SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Isobel Stormont, daughter of Sir David Stormont, a wealthy Scotch country gentleman, disappears without leaving the slightest trace.

Guided by a gypsy, he finds Isobel, almost dead, in an abandoned dwelling. Her clothes have been changed, and when she recovers she seems to be another girl.

Various stories of the girl's experiences are circulated, and attract the attention of Evelyn Ashe, a fortune hunter, who meets her at a charity fête given at her home.

For the benefit of her health and of Sir David's the Stormonts go abroad. Ashe follows, and in Switzerland overhears the keepers of an English orphan asylum remarking upon the wonderful resemblance of Isobel to a runaway girl who had been in their care.

CHAPTER XXVI. IPIGENTIA. It was not only Lady Stormont who had wondered unceasingly at Isobel's sudden variations of mood.

It was not only Lady Stormont who had wondered unceasingly at Isobel's sudden variations of mood. Conyers had observed them, too, and his deep inward discomfort was forced to attribute them in some way to Isobel's presence, though he had to admit that the latter strolled along to all appearance little affected by them.

courtesy he tendered, made her tremble. The sword which was hanging over her head must fall—and soon; but till he chose to speak she could not re-open the subject—pride and the position she had taken up, to treat his allegations as wild, incredible fictions, both rendered it impossible, still now she was torn between a shrinking horror of what must come and a reckless longing for anything even the worst, to happen—at least it would be over.

Beal had lingered a little, talking to a man, as rough-looking as his very primitive abode, but who had a few words of English—as who has not in that tourist-ridden land? They were discussing the weather, and the possibility of further climbing that season; and then, as the man showed a good deal of knowledge of the subject, a scheme which Beal had been revolving of crossing the mountains into Italy and rejoining the Stormont party there—provided always they were safely rid of Ashe. The peasant promptly pronounced the idea to be madness, which roused Conyers to argue on behalf of his project, till at last, looking round, he found himself apparently left alone.

Well, the storm which the peasant said was brewing would be severe enough to insure upon her return. He pushed his way through the village, which could boast nothing that could be called a street, the crazy, tottering chalets standing shoulder to shoulder, as close almost as stacks in a stackyard. As he neared the further end, he was certain that he heard voices, but when he stood in the open again the wide, high valley, sweeping up to the cold, gleaming fangs of a glacier, lay empty in all its expanse before him.

"I have not hurried you in any way, I have not pressed for an answer. I have given you plenty of time to think, but you must see that there is only one answer possible, and that what I ask, I must have—I will have." There was finality in the three slowly uttered words.

Conyers flung the rickety door back with a crash. The tiny, musty place within could have been spanned by his outstretched arms, and before the altar, under a rude figure of the church's militant saint, Ashe and Isobel were standing, the girl shrinking as far from him as the narrow confines would permit. But a better representative of the celestial champion in the eternal combat between darkness and light would have been found, in spite of his tweed shooting suit, in the young man who now burst in, his eyes aflame, bringing the breeze and joy of battle with him.

"Isn't this a quaint little place!" exclaimed Isobel, recovering herself after one low utterance of startled dismay, and with lightning quickness, and with a w-

TAILORED COATS OF CORDED SILK A NOVELTY.

In the new coat lines for fall are seen a number of very simple tailored coats of heavy corded silk which have been brought out for afternoon wear with costumes. These are shown in black and all the staple dark colors such as brown, blue and green, and show very little trimming, what is used being confined to the collar and cuffs. These coats are of evening length and semi-fitting, being gored on the under arm seams to give a graceful flare at the sides and back.

At forty Some of the signs that life has passed its zenith appear. Exertion is followed by fatigues that are not quite worn off next morning, and the beginning of that slow decline is commenced which culminates at seventy.

At forty, men and women should be careful. Nature needs a little help, and no remedy equals Ferronze as a strengthening system builder. It renews health by producing new blood, by supplying food elements to rebuild the nervous system.

In this way the decline that sets in at forty is postponed by Ferronze. The vital fluid is renewed, surplus vigor is created, the nervous system is invigorated. With increased appetite, sound sleep, and strong nerves you are bound to feel better—you will surely feel the enormous push Ferronze has given your health; try it. Thousands use it every day, just one tablet before meals. 50c. per box at all dealers.

FUNDS IN NEW YORK Of Canada's withdrawal of $1,000,000 gold from New York, the Wall Street Journal says: "The situation in Canada is not unlike our own. Money, of course, is wanted throughout the Dominion, especially in the North-West for crop movement purposes, but it is also in strong demand in all industrial branches. The Canadian banks all report that business is good everywhere, but that there is an urgent request for funds all round. Money loans at 6, 7 and 8 per cent. The banks have to rely entirely upon their own resources to meet this demand, as the monetary system of Canada does not offer any recourse to the government treasury for assistance, for the reason that all government funds, except what is held as reserve behind notes, is all the time on deposit with the banks.

"Canadian banks with branches in New York must therefore always be prepared to meet calls from their home offices whenever the need of funds becomes urgent. For this reason these banks in New York always keep their loanable funds on call and make few time commitments." MASTODON BONES REACH VANCOUVER Specimen of Prehistoric Animal Life Found at Skidegate B. C.—It Was of Enormous Size. VANCOUVER, Sept. 4.—Picture a quadruped of such enormous proportions that if it sat on its haunches in Stanley Park it would cover an area of one thousand three hundred and seventy-five square feet and its head would rear three hundred feet in the air—a beast that could squat down in the midst of a dump of gigantic Douglas pines and nibble the tender top sprouts from all the trees within an acre of its position.

The skin rids the system of more urea than the kidneys?

