A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissue. The man who is clean in this way will look it and set it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomach. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's inside clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and cleans, healthy flesh. It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. Consultation in the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Food is sure to keep your stripe. Easy to take as candy.

AT D. BASSEN'S

LONG STANDING SCIATICA

Completely Cured by One Box of Father Morrissy's No. 7 Tablets.

Sciatica is hard enough to endure, and harder still to cure, in many cases, with ordinary remedies. Caused, like rheumatism, by impurities in the blood, which in this case set up an irritation of the sciatic nerve, it is so difficult to get at with external applications that many sufferers try in vain to get relief.

Mr. Charles McEachern, of Summersville, P.E.I., was in just that position until he started to take Father Morrissy's No. 7. He writes:

"After trying several doctors and spending large sums of money without avail, I was completely cured of Sciatica or your Medicine (No. 7 for Rheumatism). No matter how long you have suffered from Sciatica or Rheumatism of joints or muscles—no matter how much medicine or liniment you have used without result—try Father Morrissy's No. 7 before you give up. It has restored health to many who were almost hopeless."

Preserving Eggs.

(By R. W. Thatcher.)

The desirability of some simple, cheap and satisfactory method for preserving eggs is apparent to everyone. A method of this sort which would enable farmers, poultrymen, and consumers to put away eggs in the summer, when they are plentiful and comparatively cheap, and preserve them until the winter season, when they are scarce and high in price, would be of very great value. The supply of eggs during the winter months is often insufficient to meet the demand for them, and the market has to be supplied by shipments of cold-storage or packed eggs from the outside. During the summer months they are more plentiful, and some of them never goes so high in price as they do in the winter. It is during the summer months that the farmer has the opportunity of securing a supply of eggs for the winter.

one quart of water glass. Pack the eggs into the jar and pour the liquid over them, covering the eggs completely. Do not wash the eggs before packing them as this may injure their keeping qualities by removing a natural protective coating on the outside of the shells.

Each day's gathering of eggs may be packed immediately after gathering by placing them in a jar and pouring over them just enough of the solution to cover them. This is better than to hold the eggs for several days at the risk of their becoming stale in order to have a sufficient number to fill the entire vessel at one time. In some of the warmer sections of the state, during the summer months, the temperature often rises high enough to start incubation in eggs. In such localities eggs must be packed soon after they are to be laid.

Water glass is a somewhat alkaline liquid, but the diluted solution is not injurious to the hands if they are dipped into it in packing successive gatherings of eggs, or in removing the eggs from the solution.

Eggs packed by this method will keep for some time after they are removed from the preservative solution. The author has used some which have been out of the solution for four weeks, without being able to detect any deterioration in quality.

Mexico's Next President.

The real trouble with Mexico today, according to Edwin Emerson, who writes in Success Magazine, is that everybody of any consequence in that country is wondering about tomorrow. Pres. Diaz having reached his eightieth year, may die any day without the help of an assassin. Still, assassins are not unheard of in Mexico. Only a few years ago one of Porfirio Diaz's would-be assassins cost the life of the chief of the police of the City of Mexico.

Now all Mexico is speculating, should Don Porfirio die—who is to be his successor? Not his successor de jure—the vice-president of the republic—but his successor de facto—the man who will beat down all opposition, exterminate his rivals for power, to rule a cowed country with a hand of iron, as Diaz has ever done.

Will it be Ramon Corral, the vice-president, or General Ramirez, the commander-in-chief of the redoubtable rurales? Or Enrique Creel, the friend of the foreigners and of Uncle Sam? Or General Bernardo Reyes, the friend of the church and idol of the army? Or Senator Limanour, the capitalist and financial wizard? Or Don Francisco Madero, the martyr and outlaw of Coahuila.

All but this man are out of government men who, strictly speaking, have put one party behind them: the party of established order. Madero alone is the leader of the opposition, the party of reform. The former malcontents of Northern Mexico, having been cheated of their hopes in Bernardo Reyes, have now fixed their allegiance on Madero.

After Madero, last summer showed that he had the stuff in him to run against Diaz as a presidential candidate and to go to prison and into temporary exile for his ambitions, it was enough for him to recross the border with arms in his hands to be received by his friends, and old peers as their leader.

London, May 2.—The Daily Telegraph claims authorities to state that the new Anglo-American Peace Convention is not likely to be signed at least for a fortnight but that sufficient progress has been made to warrant a forecast of its subject matter.

According to the Telegraph, it is understood that the agreement is to be for five years, and that it will be a grand advance over the treaty of 1907, and all similar treaties heretofore negotiated between first-class powers, inasmuch as it will contain no clause excluding matters of vital interest and affecting the independence or honor of the contracting States from arbitration.

Before the reference of any dispute to the Hague Court it will provide that the contracting parties shall conclude a special agreement clearly defining the matter in dispute, the scope of arbitrators' powers, and the period to be fixed for the formation of the arbitral tribunal. Such agreements on the part of the United States will be made by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, the British Government reserving the right, before concluding such an agreement to any matter affecting the vital interests of the self-governing dominion, to obtain the dominion Government's concurrence therein. ### THIN HAIR

A Liberal Offer.

When the hair thins out on the top of the head and the bald spot is getting ready to appear in public, don't get discouraged for irritable. Just go to your druggist and ask for Parisian Sage Hair Tonic. He will charge you 50c. for a large bottle but if it does not cause hair to grow where the hair is thinning out nothing on this earth will.

And we want to say to everybody, man, woman and child, that you can have your money back if Parisian Sage isn't the best hair grower, hair saver, hair beautifier and dandruff cure on the market to-day.

It stops itching scalp and falling hair and makes hair thick and abundant. All druggists everywhere sell Parisian Sage or postpaid from The Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

Got All The Coronation Robes Beaten.

Princess Kawananakoa, of Hawaii, is now in New York, where she will remain until she departs for England to attend the coronation in London. It is reported that she was summoned to it by a royal order.

Princess Kawananakoa up to 1902 was Miss Abigail Campbell, the daughter of James Campbell, who made a fortune in the sugar trade in the Hawaiian Islands. Princess Kawananakoa died three years ago.

One of the robes which, it is said, the princess will wear at the coronation is a cape of birds' feathers which is among the almost priceless garments in the world. It was made from the feathers of a species of inland bird now extinct. Each bird has only one of the variety used in making the cape.

"I am about to embark on the sea of matrimony."
"You must follow."
"Am I?"
"Tell me what to do."
"Out with it."
"So many divorce winds are blowing that you would better get ready to underwrite your cargo."

Descendant Of King David.

(From the London Chronicle.)
I shall see a direct descendant of King David seated on the throne of Jacob on June 22 when King George is crowned. There are thousands of people who believe so and ready with a full genealogical tree. There is a warrant for the Kimes of Juhah, but Queen Tea Tephi, daughter of Nehemiah, is rather troublesome. One does not know where she was evolved.

She came to Ireland with Jeremiah and the Stone of Destiny, and she married there Eochaidh the Heremon, Prince of the Tuatha de Danann, that gentleman being also a descendant of the royal line of Judah. They were the first in these kingdoms to be crowned on Jacob's Stone and from them the British Israelites trace the pedigree of our kings. When David, who is the present Prince of Wales, is thirty, there will have elapsed one hundred generations between him and his great Jewish ancestor. They also believe we British are the lost Ten Tribes.

RIVERS OF ALASKA.

The Waterway Wonders of This Immense Territory.

Were the rivers not navigable there would be little done in the interior of Alaska today. First used by the prospector in the pole boat and the trader or with his little steamer, they have become the means of opening up every camp that has been struck in the interior of Alaska.

The Yukon is very shallow at its mouth, which is about seventy miles in width across its delta. There are places 400 miles from the mouth of the river where the largest Atlantic liners could navigate with ease, for there are soundings which show a twenty foot channel in a mile wide river. The Yukon is navigable for 2,100 miles. The Kuskokwim, a sister stream, has been navigated only on the lower reaches, but with its navigable branches is believed to have 1,000 miles of navigable water. The Tanana has been navigated for 500 miles and the Koryuk in excess of that figure. Scores of other streams can be used by small steamers for from twenty five to 200 miles. Altogether it is safe to say there are 5,000 miles of navigable streams in Alaska. The Yukon opens for navigation the latter part of May and closes the latter part of October.

But with all its wealth of gold, its unheard call to toilers of the soil, its mountains studded with gems of precious metals—this empire starves for the one thing that would make it thrive—Coal.

The Name Noah.

