FRENCH LINER DOLED IN ROCKS

Only One Survivor In Terrible Marine Disaster Off Balearic Islands Wednesday Night.

S. S. General Chanzy Dashes at Full Speed On Rocks In Dead of Night.

Palma, Island of Majorca, Feb. 11.—Swopt helplessly from her course, in one of the wildest storms that has visited the Mediterranean Sea in 40 years, the staunch French Transatlantic S. S. Company's steamer General Chanzy, dashed at full speed, in the dead of night, on the treacherous reefs near the island of Majorca, and all but one of the 157 souls on board perished.

Of the ship's company, there were 87 passengers, of whom 50 were in the first cabin. The crew numbered 70. It is believed no Americans were aboard the liner. The ship was in command of Capt. Coyol, one of the most careful officers of the line. He has long experience he never before had met with an accident. He was soon to have retired from the service.

The passengers of the Chanzy were mostly French officers and officials, returning to their posts in Algeria, accompanied by their wives and children; a few soldiers, some Italians and Turks and one priest. The only Anglo-Saxon names on the passenger list were those of an opera troupe of singers, who had been engaged to sing at the theatre in Algiers.

The General Chanzy sailed from Marseilles, Wednesday noon and was due at Algiers Thursday afternoon. The Chanzy is a total wreck. Spaniards have been dispatched from Spain from all the Balearic Islands to the scene of the catastrophe. Among the victims was the celebrated French singer, Francis J. H. as well as other prominent names.

The General Chanzy struck at 9 o'clock Thursday night after Captain Coyol, with all his experience and efficiency in steering, had been unable to cope with a tempest of almost unprecedented violence. Other ships in the neighborhood had safely ridden out the storm, but the Chanzy fell prey to the elements which lifted her off her course through the archipelago and brought her up on the coast of Minorca, the vicinity of Ciudadela.

Fishermen at daybreak picked up Rodol clinging to a piece of wreckage. Consternation at Marseilles. Marseilles, Feb. 11.—The news of the wreck of the General Chanzy caused consternation in this city, whence the vessel sailed Wednesday for Algiers. Relatives and friends of the passengers and crew rushed to the steamship office, imploring details of the accident. Pathetic scenes were enacted when they were informed that except one passenger all on board had perished.

UNITED STATES SENATOR IS ON THE RUN NOW

Senator Allds Accused Of Accepting Bribe, In Full Retreat—Damaging Evidence Adduced Yesterday.

HOW THE LITTLE GAME WAS WORKED

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Skillful maneuvering by Senator Benn Conger's attorneys, sent the members of the State Senate home for the week-end recess this afternoon, with the personal testimony of Senator Jotham P. Allds' accuser ringing in their ears. Conger's affidavit, charging Allds with taking a $1,000 bribe from the bridge building combination was read before the senate when it began this investigation last Tuesday in a committee of the whole, but its cold legal phrases could not carry the weight of Conger's accusations, voiced on the witness stand today.

Conger not only confirmed the story of Hiram G. Moe, the Groton bank cashier and church deacon, but he went back of Moe's story and related the incidents preceding the actual delivery of the alleged bribe. He testified that Allds said to him: "You better get your men up here and see the rules committee of which Allds was a member, or that bill will come out."

He recalled how Allds bargained with the witness' brother, Frank Conger, the vice-president of the bridge company, until Allds finally consented to protect the bridge interests for $1,000. Then slowly going to sink home, he narrated the incidents, he says, accompanied the actual transfer of the money.

One Step Further. The investigation today went one step further toward identifying the other men charged by Conger and Moe, with having shared with Allds the $6,000 sent from Groton to Albany by Frank Conger on behalf of the American Bridge Company. Conger asserted that neither of these men was a member of the legislature at the present time.

Conger's story today, went back to the session of 1901, when both he and Allds were in the assembly. He said: "I met Mr. Allds, I think, in the corridor that leads into the chamber, out at that side, as I recall it. He said to me: 'Benn, you think you have got your bridge bill bottled up in your internal affairs committee, but don't forget, my boy, the rules committee takes hold pretty soon. I understand that there is something doing on that bill on the floor. You better get your American Bridge Company men here and see the rules committee, or that bill will come out.' I said to Mr. Allds: 'I am not much interested in that, but I would communicate with my brother, who is vice-president of the American Bridge Co., and he might see you.' Mr. Allds said: 'All right.'"