Nearly one fifth of the waste products of the body is eliminated by the skin. Suppose there is some unsuspected, unseen skin trouble—the pores are closed—the skin is unable to rid the system of its share of the waste. Then the blood carries this waste product to the kidneys—immediately they are overworked—they strain to throw off the extra load. What the kidneys can't possibly eliminate, the blood takes up again and deposits on the nerves. Then come the dull aches in back, hips and head—the nerves unstrung and irritated—the urine charged with impurities and highly colored—and you fear you have "Kidney Trouble." Nonsense. Your kidneys are overworked—not diseased. What you need is "FRUIT-A-TIVES" to act on the skin.

Fruit-a-tives (or Fruit Liver Tablets)

open the clogged pores—start up healthy skin action—and let the skin perform its natural function. This instantly relieves the kidneys of overwork—the back-aches stop and the complexion is beautified. There is no excessive waste matter in the blood to bring dull headaches—the urine is cleared—the bowels are opened and regulated—and the kidneys strengthened.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" act directly on the three great eliminating organs—Skin, Kidneys and Bowels—make them well and keep them well. That is why "FRUIT-A-TIVES" cure so many cases of apparent kidney disease that are really skin troubles. "FRUIT-A-TIVES" are fruit juices—in which the natural medicinal action of fruit is many times increased by the secret process of making them. Valuable tonics and antiseptics are added and the whole made into tablets—the finest formula known to medicine. Buy them—try them—and cure yourself at home. 50c. a box—6 boxes for $2.50. At all druggists or sent on receipt of price. 108 FRUIT-A-TIVES Limited, OTTAWA.

WHERE DOES THE PAPER GO?

The first question asked by a general advertiser. The Telegraph and Times reach that class of people who subscribe and agree to pay for the reading privilege. These papers go first hand from the publishers by carrier and not through street boys to be left in office or store by purchaser after reading. Common sense teaches that every paper passed into homes direct will be read. The Telegraph and Times are home papers. Do they contain your advertisement?

MASTODON BONES REACH VANCOUVER Specimen of Prehistoric Animal Life Found at Skidegate B. C.—It Was of Enormous Size.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 4.—Picture a quadruped of such enormous proportions that if it sat on its haunches in Stanley Park it would cover an area of one thousand three hundred and seventy-five square feet and its head would rear three hundred feet in the air—a beast that could squat down in the midst of a dump of gigantic Douglas pines and nibble the tender top sprouts from all the trees within an acre of its position.

It requires a stretching of the imagination to conjure up a vision of such a monster—a specimen of pre-historic animal life which osteologists have never even dreamed of. That such a terrible creature once roamed about the wilds of the British Columbia coast two Vancouver men are now in the north attempting to prove. They are digging out of the earth the bones of the extinct animal and already several pieces of the skeleton have been shipped to Vancouver and have been viewed by a number of scientists and medical men who have been utterly bewildered at the spectacle.

Seven feet six inches across the forehead from eye to eye is the measurement of a skull which could not be placed in the biggest retail show window on Hastings street. The sockets apparently held eyeballs eighteen inches to two feet in diameter, with pupils the size of the lenses used in large automobile searchlights. Dr. George E. Bayfield is one of the Vancouver medical men who has inspected the specimen bones now in Vancouver. He is at a loss to even form an opinion of what manner of monster they belonged to. One of the bones is a rib over sixteen feet in length, another half a pelvic bone remarkably well developed. The bones were discovered near Skidegate, Queen Charlotte Islands, and the remaining bones are now being excavated for shipment to this city.

THE CROP SCARE

The remarkable statements cabled to London by the Ogilvies, that in their opinion no good milling wheat will be available for export from Canada this year, and that they look for sensational developments a little later, have naturally caused much alarm, even though contradicted by government reports and those of such authority as the Manitoba Free Press, whose special reporters have been traversing the country and sending in daily reports for more than two weeks past.

Apparently, much depends upon the weather of the next few weeks, for the harvesting is still in progress. A Free Press reporter, writing on Sept. 2nd, of conditions in one section of Saskatchewan, makes it clear that the danger is not yet past. It is worth while to quote what he says: "From Dan to Grandview, when due allowance is made for short heads and weedy crops the average of the district will be about 20 bushels, with a considerable number of fields going 25 and 30. There is not more than ten per cent frost damaged. When seen on August 24, 25 and 26 the crop wanted two or three weeks of hot weather to ripen, and since then there have been several days of most unfavorable weather and little or no sunshine, so that it will be well on in September before many fields are ready for the binder. From Desjardis westward to Canora, taking in Robby, Togo and Kamack, the crop is a much heavier stand. The heads are long and very even, promising an average of 35 bushels, with fields that should have gone 35 and 40 per acre, but this section has had frost damage of 25 and 30 per cent, and the crop is so heavy that it will be very late in ripening. Round Togo and Kamack I saw nothing that could be cut before September 15. Round Canora the conditions were earlier and some of the fields may be ready by Sept. 10. From Canora westward, taking in Wadena, which was especially reported on; Quill Lake and Watson, where I had owing to a heavy rain, to take the report of the judge of the government seed commission, and Humbolt, which I personally inspected, the average yield will be 22 to 25 bushels, if the crop ripens without frost damage.

"In all I have driven 108 miles through crops in the section reported on and have taken samples of many fields. No one can do this and not be struck with the tremendous growth that has been made since the crop went in. At Wadena I saw barley cut that was sown on June 10, and all the crops are marvellous, considering the short and cool growing period of 1907. I do not believe any country, or any section of any country today has done as much in the same period of growth, and should a fine September be granted the wheat crop will be one to make the whole country sit up and take notice. It is no use disguising the fact, however, that there must be a long period of hot weather, without frost, to accomplish this."

NEW CANCER TREATMENT

BUDAPEST Sept. 7.—Dr. Haler, an eminent local physician, asserts that he has secured very beneficial results in cancer cases at the University Hospital through the use of an injection of gelatine. In forty cases thus treated he was unsuccessful in only three.