Not many persons are sufficiently acquainted with the Bible to know that Noah was the name of a woman as well as of the patriarch. At an inquest in England a female witness gave her Christian name as "Noah." The coroner remarked that he had never before known a woman to bear the name, whereupon the witness, who was well posted in the origin of her singular prenomen, said:

"It is a Bible name, sir; you'll find it in the last chapter of the book of Numbers." Reference was duly made, and in the eleventh verse of the thirty-sixth chapter the coroner found mention made of "Mahlah, Tirzah and Hozah and Miriam and Noah, the daughters of Zelophead."

Incongruous.
"Fire when you are ready," said the great commander.
"I am ready now," replied the new recruit, "but the damned enemy won't stand still long enough to allow me to take good aim."

For Conscience Sake.
"You know why Robinson Crusoe lived so long on the island?"
"Because they were easiest for him to make?"
"No; he had Friday every day in the week."

No Hope For Her.
"Is she a pretty girl?"
"Well, her friends always talk of her sweetness and her good heart when they speak of her."

No Question About It.
"Never ask a woman how old she is."
"No?"
"No; just assert how young she is."

The Collarless Blouse.

The blouse with a collarless neck will be even more fashionable this summer than it was last. The special new feature this year is the very wide around collar, which is also seen in sailor shape. This is made of embroidery and oftentimes of silk or satin worked in heavy floss. The brilliant Bulgarian embroideries are also used for these collars. However not every summer girl looks her best in a collarless blouse. For this reason many of the blouses which are cut out at the neck are worn with a tucker and high collar of transparent chiffon or Greek tulle.

It will be quite the fashion this summer to have the filmy material for the tucker and collar the same color as the dress. Another idea is to have it cream-white lace with an inch wide band of chiffon around the top of the collar which matches the frock in color. This is sure to be becoming to the girl with a long slim neck. M'clain Paquin is favoring just at present in the way of a neck finish a tulle ruche. She is making it up in both black and colors.

A Handy Table.

Here is a handy table furnished by The Christian World which it would be well to cut out and paste in your Bible for ready reference:

A day's journey was about twenty-three and one-fifth miles.
A Sabbath day's journey was about an English mile.
A cubit was nearly twenty-two inches.
A hand's breadth was equal to three and five eighths inches.
A finger's breadth was equal to one inch.
A shekel of silver was about fifty cents.
A shekel of gold was $8.
A talent of silver was $383.30.
A talent of gold was $3,809.
A piece of silver, or a penny, was thirteen cents.
A farthing was three cents.
A mite was less than a quarter of a cent.
A gerah was one cent.
An ephah, or ovah, contained seven gallons and five pints.
A Ekin was about eight and seven eighths gallons.
A hin was one gallon and two pints.
An omer was six pints.
A cab was three pints.

Dredging For A Hundred Millions.

(Metropolitan Magazine.)

At the bottom of Vigo Bay, on the coast of Spain, lies a fleet of galleons and 100,000,000 in gold ingots and silver bars. In 1702, after escaping the perils of buccaneer and privateer frigate, this treasure fleet went down in a horse port, amid smoke and flame and the thunder of guns manned by English and Dutch tars under that dauntless Admiral of Queen Anne Sir George Rooke. It was the deadliest blow ever dealt the mighty commerce of Spain during those centuries when her ruthless grasp was squeezing the new world of its riches.

There, indeed, is the prize par excellence for the treasure seeker of to-day who dreams of doubloons and pieces of eight. Nor could pirate board have a more blood stained, adventurous history than these millions, rapped by the tides of Vigo Bay which were won by the sword and lost in battle. During these last two hundred years many efforts have been made to recover the freightage of this fleet, but the bulk of the treasure is still on an bed and $100,000,000 or more awaits the man with the cash and the ingenuity to revive the right salvage equipment. At work now in Vigo Bay is the latest of these explorers, an Italian, Giuseppe Pino by name, inventor of a submarine motor boat, a system of raising wrecks and a wonderful machine, called a hydroscope for seeing and working at a bottom of the sea.

Opposition Growing.

It is still the opinion of those best able to form an intelligent opinion as to what is happening at Washington that the reciprocity agreement will be adopted in the Senate by a decisive majority. Opposition to free trade in natural products among the farmers of the northwestern States is daily growing in strength, however and will almost inevitably sweep the Senators from that part of the country into the ranks of the foes of President Taft's proposals. Tor. Globe.

Investiture Of The Prince Of Wales.

London, 7 April 21.—Wales is enthusiastic over the forthcoming investiture of the Prince of Wales at Caernarvon Castle. The committee charged with arrangements has accepted the offer of the Welch coal miners to supply the gold required for the Prince's insignata.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson Mitchell are visiting Mrs. Mitchell's parents Mr. and Mrs. Henry Langmaid.

Should the estimates given above come correct, there will be in the Maritime Provinces in the ten years a gain of 193,278. The Quebec figures ten years ago were 1,648,898. The figures being correct the population has gained 583,260 in ten years, Ontario's population of 2,791,190 is a gain of 608,143 over the figures of 1901, which were 2,182,947. Assuming these figures to be nearly correct, Ontario will, in the next distribution of seats, lose five members, and the Maritime Provinces, which have jointly thirty five members, will have their total reduced to thirty-one. But, of course, Sir Richard clearly said, the estimates may not be correct.

Wireless Telegraphy.

When Marconi began his experiments with wireless telegraphy a few years ago there were naturally many doubters. Although not the discoverer of the fact that messages could be sent through the air without wire, he was the first to really apply wireless telegraphy to practical use. Now it has become so thoroughly established that we seem to have had it.

The New York World notes that by July 1 every ocean-going steamship leaving an American port that carries fifty persons, including passengers and crew, by law must be equipped with a wireless telegraphy outfit capable of sending messages one hundred miles.

As the world points out, nothing more important has been done in many years to increase the safety of travel at sea than the general installation of wireless.

Under the new system not only will every steamship be provided with better means of self protection, but it will be a means

Canada's Population.

Hon. Mr. Fandry asked in the Senate the other day what was the estimated population of Canada on 31st March, 1911. Sir Richard Cartwright said that it was 7,901,530 but the figures were estimates. He gave them by provinces, but did not give the Maritime provinces separately. His figures were:

Maritime Provinces . . .	1,087,131
Quebec . . . . .	3,225,160
Manitoba . . . . .	540,121
Ontario . . . . .	2,791,199
British Columbia . . .	378,141
Alberta . . . . .	373,113
Saskatchewan . . . . .	465,957

According to the census of 1901, the Maritime Provinces population was,

New Brunswick . . . . .	331,120
Nova Scotia . . . . .	459,574
Prince Edward Island . .	103,259
	803,053

Hits His Pocket.

(Hamilton Times.)

The Duke of Manchester, who has been visiting New York, declared that the income tax was "the curse of England." Doubtless the Duke of Manchester and all the great land-owners would be glad to see the taxes of Great Britain raised in any way that would not touch land and income.

Powerful Protestant Organization In Canada.

Toronto, May 9.—It is understood that a powerful Protestant organization is about to be formed. It will embrace the whole of Canada, and its object will be "to meet the machinery of the Roman Catholic church" with an equally powerful Protestant combine which will stand firm in opposition to the Ne Temere decree. A meeting of local Protestant ministers held last night in the First Avenue Baptist church was most favorably impressed with the scheme and a mass meeting of Protestants against the decree will be held in Massey Hall soon.—Ex.

Wonderful Effects Of Forests.

A striking example of the transforming effects of forests, not only on the appearance, but on the productivity of a country, is afforded by the department of the Landes in France. At the close of the eighteenth century about 2,500,000 acres in that region were little more than shifting sand-dunes and disease-breeding marshes. At the present time the same lands are among the richest, most productive and healthful in all France, and the change has been brought about by intelligent cultivation of pine forests. Even the character of the climate of the region has been ameliorated, and it has become mild and balmy. A thin layer of earth the sandy upper surface of which is impervious to water, is held by the pine roots, until the soil is established to the

"What is the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals going to do about it?"

The Grafting Cent.

