president?" came up in a new form at the election last year, when the American people decided against the notion of putting one of them back to the White House. But it does not follow, because ex-President Roosevelt could not be fully satisfactory in his old executive capacity, that he could not be useful in any public office.

The opinion of the great majority of his countrymen is likely to coincide with that of President Wilson, who believes ex-President Roosevelt might be more influential than any other American as a special envoy to Great Britain and Germany to induce those nations to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

While the President was discussing the question the news came unofficially that Germany has reconsidered her determination not to take part. That ex-President Roosevelt could use his large personal acquaintance and picturesque influence in Great Britain to bring about a similar reconsideration there is exceedingly probable, especially as many Englishmen have expressed dissatisfaction with their government's decision and the London Times has published strong editorials condemning a narrow policy in the matter as unwise and unrepresentative of the general feeling of the English people.

WINDSOR MAN INSTANTLY KILLED.

Windsor, Sept. 23.—This morning Albert Vaughan, fifty-five years, left home with his gun about five o'clock, to shoot crows that were doing damage in his apple orchard. The inquest was held before Coroner Reid, and a verdict of accidental death rendered. He leaves a widow and a family of four children. The widow is a daughter of the late Ezekiel Marsters, Summer-ville.

The East as Good a Country as the West

So Says Senator Thorne Who Has Just Returned From a Trip to the Pacific Coast. Deeply Impressed With the West but Says He Prefers the Maritime Provinces.

"I was deeply impressed, even astonished at the progress being made in the west and the greatness of the possibilities of the Northwest," said Senator W. H. Thorne to a St. John reporter. "But I am glad to be back home, and I am perfectly satisfied with the Maritime Provinces. The west is a young man's country, a great country, but I prefer to live in the east, and I believe a man can do as well in the Maritime Provinces as in the west."

Mr. Thorne accompanied Hon. J. D. Hazen on his trip to the Pacific coast. After attending the functions in connection with the reception to the New Zealand battleship, the Minister of Marine and Senator Thorne visited the various marine stations and harbors on the Pacific coast, including Prince Rupert and Port Simpson and then went to Dawson City by way of the Yukon railway and river steamers.

"Since I was out west ten or eleven years the developments have been astonishing; in ten years small villages have grown to enormous cities, and there are many substantial communities where a decade ago there was nothing but prairie land. The C. P. R. has thousands of men employed double-tracking its main line and all the railways are extending their systems in every direction. In view of the tremendous developments all over the Dominion it will take years to catch up with the work of providing proper equipment for our harbors."

"It is a revelation to take a trip through almost any part of the West," went on Mr. Thorne. "We have an immense Empire in the Northwest, a land of wonders. It is impossible to describe the trip from Vancouver to Dawson City. On the voyage of 1,100 miles from Vancouver to Skagway the ship runs inside of mountainous islands practically the whole distance, and the scenery is superb; a stupendous panorama is constantly being unfolded before you; the country is colossal; huge mountains lift their snow-capped summits in imposing grandeur and now and then you get a vista of a great glacier grinding its way to the sea."

"At Skagway we took the train and circled up the mountain side to an altitude of 2,000 feet or more, through scenery quite equal to that on the C. P. R. as it winds along the Fraser river. Coming to White Horse, we boarded a comfortable river steamer, and made the trip of 480 miles to Dawson City."

"British Columbia is a marvellous country. The waters teem with fish of all kinds. The canners cannot take care of the enormous quantities of salmon caught and hundreds of tons of salmon are burned. In one cold storage plant we saw 7,500,000 lbs. of halibut. And the fishing industry on the Pacific is only in its infancy, before long they expect to be marketing great quantities of fish in the East."

"We visited Prince Rupert, now a town of about 2,000 people. Land there is being held at $800 and $1,000 per foot front. The G. T. P. is building a $2,000,000 hotel there, a large station and great wharves and warehouses. Prince Rupert is very ambitious and expects to rival Vancouver. We rode out on the railway 220 miles from Prince Rupert and saw much good farming land."

"The G. T. P. is now pushing its tracks through the mountain section at the rate of three miles a week."

A Nation at School

There is no royal road to learning, but the Chinese are in a desperate hurry to acquire Western education. In the memory of the oldest inhabitant there has never been such a thirst for the acquisition of Western knowledge as that which has taken possession of the Oriental. Writing from Shanghai, a correspondent in The London Chronicle says that "the merest tyro in things Chinese can notice everywhere in the country the steady progress of education in large centres, and never has there been such pioneering educational work throughout this great country. From Formosa to Tibet, from Mongolia to Annam commensurate with the spirit of the Reform Movement, comes a cry for Western education. It may be called the most remarkable and decisive intellectual revolution in the history of mankind." The significance of this movement is not yet fully comprehended, but the new spirit abroad appears to have been inspired by the educational mission work carried on in the Far East.

The Government of China had very little to do in paving the way for this national enthusiasm for education. The Republic has made a new start in education, and there on the spot as yet that there will be a marked difference in the results in Chinese as compared with Japanese schools. A year or two ago the Chinese were eager to admit as teachers in their schools half-educated Japanese, but the cry today is for the best that the West can send. The National Educational Conference, held last year, decided upon a new curriculum, commencing with the elementary school and ascending by easy stages through the secondary, middle, and higher schools half-educated Japanese, but that you may be free!" is the cry of the reformers, and the conquest of China by the schoolmaster has already begun. Lack of funds may delay the hopes of the Chinese, but the spirit is strong though the purse is still empty.

The nation that builds its future on the school is on the highway to progress and freedom. Within the next couple of decades China will be a nation of educated people. The number of students since the revolution has been exorbitantly increased. As soon as the Republic gets into calm waters and settles down to normal existence education will make rapid strides. The demand for education comes from the people themselves. A great field is open in China for Western teachers. The value of Western education and Western ideals has gripped the imagination of the Oriental. Young men educated in the mission schools fill responsible posts in provincial Governments, and their success has stirred others to emulate their example. A new life with manifold opportunities is opening up before the Chinese youth, and they are eager to learn and compete for the prizes that Western progressive ideas make possible.

