"POSSESSED."

An interesting realistic novel, being the story of Penelope Wells, her waywardness, suffering and regeneration in which is presented the truth about women that nobody tells.

American married life is laid bare in this powerful and absorbing novel. The story presents a keen analysis of the development of a woman's soul, and shows how Penelope's self-analysis saved her from perverted desires.

The author, "Cleveland, Moffatt", commands the entire attention of the reader from the first to the last page. Our special price $1.50 postpaid, on receipt of price.

Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XVIII.

Things were very badly arranged, he considered. He wondered what his friend would say if he could know that thought passing in his mind at that moment. Philip certainly looked anything but a happy bridegroom, even allowing for the sudden shock of his father's death, and a gnawing anxiety grew in Calligan's heart.

He was fond of Philip. The two men had always been close friends, but Calligan knew that if he ever discovered that Philip had been the cause of the tragedy in Eva's grey eyes it would mean an end to that friendship for ever.

Later on, when they were all making some sort of pretence at a dinner, he watched them closely, these two, who had been married only three days and who yet, even to his unobservant eyes, seemed so estranged and apart.

Eva and Philip sat on either side of the pathetically empty chair at the head of the table, and both of them tried to avoid seeing it.

Nobody wanted to eat; but it was something to do, and Calligan did his level best to second Eva's nervous attempts at conversation.

It was uphill work, and all three of them were glad when the meal was ended.

Eva went back into the drawing-room and knelt down by the fire; outside she could hear the steady rain pattering against the windows, and the wind sighing in the shivering trees.

Presently Calligan joined her; she looked past him as he crossed the room, hoping that Philip would follow.

Calligan read the wishfulness of her eyes. "Someone has called to see Phil on business," he said, quickly. "He'll be here in a moment."

He stirred the fire into a blaze. "Do you live in London, Mr. Calligan?" Eva asked him presently.

"I do—I rent a very modest sort of bachelor flat, which is looked after by a caretaker person. It's not in at all aristocratic neighbourhood—Tottenham Court Road way."

It did not convey much to Eva. "I am glad you live in London," she said. "You'll often be able to come and see us, won't you, when we settle down in our own home, I mean?"

"I shall be delighted, of course," he said. "But, as a matter of fact, an uncle of mine has just offered me the job of going to British Columbia for him for three months. Nothing very particular to do, you know—a cushy sort of job that will just suit me; as a matter of fact—he laughs rather self-consciously—"I had intended to ask Philip to come along with me—it wouldn't have been a bad trip for the autumn—but, of course, now he is married, it's all knocked on the head, naturally."

"Was he knocked on the head?" asked Philip's voice, coolly.

He had come into the room un-noticed, and was standing behind his wife. "It's just the kind of trip I should like," he added deliberately.

There was a moment of dreadful silence. Eva had flushed scarlet; she half turned in her chair; she raised her eyes to her husband's face—such wounded eyes they were—and her lips fell a little apart, childishly.

Calligan stooped hurriedly and began a furious onslaught on the fire; he was burning with indignation which he did not dare to show. Philip looked by far the least concerned of the three; he was selecting a cigarette from his case; he kept his eyes fixed steadily on it.

"British Columbia is a place I have always wanted to go to," he said casually. "When are you thinking of going, did you say?"

"I didn't say," Calligan's voice was brusque; he dropped the poker with a clatter. "As a matter of fact, I don't suppose I shall go at all."

"Well, if you do—," Philip took a long puff at his cigarette. "I'm your man. I should like to get away for a time. Don't forget."

Calligan did not answer; he could not trust himself to look at Eva; the silvery chime seemed a tremendous sound in the silence.

Eva counted the strokes mechanically; when the last one had died away she rose from her chair.

"I think I will go to bed," she said. "I am rather tired."

She held her hand to Calligan; she tried to smile, but it was a piteous failure. "Good-night, Mr. Calligan."

"Good-night, Mrs. Winterdick," she held her hand for a moment, then moved past her to open the door. Eva looked at her husband, hesitated a moment, then turned away. She passed Calligan with averted face; she crossed the hall and flew up the stairs to her own room. She shut and locked the door and fell face downwards on the bed.

Much as she had suffered during the past two days, to-night had been the worst of all.

She was here in Philip's home, but she felt herself a stranger and unwanted.

Mrs. Winterdick had received her kindly, but the girl had felt herself to be beyond reach of the elder woman's grief.

Much as she longed to help and comfort her, she had been thrown back on herself and had only been able to stammer a few words.

Philip cared nothing for her; she had never felt it so acutely as just now, when he had calmly announced that he would be quite willing to go off with Calligan to British Columbia. And they had only been married three days!

She did not cry; she just lay there, her eyes hidden; she felt humbled and shamed to the earth.

He had married her without a spark of affection for her, and now, having got his desire and saved his father's name, he was prepared to let her go to the wall.

"I can't bear it, I can't," she told herself in anguish; but she knew that she had got to bear it unless she wanted the whole scandal to be made public property; unless she wished to be pitied and discussed by the whole countryside.

She did not know how the time passed as she lay there in the silent room; the only stirrer when she heard Philip's voice on the landing outside. She started up then, trembling. But he was evidently only speaking with Calligan, for she heard him pass on, and then the shutting of a door on the other side of the landing and silence again.

And this was her home-coming! She wondered if any other bride in the whole world had ever had such a reception. She sat on the side of the bed, twisting her wedding ring and staring before her heart-brokenly.

She could have been so happy if only she would have let her. She could have made him happy, too, she was sure; but he did not want her. She had just been a means to an end, and now that end was accomplished she might go.

She looked round the room listlessly. It was a beautiful room, beautiful with an old-world sort of charm which is invariably associated with quaint chintzes and old-fashioned furniture.

Someone had put a bowl of white roses on the dressing-table; she looked at them with apathetic eyes.

The roses were a little dashed by the heavy rain, but their fragrance was sweet. Tears filled her eyes as she looked at them. She had had white roses in her wedding bouquets. She thought of the moment when she had dashed them across the room, trampling them under foot.

