Only a Beggar;
—BUT—
A Queen Among Women

CHAPTER XVIII.

She broke off, and he saw her eyes glisten with sudden tears; and he drew her out of the glitter and shimmer of the ballroom into one of the anterooms, closed the door, and took her to his breast.

"God give me the luck to keep you always as happy, my angel and my love!" he whispered passionately.

The light streamed through the windows before the ball was over; but at last the house-party stood in the hall listening to the last carriage as it rolled away.

"And now to bed, my child!" said the earl to Diana. "Vane, go with her to the corridor, and see that Mabel does not lure her to her room for a gossip. She must rest, rest! Good-night, my dear."

As he kissed her the diamonds in her hair flashed in his eyes, and he said: "The diamonds, my dear; better give them to me to look up for you. You'll want them for Lady Brandon's dance on Wednesday; after that, I'll send them to the bank."

Laughing and blushing, Diana, aided by Vane's caressing fingers, took off the jewels, and the earl collected them in a heap and bore them off to the safe in the small room adjoining his own.

On the Monday after the day of the ball, Desmond March was sitting over the pretense of a breakfast. The covers from the dishes had not been removed, and the toast he broke absentmindedly felt between his fingers. They were trembling, his lips were ashen and drawn, and there were black shadows under his sunken eyes. His run of luck had broken down, and once more he was in the depths of despair. Beside his plate lay a scattered heap of letters, all of them demands, some of them threatening demands, for money. As he looked round the room with aching eyes—he had drunk heavily at the "supper club" on the preceding night—he remembered that the rent was overdue, and reflected that in a short time he would be homeless as well as penniless.

For the first time for weeks he thought of the patient, loving woman, whose faith he had betrayed, whose pitiful savings he had taken and squandered. To go to her now—no, not even he was equal to that. There was nothing but flight. But where to fly? Where? Absently, he picked up one of the papers which lay on the table; it happened to be a society journal, and as he turned the leaves wearily his eye caught an account of the great ball at Glenaskel. His face flushed and grew bitter as he read the successful effort of a reporter still dazed by the splendor he had witnessed from a corner of the music-gallery.

Desmond March set his teeth upon the oath that broke from him. And all this—Glenaskel, Wrayborough, and how much more—might have been his. Diamonds—this girl of his cousin's, Daleford's, must have been smothered with them. Great heavens, and he, the next heir, was stone-broke, a defaulter, an outcast. Diamonds! Why a quarter of the sum they would fetch would tide him over his difficulties. And this girl was flaunting them, would lose them, very likely—he flung the paper from him and groaned.

His valet, to whom, of course, wages were due, knocked at the door and entered.

"The—er—person to see you, sir," Desmond March stared at him. "Eh? Oh, tell him to go to—!" Suddenly his face flushed, and he caught his breath. "Wait!" he called, as the valet was leaving the room. "I think I'll see him."

A moment or two later the valet ushered in Garling. The short, square figure, the rugged, heavily lined face, looked strangely out of place in the luxurious room, and the man stood awkwardly leaning on his thick stick and regarding, in silence, the aristocratic, pallid face of Desmond March with a mixture of deference and defiance, of apprehension and dislike.

"So you've turned up as usual," said Desmond March, leaning back and looking at Garling, under half-closed eyes. "It's as well you did; for I happen to want you."

"To want me?" said Garling, in his peculiar, husky voice. "What can you want with me? See here, Mr. March, I've come to tell you that this—this game can't go on. I'm tired of it. You took me by surprise the other night, and I caved in before I'd had time to turn round. Every Monday I've been here to—report myself—his rugged face grew red and his mouth hard and set—but I don't mean to do so again. I'm—I'm different to what you take me for."

Desmond March nodded toward the door.

"You can go. My man will follow you and give you in charge to the first policeman he meets. Or you can stay and undertake a job. I've got one for you. Which is it to be? Right," as the man, white to the lips, ground his teeth and remained standing. "Now, lock the door. Come here, sit down, and listen."

Garling took the chair and kept his eyes on March, as the slave eyes his master, whip in hand; and in slow, measured accents Desmond March set him his task.

In the middle of the recital Garling sprang to his feet, his eyes glowing, his teeth set.

"No, no!" he exclaimed hoarsely. "I won't do it! I can't! I've left that kind of work! For God's sake, say no more! I'll be no man's slave; I—!"

He shuddered. "I've had enough of convict life."

Desmond March leaned back and toyed with a paper cutter; but kept his eyes on his man.

"Oh, yes, you'll do it," he said. "Where's the risk to you—the Ironmonger, you know! But risk, or no risk, you'll do it. You'll take a commission, of course, and you can clear off when the job's done; for I shall have done with you for good and all. Hesitate, you—you convict, and, by God! I'll send you back to Portland!"

With a groan, Garling sank into his chair. Then he sprang up and paced up and down with heavy, dragging steps, his head bent, his brows knit; and Desmond March leaned back and watched him with a feigned calm that concealed a deep anxiety.

At last Garling stopped before his tyrant, and, glowering down at him, said hoarsely:

"If I do this—job, it's the last, you say? You'll have done with me—will let me go? You swear it? Swear it!" He laughed a laugh that sounded like the snarl of a dog. "You'd swear anything, you—you fine gentleman. I know. But, mind! you're driving me harder than you think! I'll do it; but—it's the last; unless it's the kind of job"—he looked at Desmond March with a sudden ferocity—"that I'll swing for!"

CHAPTER XIX.

It was noon on the morning following Lady Brandon's dance when Diana awoke to find Mabel sitting beside her bed, regarding her with a smile that was wistful as well as affectionate.

"Oh, I'm late; you're dressed, Mabel!" Diana exclaimed guiltily. "What is the time? So late? How long have you been sitting here? Is it anything you want, dear?"

"I've been here for the last half hour," replied Mabel. "I did want something, but I've forgotten what it is now. How beautiful you look when you're asleep, Diana! You've been smiling for the last five minutes. What were you dreaming of?"

Diana thought a moment, then blushed and shook her head. "Dreams are silly things," she answered evasively.