No busy little graffer
Will pause to think about
The sure and stern reaper
When he will be found out.
He rears in the clover
While rearing is grand,
And when his day is over
He squirms to beat the band.
When things are coming easy
With grafting ease
He is a creature dreary
And frank and open faced.
You cannot bear to see
His tree and easy way
As with a new cutting
He shakes your hand away.
And in the twists and turnings
The dodging here and there,
He moves upon his cunning
As strictly on the square.
And should we call in question

Obituary

Although expected for several days the sad death of John Henry Carr of Maces Bay came as a shock on Wednesday, April 26th. He was a promising and industrious man, and his ambition was to make a mark in this world, it is only a year ago since he left Capt. Carrigan in New York whom he had been coasting with as mate of his vessel where his health broke down, since that time he has been slowly failing until the last when the end came quite suddenly. Dr. Devalo and Dr. Baxter attended him and all that skill and means could do was done for his recovery. He was 53 years of age and was a member of the Episcopal church. He was very patient through his sufferings and passed away with the faith and hope that a true Christian only can know. The funeral was very largely attended. Service were conducted by Rev. Mr. Travis at the Episcopal church and at the grave, interment was made in Raspberry Hill cemetery. The pallbearers were W. R. and H. Craft, J. Wenn, A. Clark and C. H. Boyne. Sorrowing friends filled the large auditorium testifying to the popularity of the deceased. Besides his aged mother whom he has cared for for many years, he is survived by 2 sisters and three brothers, the sisters are Mrs. J. Adams of Boston and Mrs. Edith Elliott of Forton, N. S. and the brothers are A. T. and A. W. at home and M. W. Craft of St. John.

Weep not for me my mother dear
I am not dead but sleeping here,
I am not yours, but Christ's alone,
He loved me best and took me home.

Mosquito Bites Remedies.
Not only in America, but in Europe as well, have mosquitoes been exceptionally abundant this year. Ammonia, the remedy commonly used in our country, is condemned by a German physician, who says it does not prevent the effect of a bite from remaining several days. He recommends holding the place for ten for a few seconds and repeatedly, in hot steam, which he says, promptly relieves the itching and pain. Another remedy superior to ammonia is alum dissolved in alcohol and rubbed in vigorously. To keep mosquitoes away at night, rub the face, neck and hands with lemon juice.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

You Breathe It.

By the simple act of breathing, we inhale life and death. You breathe air crowded with disease germs. These lodge in the membrane and at once commence their daily work. In a night you develop a cold and before long you are in the grip of Canada's deadliest enemy, Catarrh.

You also breathe Hyomei (pronounced High-ome) and by so doing breathe in life-Hyomei is medicated and vaporized air. It is journey through the breathing organs it arrests and kills catarrh and cold germs, soothes the inflamed membrane and commences the work of healing. Ask druggist J. Sutton Clark what he knows about Hyomei. You will find that he not only sells it but guarantees it. A complete outfit will cost you $1.00 from your druggist or postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. You will find it invaluable for coughs, colds, catarrh and all kindred diseases. Money refunded if it fails.

A Pacific Proposition.

In these days of peace propaganda every indication of the development of international goodwill, should be warmly welcomed. Such an indication is the proposal that the United States should, in the interest and for the promotion of such goodwill, transfer to Canada the strip of Pacific coast territory that was a few years ago the subject of adjudication between these two countries. The proposal emanates from Mr. Robert Stein, a member of the civil service of the United States at Washington, and it is set out at length, supported with convincing reasons, in a public address delivered by him before one of the many peace conventions held from time to time in various parts of the Union. Such an address a very short time ago would not have been thought of by an American publicist or have been patiently listened to by an American audience.

Mr. Stein's line of argument in support of his contention is ingenious and plausible; if it proves ineffective, that may be explained by the weakness of his proposition rather than by the weakness of his case. Taking as his starting point Mr. Theo. Roosevelt's suggestion, made a year ago in his widely circulated Norway speech, that an "international police" should be organized for the purpose of enforcing the decisions of The Hague Tribunal, he argues that this "joint protectorate" over the peace of the world should be made up of Great Britain, France, Germany, and the United States. For obvious reasons it would be difficult to bring the three European nations into co-operation of this sort; for reasons equally obvious it should not be difficult to secure co-operation between them and the United States. The influence of the last named country would, however, be enormously increased if it were to give proof of its altruistic aims by making a voluntary concession to some other country, and the one Mr. Stein suggests is the strip of Alaskan territory which cuts off from the Pacific Ocean the northern part of British Columbia and the whole of the Yukon Territory.

Without expressing any opinion as to the possibility of such a transfer being ever made, their need is no doubt absolute that the matter is one of great importance to Canada. Within a few miles the traveler inward from the coast must cross two Customs frontiers: one at the shore line maintained by the United States, and one maintained by Canada parallel to the coast a short distance inland. In spite of the fact that this condition of affairs is a detriment and a nuisance, and of the deep-rooted conviction that this country got less by the adjudication award than it was fairly entitled to it is not open to Canada to make any further complaint, but that the suggested concession would be greatly appreciated by this country there need be no doubt whatever. That it would add force to the great peace movement is just as certain. See Globe.

The Mascha dynasty in China is in some peril than at any time since the conquest. It is most significant that the legends are spoken of as the "queens." This means that they are advanced rulers, and not merely men of the slums caving against their rulers. X.

THE BARRIER

By Rex Beach

Copyright, 1908, by Harper & Brothers

"It's got to be done all my battles over again, and this time the other fellow will open the ball. Oh, I've seen it happen before. You killed him last night, just as sure as if you'd hung up his hide to dry, and he knows it."

"I'm a peevish man," said Gale on the defensive. "I had to do it."

"I know! I know! There was witness. This dressmaker at the fort seen it, so how do you expect to get away from it?"

"Well, well, Ben Stark liked it. I can't get over that. It must be a damn powerful powerful thing to make you do it, John." When the old man vouchsafed no more than a nod to a question the prospector inquired:

"Where's Polson? I've got news for him from the creek."

"I don't know. Why?"

"His laymen have give up. They've crossed his ground and the pay ain't there, so they've quit work for good."

"He drew a blank, eh?"

"Wasn't that three of them. The creek is spottier than a leopard. Runyon's men, for instance, are into it bigger than a horse, while Polson's people can't raise a color. I call it tough luck—yes, worse'n tough. It's hard luck and pickled. To them as has shall it be given and to them as hasn't shall be took even what they ain't got, as the poet says. Look at Ned! She'll be richer than a cream puff. Guess I'll step around and see her."

"She's gone," said the trader warily, turning his baggard face from the prospector.

"Gone? Where?"

"Up river with Runyon. They got her away from me last night."

"She's gone? That's all right. Lee. So that's why." Then he added slyly, "Let's go and get her, John."

The trader looked at him queerly.

"Maybe I won't on the first boat! I'm cutting my heart out hour by hour waiting—waiting—waiting for some kind of a craft to come, and so is Burrell."

"What's he got to do with it?"

"The one-eyed miner jealously. 'Can't you and me bring her back?'"

"He'll marry her! God, won't there never be a boat?"

For the hundredth time that morning he went to the door of the post and strained his eyes down stream.

"Well, well! Them two gals to be married," said Lee. "Stark liked it, and Ned's got to be married—all at once. So that's why. Then he added slyly, "Let's go and get her, John."

There's a lot of regular men around here, and she could be her pick. Of course, always being broke like a dog myself, I ain't kept up my personal appearance like I ought, but I've got some new clothes now, and you wouldn't know me. I bought 'em off a tender-foot with cold feet, but they're the goods, and you'd see a big improvement in me."

"He's a good man," said Gale, "better than you or me, and he's all torn up over this. I never saw a man act like that. When he learned about it I thought he'd go mad. He's hunted the river bank ever since, raging about for some means of following her, and if I hadn't fairly had him set out single handed."

While they were talking Burrell came in, and "No Creek" saw that the night had affected the youth even more than it had Gale, or at least he showed the marks more plainly, for his face was drawn, his eyes were sunken as if from hunger, and his whole body seemed to have fallen away till his uniform hung upon him loose, unkempt and careless.

"I can't wait much longer," said Burrell and sank wearily into a seat. Almost the next instant he was on his feet again, saying to the trader, as he had said it a score of times already: "Runyon comes to me, Gale! You understand his mine, don't you?"

"The old man nodded. "Yes, you can take him."

"You can't come along," the trader said. "We may have to follow the bound clean to the States. Think of your mine."

"To blazes with the mine!" exploded the shaggy prospector. "I reckon I'm kind of a daddy to your cat, and I'm going to be in at the finish."

Suddenly the lieutenant uttered a cry, and with a bound Gale was beside him.

"Look! Over the point! Down yonder!"

The three stared at the distant forerunner that masked the head of the river until their eyes ached.

"You're tired, my boy," said Gale.

"Wait."

He obeyed and finally over the treacherous saw a faint streamer of black.

"It is! It is!" cried the soldier.