CONUNDRUMS When are ships like infants? When they are in their slups. When are sheep like note paper? When folded. What workmen are always on strike? Stone-cutters. Why are drunkards and lawyers alike? Their favorite places are at the bar. Why does one "thanksgiving dinner make us think of Asia? Because it gives us Turkey.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—(Special)—John E. Snowball, of the library bureau of Canada, is charged, according to an evening paper, with being short in his accounts. The result is that the officials of the Assurance Corporation Company, with whom he was bonded, has him in charge. Either restitution must be made or prosecution will be instituted. A time limit has, it is understood, been set.

TORONTO'S GRIEVANCE

The citizens of Toronto are very restive under the grip of the street railway company. When certain proposals by the company were being considered in the city council chamber this week Mr. J. W. Woods, president of the board of trade, made this emphatic statement:—"Since coming into this chamber this afternoon, I have twice been told that under the decision of the privy council the Toronto Railway Company may lay its tracks upon any and every street in the City of Toronto. If this be true, if no contract, however carefully drawn, can preserve to a municipality the control of its own streets, then I for one, and I think every other citizen in Toronto, however opposed he may have been in the past to public ownership, is ready to hold up his hand for the expropriation and municipal operation of our street railway system."

BELCOURT FOR SENATE

The rumor persists that Mr. N. A. Belcourt, M. P. for Ottawa, will go to the senate. The Toronto News makes this comment:—"Mr. N. A. Belcourt, M. P. for Ottawa, will be appointed to the senate. Why? He has a seat in parliament, the parliamentary term has not expired, and Mr. Belcourt has done nothing in politics which entitles him to exceptional consideration. The fact seems to be that he desires a life appointment, and that the premier will not, or cannot, resist his desire. The feeling grows both at the capital and in the country that the English-speaking provinces have ceased to have influence in determining appointments, and in determining public policy, and that the premier is very easily overcome by the reactionary forces which control the situation."

The programme of the new minister of railways with regard to the Intercolonial does not differ from the declared programme of the former ministers. All have expressed a desire to give the people good service and if possible to make the road pay its way, if this could be done without unduly burdening the traffic. All of them have failed to carry out their programme to the extent that could be done were the railway divorced from politics and conducted by a non-partisan commission. The Hon. Mr. Graham has no easy task.

Following the vigorous political campaign in Quebec province, the local opposition in New Brunswick is warming up to its work, and the leaders appear to be unusually cheerful in their views respecting the outlook. A general discussion of provincial affairs is desirable, and there has been for years past too great an apathy on the part of the public. As this paper has before stated, the great changes that have taken place in the personnel of the provincial government in the last few years add much to the general interest in the situation.

Of the political situation in St. John the Charlottetown Guardian says:—"At this writing there is doubt whether either Hon. Dr. Pugsley or Hon. Mr. Graham will be opposed in seeking re-election in St. John or Brookville. It is usually futile to put up opposition in such cases. Constituencies prefer to have ministerial representatives, for obvious reasons, and in this case, with a general election coming next year, there is little inducement to oppose the new ministers at the present time."

LOST SHIPS

Here on the sands when the tide comes in, I look on the waste of sea. And I dream of the ship of the long ago. And years with their mystery, Then it was that the black sea was cold, And the golden hopes were undecid'd, For the ships I saw to a far-off world, Proudly in white sails unfurled, Would bring back gold to me.

The white gulls swing from a fleecy sky, And cry as in days of yore. But the hope I heard in the siren's song Is lost in the breakers' roar. And I see them cross the harbor bar, Far, far out where the sky and sea Meet in that mist on the boundary. Of life's vast tide, I look for sails That I saw away—but caught avail— They're gone forever more.

The cliffs are bleak on the dreary shore, Shadows blend the sea. Mocking the memory. Laden ships come from lands afar, And I see them cross the harbor bar, But the ships I saw in the long ago, Staunch, with sails unfurled of snow, Are lost—all lost.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Apropos of Gounod, a story is told which shows the difference between the French and the English style of regarding things. A music-mad young English lady was introduced to a great musician, and overwhelmed by the supineness of stands in the presence of the composer of "Faust," she addressed him thus: "O, I am lost for words to express my admiration. Inspired musician, genius, mighty master, what shall I call you?" Gounod here interrupted her by patting her on the head and saying: "Throw your arms around my neck and call me your little rabbit!"—Weekly Telegraph.

"Ah, that's pretty!" said Mr. Snooks, looking over a number of architectural designs. "What is that?" "That," said the architect, "is a fifteen-hundred-dollar bungalow." "What will it cost to build it?" asked Mr. Snooks. "About $8,000," said the architect.—Judge.

A father and mother, with six children, spent their holiday at the seaside. Immediately on arrival they set about looking for cheap lodgings. At length they came to a notice of a "furnished room to let" and made inquiries.

"Oh, yes," said the landlady in answer to the father's question, "It's here the room is to let, but there's only one bed in it." "Oh, that's all right," replied the father; "we're used to roughing it. The wife and bairns'll sleep on the floor."—London Tatler.

ONE OF THE SEVEN PLAGUES OF EGYPT

One of the plagues sent on Pharaoh when he would not yield to Moses and allow the Israelites to leave Egypt was that of the locust plagues. For within the past two months many parts of Africa have suffered from a plague of locusts that could not have been excelled at the time of Moses. Billions of these animals have recently been on the move across the Transvaal in South Africa. The stench from their decaying bodies has poisoned the air around for many miles. The streets of Johannesburg have been literally paved with dead and crawling locusts. Everything has been covered by locusts. Locusts in the soup, locusts in the beds and under the beds—literally the land was covered with locusts. They devoured much of the crops, and enormous smoke fires were constructed by the authorities to try and drive them northwards. The green crops over hundreds of miles of land have disappeared as if by magic in a single night, and in place of the green crops there has been found a dull brown tinge from the countless bodies of the locust swarm.

