The Editor's Invitation.

"We will invite the Editor of the Mildmay Gazette to come to Aytton and stand by the dam site and give us his opinion of the dam." We received this invitation from Mr. Oscar Widmeyer, "Editor" of the Aytton Advance, and thank him very heartily for his thoughtfulness, but not being interested by a dam site, we will respectfully have to decline the honor. However, the invitation is noted and appreciated.

Young Men's Club For Mildmay.

There is considerable talk at the present time of organizing a young men's club in our town and the rooms above Mr. J. H. Schnurr's shoe shop have been spoken for to serve as the club room. This, we believe, would be a popular move as well as a good one for the "young fellers", as with no sport on at the present time a clubroom would be appreciated. The club would, no doubt, be run along social and literary lines, and would fill a long felt want in this town.

Want the News.

The Gazette would like to make it plain that it welcomes the news of all sections of the country. If there is a small village, or corners not represented by a correspondent, it will welcome correspondents so inclined to take up the work. Writing to newspapers, not only helps to keep the people in touch one with the other, but it also helps the writer in that he or she is acquiring considerable valuable education and experience. If you have a piece of news jot it down and send it to the Gazette. Give us news. Sign your name on all correspondence, not for publication, but so the editor will know with whom he is talking.

Silver Wedding.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Godfrey was gladdened on Wednesday of last week by the presence of a great many ladies of the Sewing Circle, of which Mrs. Godfrey has been an enthusiastic member for the past six years. The event was held as a surprise, the occasion being the 25th anniversary of their union in the holy bonds of matrimony. Their union has been blessed with eight children, all at home, whose presence helped to enliven the occasion. Mrs. Godfrey was made the recipient of a beautiful silver and cut glass fruit bowl, a small token of the esteem in which she is universally held here. The hostess expressed her thanks in very suitable terms for the kindness manifested by her lady friends in thus remembering her on her happy wedding anniversary. A dainty and very enjoyable luncheon was served and the visitors then were entertained with music and singing. Mrs. Godfrey is an excellent hostess and certainly knows how to make her guests feel at home, so that when the party broke up about midnight, it was generally felt to have been one of the most enjoyable events of its kind ever held here.

BORN.

KUTZ—In Carrick, on October 5th, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kutz, a son.

Pretty Social Gathering.

A progressive euchre and social evening was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Scheffer on Friday evening of last week, in honor of their daughter, Miss Estelle, who was the hostess of the evening. Almost thirty young friends of the hostess were present; the event being held both as a surprise and a Hallow'en-party. The evening was very enjoyably spent in euchre, music and dancing, concluding with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." A society of young ladies, who style themselves "The Ghost Seekers Club," arranged this pretty affair, and the name was peculiarly appropriate for Hallow'en eve, when ghosts and other spooky things are supposed to be at large. The evening was enjoyed immensely by those present and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the hostess at the close.

Lecture on Nov. 12.

The lecture, "Ups and Downs in Winnipeg and the West," to be delivered in the Evangelical Church, Mildmay, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid, on Nov. 12, 8 p. m. by Rev. W. E. Beese, will be of exceptional interest to Mildmayites and surrounding communities. Mr. Beese is a son of Wm. Beese, who for many years resided on the farm adjoining the white frame Evangelical church on the sixth Concession of Carrick. There Mr. Beese was born and reared. He received his early education in the sixth Concession public school. When thirteen years of age he engaged with Mr. George Curle, hardware merchant, Mildmay, for three and one-half years, then he clerked for Mr. W. H. Schneider for one year. Following this he clerked for Mr. Thos. Whitehead, Walkerton, for four years. From there he went to North-western College, Naperville, Ill., where he graduated in a special course in 1897. His appointments in the Canada Conference have been Chesley, Rockingham, Winnipeg, Morrison, Toronto, Hespeler, and now at Sebringville. Twenty three years ago he left Mildmay. He has given his lecture twenty one times in different churches in Ontario since he returned from the West. He was one of "our boys" years ago and a large audience will greet him in the Evangelical Church, Nov. 12.

Hepworth Hotel Stables Burned.

The stables of the Royal Hotel were burned on Monday evening of last week, the fire starting shortly after eight o'clock. Nobody seems to know how it started, though two men were in the barn shortly before it was noticed to be blazing up. The place had changed hands only a couple of weeks ago when Jos. Currie took over the business from J. J. Downs. Horses and rigs were gotten out, but we are told the harness and a good deal of hay, etc. were burned. The hotel and a number of other houses close by were in danger of being burned also, but the recent rains had wet the buildings enough to prevent them from taking fire easily. We are told that Mr. Downs had but $100 insurance on the buildings, and Mr. Currie, having taken the first discovered that dandruff and falling hair were caused by a microbe. And now that Parisian Sage, the remedy that kills the dandruff germ, is sold in every town in Canada, the people of this country have awakened to the fact that dandruff is unnecessary; that falling hair and itching scalp can be quickly stopped, and that the people who use Parisian Sage will never grow bald.

To every reader of the Mildmay Gazette who wishes to eradicate offensive dandruff, stop falling hair and have an immaculately clean scalp, free from itching, John Coates says he will sell Parisian Sage in a large 50 cent bottle with a guarantee to refund the money if not satisfied. It is an ideal, daintily perfumed hair dressing, free from grease and stickiness that will put life and beauty into dull faded hair and cause it to grow lustrous and luxuriant.

What's In A Name Anyway.

The Gazette started publication in Mildmay with something like two hundred of a circulation. The condition of the newspaper service at that time was not extra good, and the sheet being only a small one, it no doubt was not considered worth while subscribing for. Two or three different publishers tried their hand at scraping a living out of the paper, but were forced to quit business and sell out. But all the time the town was getting better, and by the time Mr. J. A. Johnston took charge of the paper, the circulation had increased to almost four hundred. Not satisfied with the general condition of things as they stood then, Mr. Johnston went at the business with such an aggressiveness that at the end of a number of years his subscription list had grown to such an extent that it warranted an enlargement of the sheet. This proved a popular move, and at the expiration of his term as proprietor, a subscription list of 984 had been worked up. The business has been increasing steadily since the advent of the present proprietor, until at the present time we are issuing weekly 1010 papers. Last issue completed our first six months in business, and this substantial increase in our list, is certainly encouraging to us, and will urge us to provide more and better news than that's what's in a name, for until the Gazette had received a good public opinion, the volume of its business was small. We want your good-will and opinion, and will do all in our power to satisfy you and give you double money's worth. We are conducting a campaign for more subscribers, and will appreciate any help you may give us. Will you send us the names of your absent friends who might be interested? We will be pleased to send them a sample copy, and they will be sure to like it. Help along a good cause, and talk for instead of against "your" home paper.

When a newspaper gives you a lot of free advertising in order to boom some concert or entertainment which you are interested in, keep track of the number of lines that are printed week by week, and multiply that number by the regular advertising rates of the paper. Compare the results with the actual money value of any favor that you can get from any other business concern. Then take into consideration the fact that advertising and circulation are the only two things a newspaper has to sell, and in these days of higher prices, how much do you think they ought to give away for nothing?

Panic in Coaches After Train Wreck.

Every coach of train No. 2, the fast Grand Trunk flyer from Detroit and points west, was derailed in a wreck, which occurred yesterday afternoon just west of Bedford station. Three passengers were slightly injured, and others bruised and badly shaken up. A special train carrying physicians was rushed to the scene, and every traveller thoroughly examined. The wreck occurred at 3 o'clock, and the train, due to arrive in the Union Station late in the afternoon, did not steam in until about 10 o'clock. At the time of the derailment the engine was travelling at a speed of twenty miles an hour. When the coaches left the rails the passengers were thrown from their seats in a heap in the aisles. A bad panic followed, and the frightened travellers made a rush for the doors. Fortunately the train crew were quickly on the scene, and prevented any from jumping from the cars. Several women became hysterical, and it was some time before order could be restored.