"Yes; they're silly enough even when they're happy," admitted Mabel; "because they're only dreams, you see, and they mayn't come true. But yours are all safe enough," she added, with a mischievous smile and nod. "I'll ring for your tea. Oh, you mustn't think of getting up yet, for Vane has given me strict orders to see that you breakfast in bed."

"I've never done such a thing in my life that I can remember," urged Diana; but Mabel shook her head decisively.

"Them's my orders, miss; and I'm just old enough to know that it's better to obey 'em when Vane gives them. And here's the tray. Are you hungry?"

"Starving," said Diana, sitting up and flinging her long, tall of hair over her shoulders. "Is Vane down?"

"Down! Hours ago. Oh, he's quite the Industrious Apprentice now, since a certain young lady took him in hand and reformed him. He was up before the breakfast bell rang, seeing to the program for the day. He slaves at it as if he were a Cook's excursionist guide. Vane, who, last year, was the laziest man that ever drew breath! And that reminds me of what I wanted. It's that troublesome boy, Bertie."

"What has he been doing, now?" asked Diana, with a smile, and a loving, whimsical glance at the pretty girl's face, as its owner, having seated herself on the bed, was snuggling against Diana and somewhat hampering her fork hand.

"Oh, nothing; it's what he wants to do. He wants me to ride over with him to the Holy Well."

"And you're going to do so, of course?"

"Well—I was; but Aunt Selina has suddenly discovered that I ought not to. She says I spend all my time with him—so absurd! I'm sure I don't! And she says she won't have me scampering about in country lanes with a young man; as if Bertie were a young man!"

"He's scarcely an old one," said Diana. "And you want me to come with you, I suppose, to play chaperon?" Mabel nodded and grinned. "Yes; that's it, dear. You and Vane, of course. I thought—that is, Bertie thought—that we might get some lunch at the inn by the well and make a day of it. It would be awfully jolly—just us four. And we wouldn't interfere with you and Vane, you know. You could ride over so far behind—"

She wound up by giving Diana a hug, and, having got her way, ran off to inform her fellow conspirator of the success of their little plan for getting so many hours together.

Diana came down in her habit and found Vane patiently waiting for her in the hall. He looked up as she came down the stairs, and his eyes greeted her with mute admiration.

"You beautiful angel!" he whispered, almost audibly; and he scarcely waited until the butler had discreetly withdrawn before he took her in his arms and lifted her off the last few steps. "I spend most of my time trying to decide in what dress you look most lovely. Diana. This morning I'm inclined to put my money on a habit; but I know that to-night I shall plunge on an evening frock. How well, how bright you look, my star! Yes; that's it—you are my star, dearest. Without you my life would be black as—"

"Now, when you two have quite done—don't let me hurry you," said Mabel, from the door, with exaggerated politeness. "but the horses have been waiting for hours, and Bertie says he thinks you must have mistaken this for a moonlight ride."

"This girl will be the death of me," declared Daleford, with mock despair. "Come on, then. But look here, Mabel, no larks; no giving us the slip with that fellow boy of yours. I have just been listening to of youth with a lifetime of love before the eyes of Lady Mabel Lashwood. And I've promised to keep an eye on you, young lady."

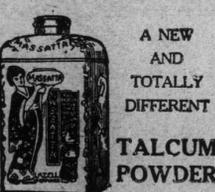

"Pooh!" retorted Mabel contemptuously. "You've only one pair of eyes, and you can't keep them off your young woman. Besides, as if I couldn't take care of myself!"

The four young people started, talking and laughing with the joyousness of youth with a lifetime of love before them; and presently, as Mabel had shrewdly foreseen, she and Bertie had left the other couple far behind, and were quarreling and flirting with a charming absence of restraint.

Daleford seemed even happier than usual that morning, and before they had ridden a mile Diana learned the cause.

OFFICIAL MESSAGE.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

The following from Press Bureau—The only important action in France and Belgium for the last two days was an attempted attack on the Aisne by the enemy, which failed completely with serious losses to the Germans.

In Poland, fighting continues near Lodz. Masses of Germans made an incursion into the Strzyhou-Tassin region, making supreme efforts to cut their way through to the North. The Russians, have captured prisoners, heavy artillery and field guns. Beyond the Carpathians they have captured 40 officers and 3,500 prisoners.

The British battleship Bulwark was blown up this morning by an internal magazine explosion, which rent the ship asunder. Only twelve men were saved.

HARCOURT.

LOSS OF H.M.S. BULWARK.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

It is officially announced here today, that the British battleship Bulwark had blown up off Sheerness. The Bulwark was 15,000 tons displacement, was completed in 1902, and carried a complement of 750 men. Sheerness is on the Thames at the mouth of the Estuary of the Medway, 35 miles down the river from London. Only twelve men out of 700 or 800 on board were saved. According to the Admiralty the explosion which resulted in the destruction of the Bulwark, was believed to have originated in her own magazine.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, Nov. 26.

Nothing important during the 25th. In the north commanding has lessened somewhat. There was no infantry attacks. Our lines have slightly progressed on certain points. In Arras district, bombardment of the town and suburbs was renewed. On the Aisne the enemy attacked the village of Missy. Heavy losses for the Germans were the result. Snow is falling in the Vosges.

Petrograd.—South of the Carpathian Mountains the Russians have surrounded, near Mezo Laborez station, the Austrian forces. They took a General, forty officers and more than 8,000 soldiers. Three trains and maxim guns were also captured by the Russians. Further south the Russians occupied Honoma.