MORE RUMORS OF SHUFFLE

Walter Scott Likely To Be Taken Into Dominion Cabinet At Close of Present Session—Meets All Requirements.

Special to The Standard. Regina, Sask., Feb. 11.—Rumor of a proposed cabinet shuffle that will involve both provincial and Dominion houses, continues to be given credence in this city and during the week developments have taken place which lead to the belief that the shuffle will occur this summer.

The First Move. The recent announcement by Hon. Clifford Sifton that he will retire from politics to take up the work of the conservation commission, was the first move. Although not in the cabinet, Mr. Sifton is known as one of "the men behind" and he holds cabinet rank so far as consultations on matters of policy are concerned.

Should Mr. Scott eventually go to Ottawa, as those on the inside believe he will, it's hardly likely that he will get the ministry of the Interior. Frank Oliver has made good in the administration of that department and would hardly relinquish it to the new man. Ontario, however, has more representatives in the Federal Cabinet than the province of Quebec.

NEW SCHEME FOR VALLEY RAILWAY

ANOTHER DEAL FOR WHICH THE PEOPLE PAY

Mr. Crocket Discovers Another What Transaction In Committee Of Supply—In Westmorland County This Time.

ADVERSE REPORT ON LAKE ERIE DAM

Ottawa, Feb. 11.—The house spent the day in committee of supply, dealing with Mr. Pugsley's public works estimates and for the most part making slow progress. The most interesting event had to do with a vote of $10,500 for an extension to the Pink Hook wharf in Shepody Bay, Westmorland Co.

Mr. Crocket charged that this expenditure was designed purely to benefit a private company, the Albert Manufacturing Co., of Hillsboro, which owned the wharf. The company did some work itself, and appointed the foreman, who was approved by the government, then the company passed the bill on to the government, which paid it. Over $2,000 worth of goods were ordered and paid for by the government. The nature of the prices Mr. Crocket inferred from the fact that $166 was charged for towing $563 worth of lumber three miles.

Not Crown Property. Mr. Crocket replied that it was not the property of the Crown. It belonged to the Albert Manufacturing Company, and remained in their possession. It was quite true that a sort of sham agreement had been entered into, to give the affair some sort of color. It had been agreed that Mr. C. J. Osman would allow the government to charge tolls on all vessels which tied up at the wharf, except vessels which belonged to the Albert Manufacturing Company. But the situation was that none but vessels belonging to this company could possibly use this wharf.

Mr. Emerson at great length defended the appropriation, stating that it was needed to develop the Gypsum.

SUDDEN DEATH OF ARCHIE CARPENTER

He was waiting to be served by the clerks when he expired. The remains were taken to Vanward's undertaking room and his relatives notified of the sad occurrence by telephone.

LA PRESSE IS IN LINE TOO

Join La Patrie In Stand For Imperial Defence—The Situation Stripped Of All Sentiment In Vigorous Appeal.

Special to The Standard. Montreal, Feb. 11.—Both La Presse and La Patrie have thrown in their lot with imperial defence participation by the Dominion of Canada. La Patrie following up its article of the day before says today that if a vote were taken the principle of contribution would be voted by eight out of the nine provinces, composing the confederation, and who can say what vote would be given in the ninth, but let us suppose that Quebec should vote against the proposal. Would her position be any better? Could she succeed in preventing the other provinces from pronouncing in favor of the project? The French Canadians are in a minority here and it is not vain appeals to resistance that would give her the force of numbers.

WINGS OF LORDS TO BE CLIPPED

Liberals In England Ousted As To Policy To Be Pursued Following Opening Of The House.

London, Feb. 11.—According to an authorized statement given out tonight, the Cabinet council arrived at an absolutely unanimous decision of the course of procedure early in the week. This statement was the outcome of numerous rumors of serious cleavage among the ministers regarding the policy to be followed.

