Parnell and Mrs. O'Shoa.

The New York Catholic News has received from its Dublin correspondent, Thos. Sherlock, an Irish journalist, whose relations with the Nationalist members of Parliament are very close, a dispatch which says: "On authority which I have good reason to consider excellent, I make the statement that Mr. Parnell has assured at least two members of the Irish Parliamentary party that the charge made against him by Capt. O'Shea is utterly without foundation in fact, and that he looks forward to a near time when he will be able to prove as much, with good results to the Irish cause. These two members are convinced that Mr. Parnell is simply biding his own time to vindicate himself at the precise moment when the vindication will have more affect for the law of the precise moment when the vindication will have more affect for the law of the precise moment when the vindication will have more affect for the law of the precise moment when the vindication will have more affect for the law of the law

PARNELL IGNORED. []| which visited him yesterday, is in less concili-atory terms than the committee expected it would be. It is reported that in his letter Mr. Glastone refused absolutely to enter into any negotiations recarding these two questions until Parnell's retirement from the head of the Irish party is an accom-plished fact.

aches visible on some parts of the gigantic proves much, with good results to the received makes mention of the precise moment when the viniciation will have more effect for Ireland. The dispatch makes mention of the private statement of a servant who lived with Mrs. O'Shea that would occur in the case of an ordinary gentleman visitor."

No particular style of architecture can be predicated of this building, though the arches visible on some parts of the gigantic façade suggest the Romanesque. The design presents a faint semblance of a main building in the center with wings at each side. These wings terminate in atcept gables on the east and west fronts, connected by the steep roof of the central portion of the structure.

There are 17 stories below the cornice and 3 above it. All four fronts will be finished in exactly the same costly and elegant style. There will be three tiers of deeply recessed bay windows on each 90 feet north and south by 45 feet east and west. The walls of this court will he faced from bottom to top with different colored marble, and at the east side of it a magnificent bronze staircase will ascend from the ground floor to the roof.

The interior finish of the building will be mosaic floors, marble and only walls and old oak woedwork. East of the court, disposed in a semi-circle, will be fourteen passenger and two freight elevators, running from the basement to the attic, and making a round trip every three minutes. The whole building will be heated by steam and supplied with electrical and pneumatic connections in profusion.

The basement will be devoted to an immense cafe with its appurtenances, and waiting-rooms, toilet-rooms, coalrooms and boile-rooms. Perhaps the most surprising thing that can be said concerning this immense building is that every floor of it from the pavement to the eleventh floor inclusive will be fitted up for shops. There will also be four shop-like booths on the floor of the court. The floors from the eleventh to the sixteenth inclusive will be fitted up as business, offices.

Above the sixteenth floor, the entire south wing, 50 by 100 feet in size, will be devoted to a drill hall. The similar space in the north wing will be divided between the blue lodge rooms. The intermediate room, on the State street front, 40 by 80 feet in size, will be a banqueting hall. On the sighteenth floor, over the drill hall, will be a gargeous consistory room, with arched roof and galleries on three sides. Over the blue lodge rooms will be roof smaller rooms. Even here the description does mot end, for on the roof of the building are to be hanging gardens, covered with glass roof and walls that are to rival the abode of the gods. It is given cut that there may be refreshments up there, but everything that inebriates will be remoraelessly banished.

The costly buildings which once stood on the site are already nearly all demolished. As soon as they are out of the way the premises are to be cover Suicide of a Young School Teacher.

CUBA, N. Y., Dec. 6.—Virgil Hammond, aged 17 years, committed suicide this (Saturday) morning about 7 o'clock by shooting himself in the right temple with a revolver. He had been teaching school at Rawson, and it is supposed overwork affected his mind.

burg Destroyed.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 6.—A fire at Homestead, Pa., yesterday destroyed the St. Mary's Magdalene Catholic Church, sehoo house and convent and two dwellings. Loss, $50,000; fully insured. The fire was caused by the heavy pressure of natural gas.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 6.—Fire broke out in Maginn's cracker factory yesterday and was not extinguished until four large business blooks had been consumed. The buildings were brick, seven stories high, occupied by E. Maginn, cracker factory; R. & W. Jenkinson, wholesale tobacco; Crea, Graham & Co., stoves and hardware; L. H. Harris & Co., wholesale druggists. Chief Engineer Evans and five firemen were caught under 'a falling wall and injured, but will recover, except Fireman August Roth, who was badly crushed and injured internally. Fireman Tiegers is missing. The loss is estimated at $350,000; insurance, $298,000.

Earthquake at Lockwood.

Lockwood, Mo., Dec. 6.—For several weeks past explosions have been heard and their force felt in this vicinity like heavy blasting. They have been growing louder and more violent each day. Yesterday morning two distinct shocks of earthquake were felt. Houses were shaken and the swaying of their dwellings brought the people out of their beds. The whole population fled into the streets for safety.

The frish Earcys Heard from Again.

Wm. O'Brien, who is in Chicago, received a cablegram from Ald. Hopper, proprietor of the Cork Herald, Friday, stating that Minster was sound and there need not be the least fear for the country at large. O'Brien sent the following reply: "Have kept silent out of respect for deliberations of our colleagues, confidently relying on their mature judgment and that of the Irish people. Don't be misled by hasty or ill-informed American telegrams. All sober opinion overwhelmingly with us. Not a single daily throughout the United States but agrees with us that Gladstone's bona fides is unimpeachable; that disruption of the Liberal alliance means destruction, and that if the Irish party come to a prompt decision the Irish cause will occupy a more impregnable position than ever.

Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, Minn., called upon the envoys, and assured them he had heard a universal chorus of approbation of the stand taken by them in their manifesto. He was confident that if wise counsels prevailed in London, American healing on the Irish cause would be enlisted more enthusiastically than ever before.

The Windsor Postoffice Robbery.