This remarkable evolution is going to transform the East. It is the most impressive movement in modern times. Fifteen years ago wealthy Chinese first favored Western educational methods. Today the new wine of the Occident is bursting the old bottles. The Oriental is awakening from his long night of slumber; his moral consciousness has been stirred; the national spirit has been quickened. Who can forecast the future when an educated and westernized China takes her place among the nations of the earth?

Mr. Samuel's Splendid Optimism

Without drawing invidious distinctions and equally without the slightest fear of successful contradiction, it can be said that seldom if ever has the Winnipeg Canadian Club listened to a brighter or more sensible address than that delivered to it yesterday by the Right Hon. Herbert Samuel, Postmaster-General of the United Kingdom. It was a great address; not one, indeed, marked by flights of eloquence or studied oratory, but one in which the note of triumphant democracy rang clear and true.

The members of the Winnipeg Canadian Club are no narrow partisans. They consider it a pleasure and a privilege to listen to public men from the old land irrespective of their political opinions. Without exception guests are accorded a hearty reception and an attentive, respectful hearing. With perfect good will the members have received visitors of all shades of political opinion and of many different schools of economic thought.

But while this, happily, is true, it is none the less true that in recent years we have had an undue proportion of Old Country speakers who have hinted—and more than hinted—at an imaginary doom hanging over the Motherland, which doom could only be averted if their own particular nostrum were to be adopted. There is nothing of the gloomy Empire-saver about Mr. Samuel. The picture of the Old Country which he drew for us was that of the virtuous mother renewing her youth like the eagles. We were shown a country slowly but steadily growing in population through natural increase, a country expanding marvelously its trade and commerce, a country sanely and sincerely devoted to the solution of its social problems.

It would surprise many of us, accustomed as we are to think and speak of the growth and expansion of Canada, to learn from Mr. Samuel that while Canada grew in population between the census of 1911 and that of 1911 by 4,800,000 the tight little island, with centuries of development behind her, grew in population by no less than 3,200,000 by natural increase alone. Not bad for "our declining Motherland," remarked Mr. Samuel.

And it surely must have staggered our protectionist friends to hear that during the past ten years the exports of this alleged effete and played-out Mother Country increased from $1,415,000,000 to no less than $2,435,000,000. That is to say, its exports have nearly doubled during the past decade. For purposes of comparison it may be mentioned that the whole external trade of Canada, both imports and exports, for the year ending March 31, 1913, amounted to $1,085,000,000.

Mr. Samuel had also an enlightening word to say about unemployment. He told us that today many of the great industries of Britain had difficulty in securing the required number of hands. It was a common thing to be added, for the big works of the Old Country to have to refuse orders for lack of the necessary labor with which to carry them out.

The problem before the Mother Country is not so much one of the unemployed as one of the unemployable. One of the causes of this is a failure in the past to provide sufficiently for technical and vocational training. The other, and perhaps the greater, cause lies in the survival in the British Isles of a medieval system of land tenure. No heartier or more vigorous round of applause greeted Mr. Samuel yesterday than when he declared, in words of splendid optimism, that the British Government was about to tackle the great problem of the land.

The address was an aspiration and a great encouragement. The calm confidence of such a speech does more to strengthen and to forge afresh the bonds of Empire than all the dirges of our professional Imperialists. England is always England, said Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Mr. Samuel gave us the vision of a great democracy slowly but surely extricating itself from centuries of entanglement and exhaustion; a democracy depending less upon Dreadnoughts for self-realization than upon the human brotherhood.—Winnipeg Free Press.

MACKEREL PLENTIFUL ON THE SOUTH SHORE.

Yarmouth, Sept. 25.—The fall run of mackerel is continuing much longer than usual. The fish have not been so plentiful on these coasts for years. Large quantities are still being taken in Yarmouth harbor. The Chebogue River and Tusket River are both alive with them.

On Wednesday in one tide one hundred barrels were taken in the Tusket River. The extraordinary big run is fortunate for the fishermen.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

TO THE MEMORY OF JOHN ANDERSON.

He was a man of generous heart,
 And kind to all in time of need;
 For many were his acts of love
 By action, by word and deed.

It was in the hush of evening,
 And the stars his only light
 To guide the way as he travelled
 On that sad, memorial night.

Ah, but listen, near his homestead
 On a hill both long and steep
 The summons came; neighbors
 Found him in his long, last sleep.

Without a word, a sign or warning
 Even to her he loved so well,
 Ah, Death, the earthly destroyer
 Of every chance to say farewell.

Picture the sorrow in that home
 To those who watch in vain
 For the husband and the father
 Who has gone never to return again.

It is hard such a heavy grief to bear,
 And lose in death our dearest friend,
 But look, beyond the hours of time
 There he dwells where joy shall never end.

Fond wife, when weeping raise your eyes
 To the brighter home, and dry your tears.
 You cannot tell how soon you will be called
 To join your friends of former years.

You are not forsaken, time will give
 Many bright and happy hours yet.
 Peace will fall along your pathway
 And in so doing teach you to forget.

You will forget, but not the gentle one
 Whose path through life you were pleased to share,
 And with fondness you will dwell
 Upon his memory,
 Whose joys and sorrows you helped to bear.

There is one left to share your love,
 Much sorrow he, too, has known,
 Naught can restore a father's care;
 He has gone to wear a crown.

So shall your home be glad again,
 Though the loss you deeply feel
 For the one who has gone awhile before,
 To a home where there's no farewell.

A TEST FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

It is one thing to be tested once a week or once a month, by examinations in public-school work; but it is a different thing to be tested every day or every hour in a living test.

There are several ways to test a boy or girl.

First, by the company one keeps when parents are not around.

Second, by the way one acts in public when parents are not around.

Third, by the way one treats the parents and brothers and sisters in the home when the public does not see.

Fourth, by the way the boys and girls act on the playground when the teacher does not see them.

Fifth, by the way we put into practice what we learn in the Sunday School.