It is understood that Premier Asquith has completed his cabinet appointments and only awaits the King's approval to publish them. Mr. Asquith will have an audience of His Majesty on Monday, after King Edward's return from Brighton. The speech of John E. Redmond at the banquet of the United Irish League in Dublin, last night, has caused considerable fluttering in the Liberal press and party. He is gently reproved by the moderate section of the press that is declared to be an attitude calculated seriously to embarrass the Government, but is warmly praised by the Radicals who have been urging the ministers to adopt a stern and vigorous policy towards the House of Lords. Mr. Redmond has received a joint telegram signed by three Radical Journals, the Nation, the Daily News and The Morning Leader. The message says: "Continued on Page Two."

STOCK MARKET AFFECTED BY HOLIDAY

New York, N. Y., Feb. 11.—The stock market was affected today during the holiday and the inclination of professional operators to close up contracts with a two-days interval to go through.

Contractors proved to be a buyer side of the market, which was to be expected in view of the prolonged liquidation of long accounts which has been going on, quite steadily, since the first of the year.

Much was made in the speculation of the intention of President Taft to make a speech in New York tomorrow, bearing on the administration attitude toward the corporation problem.

The intimation was broadly conveyed that anything might be done during the holiday interval to take the ground from under their feet by removing apprehension on the point of a feeling of anxiety.

Developments in the money market were calculated to stimulate an investment demand for securities. The growing abundance of banking has been in foreign markets induced expectations of a prolonged period of ease.

Good, Better or Best?
A VITAL DIFFERENCE IN BREADS

QUALITY you know is comparative. Just as much so in bread, as in woollens or linens.

If you make bread at all you naturally want it to be good—as good as, or better than your neighbor's.

But is your bread as good as it ought to be? Does it furnish its full quantum of health and strength? Is it nutritious as well as delicious?

Ordinary flour makes fairly good looking bread. But if you care for food value, for nutrition, for digestibility, for bone and muscle and blood building quality, you will want a flour rich in the highest quality of gluten. You will want the flour that makes bread not only good-to-look-at, but also makes it strength-producing, health-producing.

But where can you get such flour and how can you tell it from the kind that isn't nourishing?

The safe way is to get OGILVIE'S "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD". Then you can't make a mistake. "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" is the finest flour in the world and makes the best bread in the world.

And it is just as good for Pastry as it is for Bread. It is the one flour which has proved an unqualified success for every household purpose. And its absolute uniformity guarantees you against failure.

ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR isn't just ordinary wheat sent to an ordinary mill and ground by the ordinary process. It is Manitoba Red Fife Wheat which is especially rich in high quality gluten, scientifically milled and subjected to scientific chemical tests as well as baking tests before it comes to you in sack or barrel, etc.

No wonder "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" makes the finest and most nourishing bread. No wonder it makes the most delicious and healthful pies, cakes, biscuits, muffins, rolls.

Bread made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is vastly more nourishing than bread made from ordinary flour. Also it is lighter, flakier, more delicious as well as more nutritious.

Order "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" at once. Don't delay. The sooner you commence using this finest of all flours the better for your family.

The Story Of Lincoln And The Orphaned Girl

This Is My Fate

By Abraham Lincoln.

I have never united myself to any church, because I have found difficulty in giving my assent, without mental reservation, to the long complicated statements of Christian doctrine which characterize their Articles of Belief and Confessions of Faith. Whenever any church will inscribe over its altar, as its sole qualification for membership, the Savior's condensed statement of the substance of both law and gospel, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself," that church will I join with all my heart and all my soul.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Feb. 11.—Here is a story of Abraham Lincoln never before told. It illustrates how the heart of the great, rugged man could open with sympathy for the griefs of others, especially for the violent, hopeless griefs of children.

The woman who tells the story is old now. Blooming cheeks have long since fallen into saffron furrows, and dark pouches. Yet when she tells the story she weeps and gentle tears course down the wrinkles.

She does not weep because of her childhood sorrow. Time long ago healed the smart of that. She weeps because the great hearted human tenderness Abraham Lincoln shall bring tears to the eyes of youth and age alike as long as hearts shall beat.

She is Mrs. Eliza Wells, but at the time the grief that brought her such a rare memory of Lincoln came to her she was Eliza Taylor, a flippant, inconsequential schoolgirl of 16, living in Springfield, Ill., where her stepfather (the only father she ever knew) was an overworked family doctor, with an office across the hall from Lincoln's law office.

Proud of Blood. Dr. Taylor was a rigid New Englander, sprung from a long line of Puritan ancestors and proud of his blood. But between him and Lawyer Lincoln, whose birthplace was a lowly cabin in Kentucky, there sprung up a friendship.

