THE WHITE HOUSE WEDDING

President's Daughter Married to Congressman Longworth

East Room Filled With the Elite of the United States and the Envoys of Foreign Powers

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—With all the pomp and ceremony of an official government function, and surrounded by the most representative members of society in the United States, Alice Lee Roosevelt, eldest daughter of the President, shortly after noon Saturday became the bride of Nicholas Longworth, Congressional Representative Ohio, in the famous East room in the

In low, yet resonant tones, Bishop Satterlee began the beautiful Episcopal marriage service. At the conclusion of the responses from the bride and bridegroom, the venerable bishop inquired in a tone that filled the great room:

"Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

"Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

The President ascended the platform and taking his daughter's right hand, placed it in that of the bridegroom. Thus he gave the bride away to the man of her choice, and by the ring which an instant later he placed on the fourth finger of her left hand, she became Mrs. Nicholas Longworth.

At the conclusion of the wedding ceremony the assembled guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Longworth on the platform and beneath the floral hower where their hands and hearts were foined forever. They were showered with congratulations.

After partaking of a formal wedding breakfast in company with sixty intimate friends and relatives the bride and bridegroom departed on their honeymoon, amid the cheers of waiting throngs.

STRONG SPEECH FROM MR. BECK

Big Liberal - Conservative Convention was one of the Most Successful in History of Kent

Hall was Packed to the Doors and Interest Never Lagged-Messrs Clements and Bowyer Heartily Received

The Conservative convention closed on Saturday with a splendid speech from Hon. Adam Beck, M. L. A. To say that the meeting was a successful one is put ing it mildly. The work of organization was placed well under way and the speeches delivered were instructive and full of interest. After the election of officers Dr. Thornton called upon P. A. Bowyer, M. L. A., of East Kent, who was as enthusiastically received as if he were addressing one of his own meetings. The people of West Kent know Mr. Powyer and they all admire the record he is making in the Legislature.

He was pleased that Providence had smiled on the Conservatives of West Kent and had given them a fine day. He rejoiced in the fact that the delegates would go away united, all working harmoniously in the one cause. He then dwelt with a few of the issues of the day in the manner of a man who had his own idea of how matters should be dealt with, and possessing the courage of his and possessing the courage of his convictions.

Dr. Thornton then pointed out that Dr. Thornton then pointed out that at the Liberal convention, held the week before, the most of the time was was taken up in telling what Mr. Clements had done. There would be nothing left for a Liberal to do if he were not stopped. Mr. McColg accepted the nomination prepared to stand or fall by the Liberal Government. Mr. Clements asks for more latitude. He does not want his hands tied. He works in the interests of his constituency.

Mr. Clements was then called up-

Mr. Clements was then called up-on and, judging from the applause he received, all are satisfied with his re-cord. He is gaining in popularity wery day.

Mr. Clements pointed out that the farmer has not the protection he should have. He has acted in the interests of West Kent since his electerests of West Kent since his election and everything he could do was done willingly for Liberal as well as Conservative in advocating a policy which will assist the farmer. "Hon. Mr. Hyman, when he was here, said that I took the credit for placing a duty on the American hogs," said the speaker. "I have not that power, but with the stalwart tarmers of Guelph and other places, I fought for this measure on the floor of the house. I went to Ottawa especially to do this. Mr. McCoig had the same opportunity, but he wa especially to do this. Mr. McCoig had the same opportunity, but he was not there. Mr. McCoig also said that I voted on the bill to increase my salary. I was on my farm in Tilbury when that bill was brought down in the house and passed. The session closed on Saturday and when half of the members of the house had gone home the Premier brought in his indemnity bill. I have, however, nothing personally I have, however, nothing personally against Mr. McCoig."

Hon .Mr. Beek was then introduced to the audience and he received most enthusiastic reception.

He commenced by referring in glowing terms to the speech just concluded by the popular member from West Kent, Mr. Clements. He said it was earnest, eloquent and to the point.

"Mr. Bowyer, too," said the speaker, "is a man of thought, a person of energy and intellect and a man of independence. East Kent did well to elect him and will work in her own interests if she does so again."

interests if she does so again."

Mr. Beck then went on to point out what the government has done since it came into power.

"Our opponents say we have been using the axe," said he. "Every man who has withdrawn from office has done so in a peaceable and quiet way. Whom we cannot trust we have removed and we have tried to be reasonable and just.

WILL HOLD BUSY SESSION

Council Meeting This Evening Will be an Important One

Bridge Matter will Probably be Enlarged-Other Questions Which will come up for Consideration

To-night's regular meeting of the ity Council has every indication of eing a heavy and an important one, The consideration of matters pertaining to the proposed Aberdeen bridge by-law will, of course, be the prime matter of business. It is not robable, however, that any definite action will be taken on this matter at to-night's meeting. To judge by the remarks which were made by the aldermen this morning, the city fathers are yet feeling their way on this matter. The chairman of the Railway committee, Ald. W. H. Bensen, has been called away to Tillsonburg, where his brother-in-law pass-ed away yesterday, and will not be present at this evening's session. His reports will be presented by some of the other members of the Railway committee. Citizens of Head street talk of preenting a petition to the Council tonight, complaining against the Pere Marquette's proposal to pace the space between their tracks with clanking on that street. Potter, chairman of the Property committee, will present a report recommending certain action with regard to the defective verandah erected on the eastern side of the new market. THE CONVENTION.