Sixth, by the way we respect other people.

Seventh, by the way we try to help the unfortunate.

Eighth, by the way we spend our money.

Ninth, by the good words we try to say instead of gossiping.

Tenth, by the way we pray and read our Bibles daily.

Let us try to-morrow to have a living test. To-morrow night take an inventory and see what kind of test you made.—Ex.

Francis E. WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1913.

The latest Bulletin of the Inland Revenue Department deals with the adulteration of Bay Rum and Florida Water. Out of a great many samples, collected from all parts of the Dominion, a very large proportion are pronounced by the analyst to be adulterated and in many cases methyl alcohol, or wood spirit, a well known poison, was the chief ingredient.

In the matter of cider vinegar offered for sale adulteration is also very general. Out of twenty-three samples analyzed only seven were pronounced pure, and we may add that of these seven samples five came from dealers in the product of the Graves Vinegar Factory of this town.

Following these facts is an article taken from the 'Simmons' Spice Mill,' a magazine published in the interest of the Coffee, Tea and Spice Trade. The perusal of the article makes it appear that the difference between the Canadian law on the subject of adulteration, and that of Pennsylvania is that in the case of Canada the law provides the analyst who may pronounce the sample adulterated and the sale of it unlawful, while in the case of Pennsylvania the law does all this and also provides the officer whose duty it is to see that the penalties for the violation of the law are enforced.

Some of the manufacturers of cider vinegar in Nova Scotia have brought this matter to the attention of our legislators, with a view to the amendment of the law, by adding to it the appointment of such an officer, but the amendment has not yet been made. The necessity of it, however, in the interests of consumers as well as manufacturers of pure cider vinegar is very apparent.

'DOPED VINEGAR' CRUSADE IN PENNSYLVANIA. A State-wide crusade against merchants who sell vinegar as 'cider vinegar,' when in reality the stuff is a concoction of wood acid, is announced by State Dairy and Food Commissioner James Foust, of Pennsylvania. Already over 550 samples have been lifted and more than half of these have been tested and found to be impure. Over 225 prosecutions have already been ordered, and the commissioner stated emphatically that the entire pure food department will do nothing but wage war against the vinegar business, until it has been raised to the standard prescribed by law.

The grocers, in the main, are ignorant of the fact that they are violating the law, although the fact that they are only paying twelve cents a gallon for the vinegar should be sufficient proof that it is not cider vinegar they are selling. The State law provides that 'no vinegar shall be sold or exposed for sale as apple or cider vinegar which is not the legitimate product of pure apple juice, or vinegar not made exclusively of said apple cider.'

The sale of 'doped' cider vinegar has spread over three States, Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio, and in discussing the matter the commissioner stated that he would advise every merchant to examine his vinegar supply in the State come up to stock of so-called cider vinegar that was purchased at a low figure, it should be poured into the drain, as being more economical than paying a stiff fine and the costs. In speaking of the matter, Mr. Froust said: 'In almost two out of every three grocery stores, the stuff that is sold for cider vinegar, was manufactured without being an apple. The stuff the vinegar is composed of is injurious to health, and until the vinegar supply in the State come up to the requirements, I will have my men continue the investigation. There is a goodly profit in vinegar, even when the best brands are purchased. The season for preserving and pickling stuffs for winter consumption is rapidly approaching, and I want to protect housewives against fraud. I will not stop the crusade until every drop of doped vinegar is out of the State.'

Bret Harte says, 'For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the heathen Chinese is peculiar.' But the Confessions of an Assistant Clairvoyant which have recently been published in the New York Outlook, the truth of which is vouched for by the Editors, reveal ways that are dark indeed, and tricks that are by no means vain, by which multitudes are deceived and robbed and made the dupes of grossest falsehood—and this not by the heathen Chinese but by men born and bred in enlightened America.

False partitions, magic mirrors, convenient holes in the walls, cunning confederates who under the guise of clients pry into the lives of fellow clients, salves of potato pulp, love potions of baking soda, the putting on of an air of mystery and wisdom,—these and other methods equally disreputable and fraudulent are parts of the stock in trade of the professors of the clairvoyant art. This has been proved and published time and time again, and yet the company of foolish victims is kept up by new recruits. Will this most recent confession tend to diminish the number?

This Week Forty Years Ago

From the Monitor Files Oct. 2, 1873.

The first sod of the Western Counties railroad (from Yarmouth to Digby) was turned near Lovitt's wharf, Yarmouth, a few days ago.

A correspondent signing himself 'D. B. H.' a native of this County writes a long and interesting letter describing a trip to Manitoba. 'D. B. H.' was one of the volunteers who went to the then, far-off Red River regions, to help maintain peace between the settlers on the one side, and half breeds and Indians on the other. The trip from Halifax to Fort Garry (Winnipeg) took exactly one month in those early days, and we made over trails between the lakes and streams of Western Ontario and Manitoba, while row boats helped them across the lakes and along the rivers. This interesting correspondent thus describes the Winnipeg of forty years ago.

'Fort Garry has now a population of 2,000 and is connected with St. Pauls, U. S. A., 160 miles distant by four steamers which run weekly. It boasts of six hotels, three weekly papers, seven churches, one college and nursery. Within half a mile of the Fort four hundred buildings are in course of erection. The soil is better than good, being from four to five feet deep of black bog or like bog mud dried. An old farmer living here told me he owns a piece of prairie that he has ploughed for thirty years and has raised a crop for twenty-six years without manure and the crop this year was better than ever before.'

THAW SAID TO BE ILL.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 29.—Friends and associates of Harry K. Thaw are worrying considerably over the failure to rid himself of a heavy cold with which he has been afflicted for a week.

The western grain crop, wheat, oats, flax and barley is worth this season $123,000,000 and the farmers owe $115,000,000 (mortgages, machinery, etc.) so, though there is a money stringency in the West, the country is really in a most solvent condition.

The church reopens tomorrow morning with the pastor, Rev. Denton J. Nelly occupying the pulpit, and he will preach a special sermon appropriate to the occasion at the morning service, "Heavenly Buildings."