The doctor's discriminating glance went past the unclean exterior of the man, pierced the mass of drudgery and anecdote with which Lincoln was wont to surround his personality, and saw the rare and beautiful soul underneath.

The doctor's port dour, however, was not to be won by the warmth of the country lawyer's good-natured advances. She put down his funny stories as the attempts of a boorish sort of fellow to be kittenish, and had ever a word of criticism for his roughness of dress.

"I don't like him—then—that was all," says Mrs. Wells now. "I thought he was so ugly, which perhaps was a very good reason for a girl of 16. That was 34 years ago. Presently the country was scourged with a fatal epidemic—cholera. It seemed to be in every home. If Dr. Taylor had been overworked before, he knew not the meaning of rest then. Night and day he was up and about.

It was then the undelivered courage that Dr. Taylor knew was in Lincoln's soul showed itself. With a story, a word of appreciation, a bit of cheer now and then he heartened the doctor to his work. When medicine was needed and the patient had no money Lincoln's lean purse was open. He appeared unwilling that his doctor friend should bear all of the responsibility alone, and himself made the rounds with the physician, doing what he could.

The schoolgirl, Eliza, knew none of these things until later, for Dr. Taylor was a silent man.

There were other brave men who shouldered the same inextinguishable cheer, and by and by the disease was conquered.

Too Much. But the sleeplessness and strain were too much for Dr. Taylor. Two weeks later he was stricken with a fatal attack of typhoid fever. He fought a game fight to the end, and the man most constantly at his bedside radiating the same inexhaustible cheer, was Abraham Lincoln.

The New Englander and the humble Kentuckian had passed through fire together and it was "Doc" and "Abe" with them. And even when the doctor stepped into the Valley of the Shadow, it was Lincoln who leaned over the bed and spoke with steadfast courage.

JAPANESE STRENGTH FOR PEACE

Baron Kikuchi's Message at Portland -- His Nation Was Forced to Become Militant -- Japan Fought for Open Door

Portland, Me., Feb. 11.—The business relations of the United States with Japan were the subjects of addresses before the Economic Club last night by Baron Kikuchi, Japanese minister, chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Labor and Commerce and Baron Watsoku Kikuchi of Japan. Baron Kikuchi said that misunderstandings between nations as well as individuals due to the lack of knowledge, often lead to difficulties. He wanted to impress on the members of the club some of the ideals of the Japanese nation derived from their history and progress. He spoke of the good feeling that existed between the United States and Japan due to historical reasons, mentioning the expedition of Commodore Perry and the good treatment that the country had received from the beginning from American diplomats. He said that the American people had endeavored to assist Japan in progressing and referred to the assistance this country had given to Japanese youth in seeking for knowledge. Japan, he said had always been a peaceful and an industrial nation. It had become militant when it was forced to do so to preserve its existence.

A Memorial. He said that he had been commissioned by his Government to place a memorial upon the grave of Dr. Murray of New Brunswick, N. J., in recognition of his services as superintendent of education in Japan. The reasons for war with Russia, he said, had not always been fully comprehended. Japan had always been in favor of the open door, and for that reason she had fought with Russia to prevent the domination of Russia and the closing of Manchuria to the nations of the world. In all its dealings with the world, it had not only acted within international law, but had even gone beyond what would be required of it under the code of nations. Japan sought only to be recognized as a nation. In proof of Japan's desire for peace, Baron Kikuchi spoke of the fact that the reports of his country had closed for several years in order to prevent religious propaganda and the results of political ambition. That in all this time absolute peace had been maintained, and that Japan had been friendly to the nations of the world. He said that the baron had been discussing the proposal of Secretary Knox for the neutralization of the Manchurian Railway, and that he had been regarded as an unfriendly act. The press and the people of Japan regretted the misunderstanding, but were none the less friendly on account of it.

Further illustrating Japan's peaceful intentions and the progress she had made, he told how the nation had jumped from a condition like that in Europe in the Middle Ages to a modern condition in a few years. He said that the power of its rulers had been relinquished without the shedding of a drop of blood.