The most conspicuous feature of Liberal-Conservative convention, held in this city on Saturday was the purely democratic spirit which prevailed throughout, in all matters under discussion. There was nothing "fixed." Delegates spoke out freely and conscientiously and the result was that a great deal of good was accomplished. All went away feeling inspired and encouraged, determined to do their share, and to interest others. Dr. Thornton, the re-elected president, struck the right chord when he said that the Liberal-Conservatives of West Kent are statesmen, not politicians.

The work of organization was com pleted as far as it was possible to go, and it now remains for the members of the different districts to get together and select their officers and workers. This cannot be done too quickly, as was impressed upon the minds of the delegates by Mr. Clements. When this is done the Conservative party will have the strongest organization they have ever had in this riding.

The proceedings of the day passed off with the ucmost harmony. It is impossible to call together a convention of men who all think alikeit is also undesirable, for if that were possible, there would be no need of the convention. It is through the interchange of ideas and opinions that men are benefited, and thir minds are broadened. While the delegates participated openly in all discussions, there was a prevailing feeling that the majority should rule, and everything that was done was made unanimous. There was no dissenting faction or bitter feeling. The meeting was composed of honest, public-spirited citizens, all ready to conform with any action which would result in the greatest good to their fellowmen, and when the meeting adjourned the Liberal-Conservative party was a unit on the work accomplished.

Through his speech Mr. Clements demonstrated the fact that he has a keen insight into the needs of the farmers of this and other ridings. What he has done since his election plainly shows that he is making his influence felt at Ottawa. His policy making, untrammele by political ties, and interests both Liberals and Conservatives alike.

The Hon, Mr. Beck's announcement relative to the new educational enactments was noted with interest. His reference to Chatham's claims for one of the proposed new Normal schools will be gladly received by those citizens who have worked so earnestly in their efforts to secure the establishment of a Normal school in this city. His assurance that he will do everything in his power to assist Chatham with the Government bespeaks success in a very wide measure for the gentlemen who have already taken this matter up with the other Provincial representatives at Toronto.

Mr. Beck created a very favorable impression and delivered a strong, eloquent and manly address. He shows a fair sample of the calibre of the men who compose the Government of this Province-a busines man prepared to conduct the business of the country in an honest, business-like manner.

The Liberal Conservative party in Kent has acquired a renewed impetus from the proceedings of Satarday and will undoubtedly give an excellent account of itself to its Provincial and Dominion leaders, when the proper time comes,

PHIL. H. BOWYER, M. L. A.

East Kent has got the right kind at the opening of the Legislature. Mr. Bowyer seconded the address from the Throne, and in doing so made a stirring speech. It is noticed with satisfaction by the electors of his riding that he makes the same kind of a speech in Parliament as he does when he is after election vetes. The tribute paid him by Hon. Adam Beck at the convention on Saturday was highly deserved and shows how a man who has the courage of his convictions is esteemed by the Government at Toronto. speaking of Mr. Bowyer in connection with the openings, says: "Mr. P. H. Bowyer, another wit's peddlers, a country journalist, econded the motion. Bowyer is Conservative and is known to be a gentle kicker against the pricks He rather likes to be regarded as a radical in disguise. His saucy comments on the foibles of the political party which he supports are much favored by Grit newspapers, who can thus show Premier Whitney what his own friends think of him. Bowyer is as mild a mannered man as ver stabbed a naughty Administration with a paragraph. He took it out of the Ross Government, and advanced his favorite theory that the ong, weary years in Opposition had made the Conservatives the really Liberal and progressive party in Ontario. He stated his opinion that the party should be kept up to the high standard it had set, should steer clear of entangling alliances with greedy, grabbing corporations, and maintain itself generally in a condition of immaculate purity. Bowye said he would do what he could to uphold these ideals, and rather intimated that if things ever began to go to the bad he would always be there ready to ginger them up, the little bit of leaven which leaveneth the whole lump. Bowyer is all right. He is the last man we would suspect of shackling himself to expediency as long as there is a principle to rally to."

Japan's Pipe Bell. There is a bell in Tokyo, Japan, which is made from tobacco pipes

So says the legend inscribed around the outside in four languages, English, French, German and Japanese. The English version runs as follows: "This bell, cast in the city of Tokyo, Japan, Dec. 10, 1892, by Tsuda Sen, is made from the metal of tobacco pipes of more than a thousand men, once slaves, now free men."

The story is that in 1802 a woman missionary from America waged war on tobacco smoking and persuaded over a thousand men to forswear the habit. They therefore had no further use for their metal pipes, which were meited down and cast in the form of a bell. The metal resembles bronze, and the bell has a pleasant musical

When Baron Bramwell was once sitting on the crown side on the south Wales circuit counsel for the defense in a certain case asked leave to address the jury in Welsh. The case being a simple one, permission was given without demur. He said but very few words. The baron also did not think much comment was necessary, but was somewhat startled by a prompt verdict of acquittal.

"What was it," he afterward inquired, "that Mr. L. said to the jury?"
"Oh, he just said: "This case, gentlemen, lies in a nutshell. You see yourselves exactly how it stands. The judge is an Englishman, the prosecuting counsel is an Englishman, the com-plainant is an Englishman, but you are Welsh, and I am Welsh, and the pris oner is Welsh. Need I say more? leave it all to you."

