CHAPTER XIII.

"Oh, we weren't saying anything particularly bad," responded Nora, with a tinge of colour in her face; "but I see we shall have to be careful. Perhaps you left him as a spy, Mr. Chalfonte?"

"That's it," assented Jack; "but he can take care of you at the same time, if you'll have him. It's much jollier for him down here, with plenty of space to run about, and the rabbits and the rats, than it is in my hutch of chambers."

"Oh, I'd love him to stay," said Nora. "But wouldn't you feel very lonely without him?" she added quickly, and with a note of sympathy in her voice which made Jack's heart leap. "You're both so fond of each other."

"Oh, he'll be as fond of you in a day or two, even if he isn't now. He's an appreciative kind of chap, and he knows when he's well off. I'll leave him here—in fact, I'll give him to you, if you'll have him."

She looked at him; she, too, was an "appreciative chap," and knew what the gift must mean to him. She shook her head as she said, with affected lightness:

"No; but you shall lend him to me while you are not here. He'll have a master and a mistress then." She stopped, and her face grew scarlet as she realised the maladroitness of the speech; but Jack was what his charwoman called "a puffcock gentleman," and he ignored her unhappy little remark and kept a perfectly impassive countenance.

They went into the library, Jim trotting behind his co-owners, and Jack, getting out his papers and memoranda, went through the various items of business.

"I've arranged to rebuild those cottages, have instructed an architect to draw up some plans, and we'll set to work as soon as possible," he said. "We'll begin at the Delmans' first; they'll have to move into one of the cottages at the end of the lane while the rebuilding's going on."

"The Delmans?" said Nora. "Oh, yes; Mrs. Feltham was telling me about them and their glovemaking. That was the daughter I saw you speaking to yesterday, wasn't it? She is a very pretty girl—more than pretty."

"Yes, isn't she?" said Jack. "And

And the Worst is Yet to Come—

she's rather original in her way—quite a sharp little girl. She's got an idea of—"

He checked himself, for he remembered his promise of secrecy. He tried to finish the sentence in some other way from that in which he had intended it, and naturally he looked rather confused. Nora, noticing his pause, looked up from the paper she was reading and regarded him with faint surprise.

"You were going to say—?" she asked.

"Oh, about the Delman girl," said Jack disingenuously, and frowning slightly, for he was annoyed by his slip of the tongue and the fact that he was concealing even so trivial a matter from Nora. "Oh, she's rather a quick little person; a bit above her position and all that; fond of books and that kind of thing. About Gibson's lease," he went on, quickly; and Nora listened to his explanations as if she had not noticed his slight discomfiture.

Jack joined the ladies at lunch, and it was a very pleasant meal; indeed, it would be difficult for any meal to be a dull one when Jack was at the table and in his gayest and most irresponsible mood, as he was to-day. He and Mrs. Feltham exchanged badinage, while Nora, for most of the time, sat silent, her elbows on the table, her chin in her hand, and a smile on her face, as Jack told them of Jiggles, of the humours of the Law Courts, of all sorts of amusing things. She knew that, though he was addressing Mrs. Feltham most of the time, he was doing his best to cheer her, Nora, up. It was a very good best indeed, and, as usual, she was grateful to him: Nora's gratitude towards Mr. John Chalfonte was becoming chronic.

"Well, the workman's dinner-hour is up," he said at last, "and I must get back to my toil."

"He'll find the easiest chair in the smoking-room and smoke his pipe, my dear," said Mrs. Feltham blandly. "On the contrary, madam," retorted Jack. "I'm going to tramp over to one of the farms. The pump has gone wrong, and I know that the whole family will perish of thirst rather than try to see what is the matter with it."

"Jack's the most amusing man I know," remarked Mrs. Feltham, with a laugh, when he had gone. "He was always like that from a boy. The best of good fellows."

To this Nora made no response; perhaps she did not think one was needed. A little before tea-time she saw, from the window of her room, the Ferndale pony-carriage, and Lord Ferndale on horseback, coming up the drive. She went down instantly and out through the open door to meet them. Lady Blanche's pale face flushed at her new friend's eager welcome. "You're a dear to come to meet us," she said. "We'll drive round to the garden, and I'll sit in the carriage."

"Oh, but you'll do no such thing!" said Nora, promptly. "Lord Ferndale must carry you in—or I could, for that matter; there's a comfortable sofa I've had my eye on for you ever since you said you were coming."

Ferndale, who had not yet spoken, took up Lady Blanche and followed Nora into the smaller drawing-room. Nora wheeled the sofa to the open window and the invalid was deposited on the couch, without any fuss whatever.

"It's good of you to come so soon," said Nora, drawing her chair close up to the sofa and taking Lady Blanche's hand. "The wonder is I didn't come round this morning; Edward had some difficulty in restraining me. What a pretty room, and what a perfectly lovely garden!" She might just as well have added, "And what a lovely mistress!" for her eyes were eloquent enough.

"You must drive round the garden," said Nora. "I'll have a seat, a comfortable lounge, put up in one of the shady arbours, so that you can lie there whenever you like; and you must come whenever you feel disposed, as Salrey Gamp says."

The brightness of the sound, healthy girl produced its reflection in the weak and ailing one.

"Then I'd better come and live with you altogether," she said, with that frankness which is the peculiar characteristic of the well-bred.

"That would be delightful," said Nora; "but I know you would not desert Lord Ferndale."

"No, I'm afraid I couldn't spare my sister," said Ferndale, speaking for the first time. He was standing by the window and looking out at the expensively-cared-for gardens, and probably was comparing them with his own unkempt one.

The two girls went on talking, and he took a chair and sat silent, clothed, as it were, in that calm impassivity which sat upon him as naturally as a garment. His attitude and manner of aloofness were, of their kind, perfect; it was as if he were encased in a mental armour which rendered him impregnable to the ordinary assaults, the feelings of ordinary folk; and Nora, as she glanced at him, thought that, clad in the appropriate costume, he would make a splendid model for a Spanish hidalgo.