The concluding speaker was Dr. George Knox of the Union Theological Seminary and for sixteen years a resident of Japan. He scoffed at the idea of a yellow peril and said that he was more afraid of a white peril. He said that the talk about war with Japan was due to two reasons—one, the anger aroused in American newspapers by their failing to obtain information which they sought in Japan, and the second, that in building a big navy it is necessary to have some navy to keep the war against the Japanese. He said that the Japanese were not a large race, but that they had a large population and that they had a large navy.

How She Lived. Mrs. Wells tells how she lived as a member of the Lincoln household for two years. That was another Lincoln trait. He was always giving housing to some webbed-footed waif, and some of these escapades in tenderness brought down the displeasure of the more practical Mrs. Lincoln.

After two years a young chap named Davis came to court Eliza. In a manly way he asked Lincoln for the girl's hand, and Lincoln consented, and the pair were married in the Lincoln house, and Lincoln blessed them. And when young Davis died, just before his baby was born, Lincoln again brought comfort to his heartbroken foster child.

"I saw him once after he was elected president," said Mrs. Wells, "and that was when he was just leaving for Washington. He kissed me good-bye—I will never forget that—and his last words to me seemed to indicate he had some presentiment he would give his life to his country."

"I have a feeling of oppression," he said, "as though some calamity is about to befall us. I hope it is to be my trouble, and not the nation's."

Women Heroines Face Jail In Labor's Last Stand Against Trust

THREE WOMEN WHO FACE CELLS FOR VIOLATING STRIKE INJUNCTION AT NEW CASTLE, PA. MRS. MAUD B. PARSONS, MRS. DALLIS L. DOUGLASS, MRS. MYRTLE DOYLE. Accused of Calling a Strike Breaker "Black Scab." Accused of Giving a Strike Breaker "the Horse Laugh." Accused of Calling a Strike Breaker a "Black Pot."

New Castle, Pa., Feb. 7.—The last stand of the once great Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers against the United States Steel corporation—the steel trust, which has made life a misery in every mill where it has destroyed the union—by employing heroines as well as heroes.

Here in New Castle 3500 tin workers, almost all of them sturdy Welshmen, have been on strike since last July. At that time, with steel products and the cost of living both rising, the trust cut down wages 9 per cent. They simply refused to recognize the union. It was, of course, a cold, deliberate plan to put the workers' organization out of business and to keep the men in every mill owned by the trust walked out.

But it is with the home and the women's side of it that I have to do. When the story was telegraphed out that 26 of the wives of leading strikers here at New Castle had been arrested for violating an injunction against approaching or interfering with strike breakers, I came to see what it all meant.

Met To Rehearse. That first evening of my visit 30 of these strikers' wives and daughters met to rehearse for a church concert. They were clear-skinned, deep-eyed women, with the rich, deep voices and pure English speech that mark all comers from the British west country. Their simple, dignified, cordial way of manner was beautiful. And how they could sing.

The solemn, compelling strains of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" made the small rooms ring with their voices. Then without a word of fussing a young woman with a wonderful appeal in her centrally placed eyes and sang, unaccompanied. "He Was Despised and Rejected." The concert ended with a light, lilting love serenade, and then a move to go home.

But not in a body they got up two by two. And there was an interval between the going of each pair. "You women women can't be seen on the streets in numbers, great as they are," said one of the women.

And if we do go to jail we'll stand it just as our men did who were sent for contempt and kept there 30 days, said Mrs. Thomas. "But we'll go to jail if we have to, and be proud of it for such a cause."

"Why what those men did in going back was the worst thing a man could do," added Mrs. Annie C. Jones. "Another one of those arrested," they deserted their comrades on strike and went back to be slaves and tools after accepting strike relief for seven months. I'm not ashamed to say that I pleaded with one for the sake of his little children to come out again because his action would hurt them as well as him."

"All of us women who were arrested are out on $200 bail till our trial," said Mrs. Thomas. "But we'll go to jail if we have to, and be proud of it for such a cause."

the Sunday meal, because after the strict Welsh religious ideas no work is done on the Sabbath day.

Over at the headquarters of the tin workers it was just the same. There was no disorder. Welshmen are not drinking men.

John Rogers and E. T. Jones, two members of the advisory board of the hot mill workers union, told what is in the report asked for by the national department of commerce and labor and which explains just why the 15,000 men of the trust tin mills struck.