Wedding at Deep Brook

A Deep Brook correspondent to the Digby Courier writes:—A very interesting event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. W. Ditzmars on Wednesday morning, the 24th inst. at ten o'clock, when their eldest daughter, Dora Mary, was united in holy wedlock to Mr. Garnet LeRoy Benson, of Bear River, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. Lockward, of Clementsport, in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride was dressed in a traveling suit of seal brown whipcord and entered to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Austin, of Smith's Cove. The room was decorated with an arch trimmed with evergreen. After the ceremony a very generous lunch was served to all present after which the bride and groom, accompanied by the bride's family, left by auto for Digby, where they took the St. George for St. John. The wedding presents were very useful as well as ornamental, among which we will mention a cut glass dish and $10 gold piece from the bride's men; $5 each from the groom's parents and $10 from the groom. We extend every good wish for the prosperity of the bride and groom, wishing them a long life of joy and happiness.

STANDARD OF WHEAT HIGH IN SASKATCHEWAN.

Regina, Sask., Sept. 25.—That the standard of wheat throughout the Province this year is higher than in 1912, is indicated by statistics compiled by Provincial Department of Agriculture.

During the week ending Sept. 21, 519 cars of No. 1 northern were shipped out of the Province as compared with 1495 cars of No. 2 northern. There were in addition 111 cars of No. 1 Manitoba hard shipped during the week. This proportion shows that the quantity of high grade wheat is very much greater than the lower grades and also much greater than it has been in previous years. The bulk of wheat that has been shipped to date is also considerably greater than in 1912 and there is at the present time little prospect of any such grain blockade as had been experienced by the farmers in previous years.

True Tales of Animal Life

THE GIRAFFE'S WISDOM.

The giraffe does not look like a very wise animal, but appearances are deceptive, and the tall, dappled creature knows how to take care of themselves in their native homes. Any one who has ever hunted giraffes knows how hard it is to get anywhere near them, and the reason for this is clear, from what keepers of menageries say of the habits of the giraffe in captivity.

Not long ago, near one of the zoos, there was a terrible explosion. A visitor, who knew that giraffes are wary creatures, asked the keeper if the explosion did not send them mad with fear. "Not at all," he said, "they jumped about when it happened but afterward they went on eating, and didn't mind at all. It isn't that sort of noise that frightens a giraffe. What they are afraid of most is the softest, gentlest sort of sound, like something creeping up carefully near them. If I wanted to scare every giraffe here into a fit, all I'd have to do would be to take off my shoes and come softly up the corridor in my stocking feet, without letting them see me. Why, they'd dash themselves against the bars trying to get away. They're wise creatures, too, for they know how softly the lion hunts them in their own land, and how its just those little, gentle sounds that mean the worst danger. Any wild animal that's really after them won't make a loud noise, so they don't mind the big noises; they know better."

ELEPHANT TENDING BABIES.

Weakness appeals powerfully to the friendly protection of the strong, and even among brutes the appeal is not often in vain. Of late, the elephant has been losing a great deal of his reputation for kindness but there is nothing incredible in the stories which have been reported about the children of an East Indian mahout being cared for by his elephant.

An Englishman long a resident of India says that the whole family of the mahout become as it were parasites on the elephant by whom they earn their living. It is an ordinary thing to see a baby, placed by its mother systematically under the elephant's care and within reach of its trunk, or to get wood or material to cook the family dinner. No jackal or wolf would be likely to pick up and carry off a baby who was thus committed to the care of an elephant; but most people who have lived a life in the jungle know how very possible it is for a jackal or a wolf to carry off a baby when lying in a hut when the mother's back is turned.

The child thus brought up in the companionship of an elephant becomes familiar with and takes all kinds of liberties with him, which the elephant seems to endure on the principle that it does not hurt him, while it amuses the child. You see a little naked black child, about two feet high, standing on the elephant's bare back, and taking it down to the water to bathe, shouting all the time in the most unbecoming terms of native abusive language.

On arriving at the water, the elephant, ostensibly in obedience to the youngster's command, lies down and enjoys himself, just leaving a part of his body, like a small island, above water, in which the child stands and yells, and yells the more if he has several companions of his own, also in charge of their elephants, all wallowing in the water around him.

If the child slips off his island, the elephant's trunk promptly replaces him in safety.

The little urchins, as they grow up, become first mates to the mahouts, and eventually arrive at the dignity of becoming mahouts themselves.

DOGS THAT COME BACK.

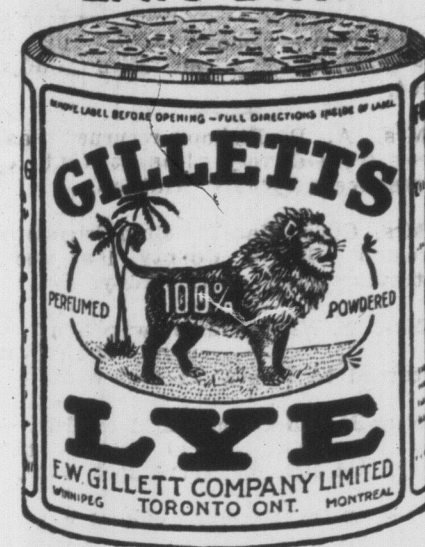

It is a time-honored belief that a cat, even when taken a long distance from home, will come back. But according to the latest animal fact records the dog has usurped the tabby's place as the exponent of remarkable returns from compulsory journeyings.

Recently the collie "Fannie" owned by Irving L. Bryant, formerly of Pocantico Hills, where John D. Rockefeller has an estate, trotted back to her old kennel after an absence of two months at her owner's new home in Lee, Mass., a distance of nearly seventy-five miles. From the time she left her Massachusetts home until she appeared in Westchester County, N.Y. four days had elapsed.

Mr. Bryant telegraphed to have his pet brought back to him. The dog arrived in good shape and took a second sniff all over the grounds surrounding her home. She seemed to have quieted down to the point of contentment. Then, after a rest of two weeks, she disappeared again the other day.