It was beginning to get light before she thought of undressing. A bird was twittering drowsily in the ivy on the house when she rose from the side of the bed and moved away to the window, drawing back the curtains.

The rain had ceased and a cool, pungent scent rose from the wet earth and dripping trees.

It was warm, too. The world seemed like some great, wonderful hot-house filled with rare and beautiful scents upon which one had just opened the closed door.

As she looked at it and the first pink glow of dawn in the face of the grey sky tears filled Eva's eyes.

She had not shed one all night, but now suddenly it was borne home to her, what a beautiful place the world really was, and how wonderfully happy one might be. . . . If only . . .

As she was brought up here by a chaos of perplexed, jumbled thoughts.

Life had gone awry, with her so suddenly and for one apparent reason; she wondered helplessly if she herself had been to blame, and if so, in what way.

She turned away with the tears running down her face and crept into bed. . . . And so ended the wonderful honeymoon which had promised so much and fulfilled so little.

Why Hermits?

Whenever a person takes a solitary existence, avoiding the company of his or her fellowmen, the world at large almost immediately makes up its collective mind that there is a love disappointment somewhere in the background.

The chances are at least three to one that the surmise is entirely wrong. Much the most common cause of this kind of voluntary exile is simply nervous shyness.

It is a disease which grows by indulgence, and more especially in such cases where the hermit has sufficient means to support life without working.

In a recent lawsuit there was mention of a rich man who lived in his own suits of rooms in a London, England hotel, and is practically never seen except by his own servant.

There are others who turn hermit because of some silly vow. One such I met years ago, says an English writer.

He was an Englishman whom his people had sent to Florida to grow oranges. This man loved law and hated agriculture and he swore that nothing would ever induce him to plant an orange tree.

So he built himself a little shack in among the pine trees on his own land, and lived there with no companions, but his law books, a bulldog, and a tame squirrel.

The habit of silence grew upon him, and soon he had shut himself up altogether and refused to receive callers.

There is no need to go far afield to find hermits, for a very perfect specimen resided not many years ago in a plantation at Great Cornfield, in Essex, England.

He was protected against intruders by an immense ditch and bank which he had dug. But he worked at night only, and during fourteen years only two people, besides his brother, had ever set eyes upon him.

Of a wilder type was a recluse who lived until quite recently in a rough shed high on the Welsh mountains, near Llandysul.

Wearing a sort of toga of Welsh flannel fastened around him with a rope he carried a bow of yew and arrows made of the ribs of old umbrellas. With these he was a dead shot and killed nearly all his food.

In "Great Expectations" Dickens tells the story of Miss Havisham, who waited vainly for the bridegroom who did not come.

Years after the great novelist's death a case of a French Miss, Vanvisham came about in real life. Her name was Mlle. Lera. Upset at the death of her betrothed, she shut herself up in her flat in Paris, drawing down the blinds and thickly curtaining the windows. There she lived in complete darkness for seven years, allowing no one in but a woman who, twice a month, brought her food.

At last the roof began to fall in, and the owners of the flat broke in so as to carry out the necessary repairs.

They found the poor woman in a dreadful state with the skeletons of two long-dead cats beside her. She had to be taken to the hospital in an ambulance, where she was undressed and given her first bath in seven years.

India a Land of Many Gods.

India is a land of many strange gods, some of them very strange indeed. They are encountered all over the country, but it is only in the holy cities that their presence in force is felt.

Of course, the grotesque shapes of the most popular gods are soon familiar, for their mediating outlines are painted on the front doors of houses or daubed on any spare wall. There is, for instance, Ganesh, god of plucky god of mirth. His characteristics are a monstrously developed stomach and an elephant's trunk, which does undoubtedly give him a jovial appear-

Mrs. Anna E. Hughes, 22 West Elm St., Chicago, an artist who enjoys a wide and enviable reputation for skill in china painting, in relating the facts of her remarkable experience with Tanlac, says:

"I haven't enjoyed such good health or felt so well in every way in years as I do now. Before I took Tanlac I was so run down that half an hour at my work would tire me completely out and I was actually so nervous and weak that at times the brush would fall from my hands and I would have to quit work for the rest of the day. Every night I would lie awake for hours, miserable and nervous."

"My improvement after the first few doses of Tanlac was rapid and constant. I'm happy to say I'm well and strong now and feel better than in twenty years. Tanlac deserves every word of praise I can give it."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

India is a land of many strange gods, some of them very strange indeed. They are encountered all over the country, but it is only in the holy cities that their presence in force is felt.

Of course, the grotesque shapes of the most popular gods are soon familiar, for their mediating outlines are painted on the front doors of houses or daubed on any spare wall. There is, for instance, Ganesh, god of plucky god of mirth. His characteristics are a monstrously developed stomach and an elephant's trunk, which does undoubtedly give him a jovial appearance. As he is also the god of learning most Indian books contain a little dedication to him on the flyleaf.

No less familiar is Hupooman, god of the monkeys, who has risen from the role of a holy monkey to being the patron of settled home life. No city of any pretensions is complete without a temple in his honor.

But the two supreme gods are Vishnu the Preserver and Siva the destroyer. Vishnu is said to have come down to earth nine times. He has had a many sided past, having taken the forms of a fish, a tortoise, a bear, and a lion, thereby increasing the popular regard for these animals.

But he is most widely known in his human shape of Krishna. As such he had countless wives and sons—amounting into hundreds of thousands—and his life was a queer mixture of feats of strength and love. He is easily identifiable, for he is painted a bright blue.

As with many other gods, his images are treated very humanly. Every day he is aroused from sleep, dressed and fed—the food being quickly polished off by the priests afterwards—and each night he is undressed, bathed and put to bed just like any human child.

Siva the destroyer, on the other hand, is rather a fearsome monster, with a predilection for burning places and graves. He has, however, most ungalantly passed his worst qualities on to his wife, the dread goddess Kali.

Rather curiously, the pair of them are worshipped as the creators, as well as the destroyers of life, so that childless women often direct their prayers to them.

There are said to be 330 million gods in the Hindu pantheon. The whole land is a maze of strange gods, varying from those that detect the least violence to those that are still supposed to be content with nothing less than human sacrifices.