"No mill belonging to the company has been open for longer than eight months in a year," said Rogers. "The Greer mill has been shut down eight months, the Shenango every year from four to six months, and at Ellwood, Ind., the mills have only been open 13 weeks in the last two years. The company makes us take shutdowns like that, and then wonders how we can stand a strike of seven months."

"When the mill is running full we only work 21 days a month," said Jones. "That's as much as we can, because the work is a terrific strain, and we can only keep it at it from 10 to 15 minutes at a stretch. The rollers, the highest paid men, can make at the highest $8 a day. This at 21 days a month for from only four to six months a year—over his Ellwood, Ind., its 13 weeks in two years—makes a good steady clerking job look attractive in comparison."

"The lowest workers in our part of the mills get about $2.25 a day. They work for the same time that we do."

Judge W. E. Porter granted the injunction to keep strikers from interfering with strike breakers. There has been no violence, so an injunction against interference by word of mouth had to be issued.

In December 27 strikers were sent to jail in contempt of court for walking the streets near the mills. While in jail they appointed a court of their own. When any one of their number committed any offense against the rules of the jail, they tied him and sentenced him to solitary confinement in his cell.

He treated these suggestions with contempt. . . . He, however, granted my request to sit up in a chair instead of lying flat on my back. This third time I vomited continuously. . . . The result seemed to surprise and slightly to alarm the doctor, and he called in his assistant to test my heart. After a brief and very superficial investigation it was pronounced quite sound and the pulse steady.

In the evening a specialist had been called in and my heart tested with elaborate paraphernalia for ten to fifteen minutes; but now the same heart belonged only to Jane Warton. From that time, however, the doctor's manner became more considerate and even kind, and I noticed a change in the way I was treated generally.

"The morning after I had first been fed by force I protested by breaking the thick glass of the 'gas-box' between my cell and the passage. I expected, of course, to be put in handcuffs for this, as others had been for the breaking of much less valuable window-glass. The governor, however, deferred my punishment to the judgment of the visiting magistrates, who again deferred the matter sine die. It will be intimated to see what steps are eventually taken against Jane Warton for this offence, a graver one than that for which two women are now serving several weeks of imprisonment, although they had already suffered prison punishment at the time. . . ."

MISS GUNARD MAY MARRY AFTER ALL

New York, N. Y., Feb. 11.—There is talk over the breaking of the engagement of Miss Margaret Cunard and Mr. Robert Harcourt, brother of Mr. Louis Harcourt. This engagement really existed eighteen months before it was publicly announced.

Just after the last Ascot race meeting her father withheld his assent, as he did not consider the Harcourts means adequate for the support of his daughter, but money lately was settled on the latter by Lady Harcourt.

Then both parties to the engagement had influenza and Mr. Harcourt insisted on the wedding. The party of the first part contended that his health was bad but finally the latter broke the engagement altogether.

The engagement altogether. Miss Cunard's relatives now assert that when she has recovered her nerve balance matters are sure to result in themselves in the face of all this.

No Resistance. "The inability to conceal my great physical cowardice was one of my trials; I hope I gave a certain satisfaction to the operators. Except in the way of clinching my teeth I offered no resistance, and after the fourth or fifth time I succumbed to the pain of being forced by the steel gag and opened my jaws with a very brief protest. After the first time the doctor, as he left me, gave me a slap on the cheek, not violently, but apparently to express his contemptuous disapproval. I said to him the next day: 'Unless you consider it part of your duty, would you please not strike me when you have finished your odious job.' He gave no answer but never repeated this probably half-unconscious insult. The second time the vomiting was more excessive than the first. . . . The doctor was angry, and left my cell hastily, saying, 'You did that on purpose; if you do it again tomorrow I shall feed you twice.' The next day I remonstrated with him. . . . also beseeched that he would not press

Refusal Continued. "Since then the refusal on the part of the Government to treat the women's question seriously has continued, and the ill treatment of the suffrage prisoners has increased. Honored as the cruelties practised on some of these, and more especially on two prisoners on remand in Wallingford, I took part in a protest meeting outside that prison on Friday, January 14. Having frequently experienced the futility of appealing for justice in any matter concerning the suffrage movement, this time I took the precaution of discussing myself, and, on the following day, under the name of Jane Warton, was sentenced, with the option of a fine to fourteen days' third division, with hard labor, charged with urging the crowd to follow me to the governor's house, refusing to desist when

Slight Fire at Sand Point. The Carlton firemen were called out about 7.15 o'clock last evening for a slight blaze in the chimney of the immigration building at Sand Point. Sparks were noticed flying from the chimney and when an alarm was sounded crowds of people hurried to Sand Point. It was at first thought the Donaldson line shed was on fire. John McAndrews and a couple of others extinguished the blaze with salt before the department arrived. A defective flue was the cause.