The derailment was the result of the crowbar of the locomotive falling onto the rails. It spread across the tracks, and the tender, striking it, jumped the steel. The baggage cars and coach also left the rails when they hit the bar. Before the engine could be brought to a standstill the train had travelled some distance, and the roadbed was badly torn up and the rails twisted and broken. Fortunately, the cars remained upright. Two special auxiliary trains were rushed to the scene, but it was over four hours before the roadbed was repaired and the line open for traffic.

Paisley Street Lighting System.

The Clerk of Paisley evidently hasn't a very good opinion of the lighting system in that town, according to a short communication in last issue of the Paisley Advocate which reads:
MR. EDITOR—Is it not high time our electric lighting was investigated? Citizens are getting tired making apologies to strangers for such a system. We should at least be able to tell which was an electric light and which a discarded cigar stump.
CLERK

A Short Story.

"I have had some very narrow escapes in my life," said the reformed hobo, "but none of them can hold a candle to the one that happened down Texas after I had been arrested for walking across a railroad bridge.
"After being released I started out on foot until I came to a water tank. There I was hailed by another hobo, who happened to be a big black fellow. He said he was waiting for the 10 p. m. express, was going to ride the blind baggage and wanted me to go with him for company. It was full sixty miles before the next stop, he said, and I would be a fool to walk.
"It had cleared up a little from a very heavy rain, but there were some very black clouds on the horizon, and it looked like another storm to come later. I consented to wait for the express, and shortly before it arrived at the tank the wind began to blow terribly. The express arrived, and the black fellow made it alright, but my hat flew off in my rush to make the blind baggage, and it was a case of losing my hat or the train, and I chose the latter.
"The storm that broke loose a few minutes later was the worst I ever saw, and it lasted for half an hour. The water tank was no protection, so I got soaked through, and after the storm was over I started to walk the track. I was wet and cold and had to do it to keep from becoming completely numbed. The moon came up a little later in the clear sky.
"After I had walked about five miles in the moonlight I tripped over some thing that gave me the horrors; it was the negro's body. He had undoubtedly been unable to retain his hold and had been blown off the train in that terrible storm. If my hat hadn't blown off as it did when I was about to join the negro on the blind baggage I certainly would have been blown to kingdom come too."

WIT AND HUMOR

Two Irishmen had just met and after introducing themselves, one said to the other, "So your name is Riley, is it? Are ye any relation to Barney Riley of lower town?" "A very distant one," replied the other, "O! was me mother's first child and Barney was her thirteenth."

In spite of all this proverb said I think 'twill be agreed
It is a friend in funds we want,
And not a friend in need.

Young Wife—That pudding I have just made for you is a poem.
Hubby—And I suppose I'm to be the waste-basket.

The Excelsior fiddling band has started on its rehearsals to get ready to play for the hog-killing this fall. With this music being rendered the hogs seem not to care to live any longer.

A certain school teacher was giving her class reading. It came to a part about a woman drowning herself. The teacher asked a boy to read again. He began: "She threw herself into the river. Her husband, horror-stricken, rushed to the bank—" The teacher interrupted: "Now, tell me why the husband rushed to the bank?" Quick and sharp his answer: "Please, ma'am, to get the insurance money."

A salesman had taken a large order for a consignment of hardware, and endeavored to press upon the eanny Scottish manager who had given the order a box of Havana cigars.
"Naw," he replied. "Don't try to bribe a man. I couldn't tak' them—and I am a member of the kirk."
"But you will accept them as a present?"
"I couldn't," said the Scot.
"Well, then," said the traveller, "suppose I sell you the cigars for a nominal sum—say sixpence?"
"Well, in that case," replied the Scot, "since you press me, and no' liking to refuse an offer weel meant, I think I'll tak' twa boxes."

Wanted—A friend who will recognize me when compelled to wear patched pants; who will take my hand when I am sliding down hill instead of giving me a kick to hasten my descent; who will lend me a dollar without two dollars security; who will pull off his coat when the odds are two to one; who will talk of me behind my back as he does to my face. Such a human being is wanted by ten thousand human beings throughout the world.

A RARE OFFER

The extension of the Rural Mail Routes has wonderfully increased the number of newspaper readers and many Rural Residents who formerly did not take any paper at all now subscribe for both their local weekly paper and a daily newspaper as well.

The approaching sessions of Dominion Parliament will see the inauguration of the new parcel post system which will add greatly to the comfort and convenience of the Farming community, as a telephone message to the local Merchant will bring an article by the next mail and will save many trips to Town.

The GAZETTE has arranged with THE TORONTO DAILY WORLD to club the two publications and those subscribing now will receive both papers until the 1st January, 1915, for less than the price of one year's subscription. These two papers will be mailed to you to the 1st January, 1915, for $3.50. Send your subscription order in now and take advantage of the longer period.

We have also arranged with THE WORLD to include THE SUNDAY WORLD, the big five-section, week-end newspaper, printed in colors, and with a very handsomely gotten up illustrated section. This will be clubbed with the WORLD and GAZETTE for $1.50 additional. Thus for $5.00 you will receive the GAZETTE which contains all the local news and happenings, THE TORONTO DAILY WORLD, which has the best produce and live stock market reports of any Canadian newspaper, these reports now being accepted by the United States Government in admitting Canadian live stock into the United States, and the big week-end newspaper, THE SUNDAY WORLD. IT'S UP TO YOU MR. ADVERTISER

A BUSINESS without a proper system of advertising is like a motor without power. But there is also a quality in advertising. A business man who advertises judiciously, will, in the first place, figure out which newspaper can bring him the best results. In this he considers the number of subscribers who read the paper. But there are many other things which add to or depreciate from the value of advertising—clear type faces, careful arrangement, and clean presswork. The matter of position, too, is an important factor, which must be considered.

OUR PAPER represents all of these, as we have both the material and experience to draw upon, and our paper GOES INTO 1010 HOMES. Then in the choice of position we are excellently situated at present.

MILDMAY GAZETTE

Mildmay's Hope For Progress Lies In the Ability of Its Citizens to Secure Manufacturing Industries.

A Wave of Progress In Store for Mildmay. Have You the Aggressiveness to Grasp it, or Will This Opportunity Slip Through Our Fingers and Be Passed On to Some Other Town Which, Perhaps, Is Not So Advantageously Situated As We Are?

Opportunity knocks at our doors. Will we admit it? It is our firm belief that in the near future the ratepayers of the, as yet, little town of Mildmay, will be called upon to render a decision, which if voted on favorably will mean growth and prosperity to the town, but if voted on adversely will surely leave the town in the state which it is now—suitably located and open to opportunity but with not enough aggressive spirit to grasp it. Opportunity knocks, but will not open the door, it is up to you, as a ratepayer to do that. Unfortunately for the Incorporation Campaign the recent Election in South Bruce took up the attention of the electors, but now that this subject is past, the old subject of Incorporation comes again before the people and is again in the limelight. Mildmay is on the verge of a wave of prosperity, but whether this wave will carry us along in its mighty sweep, or whether we will be left behind to die by the roadside, depends entirely upon ourselves and upon our ability to see that we are in the direct path of that Prosperity Wave. Incorporation—that is our means of showing our aggressive spirit. The subject has been brought forth and discussed every year for almost ten years, and although a favorable opinion was universal, no one with the necessary amount of push has been found to start the ball a-rolling.