It is scarcely necessary to mention, says the writer of "Some Legal Reminiscences," that Baron Bramwell did not allow the experiment to be repeat-ed of addressing the jury in a language which he did not understand.

MENTAL REACTION.

Mind's Quickness of Operation

Let a dozen or twenty persons take hold of hands in a ring. Each is to press the hand of his right hand neigh-bor as soon as he receives a pressure from the left. One person starts the pressure going and at the same instant observes the position of the second hand of a watch. The pressure passes all around the circle, and when it ar rives at the originator he notes how many seconds were required for the given number of persons in succes to receive an impression and make up their minds to act in response. The total time is then divided by the number of persons. This is a crude illustration of the reaction time which we

As the mental portion of the reaction time becomes more complicated the time becomes longer For example the processes of mental discrimination and choice require times of their own The way we get these "higher" mental processes can be illustrated in a sim ple way. A person placed in a quiet room is to tap a telegraph key every time he sees a red light, which can be produced at the will of the experimenter in the recording room. The in-terval of time between the actual appearance of the light and the moment the key is tapped is accurately measured. For awhile nothing but the red light is used, this to obtain the simple reaction time. Then red and yellow lights are turned on in irregular succession. The person has new to dis-criminate between two colors and to choose between action and nonaction. The increase of time required over the simple reaction time gives the discrimination time for two colors. In another set of experiments three colors are used, then four colors. As the discrimination and choice become more complicated more time is required. The importance of rapid and accurate reaction and discrimination is evident. Astronomers have difficulty in recording the moment at which a star passes a line in the telescope. The sports-man must pull the trigger at just the proper moment. The football player, the fencer and the boxer are trained in rapidity of discrimination and reac-tion. It is very evident that a player or a pugilist who takes a long time for discrimination, choice and volition will give a decided advantage to quick opponent.-Forum.

Russia Revising Her Plans For the Removal of Troops From Manchuria -London Is Unconcerned.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 17.—In view of recent events in China, the Council for National Defence which has been preparing to reduce the force in the Far Bast to a minimum takes a more seri-ous view of the situation, and is revis-ing its plans for the evacuation of the armies in Manchuria in order to retain there a force "sufficient to maintain Russia's special interests on a plane with other powers."

According to The Slovo, the Government is in possession of information to the effect that China is making war preparations in which she is supported almost openly by Japan, and that an attack on Russia's Ussuri possessions is feared. Fears, The Slovo says, also are entertained over the Chinese designs to overthrow the Russian influence in Chinese Turkestan, that has grown up in consequence of the special trade and military arrangements insti-tuted before the breaking out of the Russo-Japanese war.

London Unconcerned. London, Feb. 17.—The London news-papers do not pay much attention to the Chinese question. The Morning Post thinks the advice and influence of Japan upon China will suffice to prevent any serious outbreak, and that, in any case, Japan's army in Manchuria could soon be sent to re-store order should real trouble arise.

FUR FASHIONS.

Coats and Neck Pieces - Long Muffe

For Short Sleeves.
Furs are to be used to an unprecedented effect. In fact, some of the cloaks and mantles are so magnificent and sumptuous that their possession is evidence of a very long purse indeed. But there is consolation that the .less expensive furs look almost as rich, and if we cannot have Russian sables and ermine let us be content with mink and marten, sealskin and beaver, all of which are being made up into fascinating coatees or handsome cloaks.

Fur necklets are worn as soon as the nip of cold comes in. These, whether

The whole of Copenhagen was given up to mourning. Business and work were at a standstill, while emblems of sorrow were displayed everywhere. The enormous black garbed crowds of town people, swelled by thousands of arrivals from the country districts, thronged the square in front of the Christianborg Church.

Shortly before noon the Kings of Denmark Greece and Norway, Queen

Denmark, Greece and Norway, Queen Alexandra of England, the Dowager Empress of Russia, and other royal relatives of the deceased, and the re-presentatives of the foreign sovereigns reached the Christianborg Church, where a brief service was held at the conclusion of which the coffin, covered with the Danish standard, was borne high by naval and military officers to the waiting hearse.

Then headed by infantry and cavalry a simple cortege was formed and slowly proceeded through the three and a half miles of streets between the church and the railroad station. Im mediately behind the hearse was led King Christian's favorite riding horse Jussuf, which will be shot to-night, according to the ancient Danish cus-

The bells of all the churches were colled, and minute guns were fired from the arsenal throughout the pro-gress of the coriege and until the cof-fin was placed on the funeral train. Many affecting scenes were witness ed in the streets. The profound silence was broken only by the sobs of the wo-men and the momentary excitement caused by fainting and minor accidents due to the pressure of the huge crowds At the station the coffin was placed n the funeral car, in which some of the members of the royal family also traveled. On reaching Roskilde the fourth regiment of Dragoons formed the escort of the coffin, which was borne to the cathedral and placed on a catafalque before the high altar to await the last rites on Sunday.