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 6.—Chas. Benglet, a registered letter clerk, testified in the Egan case yesterday that on the morning of Nov. 12 his attention was attracted to Egan, who had charge of Windsor letters, by the tearing up of paper. He opened the slot of Egan's compartment and saw Egan had pieces of paper in his hand, which defendant threw in a rubbish box in the rear lobby of the postoffice. Witness picked out the pieces of paper, took them to his desk and examined them. The capital letter "E" was on one piece and the words "five dollars" on another. Witness and Clerk Conway pasted the pieces together. The result was a letter written by William Horne, of Gesto, to E. Rodd, of Windsor. Clerk Conway stated he received the pieces of paper from Beuglet. He went to inspector Barker's room, examined them and began pasting them tegether. It took them four hours to do the work.

Business Across the Border.

New York, Dec. 6.—The somewhat restricted volume of business throughout the country, reported to Bradstreet's a week ago, continues a feature of the commercial and industrial situation, notwithstanding colder weather within a few days has tended to stimulate buying. Holiday specialities are fairly active at retail. The general tendency of prices of staples has been downwards. The effort to advance anthracite coal prices has failed. Large stocks and slight demand have shaded print cloths, and wool is quite as dull as previously, with a reduced volume of sales at Boston this week. Cattle and hogs are off 5c at the west, and provisions are a little lower on the week. Wheat stocks available in the United States and Canada, east of Rockies, Dec. 1, were 9,612,000 bushels smaller than one year ago. The aggregate of domestic stores both coasts (Canada included) at European storage points and afloat for Furope on the lst inst. is also nearly 10,000,000 bushels less than on Dec. 1, 1889. The first report of the House of Refuge Committee for December session (F. L. As regarded the admission of the city poor to the House of Refuge, it was deemed inadvisable to do so at present as the accommodation was rather limited. In regard to the fire scape the report was amended to leave the matter to the Engineer with power. while the city wished to transfer about twenty paupers.

Mr. M. Scarrow thought the Council should deal liberally with the city and admit as many as convenient.

Speaking on the clause relating to the removal of London's poor to the House of Refuge, Mr. James Gilmour said the city and county had many interests in cor mon, such as the hospital and the jail. Of course, the city had previously taken its poor from the county care; some philanthropic persons imagined in their kind feelings that they could attend to them eletter if the poor were nearer them so they could pat the dear creatures on the back once in a while. The hospital sufficed for both county and city, and the same should apply to the poorhouse, even if it were necessary to enlarge the builling.

Mr. S. McLeod did not think the county had received fair exchange in civilities with the city. It had its little benevolent institutions and the county did not wish any of its boarders who were bad enough. The case was entirely different regarding the hospital.

Mr. D. G. McKenzie had no doubt there was plenty of room in the house, but in case the bospital.

Mr. D. G. McKenzie had no doubt there was plenty of room in the house, but in case of additional inmates the provision of bcds, bedelothing and other articles would be considerable.

Mr. McLeod's query as to whether the city, in case of its paupers dying in the neral expenses, was answered in the neral expenses, was answered in the affirmative.

Mr. T. E. Robson moved in amendment that the matter be left with the Inspector, Chairman of the House of Refuge Committee, and the Warden to prepare such terms as they deemed best for the county's interest. The amendment was carried and the report as amended was adopted.

Moved by W. S. Calvert, seconded by A. P. McDougall, that the clerk be instructed to notify the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario that the county has erected a house of refuge and industry, and own 45 acres of land in connection therewith, and that the Warden and Treasurer make application to the Lieutenant-Governor for $4,000 ander the conditions provided by 53 Victoria, chapter 78. Moved by R. Augustine, that the Clerk be instructed to prepare a bylaw assuming and building all bridges over streams in Middlesex county that are necessary, 100 feet in length and over. Lost. Council adjourned.

THE MANUFACTURERS. publish to-day interviews with two London manufacturers on the trade ques tion. Their experience has been that of publication at the present time gives point to the centention that the movement for unrestricted reciprocity is not, as some have contended, one in which the farmers are to be found on the one side and the manufacturers on the other. In the matter of trade extension, the interests of the farmer and of the manufacturer are identical, and nowhere has that been more fully exemplified than in the candid confessions of the manufacturers themselves. It is not a fact that the mass of the manufacturers any longer favor trade restriction. There we always a large number of independent manufacturers who could not see their way clear to believe that the system of so-called "protection" would be of permanent benefit sites to all. benefit either to themselves or to the people at large. Others there were whose political proclivities were so strong that they were willing for a season to endure the affliction of heavy taxes on their raw material rather than break away from old associations. the latter classes belong not a few of the manufacturers who have patriotically given their views to the public in the present crisis. We say patriotically, for it is the duty of every true friend of Canada in the present juncture, no matter what his past views have been on this great trade question, to speak boldly out in favor of the changes necessary to bring about a better state of affairs. There is, it is true, a penalty at-tached to this course. Manufacturers who refuse to adopt the idea that the combine system, which has brought great wealth to a few and comparative poverty to all others, must expect to have the ill-will of the newsmust expect to have the ill-will of the news-papers established with the special object of perpetuating the system. For example, the Toronto Empire, referring to the gentlemen who have been interviewed and who have expressed themselves as decidedly in favor of unrestricted reciprocity, sneers at them as "sore-heads," and tells them that "not one representa tive of any of our great staple manufactur-ing industries is to be found in the collection." It further asserts that their evidence shows "that their discontent mainly arises from their disgust at not being able to screw greater profits out of the people, and especially out of the farmers of Canada." This is adding insult to injury. First, the organ aids in overburdening the manufacturers in many lines with excessive duty on raw material, and then it tells them that their sole aim is to "screw greater profits out of the people." Pray, which is more likely to "screw greater profits out of the people," the combines in iron, binding twine, cotton and other necessaries of life, or the inde-pendent manufacturer, who is ready to face competition in a free market, if given a Italic chance? The Empire takes the side of the combines.

A partfal list of the gestlemen who have been interviewed on the trade question will show how ill-founded is another portion of our contemporary's argument.

Among the men who are opposed to the side of the side of the way to make men iree is to make pure tensive grounds, valued at $150,000, for a children's convalescent home. The donor is a member of the Society of Friends.