Mrs. Feltham came in; tea was brought, and the conversation went on in pairs. Nora did not like to have the servants in attendance at tea-time, and Lord Ferndale assisted Mrs. Feltham with the cups and the plates; and he endowed the trivial service with a kind of dignity, nobility; really, he did not need the cloak and gold-hilted sword, as he moved to and fro with a peculiar but wholly unconscious grace. Mrs. Feltham spoke, now and then, in a well-bred way, of Nora, and with that delicate appreciation and praise which a woman of her class can use so felicitously; and in the pauses of the conversation Ferndale's dark eyes wandered to the girl, as she sat close to Lady Blanche, whose eyes were bright and who laughed now and again at something Nora was saying.

Then Jack's manly step and voice were heard in the hall, and he entered. It chanced that, as he came in, Ferndale's eyes were on Nora, and he saw the unmistakable expression which a woman wears at the entrance of a man she likes.

"You've come just in time," said Mrs. Feltham. "There's a fresh pot of tea. Lady Blanche, this is my cousin, Jack—Mr. Chalfonte."

Jack, with his pleasant nod to Lord Ferndale, went to the couch and bent over Lady Blanche with the indefinable manner, the tender sympathy, of the strong man for the weak woman; and Lady Blanche, after one swift look at him, held out her hand.

"We've heard of you, Mr. Chalfonte," she said in her low, yet clear, voice.

"Yes, I'm well known to the police, as the man said when they asked him for a character," said Jack; and Lady Blanche laughed back at him with a brightness so unusual that Lord Ferndale, standing a little apart, looked at her studiously, reflectively. "You'll have another cup of tea to keep me company, or I shall feel so awkward."

She nodded smilingly, and Jack took her cup to the table. As if he

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save 25, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home. Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth); then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for five times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy cures a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membrane, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat-tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

were displaced and his services were no longer needed, Ferndale returned to the window with a kind of dignified effacement; but he turned again courteously as Jack went up to him and began with the universal topic, the weather. Ferndale responded almost in monosyllables at first, but after a while he relaxed, if he did not altogether melt, in the warmth of Jack's sunny geniality.

Ferndale, it appeared, was interested in Jack's profession, and was evidently somewhat surprised that Jack hadn't much to say about it. On the other hand, Jack found Ferndale irresponsible on the subject of sport; Ferndale did not hunt, but merely hacked; and their conversation began to show perilous signs of drying up, when the watchful Mrs. Feltham came to their relief; and a very little time afterwards Ferndale glanced at his watch, remarking to Lady Blanche that they were making an unseasonable visitation.

"You must come over to me," said Lady Blanche, as her brother picked her up. "Come over to-morrow, and I'll show you the Abbey, if you care to see it. Edward shall carry me round and act as guide."

"That will be delightful," said Nora, and she meant it.

The three Chertson people stood on the steps as the Ferndales went off, and Nora turned to Jack with a fervent, "Isn't she lovely—and lovable?" Jack nodded. "Poor girl!"

"Oh, but she's quite happy," pleaded Nora; "and that's why one loves her. She not only does not utter a word of complaint, but makes light of her affliction. And her brother—oh, I've never heard, read, of such devotion. No wonder she loves him!"

"Yes, Lord Ferndale seems a decent chap," responded Jack, but by no means enthusiastically. Perhaps he was conscious of his lack of warmth, for he went on quickly: "Awfully good-looking man; about the handsomest I know; every inch a nobleman, and all that."

"Oh, I'm so glad you've got on with Lord Ferndale," said Nora innocently. "No doubt you and he will be great friends."

"No doubt," assented Jack, with a wooden face and the voice of a talking machine. "Anyhow, you and Lady Blanche have evidently struck up an eternal friendship."

"Simply eternal," Nora declared, emphatically.

"Well, I must catch my train," he said.

"Oh, I thought you were going to stay the night," Nora said, as casually as she could; for she was disappointed.

The Back Aches

Possibly you do not realize that this indicates derangement of the kidneys. Neglect usually means the development of Bright's disease. You know how dreadfully painful and fatal that is. There is quick relief for the kidneys in the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This medicine is known in the great majority of homes as the greatest of regulators.

GERMANY MUST WITHDRAW FROM INVADIED TERRITORY.

WASHINGTON, October 8.

President Wilson to-day informed the German Government that before the United States can discuss an armistice, German troops must withdraw from all invaded territory. He asked Chancellor Maximilian whether he represented the German people or the authorities of the Empire who are conducting the war. The President's message was not a reply but in the form of an inquiry. The Imperial German Government is asked whether it accepts the terms laid down by the President in his address to Congress on January 8th and subsequent addresses. In announcing this action, Secretary Lansing issued the following:—From the Secretary of State to the Charge d'Affaires of Switzerland, Dept. of State, Oct. 8, 1918. The text of the communication handed to the Charge of Switzerland here follows: "Sir, I have the honor to acknowledge, on behalf of the President, your note of October 6th, enclosing the communication from the German Government to the President, and I am instructed by the President to request you to make the following communication to the Imperial German Chancellor: Before making reply to the request of the Imperial German Gov't, and in order that the reply shall be as candid and straightforward as the momentous interests involved require, the President of the United States deems it necessary to assure himself of the exact meaning of the note of the Imperial Chancellor. Does the Imperial Chancellor mean that the Imperial German Government accepts the terms laid down by the President in his address to the Congress of the United States on the 8th of January last, and in subsequent addresses, and that its object in entering into discussion would be only to agree upon the practical details of their application? The President feels bound to say with regard to the suggestion of an armistice, that he would not feel at liberty to propose a cessation of arms to the Governments with which the Government of the United States is associated against the Central Powers so long as the armies of these Powers are upon their soil. The good faith of any discussion would manifestly depend upon the consent of the Central Powers immediately to withdraw their forces everywhere from invaded territory. The President also feels that he is justified in asking whether the Imperial Chancellor is speaking merely for the constituted authority of the Empires who have so far conducted the war. He deems the answer to these questions vital from every point of view. Accept, Sir, the renewed assurance of my high consideration. Signed, Robert Lansing. To Mr. Grederick Oederlin, Charge d'Affaires of Switzerland, ad interim in charge of German interests in the United States."

WAR REVIEW.