"I'm going for my war bag. And before the steamboat had here him sight he was back with his scanty bundle of baggage, behaving like one duff, talking and laughing and running here and there. Lee watched him closer, then went behind the bar and poured out a stiff glass of whisky, which he made Burrell drink. To Gale he whispered a moment later:

"Keep your eye on him, John. He'll go mad at this rate."

They watched it seemed indefinitely.

with at first a white bill snowy round the point, then shaped a course across the current toward the other bank, where the water was less swift. As it came fully into sight Gale swore aloud in despair.

"It's the mine's boat!"

"Well, what of that?" said Burrell.

"We'll hire it—buy it—take it!"

"It's no use. She ain't got but three dog power to her engines," Lee explained. "She's a down river boat—has to run with the current to move."

"We can't use her," Gale gave in reluctantly. "She'd only lose time for us. We've got to wait for one of the A. C. boats."

"Wait!" cried Burrell. "We've done nothing but wait, wait, wait! Let's do something!"

"You go back yonder and set down," commanded Lee. "We'll have a boat before long."

The arrival of the tiny mission steamer was never of sufficient importance to draw a crowd to the river bank, so the impatient men at the post related interest in her as she came crowding up almost of the town. It was little Johnny Gale who first saw Ned and Polson on board, for he had recognized Father Barnum's name, for the man had in his hand with Molly to bill the good, kind old man welcome.

The man inside the house did not hear the way crying Ned's name, for his voice was small, and they had gone to the rear of the store.

"Understandly, you have Runyon to me," Burrell was saying. "No man shall lay hands on him except me. His voice trailed away. He rose slowly to his feet, a strange light on his face. The others turned to see what sight had drawn his eyes. In the twilight, stood Ned and Polson, who had had her by the hand, and she was smiling.

Gale uttered a great cry and went to meet them, but the soldier could have nothing save his lips and stood dazed and disbelieving. He saw them dimly coming toward him and heard Polson's voice as if at a great distance; saw that the Frenchman's eyes were upon him and that his words were directed to him.

"I bring her back to you, m'ister!"

Burrell laid Ned's hand in that of her lover, and Burrell saw her smiling shyly up at him. Something gripped him chokingly, and he could utter no sound. There was nothing to say. She was here, safe, smiling; that was all. And the girl, beholding the glory in his eyes, understood.

Gale caught her away from him then and buried her in his arms.

A woman came running into the store and, seeing the group, paused at the door—a shapeless, silent, shadowy figure in silhouette against the day. The trader brought the girl to her former mother, who began to talk in her own tongue with a rapidity none of them had ever heard before, her voice as tender as some wild bird's song. Then the two women went away to gether around the store into the house.

Polson had told Ned all the amazing story that had come to him that dreadful night, all that he had overheard, all that he knew and much that he guessed.

The priest came into the store shortly, and the men fell upon him for information, for nothing was to be gained from Polson, who seemed strangely fagged and weary and who had said but little.

"Yes, yes, yes!" laughed Father Barnum. "I'll tell you all I know, of course, but first I must move. Lieutenant Burrell and take him by the hand."

The story did not lose in his telling, particularly when he came to describe the fight on the gravel bar which no man had seen and of which Polson had told him little, but the good priest was of a militant turn, and his blue eyes glittered and flashed like an old crusader's.

"It was a wondrous combat," he declared, with all the spirit of a spectator. "For Polson advanced bareheaded and bent him down even as the man fired into his face."

The Frenchman moved uneasily.

"Wait, I don't know. He ain't right so hard."

"You couldn't find no trace of him!" said Lee.

"No trace was seen," said Burrell. "I'm not sure, but I'll be sure to reach some place of refuge where we can get him up, for the days are still wild and the woods full of beasts."

"I'll be on the lookout for him," said the lieutenant slyly.

When the volatile old priest had at last exhausted his narrative he requested of Burrell the privilege of a few words and drew him apart from the others. His face was warm with understanding.

"I had a long conversation with my little girl, for she is like a daughter to me, and I discovered the depth of her love for you. Do you love her as much as you should?"

"As much as I can. They don't make words or numbers big enough to tell you how dear she is to me."

"Then why delay? Tomorrow I leave again, and one never knows what a day may bring forth."

"But Stark?" the young man cried.

"He's her father, you know. He's like a madman, and she's still under age."

"I know very little of law outside of the church," the father observed; "but as I understand it, if she marries before he forbids her the law will hold him powerless. Now, he has never made himself known to her, he has never forbidden her anything, and, although my conclusion may not be correct, I believe it is, and you have a chance if you make haste. At your age, my boy, I never needed a spur."

"A spur? Good Lord! I'm from Kentucky!"

"Once she is yours before God you hold her as strong as in the eyes of men. If I am wrong and he takes her from you—well, may some other priest reward you two. I shan't say."

"Don't worry," laughed Burrell, ablaze at the thought. "You're the only preacher who'll kiss my bride for me. I'm a jealous man, and all the Starks and all the fathers in the world won't get her away from me. Do you think she'll do it?"

"A woman in love will do anything."

Burrell seized the little man by the hand. "If I had known more law you needn't have given me this bit."

Together they went into the trader's house.

Back in the store there was silence after the priest and the soldier went out, which Gale did not notice.

"This forgiveness talk is all right, I suppose, but I want Runyon."

"We'll get him, too," promised Lee, a which Polson uttered a curt exclamation.

"No!"

"Why not?" said the miner.

"Well, the Canadian crawled slowly, then paused to light the cigarette he had rolled in a bit of wrapping paper, inhaled the smoke deeply to the bottom of his lungs, held it there a moment and blew it out through mouth and nostrils before adding, "you'll just go and wait for him."

Gale looked up from beneath his thatch of hair and asked quietly:

"Why?"

"You remember I tell you was day two, I've not ago," Polson remarked, with apparent evasion. "You Johnny Platt wait I betch on de Por cupine all of us by shorter bugs?"

"I do," answered Gale.

"Want to be met this evening, sir?"

Then drew another long breath from his cigarette. "I'm just looking nobody don't pick it up this time. I've been han't the 'em 'in' will piece of sea-saint."

"Good God!" cried the trader, starting to his feet. "You—you—"

"Of course I'm just 'epistol'. He was feel pretty good when I left. He was feel so good I tak' bees coat for keep' 'off dem bugs from me, because I let it my own shirt on de canoe. He's also feller dat way. He give up easy. Be gosh, I never see worse place for sheeters."

Gale fell silent, and "No Creek" Lee began to swear in little, useless, ineffective phrases, which were but two ways of showing similar emotions. Then the former stepped up and laid a big hand upon Polson's shoulder.

"Father Barnum found the three still talking in the store when he had finished an hour's counsel with Ned, so came straight to the point. It was work that delighted his soul, for he loved the girl and had formed a strong admiration for Burrell.

The priest returned to Ned after giving directions toward the wedding, leaving the trader and Polson alone.

"If I were it's best," said the former.

"Yes."

"Beats the deuce, though, how things work out, don't it?"

"I'm glad for see dis day," said the Frenchman. "He's good man, an' he ain't never goin' to bust her none."

He paused. "Der's jus' wan ting I want for ask, if you, John. You remember dat day we step on de birch cross an' you spit 'bout her an' tell me dose anny bout her modest. Well, I was dreamin' dat time, so I'm goin' to ask if you now don't never tell her what I said."

"Doesn't she know, my boy?"

"No. I ain't never spoke 'bout love. She thinks I'm broder with her, an' dat's what I am, by girt." He could not hold his voice even—it broke with him—but he avoided the old man's gaze. Gale took him by the shoulders.

"There ain't nothing so cruel in the world as a gentleman," said he, "but she wouldn't hurt you for all the world, Polson; only the blame of this other thing has blinded her. She can't see nothing for the light of this new love of hers."

"I know! Dat's why—sobody understand's but you an' me."

Gale looked out through the open door, past the sunset street which came from a hand of mystery and vanished into the night.

BATTLES WITH LOCUSTS.

In 1780 an Army Was Arrayed Against the Ravaging Pests.

Since the days of the pharaohs the locust has been an unmitigated plague. Pity relates that in many places in Greece a law obliged the inhabitants to wage war against the insects three times a year—i. e., in their various stages of egg, larvae and adult.

In 1749 locusts stopped the army of Charles XII, king of Sweden, as it was retreating from Bessarabia after its defeat at Poltava. The king at first imagined that he was being assailed by a terrible hailstorm.

In Transylvania in 1780 the ravages of the locusts assumed such disastrous proportions that the army had actually to be called out to deal with the pests, and whole regiments of soldiers were employed gathering them up and putting them into sacks.