Her owner telegraphed to Pocantico to be on the lookout for her. After ten days had elapsed word was received from Tarrytown, two miles from the old Bryant place, that "Fannie" was domiciled there. The place was kept by an old German, and the way Mr. Bryant discovered the whereabouts of his pet was through a letter, which read as follows:

"Dear Bryant: I been ein old napur by you und I tell you dot your dog ist here mit me. I gues der reason she come back is dot her hus and lives mit me nad also her three childrens. I tink you better buy her husband and two of her childrens. Otterwise she will most sure run away again. You can see it by the way she love her husband and der childrens. I cannot afford to buy your dog or I would dot it. So you petter buy der husband and two of the childrens, so dot I keep one of the boy childrens dot looks most like her mutter.

ADOLPH RICHTER."

So Mr. Bryant is reported to have bought the "husband and two childrens" and brought them all to Lee.

There was a Newfoundland dog owned by a man in Buffalo until recently who excelled the Bryant dog as a traveller, not so much as to distance, as in the matter of regular trips. He had been the property of a woman who resided near Black Rock, a short distance from Buffalo.

His old owner had been greatly agitated and nervous during thunder storms and always brought the dog indoors when such a storm was in progress, seeming to feel a sort of protection if he was near. For many months after the dog had been sold and taken to Buffalo, whenever there was a thunder storm he would be missing at his new home and always found at Black Rock.

THE BATTLE ELEPHANT.

In some countries in Asia an elephant is made to carry the flag in battles. This is because the elephant is so tall, and the soldiers can see the flag on his back.

One of these elephants, which belonged to the Poona host, was very brave and kind, but he would obey the order of no one except his master, or driver.

One time, while a very fierce fight was raging, the driver called out to him, "Stand, my brave beast, stand!" A moment later the mahout received a fatal wound, and fell to the ground, where he lay beneath a pile of wounded and slain.

The obedient animal would not move, though the battle raged fiercely around him. The Poona soldiers, who feared they were being overcome, were cheered on by the sight of the flag still floating on his back.

He never stirred a foot, and all through the hot fight, the noise, the smoke, the confusion, listened patiently for the voice of his master.

Sharp spears were hurled at him, a score of javelins pierced his sides, his long ears dripped with blood, but he stood like a rock.

"Come forward, my men!" cried the Poona captain; "our flag still floats, and the battle will get to ours."

His men, discouraged, and ready to fly, rallied at his command, and with a cheer for the flag, pressed forward.

In a short time they had won the victory, and put the enemy to flight.

And then they gathered around the brave elephant, offering to lead him where he would be fed and cared for.

But, though wounded and worn, the obedient creature would not move until he heard his master's voice. That master would never speak again.

A rider was sent in great haste to a place fifty miles away, where lived the driver's little son, whom the elephant knew and loved.

When the little boy was brought to the battleground the elephant showed very plainly that he was glad to see him, and without resistance permitted the child to lead him away.

QUEER DOGS.

Like everything else in that queer land, the great dog of Tibet is queer—very queer, indeed. Even when a puppy—so young that his eyes have never looked upon the world, he presents a countenance that seems aged.

Thought to belong to the Methuselah of dogdom. This venerable appearance is caused by the deep wrinkles of his face and the bunch of tufts he has between his eyes. These same eyes appear to be both fierce and stern at first glance, so deeply are they placed beneath the frowning brows. Like many other things, however, they partake in some measure of the nature of their surroundings, and, in reality, are very soft and intelligent.

Life is not a thing of sunshine and beef bones to the great dog of Tibet. It is to him, as to many of his kind, so stern a reality it often becomes a tragedy.

He eats no idle bread. In Tibet many things are beasts of burden—sheep, goats, does, women and little children. All these bear heavy loads and frequently in winter the great dogs stagger along beneath burdens far too heavy for even their sturdy strength. Like all dogs, though, they are faithful workers and make no complaint, but pull as long as they can stand, their cut and bleeding feet often leaving bloody trails along the frozen ground.

Aside from being the devoted friend and faithful servant of his master, as well as his patient beast of burden, the great dog of Tibet is the self-appointed guardian of the villages. Whenever a stranger approaches a native settlement he is met by a battalion of these grim-looking dogs. They advance, growling and barking fiercely, which they keep up until some of the women come leisurely forth to call off their grim protectors.

MOST WONDERFUL CLIMATE IN EUROPE IS TO BE FOUND IN PORTUGAL.

It is more than probable that he will need to disabuse his mind, in the first instance, of the idea that Portugal is merely Spain in miniature. As a matter of fact, there is little kinship between the two. On paper the languages of the two countries bear considerable similarity, but the pronunciation of Portuguese differs so materially from the Spanish that no advantage of convenience accrues from a knowledge of the latter tongue. In all other respects, moreover, everything about Portugal and the Portuguese is distinctive to an absolute degree; the most jaded traveller, indeed, will find there a freshness of aspect, in one direction or another, for which he will assuredly be wholly unprepared. Need it be said that this of itself is paramount as an attraction?

Almost unlimited is the list of characteristic features for any one of which the country is worth visiting, and each in its way is so important; that priority of mention must be entirely fortuitous. Before descending from the general to the particular one may attempt a summary of these as follows, but with the promise that they might be given in any other order.

The climate is the most wonderful in Europe. A polyglot crowd of thousands flies annually to the Riviera from every part of Europe in order to enjoy the supposed maximum of sunshine, but often to be undeceived by weeping skies, and with the cruel mistral as a certainty. At Lisbon, on the other hand, cold weather as understood elsewhere is literally unknown; the temperature is not only higher than that of the Riviera, but is equable to a degree that almost defies belief. What this means in practical effect is illustrated by the fact that, in March last, I met an English lady on board ship who had stayed six weeks at Mont' Estoril, near Lisbon, and had bathed in the sea every day in February. Nor was the season exceptionally warm.—From "The New Republic—Some Impressions of a Portuguese Tour," by Charles L. Freeston, in the October Scribner.