Kier Hardie, M. P., Scores Chamber lain In Stating Labor Policy. London, Feb. 17.—(C. A. P.)—In out lining the policy of the new labor party at a big jubilation meeting last night

Kier Hardie M P its leader, held out

no hope to the tariff reformers.
"There have been suggestion," he said, "of comings and goings between the tariff reformers and labor. If they are basing their anticipations on that foundation their hopes are built on sand and their outlook darker even than their worst enemies predict. The labor party, having refused to be the tail of the Liberals, will not play into the hands of another party headed by a man whose whole past life has been one great living lie and on whose spoken words no reliance can be plac-ed. The labor party will be separate and distinct from every other party."

Mr. Hardie declared the straight labor party combined the socialist and trade union elements, and was be-coming more and more socialist was

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demuleent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities. In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach as in the early stages of mended by standard medical authorities. In all cases where there is a wasting away of fiesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root. Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the fiesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures. Send for and read the little book of extracts, treating of the properties and uses of the several medicinal roots that enter into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and learn why this medicine has such a wide range of application in the cure of diseases. "FRANCIS FOLLY."

How a Young English Engineer Saved Lowell From a Flood-Good Stitch Taken in Time.

The city of Lowell was saved from estruction in 1852 by the foresight of one young man. About 1835 a Lowell antiquarian named Uriah A. Boyden devoted much attention to investigating a tradition of a great flood in the Merrimac in 1785 and found an old man who remembered that his father marked the height of the water by driving a spike in an anyle tree. We man who remembered that his father marked the height of the water by driving a spike in an apple tree. Mr. Boyden persevered in his search until he found the tree in Tyngsboro, several miles above Lowell. Its trunk was hollow, and, entering it from below, he discovered the spike, its head wholly concealed by the bark, at a considerable distance above the ground. It showed that in 1785 the water had risen to a point thirteen and a half feet higher than the top of the dam at the mouth of the canal, which furnished the Lowell water power in 1835.

The engineer in charge of this power was James B. Francis, a young Englishman, who urged the directors of the corporation to provide against the recurrence of such a rise of water. His arguments prevailed, and he was allowed to construct two immenses wing wails of masonry, diverging from the canal lock and inclosing the entire country between the canal and the river. Over the waterway he hung an immensely strong gate, weighing twenty tons, which was suspended by a wrought iron chain. A sledge and a cold chisel were placed in the care of the work was finished in 1850 and for two years was laughed at as "Francis' folly."

He rode to the dam without a sad-dle and hurriedly cut the chain, releas-ing the great gate. His work stood bravely, and the Boston Advertiser five days later said that if it had not been constructed "every vestige of the old guard gates would have been car-ried away and a mightly and uncon-trollable river would have swept through the heart of Lowell, destroy-ing everything in its course." A sering everything in its course." A service of plate was presented to Mr. Francis, and during the remainder of his life he was one of Lowell's most honored citizens. For more than forty years he was agent of the corporation controlling the water power.

PLANTS CANNOT HEAR.

But They Can See, Feel and Taste, It Seems.

Dr. Henry S. Conrad of the botanical department of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, is convinced that in some forms plants have all the senses of animals except hearing. "We have never been able to discover any way in which they are susceptible to sound," he says. "but in seeing, feeling and tasting they are developed."

Dr. Coñad placed in the window a number of plants of the bean family, which are the best local examples of the feefing faculty in the vegetable kingdom. The plants, which were in the full blaze of the sun, had the edges of the leaves turned toward the sun as if to escaps too great ap amount of of the leaves turned through the sun as if to escaps too great an amount of light. Those in the snace turned their leaves back close to the stem. In the morning at the first appearance of light they begin to resume their natural position and by sun-up they are fully extended.

al position and by sun-up they are fully extended.
Dr. Conrad also had some flat beans planted in moss. They put out long roots and one of the roots was pulled from the moss and the end of it cut off. The cells became displaced and the injured root behaved exactly as the limb of an animal would when injured.
Of the sundew, a plant which grows in the swamps about Baltimore, Dr. Conrad says:

Conrad says:
"With a single exception these plants recognize light and the direction from which it comes; they feel the slightest wound; they discriminate in taste; they have a sense of directionknowing whether they are turned in the right direction or not—and they are influenced by electric currents passing near them."

Prehistoric Lake Dwellings.

Extensive remains of prehistoric lake dwellings exist in the bed of the Extensive remains of prehistoric lake dwellings exist in the bed of the river Save, near Dolina, in northern Bosnia, which are in no way inferior to the Setter known remains in Switzerland. Four dwelling houses built on piles—three of which are well preserved, while one has been buried—have been laid bare, as well as the burying place belonging to the settlement, containing a number of fine bronzes and urns. Numerous products of the potter's art, utensils of staghorn, weapons of bronze and iron, ornaments of bronze, silver, gold and amber, seeds and bones compose the chief discoveries made so far. The results of these researches have a special value in that they have determined the architectural construction of the pile dwellings with an accuracy which has seldow been attainable. One of the most valuable discoveries is a boat five meters long, hollowed out of the trunk of an oak. This was found lying nine meters below the platform of a pile dwelling and must have lain there nearly 3,000 years. The pile dwellings of Dolina belong to two different periods and were in existence during the bronze and iron ages. They were probably destroyed by a sudden junndation in the third century before Christ.

Ancestors.