A weird, uncanny looking customer is the locust. The general color scheme of his body is a kind of indefinite green, relieved by pink legs and wings of a whitish color. Two huge, blank, unmeaning eyes give an expression of utter imbecility to the insect's countenance.

To atone in a measure for their destructive possibilities the locusts are edible. The Arabs are particularly fond of them. Camels, to which they are given after being dried and roasted between two layers of ashes, look upon locusts as great delicacies.

The davor resembles that of crabs, and in Baghdad they are consumed so extensively as to affect the price of meat—Straits Stories.

Passing Of The Cochineal.

Before many years cochineal scarlet will have become a thing of history only like the Tyrian purple of antiquity—at least, that is the conclusion of Mons Leo Dizet, who has been studying the state of the cochineal industry in Mexico. The first specimens of cochineal were taken in the sixteenth century.

The Indians had cultivated the coccus cacti from which the color in pre-Columbian times, and in the Spanish conquest the industry developed rapidly. The city of Oaxaca was the centre of the cochineal industry in the days of Humboldt, but only a few plantations of the nopal cactus, on which the insects are fed, now remain.

The female insects only are used to form a dye, and they are gathered by brushing the branches of the nopal as soon as they begin to lay their eggs. They are then desiccated in ovens, or killed with boiling water.

Three Star Concert At Mt. Allison.

Sackville, N. B., May 5th.—The closing exercises in connection with Mount Allison this month promise to be of unusual interest. In addition to the usual exercises of the University, the Ladies' College and Academy there will be three splendid concerts, which will not doubt equal in not surpass any similar entertainments ever held in Sackville. The Bostonia Sextette, well known as one of the leading musical organizations of Boston and David Bishop, one of the world's greatest basses, will give three concerts beginning with Thursday, Ev'g May 25th. The entertainments will take place in the Chas. Fawcett Memorial Hall, one of the best auditoriums in the Maritime Provinces. That these concerts will be high class, that they will be artistic and delightful, may be taken for granted, and it is expected that the attendance at these concerts and at the exercises incident to the close of the college year, will be exceptionally large. A season ticket admitting to the three concerts will be sold at a low price; thus affording every lover of good music an opportunity to hear music of an exceptionally high class.

C. P. R. Terminals.

Tenders for the removal of the buildings on Mill street recently purchased by the C. P. R. closed today. They will be opened this evening, when the contracts will be awarded.

Work of preparing the new terminal is being hurried forward as a trestle is being built and the pond in order to be completed as soon as possible.

and in a short time vast quantities of material will be transferred to the pond to form the foundation of the new terminals.

It is expected that the work of filling it will require about three months, and at the end of that time the construction of the freight sheds will be commenced. Tenders for their erection will not be called for some time yet.

Another important work which the C. P. R. will be undertaking soon is that involved in the changes which it has been found necessary to make in the big cold storage plant. In order to make the plant efficient and up-to-date, considerable money will have to be spent on it. St. J. Globe.

Bearing Down Pains.

What woman at some time or other does not experience these dreadful bearing down pains. Mrs. E. Griffith, says: "A heavy bearing-down pain had settled across my back and sides. I was often unable to stoop or straighten myself up. Many times each night I would have to leave my bed with the irregular and frequent secretions of the kidneys and just as done out in the morning as on retiring. I was languid and would have to let my housework stand. Nothing I had tried would benefit me. I learned of Booth's Kidney Pills and concluded that I would try them which I did, and soon found the long sought relief. My back strengthened and I began to feel better and stronger. I now enjoy my sleep without being disturbed and feel grateful to Booth's Kidney Pills for what they did for me.

Booth's Kidney Pills are a boon to women. She would know less of backaches if she took more of these wonderful pills. They are nature's greatest specific for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder. ### A FAMOUS SERMON

College Boys Were Put to Shame by Wit of Clergyman.

The habit which certain university students have of giving vent to youthful spirits in what they consider decidedly clever and unique pranks and which sensible people consider the deeds of rattled brains, once was the occasion of bringing out one of the most famous sermons. Dr.

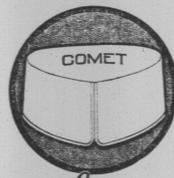

rod, who was an old time English clergyman, incumbent of a Parish close to Cambridge, had made himself very unpopular with a certain class of the university students by his forcible sermons against drunkenness. A short time after the delivery of one of these philippics, the good doctor was walking toward Cambridge when he met several undergraduates, who thought they saw a chance for revenge. Accordingly they stopped him and, with much politeness, urged him then and there, to deliver a sermon. They insisted on his preaching to them from a hollow tree on a text of their own selection—the word "Malt."

Resistance being useless, the doctor quietly obeyed, and assuming his pulpit manner, delivered the following sermon: "Beloved, let me crave your attention. I am a little man and come at short notice to preach from a short text, to a thin congregation, in an unworthy pulpit. Beloved, my text is "Malt." I cannot divide it into sentences, there being but one. I must therefore divide it into letters. M is moral. A is allegorical. L is literal. T is theological. The moral is to teach you good manners. Therefore M—my masters. A—all of you. L—leave off. T—tippling. The allegorical is when one thing is spoken of, and another meant. The thing spoken of is malt; the thing meant is the spirit of malt, which you make M—your meat; A—your apparel; L—your liberty; and T—your trust. The literal is according to the letters: M—much; A—ale; L—little; T—thought. The theological is according to the effects it works M—murder in some; A—adultery in others; L—loosens of life in most; and T—treachery in many. I shall conclude the subject, first by way of exhortation: M—my masters; A—all of you; L—listen; T—to my text. Second, by way of caution: M—my masters; A—all of you; L—look for; T—the truth. Thirdly, by way of communicating the truth, which is the drunkard is the annoyance of modesty; the spoil of civility; the destruction of reason; the robber's agent; the alms house benefactor; his wife's sorrow; his children's trouble; his own shame; his neighbors' scoff; a walking swill bowl; the picture of a beast; the monster of a man." Then Dr. Dod descended from his rhetorical pulpit and resumed his walk, leaving a very shamed faced and crest fallen congregation to follow at respectful distance. He was never way laid again to deliver extemporaneous sermons.—Ex.

The New Quebec Bridge.

It was an important announcement which was made recently by the Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, in the Commons, when he informed the House that a contract had been let to the St. Lawrence Bridge Company for the superstructure of the Quebec Bridge at $8,650,000. This, with the contract already let for the substructure, makes a total of about $12,000,000. The bridge is on the line of the Transcontinental Railway, where it crosses the St. Lawrence near Quebec, and will be the largest cantilever bridge in the world, the suspension span being the longest single truss span ever designed, exceeding that of the celebrated Forth bridge Scotland by 90 feet. In working out the design Mr. Graham has had in consultation the world's most expert bridge engineers, whose work has extended over a period of two and a half years.

This will be the only bridge over the St. Lawrence River east of Montreal, and will be used by the Transcontinental Railway and any other roads that may require it. It is expected that the bridge will be ready for traffic by 1915. The St. Lawrence Bridge Company, which in competition with German, British and United States firms is a purely Canadian company, comprising the Dominion Bridge Company, Montreal, P. Q., and the Canadian Bridge Company, Walkerville, Ont.

The design which has been adopted will have K web system in the cantilever and anchor arms. The suspended span is of a modified Pratt. The length of the centre span is to be 1,800 feet. The total length of the structure is 3,228 feet, or about three-fifths of a mile. The suspended span is 640 ft. long 110 ft. deep at the centre and 70 ft. at each end. The cantilever arms are 580 ft. long, 70 ft. deep at the end and 310 ft. high over the main post. The anchor arms are 320 ft. long. The width of the bridge between the trusses is 88 ft. The bridge will be 15 ft. above high water. The depth of the water in the centre of the river is 200 ft. All members of the anchor arms and those immediately over the main pier, as well as the floor arms, will be built of carbon steel. The cantilever arms and suspended span will be of nickel steel.

The piers are all to be built of cement concrete above water. The abutments are to be of granite masonry. The caisson over the main pier on the south side will be 180 x 55 ft. The north side will be built in two sections, each caisson being over 65 ft. long by 60 ft. wide. The bridge will accommodate a double track railway, and will have a four-foot sidewalk on each side for foot passengers. There are over 100,000 cubic yards of masonry in the piers and abutments. The weight of steel in the superstructure is estimated at 100,000,000 pounds. The transportation of this immense quantity of steel will require the use of 1,677 freight cars of 60,000 pounds capacity, or 67 trains of 25 cars each. Tor. Globe.