Councillors and Business Men in Favor.
Now, the business men and the men in Council and public office know and appreciate the necessity of incorporation. To quote one man who is in public office, or rather in the Council, he stated that "He knows that Incorporation is just what we need, but of course, being a non-resident, it is not in his place to assert himself publicly." The subject, therefore, it will be seen, is one in universal favor. Why, then should we not assert ourselves and claim the share of the commercial prosperity due us.

The Only Method of Procedure.
The only course open to bring about the desired result is to call a meeting of the business men and appoint a committee to investigate and after the committee has done its work to call a public meeting, get facts and figures from other incorporated towns, put them before the people, and let them decide as to the advisability of having Mildmay govern itself, and under the rulership of men from the town. With a little study, this subject will be seen to favor the town in more ways than one. We will be under the government of men from the town, who will work for the town and its best interests. Then also we will be in a position to secure industries, and not only to show ourselves willing to have and maintain industries, but to go after and get them. There is one common argument against incorporation. This is that our taxes will be higher. But will they? It must be considered that at present our license fees are divided with the township, to be used in the township as well as the town. Under incorporation this tax would be kept in the town and used for the public's benefit. Now, what license fees have we? We have first of all two pool rooms paying $75 yearly, with prospects of another in the near future. Two, at least, can be counted upon to stay. Then there are the hotels, four of them, paying each a yearly sum of $160, or some such amount. Our business tax also amounts to a considerable sum. And it must be remembered that in the event of Mildmay being incorporated, which is claimed will raise our taxes, that the industries which will be sure to be secured will also be paying a business tax. The amount of the license fees in the aggregate will at any rate be large enough to keep the taxes at a normal figure. But even if the taxes should be raised say 5 mills (at the outside) we would be getting value for our money, and satisfaction on the side. Our present rate of tax is 12 mills. This, it will be agreed, is certainly low. But why has our tax been only twelve mills, whereas in other towns it has been as high as 26 and in some cases even 31. Our answer? "Because other towns have not been satisfied to remain as they were, and awoke to the realization that paying 26 mills and getting their money back two-fold in increased trade and labour was better than worrying along with business and the labor situation poor, for the sake of a few mills on the dollar." And, further, it is not only our firm conviction, but of every up-to-date business man, that there will be a direct benefit resultant from incorporation which will increase the income of every resident who is in business in town, at no matter what trade. And this is the way it works out. The town is incorporated. The first council (of town men, mind you) is elected. Eager to prove the value of incorporation, these men will get busy to locate industries, or at least pave the way for the next council. When the first industry is hooked and safely landed, wages will go up, a shortage of hands will be experienced, and consequently more men will be brought into the town. Married men with their families will locate, which means more business for the merchants. With the influx of new families real estate will increase in value, new houses will have to be built, rent will be higher, and an all-round betterment of conditions will be experienced. But even if all these things did not come to pass, it would mean that the town will govern itself and do what it pleases with its money without consulting the township. And, doubtless, one of the first defects to be remedied would be "our street lighting system." We call this a "system" for convenience sake only, as a minute search has failed to disclose anything resembling a real system, and has started the idiom of "The town (with the three lights."

Up to the Ratepayers.
Mr. Ratepayer, it will be up to you to vote aye or nay—for you will surely be called upon to vote some day not far hence. Are you, now that you have the truth, going to hang back for the sake of a one or two mills increase in the taxes. It has already been proven that no incorporation, no industries, but if any of our citizens would care to state their views, either for or against, the paper is open to all, free of charge, and will welcome any item on this subject—because it's items of interest our readers want, and to our mind, and from what we can see, this subject is one of vital interest to the citizens at the present time. Non-resident's letters welcomed the same as a citizen's of Mildmay. And, you, readers, will find it to your interest and advantage to watch for and read these letters. A committee will soon be appointed to investigate and in order to be conversant on the incorporation question, a perusal of other's views in this paper will be beneficial, as, unfortunately this topic is one which is very little known in this town.

Committee Appointed Next Week.
The committee we speak of in the preceding paragraph will be composed mostly of business men, and will in all probability be appointed next week. When the committee has had a chance to fully investigate the matter a public meeting will be called, whereat all the arguments, pro and con will be fully discussed. Being an entirely new question there are a great many of our citizens who have doubts and misgivings as to its beneficency for the town and this is exactly the reason why the question should be brought before the public—to determine whether the measure would be one in our interests to undertake, or not. It is our duty as citizens to give the question a fair consideration as the measure, should it prove favorable, must be passed. This is our duty as citizens. And that it will benefit us in our endeavor for progress and life, will be easily proven by having a number of representatives from other towns give us the result of their experience with this all-important topic.

There are a lot of legal formalities to go through in connection with incorporation, therefore, if we would do something, it would seem necessary that we start at once. This subject is of more importance to our ratepayer citizens than the recent election, and should be fully as interesting to them. By returning a unanimous vote in favor of the proposed project you will benefit yourself more than by electing your Liberal or Conservative candidate, whichever the case may be.

It Has Benefited Neustadt.
The writer had always had the idea the town of Neustadt was only a little burg with two or three houses, and on the occasion of his first visit was agreeably surprised to find cement walks all over the place, and noted with surprise that it has two large manufacturing industries. We could not understand how it happened that such a large industry should have located at Neustadt—until we were told that the town was incorporated, and had chased hard after this manufacturer until they had succeeded in landing the industry. The experience of Neustadt should be an encouragement to us, and should help us in our decision. If persons who accept our invitation to state their views in this journal will sign their names our object will be the more easily attained, what we need most being a few ardent workers. Your influence, small as it may seem, will help. Do your share in the good work of helping our town.

The C. P. R. Pension Fund.

The payment of the pension allowances on the C. P. R. come to something like $173,000 per annum. Of course the amount fluctuates; but it is around these figures. The inauguration of the pension fund has enormously quickened the zeal of the vast army of employees of the system. It made every man feel a new closeness to the directing heads, a new loyalty to the work, and a new desire for the utmost success to attend the operation of the organization. It has given the sense of identification with all the large interests bound up with the company. No pension is smaller than $20 per month. Even this, though it may seem small, is an immense comfort to the mass of employees who may have a little saved but who will be bettered by this addition. Referring to the C. P. R. official who was dum-founded when he learned that he had to retire, and later said to the management that it seemed strange that he who had been accumulating a certain kind of useful knowledge for nearly thirty years of service should have to leave and carry all that knowledge with him. He could not impart it to anybody, but it is part of his being. "And," he added to the management, "I am just as fit for my duties to-day as when I entered the service of the company." "Of course you are, but that is not the point. The point is your retirement, according to the pension plan." And then the official went home and could not sleep, and could not take interest in foreign cities, but was saved by buying a place in the country, where he took up gardening and where he might be seen to this day, content to potter about his flowers (in season) thus showing that once you can get rid of the railway man, the poet may and does emerge. "Every single man, high or low, gentle or simple, looks forward to the future retirement with misgiving," said a C. P. R. official, in discussing the matter of the length of service which a man could render efficiently. "A man dreads to think of it at all, and yet, as the years wear on, it is present with him. He knows that the date is coming close when he shall have to quit work, whether he likes it or not."

One For the Farmer.