The answer to the third question may be gathered from a series of fragmentary discoveries, known as the parables by the sea shore. In these parables Christ. Among the men who are opposed to fenced-in industries, and who desire the utmost freedom to trade with our neighbors, may be named the London manufacturers who talk in the interviews published in another column, with others that can easily be named; E. G. Thomas, organ manufacturer, Woodstock; F. Richards, soap manufacturer, Woodstock; Goo. H. Allen, of Waterloo, Q., manufacturer of stoves, hollowware, agricultural implements, etc.; C. H. Waterous, of Brantford, manufacturer of engines, etc.; Joseph Kidd, of Goderich, and Joseph Williams, of Port Franks, Lambton, salt Williams, of Port Franks, Lambton, salt manufacturers; J. Rattenbury and John Mahon, Clinton, and A. M. Polley, Goder-ich, horse dealers; D. A. Forrester, pro-prietor of Clinton flax mill; G. M. Cossitt, of Brockville, manufacturer of agricultural implements; Farran, Macpherson & Hovey, manufacturers of threshing machines, Clinton; A. Buritt & Co., hosiery manufacturers Walter Thompson, Miles ton; A. Buritt & Co., hosiery manufacturers, Walter Thompson, miller, and John White, pork packer, Mitchell; F. C. Frost, agricultural implement manufacturer, of Smith's Falls; ment manufacturer, of Smith's Falls; W. H. Folger, Kinston, engaged in banking, mining, manufacturing, shipping, etc.; A. N. Pringle, proprietor of Belleville planing mill, sash and blind factory; R. C. Clute, barrister, of Belleville, interested in mining industries; J. P. Macdonald and E. P. Dufton, weelen manufacturers. T. Dufton, woolen manufacturers, Strat-

Surely this list of representative men either directly or indirectly interested in manufacturing, who believe that unreative men astricted reciprocity would not only benefit themselves, but their neighbors, and help to build up the country, is large enough for even our fastidious contemporary. It might be extended indefinitely by adding such representative men as Parks, the great cotton manufacturer in St. John, N. B., and mapy other he country.

They are "sorcheads," we are told by the combine organ. So be it; the first body of men whose motor has been called in question by those interested in maintaining a great evil.

THE LICENSE PETITION. Doubts having been thrown upon the right of the City Council to deal with the question of the reduction of licenses, in acordance with the citizen petition to be presented to the aldermen on Monday, it is only necessary to refer to the provisions of the Liquor License Act. Section 20 of this law enacts that:

law enacts that:

"The council of every city, town, etc., may, by bylaws to be passed before the 1st day of March in every year, limit the number of tavern licenses to be issued therein for the then ensuing license year, beginning on the 1st day of May or for any future year until such bylaw is altered or repealed, provided such limit is within the limit imposed by the act."

A sub-section enacts that the Council shall send a copy of the bylaw to the con-shall send a copy of the by!aw to the com-missioners, who, as a matter of course, would be guided by this expression of pub-

What the petitioners now ask, as we unmany manufacturers in the country, and its pass a bylaw reducing the licenses from 69 lerstand it, is that the City Council shall to 50 to its first and second readings, and to 50 to its first and second readings, and then submit it to the popular vote of the taxpayers. If a majority of them vote "yea," then the bylaw will pass to its third read-ing in the new Council, become law, and be acted on. If "nay," the Council may take it for granted that the majority of the citi-zens are satisfied to continue the present number of licensed places.

It is a plebiscite on the question. It places the matter in the hands of the people. Could anything be fairer?

WHAT IS CHRISTIANITY? The remembrance of Rev. Lyman Abbott's lecture in this city will add to the nterest with which his views on the subject of Christianity, as set forth in the last Arena, will be regarded. When a reformer demands our support, he says, we ask him four questions, not always formulating them carefully, but always instinctively demanding an answer to them. 1. What do you propose to accomplish? 2. What means do you propose to employ? 3. How can these means work out this result? On what power do you rely? Definite answers to these four questions are given in the New Testament.

The first question Christ answers very explicitly in his first published discourse. When the roll containing the prophecy of Isaiah was handed to him he read from it: Isaiah was handed to him he read from it:
"He hath sent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovery of sight to the blind; to set at liberty them that are bruised; to preach the acceptable year of the Lord." The instructions given to the disciples were avently in coptable year of the Lord." The instruc-tions given to the disciples were exactly in the spirit of this opening discourse. They were: "Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils." The object of Christ was to promote the well-being of mankind. The end of Christianity is philmaintropic. The object of other religions, or even of much that has passed for the Chris-tian religion, is something very different, Buddhism, for example, does not propose the well-being of man, but the cessation of being. "I have come," says Christ, "that they may have life." "I have come," says Siddartha, "that they may have death." The second question is answered with equal explicitness in the second reported ermon, known as the Sermon on the Mount, Christ's method for improv-ing the condition of mankind is by the improvement of character. He depended not on a change of environment to change human character, but he depended sea shore. In these parables Christ com-pares Christianity to a husbandman sowing seed in various soils with harvests as various; to a field in which an enemy sowed tares, which grew up together with the wheat; to a mustard seed, the smallest of seeds, but growing up to be a great herb. He declared that the reform which he proposed would have very small beginnings, and would come to its perfection by forces working from within outward. These are the principles of evolution. A reconstruction of individual and race charges are the principles of the language of the Language of the Language. reconstruction of individual and race character requires long periods of time for its accomplishment. The pen of Abraham Lincoln can proclaim the negro as free, and the sword of General Grant can in two years achieve their emancination; but to create in the entrapelied race such a manhood as will make them free men, capable of maintaining the rights and exercising the duties of free men, requires years if not centuries.

quires years if not centuries.