The Liberal policy of the British Liberal party has been strikingly justified by the operations of the Lloyd-George Budget.

A general movement has set in among the landed aristocracy for the disposal of their estates. Already many big properties have been sold. In some few cases the estates have been required by individual purchasers, but the greater number of sales have been carried out by arrangement with the occupying tenants. This sudden resolve on the part of the aristocracy to part with their lands in order to evade taxation will create a revolution in the social and economic life of the mother country and exercise an important influence on the future of political parties. It is the passing of feudalism in Britain. Ex.

For Good Generally.

An interesting organization is the Permanent "International Peace Bureau," whose office is at Brussels, though its headquarters are really at Berne, Switzerland. Mr. La Fontaine, a Belgian senator, is at the head of the institution, and the central office is making a study of every human activity, whether of men or women, and matter in what languages they talk, or in what land they live. Mr. La Fontaine, who lately spoke before the Boston City Club on the nature and object of the society, tersely said that it really was internationalism, by which was meant not merely the organization of men into international organizations, but the larger ideal of bringing those people of similar mind, no matter what may be their position in life, into relation with each other and into touch with all similar organizations, so that what is best in one may be available for the masses. Peace is not the sole purpose or aim of the institution, for peace is only a step in the direction of knowing and understanding what men are thinking about and hoping for with all their hearts and souls for the general good of mankind, a philosopher's and a philanthropist's dream, perhaps, but a splendid one surely. St. John Globe.

King Is in Favor of Earlier Hours.

Court Functions To Be Over By Midnight in Future.

London, May 11.—Following the ban on the hobble skirt by the Lord Chamberlain, inspired by the Queen, society is eagerly discussing King George's direction that future Courts are to be held one hour earlier. The guests will begin to arrive at half-past 8 o'clock, instead of 9. The King and Queen will enter the throne room at half-past nine, instead of at half-past ten, which will permit the Courts to be brought to a close at midnight instead of in the small hours.

King George is a firm believer in early hours. He told a friend recently that a man cannot expect to succeed in business if he does not begin work till the day is half over, and he cannot begin early if he is up half the night.

The ruling will have a far-reaching result, leading to 7 o'clock dinners, and theatre performances beginning at 8 o'clock sharp. Ex.

EGYPTIAN EXPLORATION

Arabat el-Madfun, Belyana, Egypt April 8th, 1911.

To the Editor of the St. John Globe: Sir—The aim of the Egyptian Exploration Fund, excavating under direction of Monsieur E. Naville at Abydos during 1910-1911, was to finish its examination of the unworked ground at Omm el-Gaab, a part of which is occupied by first dynasty Royal Tombs (already dug by Monsieur Amelineux and Professor Fildes Petrie), and to continue a search for graves in the neighboring cemeteries.

This particular task has now been completed. But it must be remembered that Abydos was one great sanctuary of the living and the dead, so that in turning from its tombs to its temples, forecasting the work of a season, we pass only to another part of the same sacred rite.

The ground behind the Temple of Seti within the temenos wall was, at the suggestion of Professor Petrie in 1901-1902, opened in several places by Miss Murray. The pits revealed a chamber, giving the cartouche of Merenptah, a great hall and the entrance to a sloping passage. Only a few inscriptions were copied, however, and the whole was filled in again and abandoned. Five or six days of our own investigation this year carried us as far as Miss Murray had gone, fully corroborating her opinion that this passage extends toward the temple.

We further believe, judging from Monsieur Naville's experience in the XIIIth dynasty temple at Deir el-Bahari, that this passage, like the one there leading to the sanctuary, may may be the entrance to the shrine of Osiris itself. Strabo's description of what he calls a well, below the Memnonium (the Temple of Seti), "reached by passages with low vaults consisting of a single stone and distinguished for their extent and mode of construction," appears to coincide, in part at least, with the structure of this building on the longitudinal axis of the Temple of Seti. To this important building, which we may tentatively call the Osireion, the fund hopes to devote next season. Sir Gaston Maspero expresses great interest in the excavation and agrees that it must give interesting results.

It may well be asked why so important a building has lain ahead so long unexcavated. It is because the hypogeum was known to be unique, of vast subterranean extent, a treasure-sanctuary of precious inscriptions, and that the concentrated, sustained effort of the entire working force would be required there from early in November to the season's end in April, while other unfinished operations at this great sacred site demanded completion first, for whatever it left open becomes a hunting ground to be plundered by the natives through out the summer.

The purpose of the Egypt Exploration Fund is the excavation of such a site as this and as that at Deir el-Bahari, where the fund discovered and excavated a temple entirely unknown.

Monsieur Naville, who is pre-eminently the great temple general, expects to lead this work himself with assistance, in which I hope to have the honor to share as the American representative on the staff of the fund.

Work must begin in November. Five thousand dollars is necessary. For this sum I turn to America, that America may have part in this distinguished enterprise.

A subscription of $5 to the fund gives the subscriber membership for a year and entitles him to the memoir of the excavation and the archaeological and annual reports for the year. Patron subscribe $25, a sum that will support a spade for the season. $125 constitutes life membership. Checks should be made payable to the Egypt Exploration Fund and sent to Miss Marie N. Buckman, Secretary for the United States, 527 Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass. Illustrated circular will be sent upon request. I am, Sir, Yours respectfully, Thomas Whitmore.

Lansdowne's Plan of House of Lords Reform.

London, May 8.—Lord Lansdowne introduced his bill for the reform of the upper house before a great audience today. He proposed a House to consist of 350 lords of parliament. No peer should hold his seat for more than 12 years, but they will be eligible for re-election. The peers themselves would elect 100 members of the peerage possessing the statutory qualifications such as present, or former viceroys, governors, privy councillors, members of the House of Commons, diplomats, naval and military officials, heads of civil service departments, lord mayors, Provosts, etc. A second contingent would consist of 120 members to be elected from outside of the House of Lords by an electoral college composed by members of the lower House representing constituencies comprised in the electoral districts into which the country would be divided by specially appointed commissioners. The third section of the House, numbering 100, would be appointed by the crown on the recommendation of the cabinet. Princes of the royal blood would retain their seats, and also would two archbishops, while five bishops would be

Ohio Still Fighting Standard Oil Company.

Findlay, O., May 8.—Unless another postponement is agreed upon, the legal proceedings by which the State of Ohio has been endeavoring for some years to oust the Standard Oil Company from this State, will be aired in the circuit court here tomorrow. The ouster suits are directed against the Buckeye Pipe Line, the Solar Refining and Ohio Fuel companies, which the State declares are controlled by the Standard Oil Company in violation of the Ohio anti-trust laws. The suits were originally begun by Wade H. Ellis, when he was attorney general of Ohio. When Mr. Ellis retired from office, his successor, U. G. Denman took up the prosecution of the suits. Attorney General Denman's efforts were temporarily blocked by a court decision directing the State to make the Standard Oil Corporation a party defendant. ### Told Of Bangor Fire.

Miss Elsie Wallace, the Nickel new singer, who arrived from Bangor to-day, told the Globe that the scene of ruin and desolation at Bangor is appalling. The very heart of the busy little city is a blackened waste, made more melancholy by admixture with rain. The fortunate people are taking in homeless ones and providing for them without regard to class or color. Neighboring cities and towns are sending aid continually. Clothing, food and sheltering equipments are arriving in train-loads, the best of order prevails and the local militia is of much assistance to the police and fire forces in keeping down looting. Miss Wallace says the fire gained tremendous headway before the people realized its seriousness. Lanes of tall, substantial buildings of brick and stone crumbled before the conflagration and some of the handsomest structures in the State thus succumbed. The Morse-Oliver building, veritably a New York model, proved an easy prey, as did the Graham building in which Keith's Nickel Theatre was situated. The Norumbega Hall (Keith's Gaiety Theatre was also burned, but the flames were checked just before they reached the Keith Bijou Vaudeville Theatre on Exchange Street. It was expected General Manager Watkins of the Keith interests would arrive in Bangor today to decide upon plans for new houses. Miss Wallace's delay in commencing her St. John engagement was due to the fire, which prevented her getting down Exchange street to the station. St. J. Globe.

The Army Ready.

Why was it sent to camp at Mexico's door? This is the peril-being there a score of things might happen that could involve us in serious difficulties leading possibly to war itself. A nation with its gun in its hand is quite as apt as an individual to get into trouble. "War," said the wise old Greek, Thucydides, "is the last thing in all the world to go according to program." You never can tell what the next step may be. Neither the Monroe Doctrine nor by any other right could the nation justify itself in crossing the Mexican frontier. The capitalists and others who have put their money and interests there took their chances and must suffer the consequences of investing capital in such a country. F. H. R.