Here is something from an exchange that deserves to be passed along. "What would a farmer say if his wife left her sewing machine standing out in the back yard in a rainstorm over night. What he really would say is out of the question for printer's copy, and yet many farmers have their binders, which cost three or four times as much as a sewing machine, out in the sun and rain with no better shelter than a fence corner. Nor is the binder the only piece of costly machinery that receives such treatment. In such instances, Mr. Farmer, what should your wife do to you? A timely application of the rolling-pin might do much toward prolonging the life and efficiency of your farm machinery. You can save a ten dollar bill any day this week by acting on this suggestion.

Bruce Boy Killed in Coal Chute.

The funeral took place at Paisley, on Saturday, of Wilmer E. Ledgerwood, son of the late Alex Ledgerwood, of Eden Grove, with interment in Starkvale Cemetery. The deceased, who was 21 years of age, met death at Melville, Sask., he having gone West last spring. Working in a coal yard at the time he stepped on a trapdoor, which gave way, letting him fall headforemost into a coal chute. The sliding coal held him fast, his head and part of his body being buried in it. Apart from the death of the parents, this makes the third member of the family whose remains have been brought home within the past five years.

Postal Clerks Are Indignant.

A complaint was registered a short time ago by the employees of the Toronto postoffice that the department was undermanned. As a result of this the men have been obliged to work overtime in order to handle the immense amount of mail that passes through their hands. One night twelve men, after having worked half an hour longer than they were supposed to, walked out in a body. When they returned they were notified that they would be fined one day's pay for this action. When the story appeared in The World the postmaster, they say, denied that he intended to fine the men, and the matter apparently was settled. When the twelve men in question received their cheques on Saturday, however, they found that one day's pay had been deducted and became indignant. A conference was arranged and they decided to consult E. F. B. Johnston and T. C. Robinette as to the legality of the procedure of the postmaster, with the result that they were told that he had no right to fine them because they refused to work overtime.

The men have decided to lay the matter before the postmaster-general at Ottawa.

Date Pudding.—One cup chopped dates, one cup chopped nuts, one cup sugar, three tablespoon flour, one teaspoon baking powder, three eggs. Bake in a moderate oven one-half hour.

Coffee Cake.—One cup flour, one-half cup sugar, one-half teaspoon each of salt and cinnamon, three teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons melted butter, one-half cup milk, and one egg. Bake in shallow pan in a quick oven after sprinkling top with sugar and cinnamon.

Nut Croquettes.—Chop up one cup English walnuts or hickory nuts and mix with them one cup mashed potatoes, one cup bread crumbs, two eggs, a little salt and lemon juice. Thin with beef stock and add a little onion. Roll in egg and bread crumbs and drop in hot lard. This will make about one dozen.

Sweet Sandwiches.—Bake bananas in their skins until tender. Strip skin off and sprinkle with a few drops of lemon and orange juice. Add also a sprinkling of sugar, mash, and spread on thinly cut bread and butter. Before putting together as sandwiches, cover the mashed banana with grated pineapple.

Banbury Tarts.—For the filling mix one cup raisins, one-half cup currants, six dates, three figs, a small piece of citron, a little candied orange peel (all chopped fine), juice and grated rind of one lemon, one beaten egg. Roll pie crust thin and cut into four inch squares. Put a heaping teaspoon of filling on each, and turn over, pressing the edges together so as to make a little three cornered turnover. Bake a delicate brown.

Luncheon Rolls.—One cup of scalded milk, two tablespoons sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt; add sugar and salt to milk; when lukewarm add one-half yeast cake dissolved in two tablespoons lukewarm water, then add three-fourths cup of flour. Cover and let rise, then add two tablespoons melted butter and one egg well beaten and flour enough to knead. Let rise, roll, cut in long strips, tie in a bowknot, let rise again, and bake when light.

Stewed Kidneys.—Take two lamb or veal kidneys, cut the good parts into small pieces, and lay them in salted water for a half hour. Wash well; cover with fresh water and put on the stove. Drain as soon as it boils. Chop an onion fine and brown in a tablespoonful of butter. Add a cupful of boiling water, a saltspoonful of salt, and a dash of pepper. Put the kidneys into this and boil gently for half an hour. Ten minutes before serving add a teaspoonful of tomato catsup and one of flour rubbed smooth in a little water.

Chicken Livers.—Wash well to remove all blood, have livers well heated in a skillet, drop in the livers. As soon as they touch the hot fat turn them and do this repeatedly to keep them from hardening on the outside. The secret of good frying lies in turning them often. This keeps the substance soft and juicy. When the livers are fried season them with salt and pepper and fill up the skillet with soup stock. If you like a thick gravy add a teaspoon of flour to the butter before adding the soup. Another good way to prepare the livers is to stick a clove into each one, sprinkle ground cinnamon and sugar over them and fry in sweet butter. These do not need soup stock, and are served on toast for those who have a sweet tooth.

Hot Slaw.—Cut cabbage fine and put into a cooking vessel with a pint of water, a piece of butter half the size of an egg, a little salt and pepper, and two or three table-spoons of sugar. Let cook down nearly dry, then add cup of vinegar and water mixed, let boil up, and set off the fire and add two well-beaten eggs.

Salad Dressing.—Yolks of four or three whole eggs, a pinch of salt, one teaspoon of mustard, one table-spoon of flour, two tablespoons of sugar, six tablespoons of vinegar, five tablespoons of water, four table-spoons of cream, and one table-spoon of butter. Beat the eggs, add salt, mustard, flour and sugar. Mix all thoroughly; then add vinegar, water, cream, and butter, and then cook. It is splendid dressing for almost every kind of salad.

Concerning Charcoal.—How many housewives look upon charcoal as a valuable necessity in the home! Few. Yet its uses are many. To begin with, it is the best and cheapest disinfectant and deodorizer—in other words, charcoal is the best known disease-catching-preventer and smell-ender.

The smell of cabbage water is not nice. A lump of charcoal in the saucepan prevents all odor. You may be afraid that the joint, or a piece of fish may go bad. Simply lay pieces of charcoal on them, and they will keep perfectly fresh. If you say, the fish has manifestly "gone," cook it just the same, but place in the fish saucepan two or three pieces of charcoal. The fish will be as good as if but just caught.

A wire gauze or muslin bag, filled with charcoal, and hung in the larder, will keep that important place perfectly sweet. A wardrobe which smells of clothes, and makes a bedroom stuffy, can be made all right if two or three little bags of charcoal are hung from the hooks. Jugs or any other vessels which have a nasty smell—and nasty smells herald diseases—can at once be made sweet if rinsed with powdered charcoal and water.

Sinks, and the pipes leading away from them, would always be odorless if, now and again, they were swilled down with water and a little powdered charcoal.

There is a slight disadvantage in using charcoal as a tooth-powder, it involves rinsing the mouth out two or three times, but if that trouble can be borne, then the use of charcoal will make the teeth gleaming white, the breath sweet, and bring to nought the ill effects of fermentation of little bits of food in the teeth crevices.

A piece of charcoal suspended in muslin in drinking water makes it quite safe to drink. Expensive filters are but charcoal, after all. In cases of burns, the application of powdered charcoal soothes the pain and heals the sore like magic. Chronic sores which are unpleasant, if bandaged with cotton wool layered with charcoal, at once become all right.

"All odors end here" is charcoal's inflexible rule. Open drains and gulleys—fruitful causes of fever—can be made quite harmless, if a sort of sandwich of wire gauze and charcoal is fixed or laid over them. No smell, and no fear of catching anything.

The magical virtues of charcoal are greatly increased if it is made red hot before use and then cooked down. This can easily be done by getting an ordinary tin, making holes round the sides, fixing a wire handle, and then making one piece of charcoal hot in the fire and dropping it in the tin with the rest.