EARL KITCHENER SPEAKS.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

That the Russians had defeated the Germans with the heaviest losses yet suffered; that the Germans had made no advance since he last addressed the House, and that the British were in touch with the Turkish forces thirty miles east of Suez Canal, were the salient points of the speech made by Field Marshal Earl Kitchener in the House of Lords this afternoon. When the British Secretary for War summarized the military operations, he paid a tribute to the gallantry of the Belgian Army and to the King and the Belgians, who, he declared, had no intention of quitting Belgian territory. He said the losses of the Allies were great, but at the same time they were slight, compared with those of the enemy; and the Allied troops were in excellent spirits, confident of success. The Russians, he announced, have defeated the Germans with heavier losses than the latter ever suffered before. Regarding the recruiting, he said he still had room for men, and was confident men would answer their Country's call, and see that the war was brought to a successful conclusion. About thirty thousand recruits, he said, were enlisting weekly. The time would come when we would require many more men, and he would then make it thoroughly well known, adding that in the meantime, all gaps in the British forces on the Continent had been filled. Referring to the German advance on Dunkirk and Calais, after the capture of Antwerp, Lord Kitchener mentioned that in spite of the overwhelming number of the German forces, the British troops vigorously attacked, and a British cavalry division, extending over seven miles of trenches, had shown back the attacks of a whole German army corps for more than two days. The arrival of Indian troops on the field, he said, proved a great advantage, and when fresh reinforcements pushed forward, the march on Calais was stopped. Kitchener spoke of the splendid fighting qualities of the French troops and of the pluck and gallantry of the Belgian army, whose fine resistance had been strengthened and encouraged by the co-operation of the British fleet, which had effectively shelled the German artillery positions.

ELEVEN GERMAN ARMY CORPS SUFFERED.

PARIS, Nov. 26.

All the newspapers of Petrograd affirm that the Germans suffered a terrible catastrophe in attempting an offensive movement with five army corps against the Russians, between the Vistula and Wartha Rivers. The German turning movement against the left wing of the Russians in the region of Willum, is also said to have met with disaster. Eleven German Army corps are reported to have suffered enormously, one division being captured.

THE LOSS OF THE BATTLESHIP BULWARK.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

The explosion, which destroyed the Bulwark, occurred at 7.50 a.m. A Vice-Admiral and Rear-Admiral who were at Sheerness, reported that they were convinced the disaster was caused by a magazine explosion. When the smoke cleared away the ship had disappeared. An enquiry will be held to-morrow, and the Admiralty believes it may throw light on the occurrence. Winston Churchill, speaking in the Commons concerning the disaster, said: "The loss of the ship does not sensibly affect our military position, but I regret the loss of life which was very heavy, only 12 men being saved. All the officers and the rest of the crew which, I suppose amounted to between 700 and 800, perished." The loss of the Bulwark, according to a Central News despatch, received this evening from Chatham, was due to an accidental explosion while ammunition was being loaded on the warship. The force of the explosion aboard the ship was so great that houses in Sheerness and even in Southend, seven miles away, were violently shaken. People fled into the streets in alarm. When the great ship blew up, dense clouds of smoke and flame shot into the air. The vessel disappeared beneath the waves in three minutes. So terrible was the Bulwark rent that it was impossible to render any assistance. After the explosion the vessel was blotted out by smoke and as the veil slowly lifted, a handful of men were seen struggling in the water. Small craft rushed to their aid and picked them up. Some of the crew were badly mutilated. A touch of the dramatic was added to the catastrophe by the fact that the band of the Bulwark was playing when the explosion occurred. The disaster occurred while she was lying at anchor off the naval port of Sheerness near the mouth of the Thames, but the officers of the port scout the public impression that the vessel was the victim of a German submarine. This seems to be supported by the absence of any upheaval in the water. As the First Lord of the Admiralty explained, although fifteen years old, and no longer on the first fighting line, the Bulwark was still a useful unit. The loss of the ship was nothing compared to the loss in trained officers and men, with whose relatives Churchill expressed in the Commons his deep sympathy and sorrow. For a long time she was Admiral Charles Bessford's Flagship in the Mediterranean.

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the London "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. This was that one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years; and that not one had ever given them up."

Professor C. V. Boys, F.R.S., says, in the "Standard": "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudice. A gas fire, burning with a blue, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and, as a scientist, I fail to understand how such a gas fire dries the air in a room more than any other fire."—nov17,14

Wedding Bells.

O'NEILL-VEITCH.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at Holyrood on Thursday last when Mr. J. A. Veitch, who recently returned from New York, was united in Hymen's silken bonds to Miss Annie O'Neill, one of our most popular young ladies. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. P. Finn, F.P., before the High Altar at Holy Cross Church. The bride looked very graceful attired in a handsome dress of white silk with veil and orange blossoms and carried a beautiful bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss May O'Neill who wore a very pretty dress of white voile. The groom was supported by Mr. J. A. O'Neill, brother of the bride. After the ceremony the bridal party and guests conveyed in eight carriages drove to the residence of the bride's parents where a sumptuous supper was partaken of. Rev. Fr. Finn proposed the health of the bride and groom to which the groom on behalf of himself and his fair bride responded. At 7.30 p.m., accompanied by the wedding guests the happy pair drove to the station and amidst showers of rice they embarked for Brigus where the honeymoon will be spent.

We wish Mr. and Mrs. Veitch a joyous bridal trip and that their journey thro' life may be over the pleasant road of sunshine, happiness and prosperity.

The following list of presents testifies to the esteem in which the happy couple are held:

Chaque, Rt. Rev. Mgr. Veitch, Congregation; a valuable pair of beads and prayer book. Rt. Rev. Mgr. McCarthy, Carboneau; silver napkin ring, Sgt. Loughlin; silver butter dish, T. P. Connors, Esq.; china teapot and stand, J. F. Martin, Esq.; a handsome bric-a-brac mirror, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. King; fruit dish and set of vases, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Veitch; handworked teapot cosy, Miss Mary Loughlin; lemonade set, Miss A. O'Rourke; teapot and curios, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Dunphy; china tea set, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Veitch; handworked cushion, brodered centre piece, Miss May O'Neill; silver tea service, Mr. and Mrs. Philip O'Neill; cheese dish, Mr. W. Squires (R. N. Co.); silver and china breakfast cruet, The Misses Bartlett; hand worked cushion, Mrs. Capt. Lewis; berry set, Mrs. T. Moore; butter dish and teapot, Mrs. J. Conron, Harbor Main; trinket set, Miss B. Farrell (Royal Stores); bonbon dish and ornaments, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Veitch; hemstitched table linen, Miss Bell Squires; marble statues, Miss May Joy; champagne glasses, Mr. J. A. O'Neill; a beautiful silver and ebony timepiece, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Bowring; cut glass preserve dishes, Miss Clara O'Neill; embroidered barea scarf, Miss Phillonina O'Neill; handworked cushion, Miss Elsie O'Neill; salad dish, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sullivan, Brigus Junction; set of vases, Mrs. Murray, Brigus; coal vase and ornaments, Mr. Wm. Byrne; set of rose bowls, Misses May and Maggie Moore; a plaque, Miss Whinnie Boland; hot water jug, Miss Watts; china dishes, Miss Sadie Short; handworked dollies, Mrs. Barter.