The complete withdrawal of the troops of the Teutonic Allies from occupied territory is essential to the commencement of any peace discussions with Germany. This fact has been made known to Germany and Austria-Hungary by President Wilson in answer to the recent appeal of the German Imperial Chancellor for an armistice on land and sea and in the air, and the discussion of possible means of ending the war. In addition President Wilson is desirous of knowing, and has directly asked the question who the Imperial Chancellor is speaking for when he addresses his proposal, if it was for the constituted authority of the Empire who have been conducting the war. The President also desires to know if Germany in seeking peace accepts the terms already laid down by the President as the basis for the ending of hostilities. Meanwhile, the Entente Allied forces everywhere are defeating the armies of the Teutonic Allies. In France they are fast carrying forward manoeuvres which are resulting in the enemy's line giving way from the region of Cambrai to Verdun. Likewise in Macedonia and Turkey theatres the cleaning process continues unabated. Over a front of twenty miles, between Cambrai and St. Quentin, the British and American and French troops have started a mighty drive, which, in its initial stage, has thrown the enemy back from highly prized tactical positions to a depth of from two to five miles. Numerous towns have been captured, and seemingly all the great defensive positions of the enemy in this region have been obliterated. Large numbers of prisoners have been added to the already great throngs captured since the Allied offensive began. In addition, terrible casualties were inflicted on the enemy by the heavy artillery which began early Thursday morning, and the machine gun and rifle fire of the attacking force against the enemy, who resisted stubbornly at various points. The American troops fighting alongside the British always were in the van, and when night fell their positions were where the points of penetration of the German line were greatest. At last accounts hard fighting was still in progress, with the enemy steadily giving ground. On the southern part of the battlefield from the Rheims sector to the Meuse River, the French and Americans are carrying out successfully their converging movement northward and on all sectors have gained additional ground. Northeast of Berry-au-Bac the French have driven their line to the junction of the Aisne and Sappe Rivers, placing the German front around Leon and eastward in greater jeopardy. In Champagne, General Gouraud's forces have increased their gains all the way eastward to the region of the Argonne forest, while on the eastern side of the forest the Americans have improved their battlefield along the Aire valley. In Macedonia the Italians and Serbs are still forcing the enemy troops to retire, also in Albania and in Serbia, while in Palestine the British have driven the Turks more than thirty miles north of Damascus. Reports are to the effect that the Turkish cabinet has resigned and that the Turks have sent delegates to Greece to talk peace.

BULGARIANS SURRENDERING.

SALONIKI, Oct. 8. In addition to the thousands of Bulgarians made prisoners during the Allied advance in Serbia and Bulgaria 65,000 more have surrendered in accordance with the clause of the armistice convention under which all Bulgarian troops west of Uskub were to surrender as prisoners.

REPLY TO BE FOR ALL BELLIGERENTS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. President Wilson's reply to Germany's latest peace proposals was being formulated by him to-day in accordance with views expressed by the Premiers of the Allied nations. Dispatch of the reply which it is believed will speak for all the nations opposed to the Central Powers may be expected within forty-eight hours, it is indicated. The President it was believed to-day has preceded the actual sending of the reply by asking Premiers Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Orlando to advise him of their answers or by submitting to the Premiers a draft of his reply for approval. At any rate it was assumed the American reply will have the approval of Great Britain, France and Italy and all of the other co-belligerents. The form of the reply of course has not been revealed in any particular. The President is known to be giving unlimited care to the framing of the document, denying himself his daily recreation and studying the questions involved. Colonel E. M. House, the confidential adviser of the President, spent last night at the White House. The feeling that coincident with or closely following the despatch of the reply President Wilson will address Congress persisted to-day, although with absolutely no official confirmation.

HAS DONE WHAT IS NECESSARY.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 8. Commenting upon the address by Prince Maximilian, the new German Imperial Chancellor, the Tagblatt of Berlin says: All Germany, or at any rate that great honest and good Germany which is imperishable, feels that Prince Maximilian, in accordance with his duty and as a servant of his people, has done what is necessary.

ple, has done what is right and necessary. Why haven't we learned earlier to know ourselves. A sample of pan-Germanic comment may be found in the editorial printed on Sunday by the local Anzeiger. Definitely announcing that the German people will to the last drop of blood fight those whose aim is to dictate a humiliating peace, the newspaper somewhat peremptorily admonishes President Wilson to realize the "superhuman responsibility placed upon his shoulders" and in magisterial tones hopes, "He will prove himself worthy of this responsible hour."

SOME DIVISIONS WIPED OUT.

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES. Oct. (By J. F. B. Livesey, Canadian Press Correspondent)—Troops from the Maritime provinces, Quebec and four western provinces as well as former Canadian Mounted Rifles are holding our line north of Cambrai with men of the Imperial troops on our left. This line is in parts improvised and men are objects of much harassing enemy fire. Looking down on Cambrai from St. Oile free can be seen burning, but there is nothing to indicate that a system of attempts has been made by the enemy to destroy the city. It is much more likely that he is burning his dumps and heavy plant he cannot move out preparatory to his evacuation of the city. Prisoners captured confirm the impression that the enemy lost tremendously in the terrible struggle of last week when his massed infantry formations seeking to push against us along the ravines, were exposed to the point blank fire of our artillery and riflemen. So severe was his punishment they state that some of his divisions are wiped out, and in no condition to push on another assault for the possession of the high ground and Bourlon Wood. The logic of the situation is that unless he can do this Cambrai becomes increasingly difficult for him to hold. If lost he would still have Lille, Valenciennes and the Hirson line, which are possibly his last lines of defence on this front.

ENGLISH AND AMERICANS ATTACK.

LONDON, Oct. 8. Successful local operations were carried out yesterday in the neighbourhood of Mont Brehain and north of Beaurvoir in which English and American troops captured over 230 prisoners. Shortly before dawn this morning British and American troops attacked between St. Quentin and Cambrai, in spite of a heavy rain which commenced last night and is still continuing. The first reports indicate that satisfactory progress is being made.

LAST LINES OF DEFENSE SMASHED.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 8.—The battle begun at dawn to-day has resulted in a serious defeat for the enemy. The British, Americans and French have advanced everywhere smashing through the last lines of the Hindenburg system and driving the disorganized Germans before them. In some places, and especially at Premont which appears to have fallen to the Americans the fighting allied troops have penetrated the German lines and are still advancing. Premont which is reported to have

ANOTHER OFFER OF PEACE.