Still, it has an amusing side. The profits from shrines are enormous. So long ago a holy man lived near a village, and his fame attracted many pilgrims. The saint continued to grow in reputation until one night the villagers, fearful that he might lose his sanctity or move elsewhere, strangled him in order to secure his tomb forever.

Nature's Daring Criminals.

SECRETS OF THE COCKOO DISCOVERED BY THE CINEMA.

For over a hundred years naturalists have been searching for the secret of the cockoo's egg-laying habits, and at last the puzzle which the wily bird set the world has been solved.

Hitherto the belief was that the cockoo carried her egg in her beak and deposited it in the nest of the hedge-sparrow or meadow-pipit. Films have been taken, however, which prove conclusively that this is wrong.

Mr. Edgar Chance, while carrying on his duties as managing director of more than one large industrial concern in the Midlands and elsewhere, is the man to whom credit for the discovery is due.

He made prolonged studies of the habits of the cockoo, and with the aid of a cinematograph camera he secured a wonderful record, which throws light on the bird's amazing cunning.

He found that the cockoo, first of all, watches prospective foster-parents meadow pipits in cases—and finds the best. Focusing all her attention upon the birds, she awaits until they leave the nest unattended, and then glides down from her perch, going through a performance which was never so much as suspected before.

In her beak she takes one of the pipit's eggs, slides on to the nest head foremost, and in the space of just eight seconds lays her egg, still holding the pipit's egg in her beak. This done, she slips off the nest backwards and flies away, still carrying the egg, at an incredible speed.

With regard to the time of laying, Mr. Chance discovered that while most birds lay one egg in the morning, the cockoo lays one egg in two days in the afternoon.

The effort continues for some time, and the perseverance of the young bird leaves no doubt as to its deliberate intent. Climbing backwards up the side of the nest and using its long, naked wing processes as props, it gradually lifts and then pushes its fellow-nestling over the side to its certain doom. The blind bird even feels round to make sure the deed is accomplished, and then descends and goes through the performance again until it remains the sole occupant of the nest.

A case was under observation in which a meadow-pipit was thrown from its nest. The ejected bird was replaced, but the next morning it was found to have been pushed out again.

The same performance is gone through when the mother bird deposits her eggs in the nest of a hedge-sparrow.

On one occasion a young cockoo was seen to push out of the nest four hedge-sparrows which afterwards were found lying dead on the ground.

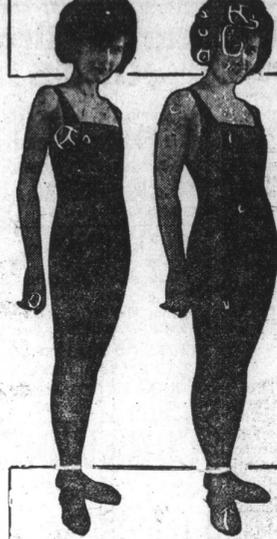

In this case again the outrages were committed before the cockoo could see. If the cockoo is hatched out, first it trigs the eggs in the same manner, and although the struggle may continue for hours, the end is always the same—the cockoo remains the sole occupant of the nest.

An Election Tale.

Here is an electioneering tale from "Here, There and Everywhere" by Lord Frederick Hamilton that will take some beating. In the North of Ireland, where majorities are often narrow, a very uncertain voter was a railway guard. He returned every day by the fast train from Dublin, due at 7.40 p.m., giving him ample time to record his vote. Lord Frederick's nephew was the candidate, and his election committee had written off the guard's vote as hostile. But they had reckoned without the signalman:—

"This signalman was a most ardent political partisan and a strong adherent of my nephew's, and he was determined to leave nothing to chance. Knowing perfectly how the last he was resolved to give the candidate no opportunity of recording possibly hostile vote, so, on his initiative, he put the signals at the Dublin train and kept her going for twenty-two minutes, to the widening of the passengers, the striking of the clocks and the closing of the poll. This he did at 7.40 p.m., giving him ample time to record his vote. Lord Frederick's nephew was the candidate, and his election committee had written off the guard's vote as hostile. But they had reckoned without the signalman:—

MINCE PIE.
I stood upon the coping of the tallest building known. And tried to walk that dangerous ledge, barefooted and alone. I started very bravely, then I turned to look behind. And saw a demon coming of the most ferocious kind. He bade me get a move on, and I started in to run. And I slipped and lost my balance, and I knew that I was done.

I had a wild encounter with a mad and awful beast. His eyes were bulged with malice, for he'd pick me for a feast. I tried to scream, but couldn't. Then he growled a fearful note. And gave one spring towards me and his fangs sank in my throat. One gulp and it was over--it was much too black to see. But I knew beyond all question that end had come for me. I tumbled from an aeroplane and looped and looped around. And was twenty-seven minutes on my Journey to the ground. I bumped a dozen steeples on my perilous descent. And left as many flagstaves either snapped off or bent. But when I woke, in terror, I discovered with a sigh. How much of real excitement lurks in mother's hot mince pie.

Making Gas Mantles.

Millions of incandescent gas mantles are used yearly in the United States, the method of lighting in which they are employed is now familiar to every one, although it was introduced only about 30 years ago. Yet very probably there are but few persons who use the mantles who know how they are made or what they are made of. Here is a brief summary:

Knitting. A thread of suitable size is knit into a tubular fabric on a machine modified from those used in knitting underwear. A large variety of stitches is made and designated as single weave, double weave, triple weave, etc.

Saturating. The lengths of knitted fabric are placed in a suitable vessel, and the so-called lighting fluid is poured over them. After the fabric is soaked in the lighting fluid for a certain length of time it is put through an equalizer for the purpose of equalizing the amount of fluid carried by each web. The fabric is then placed upon suitable forms of glass or wood and dried.

Sewing. The fabric is now taken and folded in at one end and carefully plaited and in asbestos cord drawn through to form the head and loop of the mantle.

Modelling. After the head is made the saturated fabric is shaped over a wooden form.

Burning out. The modelled fabric is then hung on a suitable hook and ignited at the top. The thread is burned out, leaving the ash composed of the oxide of thorium and cerium.