Barbed wire fences were covered so that they looked to be solid. In the cities, pedestrians slipped and struggled through a covering of locusts several inches in depth. The ladies of Johannesburg refused to go out of their homes for nearly a week, and every home of any importance was barred as against some dangerous enemy in the city's midst.

In Algeria hundreds of men were employed under mounted officials to trap into specially dug trenches millions of the young locusts before they had obtained their wings. Then quicklime is placed over the insects. Smoke has some slight effect in diverting the course pursued by the locust swarm, and where it is found that underbrush is especially loaded with young locusts the entire bit of ground is thoroughly burned over. In some places when the locusts have just obtained their wings, enormous swarms have been seen moving across the sky, having the appearance of a thunder cloud and darkening the sun for a brief period.

Before Justice Mason in Fairville yesterday James Blacklaw was fined $50 and costs for selling beer without license in his shop at Miramichi. The information was laid by Policeman Lawson. County Secretary Vincent prosecuted and W. H. Truman appeared for Blacklaw. Mr. Truman gave notice of appeal.

Mansfield's Will Leaves All to Widow.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 3.—From all parts of the country and from foreign lands expressions of sympathy over the death of Richard Mansfield at his summer home, Seven Acres, are pouring in here today to the wife and relatives of the dead actor. This one of the shortest on record, in the best will and testament of Richard Mansfield, the actor. It was made in 1894, when Mrs. Mansfield, who had then been the wife of the actor two years, retired from the stage. No will was made after that time. No codicil was added. As he thought then he thought when he died, and the widow under a paragraph was named the sole executrix without bond. The will of the dead actor is no surprise to those who knew him intimately and how much he loved the woman that bears his name. It is a refutation of the claim that the man who was a genius and an artist never knew his own mind; that he was not consistent. No provision was made for the boy, the actor leaving it entirely to the mother to provide for him. That Mr. Mansfield had implicit confidence in his wife is understood better by the fact that in the years he was piling up money until he was rated almost a millionaire, he kept none of it for himself, feeding it to his wife as fast as he made it. Probably worth $100,000 when he was married, his first act almost was to do it in his wife. In the years that followed, as his seasons showed profits of from $50,000 to $60,000, the money was invested as his judgment indicated in real estate, but the deeds were made out in his wife's name. The three New London estates and the home on Riverside drive, his rights to all plays, scenery, his stock and cash in the banks will amount to about $500,000, with some $60,000 life insurance. Of this, all save the life insurance policy and cash and bonds were Mrs. Mansfield's before his death, so that the property of which the will disposes is worth not more than $100,000. The widow has made no plans for the future. The Riverside drive home has been for sale for some time. It is said the widow probably will continue to reside at Seven Acres. She is gratified over the death of her husband. The marriage was one of the real love matches of the stage.

John D. Roddick, Lyndhurst, Tells His Experience

After Two Years' Suffering With Lame Back and Weak Kidneys, Was Cured by Dr. Hamilton.

Lyndhurst, Ont., Sept. 7.—The following statement made by Mr. Roddick, lumber merchant, tells of the remarkable knowledge possessed by Dr. Hamilton: "Two years ago I had grippe which settled in my back and kidneys. I was sickly and very miserable, suffered great pain and inconvenience. Different remedies were tried without benefit and then I decided to try Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butterick Pills. I derived immense good from their use in short time. When two boxes were used I was immeasurably better. Today I am well. Neighbors suffering from kidney and back trouble have also been cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills which am convinced is the best medicine for regulating and cleansing the system. They are very mild, but do the work just the same." "Nothing so certain in diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys as Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25 cents, at all dealers."

ANTI-ALCOHOLIC LEAGUE Quebec Organization is Doing Splendid Aggressive Work.

(Montreal Witness.) The Quebec Anti-Alcoholic League during the brief period of its existence, has been doing much good work in the interests of temperance. Through its influence all the liquor licenses, except two, in the County of Charlevoix, have been cancelled. The league is also vigorously carrying out the early-closing movement in Quebec. J. Chalmers, seeking help from the federal government in the distribution of M. Edmond Rousseau's work on "Alcohol and Alcoholicism." In the month of May last it submitted to the council of public instruction a series of resolutions on the subject of temperance teaching in the schools, and by order of the council, this teaching will be inaugurated in the Roman Catholic schools this autumn. The league confidently expects that the Quebec government will place the above-named work of M. Rousseau in all the schools. In the Dominion of Alberta, seeking for more complete and general temperance teaching in the Protestant schools, and the hope is entertained that they may be equally successful. The Quebec league has also decided to seek some practical amendments to the Quebec liquor law at the next session of the legislature.

GOOD CROP REPORT New York, Sept. 6.—Bradstreet's state of trade tomorrow will say: Canada trade reports are good; Wheat crop advice are more reassuring as the harvest, which is now general, advances, and there is less apprehension that tight money will unfavorably affect commercial operations. Collections, however, still show a dragging tendency the country over. Fall rains this week number fifteen, as against fourteen in this week a year ago.

CALLS REV. DR. HILL A message was received from Yarmouth last night to the effect that at a meeting of the congregation of St. John's Presbyterian church there a unanimous call was extended to Rev. Allan M. Hill, Ph. D., of Fairville. St. John's church is one of the most important in western Nova Scotia and numbers among its former pastors such men as Rev. Anderson Rogers, now of the United Church, New Glasgow, and Rev. Dr. E. D. Miles, convener of the foreign mission committee for the eastern section of the Presbyterian church. Rev. Dr. Hill has been in charge of the Fairville church for the last six years and is popular here. He was communicated with last night and said that he had received a wire, the contents of which were the same as given. He declined to say anything further in the matter than that he is considering the call.