ATHENS, Monday, Oct. 7. Delegates from the government at Smyrna, Turkey, are expected to reach Athens to-night with an offer of peace to the Entente powers.

STILL ADVANCING IN SYRIA.

LONDON, Oct. 8. General Allenby's cavalry on Sunday occupied the towns of Zeah and Rayak, respectively, 33 and 30 miles north west of the Syrian capital of Damascus, according to an official statement issued to-day by the British War Office.

GERMAN ADMISSION.

BERLIN, Oct. 8. American forces in the Argonne region yesterday renewed their attacks on both sides of the river Aire after the strongest artillery preparation. British troops on the front north of the Scarpe river advancing to the east of Oppy have gained a footing in the town of Neuvilleul says the official statement issued to-day by the German War Office.

DOESN'T LOOK LIKE PEACE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. Huge increases in the artillery programme have been decided on by the ordnance department which to-day asked the house appropriations committee to add $1,100,000.

SLEMP IN SHIPPING STOCKS.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 7. Bulgaria's withdrawal from the war and subsequent peace developments have played havoc with Scandinavian shipping stocks. Norwegian estimates that one hundred war millionaires have been wiped out by the break in Norwegian shipping receipts alone. In a single day it is estimated that the value was $33,000,000. These losses were chiefly on securities of small companies operating one or two ships whose stock has been selling as high as 400 because of stiff freight rates.

ADVANCED FOUR OR FIVE MILES.

LONDON, Oct. 8. The Anglo-American offensive on the St. Quentin sector has resulted in an advance at some places of four or five miles, according to the Standard's correspondent. Many villages and prisoners have been captured.

SUCCESSFUL ATTACK.

LONDON, Oct. 8. The third and fourth armistice attacks on a front of about twenty miles this morning between St. Quentin and Cambrai and have advanced along the whole of the front to an average depth of about three miles. The night had stormy making the assembly of troops difficult. The assault was launched in a downpour of rain. As the attack progressed the weather cleared favoring the development of the operations which from the first were completely successful. On the extreme right of the British attack English divisions have driven the enemy from the ridge of high ground southeast and east of Mont Brehain and have captured the hamlet of Beaurgard. In the right center the 39th American division comprising troops from North and South Carolina and Tennessee, under command of General Lewis, captured Brancourt after heavy fighting. Further to the northeast they took Fremont, completing a successful advance of over three miles in the course of which they cleared the enemy from a number of farms and woods. On their left English, Scottish and Irish battalions captured the village of Serain early in the day. In the center English and Welsh battalions broke through the German defence system, known as the Beaurvoir Masnières line and captured Malincourt. Obdurate resistance was met from strong bodies of the enemy with machine guns at Villers Outreaux. After hard fighting the Welsh gained possession of the village. In the left center the New Zealanders broke through the Beaurvoir-Masnières line and made deep progress to the east of it. The New Zealand troops stormed Lesdain early in the morning and pressed on carried Ennes. On the left of the attack we had hard fighting about Serain Villers and along the line of the Ennes Cambrai road. In this sector the enemy counter attacked strongly, using tanks to support his infantry. After pressing us back a short distance the counter attack was stopped, the enemy tanks being put out of action. We regained possession of Serain Villers and Niernigias and resumed our advance. North of the Scarpe we have captured a German trench system known as the Fresnes Rourvoy line from the Scarpe beyond Oppy, and have taken Fresnes-les-Montauban and Neuvilleul. A thousand prisoners and many guns have been captured in these successful operations. Progress continues to be made along the whole front.

WEEK'S CASUALTIES.

LONDON, Oct. 8. British casualties reported in the week ending to-day listed the names of 37,946 officers and men divided as follows: Officers killed or died of wounds 365, officers wounded or missing 1,235, total 1,600; men killed or died of wounds 6,150, men wounded or missing 30,196, total 36,346.

NUMEROUS PRISONERS TAKEN.

LONDON, Oct. 8. At four o'clock this afternoon the positions between Cambrai and St. Quentin was that the French starting from Rourvoy had captured the hills to the eastward and the villages of Essigny and Fontaine. The Anglo-American line was Beaurgard-Dancourt, through Premont, Serain and Malincourt and west of Hallincourt, up by Essens and La Targetel and Niernigias to the old line south of Cambrai. The attack, roughly speaking, was on a front of sixty-one miles and advance was to an average depth of two miles and a maximum depth of three miles. Weaker resistance than usual was met at the centre, but the enemy south of Cambrai brought up two fresh divisions and counter attacked heavily. These attacks were repulsed and all lost ground was regained. The prisoners taken were numerous.

Flour, Sugar and Molasses. The new regulations recommended by the Food Board fixing maximum retail prices on flour, sugar and molasses, to come into effect after this date, is the outcome of information lodged with the Board during the past few weeks.

Within the City, sugar sold from 11 cents up to 16 cents per lb., second grade flour up to $16.00 per bri., while in some Outports sugar went as high as 17 cents, second grade white flour to $17.50, and molasses sold at the rate of $1.40 per gallon.

The Board therefore concluded that to fix a maximum price at the level of the Outports would threaten the existence of such stores, who were known to be serving the interests of a large clientele, and in many cases selling at a low margin of profit, on which a concern operating a grocery and provision business only could not survive.

DRIVING FORWARD.

(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The attack begun this morning by the British and American forces on the Cambrai-St. Quentin front, has become constantly interrupted by pre-arranged objectives, and the bounding up of as many Germans as possible. It had been necessary to assemble the assaulting forces to the front of the Hindenburg line, and to bring the masses of men in through the intricate and battered trench system in the dark. It was a task of extraordinary difficulty, but it was accomplished well before the zero hour, comparatively few tanks were employed. In fact this was a night surprise and it must be remembered like their opportunities and the necessity for their assistance. The Anglo-American attack was launched at 4.30 o'clock in the morning. In the darkest hour of a quiet moonless night, twenty miles of guns suddenly flashed forth in a hideous dissonance. Another phase of the battle was witnessed at 4.30 o'clock, and yet another phase when the first grey dawn was filtering into the dull sky.