Abraham Hayward, the famous Quarterly reviewer, once thought that he would like to have some an cestors, so he walked straight to a pic ture dealer's. Selecting a portrait of a cavalier in half armor with features not quite unlike his own, Mr. Hayward made a bid for it; but, deeming the price asked too high, he went his way. A few days later Mr. Hayward went to dine with Lord Houghton and was as tonished to find the picture in the dining room. Seeing that it attracted his guest's attention, Lord Houghton said: 'Very good picture that. Came into my hands in a curious way. Portrait of a Milnes of the commonwealth period an ancestor of mine." "Ah, indeed!' said Mr. Hayward. "He was very next being an ancestor of mine."

JUST A LITTLE BIT

Anyone desiring to see how a business session of a business Legislature is conducted by a business Government should keep an eye on Toronto for the next few days.

P. H. Bowyer, M. L. A., of East Kent, had something to do with moving the address to the Throne. He also had a great deal to do with moving that big Conservative convention on Saturday. When he came in the delegates for a moment forgot that anybody else was there.

It was a hoarse bunch that walked out of the Auditorium last Saturday afternoon. Maybe that is the reason Hon. Mr. Beck had for saying that there were a lot of good "horses" in Chatham.

Hon. Adam Beck is evidently a lriver. He certainly drove home a 'ew straight facts during his speech at the convention.

The Liberal-Conservatives of West Kent are statesmen, not politicians, was the way President Dr. A. W. Thornton put it on Saturday.

There was not a word of dissen-ion from the "old time" Conserva-

Probably A. B. McCoig will now have more reasons than one for seeking the "back concessions."

McCoig says Clements was whipped in line in the Dominion House. If this is a sample of his campaign tactics, Archie will never be able to say that about himself. He will be whipped before he has any chance to even run for the Dominion House.

Archie will need the whole of that

In reading over Phil. Bowyer's speech in the Legislature, more than one staunch Liberal has been impressed with the fact that he makes the same kind of a speech in Parliament as he does in the country in the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the later than the speech in the country is the country in the country in the country is the country in the country is the country in the country in the country is the country in the country in the country is the country in the country is the country in the country in the country in the country is the country in the country in the country in the country is the country in the country in the country in the country in the country is the country in the count

OVER THE WIRE

When Jim Lee, the village carpenter and a widower, died, people felt sorry for his daughter Molly and wondered how she would get along. They did more, for a wonder. A number of them so interested themselves that she was made telephone operator at Sandsville with a good weekly salary. She made her home with a neighbor, and things ther's death it was not because of the lack of opportunity. Why she didn't was her own affair. Why she attended strictly to business afterward and had no beaux was also her own affair, but the villagers winked and nodded to at least once a day. When he heard the new voice over the telephone he liked the sound of it. The more he heard of it the better he liked it.

charged with having an eye open for

HE ENTERED THE TELEPHONE OFFICE.
"WELL?" SHE BLURTED OUT. a wife it would not have been strange had he written to a friend at Sandsville to introduce him to that girl with a sweet voice in the telephone office, but he did nothing of the kind. He could have stepped aboard the train any day and gone and seen for himself, but he did not do that. Bachelors have their romances as well as young men and maidens. He built up a romance around the "Hello!" voice, and after a few weeks he would have wanted to knock the man down who destroyed it for him. When there was no business on the Sandsville line to call for his opening the telephone he made excuses to do so. He felt he must hear that voice at least once a day, and when he found his romance growing he smiled to himself.

By and by the messages over the wire were not strictly confined to business, according to regulations. The bacheor opened conversations on general ojects, and as he was paving the price exacted by the schedule of rates the girl could hardly snap him off the line. He never asked her name, but he betrayed an interest that brought the blush to her cheek as she carelessly responded: "Yes." "I see." "I guess so."

"Indeed." Sometimes he left his telephone open and sang. It was always a sentimental song, and the girl at the other end of the wire knew that the words were meant for her. At first, when address-ing her, he had called her after the name of the town. One day he glided away from that and called her Girly. She was going to reprove him, but he was in a hurry, and she put it off. The reproof never reached him, although he was considered an impudent fellow to keep on making use of the term. For a year the bachelor hugged his romance to his soul; then he made up his mind to look for something more material. He put on his Sunday suit-one day and went down to Sandsville. Any one on the street would have told him that Miss Molly Lee was in charge of the telephone office and would probably have added that she was the best looking girl in town, but he asked no questions, not even where the office was. He strolled around until he found it for himself, and he kept saying as be strolled.

he stroiled:

"Jimmy Williams, you are making an idiot of yourself. Of course Girly is an old maid and bomely as a hedge fence, and you will get snapped up in great shape for your cheek. Better go back and keep your illusion."

But he entered the telephone office instead, and the first glance at the woman behind the desk sent his heart down into his boots. Just as he had feared, she was an old maid. She was an old maid who was having trouble with a soft corn that day, and a man who stuttered had just left the office after vainly seeking to send a message, who stuttered had just left the onee after vainly seeking to send a message, and she did not like the way the man from Stapleton looked at her.

"Well?" she blurted out as he stood there looking around in a helpless way.

"Name is Williams of Stapleton," he "Well, what of that?"

"I-I have done considerable telephoning to this office during the past "And have you got any complaints to make? "Then what?"