Hardening. After the cotton is burned out the soft, flabby ash is placed over a blowpipe, where the gas and air are controlled in such a way as to blow it out in the form of a mantle.

Dipping. In order to prepare the mantle for the subsequent handling and for shipment it is dipped into a bath of collodion and allowed to dry.

Trimming. After the collodionized mantles are thoroughly dried they are passed to an operator, who trims off the rough edges of the skirt and reduces the mantles to a uniform length.

Two Governors Resign

HIGH COST OF LIVING AND DOMINION APPOINTMENTS.

In the House of Commons recently Mr. Churchill informed Sir Newton Moore that the Governors of South Australia and Tasmania had, to his regret, found it necessary to resign their appointments. He could not say whether this step had been taken as a result of the heavy taxation now levied in England.

Sir Newton Moore asked whether in future appointments guarantees would be obtained from the governors designate as would prevent a repetition of such an unsatisfactory state of things.

Mr. Churchill said the question was a very difficult one in view of the heavy expenditure of the appointments and the difficulty of finding suitable persons who had sufficient private means.

Easing Up.

With the measures being taken by the Government to relieve unemployment, there should be a considerable easing up of the labor situation, providing that work giving an equivalent value for the money expended can be found for all those in the city who are off jobs on account of the lack of industrial employment. But St. John's is not the only centre where men seek fruitlessly for work. The outports can number their unemployed, if not by the hundred, at least by the score, and something has to be done for these. All the consideration cannot be given to the disadvantage of other sections, though we submit that for various reasons the unemployed of St. John's possess a first claim on such labor as can be found for them. The reasons for this assertion are apparent to the most casual student of the times. St. John's really was discriminated against deliberately in certain ways and by certain people, and to that discrimination may be charged present conditions of depression and lack of work. There is not any necessity to go further into the details of this. All are fully acquainted with them and will not fail to remember the one-time threat of a very prominent member of the Government. In a measure that threat has been put into execution. St. John's therefore has no reason to expect any favors at the hands of the gentleman who has practically made good his promise of destroying trade and industry so far as the city was affected. Nevertheless it is the bounden duty of the Government to provide means whereby those who need employment may have it. It is not the business of the Civic authorities, as pointed out by a correspondent in yesterday's Telegram to engage in relief or charitable measures. They have no power to spend ratepayers' money in such respects. The onus is on the Government and to the Government applications for work must be addressed. The employment of two hundred and fifty men at railway line repairs and the engaging of a similar number on improvements to public roads and highways will be of material aid in the present crisis, but other means will have to be found to embrace the thousand or more who do not participate in the work recently given.

Boy Nearly Drowned.

RESCUED BY FRIEND.
Yesterday afternoon, little Paddy Summers, son of Mr. P. Summers, Forest Road, fell through the ice covering the surface of a deep ditch filled with water and was rescued only in the nick of time by a chum who was standing by. Young Summers was quickly taken to his home. He is suffering considerably as a result of his sudden immersion. The ditch was left open by the City Council last year, and filled with water to a depth of over six feet. Only a thin surface of ice covers it, and it now forms a serious menace to children playing in the neighborhood. The Council should take the first available opportunity to have the hole filled in.

Masons' Big Lead.

Have Majority of 408 in Inter-Club Billiards—Ten Games Played.

Half the first round in the Billiard Tournament between the Masonic and City Clubs is now completed and the former have a majority of 408 points. Out of the ten games played, the Masons have won eight. Four games were played last night and three of these fell to the Masonic team.

A Good Start.

In the opening game, Dr. McLoughlin (City) and George Rabbits (Masonic) were the contestants. The City Club representative is well known as a billiard player of no mean ability, but last night, was not up to his true form and had to bow to defeat. The score was Rabbits 250, McLoughlin 115. The last break by Rabbits was 33 and was made entirely of the red. The breaks were:—
McLoughlin—13, 10.
Rabbits—12, 10, 11, 32, 21, 10, 14, 14, 10, 33.

The next game proved the most exciting for the evening. The opponents were J. Strang (City) and W. F. Joyce (Masonic). For a time it seemed as if Joyce would have an easy win, for he drew away from his opponent at the beginning and when he had reached 177, was leading Strang by 74. From this point, however, Strang began to increase his score until, soon he had equaled and passed his opponent. When the game ended Strang was 250 and Joyce 216.

The breaks were:—
Joyce—15, 17, 23, 20, 11, 11.
Strang—10, 15, 21, 10, 10, 12, 34, 14, 13.

A Fine Exhibition.

In the third game, J. Edwards (Masonic) defeated W. R. Warren (City) by 64 points. The latter held the lead for a short time but was outdistanced by his opponent. The score was Edwards 250, Warren 186, and the breaks were:— Warren—12, 15, 11.
Edwards—13, 18, 15, 10, 13, 17, 12, 17, 12.

S. J. Foote (City) and J. Crawford (Masonic) were the opponents in the final game of the night. This was the closest game of all, both players keeping together almost to the end. The scores were:—
Crawford 250, Foote 233, and the breaks:—
Foote—14, 12, 15, 11, 17, 13.
Crawford—11, 10, 10, 13, 11, 17, 24, 16.

Five games will be played to-day, if possible. One in the afternoon and four at night. The teams usually otherwise arranged will be:—
Masonic—L. Chaplin, Walter Joyce, J. P. Blackwood, L. J. Harnum, J. J. McKay, Gus Sellars, A. Hayward, A. H. Greaves, A. Williams, Geo. Phillips.

First Snow

Storm for Season.

BLIZZARD GRIPS ST. JOHN'S.

Last night a N.E. blizzard struck the city and gave St. John's the first real touch of winter. The street car service is tied up and many of the streets on the higher levels will have to be shoveled before traffic can be resumed. On the country roads the snow in many places has drifted to a height of 10 feet and very few milkmen reached the city before noon hour. Water Street had its full share of snow, the sidewalks were blocked off and pedestrians were compelled to wade along the centre of the street where the snow was over knee high. The direction of the wind piled the drift in some places to heights of seven and eight feet, while in other places the ground is bare, this being particularly noticeable in some of the coves.