NOON.

(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The public learns that to-day's offensive comprised three attacks by British, French and American troops along the whole Cambrai-St. Quentin front. The French captured the hills eastward toward Rouvois, and the village of Esniguy and Fontaine, while the Anglo-American line reached Neuveglise, Braucourt, through Perdalton, Serait, Mailcourt, westward toward Courcelles, Ennes and Niergnies to the old line of Cambrai. The average depth of two miles, and a maximum depth of three. A weaker resistance than usual was encountered at the centre, but the enemy brought two fresh divisions south of Cambrai, and counter-attacked heavily, but were repulsed.

ALL DEMAND PUNISHMENT.

(Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—In discussing the ultimate peace terms, newspapers refer with the deepest indignation to the outrage still perpetrated in Germany's re-occupied territory, and unanimously demanded reparation and punishment for this atrocious crime, as well as for the atrocious record of the German occupation throughout the war. The Brussels Telegraph says that the evacuation of Belgium will not undo the crime of 1914, and reparation for the least must also be made, for Belgium has first claim on Germany's conscience.

Chicago.—Stories of plots to destroy industries by sabotage were told on the witness stand recently by Joseph Durball, former member of the Industrial Workers of the World, who testified as a government witness against the 112 I.W.W., charged with violating the espionage act.

DRIVING FORWARD.

(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The public learns that to-day's offensive comprised three attacks by British, French and American troops along the whole Cambrai-St. Quentin front. The French captured the hills eastward toward Rouvois, and the village of Esniguy and Fontaine, while the Anglo-American line reached Neuveglise, Braucourt, through Perdalton, Serait, Mailcourt, westward toward Courcelles, Ennes and Niergnies to the old line of Cambrai. The average depth of two miles, and a maximum depth of three. A weaker resistance than usual was encountered at the centre, but the enemy brought two fresh divisions south of Cambrai, and counter-attacked heavily, but were repulsed.

ALL DEMAND PUNISHMENT.

(Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—In discussing the ultimate peace terms, newspapers refer with the deepest indignation to the outrage still perpetrated in Germany's re-occupied territory, and unanimously demanded reparation and punishment for this atrocious crime, as well as for the atrocious record of the German occupation throughout the war. The Brussels Telegraph says that the evacuation of Belgium will not undo the crime of 1914, and reparation for the least must also be made, for Belgium has first claim on Germany's conscience.

On Taking for Granted.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"My heart leaps up when I behold
 A rainbow in the sky.
 So it was when my life began,
 So is it now I am a man,
 So may it be when I grow old
 Or let me die."

—WORDSWORTH.
 Help me to keep from taking things for granted. Don't you think that would be a very good prayer for most of us to add to our daily petition?

A kind act is done for you, you see a beautiful thing, and you are filled with gratitude that your blessings continue, you forget to be thankful at all.

Now She Takes Her Mother's Help for Granted.

I have a friend whose mother lives with her. The friend has two children under five, who kept her very much tied down; and when her mother first came a year ago, she was full of gratitude and relief for the way in which the latter lifted the burden off her shoulders.

"Two or three afternoons a week," she told me at the time, "Mother takes the children while I have a good, long nap. It does me a world of good."
 The two or three afternoons gradually became every afternoon where-as the gratitude, instead of increasing, seemed to diminish. In fact, I actually heard her finding fault, the other day, because the mother had gone off to town and had not come home in time to give her her regular nap.

I Think I Should Be Tempted To Cure Her.

If I were her mother I think that instead of apologizing for the offense, I should be inclined to repeat it,—and keep on repeating until she remembered to notice the times when I helped instead of only those when I failed to help.

It is the same with beautiful things. If we see them daily, a film seems to come across our eyes that withholds us from seeing clearly how beautiful they are.

Why Don't We Have Lovely Sunsets Every Night.

Perhaps that is why we do not have a beautiful sunset every night—because if we did, we should soon cease to know how wonderful it is. The nights between, when the sun sets in grey clouds or with only a touch of colour, make it possible for us to appreciate the banner nights when the sky flames with gold and crimson or flushes all over with exquisite pinks.

Of course it is inevitable that accustomedness should dull us to beauty. If it did not, we should be too sensitive, like the lady who "died of a rose in aromatic pain."

But it is so easy to go too far in the other direction and take too much for granted. Look into your life and see what you are taking too much for granted,—an unselfish wife, a kind, good husband, a beautiful garden, freedom from money worries, the chance for a good education, health, self-sacrificing parents, a lovely home—which of these blessings have you forgotten to thank and be thankful for?

Valuable Find.

While Harry C. Dally was cleaning codfish at the rate of one every three minutes on a schooner in the Behring Sea, he saw something shine in one fish, and picked out a diamond engagement ring which a San Francisco Jeweller says is worth $500. Inside the ring are the initials "C. to J." Dally says the loser may recover the ring by proving property.

WHATTYGET TO EAT!
 Never thought about it much in the days of long ago. That it was a boyish louch. Then I didn't seem to know. Never thought that I'd recall simple words that he'd recall. As he rushed into my hall: "Whattyeget to eat?"

Started as a lad of five or six. Clamoring for "kiss or pie. "Hungriest little boy alive. "Many and many a time, said I. Seeking me in eager feet. And excitedly he'd say: "Whattyeget to eat?"

Home from school he'd daily run. Thinking of the pantry shelf. Cookies vanished, one by one. With him I learned to help himself. "Hello, Ma; I'm back again!"

Was his little greeting sweet? Then a boyish smile, and then "Whattyeget to eat?"

Fads & Fashions.

Large hats are edged with fur. If one material is good, two are better. One new side tunic is finely pleated. Wool embroidery adds color to fall hats. Tall crowns are a feature of new millinery. Now wide braids make fashionable sashes. Corded muffs made of soft plush are charming.

Milady's Boudoir

PEACEFUL BEAUTY OF MIDDLE AGE.

As long as the middle aged woman feels young she will seem young and she will feel young only as long as she can live in the present and future and not in the past. In dress she must not repeat the mistake of former days and compete for the adornment triumphs in which the young have the advantage.