"I thought- That is, I-I"-"Have you been drinking, sir?" de-manded the old maid in a voice full of carpet tacks and nounded glass "N-n-n-n-o!" stuttered Mr. Williams after a great effort. "Then you are going to have paresis and had best consult a doctor!"

Mr. Williams withdrew and went over and sat down in the shade of the grocery steps. A bobtailed dog came along and tried to make friends with him, but he would not respond. One of the hogs sauntering about the village streets approached and grunted amiably, but was kicked at in response The groceryman came out and, rubbing his hands together, observed that he had just laid in a new stock of crackers and herring, but the bachelor never even thanked him for calling his attention to the fact.

By and by, when the cold chill of disappointment had passed away, he got up and walked to the depot and took the train for home. His romance had been shattered and buried, and he felt small and mean over it. There was only one thing left to wonder over. How on earth could that old maid have disguised her voice as she had when talking with him? He thought over the matter for two or three days and then dismissed it.

During the next two weeks the merchant had considerable telephoning to do, but none of it was in the direction of Sandsville. Not once was that office called up, and there was a saving of at least $3 on tolls. Then there came a day that the office had to be called up, and as the bachelor took down the trumpet he made up his mind that if it was possible to do so he would give that old maid a rap.

"Yes, this is Sandsville," came the answer in a voice that made him jump. It was the clear, sweet voice he had been accustomed to "I want"- he began and then stopped. "I want Jackson's dry goods store after awhile, but just now I want something else.

"What is it?" "Have have you got two voices?" "Why, of course not. What a funny "Are there two of you, then?"

"No; I'm all alone here." "Well, I'll be jiggered!" he exclaimed to himself, but he heard a giggle from the other end of the line, and the same voice he liked to hear said:

"Shall I call up the store now?" "Not yet. Say, I was down at Sands ville the other day." "Yes?"

"I called at the telephone office." "Did you?" "And you wanted to know if I had been drinking" "Oh, Mr. Williams!"

"And when I said no you advised me to consult a doctor for paresis."
"Did she say that? I'm sorry. I was ill for a week and had to get Miss An drews to take my place, and she is pretty short with people." "And it wasn't you in the office that "Of course not." "Then-then"-"Then you want the store?"

"Not by a jugful! I want you, and I shall be down on the afternoon train!"
"But, Mr. Williams"—

But Mr. Williams was hurrying to the depot to catch the train and an hour later was in Sandsville. Three months later he got what he came for, and everybody says it was a good match.

"Rubbing It In." When Mrs. Morse after a lapse of thirty years met her old schoolmate, Mrs. Graham, in the guise of a summer visitor to Aldersfield she made up her mind to one thing—Lydia Graham's measure of worldly presperity had measure of worldly prosperity had been large, but not for one mor would Mary Ann Morse allow her to feel "set up."

It was with the intention of reducing any possible pride that might be lurk-ing behind Lydia Graham's placid countenance that Mrs. Morse held her off at arm's length when the first affectionate greeting had been exchanged.

changed.

"How fat you've grown, Lyddy!"
said Mary Ann Morse, holding her little

Mrs. Graham smiled contentedly, and Mrs. Morse saw that her thrust had done no harm.

"And yet—and yet you're wrinkled in spite of it," said this determined old friend. And then she gave Lydia Graham's flushed cheeks a consoling kiss.

A Ghost Story.

The power of imagination is strongly illustrated in the following ghost story: One of the most famous murder cases in Australia was discovered by the ghost of the murdered man sitting on the rail of a dam (Australian for horse pond) into which his bedy had been thrown. Numberless people saw it, and the crime was duly brought home. Years after a dying man making his and the crime was duly brought home. Years after a dying man making his confession said that he invented the ghost. He witnessed the crime, but was threatened with death if he divulged it, as he wished to, and the only way he saw out of the impasse was to affect to see the ghost where the body would be found. As soon as he started the story, such is the power of nervous would be found. As soon as he started the story, such is the power of nervous ness that numerous other people be-gan to see it until its fame reached such dimensions that a search was made and the body found and the mur-derers brought to instice derers brought to justice.

Gain Strength for Work

In office and factory, shop, store or kitchen girls are at work all over this land, and, alas! far beyond their strength. Young women who work are especially liable to female ills. Too often the girl is the bread winner of the family and she must toil unremittingly, no matter if her back does ache, her limbs and abdomen throb with dull pain and dragging sensations, and dizzy spells make her utterly unfit for work These are the sure signs of female irregularities which kill beauty and youth.

Lydia E.Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

builds health and strength for all women who work and are weary. It creates the vitality that makes work easy. From the thousands of grateful letters written by working girls to Mrs. Pinkham we quote the following:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham: -Overwork and long hours at the office, together Dear Mrs. Prinking:—Overwork and long nours at the omce, together with a neglected cold, brought on a female trouble until finally I was unable to go to work. I tried change of scene and climate, but found that I did not regain my health. I then thought of a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when her health was in the same condition that mine was, and straightway sent out for a bottle. I finished that and took two more before I really began to improve, but after that my recovery was very rapid, and when I had finished the sixth bottle I was well and able to go back to work again. I certainly think your medicine worthy of praise, and am indeed nds of women suffer untold mise ies every day with aching backs that really have no business to ache. A woman's back wasn't made to ache. Under ordinary conditions it ought to be strong and ready to help her bear the burdens of life.