The answer to the fourth question can be nothing other than the power of God. This is not theology. Theology is the knowle dge of God; and the world, according to Christ, and the world, according to Christ, and the world accordin receives life. Character is formed, n a self-conscious endeavor to conform con-duct to some external standard, but by fel-

Russia has just as much right to take control of territory occupied by savages or controlled by them as Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy have to take hold of and parcel out African territory. In national aggrandizement, the territory. In national aggrandizement, the policy has been dictated by—

As to the menace of India, through the Russian advance, there may be differences of opinion. The future control of India's millions by Great Britain is a great problem. There can be no doubt that in the past British rule has been an appropriate improvement on the tribal rule. India's millions by Great Britain is a great problem. There can be no doubt that in the past British rule has been an enormous improvement on the tribal rule that anteceded it, with its factional and bloody wars, periodic famines, and dreadful plagues. The better classes of the native population recognize this fact, and would not lightly give up British centrol for any substitute which Russia might offer them. Nevertheless there cannot be a doubt that the bureaucratic system must be somewhat modified to meet the aspirations of the large and ever-increasing edube somewhat moduled to meet the aspira-tions of the large and ever-increasing edu-cated section of the people, who have been taught in the British-given schools and colleges to look with favor upon self-govern-ment and to crave a greater share in the management of their country than is possihanagement of their country than is possible under the present system. That sentiment respected, the missionaries of Russian military rule would find few converts among the leaders of native thought and progress in India. How best to bring about the evolution is the problem that will confront British rulers in India in the not distant

PERSONAL AND GENERAL,

—Few people are aware of the enormous development of the telephone service in the Dominion. It is not over a dozen years since the Bell Company began, in a humble way, to inaugurate their service, yet now every city, town and village of any preten-sion is supplied with connections, and this season alone no less than 1,380 miles of trunk line wire, all of copper, has been rected in the Dominion.

-The Collector of Customs died at Toronto between three and four years ago. Last week the Registrar of Wentworth county died. The Tory organs have no county died. The Tory organs have so protest to make against the delay in filling the former vacancy, which is caused because two Toronto M. In spite of the fact that the production of Spite Considerably in excess of that of last year. Deen considerably in excess of that of last year. Deen considerably in excess of that of last year. Downs more than for the corresponding products in 1889, it is generally admitted that the stocks in Canada are a great deal less than they were a year ago, the estimates of shortage ranging from 75,000 to 100,000 boxes. The development of a better inquiry noticed by us last week as we were going to press, has materialized into business of good-sized proportions, one firm having sold 4,000 boxes on spot to shippers who had orders to fill, the prices realized being 9fe to 9fe for finest proportions, one firm having sold 4,000 boxes and mprovement on last week's prices. However, and montreal are estimated at 100,000 to 105,000 boxes, and at outside points in Canada at from 120,000 to 140,000 boxes. It appears that buyers on the other side have been misled, in supposing that as the shipments via the St. Lawrence were so much heavier this season, the amount of cheese left in Canada was proportionately large; but now that this delusion has been dissipated, Eaglish and appears to be waiting up to the fact that at manappear to be waiting up to the fact that at the supposing that a stock and dian, cheese may be good up the cable up to 650s, the figure at which act, all sales were made in Liverpool over a month ago.—]Montreal Trade Bullotin.

Expensive Farm Land.

The award of the abitrators in the disagreement between the Water Commissioners and Mr. Colville, as to the price to be paid by the commissioners for the 35 acres expropriated has been agreed upon. By it the commissioners are required to pay the late owner 86,000. Judge Davis and Mr. E. Meredith agreed that such a sum was a fair price. Mr. T. H. Purdom contends 2 that the water resources should be taken into account and be credited as a more valuable asset than simply its use for ordinary farm property.

The pupils of the Byron public school, together with the choir of the Methodist Church and a large number of friends, met at the residence of Mr. James E. Griffith for the purpose of doing honor to Mr. F. W. Hughes, who has taught the Byron school for the past three years. The surprise given Mr. Hughes was a good indication of the respect and esteem in which he is held by the people of Byron. The large gathering was brought to order, and the proceedings of the evening began by Miss Maggle Wells reading an address from the school and choir, expressive of their kind regards and wishes for Mr. Hugher future welfare, together with a presentation of an elegant shaving case and gold-headed cane by Miss Edith Griffith and Miss Mirands Fortner. Mr. Hughes made a cepty in keeping with the occasion. Refreshments were then served in first-class style and quality, to which the company did ample justice. The remainder of the evening was spent in singing and other amusements.

The Hamilton Ladies' College and Conservatory of Music and Art is now in its 30th year, and has established for itself a reputation for thoroughness and efficiency that cannot be excelled. It is fully equipped in every respect, and the management are extremely careful in looking after the comfort and the religious and moral influences surrounding the pupils of this institution. The college will be open after the holidays on Jan. 7, 1891. Write to the principal, Rev. A. Burns, D.D., LL.D., who will be pleased to give all information concerning the college.

Canadians Need Not be Afraid to Com-pete on Even Terms with People in the States.

facturers here cannot specialize and so reduce the cost of manufacturing as it is possible to do in the United States with a market of $2,000,000 people. A Canadian cotton mill says it cannot compete with the big American concerns. Perhaps it cannot, so long as it tries to make 125 kinds of cotton while a Massachusetts mill is running on eight kinds. The Canadian mill must make all the different kinds of cotton this market wants, because there is not a big enough market to specialize. That illustrates what I mean when I say the iron manufacturers cannot because of the limitation of their market specialize their manufacturers.

Phillips Brooks The discussion of the theme on the "Conditions of Church Missionary's Growth in Missionary Landa" True Work. enabled Phillips Brooks to state his well-known views on the foolishness—or worse—of trying to superimpose Western theological conceptions, dogmas and non-essentials of doctrine and church polity upon Oriental nations. He believes, as do eminent men like Dr. McKim, of Washington, and Rev. William Kirkus, of Baltimore, that it is the duty of Episcopal missionaries to first make the heathen Christians, and next—and by no means necessarily—obuvehmen. Phillips Brooks goes further than this. He hopes that sectarian and churchly lines will not be entirely forgotten on foreign shores, and thus the missionary lands solve the problem of Christian unity.

India. Bishop Thoburn's picture of the poverty of the people of Asia, especially of India, where families live on 5 cents a day, and thousauds of growing children go to bed hungry every night, drew forth a chorus of groans and sighs, as well as generous gifts. He mentioned, as a sample, a man who was paid $2.50 per month, whose wife, by hard work, added 28 cents per month to it. This had to be divided among a family of five, none of whom could have enough, even of their own coarse food (rice mixed with weeds). "Five hundred millions of the people of this world," said the Bishop, "will go to bed hungry to-night. The tramps of this country would be 'swell' in any part of India." Speaking of the fact that missionary converts are mostly gathered from the poor, he argued that it was better so. When a house is to be lifted jack-screws are put in at the bottom. If the roof was grappled it would be only the roof that would be lifted.