Swing the tin too and fro, and the whole mass will soon be red hot.

Hints for the Home. Celery may be freshened by being left overnight in a solution of salt and water.

Always empty out any water left before filling the kettle. Frequently the flat taste of tea is caused by using water that has already been boiled.

When baking potatoes grease them first with a little butter, and when cooked they will be beautifully brown and crisp, with the glazed appearance that makes them so appetizing.

An apple pie made without the upper crust is a pleasing change. Line the pie plate and bake the under crust; fill with apple sauce, seasoned to taste and cover the top with whipped cream.

A flat trunk tray kept in the laundry will prove a great convenience. The napkins, doilies, lunch cloths, etc., may be laid out on it in neat separate piles.

Green mayonnaise is a tempting novelty to serve with cold-boiled white fish or vegetable salads. It is made in the usual way, tinted with scalded and chopped parsley, and with a few chopped olives mixed in.

Old velvetene should be saved for polishing cloths. It will serve the purpose of wash cloths for plate cleaning and save buying anything fresh. Wash the velvetene in soapy water as often as needed and lay out to dry.

For a cream whip, which is easily made, fill sherbet glasses half full of preserved fruit. Heap them with whipped cream that has been flavored with vanilla and spread tops lightly with cocoa, coconut or minced nuts.

TALKING ALARM CLOCK

"Get Up, Get Up, Lazy Man," Its Newest Refrain.

It has often seemed, after the announcement of an invention to which the attention of the entire civilized world has been called, that the human mind could scarcely invent anything more and fashion it in material form, but the countless dreams of inventors continue to be realized in astounding numbers.

Every week, every month, the trade journals advertise and comment upon new things in the lines which they represent and publish new ideas which this material labor-saving age seizes and makes its own.

An alarm clock which awakens you with the words of a disgruntled wife who has breakfast on the table and a large vessel which carries submarines over long distances by means of a "pouch" are among the newest offerings.

As an ever present need, the alarm clock will probably be put into more general household use than the ship with the "pouch" for carrying submarines. In the evening before retiring you set the clock for 6:30; at 6:30 you will probably get up. Here is what will waken you:

"Six thirty, six thirty, six thirty;

FIRST BOAT PASSING THROUGH PANAMA LOCKS.
Tug "Gatun" Is Given First Panama Honors.

The tug "Gatun," which has been hauling mud from the Atlantic entrance to the canal, had the honor of being the first vessel to pass through the Gatun locks of the Panama Canal on Sept. 26. The tug made the ascent from the Atlantic Ocean to Gatun Lake in two hours.

time to get up; get up, can't you! Get up, you miserable, lazy man. Get up, get up, get up!"

The first clock of this kind was exhibited in 1900, but it cost $2,500 to make it. The present offering costs $25. If you are awake in the middle of the night and wish to know the time, press a button and the clock will tell you the nearest quarter hour as: "Two fifteen," if it happens to be 2:13 or 2:18. The phonographic record is on an endless belt and the grooves in which the voice vibrations are recorded run lengthwise of the belt. The belt continues to give out sound until shut off when once started. So far the clocks have been supplied with belts which talk in thirty-five languages.

The "kangaroo" vessel is an invention which is being tried in the French navy. It is so called because the idea of taking the submarine aboard may be said to be an imitation of the way in which the female kangaroo carries her young. The vessel is built so that her stern may be sunk by water ballast and the plates, framework and beams removed from the bow. This manipulation reveals a large chamber into which the submarine may be driven. The bow is then sunk, also by water ballast. The submarine slides into its travelling dry dock and a reverse series of manipulations brings the "kangaroo" back into position for a voyage.

A new material has been invented called micarta, and is designed to take the place of hard fibre, glass, porcelain, hard rubber and other substances which are used as insulation, gear blanks, conduit for automobile wiring and the thousand and one other uses to which non-conductors are put in the handling of electricity. Micarta can be sawed, milled, turned, tapped or threaded, but it cannot be punched except in thin sheets. It is contended that it will not warp, expand or shrink with age or exposure.

Not an invention, perhaps, but quite interesting as a novelty are the printed four-in-hand ties which English haberdashers are preparing to put on the market this fall. The prints will represent sports and other lines of activity. One necktie will show an aeroplane flying over a battleship and another will bear the figures of ballet dancers. A third style shows pictures of pheasants and grouse, and is evidently intended to show that the wearer will go hunting before long. Still another carries the heads of a girl and a thoroughbred race horse, indicating a taste for racing, and so on.

Those who buy belting for machinery will not have to worry about the price of leather in the years to come if a certain sort of belting which is being manufactured by a firm in Connecticut proves to be a success. The new product is called flexible steel belting and is really a step further than the chain and sprocket idea. The belting is made in a complicated series of links, and can be used on all pulleys of from two inches in diameter to the largest size. It has been designed especially for service where atmospheric conditions are bad for leather and rubber belts.

RESCUING THE PERISHING

If We Would Live Nobly Then Must We Refuse Deliverance for Ourselves While Others Perish

In one of the most beautiful legends of the Buddha we read that "far, far back, in the distant aeons" there lived a hermit, Sumedha by name, who found that he had solved the secret of existence and could thus, if he so pleased, cut himself off from that endless chain of being in which he, like every other unhappy mortal, was ensnared. Deliverance from the terrible succession of rebirths—Karma, as it was called—was now his; and yet—he declined to take advantage of his saving knowledge! "Why," said he, "should I attain deliverance alone? I will embark anew on the ocean of existence in a ship which will convey men and devas."

To this work, therefore, of rescuing the ignorant and perishing he forthwith devoted himself through a long series of existences, until at last the hour arrived when he knew not only how to save himself but also how to impart this knowledge unto others. Then did he appear upon the earth as Guatama, the Buddha, and show to men the Eight-Fold Path to Nirvana!

The Remarkable Thing about this impressive story is the fact that it lays down as a basic principle for the whole of life that which we much too easily regard as demanded only by exceptional occasions. In the face of some great crisis of disaster there are never wanting dauntless souls who gladly save others at the expense of their own happiness and security. A man safe upon the shore leaps into the sea in a sublime endeavor to bring to land a drowning stranger. A passerby dashes into a burning house to rescue a sleeping baby. A woman on the Titanic gives up her seat in a lifeboat to an older and feebler passenger and herself returns smilingly to the deck of the sinking vessel.

Thus ever is the hero present when the heroic action must be done! But how many of us thus sacrifice ourselves for others not only at such times as these, but also in the ordinary, humdrum routine walks of daily life? And yet is it this very duty of hazarding our own security "for others' sakes," as much in the commonplace as in the critical events of life, which constitutes the pity and marrow of the legend which I have taken for my text. If we would live as nobly as Sumedha then must we as gladly refuse deliverance for ourselves while others perish. We will refuse to bask serenely in the light of knowledge while others are stumbling in the darkness of ignorance. We will refuse to share the luxury of wealth while multitudes are struggling in feverish anxiety to keep body and soul together. We will refuse to shelter ourselves behind the bulwarks of respectability while millions of waifs and outcasts are thronging our slums, crowding our prisons and rotting in the end in our Potters' Fields. We will refuse, in a word, like the ancient hermit, to

"Attain Deliverance Alone!" Rescued ourselves by some blessing of inheritance or accident of fortune, or grace of personal endeavor, from the miseries of ignorance, poverty and social outlawry we will plunge back into the welter of the world's wretchedness and labor, "while it is yet day," to bring to others that glad deliverance of knowledge, economic security and friendly brotherhood which we ourselves have known. For why should we be educated and others ignorant? Why should we be rich and others poor? Why should we be lifted up upon a rock and others be cast down into the pit? What we have all shall have! Yes, this they shall have even though it be purchased at the price of our own denial or destruction!