Will Debate "Titles."

"Should Newfoundland petition the Throne to the effect that no further titles be granted in this Dominion?" This is the interesting and extremely topical subject which will be debated at to-night's session of the Methodist College Literary Institute, when a hot time is expected. The leaders are: in favor of petitioning, Rev. C. H. Johnson, with two supporters; and against the proposition Mr. R. F. Horwood and two supporters. The public is invited to attend the debate, at least so far as there is capacity for them. The entrance is from Long's Hill.

Personal.

Rev. Edwin Jukes, M.A., B.D., who has been rector of St. Alban's church, Whitney Pier, left last week for Sacramento, California, where he has accepted a call to one of the Protestant Episcopal churches of that city. Rev. Mr. Jukes has been rector of St. Alban's congregation for some time past. He was accompanied by his wife and child. It will be remembered by many that Rev. Mr. Jukes was the first Chaplain of "Maple Leaf" Lodge No. 77, Society United Fishermen, established at Whitney Pier last October. His ever present help and sound advice will be greatly missed by the Brethren, who hope that his good lady will find better health in "Sunny California."

"A Woman's Honour."

POPULAR PLAYERS PRESENT POPULAR PLAY.

Despite the inclement weather of last night a large audience attended the Casino Theatre to witness the production of that well known and thrilling four act drama "A Woman's Honour." The play was under the distinguished patronage of His Grace the Archbishop of St. John's, the proceeds being in aid of St. Patrick's Convent. Mr. T. M. White directed the performance, assisted by the cast playing previously, and it is needless to mention that each and all acquitted themselves in a manner that won unstinted applause from the audience. A "Castanet" dance by Miss Wallace was admirably done, that young lady responding to an encore with a sailor's hornpipe. Later she gave a fine exhibition of the Highland Fling. Miss Ida Howlett was in splendid voice and her songs, as always, received the tribute due such a talented vocalist. The play itself needs no description of theme or plot. It is too well known. The feminine parts were played by Miss Irene Kennedy (Imogene Courtleigh), Miss Gerlie Ryan, (Ginger), Gipsy waif, who was afterwards discovered to be an heiress; Miss M. Moran as Prudence Freshwater, one of the old Virginian families, while Nance Tyson's part was admirably interpreted by Mr. J. J. Sullivan. Capt. J. J. O'Grady, M.B.E., played lead as Horace Vermer, and was ably supported by his chum Dink Potts (Lieut. J. M. Spears). Mr. T. M. White was imitable in his characterization of Ira Courtleigh, Imogene's guardian and hopeless suitor, while Mr. P. J. Grace gave a true-to-life portrayal of Buck Tyson, a Gipsy tinker. Mr. J. J. Prowse as Major Duffy, County clerk and Civil War veteran, was right there with the goods. Capt. W. Grace in the part of Elmer Von Sittart of New York, who wore an monocle, which was always falling out, did ample justice to his role, as also did Mr. G. Muir as the Virginian landlord, Squire Ripley. Last but not least is Mr. J. Clancy as "Lige," the colored attendant, who was equally at home in a dress suit as in overalls. Altogether the play was a tremendous success, and it was singularly unfortunate that the weather man turned out a spoil sport. The music by the C.C.C. Band was all that could be desired. Productions of popular plays lose nothing by being put on the boards by local artists. "A Woman's Honour" is one of these and the whole caste is eminently deserving of their particular success in this instance.

The Institute has a splendid programme arranged for the coming season. A billiard tournament will shortly be started, and two prizes have been offered by the president. There is a great revival of interest in billiards and as the C.E.I. number several good players among their members, the coming tournament should be productive of some excellent play. Card tournaments will also be held. There will start on Monday next. A ping pong tournament will start shortly.

After the customary votes of thanks were passed, the meeting adjourned. The C.E.I. is now in a most flourishing condition and has an exceedingly large membership. It offers numerous advantages to all churchmen, who should not hesitate to join and so, not only swell the membership, but also help to extend the sphere of usefulness.

C. E. I. Has Satisfactory Year.

PROGRAMME FOR 1922.

The reports of the Secretary and the Treasurer presented at the annual meeting of the Church of England Institute held last night, were eminently satisfactory, and showed that great progress had been made by the club during the past year. The Secretary's report made reference to the Institute's participation in athletics. The activities in this connection included rowing, baseball and football. Ping pong has been revived with great success, and during the year a series of tournaments were played between teams from the C.E.I. and the Officers Mess of the C.L.B. Cadets, in which the honours were in favour of the Institute.

After the presentation and adoption of the reports, the election of officers for the ensuing year was held. Mr. J. Gould conducted the election, which resulted in all the old officers being returned. Some new councillors were elected. The officers of the Institute are now:—
President—J. Long.
Vice-President—F. F. Harris.
Treasurer—J. H. Fardale.
Secretary—R. C. Knight.
Councillors—J. Wellman, J. Miller, W. E. Winsborough, E. T. Snow, W. Reid, and J. M. Carberry.

After the election of officers, Councillor Reg. Dowden auctioned the periodicals of last year with satisfactory results.

Latest Developments in Labor Situation.

COUNCIL DEFINES ITS POSITION.

In connection with the relief work on the Southside Road, several members of the Unemployed Committee called on Hon. Dr. Campbell, Minister of Agriculture and Mines, at his office this morning to ascertain the Government's attitude in the matter. The Minister informed the delegation that by Minute of Council, passed recently, a fund to be expended on this road was provided. The position of the Government as explained by the Minister is that the Council refused a loan, whereupon the Administration desired the Council to proceed with the Southside Road, giving labor up to a point where the work was useful, and that the pay sheets would be met by the Government.