The Flaming Arrow.

The great two part war feature advertised at the Crescent Picture Palace today is a celebrated Bison Indian Picture that has commanded big houses wherever shown in all the large cities of America it is the story of White Eagle, an educated Indian. Its perfect photography and vigorous acting will certainly appeal to the patrons of the popular Crescent, a very pretty and effective rural drama is portrayed by the Nestor Company in "Be It Ever So Humble." A county girl with a beautiful singing voice is induced by a manager to join his opera company, and after becoming rich and famous goes back to her native village as "there is no place like home."

A lovely Victor drama is "His Vacation," an office clerk secretly loves his employers daughter and dreams of the vacation he'd like to have.

Jack McDonald sings a fine ballad by Joe Goodwin and Leo Wood: "You Broke My Heart to Pass the Time Away."

The usual extra pictures will be shown at the Saturday matinee.

The Bulwark Disaster.

The spirit of the community had only just risen yesterday with the highly favorable news from the Eastern theatre of war, when it was suddenly damped by the story of the Bulwark disaster. In a moment of time, while the men were passing ammunition into the magazine, cheerily, and while the band on board was playing, an explosion in the magazine occurred, and in a flash what had been a battleship with a company of 751, was shattered to splinters amidst thunder and smoke, and almost the whole company hurled into eternity. When the smoke disappeared only a few men were seen struggling in the water and but twelve were rescued. In its awful suddenness, it is the most stunning blow of the war. The loss of the battleship, the first one to go, if we discard the story of the super-dreadnought Audacious, was bad enough, but the hurling to eternity in a moment of time of 300 men who had no thought of death at the time, is a shocking tragedy. The loss of the battleship itself is of comparatively small account. She is but one of a fleet of dreadnoughts, battle cruisers, and battleships forming 111 capital units, and she is one of the battleships built in 1902 and carried four 12-inch guns, and was of a type that would not now be put in the first line of battle against German Dreadnoughts, like the Audacious with her ten 13.5 inch guns. The calamity is in the loss of the men who were aboard at a time when death was not expected, and through causes that could as well occur in times of peace, just as a similar disaster occurred to a French warship a few years back off Toulon. The loss of life is not as great as occurred in the naval engagement off Chile, when the Good Hope and Monmouth were lost, nor as occurred when the three cruisers Hogue, Aboukir and Cressy were torpedoed. In the first case, however, the men were engaged in battle and realized the fate that was before them, and in the second case, the disaster did not occur with such awful suddenness. The price of Admiralty is a high one, and we are paying it with the best of our blood. Such a set-back will only spur on the doggedness of our people to maintain our supremacy on the sea at all costs. It will spur on recruiting for both services, for it is a curious feature of our dogged British character, that success slackens recruiting and disaster spurs it on. The British are not craven. If they have to pay the price, they will pay, and see the fight out to a successful finish.

Enthusiastic Patriotic Meeting!

AT PETTY HARBOR AND THE GOULDS.

A patriotic concert and meeting was held last night at Petty Harbor. The concert commenced at about 8 o'clock and was held in the spacious hall recently erected there. The concert was conducted by Rev. Mr. Hewitt and Mr. H. J. W. Bishop, and Mrs. Hewitt and Miss Hewitt looked after the musical part of the programme. Patriotic songs and choruses were rendered magnificently. After the first part of the programme had been gone through, stirring patriotic addresses were made by the Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, A. E. Hickman, Esq. M.H.A., Hon. J. R. Bennett, Colonial Secretary, and M. J. Kennedy, Esq. M.H.A. on the present war and on the responsibilities which devolve upon the people of this colony as a portion of the British Empire. The addresses aroused much enthusiasm among those present and will no doubt have great effect in helping on recruiting. The second part of the programme was then disposed of and the meeting broke up amid great enthusiasm. The Prime Minister and party then went on to Bernack's where a largely attended meeting was held at 10 o'clock. Addresses were made by the different members of the party and were well received by the people. Much meetings created considerable interest among the residents of the Goulds and Petty Harbor and Petty Harbour and good results may be looked for. We may mention that already a number of fine young men have gone from these places to swell the ranks of England's defenders on land and sea.

Makes Hair Grow

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.
If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.
The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.
It destroys the dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

Germany Began War to Obtain New Domains

London, Nov. 20.—The London Daily Chronicle publishes a resume of an article written by Maximilian Harden, one of the most influential German journalists, who, it will be recalled, denounced conditions in the Kaiser's entourage, and emerged triumphant from the libel suits that ensued.

In his present article, Harden loudly claims for Germany the honor of having willed and encompassed the war.

"Let us drop," he says, "our miserable attempts to excuse Germany's action. Not against our will and as a nation taken by surprise did we hurl ourselves into this gigantic venture. We willed it." We had to will it. We do not stand before the judgment seat of Europe. We acknowledge no such jurisdiction. Our might shall create a new law in Europe. It is Germany that strikes. When she has conquered new domains for her genius, then the priesthoods of all the gods will praise the God of War.

"Germany is not," he continued, "making this war to punish sinners or to free oppressed peoples, and then to rest in the complacency of disinterested magnanimity. She set out from the immovable conviction that her achievements entitle her to demand more elbow room on earth and wider outlets for her activities."

THE HOUR OF GERMANY HAS STRUCK.