Are Women Angels?-A Pretty Bed-Seasonable Gift Suggestion-Value of Milk as a Drink-The Styles, Etc.

[Samantha Allein and the Senator.]

"Ahem!" says he. "Ahem, as it were—as I was saying, my dear madam, these angelio angels of our homes are too ethereal, too dainty, to mingle with the rude crowds. We political mea would fain keep them as they are now; we are willing to stand the rude buffetings of—of—voting, in order to guard these sweet, delicate creatures from every hardship. Sweet, tender beings, we would fain guard you—ah, yes I ah, yes!"

"Says I, "Cease instantly. Such talk is like thoroughwort or lobelia to my moral stoinach." Says I, "You know, and I know, that these angelie, tender bein's, half clothed, fill our streets on icy midnights, huntin' up drunken husbands and fathers and sons. They are driven to death and to moral ruin by the miserable want liquor-drinkin' entails. They are staved, they are frozen, they are beaten, they are made childless and hopeless by drunken husbands killing their own flesh and blood.
They go down into the cold waves, and are drowned by drunken captains; they are cast from railways into death by drunken

"Wimmen had ruther be a flyin' round than to do all this, but they can't. If men really believe all they say about wimmen—and I think some of 'em' do, in a dreamy way—if wimmen are angels, give 'em the rights of angels. Who ever heard of an angel foldin' up her wings and goin' to a poorhouse or jail through the fault of some-body else? Who ever heard of an angel bein' dragged off to a police court by a lot of men, for fighting to defend her children and herself from a drunken husband that had broke her wings, and blacked her eyes, himself got the angel into the fight, and then she got throwed into the streets and the prison by it? Who ever heard of an angel havin' to take in washin' to support a drunken son or father or husband? Who ever heard of an angel goin' out as wet nurse to get money to pay taxes on her home to a Government that in theory idolizes her, and gractically despiese her, and uses that same money in ways abominable to the angel?

"If you want to be consistent—if you are bound to make angels of wimmen, you ort to keup the angels from bein' meddled with, and bruised, and killed, etc."

"Ahem!" says he. "As it were, ahem!"

meddled with, and bruised, and killed, etc."

"Ahem!" says he. "As it were, ahem!"
But I kept right on, for I begun to feel moble and beside of myself.

"This talk about wimmen bein' outside and above all participation in the laws of her country, is just as pretty as I ever heard anything, and jest as simple. Why, you might jest as well throw a lot of snow-flakes into the street, and say, 'Some of 'em are female flakes and mustu't be trampled on.' Sheets are hemstitched, and if a monogram is embroidered on them, it is a very small one, and is done in white cotton and placed just near the corner. A very beautiful pair of curtains specially embroidered to be put on a Chippendale bedsteed, are of bolting-cloth, and show upon the upper ones bunches of poppies here and there, while the lower ones display purple, pink and pale-blue morning-glorles, as if to call the sleeper to arise and go forth, for they were awake with the sun. Night-dress cases are occasionally seen on the beds, but are much oftener put on the small, square shool that stands just at the foot of the bed, and upon which one is supposed to sit when shoes and stockings are assumed. The cases are no longer made of linen, but are very large scented sachets either of brocade silk or bolting-cloth suitably embroidered. They exhale the favorite perfume of the gentle lady, and in this way the robe in which she sleeps is made daintily odcrous. Some mottoes for cases made of bolting-sloth are these: "Sleep Thy Fill and Take Thy Soft Repose"; "Sleep in Peace and Wake in Joy;" "Let Me Sleep and Do Not Wake Me Yet;" "Night Bids Sleep."—[Ladies' Home Journal.

How to Drink Milk.

One glassful of milk gives more real strength than a barrel of beer. Don't swallow it fast and in such big gulps. Sip it slowly. Take four minutes at least to that glassful, and don't take more than a good teaspoonful at one sip. When milk goes into your stomach it is instantly surdled. If you drink a large quantity at the wants of the traveline to one of the stomach can work. If you drink it in little sips, each little sip is ourdled up by itself, and the whole glassful finally finds itself in a loose lump made up of little lumps, through around and among which the stomach's juices may percolate and dissolve the whole speedily and simultaneously.

Many people who like milk and know its the stomach's juices may percolate and dissolve the whole speedily and simultaneously.

the stomach's juices may percolate and dissolve the whole speedily and simultaneously.

Many people who like milk and know its value as a strength giver, think they cannot use it because it gives them indigestion. Most of them could use it freely if they would only drink it the way I have described, or if they would, better still, drink it hat. Hot milk seems to lose a good deal of its density; you would almost think it had been watered; and it also seems to lose much of its sweetness, which is cloving to some appetites.

If the poor only knew and appreciated the value of milk taken in this way, I am sure there would not be so much beer drinking among them. There are thousands of hard working scrub-women, wash-women, factory-girls and even shop-girls in this city, who drink beer with their meals because it gives a little stimulant to their tired bodies, and don't understand that it is only like applying a whip to a weary norse, instead of giving him oats. If they only knew, they would find in this very simple draught quite as much strength as in a barrel of beer.—[New York Tribune.

Appropriate Gits.

Among the gifts permissible for a man to offer a young or married woman of his acquaintance, to whom perhaps he is idebted for hospitalities accepted, is that scarcely anything within the range of his giving will better please 'milady.' She sighs first and always tor a lion's skin, the most superb of range, and the barbaric taste of the modern belle likes the great head of the king of beasts arranged in size and effect as nearly like life as possible. This rug she chooses for her morning room, and for her East India parlor the sleek, glossy skin of the tiger, with its graceful cat-like head and greenish eye, delights her.