To scorn to be saved while others perish, to decline to live while others die—and this, not only in the awful crises of disaster, but quite as much in the ordinary courses of daily life, where "a thousand fall at (our) side and ten thousand at (our) right hand"—here is "the whole duty of man," so long as the injustice of an unequal world shall last!—Rev. John Haynes Holmes.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON,
NOVEMBER 9.

Lesson VI. Abstinence for the Sake of Others, Rom. 14.7-21. Golden Text, Rom. 14.21.

Verse 7. The verses selected as the basis for our temperance lesson to-day are a part only of a longer passage, Rom. 14. 1 to 15. 6) in which the apostle Paul discusses the theme of Christian tolerance and the relationship between the strong and the weak in faith. In our chapters he has spoken of the Christian sacrifice, of the relation of Christian discipline to others, of the faith; he has discussed the subjects as Christian vengeance, the relation between the church and the state, the one great obligation of every Christian disciple, and the law of love. In this chapter he proceeds to exhort those who have grasped the fuller meaning of the Christian faith that they condemn not their fellow Christians who are still bound by detailed rules relating to food and drink and the observance of certain days. He has urged upon his readers the necessity of each one becoming established in his own mind with regard to essentials and nonessentials of daily conduct. He points out that it is to Christ alone that each will be responsible, and proceeds in the verses of our lesson passage to exhort once more against censoriousness, adding also an exhortation to those strong in faith that they place no obstacles in the way of their weaker fellow-Christians.

None of us liveth to himself—Every life is lived in relation, none in isolation.

8. Unto the Lord—The apostle is thinking of the relationship of every human life to the divine life, rather than to other human lives.

10. But thou—Thou fault-finder. The judgment-seat of God—His immediate presence, in which all things become manifest.

12. So then—This verse belongs properly with verses 1-11, to which longer passage it forms a conclusion. Personal responsibility, the apostle has pointed out, should be a sufficient reason for consistency of action in one's own life and charity towards others.

13. Let us not therefore judge—The apostle includes himself with those to whom more especially the letter is written. We note again the broad and general character of his argument.

This rather—There is a higher principle of action than that of discovering the error in another's life, and that is the exercising of great care that no man put a stumblingblock in his brother's way.

14. Nothing is unclean in itself—The apostle is thinking of the ceremonial law and of the foods and drinks, the meats and wines, offered in the public market place after having been dedicated to heathen idols. These latter many considered as improper articles of food for a Christian because of their previous association with idol worship. Paul, however, insists that to him who is able to rise to the moral standard involved in even these things need not in themselves be defiling or wrong.

Save that to him who accounteth anything to be unclean—Only if a man believes that a certain course of action is wrong, and is compelled by the opinion and practice of his fellows to do violence to his own conscience, he commits sin.

15. Destroy not with thy meat him for whom Christ died—A special application of the general principle announced in verse 13, that none should give another occasion for stumbling.

16. Your good—The course of action concerning which you yourself are persuaded that it is right. Consent to adopt another course rather than have others look upon you as one who is doing wrong continually.

17. The kingdom of God—An echo of our Lord's teaching.

19. Things which make for peace—These are the essentials of conduct, and together with those things whereby Christians may edify one another, can be considered only after the occasions for friction and misunderstanding have been removed.

It Depends.
Among the members of a working gang on a certain railroad was an Irishman who claimed to be very good at figures. The boss, thinking that he would get ahead of Pat, said: "Say, Pat, how many shirts can you get out of a yard?" "That depends," answered Pat, "on whose yard you get into."

It's a great thing to be a pretty woman. It really means that you can do anything you like.

An optimist is a man who lays up a little sunshine for rainy day.

"Kate says she intends to marry Mr. Plunks to reform him." "What is his vice?" "He's a good deal of a miser."

WHAT THE WEALTHY PEOPLE ARE DOING.

Progress of the Great West Told in a Few Painted Paragraphs.

On the coast district of British Columbia, in August, a record amount of timber was sold, amounting to 65,322,400 feet. Sir Gilbert Parker, in a speech before the Canadian Club at Vancouver, prophesied that city would have a population of 750,000 in 25 years.

New Westminster Council passed a by-law providing for a weekly half-holiday in stores; and then withdrew it on representations of merchants.

At New Westminster, Andrew Gabriel was fined $25 and costs for carrying a revolver. This was the first prosecution under the amended act.

Vancouver has passed a by-law providing that, in future, all loaves of plain bread must weigh 20 ounces and all loaves of fancy bread 18 ounces.

The C.P.R. will use four powerful electric locomotives, costing $75,000 each, on that section of its line extending from Castlegar to Rossland.

Vancouver's exhibition had an attendance of 101,306 for the week. Three days' bad weather spoiled the show, which will have a deficit of about $7,000.

The C.P.R. has raised the scale of pay for officers on the Empresses. The raise all round averages $20 a month, and in future all junior officers will receive $60 a month.

In consequence of the inability of cannery in the district of Penticton, B.C., to handle the enormous peach crop this year, thousands of tons of luscious fruit rotted in the orchards.

Near Nelson, B.C., Peter McEachran struck at a squirrel on a pole with a long steel rod. The pole carried wires of 20,000 voltage. Peter missed the squirrel and struck a wire, falling to the ground dead; electrocuted.

Vancouver police stopped all card and dice games among Chinese, and the wily Chinks found a substitute in domino poker. Twenty of them were hauled in by the police at one swoop, and each one found a bondsman in $500.

In Capt. Sinclair, third officer of the C.P.R. liner Empress of Asia, that steamship has the tallest officer in the British merchant service. He is 8 feet 4 inches tall, and was the last man to command a British four-master full-rigged ship.

Two Vancouver girls ran away from their homes and went to Seattle, where the police arrested them and sent them back. The parents of both girls are wealthy, but the runaway said they wanted to get jobs where they could support themselves.

The C.P.R. is having two fast turbine ships built in the old country for the ferry service between Victoria and Vancouver. They will be 395 feet in length, 54 feet beam, and have a guaranteed speed of 22½ knots. It is expected they will be in commission by the spring of 1915.

Over half a million dollars have been spent on the development of the Canadian Marble Works at Marblehead, B.C., by Winnipeg capitalists, and it is claimed that recent developments have been such as to inspire confidence. A block over 100 cubic feet has been taken out.

Dr. Stewart, of Mission, B.C., did not know where the boundary line between British and U.S. territory was, consequently he held a British inquest with a British jury on American soil into the death of a motorman who was killed in a collision near Chilliwack, B.C. The crown authorities could not recognize the findings of the inquest, and it had to be all done over again on British soil.

The Way of It.
"Miss Bay made a hit with Jack the first glance she gave him."
"I see—a sort of glancing bow."

It is the privilege of few to have their faces on coins. Most people are content to get their hands on them.

A benevolent old gentleman was walking through the outskirts of a town when a woman shot out into the road, beating unmercifully a little lad. "My good woman," exclaimed the kindly one, as he seized the woman's arm to stop her, "you mustn't do that. What harm has he done?" "What! I mustn't do that? What harm has he done?" she shrieked. "If you would like to know, he has opened the hen-roost, and all the fowls have straggled away." "Well, if that's all it's nothing so very dreadful. Chickens, you know, always come home to roost in their owner's run." "Yes, that's just it," said the woman, gloomily.

When the Engine Stops There Goes Out All Life.