J. W. Copeland, of Dayton, Ohio, purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for his boy, who had a cold, and before the bottle was all used the boy's cold was gone. Is not better than to pay a five dollar doctor's bill? For sale by all dealers.

"MY STOMACH IS FINE Since Taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets"

Mrs. J. Merklemer, Waterloo, Ont., enthusiastically recommends Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. Her experience with them, as she outlines it, explains why.

"I was greatly troubled with my stomach," she writes. "I had taken so much medicine that I might say to take any more would only be making it worse. My stomach that felt raw, I read of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and a lady friend told me they were very easy to take, so I thought I would give them a trial and really they were wonderful. As soon as I began taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, my stomach felt better, and in a few days it was all right. They will do the rest. My stomach is fine now and I can eat any food."

Should the name and features of these tablets be known to all who are troubled with indigestion, flatulence, acidity, biliousness, and other ailments, and permanent. It is so effective that it will make you feel like a new person.

CONSERVATION IS NOT PARSIMONY.

A common popular misconception with regard to conservation is that it consists in merely saving or hoarding natural wealth for the use of future generations. Nothing could be further from the truth. Mere hoarding is not conservative; it is almost as wasteful as reckless destruction. The man who buried his talent in the earth was told that he might at least have put it out at interest even if he were afraid to venture it in business. Wise statesmanship regards our natural resources as so much capital of which the State is the trustee. The community is entitled to the interest, but the principal should be conserved for all time. An exception to this rule must be made in the case of minerals, such as coal, of which there is only a limited supply, that, when once used, can never be restored. But in the case of forests, our lands, our seas and our wild animal life, the existing supply of timber, of soil fertility, of fish and of fur-bearing, should never diminish, but should rather increase. To be convinced that this is possible, it is only necessary to glance at Europe. In England, thanks to intensive cultivation, the soil produces better crops than centuries ago in Germany, the forests are so managed that, in spite of a large output each year's cut is balanced by the new growth; while the teeming waters of the North Sea have supplied a half-dozen countries with fish from time immemorial. In respect of the threatened extinction of our fur-bearing animals, the new industry of fur-farming may be relied on to obviate this. Conservation may be applied to mineral products in preventing unnecessary waste, and the progress of science is continually unearthing substitutes for the rarer substances. It may indeed be confidently expected that, with wise use of our natural endowments, there is no danger of humanity ever lacking any essential materials.—P. M. B., in Conservation for September.

SMUT DISEASES OF CULTIVATED PLANTS.

It is estimated by the Director of the Experimental Farms that smut diseases of cultivated plants cause an annual loss in Canada of at least fifteen million dollars. If these diseases were properly understood and the best known remedies applied at proper times much of this serious injury would be prevented.

In order to teach crop growers how to best protect their fields against damage by smuts there has been issued by the Department of Agriculture a comprehensive, plainly written treatise which is issued as bulletin No. 73, of the Experimental Farms. The author, Mr. H. T. Galloway, Dominion Botanist, has gone into the subject very thoroughly not only describing the smuts in their various stages, that affect wheat, barley, oats, corn and millet, but attention is given to methods of infection as well as the preventive measures and curative remedies that have been found useful. The text which occupies about fifty pages is much helped by numerous illustrations. This work is being sent out free to all who apply for it to the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

A GREAT BELIEVER IN "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Well Known Ontario Merchant Has Faith Because "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

MR. JAMES DOBSON

BRONTÉ, ONT., MARCH 1st, 1912. "Fruit-a-tives has made a complete cure in my case of Rheumatism, that had at least five years standing before I commenced the treatment. The trouble was principally in my right hip and shoulder, the pain from it was almost unendurable. Not being able to sleep on that side, if I chanced to turn on my right side while asleep, the pain would immediately awaken me. This kept up until I started taking "Fruit-a-tives". I started by taking one or two tablets with a large glass of water, in the morning before breakfast and experienced pronounced relief very shortly. After a continued treatment for about six months, I was cured and am now in first-class health. This, I attribute to my persistent use of "Fruit-a-tives" and I heartily recommend your remedy to any Rheumatic sufferer."

PURE BRED STOCK.

As announced early in the season, the Dominion Live Stock Branch has this year undertaken a distribution of pure bred male animals throughout Canada on a somewhat extensive scale. In inaugurating this policy the aim has been to aid sections where pure bred sires were lacking and to encourage new communities in following an intelligent system in breeding. This form of assistance has proven very popular and during the past few months a large number of bulls and several stallions have been placed in various parts of the country in the hands of local associations formed especially for the purpose of handling and maintaining them. All animals placed remain the property of the Department of Agriculture, the local associations assuming the responsibility for their maintenance and management under the general supervision of officers of the Live Stock Branch.

The distribution of bulls and stallions having been brought to a close for this year the opportunity is now open to deal with applications for horses and rams. Full information regarding the rules governing the distribution and the procedure to be followed in forming the necessary organization may be had upon application to the Live Stock Commissioner, Ottawa.

As it is the intention to consider only such requests as are forwarded before October 20th, it will be necessary for districts desiring to take advantage of this offer to act promptly.

Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

PROMINENT SCOTCHMAN'S IMPRESSION OF CANADA.

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 18.—"Since coming to Canada I have seen why our efforts are futile in attempting to check emigration from rural Scotland to the agricultural districts of the Dominion," said Colonel Donald Walter Cameron of Lochiel, Scotland, chief of the Cameron clan, who, accompanied by his wife, Lady Hermoise, daughter of the Duke of Montrose, is making a tour of the coast and prairie provinces. Continuing, he said:

"Really, we cannot blame our people for coming out here, where there are so many opportunities as compared with those afforded in Scotland. After what I have seen in various parts of the Dominion, I have come to the conclusion that it will be utterly impossible to stop our men and women from coming to Canada."