For her dainty bedroom with its frescoes of the sun god's chariot rolling in on the pink morning clouds attended by the daughters of the dawn, its Watteau hangings and its carpet of wild roses, a pair of virgin white rugs, made from the long, spotless and fluffy fleece of the Iceland sheep, will bring joy to her heart. One she will put before the brass bedstead for the first touch of the foot in the morning, and the other she will fling down before the dressing table, where daily the altar incense of the toilet is burned. The chatelaine of to-day revels in rugs—she cannot have too many of them.

A graceful and acceptable gift which a young mistress of a home especially values is that of a growing palm. In a handsome jar it reaches the dignity of a wedding gift. Select one which the florist can assure you has grown slowly in a cool place. Palms forced quickly in a hothouse will not stand the wear and tear of dwelling-house life, with its gas, dust, furnace heat and so on. Hardy specimens, well cared for, put out through the summer, and given an occasional airing in the conservatory, your own or a florist's, in the course of the winter will thrive for years as a house plant. It is experimenting with forced specimens that has discouraged householders with them, and many persons now, for their conservatories and summer residences, rent palms by the season, the florist keeping a supply of hardy plants continually with his customer. If any show signs of dying or lose the luster which is their great charm, they are at once removed and replaced with a perfect plant.

There is little risk, however, in owning one outright if care is used in its selection and the florist tells the truth about it.

one outright if care is used in its sele and the florist tells the truth about it.

That "age is honorable" is rather an exploded theory of late, on account of the off repeated sneers concerning "old women," so we cannot blame them for wishing to appear as young as is compatible with their appearance and surroundings. One secret success in "growing old gracefully" is to get in advance of father Time, and commence at 45 to dress as you will have to ten years hence. Then the change will be so gradual that with care you may be dressing in much the same manner at 60, and the flight of years remain unnoticed by our dear friends so ready to detect every wrinkle on the face or in the basque.

COLORS SUITABLE FOR MATURE WOMEN.

When 50 and over, do not think you can only wear black, gray and purple, colors that were once the only selection allowed an elderly woman. The fashionable shades of heliotrope, dark green, warm reds, navy and medium blues, seal and reddish brown and white are all worp and made up in the reigning fashion. All of these colors may be trimmed with black velvet, cord or jet passementerie, steel, jet and steel mixed, or black cord mingled with a dash of gilt. A deeper shade of the same color is also appropriate as a garniture, though in making over half worp gowns, black silk, velvet or Henrietts will be found convenient materials to eke the suit out with, and when the shade is hard to match you will be safe in selecting black for the new material or trimming. A woman of 60, having silvery hair and dark eyes, looks doubly attractive in a gown of dark-red cashmere trimmed with black velvet ribbon, and with folds of cream scrim in the neck and sleeves. Her black silk may have a vest of black and colored brocade, edged with a fine jet gimp, or the moderately full sleeve may be of velvet, with collar, cuffs and girdle of steel and jet passementeric.

STYLES TO AVOID AND THOSE TO SELECT. Avoid the jaunty styles, like a jacket front, and have the skirts slightly draped in front, at the top, as advancing years gives a matronly form that appears better with a drapery near the top than in a Miss Frances Power Cobbe, author of many books and one of the ablest of literary women, is at the age of 70 hard at work both as a writer and a reformer. She is full of health and vigor, which she attributes to her simple diet and regular habits, and gives much time to the Antivivisection Society in London, of which she is president.

Miss Mary E. Wilkins, in the judgment of many excellent critics, is accorded the first rank among the short-story writers of the day. THOUGHTS THAT BREATHE.

It would be a poor result of all our anguish and wreating, if we won nothing but our old selves at the end of it—if we could return to the same blind loves, the same self-confident blame, the same light thoughts of human suffering, the same frivolous gossip over blighted lives, the same feeble sonse of that anknown toward which we have sent forth irrepressible cries in our loneliness.—[George Kliot.]

Lord Bason, referring to the same of the symbol and proof of highest excelligence and honesty of our house or the symbol and proof of highest excelling the same suffering the sam

Lord Bacon, referring to the Bible, remarks:

"Truth from any other source is like water from a cistern; but truth drawn out of the Bible is like drinking water from the fountain mediately where it springeth."

Devout and earnest students of the Bible know full well what this language means. There is nothing that so completely fits the human heart and meets its wants, as the Word of God itself.

Even the best of us are sometimes apt to forget how the Master reproved his disciples, over nineteen centuries ago, for trying to stop a man from casting out devils in his name, because he did not follow Jesus with them. How thrilling were his words: "Forbid him not; for he that is not against us is for us." Ah, me, how slowly we come to what must finally be reached, that it is not the opinions we hold, but the Christ-like life we lead is the one thing needful.

Do you need strength for endurance, for patience, to repress the sense of murmuring, and keep the light of trust in triumphant glow? Lay hold of his strength who, in supreme love, wore the thorn-regalia, who was led as a lamb to the slaughter, yet he opened not his mouth; who knelt in Gethsemane's clive-shade and prayed, "Thy will be done." Whether you need power to do or to beat, take hold of the strength of Christ, the Rock of his people's hearts, the Strong Tower where we may continually resort, the Deliverer, the Captain of salvation, the Friend that loveth at all times.

In ancient Greece, a law of Pittacus enacted that "he who commits a crime when i drunk shall receive a double punishment": one for the crime itself and the other for the inebriety which prompted him to commit it.

A'lettor to the London Spectator dated foct. 13 tells how Father Mathew's anniversary was celebrated by some of his compatriots. It reads as follows:

"To-day is the day appointed to commemorate the Irish Apostle of Temperance. Accordingly, in this village, my servant this morning found every shop in the village closed, except those in which drink is sold!"

General von Moltke is credited with General von Moltke is credited with these sentiments: "I myself abstain altogether from alcohol. I do not consider it necessary or helpful, except, perhaps, after fatiguing work, when the principal thing is to revive one's strength at once. Certainly one of the greatest enemies of Germany is the misuse of alcohol. A healthy man needs no such stimulant, and to give it to children, which is often done, is absolutely wicked."