It is hard to do housework with an aching back. Hours of misery at leisure or at work. If women only knew the cause. Backache comes from sick kidneys, and what a lot of trouble sick kidneys cause in the world.

But they can't help it. If mere work is put on them than they can stand it's not to be wondered that they get out of order, Backache is simply their cry for help.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

will help you. They're helping sick, ever-worked kidneys—all over the world—making them strong, healthy and vigorous. Mrs. P. Ryan, Douglas, Ont., writes: "For over five months I was troubled with lame back and was unable to move without help. I tried all kinds of plasters and liniments but they were no use. At last I heard tell of Doan's Kidney Pills and after I had used three-quarters of the box my back was as strong and well as ever."

most charming old towns the world affords, attractive for its present-day beauty, but doubly more so for its chequered and romantic past.

The ship is listing heavily to port Her whistle blows. The paddlewheels drag. Wharf and ship timbers grind; the hawsers strain at their moorings. Let us cross the thronging gangway, and, with some of these peaceful invaders—preferably her of the wind blown hair—let us spend a day in rambling o'er the old, historic town.

Across the river is Fort Niagara, "The ancient fort that once ing wrought Into its rugged walls a history

This old fort is one of the most historic spots in North America. It is almost two centuries and a half old. Its foundations are said to be the oldes existing masonry west of Albany. Here, on this point of land, in 1669 La Salle on this point of land, in 1669, La Salle built the first structure, other than an Indian wigwam, ever erected on this frontier. On this site at a later data, he built ill fated Fort Coute. A stone castle on the site of the present one was built in 1726. Gradually strength. was built in 1726. Gradually strength-ened and enlarged by the French, this primitive stronghold had become at the time of its attack by the British in 1759 a great fortress, as strongly fortified and protected as the science of the day, with such materials as could be gathe ed at so far off a point, could possibly make it. The timbered roof dates back prior to the American revolution. The two stone blackhouses, said to be the best specimens of their kind extant in America, were built in 1770 and 1771 by the British. The hot-shot furnace, first built prior to 1812, was rebuilt 50 years ago. The brick facing on the earthworks dates from 1861.

Fort Niagara was the strategical centre of the middle part of North America for over one hundred years and was the centre of French civilization in the interior of the continent down to Louisiana. Directly opposite Fort Niagara lay the Indian village of Önghiara-variously spelled Onghiaara, Ongiara, Ochnia-gara, Iagara and Niakgahra, With the advent of the United Empire Loyalists advent of the United Empire Loyalists a thriving town sprain up on this spot. It was first known as Butlersburg, then West Niagara, afterwards as Newark, and, finally, as Niagara. Fort George was constructed. Butler's Barracks were built. Governor Simcoe made is his capital. Down by the wharf is the old cradle slip and dockyard, where in 1792 the first Canadian merchantman on these lakes was launched. Many a noble ves seel moved to her baptism from these stocks. Niagara was an important post in the old days before the Welland Canal was constructed. All the trade of the upper lakes passed this way. Over the doors of the warehouse at the south end of the wharf are the names of the steamers which used it — the Great Britain, the Canada, the United Kingdom, the Commodore Barrie, the St. George, the William IV. Here, on New Year's Day, 1840, was launched the old City of Toronto, and here also was built her successor on this route —not unworthy pioneers of the present proud fieet, the commodore of which is even now bawling "All aboard!"

Tiger Hunt In Quebec.

A despatch from Ste. Madeleine, Que, says that for several days a feroclous tiger has been terrorizing the inhabitants of the district. It is supposed that the beast escaped from a circus menagerie that recently visted that part of the Province, and in consequence the whole neighborhood is aroused and alarmed. Beveral persons claim to have seen the tiger, and one young man asserts that while he was out-driving the tiger gave chase from a neighboring thicket, and had not the horse seen it and been frightened he might not have escaped to tell the tale, Whether or not the reperts are true, a band of hunters have undertaken to lay the striped monster lew.

This Linen Sale and Display of Linen

Is Different from other

Sales or Displays.....

The plan upon which this Linen Sale is conducted is different. Linen is something most stores carry simply because Linen is kept by dry goods stores everywhere; it is entirely different here—we make Linen a specialty.

The perfection of this store's Linen is the outcome of thirty-five years' experience in the handling of linen in this country and the old land. This sale of linen is different from sales conducted everywhere and in many other lines of merchandise in at least one particular, and that is the enthusiasm over the sale instead of being spent on the opening day of the sale, increases until the sale is brought to a close. Our Linen is on display in the millinery showroom until the end of this mouth.

the south entrance at ten minutes past four o'clock. They entered a large automobile and, it is understood, were driven to Friendship, the residence of John R. McLean, on the Tenleytown road, about six miles from Washington. The couple were showered with rice by Ethel and the other children of the family as well as by many of the guests.

The President, Mrs. Roosevelt, Capt. and Mrs. Cowles and other members of the family stood on the White House steps and waved the bridal couple out of sight. An old shoe was thrown at the departing pair and it landed on top of the automobile. It was there when the machine vanished from sight. Just as the wedding ceremony was concluded the bride threw herself into

Mrs. Roosevelt's arms and burst into tears. She quickly recovered herself, however, and turned to her father, who kissed her. Then she kissed and hugged her brothers and sisters, shedding ged her brothers and sisters, shedding a tear over each.