The position taken by the Council on the other hand is that as this is relief work, undertaken by the Government, it should be handled by the Government entirely through the Board of Works Department. The Engineer of the Council, his staff, or any other assistance that would be needed, the Council is prepared to put at the Government's disposal. Mayor Cook informed the Telegram this morning that there had, so far, been no written communication exchanged between the Government and Council on the matter of either a loan or a gift of money as suggested to the Unemployed Committee by Hon. Dr. Campbell or any other Minister of the Crown.

ill Newfoundland
Become Utopia?
FREEMAN IS OPTIMISTIC.
The Evening Telegram.
Sir—I wish to make a few remarks on the projected scheme to develop a portion of our great water power which I understand is to be called The Hydro-Electric Project. The site on Junction Road near the Upper Humber River flows into Deer Lake and Bay of Islands. As this project is to come up for consideration by our Legislature in a short time before our Legislature adjourns, I wish to say that the promoters of the project would like to make it plain to the people of this country that men thoroughly conversant with the construction and management of such a colossal enterprise are employed. The granting of concessions is serious business and the future possibilities of our Island wealth, inasmuch as they involve an enormous outlay to start with, should be carefully considered. On the other hand under expert management they are only a drop in the bucket when compared with the enormous possibilities behind them.

With regard to the quantity of timber which will be cut around the shores of Deer Lake, a portion of which is estimated at 10,500,000 cords giving an annual consumption of 220,000 cords a term of 50 years, without re-plantation there is very little doubt that devastation by forest fires of the mills running short of fuel as our forests will renew their growth every forty years. However, as the promoters of the project understand the manufacturing of paper will be only a side issue of this gigantic enterprise, which includes the smelting and manufacturing of Aluminum and other metals as, Copper, Zinc, and possibly Ores as millions of the latter are found in Bay St. George, every consideration should be given to the enterprise particularly now in its early stages. The mistakes made by our forefathers and the failures in enterprises which the public were interested in, such as many, such as the building of our narrow gauge railroad, sooner or later (if our country is to exist) must be scrapped for standard gauge, also the building of a Dry Dock half way down the St. John's Harbor.

With regard to the shipping facilities at Bay of Islands my attention was called a few days ago to an item in the "Western Star" saying that a pier is to be built at the north side of Deer Lake to connect the proposed wharf with loading piers at Bay of Islands. In this respect it is to be hoped that the promoters of this huge enterprise have vision enough to utilize the shores of the Humber River between Deer Lake and Bay of Islands by building a couple of Locks so as to allow ocean steamers to come into the Bay of Deer Lake which Lake is about ten feet above sea level.

By Islands. This suggestion is a very average reader may be looked upon as the hallucinated dream of the promoters, but if carried out to a sufficient extent to allow ocean steamers to come up to the works where cargo is taken from the great Wheat Elevator of America could be manufactured and millions of tons of flour and shipped to England and other countries in addition to supplying our own country, which is about 100 barrels per day. Then again they easily in reach of the great Cotton fields of the South where cargoes could be brought here and manufactured into millions of yards of cloth for the flour, etc. Several industries such as Sugar Refineries could be started and manufacturing carried on much cheaper than any other part of the Continent of America, that is, if the state is put forward by the Promoters of the project to water power are considered there should be no reason, but from the quantities of water power at Deer Lake behind the scheme otherwise.

Miss Austin Bates in "Four Years Ago" says "Popular prejudice against the promoters as pirates who would be without conscience wherever progress has been made has been risk, speculation, and the world has been deceived by greed of gain." William Hearst says, "Let us consider that operates for evil, and that goes forward and not back; that organizes, since the faculty of organization is the measure of intelligence." The co-operation of ocean traffic with an enterprise such as the Hydro-Electric Project, Ltd., is about to establish an Upper Humber with water power of developing 200,000 horsepower and with a capital of $20,000,000. To start with, if efficiently managed, it ought to be able to multiply its several times over in the course of ten years.

Yours truly,
T. J. FREEMAN.

The Princess's Wedding.
GETTING THE ABBEY READY FOR THE CEREMONY.
 Preparations for the wedding of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles are being steadily advanced. Shortly workmen will be busy in Westminster Abbey erecting galleries round the nave to provide increased accommodation for the ceremony. The organization of the Marys' Gift is practically complete. Answers are gradually being received to the cables sent to the Dominions, and nearly every country in Great Britain has its organizer. Among the many notable Marys who have undertaken county organization are Lady Mary Astley Cooper, Dorset; Lady Mary Montagu, Huntingdonshire; the Countess of Leicester, Norfolk; Lady Katharine Mary Bulwer-Lytton, Hertfordshire; Lady Mary Thynne, Somersetshire; Lady Mary Crichton, Berkshire; Lady Elphinstone, Edinburgh; and the Countess of Lindsay, Fife. A youthful organizer is Lady Mary Onslow, who is looking after Surrey. She is only 11. Lady Mary Cambridge, who is regarded as certain to be a bridesmaid at the wedding, is organizing Shropshire, and Lady Mary Howard is in charge of West Sussex. The Royal Family are likely to be at Sandringham for some time yet. It is customary for them to remain in Norfolk for most of January, as the King likes a little quiet sport and a rest to prepare him for the coming season. Princess Mary and Lord Lascelles have had a little hunting since their arrival at Sandringham.

Club Votes for Public Ownership.
 Public utilities should be state-owned. This was the decision of the Cathedral Men's Debating Club at last night's session, when the debate ranged round the resolution "That public utilities should be state-owned." The leaders of the sides were: affirmative, Rev. J. Brinton and Hugh G. Ford; and negative, Geo. H. House and H. Hawkins. Speakers from the floor were: James Jacobs, H. Noonan, Conrad B. Hefferton and J. R. Smallwood. The affirmative side won by several votes, although the negative side put up a plucky fight. It was made clear by the affirmative that it was the principle involved in the resolution which had to be debated. The resolution did not read "now," or "at the present time." There was no time limit. It might be now or a hundred years hence. The affirmative side maintained that the principle of public ownership of public utilities was right, even though at the present time it might be generally impracticable. It did not follow that it would be always impracticable. The negative side rested its case on the fact that in most cases where public ownership of public utilities had been tried in recent, and in war and post-war, years, it has failed. Instances of such failures were cited.