Pasture Plus Grain Ration. During 1200 the authorities at Cornell their investigation as carried on in 1887 regarding the effect of a grain ration for cows zo pasture. Bulletin No. 22 gives full particulars, but the tables, etc., are rather elaborate and lengthy for our space. Some yain in flesh was noted, especially in the case of the thinner cows, but as far as milking was concerned, here is the official con-

Pasture.

In one trial with cows soiled on fresh grass we have received in increased milk and butter production and insaving of grass cousumed, barely enough to pay for the cost of the grain ration added.

In neither case has any allowance been made for increased value of manure when train is fed, which would be considerable to amount but exceedingly difficult to estimate with exactness.

We are still of opinion that several repetitions of this experiment will be needed before the matter can be considered conclusively settled. I. P. Roberts, Henry H. Wing.

Question Box—Rennet Extract.

To the Editor of the Western Advertiser:
Would you kindly give me the address of Hoard's Dairyman, and also the address of a few more good dairy papers? Also, what kind of rennet do cheese factory men use? That is, isit just the soakings from the calf's stomach, or is there some sort of prepared extract that can be bought? If so, where can it be procured, and at what rate per pound of cheese does it come?

DAVID MILLER, Eady, Ont.

ANS.—Hoard's Dairyman. Fort Akin-

Ans.—Hoard's Dairyman, Fort Atkinton, Wis., U. S.; American Dairyman, New York. We might also mention the Dairy World, published at Chicago, Ill., and the Michigan Dairyman, published at Grand Rapids, Mich. Hoard's paper is excellent. As a rule, Ontario cheesemakers use a preabout $1 60 per wine gallon, in bottles, parger lots at lower rates. Several sorts are used, such as Hansen's, Arnold's and (Van Hassett's. A few makers procure ennets and make their own extract in winter, when they have leisure, as it is troublesome. Extracts vary in strength, and more is required at some seasons than others, for example, late in the fall, but the average will probably run about two and a half ounces per 1,000 pounds of milk. It can be procured from J. S. Pearce & Co., London; C. H. Slawson & Co., Ingersoll, or other dealers in dairy

It is said that eggs may with safety be sent across the Atlantic during the whole eason without cold storage, but the result of a regular experience is yet to be seen. The eggs are carefully stowed in the cool portion of the vessels below the water line, or between decks, where an equable temperature of about 20 degrees is maintained, and they arrive on the other side in good condition. Some of the steamers are provided with ventilators, which maintain a constant volume of fresh cool air. The eggs are packed either in compartment boxes, or in cases with hulls, sawdust, or fine chopped straw, and if then carefully handled, the percentage of breakage is see all. The cases contain from 30 to 120 dozens each and are stowed away compactly and freights charged upon the ton measurement of 40 cubic feet of space. One company instances a carriage in which the breakage was found to be only 6 eggs in 180 dozens. A movement is now on foot to have all egg cases made uniform. These cases are not returned by the carriers and have to be disposed of in Great Britain. The freights at present rule at 15 shillings per ton measurement, or counting 13 cases to the ton and 30 dozens to the case, less than 1 cent per dozen. This is probably the lowest rate that can be quoted. In making selections for shipment size and quality must particularly be attended to.

Chicago Stock Show. The eggs are carefully stowed in the cool portion of the vessels below the water line,

The late national horse show at Chicago did not draw well and the fat stock show fell short of its predecessors of recent years fell short of its predecessors of recent years in number of entries, quality of exhibits and attendance. Referring to the cattle the Breeders' Gazette says: "There was not a solitary representative of the Aberdeen-Angus breed, either pedigreed or grade, in the arena—an unprecedented circumstance since the breed made its appearance in American show-yards—and one lone but excellent grade Galloway stood as the color-bearer of the shaggy-coated polls. Devons were three in number—quite a fall from the fine exhibit which "the rubies" have made the past two years. Grades and crosses, speaking plainly, were below the standard set in years past, and pure-bred Shorthorns were only an average lot on the whole, although furnishing the grand sweepstakes champion of the show. It remained for the "white-faces" to redeem the exhibit from mediccrity, for never has there been seen on this continent so grand a gathering of thick-fleshed Hereford bullocks. " "Holstein-Friesians.—The claims of this breed as a beef producer have been presented at this show for a number of years past, but never so strongly as on this occasion. While the numbers of the exhibits were not large it included the best representative of the breed from a beef standpoint yet seen, unless the wonderfully ripe and meary calf Ohio Champion be excepted. The sheep and swine departments were strong and praiseworthy.

Fattening Farm Cows.
Please make ration for farrow cows which Please make ration for farrow cows which is wish to milk until spring, and at the same time to have them fit for the butcher—a milk and flesh ration combined. The reaterial for same is fine meadow hay, contineal, wheat bran and oilmeal if required. At the same time I have quite a quantity of Golden Ball turnips which I should like to feed.—F. B., Highland. [If the weight of the cows, and he'r much milk, they yield, at how long they have been in milk, and age had been stated, these details would assist in prescribing the best ration for the case. Presuming that hay is the cheapest article of food with B he may make the following combination: Fiften pounds curmeal, 4 pounds wheat bran, 3 pounds linseed meal, 10 pounds grated or pulped or crashed turnips. This hay should be cut half an inch long, placed in the mixing vat, the pulped turnips spread trains over it, and then wet wish three gallons of water; let it all be forked over so as to get the moisture and turnips distributed evenly. Now take the comment, bran and linseed meal, after being mixed together dry, spread this evenly over the moistened cut hay and turnips and mix the whole mass evenly together. This can be given in three feeds, smallest at noon, and this combination is well calculated to keep up a moderate yield of milk as with farrow cows, and also to cause the cows constantly to improve in condition, so that by spring they should be well fitted for the butcher, having fully paid for their own fattening. The turnips, when evenly mixed into the mass in this way, would not be likely unfavorably to affect the flavor of milk. It will not be necessary to mix this food oftener than once a day. It might be mixed before and used in the evening feed, the balance fed in the morning and at noon. I twill not ferment, to do any harm. This is simply a combination of food, and the amount of hay, grain and turnips will be calculated by the number of cows.—E. W. S. in Country Gentleman.]

Some Good Butter Cows.

Gentleman.]

Some Good Butter Cows.