Frank Whetzel, formerly of this city but more recently of London (Eng.), passed through St. John on his way to Toronto Wednesday last on a business trip.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE

A True Kentuckian filled the bill of the Opera House last evening and was well presented by the Klark-Urban Company. Miss Maudie Cecil had many opportunities as "Scrubby" Jones and her acting was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. Miss Durgon, as Sue Pepper, and Miss Gordon in the role of Martha Smith, also did excellent work. Eugenie Powers made the most of David Pepper and received good support from the remainder of the cast. The specialties were again highly appreciated, the moving pictures being particularly good.

At the matinee today A Game of Craft will be presented and Utah in the evening will bring the company's engagement to a close.

THE BONNIE BRIER BUSH

The play that has won all hearts, The Bonnie Brier Bush, will be presented here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at The Opera House. This delightful story of "Auld Scotland" is one that is familiar to and appeals to everybody in its simplicity and charming naturalness. The original Kirke La Shelle production will be seen here presented by a company which is a very large one. A carload of scenery is used. A pleasing feature of the performance is a quartette of male voices, and the rendition of Loch Lomond, Mary Bree, is always a signal for a burst of enthusiasm from the audience.

Another feature which adds color to the always delightful performance is the appearance of a Scotch bag pipe, Robert Ireland, late piper major of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, who appears at every performance of the play.

Battle line steamship Matinea, Capt. Wright, reached St. John Aug. 30 from Glasgow, bound to Garston to load deals for Ireland.

THE EVENING TIMES, ST. JOHN, N. B. SATURDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1937

The traveller stands in awe of Rome, looks with admiration on Florence and gives his heart to Venice. He is filled with mystery from the very start aroused by the thought that he is to see a city built on islands with water everywhere. With this strangeness comes a feeling of fear as he hands his luggage to a gondolier and steps into the gondola wondering how his gondolier will steer the light flimsy craft through the many small canals, for he has no light and the night is dark.

The gondolier gives his back to the oar and they are off. The moon rays play upon the waters giving them an iridescent blue. The rocking of the gondola from side to side soon awakens a feeling of calm and rest. The traveller is so easily entranced by the mystery of color, sound and movement he wonders if anything could disturb it when the cry "Ah Stall!" strikes sharp upon his ear. The canal is narrow and it seems impossible for two gondolas to ride abreast but the prow is turned aside and another boat darts forth like a sea-gull playing on the waters and passes safely.

When asked if it is not hard to manage one of the crafts the gondolier answers: "It is all in getting used to it. You see we begin when we are little boys; we start by rowing freight boats, we live on the canals so much it is hard to keep on land. We can almost feel when a boat is coming before we hear the cry "Ah Stall!"

The boat with many tourists and sudden turns, is carried through a long network of canals. They pass a long row of gondolas lined up before a large hotel waiting to disembark. They turn a corner and are now on the great canal, whose broad waters shimmer like many precious gems with the light of the town and the moon playing on the waters. Looking across on one bank he sees the snowy dome of a large church, on the other many old palaces, once occupied by grandees and princes, now remodelled to meet the needs of English and American tourists.

Just before the traveller alights the gondolier whispers to him, "Sir, don't forget a pour-boire for the gondolier." Supper is eaten in haste, for the traveller is anxious to go out on the stone balcony and enjoy the quiet beauty of that Venice of which he has read and dreamed but is just getting to know. One by one the stars have come out, they have spangled the sky and changed the scene to a greenish hue. The Canal throbs with sounds, there are many boats going up and down carrying enthusiastic Americans and lively English, who give vent to their feelings in such phrases "Isn't this just splendid," "I like Venice better than any other city."

Charles after you make your fortune let us come and live here, and spend our old age riding about in gondolas.

Their enthusiasm tempts him and he hastens to get a gondola. He instructs the gondolier to take him to St. Mark's square. Nearing the shore the gondolier points out a large marble building saying that it is the Great Palace of the Doges, on the other side is the splendid National Library. Towering above these buildings are the golden Domes of St. Mark's Church and the great column with the splendid clock. The doves have gone to roost and the square is given over to pleasure seekers; some are promenadeing up and down, others are sitting on benches listening to the soft strains of a mandolin orchestra.

It was the Doge Peter Orsello II who on the ship called Bucintauri threw the first gold on the waves and thus presided at the marriage of Venice with the Adriatic. At this time Delimita was brought under her rule and by the twelfth century the Adriatic became her domain. It was not until a century later that Venice became a real oligarchy under Doge Peter Gradenigo. A law was passed that only those should be considered citizens who had fathers and grandfathers in the government all others to be excluded. This law caused great discontent among the people, but their words of opposition remained unheeded.

Possessors of vast fortunes, the patricians and rich merchants rivalled in wild extravagance, their money flowed from the coffers as easily as wine from their bottles, and this desire for splendid display resulted in making Venice the most attractive city in the world. The most splendid palaces were reared along the banks of the canals, their facades were adorned with the richest arabesque carvings. Handsome gondolas and liveried gondoliers stood before the door day and night. Haughty princes and handsome ladies richly attired in silks and splendid jewels spent their days riding in their gondolas, paying calls, night was turned into day with dancing and merry-making at splendid balls.

It was in the fifteenth century that Venice attained the summit of her power; she boasted as having 200,000 inhabitants, she had 3,000 vessels and 35,000 marines, more than 45 gallees mounted by 11,000 men protected her commercial interests on the high seas. When Constantinople was taken by the Turks Venice carried off some of her richest treasures and brought over Byzantine artists to adorn St. Mark's and her other churches.

ANCIENT GLASS MAKING.