"Naturally our problem is to keep the people on the land. As to methods, there are different proposals. For example, the Radicals, under the Small Holdings Act, which is already in force, have provided for the acquisition of large estates and renting them out in small holdings to the people. But I cannot see how this act has done any good. If a man can make only, say from $25 to $65 in a year, why should he remain in Scotland when there are such opportunities in the Dominion of Canada?"

"Personally, I think it is an excellent idea to break up the large holdings, if it will have the effect of keeping people on the land; but I cannot see how it is feasible when the land available simply will not support the population. The standard of living has risen all over Scotland, and yet the land produces no more, if as much, as formerly. What the end of it will be is difficult for any one to foresee."

"Improvement in the way of opportunities is being made in the old land, but the Lowlands of Scotland are already occupied; in fact, there are more applications than there is land. There have been fully 50,000 applications for land in the Highlands, but the board of agriculture will never be able to accommodate all."

Colonel Cameron said that many of the best young men and women of Scotland are migrating to Canada. More than 34,000 young men have already left the Clyde for Canada this year, he added, and many others are making preparations to settle in the Dominion. In the Hebrides the population is now composed chiefly of old men and women and children, while in the Isle of Skye, out of a population of 13,000, there are about 1,100 on the old age pension list.

"I thought that possibly a trip through Canada would give us some plan as how to stop the wholesale emigration from Scotland," Colonel Cameron said. "but," he added with a sigh, "after seeing this wonderful country and the opportunities on every side, where one man has as good chances as his neighbor, I have come to the conclusion that nothing more can be done."

THE ART OF BREADMAKING.

At the recent Women's Congress held at Lansing Mrs. C. W. Foulk, of the University of Ohio, gave on breadmaking, a report of which follows: "There are two kinds of flours classified from the standpoint of the person who bakes; they are pastry flour and bread flour. If one is not in a position to have both kinds it is best to secure the bread flour, for the other can be made from the bread flour by the addition of a little corn starch and sugar. No attempt should be made to build a good loaf of bread out of flour for pastry baking."

"Again, flour may be classified into white flour, graham flour and whole wheat flour. The two latter are very good to use, but they have in some regards been overestimated as to nutritive value. For a well person who has a good digestive system that can care for the coarser indigestible fibre present in the unbleached kinds of flour they are all right and give a maximum of food value from the wheat used in the manufacture of the product; but for a person with a weak stomach it has been satisfactorily demonstrated in the laboratory that more of the white flour bread is digestible and that it creates less irritation to the stomach and other digestive organs. White bread flour is especially fitted for dyspeptics, although the contrary has been the general belief of laymen."

Yeast.—She proceeded next to explain that the yeast used in the manufacture of bread is a plant that grows when the condition of temperature, food and moisture for its development are provided. The quality of the bread largely depends upon the yeast and its growth. There are three classes of yeast used by housewives in the making of bread. They are liquid yeasts, dry yeast and compressed yeasts. A goodly number of women use the liquid yeasts. They are made with starter. To get good yeast two weeks is the longest one should keep them when expecting to have every batch of bread good. Dry yeasts are generally to be recommended in tin foil. Care should be exercised that they should be fresh and sweet. Yeasts thrive best on sugar, and for this reason the speaker advised the addition of salt last in the mixing of bread instead of earlier, as it arrested in part the action of the yeast plant.

Mixing.—Two methods of making bread exist among our farmer women. They are known as the short and long methods. By the shorter method the bread is set in the morning and finished the same day. The long method requires that the bread be set in the evening and finished the following day. The long method requires less yeast. The speaker did not approve of this method. Many women who follow it get up in the middle of the night to mix the dough. This wholly unnecessary and should be abandoned for the shorter way. As indicated above, the short way of making bread demands the use of a larger amount of yeast. To learn how much yeast could be added without producing a noticeable flavor in the bread, experiments were tried in the cooking department of the University of Ohio, where it was found that seven yeast cakes to one loaf of bread did not impair the quality of the resulting loaf. Hence one should not fear to get too much of the yeast mixed with the flour. Mrs. Foulk stated that they would be able to finish their bread by following the short method in from three to four hours.

A comfortable living room is suited to the raising of bread. The temperature, however, should be even and no cold drafts be allowed to strike the container of the dough. Often sour bread results from keeping the bread in a too warm room.

Bread should not be kneaded too long. Long kneading makes a white loaf, but it is not the best. Then, too, the finest loaves are those baked in small tins. It has been observed by the speaker that not a single contestant who baked bread in large double tins won in contests over those who used the small tins. The loaves baked in the small single tins are sure to be taken better, and other things being equal, are certain to be favored over those made in the larger tins.

The bread should be allowed to rise until it is double the original bulk and then worked down again. If it is permitted to rise more than this the second rising is apt to be slow and consequently give inferior results. By mixing when double the first bulk one gets a desirable action from the yeast. She advised but the two mixing.

Baking.—The oven should be set such a heat when the bread is put in that a piece of unglazed paper will be browned in four minutes. Place the bread and then increase the heat during the next ten minutes, when the bread will stop rising. In the second ten minutes the loaves should become a rich golden brown. After this the heat should be gradually diminished. Leave the bread in from forty to sixty minutes. It is better to have it over-done than not quite done. Loaves without a rich brown crust should be avoided, they are not fit for eating. If one does not like the crust, cut it off. This point was emphasized by the speaker, who stated that much ill-health results from the poorly baked bread that is eaten in this country.

After baking, the bread should be taken from the oven and pan, laid upon a clean white cloth, but not covered, and allowed to remain until cooled.

The question of the use of bread mixers was raised and the speaker stated that they were all right for the beginner, but the older women who had learned to make bread by hand-mixing found that they could not determine so well when the bread was mixed to the proper consistency. These women seem to know by feeling when to stop mixing.

ITALY IS FOR TEMPERANCE.

Milan, Italy, Sept. 22.—The fourteenth international congress on alcoholism was inaugurated here today under the presidency of Dr. Andre Filippetti, of Rome, who greeted the delegates in the name of the Italian Temperance Organizations. Delegates from forty nations were present at the inaugural convention which took place in the splendid Hall of Statues, Giovanni Giolitti, the Italian Premier, was represented by Alfredo Falconi, Under-Secretary of State for the Interior, who expressed the greetings of the Italian Government to the delegates.