"Germany's hour has struck," he says, "and she must take her place as the leading Power. Any peace which does not secure her the first position will be no reward for her efforts, however many shining milliards be brought into her treasury."

"The fate of Europe would still depend on the will of the United States. Germany is fighting for herself alone and yet she is sure that all men who desire the good-will of the world will rejoice in the result for there must be end of the policy which had frightened off all free-born people from fellowship with the strongest of continental powers."

"What Germany needs is free access to the ocean and unquestioned validity for her spirit and speech, for her goods and her bills of exchange."

"We will remain in the Belgian Netherlands," Harden asserts, "to which we will add the narrow strip of coast as far as Calais. This done, we will voluntarily close the war, from which we have nothing more to gain. After as far as Calais. This done, we will return to the joys of work and only take up the sword again if you try to force from our grasp what our blood has won for us."

"We demand no formal conclusion of peace in parchment and seals. Our prisoners will be set free. You can keep your fortresses if you think them of any value, and hold it worth while to rebuild them. To-morrow life assumes its ordinary course."

Huns Murder in Every Village.

London, Nov. 20.—The Belgian Commission of Inquiry into alleged German violation of the laws and customs of the war has issued another lengthy report, which is published to-day by the British Official Bureau.

It covers what is described as the "Massacre at Tamines." "The Sack of Dinant," and the "Outrages in the Province of Belgian Luxembourg."

The report says that over 650 persons were shot by the Germans in the village of Tamines. Referring in detail to this alleged massacre, the report describes how a group of between 400 and 450 men were collected in front of the village church. As shooting them down with rifles proved too slow, German officers ordered up a machine gun, and those not killed by the bullets from this weapon were finished with bayonet thrusts.

According to the commission's report more than 700 of the inhabitants of Dinant were killed.

Eighty-four of these were shot to death on Parade square and fifty others outside a church from which they had been driven by the Germans. The report alleges that over 1,000 similar executions occurred in the province of Luxembourg.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

Princess Patricia's Made Up Largely of English Born.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Men of English birth supplied not less than 54 per cent. of the total membership of 1,161 of the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry, which is now almost ready to leave for the front. Men of Scottish birth supplied 13 per cent., of Irish birth 6 per cent., while 10 1-2 per cent. of the force was supplied by Canadian born. The remaining seven per cent. were supplied by men claiming various places of birth in the Empire and elsewhere.

The above figures are gathered from the enrollment list of this crack regiment which is now almost ready to print. Some indication of the composite nature of the regiment may be gained from the following figures, showing its composition from the standpoint of birth of the members: English birth, 715; Scottish, 148; Canadian, 118; Irish, 73; Welsh, 9; India, 7; United States, 7; Australian, 6; South African, 4; Cape Colony, 2; France, 2; Jersey, 2. While there was one each from Barbados, Italy, Egypt, British Guiana, Gernsey, Denmark and Malta. When it is considered that the Princess Patricia's were organized with a view of procuring as great a proportion as possible of men who had been active service, and that the greater number are possessed of medals won in the Empire wars, the proportion supplied by Canada is by no means discouraging. The regiment was strictly hand picked in respect of former service qualifications. It was therefore to be expected that men of British birth would predominate in its ranks.

The proportions given above cannot be said to apply to the Canadian Expeditionary Force, where larger proportion of Canadian born was to be found, owing to the fact that former active military service was not insisted upon as a qualification of enlistment. The figures, however, for the expeditionary force are not yet available as the enrollment lists have not been received from England. It is interesting to note in connection with the Princess Patricia's that a very large proportion of the next of kin of even those of British birth have their residence in Canada.

London, Nov. 20.—A Reuters despatch from Berlin gives the official announcement that Major-General Von Voelke-Rheta, Quartermaster-General of the German Army, has died suddenly from heart failure.

Condemns Wilson

Boston, Nov. 20.—Bitter condemnation of the administration's course in the Tennessee incident was voiced by Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, at the Middlesex Club dinner last night, according to details which leaked out to-day.

Senator Lodge was quoted as saying that, "within three days after the Tampico incident, which was comparable to the Tennessee matter, there was shedding of blood. "Think of the fury and excitement at Mexico's insult and the meekness with which the American Government is considering the Turkish incident," the Senator concluded.

A Wounded Scott's Great Heroism.

A typical instance of soldiers' heroism in battle and stoicism in suffering was related to me by a soldier of the 1st Hussars. After the marvellous charge of the Highlanders on the German heavy guns near Harboursund on the 17th inst., the Hussar was sent with a message to the base. On the way he encountered a Seahorse Highlander going in the same direction. Something in the man's set face prompted the question: "Are you hurt?" "Aye, a sma' matter," was the reply. A small matter, truly, the man's arm was shattered from shoulder to elbow. "Are you going to sick bay," said the cavalryman. "It's a mile and a half away. Get on my see." "No, no," said the Scott, "I'll just walk, you'll find many worse hit than me."

New Schooner.

From the shipyard of Messrs. John Penny & Sons, Ramona, was launched to-day, a new schooner of 45 tons, called the "Marie P.," built by the well known builder of Placentia, Mr. Thos. Palfrey; this is the fourth schooner built for Messrs. Penny and is certainly the prettiest he has ever built. She is of the new class semi-knockabout, substantially built. The builder deserves great credit for such a schooner built on such graceful lines.

CALM IN THE WEST.

PARIS, To-Day. An official communication to-night reads: In Belgium to-day complete calm prevailed. At the centre there was cannonading, but there were no infantry attacks. There is nothing of importance to report from Argonne. There was a small engagement east of Verdun.

GERMAN RETREAT FROM LODZ.

PETROGRAD, To-Day.

The following official statement from general headquarters was issued to-night: In the battle of Lodz, which continues to develop, the advantage remains secured to our troops. The Germans are making strenuous efforts to facilitate the retreat of their corps which, having penetrated in the direction of Brzeziny, are now retiring to the region of Strykow under conditions very unfavorable for them. On the Austrian front our action continues with success. In the fighting of November 25 we took as many as 8,000 prisoners, including two regiments with their commanders and other officers.