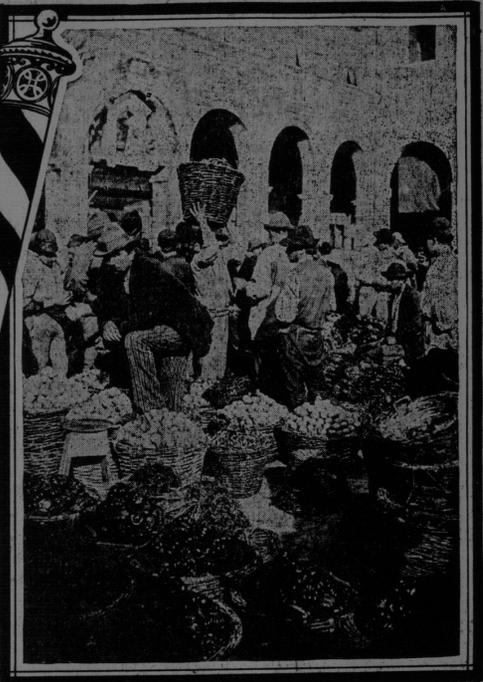

Though Venice contributed little that was new to the art of glass-making nowhere else, not even among the Persians and the Arabs, did it attain so great a stage of perfection. Glass-blowing was one of the earliest arts; many of the largest museums of America have specimens showing that the Egyptians and the Romans had great skill in blowing glass. It is difficult to say when glass-making was first begun in Italy; some Italian authorities say with the founding of the city in the fifth century. The oldest mosaic that adorns the Cathedral of St. Mark is said to have been made by a glass-maker from the Orient.

The government was anxious to develop the industry and therefore granted these corporations so many privileges that they soon developed into monopolies. But these factories burned so often that they threatened the entire city and laws had to be passed ordering the destroying of all furnaces on the Rialto and later limiting the industry to the Island of Murano.

Marco Polo, the son of an old patrician family, did more than all others to make glass-making a fine art. He went to Constantinople, where his brother Andrea had a large trading house. He trafficked in the Black Sea, in the region of the Caucasus and the Volga. Among the Persians, in India and Cochin China he saw beautiful examples of glass-making and he brought many fine samples and ideas on glass-blowing back with him. He was called the best citizen in Venice and his services were rewarded by his being made a member of the Great Council. He urged the glass-makers to experiment with the enamels known to the Orient and not to limit themselves to the making of fantasies. The successful glass manufacturers were ranked as patricians. They often spent large fortunes working out a new process. They held a firm position in society and were allowed to marry their daughters to noblemen.

Their skill soon became known in every part of Europe and the Orient and glass manufacturers of other countries offered them large wages to tempt them away from home. The council of ten passed the following laws to put an end to these allurements. They said that if a glass-blower took any of the secrets of his craft to any foreign country he was to be imprisoned and if he persisted in spite of his imprisonment he was to be killed. In spite of this law some were tempted to Persia, China, Brussels, France and England.

Though the Venetians succeeded in discovering few new colors, they became wonderfully successful in fashioning fantastic shapes and enhancing their glass with beautiful decorations. Some of the designs etched into the glass and plates are as fine and as exquisitely done as though they were paintings. They etched on glass the most delicate and graceful demands great admiration from artists in all parts of Europe.

ARCHITECTURE AND PAINTING.

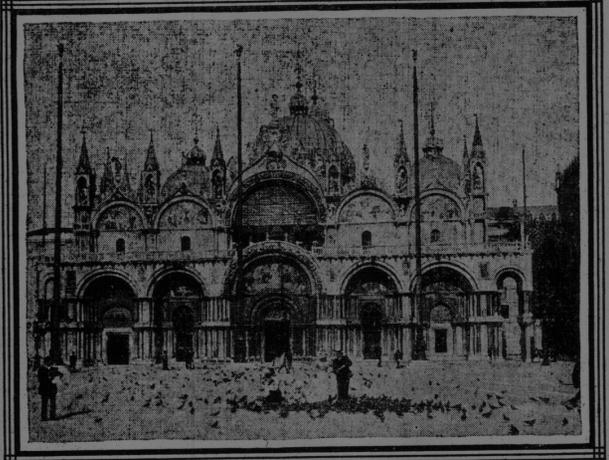

But patrician pride and love of power developed two other arts for Venice, architecture and painting. The gallery of Venice is one of the finest in Europe and has splendid works showing what Titian, Palma Vecchio and Bellini did for the art in Venice. Titian's one painting alone, the Assumption of the Virgin, would entitle Venice to a prominent place in Italian Art. While her painters were busy creating splendid pictures for altars her architects were busy drawing plans of beautiful palaces and great churches. On either side of the Grand Canal are to be seen many beautiful palaces, it was here most of the old patrician families built their homes. As the traveller goes along the left bank in his gondola he sees the Puntello della Salute and Dogana di Mare the principal custom house in Venice. Beyond is the attractive church called the Santa Maria della Salute. There is the Palace Dario in the style of the Lombard, and the Palazzo Yenier that consists only of the ground floor, though the building is planned on a scale of great magnificence. On the same bank is the beautiful Palazzo Rezzonico which was built by a rich patrician in the 17th century. This is the house in which Browning died. On the opposite bank is the Palazzo Trevisan, largely known because it contains Canova's last work Hector and Ajax. The Palazzo Grimani is the handsomest of the Renaissance type and is adorned with splendid carvings.

ST. MARK'S.

But it is the St. Mark's square with the gilded domes, broad place and high clock tower that tell the traveller about the really great splendor of Venetian architecture. The history of this square is long and glorious. If historical accounts are accurate the remains of St. Mark were brought from Alexandria to Venice in 828 and the Venetians built a small basilica to contain them but this was soon afterwards destroyed. It was in the 11th century that the Venetians raised a more splendid monument to their patron saint. Many historians believe that architects were brought from Constantinople to plan this noble church of S. Marco and others believe that though Saint Sophie served

PRINTING AND LEATHER WORK.