Patriots Or Rebels.

It is beginning to look as if the so-called rebels of Mexico were fighting for the rights of free men as our fathers fought for them in 1776. The people number about 15,000,000, most of them very poor and the taxes laid upon them have become unbearable. "Graft," writes Frederick Starr, in Unity, "is everywhere, and the increasing poverty of the people is accompanied by the rapidly increasing wealth of the governing ring. "Of course, in the long run, the people will prefer to shed their blood on the field of battle in a probably hopeless revolution to continue to coin it into national railroads and government offices, opera houses and insane asylums, monuments and universities, banquets and paces, beyond their economic possibilities." If these are the facts we devoutly trust the revolution may not be "hopeless."—F. H. R.

The knowing dog will remain out of Saxony. Dog meat is becoming a favorite article of food in that kingdom, and, indeed, throughout the German Empire. More than a thousand dogs were killed and sold for food last year in Chemnitz alone. Reports by butchers prove that about ten thousand are slaughtered in Germany each year and served up as cutlets, steaks and ragouts. If a dog dares to venture in Dresden's streets at night he is often lured around a dark corner, popped into a bag or basket and finds himself in the stewpot.

Horses In Civil War.

The destruction of horses during the Civil War was enormous. In the fiscal year of 1864, the government purchased for the federal armies in round numbers 190,000 head of horses. There was one period of eight months of that year when the army of the Potomac alone used over 40,000 head, and General Sheridan, in his memorable campaign in the Shenandoah Valley, required 150 new animals per day. In addition to this were the unnumbered thousands destroyed also by the Confederate armies.

Two justices of the peace in East St. Louis who have completed zealously for the business of marrying couples have at last formed an agreement, and the two dignitaries now occupy the same office, charge a uniform fee on 141 side the spoils. A St. Louis paper remarks that as a number of drammers formerly in the employment of the justice will be three work, and as the States on the river are affected may be regarded as a

A Chicago judge has surpassed the occasional judicial and legislative championship of the whipping post for wife-beaters, in his expression of the wish that the state of Illinois might empower the courts to pitch a 24-foot ring and then send a pugilist into it and beat the faces off men who are cruel to their wives and babies.

The situation in Mexico does not improve. Neither peace negotiations nor the promise of President Diaz to retire at a time to be fixed by himself, have prevented the rebels from continuing their operations. It is daily becoming more evident that disaffection is far greater than was at first supposed, and that the opposition to Diaz steadily gains.

FENNEL

It is to the Italians Somewhat Peculiarly is to Us.

"I don't eat that Italian table d'hôte furnishes anything that takes me back to my grandmother's time," said a New York man, "but that was my experience last night. The first nibble of something I'd supposed was celery sent my mind wandering back fifty years to an old New England village."

"Fennel?" I asked the Italian waiter. He nodded and smiled and gave me the Italian form of the word, which I carefully wrote down on a scrap of paper. "Fennel?" I suppose it showed my ignorance, but never before did I know that fennel is to the Italians with celery to us. Evidently the large bases of the leafstalks are bleached in similar fashion, and from the way it was served I could see it was intended to be dipped in soup, as we eat celery. My obliging waiter told me that it was delicious as a salad and when boiled and served with cream sauce it made a popular Italian dish.

"But after all what did those call many details matter? What really counted was that strange, penetrating flavor which took me back to my childhood. As I thoughtfully nibbled my fennel stalks the last fifty years seemed to flash by me. I could again pick up big clusters of yellow, aromatic fennel seeds in my grandmother's garden."—New York Sun.

AFRICAN WITCH DOCTORS.

They Make Themselves Like Their Idols, as Pious as Possible.

The most important period of the young African's life is that between youth and manhood or womanhood. It is then that the witch doctor is extremely busy with his various mysterious rites. It is an important part of his calling to be pious, as in most cases he indubitably is. A ridiculous mark covers his head and without other skins are hung around his body. The pigment of various colors is about fully drenched over his body and in the hands of the witch doctor is a small piece of wood, which he strikes into the ground, and then he begins to dance. He is then in the air, gliding at their feet, and the crowd of onlookers are the more amazed as the dancing begins. The witch doctor is then in the air, gliding at their feet, and the crowd of onlookers are the more amazed as the dancing begins. Twenty Volume Novels. The latest novels of today are pycnies compared with those published in the seventeenth century. Mlle. de Sevigne's "Le Grand Cyrus" has ten volumes, its publication being spread over five years. And what it was translated, or, to quote the title page, "translated by a Person of Honour." It appeared in five folio volumes of some 500 pages apiece. Another novel of the same period, La Calprenede, was even more diffuse, and of its works, "Cleopatre," extending over twenty-three volumes. These novels found plenty of readers despite their enormous length. The Paris publisher of "Le Grand Cyrus" made BARRON crowns by the first edition alone. Nearly all the works of Sedery and Calprenede were translated into English as soon as they appeared and many of them into German as well.—London Chronicle.

A Historic Spot. Linnithgow palace, on the shore of the beautiful sheet of water of that name in Scotland, is somewhat square and heavily wooded. Linnithgow was the birthplace of Mary, queen of Scots; in Linnithgow church James IV, of Scotland was forewarned by an apparition of the coming disaster at Flodden Field; in its streets the regent Murray was shot down by the town Edward I. had two ribs broken by his horse the night before Falkirk, and on its both a chancellor of the exchequer, bent on economy, issued instructions that the royal swans should be kept down to a dozen.—Argonaut.

Good at Arithmetic. "For goodness sake, John, how long did you toll these eggs?" "Just as long as you told me to, my dear."

"Impossible! They're hard as bricks." "I tolled them just twelve minutes."

"Twelve? Why, I told you that three minutes was long enough for an egg!" "Yes, dear, but I tolled four of them."—Toledo Blade.

In Musical Terms. Chief Editor—Look here, Sharpe, here's a fiddler been hanged for murder. How shall I headline it? Musical Editor—How would "Difficult Execution on 'One String' do?"—St. Louis Times.

English as She Spoke. "Must you go?" "Yes, the wife's sitting up for me, and if I miss the last train I shall catch it."—Lippincott's.

A Hard Job. Husband—What are you looking for dear? Wife—I was looking for the invisible hairpin I just dropped.—Exchange.

LOCALS

The Pulp Co. have purchased the Capt. Douglas dwelling and will likely use it as a boarding house. The Capt. and his sister remain in charge of it for the Co.

By an agreement between the Government and Opposites, parliament will adjourn to allow the premier and others to attend the Coronation ceremonies and will likely stand adjourned to Aug. 1st.

The Baptist congregation who have had revival meetings conducted by the pastor during the past two weeks will hold a public baptism in the basin Sunday on the Barry beach. Quite a number of candidates are expected to take the rites of the church.

Trout fishing is now reported good at Utopia. P. A. Hanson succeeded in landing a fine string Wednesday. Mr. Hanson and his wife expect to leave the first of next week for their future home in Victoria B. C., they will be very much missed in St. George.

The Gregory mill at Lepreau was destroyed by fire on Monday, this is the second time of its destruction as it was burned only three years ago. At the time of the fire Mr. Gregory was unwell at his drives and on his return he immediately started plans for rebuilding a new one. He has about six or seven millions lumber cut during the winter which he wants cut as quickly as possible.

The small boy and the match was again in evidence last Saturday afternoon and came very near causing much damage. Some thought they would burn the grass of the field opposite the McIntyre dwelling at the foot of the Cemetery Hill to play ball in, owing to the high wind it once got beyond their control and was sweeping on toward the house. Mr. McIntyre was alone and only that a party passing ran over and after an hour's hard work succeeded in putting out the flames, the house would in all probability have been burned. This is a matter that parents cannot be too careful in warning their children of the use of matches.

E. G. Murphy manager of the Pulp Co. has been here during the week arriving on Saturday last, he spent one day on the river looking after the logs. The Co. have about six million cut during the winter about all of which are still up in the brooks with little or no water and unless quite heavy rains should come they will be unable to get them out. The Co. had intended putting up a Rotary mill this season to saw long and short lumber but under present conditions do not know just what to do in the matter. The strike situation is still unchanged and owing to the above conditions it looks almost as if the men had unconsciously played into the Co.'s hands as in all probabilities they would have had to close down for a time at least. The Co. by slow process managed to complete loading the Schooner and she sailed on Thursday with the first cargo of the season, leaving about another cargo still to ship.