Winter Port Notes. The Lake Michigan moved over to No. 3 berth yesterday afternoon to load grain and export freight for London and Antwerp. ARRIVES HERE AFTER TRAMP OF 500 MILES IN EIGHTEEN DAYS

Jean Laflamme Makes Good Time In Walk From Levis—Expenses, $12 For The Trip.

Among the visitors in the city at present is a young French Canadian Jean Laflamme, whose claim to notoriety rests in the fact of his having tramped from Levis, Que., to St. John in less than 18 days, a distance of 500 miles.

Laflamme is but 22 years of age, of sturdy athletic build and seems to be none the worse for his long and arduous tramp. He claims to have left Levis on Jan. 23. He had in his possession at the time $85 and says that it cost him exactly $12 for his trip.

As an instance of the work done by the department, Mr. McIntosh said he had been called to a lady's house a few days ago to determine the nature of an insect which had invaded the house and was causing much inconvenience. He took a specimen to the museum and found it identical with a small fly insect from the West Indies.

Another very helpful collection in the display of the plant products used in medicine, which Mr. McIntosh hopes to complete in the near future.

FALLS THIRTY FEET INTO STEAMER'S HOLD WITHOUT INJURY

Carl Larsen Had Miraculous Escape From Death On Steamer Dageid Yesterday—Alighted On His Feet.

Just before the Norwegian steamer Dageid sailed from here yesterday one of the sailors, Carl Larsen, had a somewhat remarkable escape from death. While climbing up a ladder which led up from the stokehold to the deck he missed his footing on one of the rungs and fell backwards into the stokehold, a distance of nearly 30 feet.

Larsen, who it was said, possesses considerable acrobatic skill, and is also a wrestler of some ability, brought his knowledge into play and it evidently served him in good stead some way he managed to land upon his feet on the iron floor of the stokehold and apart from a general shaking up was to all appearances none the worse for his experience.

AMATEUR SPORT RANKS HIGHER THAN PROFESSIONALISM

E. C. Weyman Gives Interesting Address Before E. D. C.—Spirit Of Loyalty Created—No Money Interest.

The benefits of amateur sport was the subject of an interesting address by Mr. E. C. Weyman before the Every Day Club last evening. Mr. Weyman spoke of sport as it is conducted at the large colleges in the United States, particularly at Yale, where he was a student, and claimed that amateur sport always meant clean sport while the same could not be said of professional sport.

Great care was taken, he said, to keep out any trace of professionalism from college sport. Hard and fast rules were made to make sure that all were simon pure amateurs. He found as a graduate of U. N. B. when he went to Yale that he could not become a member of the university track team. This was to prevent stars from other colleges coming in for a special course in order to make money out of football or some other sport.

Asked as to the motive for his strange tramp the young Frenchman shrugged his shoulders and was reticent. He explained, however, that he was anxious to see the country. He procured his lunch at a restaurant and took the train for Fredericton last evening. He will return to St. John in about a week, he says, and will endeavor to secure work at the winterport.

Laflamme speaks English fluently and appeared to be well educated and his dress indicated one in comfortable circumstances.

RHODES SCHOLARS ARE FULFILLING IDEALS OF FOUNDER

Prof. Frank Day, Of U. N. B., Gives Address On Life At Oxford Before Teachers' Association.

That the ideals of Cecil Rhodes in providing for representatives from colleges in all parts of the British Dominions, Germany and the United States to attend the National British University at Oxford are being fulfilled was the opinion expressed by Prof. Frank P. Day, of the University of New Brunswick, at a most brilliant of the Rhodes scholars, in an admirable address before the St. John Teachers' Association last evening.

The student was given about seven hours a day of hard work and the rest was free for rest or recreation. The Rhodes scholar had almost without exception shone in athletics, which was but carrying out the ideal of the founder of the scholarships.