Leather-work and illuminating became important crafts. The leather-work was used for book covers and in the making of furniture. Some of the leather was painted with dyes of different colors but the greater part was tooled. The designs were wonderfully graceful and worked with the greatest nicety. Many of the books that could not be printed were illuminated on parchment. These illuminators showed great dexterity in the handling of their brushes though their work was not as fine as that done by the Florentine and Roman Monks. The art of tooling leather and binding books has had a great revival in Venice during the last few years. Some of the finest hand-bound books are the work of the Venetian bookbinders. Their leather tooling also com-

GLASS MAKING.

Their love for finery led to the revival of the lace-industry—especially the Burano lace which was once known to every fisherwoman on the island.

The galleys of Venice as early as the 15th century took rich laces to all parts of Europe. Though many kinds of laces were manufactured the real Venetian point was considered the handsomest and was the most popular. Some of the foremost lace-makers in Italy amassed great fortunes. Venetian laces were popular in every court in Europe. The manufacturers of Italian laces received a great blow when Colbert, seeing what this industry would do for the exchequer of France, brought over workers from Italy and established lace industries in his own country. From this time the Italian industry began to decline. By the middle of the 19th century the making of Venetian lace was confined to the Island of Burano, but even this soon fell into decay. The last twenty years have seen a great revival in the making of Venetian lace. In 1872 some of the lace manufacturers began to revive the industry by copying old designs. A school was started with twenty young women and it was not long before others joined the class.

A few years ago a great storm swept across the Island of Burano which threatened the simple fisherfolk with starvation. When the Queen of Italy and some of her friends heard this sad news they suggested that the women should be set to doing needle-work known to their great grandmothers. There was only one old woman who still knew how to do the Burano lace and she was too old to teach. A woman was sent to her and watched the old lady while she made the lace and in ed them as a model it was wholly the work of Venetian architects. It is likely they learned from the Byzantines how to make their gilded domes and their rich mosaic figures. It is quite certain that two of the columns which adorn the church were brought from Constantinople. There was another column but at the time it was transported it fell into the water. The one is adorned with the statue of St. Theodore, the patron of the city, the other has the winged lion and is the emblem of St. Mark. These with the splendid bronze horses were afterwards brought to Paris by Napoleon but were later restored to their rightful place. With these great bronzes are the rich mosaic which adorn the church without and within. The two mosaics represent the embarkment of the body of St. Mark at Alexandria and the disembarkment in Venice. The oldest on the facade is of the 13th Century and represents the bringing of the Salin's relics to the church. All the arches and cupolas of the church are adorned with rich mosaics. The oldest date from the 12th Century and represent scenes from the Old Testament. The altar is decorated with pillars of also basalt, four of these pillars were taken from the Temple in Jerusalem. Here is also found a mosaic portrait of St. Mark set with many kinds of precious gems.

PALACE OF THE DOGES.

It was in the Palace of the Doges that the laws were passed which made for the strength, the intrigue and crime of the city. This splendid palace was partly burned twice. It is built upon a large open court and floor after floor is supported by great rows of pillars beautifully carved. The exterior of the palace is elegant and sombre, the outside expresses strength and the interior great splendor. Every room is heavily decorated with paintings that cover the wall and the ceiling. Paintings that glorify the city and the government. The walls are covered by Christian saints and pagan divinities; here Neptune, Mars and Venus stand guard. The apartments are reached by a long flight of steps called the stairs of the Grants were one of the early Venetian palaces. One passage two colossal Statues of Neptune and Mars and enters the Hall of the Scala d'Oro, decorated with rich statues and paintings. The room is adorned with lovely frescoes and splendid statues of Atlas, Hercules, Charity and Abundance.

Another spacious room is the Hall of the College where the Signoria, composed of sixteen wise men, six counselors and three clerics met to decide criminal cases. The room is adorned with a throne and benches raised on several steps. The wall is decorated with many splendid allegorical paintings. The ceiling here as in the other rooms is decorated with elaborate frescoes.

The most important room is the Hall of the College, it is wonderfully large and decorated with many splendid allegorical figures. The most attractive of these represents the Doge Pasquale Cicogna before Christ with Saint Mark, protected by faith and justice. The ceiling is decorated with richly carved wood and a painting by Tintoretto showing Venice reigning over the sea receiving maritime honors. The largest and most splendid room is the hall where were assembled the Major Council and all the nobles whose names were inscribed in the Book of Gold. The ceiling is decorated with Tintoretto's Paradise, the largest painting in the world, and illustrates the whole story of Creation. The frieze about the hall is decorated with thirteen medallions painted by Tintoretto and his pupils representing the doges since the ninth century. Only one place is left vacant, it is inscribed with these words: Here is the place of Marin Faliero who was executed for crimes. The ceiling designed by Christoforo Sorte is the richest in the palace and the chief-decouvre of Venetian Venice is crowned with glory and surrounded by Fame, Peace, Abundance and the Graces.

The most interesting part of this palace is the bridge of Sighs over which criminals passed when condemned to die by the Doge. But it is nearly sun-sear and the traveller calls to his gondolier to take him up to the Rialto, one of the most famous bridges in history. A broad flight of steps ascends to the shining bridge, which at this hour of the day is almost forsaken except for a few beggars and vendors who cheer warms—But the bridge would tell a different story. It becomes crowded with handsome stalls where are seen rich silks, rare stones and beautiful glass. They are doing a lively trade, women wearing handsome gowns and proudest patricians press forward anxious to see and to buy these rich wares. Off in one lonely corner sits a lonely man with a beautiful girl—the crowds pass by they enquire who they are only to be told. It is Shylock the Jew and his fair daughter Jessica—The day dream might last forever when an old man past for a few sou and the Venice of the past is forgotten in the Venice of the present.