SERVIANS CLAIM VICTORY.

PARIS, To-Day.

A victory for the Serbians in their fighting with Austrians in North-western Serbia is reported to-day in a despatch from Nish. The combats occurred on Nov. 22nd, says the despatch, along positions to the east of Rogatitza, attacks being made by us on the enemy's forces on our left wing. Along the front from Lazaretsz to Mironitza we maintained all our positions. Attacks of the enemy southwest of Lazaretsz were repulsed. From our point of view the day ended favorably for us. After the fighting of Nov. 23rd the enemy was constrained to retire and retreat disorderly. At some points we took a number of prisoners.

RUSSIAN MOVEMENTS EXPLAINED.

LONDON, To-Day.

Professor Bernard Pares, the British Government's correspondent at the Russian army headquarters, in a despatch dated Nov. 25, dealing with the general Russian advance, says after the Russians had held the River Saar for nearly a month against the Austrians, word came to go forward. The river was crossed, the enemy driven from the trenches and neighboring villages were forced further back. The advance was triumphant at all points, says Professor Pares. The Austrians were driven southward and westward. Some were pressed against the Carpathians at a point where there are only two passes, the difficulty of which will hardly admit passage of field trains. Others were pressed back on Cracow, where the line of the Russian advance is now complete. The Russian impact on Cracow promises the first settlement of the destiny of West Galicia, where the population is Polish and ready to respond to the appeal of Grand Duke Nicholas, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian forces. The next gap is to be made between the Austrians and Germans, who are already retiring in mutual dissatisfaction in different directions, where political interest must cause more differentiation. The further advance through this gap will be on Slavonic territory, as Southern Silesia, up to the River Niese, mainly Polish or Bohemian Czechock, in general largely friendly to Russia and quite hostile to Germany. The Germans are doing all possible to make diversions on other sides. Stopped and driven back near Miawa, seventy-five miles northwest of Warsaw, they have made a serious effort on both sides of the Vistula, near Plock, but have been decisively repulsed, the inhabitants giving effective aid in bridging the river. They are now attempting to force a strong wedge into the Russian front between the Vistula and Wartha Rivers, but so far the Russian line, which everywhere is continuous, is reinforced wherever necessary. Strong reserves successfully outflanked every local German advance. Meanwhile a double Russian advance in East Prussia from east and south is overcoming numerous obstacles and making rapid progress and avoiding enveloping in the thickest fortified line on Mazurian Lakes. Here too the subject population is chiefly Polish.

BLEW UP GERMAN AMMUNITION TRAIN.

LONDON, To-day. A Chronicle correspondent in Northern France says, "On Wednesday about noon, a tremendous explosion was heard and felt for miles along the allies' line. The source of explosion apparently was behind the German line. Later it was learned that British naval airmen had dropped a bomb on a German ammunition train which blew up."

ASHORE ON CLYDE.

GLASGOW, To-day. The steamer Cassandra which sailed from Halifax, November 15th, for this port is aground on the Clyde near Candross. The Cassandra sailed for England with horses and deals.

GIFT TO FRANCE.

MONTREAL, To-day. Montreal City Council has made a grant of $10,000 to France as a gift to the country in connection with the war.

GERMAN ARMY CORPS SURRENDERED, ANOTHER PUT TO ROUT.

PARIS, To-day.

Telegraphing from Petrograd regarding the fighting around Lodz in Russian Poland, the correspondent of the Main says, "One German army corps which was surrounded by Russian troops, surrendered in a body." This represents nearly 50,000. Another corps which had been cut off has now been completely put to rout. The Russians are attacking along the Czenstochowa-Cracow line with redoubled intensity.

Vigorol

If you want to feel well, bright and cheery, full of ambition; be able to move about quick and smartly—VIGOROL, the Great French Tonic, will brace you up—it cleanses the whole system. If the manufacturers could only impress this upon every one who does not feel as they ought to, the world would owe them a great gratitude; but all we can do is to ask you to try one bottle and see for yourself. The change will be wonderful. You need a spring medicine—then take VIGOROL. Sold at all drug stores.

Sunday's Collection.

Sunday's collection The annual collection for the Christian Brothers will be taken up at all the R. C. churches in the city on Sunday next. The record of the devoted teachers since their coming to the country, their unselfish interest in the cause of education, and their many needs caused by the increase of their teaching staff, should warrant a substantial collection this year. The Christian Brothers have since the opening of their schools here, turned out men of worth in the commercial, political and other walks of life, and as an appreciation of their past efforts, and the continuance of the same untiring zeal in the cause of education, Sunday's collection should be a record one.

A Good Time to Change

If you have been using a mixture of cream of tartar and soda for quick baking you will find it profitable, because of the increasingly high price of cream of tartar, to use Royal Baking Powder instead.

It will pay you to do this because the price of Royal, which is made from highly refined cream of tartar, has not been changed, and because you will find it in every way more satisfactory than the use of home-made mixtures to which you have been accustomed. Royal Baking Powder is famous for its absolute purity and its reliability as a quick raising agent.

A Much Needed Law.

By RUTH CAMERON.

There are certain minor laws which I should like very much to see passed, and one of them is a law that illustrators shall read and understand the stories which they illustrate.

What do you think about such a regulation? Don't you think it would add to the satisfaction and happiness of the reading public enough to make up for any painful sacrifices on the part of the illustrators?

I do. Of course I realize that their time is very valuable, but I think they can afford to consider the pleasure of the man who hires them and pays the bills rather more than they do. And that man, in the last analysis, is you and me, and we do cling to a sneaking preference for having the pictures in our story books conform to the texts, don't we?

Not long ago I read a book in which the heroine loses all her money and becomes so poor that her next meal is a problem. Yet in the last chapter, just before the happy ending restores her to her former glory, she is represented by the artist as beautifully gowned and wearing ermine. That particular book, I really cannot blame the artist for not reading; I'm not sure I should myself, if I hadn't been lured on by a clever press agent. But last year in one of our most popular magazines there was published a clever and rather sensational story about the life of a young girl in New York, in which even an illustrator might have been interested. One of the characters in the story is the editor of a great Metropolitan daily. He was pictured by the artist as the acme of virility and crude force. You could almost feel your magazine shake when he pounded the table. He was sketched by the artist as an anaemic looking man whom a doctor would have sent to a sanitarium on sight. I could not believe until after repeated comparisons of the text and the picture that the drawing was actually intended for H—B—. If you read the story, which you probably did, I am sure you will know whom I mean.