The work of the congress began with the discussion of the moral decadence caused by alcoholism. Professor Ettore Marchiafava, consulting physician to Pope Pius delivered an address on the pathology of alcoholism, in which he dealt with his studies, researches and conversations over a period of fifty years of professional work. He was enthusiastically applauded.

In his address, on the behalf of the Italian Premier, Signor Falconi, the members of the congress to "disciplined soldiers of the noble and holy cause, having as their supreme object the redemption of humanity from a corrupting vice which is destroying all ideality of personal and social welfare."

He showed the connection between alcoholism and infirmity, especially tuberculosis, and the effect of alcoholism with relation to crime. Italy, he said, although a great producer of wine, would not lose by the checking of alcoholism, owing to the increasing production of anti-alcoholic beverages from grapes.

GOOD WEARING QUALITIES.

Denatello is a Toronto Greek who has amassed a small fortune in the sale of fruit, and that in the face of the fact that he writes the advertisements which decorate his stand.

A recent sample which he produced and displayed is this: "Canadian and Foreign Fruits. Note! For Their Durability."

Little Jim, though he attended Sunday school every week, did not know quite so much about Scriptural history as he ought to have known, but when his sister asked him, "Where was Solomon's temple?" he was rather angry that she should think him unable to answer a simple question like that.

"Don't you think I know anything?" "Well, where was it, then?" his sister repeated, and then he informed her.

"On the side of his forehead, of course the same as other folk's. Do you think I'm a dunce?"

SUCH IS FAME.

As two lady tourists, evidently Americans, were studying their guide-book and enjoying the view from the look-out at the top of Mount Royal, one pointed out to the others the towers of Notre Dame Church.

"Noter Dom?" said her friend. "Is it d-o-m or d-a-m?" "It is D-a-m-e," returned the other. "It means 'Our Lady.'" "Our Lady?" repeated the curious one, "and who was she?" "I don't know, I'm sure," was the reply, "but she must have been some notable person."

JOSEPH'S PROGRAMME.

The mistress of the house is a cultivated Boetian of much musical taste, and the whistling of the footman, who believed himself alone in the house, fretted her artistic soul.

"Joseph," she called at last, from the head of the back stairs, "please don't whistle those vulgar rag-time things."

"Yes, mem," returned Joseph, meekly. "I know, mem," he continued with unexpected spirit, "but you can't expect a rhapsody of Liszt with cleaning the knives. That will come later, when I'm polishing the silver."

"Now, boys," said a Sunday-school teacher, "I want each of you to subscribe something towards the mission to the Caribbees. I shall hand the box round, and as each of you contribute you will, I hope, say some appropriate text. Now, Charlie, show a good example."

A ruddy-faced urchin stepped forward, dropped in his coin and observed: "It is better to give than receive."

Then another contributed a copper, saying, "Waste not, want not."

This was ruled somewhat out of order, but it was fairly capped by a third youngster who evidently parted with his penny with extreme reluctance, for as he dropped it into the box he murmured: "A fool and his money are soon parted."

PRICE OF PEACE.

A story is told of Verdi, the famous composer, which shows that he was willing to pay a good price for what he considered comfort.

A friend who went to call upon him in a small watering place found the composer in a little room which he informed his visitor served him for dining-room, sitting room, and bedroom.

"I have two other rooms, which are large," he said to his friend, "but I keep articles hired by me in them. I have there ninety-five barrel organs."

He paused to note his friend's surprise and then continued: "When I came here my ears were tortured by hearing them play 'Travatore,' 'Rigoletto,' and similar stuff. I hired them from their owners. I pay about fifteen hundred lire for them, and enjoy my summer's rest undisturbed by the sound of my own composition."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

owe their singular effectiveness in curing Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica to their power of stimulating and strengthening the kidneys. They enable these organs to thoroughly filter from the blood the uric acid (the product of waste matter) which gets into the joints and muscles and causes these painful diseases. Over half a century of constant use has proved conclusively that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills strengthen weak kidneys and DISTRIBUTION COSTS.

In the search for the causes of the high cost of living one important fact should never be lost sight of. More than fifty per cent of the amount realized for our annual crops is spent in handling the same after they leave the farm. In retail purchasing the disparity between the price paid by the consumer is often five and ten times that received by the producer. All intelligent efforts that may be made to remedy these conditions are to be commended. The proposal of Secretary Houston to put the bureau of markets in the Department of Agriculture to work on the problem of the distribution of farm products; the inquiry into the rural credit systems of Europe and other farmer's beneficial organizations—all these may answer good purposes. As a means of obtaining immediate results, however, nothing more promising has been suggested than the establishment of a postal express with C. O. D. privileges without weight limit.

The encouragement to direct dealings between producer and consumer which this plan would give, places it in the forefront of remedial measures.—Philadelphia Record.

A very interesting event was the marriage of Dr. Allen Boyd Crowe, dentist of this town, to Miss Nell Egan McDormand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. McDormand, which took place on Wednesday evening, the 17th inst.

This community was saddened last week by the deaths of two well-known and esteemed citizens, both occurring early in the morning of Tuesday, the 23rd inst.

James E. Crowe, the local manager of the Crowe, Elliott, Co hardware business, and a brother of R. Allen Crowe of Bridgetown. Representing the younger generation was Eugene McMullen, son of the proprietor of the Queen Hotel. The funerals both took place on Thursday, the funeral of Mr. McMullen being conducted in the rites of the Roman Catholic Church, while that of Mr. Crowe was held later in the day, services being conducted at the house by Rev. W. B. Muir, pastor of the Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. J. B. Dugan of Bridgetown, after which the Oddfellows of Western Star Lodge took charge of the ceremonies conducting the burial. A very large and representative number of citizens attended each funeral, evincing the esteem and sympathy universally felt through the community.