A LETTER OF THANKS

Sir,—On behalf of the St. John firemen I extend heartfelt thanks to the various merchants, bankers and citizens, and to the gentlemen and corporations residing and carrying on business in other parts of Canada, as well as the United States, who so generously responded to my request for financial assistance toward the firemen's tournament.

To the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly consented to act as judges in deciding the deForest and fire department prize competitions I gratefully acknowledge my deep obligation.

To the various visiting fire department contingents who favored us with their presence, and took part in the parade, tournament and excursion hearty thanks are extended.

To all our citizens who in any manner assisted the firemen in making the demonstration a success, I can only say their kindness will not be forgotten; and also to the gentlemen connected with the press the firemen and myself feel under the deepest obligation, and regret it is not in our power ever to sufficiently repay them for all they have done for us. I have the honor to be, Yours faithfully, JOHN KERR, Chief of the Fire Department.

REGULATIONS FORMULATED

Sussex Fire Department Submits Schedule to Govern Tournament.

SUSSEX, Sept. 7.—(Special)—Owing to the difference of opinion of the various departments regarding rules and regulations governing the races at fire tournaments and with the view of establishing a racing board, Chief Daley of the Sussex fire department is sending out the following letter to the different departments in the maritime provinces, and it is hoped that it will lead to a meeting of the representatives of the various departments at a later date, when the matter can be discussed, and establish a standard set of rules governing fire sports. The Sussex boys were well pleased with the treatment they received in St. John, and with the showing they made. The letter is as follows:—

"Sussex, N. B., Sept. 7, 1907.

To the Fire Department of 'Gentlemen.—At a regular meeting of the Sussex fire department it was decided to make the different departments of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island to formulate a schedule governing the four principal events at a firemen's tournament, and the Sussex department begs leave to offer the following suggestions:

"Hose Race.—To be run dry. Single on time. Ten men to a team. Distance not less than 150 yards or more than 400 yards. Roll to carry 250 feet of hose. Rule—Stretch 200 feet, break coupling, put on branch pipe. One half second to be added for every quarter turn that can be given on the pipe.

"Hook and Ladder Race.—Distance to be not less than 50 yards or more than 100 yards (with or without ladder). Raise and mount; time taken when man grasps top rung. Seven or eight men to a team.

"Hose Coupling.—Distance 100 yards. Two men to run 50 yards in centre and make coupling. Time to be taken when coupling touches the ground.

"Duty Races.—Distance, not less 50 yards or more than 100 yards. Dress: Rubber coat, helmet, belt and spanner.

"Appliances to be used: Regulation certificate of the department holding the tournament.

"Timers and judges in all cases to be regular members of fire departments, and to be respectively requested to send you ideas re the rules for these events to 'THE SUSSEX FIRE DEPT.'

NICE AND ROSS FOR HARBOR CHAMPS

But Looks as if Belyea Would Not Row; in Which Case Coates Will Have Easy Thing

It is said that "Bud" Nice and James Ross will enter for the harbor championship on Saturday, the 14th, against Coates. Entries are announced to close on Wednesday. Without some assistance done very soon with reference to Belyea's suspension, he will be deprived of his chance for the cup. Of the proposed race the Sun says:—"That Ross, Nice and Coates will participate is practically assured, and considering the records of these rowers, the race will doubtless be looked forward to with the keenest interest and expectation. It is also probable that some of the young tars will take part in the race. It is worth noting that Nice and Ross, who have shown that some of them would put up a good race even in fast company, without Belyea, the race will certainly not be looked forward to with the keenest interest." The records of the oarsmen, Nice and Ross, are not brilliant and neither one of them could give Coates a good race, and, furthermore, neither is in very great shape. Belyea, on the other hand, as Carlton people are well aware, is in fine fettle and would, without a question of doubt, put up a splendid contest with Coates. Otherwise, as previously stated, the race would be little better than a farce."

ONE FOR THE FIREMEN

To the Editor of the Times:—Slightly less than a steam fire engine is purchased or a new boiler placed on an old one, we have a test to see that it is what it should be, we start the fire going and in three minutes should have ten pounds of steam, and every half minute after it should show about 10 pounds more, up to 40 pounds, when it would make steam more rapidly and in less than seven minutes should show about 140 pounds of steam. We then test the pumping capacity through 200 feet of hose with different nozzles, taking the time every minute to see what was the steam pressure and the water pressure, and with a 1 1/4 inch nozzle it should throw over 250 feet. You can plainly see that when an engine is given such a test it is to show that it is up to the mark as a fire fighting machine.

It was therefore with a great deal of surprise I learned that on Sunday evening last one engine responded to Box 41 without any fire started. Fortunately there was no fire to fight.

Had there been it would have been a beautiful sight to see, an engine at the scene of a large fire waiting for steam, before it would have been of any use. I will admit that this engine was partially decorated for the parade next day, but decoration or no decoration, it should have been ready for work when it reached the box, as it would make steam more rapidly than standing still.

It gives one the impression that when they get some decorations on the men in charge think they should not work. Now, Mr. Editor, who is responsible? Was this man instructed not to start the fire in case of an alarm? If so by whom? If not—

I believe in giving the firemen every encouragement when preparing for such a parade as they gave us on Labor Day, but no matter what the cost they should understand that when an alarm is sounded they should be ready for work when they arrive, and not give us such an exhibition as that of last Sunday evening. Yours truly, A TAXPAYER.

Mrs. George Moore

The Charlottetown Guardian of yesterday says:—

There was sincere sorrow manifested generally throughout the city when it was learned that Mrs. Moore, wife of George Moore, of the firm of Moore & McLeod, had died suddenly yesterday. She was an estimable and well known lady and had many friends who were deeply pained by the news of her death. She was a daughter of Wm. Chandler of this city, and was in the 41st year of her age.