Scene in Church.
AN ABERDEEN SENSATION.
 An incident which caused not a little sensation is reported to have occurred in Woodside Parish Church, Aberdeen, on a recent Sunday, as the result of a dispute between the minister and the organist. The trouble arose in connection with the musical arrangements for the church services. On this matter the minister, the Rev. P. A. Dunn, and the organist, Mr. Andrew Henderson, held different views. The organist claimed more power in the selection of the music than the minister was disposed to grant, and Mr. Dunn took up the position that he must select the music, with a view to harmonizing the whole service. The matter was referred to the elders, a majority of whom decided that the organist should tender his resignation. The organist resigned, and was made the recipient of farewell gifts by the church choir.
 Sunday was Mr. Henderson's final day of duty at the organ, and immediately the minister entered the church at the forenoon service he began playing "See the Conquering Hero Comes." The incident created an immediate sensation amongst the congregation.
 One lady at once rose and left the building, while another lady, on the impulse of the moment, seized a book with the intention of hurling it at the head of the organist, and was only prevented from doing so by another person grasping her arm. The minister was much affected by the incident, but ignored it and proceeded with the service.

Council and Unemployed Confer.

Government Must Find Labor-City Fathers Not Prepared to Undertake Relief Work.

Yesterday afternoon a Committee of ten representing the unemployed of the city waited on the Municipal Council for the purpose of ascertaining the latter's attitude in relation to certain means of relief. Mayor Cook requested the delegation to appoint two or three spokesmen in order to facilitate matters. They informed him that this had already been done. Mr. Gardner, who is Chairman of the Committee, informed the Council that the large body which they represented had got quite out of hand, and it was necessary that immediate employment should be found. He said he was given to understand that the Government through Hon. Dr. Campbell was willing to advance the Council a loan for this purpose. Mayor replied that he had no definite offer from Hon. Dr. Campbell or any member of the Government. There had, however, he said, been conferences and the Council had promised to co-operate with the Government in any work within the city that would give employment. In other words, said the Mayor, the Government has the permission of this Council to undertake works in this city, and we will give them the assistance of the Engineer and other members of the staff that they may require, "but the Council will not assume liability for the cost of the work."

Our Local Pepys.

HIS DIARY.
January 18th.—Sir R. Bond is come to town: I to see him; he tells me he is come only for his usual visit. I find him a mighty pleasant man, and is, I think, as young as when he did retire from public life. I to question him on certain matters, but he has very little to tell me on public affairs and denies the rumour that he will address a meeting. The talk of the town still of the Humber project, and some say how the Parliament is ordered to meet the 25th of the month, being but a se'night from to-day. Walking to the Board of Trade, I met Mr. Moore, whom, asking the news of the Parliament's meeting, he told me he thought it was true. I hear how Sir R. A. Squires and Mr. Morine do leave Halifax to-day, and is a strange thing that these two, being of opposite minds in politics, should yet return home together. To sup with my wife, but my satisfaction in it spoiled, in a manner, by my wife's eating of a lobster salad, but I may do more than look at it, but must swallow my bowl of gruel.

Committee on Unemployment.

CONTROL OF WORK DISCUSSED.
The Citizens Committee on unemployment met in the Board of Trade Rooms last night when matters in connection with the proposed widening of the Southside Road were discussed. The Southside Road is one of the proposals submitted for the relief of unemployment, but the matter of who is to take charge of the work has not as yet been decided. The Municipal Council, although satisfied to allow the work to proceed, will not have anything to do with the expenditure. The Government, it is understood, is willing to supply the necessary funds, but desires that the Citizens Committee should take charge of the undertaking. The work will employ about 250 men, and would with the 250 now engaged on railway work relieve nearly a third of the unemployed. The Citizens Committee after discussing many phases of the situation adjourned the meeting until to-night without reaching a decision.

Shipping Notes.

The steamer Norman Mac, owned by W. N. McDonald of Sydney, has left Sydney for Port au Prince. It is the intention of the ship's owner to place her in the cod and halibut fishery out of the latter port and Rose Blanche. The halibut will be brought to this port and shipped to the United States. The Norman Mac is in charge of Capt. Edward Seely. All the crew are Newfoundlanders.
The schooner Gordon E. Moulton has been attached by the sheriff at North Sydney, according to the Sydney Record, at the instance of William Guy, mate, who claims wages due him to the amount of $250. McKenzie and McMillan, acting on behalf of Guy, attached the schooner which was being loaded with coal for Newfoundland. Mate Guy claims that the owners owe him wages for the past five months. The Gordon E. Moulton is owned by John T. Moulton, of Burgeo, and arrived at North Sydney a few days ago.

Obituary.

JABEZ J. VEY.
A prominent citizen in the person of Mr. Jabez J. Vey passed to his eternal reward yesterday, at the advanced age of 75 years. The deceased held an important post in the industrial life of the colony and for 29 years was manager of the St. John's Nail Manufacturing Company, retiring from active work about 5 years ago. In earlier life he was well known in musical circles, and for nearly 40 years was a member of the Choir of Gower Street Methodist Church. Some years ago he was Bandmaster of the Pipe and Drum Band, Scottish Brigade, and later established the Methodist Guards Band of which he was Director for a number of years. Mr. Vey was born in St. John's but his family on his mother's side came from Port de Grave. He leaves nine children, four sons and five daughters—William C. of British Columbia, Frederick of Yukon, Asanka, Charles of New Jersey, Walter of St. John's, Mrs. F. J. Clarke of Halifax, Miss Maud of New York, Mrs. A. S. Butler, Mrs. A. C. Diamond and Miss Nellie of this city. His wife predeceased him about 13 years ago. To the family the Telegram extends sympathy in their bereavement.

To the modern chemist there is no such word as "waste," of one may judge by the interesting array of by-products, time and labor saving devices shown at the national exposition of chemical industries.

Entertain Topsail Fold.