To the uninitiated, the engines of any steamer are noisy, tiresome, bewildering. And yet every component, every note of that great harmony, has a special meaning for the engineer; moreover, he can detect the smallest dissonance at once. So finely attuned to the music does the ear become, declares the author of "Letters from an Ocean Tramp," that the dropping of a hammer in the stoke-hole, the rattling of a chain on deck, the rocking of a barrel in the stores makes the engineer jump.

It is the same with the eye. It is even the same with the hand. We can tell in an instant if a bearing has warmed ever so slightly beyond its legitimate temperature. And so it is difficult to know "which is the potter and which is the pot." The man and the machine are inextricably associated, and their reactions, one upon the other, are infinite. It is this extraordinary intimacy, this ceaseless vigilance and proximity, that gives the marine engineer such an advantage over all other men, with whom endurance and resource must accompany responsibility.

I remember arguing once with a matter-of-fact apprentice in the shop concerning the suburbs as suitable for such as he. He was not convinced. "There!" he said, slapping the shelf above his bench. "That's where I'd like to sleep. All yer getter do at six o'clock is roll off and turn to." Well, that is just what he would get at sea. In most steamers the engineer walks out of the mess-room, bathroom or berth, into an alleyway on either side of the engine platform. The heat of the engines becomes part of his environment. He sleeps with it pulsing in his ears, so that if she slows or stops he opens his eyes. It is a point of honor among us to know every kink and crotchet of day-to-day working. If a joint starts "blowing" ever so little away in some obscure corner of our little kingdom, we know of it within an hour or two. One would think we were at mothers' meetings discussing our babies, to hear the grave little-tattle concerning the inevitable weakness of engines that passes over the mess-room table.

The propeller is our religion. When it drops away, as it sometimes does, there goes out from that ship all life, all motion. Even as the mass of metal plunges downward, and as the frenzied engineer rushes through blinding steam and water to stop the maddened engines in their panic rush, the spirit of the vessel goes out of her in a great sigh. With dampened ash-pits her fires blacken and go out, the idle steering-engine clanks and rattles and the useless rudder tugs at her chains, and the crew tell in whispers how it happens. Just like that on the Gypsy Queen, out of Sunderland, or the Gerald Dorr, out of Antwerp. All of which is not to be learned in the study at home.

WATERY BLISTERS INTENSELY ITCHY

Between Fingers, Spread to Tips. Would Swell Up, Itch and Burn. Did Not Dare Put Hands in Water. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

Carnaun, Manitoba.—"A breaking out between my fingers was the first trouble. It was very itchy and spread to my finger tips affecting the nails. It first appeared in watery blisters and they were so intensely itchy I scratched them and let the water out making sores. They would swell up, itch and burn and finally came off. I spent many sleepless nights. I did not dare to put my hands in water except to wash them.

"I kept using ointments. The ointment, but was not cured. Sometimes the remedies would help a little but I was free from it altogether. I was there for nine years trying everything. I heard of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for them and before I had used them half a dozen times I noticed an improvement. By washing with the Cuticura Soap and applying the Cuticura Ointment frequently I was cured in three months." (Signed) Miss Florence E. Sanderson, May 20, 1913.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp that torture, itch, burn, scale and destroy sleep. A single set is often sufficient. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere for a liberal free sample of each, with 32-page book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

CURIOUS HOTEL CUSTOMS.

Strange Rules Prevail in Some Scotch Houses.

In an Edinburgh hotel the bar counter contains a slot, into which each visitor who is heard to swear must drop a penny, and a notice to that effect is displayed. These pennies are at intervals collected and sent to aid the funds of one of the local institutions, says London Tit-Bits.

A curious custom prevails at the hotel in Dumfries. In one of the public rooms there is an armchair which the Scottish national poet, Any one who enters the chair is expected to "stand treat" to all present, when the memory of the bard is drunk.

At Aberdeen, in a temperance hotel, each visitor, on signing his name in the hotel book, is desired also to add that he is a teetotaler and will not bring any intoxicants into the hotel. In a Glasgow hotel it is the custom weekly, on Sundays, to go round the various rooms and take a subscription on behalf of one of the city charities. In another Glasgow hotel the proprietor, religiously minded, holds divine service each Sunday at noon, to which all the boarders are invited. At several of the large hotels in the north of Scotland the guests are beguiled from their slumbers each day by the playing of the bagpipes, while in an hotel in Inverness a posthorn is employed for this same purpose.

His Opportunity.

"Well, did he pay you?" asked the wife of a dentist who had been to collect a bill for a full set of false teeth that he had made for a man almost a year before. "Pay me?" growled the dentist. "Not only did he refuse to pay me, but he actually had the effrontery to gnash at me with my teeth."

Mistress (engaging servant)—"Why did you leave your last place?" Servant—"I couldn't put up with the way one of the young ladies used to copy me, mum." Mistress—"What do you mean?" Servant—"Why, I had a private soldier for a sweetheart, and what must she do but go and get an officer for hers!"

Cramps at Night Require Prompt Remedy

Agonizing Pain Prevented by Keeping Nervilline Handy On the Shelf.

A Case in Point Illustrated.

Deadly cramps—the symptoms are not to be mistaken. Sudden and without warning the patient experiences such agony in the stomach as to contort the countenance and cause him to cry aloud for help.

Then it is that the wonderful power of Nervilline can make itself felt—it cures so quickly.

"Last summer I was stricken with a frightful attack of cramps. I feared the pain in my stomach would kill me. My eyes bulged out and the veins in my forehead stood out like whipcords.

"My cries attracted a neighbor, who came to my assistance, and in a moment or two handed me half a teaspoonful of Nervilline in some sweetened water.

"It seemed as if an angel had charmed away the pain. In ten seconds I was well. Nervilline has a wonderful name in this locality, and is considered best for cramps, diarrhoea, flatulence, stomach and bowel disorders. I urge all my friends to use Nervilline.

"MANLEY M. LEGARDE, Williamsburg."

Perfectly Simple.

Gladstone, the great English statesman, always took a keen interest in everything that related to rural life. The Tagliche Rundschau tells of one of the earliest manifestations of that interest.

When still a very small boy, Gladstone was visiting with his parents at a country estate. The owner of the estate showed the boy the farm-buildings and pastures.

The young Gladstone took a great interest in everything, but particularly in a large black bull.

"That is a very fine, strong animal, Master William," said the owner of the estate. "And he's only two years old."

"Why, how can you tell his age?" asked the boy.

"By his horns."

"By his horns?" the lad repeated, in an incredulous voice. He continued to stare thoughtfully at the bull; then suddenly his face brightened. "Oh, now I understand," he said. "Two horns—two years."

KING GEORGE'S HOME LIFE.

Great Britain's Ruler Described as Best Father in England.

The King's home life and tastes have been described in the Liverpool Daily Post by the writer of "From a Club Window."

"In private life he is the simplest and quietest of English gentlemen. He is the most domestic of men, the kindest of fathers, and always happy in the bosom of his family. The King is the best father in England. Next to his children, the King best likes agriculture, but he has practically no time for this.

"His Majesty is a most abstemious man, not fond of champagne, but as a rule drinking a light wine or whiskey well diluted with mineral water. The King loves a good English cheese both at lunch and when he is dining quietly. He likes a choice, somewhat mild cigar, and it is not unusual for him to consume a dozen a day.

"He has very little leisure for reading beyond what he devotes to studying the daily papers, but when he takes up a book it is never a novel, but a volume of geographical exploration, and he is fond of studying the reports of the Geographical Society."

His Own.