Friendship, intellectual and social triumphs, useful work and absorbing hobbies are the opportunities before the middle aged woman. She should determine to be self sufficient, for the nearer she approaches a serene independence of the favors of others the happier she will be and the pleasant companion she will make. She should be ready to give but not too eager to receive, since no tragedy is sadder than that of the mother whose desires for the children who have gone away, cuts like a sword into her soul, or of the single woman because love has passed her by.

The woman of old times who lived by her affections often suffered cruelly, but what broke her heart generally causes the modern woman to harden her heart, as she is beginning to have interests of her own which do not wholly forsake her own in circumstances of distressing loneliness and disappointment. She finds so much to do and to see, for there has never been an era like the present one, so rich in opportunities for useful work, for travelling, for culture with a thousand doors open to women with brains.

The Right Step.

In suppressing La Croix, a Montreal weekly paper, the Chief Press Censor for Canada took a step for which he is to be commended. The freedom of the press is one thing; unpatriotic license by a newspaper is very much another thing. On a number of occasions since 1915 La Croix is alleged to have published articles reflecting upon Great Britain and the Empire's allies and in its issue of three weeks ago it embarked upon what was apparently just such propaganda as the Hun would desire to see initiated in Canada and coupled with other matter a sneering, bitter attack upon President Wilson. It approved the hypocritical peace scheme of the Central Powers as put forward by Austro-Hungary, and described President Wilson's sharp refusal of the Vienna proposal as due to "the cowardice of the Yankee who calculates especially on the profits he can snatch from the ruin of others." Mr. Wilson, La Croix said further, was "afraid that the Central Empires of Europe may yield to the demands of the Allies and that the stream of gold that flows through the country of Uncle Sam may dry up."

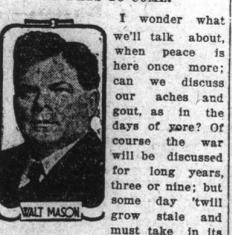

A native German propagandist would scarcely wish to change a word or put the slander upon Mr. Wilson and the American nation in stronger terms. Other Quebec papers such as Le Soleil, one of the foremost Liberal papers of the Province, and La Patrie, a leading French Conservative journal, were quick in their indignant denunciation of La Croix's conduct and it was certain that to allow the paper to continue to circulate among the people might have serious effect upon the mind of the unlearned. Last week the Chief Press Censor stepped in and ordered the paper's suppression. In his official capacity the Chief Press Censor is not especially popular among Canadian newspapers, though his personal popularity is undiminished, but every newspaper, except, of course, Henri Bourassa's Le Devoir and Le Nationaliste, will heartily approve of the course he has taken in this instance.—Sydney Record.

Reprisals Urged

Washington, Oct. 2.—An ultimatum to Germany regarding the ruthless destruction of cities and private properties in Northern France and Belgium is being urged on the Allies and is under consideration.

The burning of Cambrai and St. Quentin and the devastation of one of the most populous regions of Europe on the German retreat, has aroused great indignation and it was said in diplomatic circles to-day that Germany will be warned that if she allows the work of destruction to continue, severe reprisals will follow. It is suggested that the cities of the Rhine should be marked for destruction and the Berlin Government told that for every French and Belgian city ruined without military reason a city equally important and valuable sentimentally and materially will be laid waste.

IN DAYS TO COME.

I wonder what we'll talk about, when peace is here once more; can we discuss our aches and gout, as in the days of yore? Of course the war will be discussed for long years, three or nine; but some day, when the grow stale and must take in its gory sign. And when war talk has had its day, and has become a crime, can we trash out the price of hay, as in the olden time? Can you sit down with torpid friend, your back against a wall, and talk, for long, long hours on end, about a game of ball? And will you ever, do you think, wear out your trusty throat denouncing some long winded gink who'd like to have your vote? I wonder what will be our theme when war's been dead so long, it seems much like an evil dream that made a night go wrong. It's hard to think of grownup gents in all the years to come, discussing picayunes or cents, or pups or chewing gum. But doubtless in a little while we'll sing the same old tune, the same old schemes will be in style—for we forget so soon! And you will spend a lot of time discussing gnats and fleas; and I will write a noble rhyme about the grocer's cheese.

German Mining Property Seized.

London, Oct. 2.—Seizure by a British expedition of German mining property and other development plants in Spitzbergen, including a big wireless installation, is reported by the Express, with the intimation that the work of developing the immensely rich iron and coal deposits is progressing. Other Quebec papers such as Le Soleil, one of the foremost Liberal papers of the Province, and La Patrie, a leading French Conservative journal, were quick in their indignant denunciation of La Croix's conduct and it was certain that to allow the paper to continue to circulate among the people might have serious effect upon the mind of the unlearned. ## The Reply of All America.

The President's curt reply to the action of the Austrian note, correctly interprets the attitude of the American people. They say to themselves, "Can't Austria understand we mean what we say, and that being by victory in this war over-foes will achieve our purpose in As Burke said of the war with France in 1796, 'it is with an armed arm we are at war. . . . We are determined to persevere in it by every divine and human as long as the system which menaces them exists, and all equally, has an existence in the world.'"
 This note is the voice of the German High Command. In the mask of a wish to deal with the bloody, inhuman, treacherous, robbing, German High Command around a council board? What self-respecting nation would consult with a body whose deliberate national policy of terror includes the wanton murder of property and priceless life of women and unnamable atrocities in France and Belgium and Poland? How could we thus palliate arch-hypocrisy of the Brest-Litovsk treaty, the unutterable baseness of the secret dealings between the German Staff and Lenin and the gross deceit of the poor German people, and the secret but deliberate license of the same staff and Lenin to kill Russian nationalists but to save their plants and German capitalists. Germany be dealt with save as a criminal? Every soldier and every citizen who has been on the front, the parts of Belgium, France, Italy ravaged by German with terrific ferocity and beastliness, and heard from the mouths of their own men the details of their awful a sash that

The Reply of All America.