I have an ambition. Some day I want to write a love story about a girl who isn't pretty. I want to have her just an ordinary woman like most of us, and I mean her to have as wonderful adventures as the most beautiful heroine. I confided this intention to a clever woman and she retorted, "It won't do you any good to say that your heroine is plain. The artist won't permit her to be. If you say she is as non-descript as an English sparrow, he'll sketch her as a scarlet tanager."

She was right. I read a story in a magazine along these same lines the other day. The heroine is a non-descript little person, sweet, but not at all pretty. She wins the magnificent hero away from the prettiest girl of the summer resort, and thereby thrills us ordinary folk with the pride of kinship and the feeling that we might have done likewise. And of course the artist has spotted it all by making her an amazingly pretty girl with fluffy hair and the latest in figures. The artist who thus insulted the non-pretty (there's a vast difference between that and homely, you know) by believing her impossible of winning the hero had the credit of starting me on this campaign. I trust all non-pretty women will join me in it. Or aren't there any?

Marching On.

The world is growing better as it jogs along its way, though virtue seems, at seasons, to be belling little hay; the wicked one may conquer, and be chesty for a day, but Right is marching on. The people oft are bunked by the fakir's rigmorales, and they hand the Right a package when they gather at the polls, but they can't be fooled forever—they'll awaken, bless their souls! And Right goes marching on. The world is growing better, though the pessimists proclaim every city is a Sodom and the government a shame; we are wise to all the knockers and despite their dreary game, and Right is marching on. Oh, the right will never falter all its journeying is done; every day a little nearer to the palace in the sun, the Right is marching on. It must cross the hills of Hatred, it must breast dark Error's flood, and the wicked will pursue it with a lusting for its blood, but the outcome still is certain, and the wicked's name is Mud, and Right goes marching on. It will always come forth smiling from the shadows of despair, it will live through every ambush, it will laugh every snare, it is mighty and undaunted, all the time and everywhere, and still goes marching on.

S.U.F. Patriotic Lecture Last Night

STIRRING APPEALS MADE.

The first of the series of Patriotic Lectures of the course, which will be given under the auspices of the St. John's Lodge, S. U. F., was the object of setting forth the seriousness of the great European conflict took place at the British Hall last night before a large gathering.

His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson, under whose patronage the meeting was held, attended and on arrival were received and welcomed by the S. U. F. Officers, while Mr. J. J. Slattery, who presided at the piano, rendered the British and Freesch National Anthems. Mr. J. M. Kent, K.C., M. H. A., and Mr. J. W. Withers were also present.

Mr. J. A. Clift, K.C., Grand Master of the Lodge, fulfilled the duties of Chairman and made a happy speech. He expressed the hope that the other forty-two branches, with an aggregate membership of about 3,700 would take the cue and have similar gatherings. No time should be lost and every effort made to enable our people to get a grasp of conditions as they really are, and what led up to this serious war, to encourage recruiting and to set forth the duties we, as British subjects, owe to our King and Country. The true spirit of loyalty and patriotism should be bedded in every heart now and the speaker felt sure that if this was done Newfoundland would not be lacking in proving a worthy member of the Empire. The Chairman then introduced Mr. A. B. Morine, who treated his audience to a most interesting discourse, expounding the whole situation. Britain only acted in self-defence, began the lecturer. The assassination of the Austrian heir was used by Germany as a pretext for war. The attitude of the Russian nation was not an aggressive one. They mobilized to protect themselves. The annexation of Bosnia by Austria was objectionable, yet the latter declared war, because Germany forced her on. In pursuance of her doctrine that "might is right" and in accordance with the motto "Domination or Nightfall," Germany made a most unjustifiable invasion of Belgium. A review of the commercial advances of Germany was then given, her efforts to build up an Empire in Africa and her gigantic efforts towards the building of a navy to destroy England. But Great Britain's navy was never better prepared to maintain her supremacy on the seas. Britain was most anxious for peace in all her negotiations, prior to the declaration of war, and now she was in Germany was going to be the victim of her own arrogance. Continuing, the speaker then reviewed some of Britain's great statesmen whose work will become historical, such as the diplomacy of Grey, the financing of Lloyd George, the conduct of naval matters by Churchill and the statesmanship of Asquith were all dwelt upon. He also spoke of Kitchener and Jellicoe as worthy of special note and also of the deeds of some of the French and Russian Generals. The speaker graphically portrayed the work of the British Navy which was effectively protecting the seas and by her efforts was protecting her own as well as neutral shipping and enabling us to carry on our commercial and industrial activities. Victory for Britain, said Mr. Morine, will result in a more united Empire. He thought that some form of conscription would be adopted when the war is over and emphasized that what we are doing for Britain in the shape of sending volunteers was only partial payment for the protection Britain is giving us. We should do our best to help in the great struggle so that when the history of the war is written, Newfoundland will be said to have done her part. In conclusion, the speaker advocated more patriotic teaching in our schools.

Mr. W. J. Higgins followed, and in a stirring address contrasted the spirit which animated the soldiers of Germany and Britain. To the former army, the gospel of might has been preached, while the motto of the British soldier is Right. Britain's representatives had made every possible attempt to preserve peace, but would not accept it on Germany's terms, since it would mean the sacrifice of the honor of the Empire. Grey's efforts towards peace, and the stout refusal of Germany's terms for the neutrality of Belgium, which meant the sacrifice of France will be recorded in the pages of history.