Not in many years has there been such a notable gathering in the Presidential home as on this occasion. Representatives of all important nations, in full court regalla, and the chief personages of the United States in governmental and social circles added to the brilliancy of the ceremony.

Outside the Executive Mansion a throng of more than fifty thousand throng of more than fifty thousand seethed and surged in efforts to witness what they might of the scene. Secret service men and policemen had their resources taxed to the limit.

The day was ideal. The skies smiled on the bride and the air was as soft and balmy as in May.

Standing in the identical spot where thirty-two years ago "Nellie" Grant wedded to Algernon C. F. Sartoris Miss Roosevelt was given to Mr. Long-worth by the President. Mrs. Sartoris was one of the guests who saw the remony. Valuable gifts, aggregating in cost Valuable gitts, aggregating in our tundreds of thousands of dollars, were received by the bride. It is estimated that the total intrinsic value of the presents received by the President's daughter reached $500,000.

The capital city was crowded with guests to the ceremony, and with thousands of visitors and sightseers drawn to Washington by the event. Throng-ed streets in the vicinity of the White House made the scene similar to an Inauguration Day.

European Press Comment.

Paris, Feb. 19.—Most of the Paris paper commenting on the wedding of Miss Alice Roosevelt express the opinion that it shows how far Americans have deviated from the true democratic principles which must underlie every republic.

"L'European," an international paper among whose editors are such prominent men at Anatole France, Frederick de Pressense, George Bran-des, and Bjornstjerne Bjornson, says: "Because her father happens to be President of the United States and be-cause he happens to leak test. cause he happens to lack tact, the whole American press has sung her praises since her trip to Asia. If President Roosevelt had had the slightest sense of what was his duty he would have forbidden his daughter to accept any of the presents given her by Asia-tic sovereigns, and which would never have been offered her if her trip had not had the appearance of being official rather than private.

"Now a splendid gobelin has been presented to her in the name of France, and it would be interesting to know who authorized this present and to what account it will be charged."

CHURCH UNION.

Principal Gordon of Queen's University

Preaches In Its Favor. Kingston, Feb. 19.—The principal of Queen's University preached yesterday in Brock street Methodist church, and took for his theme Christian Union A number were interested in his views on this question of the day, and those who were opposed to union regarded Dr. Gordon as either with them or a neutral. But he came out yesterday with a strong pronouncement in its favor. After dealing with the objec-tions to such a union, Principal Gordon said the last point to be considered was the advantages to Christianity in Can-ada and in the world.

These Dr. Gordon mentioned as the stoppage of the present waste in men and money, waste of men caused by overlapping and the consequent setting free of men and money for the evange-lization of our own west and of heath-endom and the production of a higher type of Christian manhood in the united Belleville Ladies Heid Up.

Belleville, Feb. 19.—About 10 o'clock Saturday night Mrs, Findlay Osborne, a widow, and Miss Ella Yates were going home along East Bridge street, when in front of Geo. Walbridge's a man stepped out from the shadow and demanded their money, at the same time, so the ladies say, pointing a revolver at them. They were too frightened to make any outcry, and handed over their purses to the robber, who immediately ran off down William street. Then the ladies went into a house and telephoned the police, who were on the scene in five minutes, but, so far have been able to find any trace of the hold-up man.

Another Thornton & Douglas Store ...

Will open its doors early in April. This time in busy BERLIN, where we have secured a long lease of one of the most centrally situated store premises, which we intend fitting up and equipping in a manner that will be a credit to both that flourishing community and ourselves

The policy of this business has ever been one of steady, solid, substantial expansion. The coming season will be marked by the occupation of our magnificent factory in Hamilton, now rapidly nearing completion, where we will be in a position, with an ideal premises furnished with the most up-to-date appliances and machines procurable, to place before the public an almost ideal line of clothing. The addition of another store to our retailing capacity proportionately increases our buying power, and consequently lowers our prices.

The Thornton & Douglas stores will certainly take a mighty leap forward this season, in point of service and value giving.

Thornton & Douglas,

"We will build new Normal schools.

And just here, I would like to see Chatham get one of these schools. You are certainly entitled to it and

You are certainly entitled to it and I shall do all in my power to assist you in getting one.—Applause.

"I am glad I came to Chathum," said Mr. Beck in conclusion. I saw a good horse since I came here and if the price is not too High I am going to buy it. This is my first visit to Chathum, but I hope to come here again. I will come and stay longer if you feel like it. If you have any good horses I may buy them. If I don't I'll tell you how good they are.

"You are well placed in Kent with Hanna and Bowyer around you—and yes, Clements, too. He is just like a member of our house, the way he comes down and roots for you. It is rivalry we want. Competition is what counts even in the ring. When my wife wins I am always sure it is because she has the best horse and is the best looking woman.—Laugh'ter.

The only nourishment that bread affords is that which the flour contains.

Bread baking is merely putting flour in appetising form.

Flour making is merely putting the nutritious part of wheat in shape for bread

Good milling is the kind that takes from the wheat all that is nutritious, nothing else.

Royal Household Flour

is made from carefully selected Manitoba Hard spring wheat. Every pound is almost a pound of food; clean, white, pure and nutritious. It goes farther, does better baking and is more satisfactory in every way than any