The President's curt reply to the violation of the Austrian note cordly interprets the attitude of the American people. They say to themselves, "Can't Austria understand it we mean what we say, and that thing but victory in this war over Austria will achieve our purpose in As Burke said of the war with France in 1796, "it is with an armed arm we are at war. . . . We are and to persevere in it by every means divine and human as long as the system which menaces them (Austria) and all equally, has an existence in the world." This note is the voice of the German High Command. In the mask of Austria it can be discerned if it falls, it wishes to deal with the bloody, inhuman, treacherous, robbing, German High Command around Council Board? What self-respectation would consult with a body whose deliberate national policy of terror includes the wanton destruction of property and priceless works of art, the murder of non-combatants, the rape of women and unnamable atrocities in France and Belgium and Austria? How could we thus palliate arch-hypocrisy of the Brest-Litovsk treaty, the unutterable baseness of the secret dealings between the German General Staff and Lenin, and the gross deceit of the poor scoundrel, and the secret but brutal license of the same staff, Lenin and Trotsky to kill Russian patriots but to save their plants, German capitalists, Germany not be dealt with save as a criminal? Every soldier and every comrade who has been on the front, seen the parts of Belgium, France Italy ravaged by German with terrific ferocity and beastliness, and heard from the mouths of their the details of their awful treatment, would be ashamed and disheartened at news of our conference with such a foe. Every mother and every father who has sacrificed dear ones in this war would be outraged at the thought the gold-laced savages of the German staff, who have made Attila and his Huns respectable, should stand on the level of conferees with our representatives. What possible good would it have done? England, France and the United States have recognized the Czechoslovak peoples as an independent nation. That means the establishment by the treaty of peace of a nation of Bohemia, Moravia and the Slovak part of Hungary. We are committed to taking the Trentino from Austria and giving it to Italy. Does Austria now intend to make these concessions? England and France and the United States insist that justice must be done in respect to Alsace-Lorraine. Will Germany consent to this until she is beaten to her knees? We have promised justice to Russia—that includes Lithuania, Esthonia, Poland and the Ukraine, as well as Great Russia. Will Germany willingly give up her stranglehold on chaotic, betrayed Russia? Yes, when there is a sword at her throat, and only then. Will Germany restore Belgium and pay the great indemnities due for her crimes to that innocent stricken country? Will she do the same for northern France?

A wayfaring man though a fool can see that neither Austria nor Germany has any such terms as these in mind. They want to barter. They want to use their possession of Belgium, northern France, the Baltic provinces, Ukraine, Serbia and other countries as pawns with which to buy a peace. They seek the secret council table where they can huckster with peoples and territories. All the issues above set forth are living and concrete. They cannot be settled or avoided by vaguely idealistic generalizations. We never can agree on what with Germany or Austria until we strike them prostrate. Until they are thus induced to destroy their false gods, the Hohenzollern and Hapsburg dynasties and militarism; the indispensable lesson will not be taught either to them or to the world. Until then we cannot put the slightest trust in their covenants. Until then the parchments bearing their pledged faith are but "scraps of paper."

This peace offensive was put out to stir among the peoples of the Allies the weak, the cowardly, the weary, the sad, into an organized party seeking a compromise peace. It is inept. The French, English and Italians have new hearts with the coming of our fresh American armies. Solomon advises against setting a snare in the sight of the bird. This transparent move of the German cats paw comes to naught. It is gratifying only as a comedy. "When the devil was sick, the devil a monk would be." Any American with official responsibility who hearkened to this voice of the German devil would read his political death warrant in the protest of an outraged American people.—Ex-President William H. Taft in the Philadelphia Ledger.

Coffee often disagrees with the best of us
When you find it wise to stop coffee for a few days on account of disturbed digestion or too much nerves, switch to Postum and note the result.

Many people who love their coffee follow this plan with excellent results.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal which must be boiled, and Instant Postum, made in the cup in a moment. They are equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

"There's a Reason"

Spanish Influenza.

In view of the experience of the Canadian cities, it is the opinion of the medical practitioners of St. John's that we are almost certain to be visited by an epidemic of influenza, and a meeting was held Monday night to consider what means might be adopted to prevent its spread. Unfortunately it is a disease in which quarantine is not applicable. Meanwhile it is the duty of every citizen to take every possible means of avoiding it, and to avoid the spread of it, and to take sufficient rest that the system may be in a condition to fight off infections. Manufacturers are advised to vigorously guard the health of their employees, and to watch for the introduction of influenza, in any form, among the operatives. To this end the foremen should be instructed as to the common symptoms, which are chills, headache, bodily aches and pains, sneezing a cold in the throat and head and physical depression with rising temperature. When such cases occur they should be isolated, as far as possible, within homes; and should have as little contact as possible with the workers of the family, and those whose duty it is to mix in public places. Employees should also be warned of the danger of spread through coughing, sneezing and coughing without the use of handkerchiefs. While these instructions are especially for the factories, they are also applicable to schools and all places of employment.

Fishery at Channel.

The following report of the fishery at and around Channel has been received: Last week operations were hampered by rough and foggy weather. The catch between Channel and Grand Bay (inclusive) was but 120 quintals for 50 dories and skiffs and two boats. There is sufficient bait, though present prospects are none too good. The total catch since the beginning of the fall fishing is 2020 quintals.

Greater Love Hath No Man.

CAPT. HERBERT RENDELL.

Yesterday's casualty list contained the names of two officers of "Ours," "Killed in Action." The first is Capt. Herbert Rendell, M.C., son of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Rendell, of this city, to whom the sympathy of the whole community goes out in their sad bereavement. This is the second great blow to Dr. Rendell and family brought about by the horrible war, for another son, Lieut. Clifford, died of wounds received on July 1st, 1918. Capt. Rendell was one of the noble band of Blue Crosses and saw service in the Gallipoli campaign. He has been several times wounded. For conspicuous gallantry in the field he was mentioned in despatches and awarded the Military Cross. When his regiment was out of action he took charge of a German prison camp. He was one of the most popular officers in the regiment. The late Capt. Rendell was an ex-student of Bishop Field College and an officer of the C.L.B.

LIEUT. LIONEL DULEY.