He then went on to summarize the causes that led up to the war, and compared the attack of Germany upon the little peaceful country of Belgium to the action of a bully who robs a small boy of his marbles. The teachings of the leaders of thought in Germany had resulted in transforming the peaceful and industrious citizen into the Prussian soldier, and the seeds sown by these teachers had borne a full harvest of militarism. The ultimate object of the Kaiser was the crushing of Britain, and for this purpose had organized a system of espionage, which he considered perfect. In this he was completely mistaken. His emissaries had informed the Canadian "was" disloyal, that India would not respond because of troubles regarding entrance to Canada; that Ireland was on the verge of a revolution, and accordingly the Kaiser thinking the opportune moment had arrived sought a

Are You Droopy, Tired, Worn Out!

Here is Good Advice to All Who Feel as if Their Vigor and Life Had All Oozed Away.

This Condition Can be Quickly Cured by a Good Cleaning Medicine.

Your experience is probably somewhat similar to that described by Mr. J. T. Fleming in the following letter from his home in Lebanon: "I think I must have the most sluggish sort of a liver. In the morning my mouth was bitter, and that foul, soft feeling that tells you, 'No breakfast needed here this morning.' A cup of coffee would sort of brace me up, but in two hours I was disposed to quit work, all energy having oozed out of me. Supper was my only good meal, but I guess I didn't digest very well, for I dreamt to beat the band. A friend of mine put me wise to Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I think they must have taken hold of my liver, perhaps my stomach, too, because at the very start they made things go right. Look at me now—not sleepy in the day-time, but hustling for the mighty dollar and getting fun out of life every minute. That's what Dr. Hamilton's Pills have done for me—they have rebuilt and rejuvenated my entire system."

To keep free from headaches, to feel young and bright, to enjoy your meals, to sleep sound and look your best, nothing can help like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, five for $1.00 at all druggists and storekeepers or post-paid from The Catarhoxone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

pretext for what had been seriously thought of for many years. That he had not reckoned with his host has been amply proven by the united Empire that has confronted him. "Disloyal" Canada has her "thousands at the front," "troublesome" India has given unsparingly of her princes and men and "rebellious" Ireland has, as in all Imperial matters, shown her unwavering loyalty to the Empire. Australia, New Zealand and Newfoundland have also shown their devotion to the Motherland. This country had always boasted of her loyalty, and now the opportunity to substantiate that claim of being the oldest and most loyal of Britain's dependencies. The speaker then made an earnest appeal for further help from the oldest Colony in the great struggle in which the Empire is involved, and concluded with the verse:—
The meteor flag of England shall yet
Till danger's troubled night is past
And the Star of Peace return.

His Excellency the Governor in person and now she was in Messrs. J. L. Slattery and P. Cornick, and were well received. Before the close of the meeting the chairman announced that it was the intention of the S. U. F. to hold lectures fortnightly in order to encourage recruiting. He also read notes from His Lordship Bishop Jocks and Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris who deeply regretted their inability to attend, the latter being out of town.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening to a close. There are bracelets of fur. They have a frill of tulle falling over the hand and are worn with the steeple-top gown.

Private Murphy

Pond Farm Camp,
 Salisbury Plain,
 England.
 Nov. 28, 1914.
 To the Secretary of Dalton Division,
 St. John's Ambulance Overseas Brigade.

Dear Sir,
 I suppose a few lines from one of your members with the 1st Nfld. Regiment will be welcome, as I know you often think of us, and will be watching our career with interest. I am glad to say, (but I suppose from an ambulance point of view I should say sorry) that our troops are all in good health, and do not need our assistance very much at present, so we have lots of time to get up our drill.

We have fine camping grounds here, but it is raining nearly every day, and this makes it very unpleasant. We have our new uniforms now, and it gives the regiment a smart appearance. They are second to none around here. We have had several route marches, and for endurance our boys are ahead of any; and I believe when the time comes that they will give a good account of themselves.

The weather is warm, and we are still living in tents; but on fine days, which are scarce, we are able to eat our meals outside, although in November. There are a big lot of troops camped around here, and it is worth the while of enlisting to see this big place, and the great life here every day; for the Canadians have nearly everything required for a force to go to the front immediately.

We've met a big lot of Newfoundlanders amongst the Canadians and as far as we can hear, there are a large number amongst them, and they are all doing well.

I know, of course, that something in our own line would be more interesting to relate, but as I said before our boys are too healthy, and are waiting for Germans before they will require us. I don't know of anything else at present to write, so with best wishes to yourself and the boys.

I remain, yours truly,
 M. J. MURPHY.

P.S.—Pardon the manner in which this is written, as it is some trouble before one's used to writing by candle light, with your knee for a desk.

Ex-Captain Charged.

Hugo Jobet Falke, an ex-captain in the German Army, was charged at North London yesterday with failing to notify the police that he had a camera and photographic materials in his possession when registering himself as an alien enemy.

John Eugene Morrison, an American, was charged with aiding Falke in the commission of the offence.

Mr. C. V. Young defended Falke.

On September 2, both the prisoners were taken to the police station, and some questions was raised as to Morrison's nationality. He claimed to be an American citizen, but a letter from the American consul asked for proof. In another paper found on him he claimed to be a Russian subject.

Morrison: I am a clerk here to—
 The Magistrate: I will undertake to say by the way you speak that you are a German.

A tailor named Shank, of Riverdale Road, Highbury, an English friend of Falke, said that on the declaration of war he assisted Falke to become registered. Falke then handed him a parcel which he said contained papers and things he prized. The witness was to keep the parcel unopened until Falke wanted it back. When the parcel was opened by the police it was found to contain a military revolver in leather case, a quantity of live cartridges, three German military decorations, a plan of London, a guide to London and a guide of Great Britain, and a quantity of German playing cards.

A remand was ordered, both the accused being detained in custody—Observer.

TRAPNELL

The Eyesight Specialist.

Examines the eyes without DRUGS, DROPS or DANGER. He not only finds the trouble, but with his perfect optical machinery he can grind the correct lenses to suit the most complicated cases, and do it quickly.

There was a time when all compound lenses had to be sent out of the country for grinding a delay of three or four weeks. But that day has passed; an hour or two is sufficient to produce an lens that may be called for.

Prescriptions filled; of broken lenses replaced if you have the glasses.