On Monday evening the Real Granite Dramatic Club presented the four act drama Strife to an audience that completely filled Cotts Hall. The drama which was lengthy and had considerable dialogue was presented in a manner that showed careful preparations and gave a very interesting evenings entertainment all taking their parts in a satisfactory manner. Miss Helen Clark who took the part of the Heroine especially showing much expression in the rendering of her lines. The specialties between the acts were also well received, while the Orchestra composed of six pieces gave a number of selections that did much toward the evenings pleasure.

Stuart McAdam under whose management it was, in making his speech of thanks stated that it was at first intended that the proceeds would go to the skating rink, which at that time had a small deficit but as they closed the season with a slight surplus, the proceeds would be held in trust by the Club and donated later, for some object of town interest, as the Club did not wish to receive any benefit from it. He also asks the Greetings to state that the Club wishes to thank all who generously assisted them in their efforts, some of whom he forgot to mention.

Evenings of this kind form a pleasant break in the monotony of the town life, and it is to be hoped the Club will in future make more frequent appearances. Why couldn't they not take up some town object of interest and work along lines of gradually attaining such object, giving entertainments at stated times or as they could make satisfactory preparations.

Among the supplementary estimates at Ottawa St. George probably will be glad to see the $3000 for a public building here. There are several sites under consideration, many seem to favor the O'Brien lot known as the Blacksmith shop lot, it is to be hoped the government will not be so foolish as to place a fine building on so cramped a lot which has nothing whatever in its favor except a central situation. Government and Public Buildings should as much as possible be altogether isolated, on corner lots with good clear space all round. In St. George especially it should be so and erected of our own native granite. It is reported the building is to be of brick. The blacksmith lot is only about 26 by 20 butting up against a barn and liable to be closed in on both sides with buildings, on both sides, and is altogether unfit for such a structure.

Among the other estimates passed in which Charlotte Co. is interested are wharves at Mill Cove, Tynan's Cove and Woodland, a block at Spinnery's Point Letang river all in Penfield parish. St. Stephen gets $10,000 for public buildings, $750 for dredging on the St. Croix, Bay St. Denis, 300 for breakwater, Cummings Cove $400 additional for wharf.

Fairview $200 for wharf repairs, Maces Bay $500 for wharf connection, Seal Cove $1000 for breakwater.

St. John also lays well getting another half million for harbor and $75,000 for Post Office.

Herod's Palace Found.

Vienna, April 29.—P. of Ernest Sell, the Austrian Egyptologist, reports the discovery of an ancient palace of Herod the Great on the plain of the lower Jordan, near the road from Jerusalem to Jericho.

The foundations are in a complete state of preservation, and Prof. Sell says the palace might easily be reconstructed. Herod, surnamed "The Great," was King of Judaea from 4 to 4 B. C. He was noted for his love of building.

Dizziness.

Mrs. J. E. Renaud of Goldrich St.urgeon Falls, Ont., says:

"I have suffered for months with a very weak stomach. I had dizzy spells, and at times could not retain any food at all. I tried any number of medicinal prescriptions but none seemed to relieve me until I tried Mio-na tablets. I used one box only and they have completely cured me of my troubles. I am pleased to recommend Mio-na as I know it to be a remedy of merit.

Mio-na is sold by druggists everywhere at 50c. a box, and is guaranteed to cure dyspepsia, indigestion, sickness, flatulence, nausea, heartburn, sour stomach, and car sickness, vomiting of pregnancy and the after effects of over-eating and drinking—or money back. Postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Port Erie, Ont. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark."

The Halifax Tower.

The Halifax Chronicle a few days ago gave some interesting facts respecting the tower which Halifax has under construction to commemorate the city's career, and to exhibit the good feelings of other places and institutions to it. The Chronicle said:

The foundation of the 110-foot tower is to be of concrete and above it will be a course of granite. Over this will be an iron stone construction and above this again will be granite to the roof. It is expected to have the tower completed by the first of December, and with the aid of a little tramway up which the cars are hauled by a cable operated by a steam engine, material can be very quickly placed right on the ground.

There are at Wm. Bishop's marble works several coats of arms on stone which are to be set in the walls of the inner stairway of the tower.

One is from P. F. Island and was worked out of red sandstone by Mr. Bishop. The stone is 3 by 3 feet, and on the lower half of the shield are trees standing out in very strong relief, which on the upper half is cut a lion. At the sides are a lion and a unicorn. On a ribbon beneath the shield is the lettering "Parva Sub Ingenti."

The New Brunswick slab is of red granite, 3 by 3, and the carving was done at St. George. On the shield are cut a lion on the upper half and a barge on the lower. The margin of the face of the stone is highly polished.

The Dalhousie University slab is of Wallace freestone, 2 by 3 feet, and the carving is being done by a clay model by Mr. Bishop. On the shield is a spread eagle, and at the top of the shield is a crown and under the shield the ribboned stone bears the words "Ora et Labora."

Alberta's slab is of olive sandstone, and on the face of a panel let in the stone are carved a section of clouds and the Rockies, rolling and level, and a representation of wheat.

British Columbia's slab is of British Columbia marble, into which is carved the shield, the design on the latter standing out therefrom. In the shield is carved a representation of the Union Jack with a crown in front of it and beneath it a rising sun. The shield is supported by figures of a mountain goat and British Columbia deer. The letter inscription is "Splendor sine occasu."

The slab from the Lord Mayor of London is of Portland stone, the design being a shield supported by winged dragons. The words inscribed are "Domine Drige Nos."

The Mount Allison University slab is of Sackville red sandstone. In the center is carved an open book enclosed by a triangular design, on which is lettered "Litera, Scientia, Religio." Outside of this is a circle on which is carved "University of Mount Allison College, Sackville, N. B."

The slab from McGill University, Montreal, is of limestone, 3 by 3, and the carving was done in Montreal. On the upper part of the raised shield are brought out crowns and a book and on the lower part three birds. The ribbon lettering is "Ucla, La bone Grandescens."

The Newfoundland slab, 3½ by 4, is of Newfoundland granite with the outer margin polished and the design cut in the rough. Below the Royal arms and "Dieu et Mon Droit" are carved Britannia with a shield and two other figures, and a ship. The carved wording is "Hæc Tibi dona Fero."

The Nova Scotia Coat of Arms is to be done on grey granite by Mr. Bishop. Several other stone panels are expected, including one from New Zealand and one from the Dominion government.

A bronze tablet for the tower is being cast in England. It will have about two hundred words upon it.

S. M. Brookfield Ltd., are the contractors for the erection of the work.—Ex.

MOTHERS KINGDOM.

There is a kingdom dear on earth known by the name of home where love and happiness have birth. With mother on the throne, And with her love-bright scepter fair she reigns in saint-like glory there. If she should dim the sacred place, And cease to pray and smile, With tender love-light on her face, That comes to signs of tear, She will be and stay until the night wears the bright crown of morning light.

And if some foe needs to invade The peace of our fair domain, The brave, true mother, undaunted, Is on her feet and hand, To save our dear and weak child by sin and sorrow loins defiled.

O holy mother, ruled by love, And with a prayer and smile, The crown of heaven that above, As she will have us all, For ever may thy love light illumine the room of sin and night.

O faith of mother, evermore, Thy true woman's hand, Was once a sweet scepter gently o'er "The little babes hand."

While thou dost reign in thy great work, God's angels shall walk the earth.—Mrs. M. A. Holt, in Christian Work.

No Satisfaction in That. "You're none, of course," said the chiropractor, "if isn't the corn itself that hurts. It's the corn's flesh underneath. There's no sensation in a corn."

"I know it. That's what pricks me," said the victim. "I wish you could hurt the blains, even as much as you're hurting me."—Chicago Tribune.

It's Not Unlikely. "Some marriages may be made in Heaven," observed the Polish philosopher, as he kicked the grocery cart off the cracker box, "but I glance around the ranks of society it occurs to me that the devil manufactures quite a few."—Chicago Sun.

Her Tender Heart. "Why do you suppose a woman usually cries at her wedding?" "Out of sympathy, probably, for the men she could not marry."—Houston Post.

Is Your Loaf Like This?

IF your flour is of the right quality, it ought to produce uniformly good bread. When the loaf comes out of the oven it ought to be appetizing and inviting in appearance. The crust should be crisp, tender and sweet as a nut. The pores of the bread should be regular showing uniform expansion by the yeast and every loaf should be light, plump and should expand over the top of the pan. Bread made from Ogilvie's