We also extend our heartfelt sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Duley, whose youngest son, Lieut. Lionel, has offered up his life for the great cause. Although only a youth of 20 years, he possessed the higher qualities of a man and all the good points that makes an efficient officer. Lieut. Duley left here with the "Windsor Draft" and after completing his training in the Old Country was sent to France, where he made the supreme sacrifice after a brief period in the firing line. Another brother, Lieut. Cyril, who was badly wounded in France is now doing duty here. Lionel Duley was an ex-pupil of the Methodist College and before enlisting was employed in the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

PTE. E. G. NOFTALL.

The Telegram for its readers also offers sincere sympathy to the relatives of Pte. Edward George Noftall, who died of appendicitis at the 3rd Australian Casualty Clearing Station. No less than those who went down before the Gallies of the Hun, Pte. Noftall freely gave his life for the cause to which he had committed himself, and his death is as heroic though less spectacular.

From the Far North.

The s.s. Nascopee, Capt. Smellie, reached port yesterday afternoon from the far north, reporting all on board well. The Nascopee left here on July 27th last, for Hudson Bay and experienced some difficulty getting down owing to the ice being late in leaving the bays. During the trip she visited the various stations of the Hudson Bay Co. in James Bay, Ungava Bay and Baffin Land, and at each place visited, the ship's arrival was greeted with pleasure by the people, to whom she brought large stocks of supplies, which well provided them for another year. The fishery in Ungava Bay was very good, part of the catch being taken on board, as well as a valuable shipment of furs. The following passengers came along: Capt. Mack, Supt. of the Hudson Bay Co.; Manager Ralph Parsons, Sergt. French, Const. Chin and Const. Crombie, of the Northwest Mounted Police; Agents Patmore and Dawson; Mr. Malby, mining engineer; Dr. Davis, who had been at Port Chimo several years; His Lordship Bishop Anderson, Rev. Mr. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Schofield and crew. Mr. Geo. Ford of this city, and a friend who brought a vessel north.

Liquor Cases Set for Saturday.

Summonses were served yesterday on Simon Levitz, Samuel Freilick and the Star Candy Co. Ltd., for having intoxicating liquors in their possession, contrary to the Prohibition Act. The trials will commence on Saturday morning next before Judge Morris. It is not likely that they will all be finished on that date, as there are many witnesses. The vessel was torpedoed without warning. The explosion occurred between the engine room and stokehold, a fact which is taken to rule out any possibility that the ship struck a mine. The explosion caused comparatively little noise, but caused the ship to buckle in a most extraordinary manner. She was injured at the extreme bottom and was bent and torn clear to the upper deck and seemed likely to break in two at any moment. In spite of the extent of the damage done to the Galway Castle, some of the crew declared that the impact was hardly greater than that of the vessel bumping heavily against the side of a quay. The inrush of water was tremendous. One engineer was swept into the tunnel from the engine room and drowned.

"I Need Hardly Say

how thankful I was to get out alive, and fully made up my mind that I would write and tell you how useful Dr. Chase's Ointment was." writes a survivor of the Gallipoli Peninsula campaign. "We found that it afforded instant relief from poison from shrubs and bushes, and got to using it for all manner of minor wounds and grazes."

Galway Castle Torpedoed Without Warning.
PASSENGERS HAD TO RUSH FROM THE SHIP IN SCANT CLOTHING.
Plymouth.—Heartrending scenes were witnessed here when hundreds of survivors of the torpedoed steamer Galway Castle were landed at seven o'clock Thursday morning. The passengers were mostly women and children, and it is believed that whole families have been lost. Among the survivors were little tots scarcely able to walk, crying in vain for their parents. Parents were searching in all directions for news of their children and women were seeking vainly for their lost husbands. It mattered nothing that warm, dry clothing was distributed to take the place of the scanty attire the survivors snatched as they left the ship. Their one thought was to get news of their relatives and friends.
There seems no reason to doubt that the vessel was torpedoed without warning. The explosion occurred between the engine room and stokehold, a fact which is taken to rule out any possibility that the ship struck a mine. The explosion caused comparatively little noise, but caused the ship to buckle in a most extraordinary manner. She was injured at the extreme bottom and was bent and torn clear to the upper deck and seemed likely to break in two at any moment. In spite of the extent of the damage done to the Galway Castle, some of the crew declared that the impact was hardly greater than that of the vessel bumping heavily against the side of a quay. The inrush of water was tremendous. One engineer was swept into the tunnel from the engine room and drowned.
Fearing that the liner would founder at any moment, Captain Dyer ordered the boats lowered and issued lifebelts to all passengers. One boat was swamped, another was damaged because the falls became fouled, and another was swept back against the liner by a wave and smashed by the propeller. Another narrowly escaped a similar fate.
Henry Burton, Minister of Railways for South Africa, who was among the survivors, was not inclined to speak of his own experiences, but joined with other survivors in praising the devotion to duty and the self sacrifice of the officers of the ship and the men on the naval vessels which rushed to the rescue.

Bold Robbers in Hold Up
GET BIG AUSTRALIAN HAUL.
Melbourne.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Two treasury clerks, conveying 14,000 pounds sterling to the government printing office for the payment of employees there, were held up by masked men with revolvers. The robbers escaped with the booty, but dropped a bag containing 3,000 pounds in the course of the hot pursuit. The acting officer in charge of the Victorian Railway Union has been arrested in connection with the robbery.
SMALLPOX SPREADING.—Another case of smallpox was reported yesterday afternoon to the health authorities from Bay Roberts.

Cure the Skin Through the Skin
It is now unoriginally established among skin specialists that eczema is purely a skin disease, due to a germ beneath the skin and curable only through the skin. Thousands of people suffer with skin disease who are perfectly healthy otherwise, which shows that their blood is not diseased. Ugly-tasting stomach remedies are therefore as worthless for skin diseases as they are for tooth-ache.
Eczema germs must be WASHED AWAY. Smearly salves do no good for they cannot penetrate the skin.
The merciful cure, the cure, and all the rapid increase of germs. The only way to reach the germs is by a penetrating liquid.
The D. D. D. Prescription, a wonderful new discovery for skin diseases, is a simple, scientific wash—a reliable home remedy that brings about marvellous cures in all forms of Eczema, Bad Legs, Pimples, Ulcers, Barber's Itch and all other skin ailments. D. D. D. relieves distress instantly, kills and washes away disease germs and leaves the skin wholesome and healthy.