Hoard's Dairyman says: "Mr. C. H. Rice, Jefferson county, Mo., asks if there is a kerd of Guernseys or Holstein-Friesians in the country that has produced an average of 470 pounds of butter each per annum. He says such statements are being published. We do not call to mind any such herd. The nearestot that yield we do call to mind was that of a Minnesota herd of selected Jerseys, that made 467 pounds each. John Boyd's herd of Jerseys made some over 400 pounds each per year. Ezra Michener, of Pennsylvania, had a herd of Guernseys, some of them young, that averaged 327 pound.

"Smiths, Powell & Lamb could pick out 70 or 30 head from their Holsteins that would beat the 470-pound record, considerably; but we do not suppose their whole great herd—old and young—would average that. There are scores and scores of herds, however, that are making over 300 pounds per cow, both of Holsteins and Jerseys, and there will be Guernsey herds that will do it, as their numbers increase, and they are used more as dairy cows, than breeders."

The Newer Strawberries.

The Ohio Experiment Station gives the character of some off the most noted of the newer strawberries as derived from tests, among which are in substance the following: Bubach has healthy, dark green foliage, the berries large, rather soft, of moderate quality, larger than Crescent and Haverland, but not so productive, is classed as a "show berry." Haverland ranks high among standard sorts, has given general satisfaction during its three years before the public, is unsurpassed for near market. Warfield ranks highest as a shipper, vigorous and productive, medium in size and quality, is not equal to others for near market. The above are all "pistillate." Miner, Cumberland, Jessic and Sharpless are named for fertilizers.

More Mutton Wanted.

More Mutton Wanted.

More Mutton Wanted.

Judging from the following from the Breeders' Gazette the outlook for sheep husbandry ought to be good: "With all the mutton sheep imported from England to grade up American flocks, one cannot yet buy a really choice chop in any of the ordinary markets of the country. Judging from the fact that only enough "top" mutton comes forward to supply the swell clubs and restaurants of our cities, it would seem that we are a long way from overdoing the importation of "Downs." Goods progress is being made, however, in the line of improvement of carcass, and before many years fine loins and "legs" of this nutritious and easily-digested food should be brought within the reach of all consumers."

Care of App e Trees.

At a horticultural meeting in Grundy county, Mo., Judge Miller said he excluded the borer from his apple trees by wrapping the body of the tree with a double thickness of newspapers up to the limbs and throwing a mound of earth around the base of the tree. Tarred paper injured the trees. Mr. Patterson said: "Cultivate the ground between the trees and you will get a crop that paysy." In his county (Adair) apple trees would not live over sixteen years. At the east they will live 50 or more under proper culture.

Under a system which includes nutritious feeding, the cleansing of the troughs, the use of pure water, thorough grooming twice a day, use of the same driver and feeder, single spells of hard work and continuous work after it, horses are found to last profitably through many years of exacting labor.

"Knap" McCarthy, who has been with the runners for a year, and who raced a good many of his horses over the straight track at Monmouth Park, says that it would be no trick at all for a 2:13 trotter to beat the record of Maud S., provided he were given a straight track on which to perform. In other words, he thinks the difference between a straight track and an oval track is fully five seconds.

The American trotter is in demand everywhere, says an Eastern exchange, but in no country is he so much sought after as in the one where he was created. Although America is the home of the fast trotter, and nowhere else does he abound in such great numbers, still the desire to own a "good one" keeps the demand commensurate with the supply. This all-prevailing penchant for fast trotters keeps the business from being overdone.

The committee that was appointed some time ago to secure funds for the erection of a monument to John Murphy, the well-known driver whose death occurred last year, has reported that a monument has been erected at a cost of $1,000, and that the balance of the fund, $1,599, is to the credit of Murphy's widow and daughter. Murphy was a great favorite with New Yorkers, and they responded liberally to the call made on them after his death.

With a very free horse it is desirable to cautiously accustom him to the sound and feel of the whip lightly drawn across him so as not to hurt him at all. This will prevent him from rushing whenever you take the whip in hand, and make it possible to touch up a slug by his side. A slow, easy-going horse, on the other hand, should never feel the whip except to hurt him. Ladies and tendet-hearted drivers often do great mischief to such horses by constantly flicking at them until the horse carcs no more for the whip than he does for his tail. With such horses a pretty heavy whip should be used, and used not often, but so that they will feel it and know what it means. A horse that will not move and move quickly to the whip is neither pleasant nor safe.

There are several distinct and widely different breeds of Persian horses, but the most famous is what is called the Turcoman, kept chiefly in the level districts of the country. These horses are seventeen hands high or more. They are very hardly, enduring and great travelers. One of these, bred and possessed by a Turcoman, in a raid of its master into Persia, made 150 miles within 24 successive hours. During this time the horse drank only once, and then merely a few mouthfuls, while he attent of ood whatever. His pace throughout was an easy swinging sallop that gave no no tood whatever. His pace throughout was an easy swinging gallop that gave no discomfort to his rider. From 100 to 120 miles per day is a very common performance with tinese thoroughbred horses, and occasions no remark. It is owing to the great excellence of their horses that the Turcomans have been enabled so long to preserve themselves from being overrun and conquered by their powerful neighbors.

⇒A MAN'S LIFE SAVED€

I WOULD not be doing justice to the afflicted if I withheld a statement of my experience with Jaundice, and how I was completely cured by using Morthrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. No one can tell what I suffered for nine weeks, one-third of which I was conflued to by bed, with the best medical skill I could obtain in the city trying to remove my affliction, but without even giving me temporary relief. My body was so sore that it was painful for me to walk. I could not bear my clothes tight around me, my bowels only operated when taking purgative medicines, my appetite was gone, nothing would remain on my stomach, and my eyes and body were as yellow as a guinea. When I ventured on the street I was stared at or turned from with a repulsive fealing by the passer-by. The doctors said there was no cure for me. I made up my mind to die, an LIFR RID DOTALL TREATM. One day a friend called to see me and advised me to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, I thought if the doctors could not cure me, what is the use of trying the Discovery, but after deliberating for a time I concluded to give it as trial, so I procured a bottle and commenced taking it three times a day.