"What's the baby crying for now?" asked the head of the household from the depth of his paper. "He wants his own way," answered the mother. "Well, if it's his," said the absent-minded man, "why don't you let him have it?"

BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They are absolutely safe, being guaranteed by a government analyst to contain neither opiates, narcotics or other harmful drugs. They are good for all children from the newborn babe to the growing child. They cure constipation, indigestion, expel worms, break up colds and make teething easy. In fact they are a cure for all the minor ills of little ones and a box should always be kept in the house as a safeguard against sudden attacks of stomach or bowel troubles. Mrs. J. P. Richard, St. Norbert, N.B., says: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets all that is claimed for them. My baby suffered from his stomach and bowels and the Tablets certainly did him good." They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Weary Tiredness Changed to Vigor

That Played - Out Feeling Was Quickly Remedied and Health Restored.

Story of a Merchant Who Almost Lost His Business and His Health Through Neglecting Early Symptoms of Disease.

"My life for years has been of a sedentary character," writes T. B. Titchfield, head of a well known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill-health, family, I grew thin, then pale, and before long I was jaundiced—eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfitted for business. In the morning a lightness in the head, more particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found weakening, and knowing that I had to be at business every day, neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused gripping nor nausea, and it seemed incredible that pills could tone, cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—their action was so mild that I was able to go on with my business, strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared, and my appetite, strength, spirits are perfect."

Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are sure to cure. Sold in 25c boxes, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from Dr. Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

A Good Thing.

"You knew old Dempster, who was said to be so well off? As you know, he died the other day, and now the story goes that his one and only possession was an old grandfather's clock." "Ah, well, there's one good thing about that. The trustees won't have much difficulty in winding up his estate."

ADVENTURES OF A SLEEPER.

Tells His Experience of a Night With Mosquitoes.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan said that had the fleas of a certain bed on which he once slept been unanimous, they could easily have pushed him out. Arthur T. Johnson, who writes of a camping trip in his book, "California, An Englishman's Impressions," says that had the mosquitoes that attacked him one night been unanimous in their attentions, he thinks he must have perished. Mr. Johnson continues: "All that night did I lie awake, the suffering prey of legions of these pernicious pests. 'Dopes' I had long ago given up as entirely impotent to deal with the foe; the stronger the smell, the better they appeared to like it. With yards of cheese-cloth I now endeavored to parry their assaults, only to find the old truth verified, that one mosquito on the wrong side of the net is more venomous than a hundred when there is no net at all. I smoked until I could smoke no longer. I remembered the midges of Lakeport, how they so obligingly committed suicide by casting themselves into the flames, and lit a fire in the vain hope that the mosquitoes might be equally accommodating. But the taste of imported blood was far too good for them to dream of doing anything half so foolish. The fire only attracted more. For every one I slew, a hundred arose to avenge its death. My Hands and arms tingled to the elbows, my neck and face were swollen and aflame. I buried myself in my blankets, but that only made the venom of the demons still more irritating; besides, it was so hot and sultry that the lightest covering was as much as I could bear.

Sounds of the distress of others came to me; and there was a satisfaction, however feeble, in feeling that I was not suffering in solitude. Not before the brief twilight of dawn had announced the sun did the pests depart.

At the next camping-place there were no mosquitoes to speak of. Still, I was not permitted to have the restful night I desired, for no sooner had I lain down than I was serenaded by a playful kitten. Whether it was the mere desire for company that brought her out of the barley barn to me, or whether she was attracted by my hairy blanket, I know not. But she persisted in dancing about on my recumbent body, and catching imaginary moths with fore paws, like a juggler with his balls. I put her to flight; but she only enjoyed the fun, and returned to her capers as soon as I had lain down. She toyed with my hair and clawed at my blanket. While the buggy whip was in my hand she kept a safe distance, only to return with fresh vigor just as I was passing off to sleep. Ultimately, a more desperate determination to get rid of the pest possessed me. When a very small boy I once, with the best intention in the world, attempted to wash a cat under the scullery tap. That cat fled and never returned. The memory of the episode stirred me to make a final effort to put this one to flight with a bucket of cold water.

But I could not catch her. She had the light-hearted, wanton spirit of an eel. At length, however, after a considerable time spent in stalking, I managed to give her a fairly successful douche. But before I had got comfortably settled again, she was back, and, perched on my shoulder, actually began to lick herself with her tongue. I was beaten. She had come as near to my ear as she would could, to do her toilet; and as the night grew colder, I dragged some folds of my tent over my head, and finally went to sleep to the monotonous tune of that scraping, insistent tunc.

Those Wives.

Griggs—My wife has a habit of spending money before she gets it. Briggs—Mine is worse; she spends it before I get it myself.

Carlyle once told of a lawsuit pending in Scotland affecting the succession to a great estate of which he had known something.

The case depended upon a family secret known only to one old servant, who refused to reveal it. A kirk minister was sent to tell her that she must speak on peril of her soul. "Peril of my soul!" she said. "And would ye put the honor of an auld Scottish family in competition with the soul of a poor creature like me?"

MRS. A. SAICH, of Cannington Manor, Sask., writes:—"My brother suffered severely from eczema. The sores were very extensive, and burned like coals into his flesh. Zam-Buk took out all the fire, and quickly gave him ease. Within three weeks of commencing with Zam-Buk treatment, every sore had been cured."

This is but one of the many letters we are constantly receiving from people who have proved the healing powers of Zam-Buk. For eczema, piles, sores, burns, cuts and all skin troubles there is nothing like this wonderful balm. No skin disease should be considered incurable until Zam-Buk has been tried.

WIT AND HUMOR

Factory Proprietor—Fire-drill, if you please, ladies! Division A will endeavor to batter down that locked iron door; Division B will leap from the windows; Division C will remain quietly at the tables until suffocated—all just as you would have to do in case of an actual fire. March!

In Paris when a street car is full they put up a sign, "Complet" (Full), and afterwards they won't let anybody else get aboard. Jayhawker had just returned home from the Ville Lumiere, and a friend asked: "Did you see a good deal in Paris, my boy?" Yes, sir," said he, "I saw every place but one, and that was Complet. Every time I tried to get out to Complet, the darned cars were full."

A Good Election Joke.

A traveller went into a bookstore in one of the towns he was stopping and asked the dealer for a Toronto Globe and a Mail and Empire. The following conversation ensued:
Traveller—"The papers are pretty interesting at the present time, with all the South Bruce election news in them."
Dealer—"They sure are. A lot of people hereabouts use them for making soap."
Traveller, incredulously—"Making soap? how's that possible?"
Dealer—"Well, you see there's so much lye in all of them nowadays.

Youth Threw Stone.

Monday night, Miss Lottie Patterson, a daughter of Councillor Alex Patterson, of Amaranth, was seriously injured by a stone thrown by a Barnardo Home boy named Cox. The affair happened shortly after the close of one of a series of revival meetings which two lady evangelists are holding in the Farmington school house. Miss Patterson was driving home from the meeting in company with a young man named Stanley Brown. The missile struck her fairly in the mouth breaking two of her front teeth and cracking three more. Her mouth is also badly cut and bruised. Dr. Carson was summoned, brought the injured girl to Lord Dufferin Hospital, where she was attended by himself and Dr. Campbell, the latter doing what he could do to right the damaged teeth. It is said that Cox, who works for David Trimble, a farmer near Fraxa Junction, had been pressing his attentions upon Miss Patterson, and it is surmised that the stone was thrown in a fit of anger and jealousy at seeing her in company of another young man. Legal proceedings were threatened, but we understand Cox settled by agreeing to pay $100.—Orangeville Banner.