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to give a brief account of the musical entertainment given by the L.O.A. Band, of Topsail on Wednesday, the 11th instant. The doors opened at 7 p.m. and in a very short time the spacious hall was filled to its capacity, and great and many surprises were meted out to the attentive tho' very excited audience. There were several selections from the Band and, although a number of the members of the Band are new to their work, having had only about two weeks' practice, their rendering of the different items would be hard to beat. Mention must also be made of the newly organized S.S. Jazz Band. It was the hit of the evening and was greatly applauded and encored. Professor Shakaleg, who had charge of this body of foreign (?) musicians in introducing his band said that a number of his performers had travelled extensively for their education, and although all were very elderly gentlemen they were by no means less active than the smartest youths of Topsail. This fact was plainly demonstrated by Professor Plank-ey-down who delighted all with a sample of his step-dancing. Professor Cloutem, in a ringing baritone, simply raised the "et that has" in fact, any peo- dered where he did get it, and are still guessing. Professor Chin-waggin' was next in order. This venerable gentleman, we were told, came all the way from Russia, and although only a month in the country (?) has adapted himself well to the language. He showed this in his recitation of "The Slide Trombone." Then an old gentleman from Switzerland (?) delighted all with a Trombone solo. Accompanying several jazzy airs, this "ed group went on their way re- amid applause and laughter from well pleased audience. Mr. G. Fowler, our local comedian, was there with his latest hit, "The Boarding House." He had the sympathy of the whole audience when he told of the treatment which caused him to grow so thin after only two weeks' boarding with "Mrs. Leech."

The delighted voices of Mrs. W. Hibbs and Miss N. Fowler were heard to great advantage in solos. We also had a visit from an aspirant to the Municipal (?) Council in the person of Mr. A. Allen. There are great changes in store if Mr. Allen is made councillor. Great praise is due Mr. H. Noseworthy who is ever untiring in his efforts and seems to be in his element when fingering some musical instrument, very often instruments of his own invention and design. His Vocal and Classical Solos were very pleasing to the ear, while his instrumental selections could not be outdone. I may say that the concert was a complete success and several requests for its repetition have been made. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, in anticipation of publication. Yours truly, ONE OF THE AUDIENCE. Topsail, Jan. 16, 1922.

MEMBERS OF NEW IRISH CABINET GET CLEAR OF A DANGEROUS CHARACTER.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The Dublin correspondent of the Morning Post telegraphs the following to his paper: "The shipment to the United States of Daniel Breen, who appears to have been hanging around the Dail Eireann with a hand of thugs, threatening to enter and shoot up the entire assembly if it ratified the treaty suggests that Michael Collins and Richard Mulcahy are alive to the necessities of the case." There has been no previous intimation that Daniel Breen was to be deported from Ireland. A London despatch in October, 1920, identified Breen as commandant of the Third Tipperary Brigade of the Irish Republican Army. The British authorities in Ireland were said to have offered a reward of 1,000 pounds for his capture in connection with the murder of a Major Smyth, and he was also accused of killing two constables and perpetrating a series of other outrages.

The Wail of a Pessimist.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Regarding letter of recent date that appeared in your columns, signed "Topsy-turvy," I wish to say that if this little colony had a few more like "Topsy-turvy" the people would not be so downtrodden and oppressed by taxes. The duty placed by the present Government of Newfoundland on goods coming into this colony is outrageous. Duty between Canada and the U.S.A. is only 25 cents on a dollar, here it is over 66 per cent. Since the present Government gained control the duty has been raised to a considerable degree. Instead of Premier Squires taking numerous trips away on a "wild goose chase," trying to make a hero of himself, it would be of better credit to him to remain here and cut down the taxes of this little colony. He must think people here are "too green to burn," when he announces to the press that he held a conference with American Senators on tariff matters. He means that he held a conference with the Private Secretaries of American Senators. Truly Premier Squires overestimated his position and that of this little colony. Why the exports of fish and its products from this colony are "not a drop in the bucket" to America. They can obtain all the fish they want right in their own country and elsewhere than a small place like Newfoundland could export in a hundred years. So the idea that the U.S.A. would suit her tariff laws to Newfoundland desires at the request of Premier Squires is laughable. This colony is too small and its exports too insignificant to have any weight in questions with the great nation of America, and its Premier is not a big enough man to "cut any ice" in America. American Senators have matters of too great importance on hand to give any time to matters that are of no interest or importance to the U.S.A. and will still live in Newfoundland. Premier Squires can, he had better do something for the people who elected him in his own little colony, where the people are oppressed by the duty imposed upon them by his government on foreign goods. Yours truly, NOT TOO GREEN TO BURN. Jan. 16, 1922.

AGE BRINGS WISDOM.

When I was young I plied my tongue with thoughtlessness, wild as a band; I worked by steam, there was no theme I wouldn't take a stand on. I lectured loud to every crowd, I thundered and created; I sprinkled words until the birds were scared, and emigrated. I'd criticise the learned and wise, and roast the useful voter; I yipped and yelled as though propelled by twin six V-type motor. I knew it all; with splendid gull the public I instructed; I thought this land would soon be canned, unless by me conducted. The people groaned, the people honed to end me and my chatter, and, seeing red, they wished my head were served upon a platter. And in my walks, quite often, rocks would spill my Sunday behavior; and maddened skates would leave their gates and chase me with a cleaver. And, wearied hicks defaced with bricks the map that nature gave me; and in a sweat the village yet with liniments would leave me. Youth disappears, and passing years bring wisdom to a critter; I hear the boys kick up their noise, and I send forth no twitter. In peace I sit and gently knit, my time-worn thumbs. I twiddle, and they who prance and yell and dance must pay the guys who fiddle.

Astronomical Mystery.

TAKES SHAPE OF HORSE'S HEAD.
Extraordinary interest was aroused when, in June, a Dutch scientist announced the discovery of an immense and mysterious dark object in the sky in the great nebula of Orion, a constellation which is prominent in the southern sky this month between 9 p.m. and midnight. This discovery verified a prediction made by Sir Richard Gregory last year that the next important discoveries in astronomy would be connected with invisible objects in space, which are more numerous than the stars nightly visible. This particular object will be seen to have the shape of a horse's head. It is said to be about 140,000,000 miles in length and is composed of a vast conglomeration of dust. A good binocular will suffice to show it.

ACUTE LABOR SITUATION.
SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 18.
Approximately 450 miners went on strike at No. 14 Colliery, near Waterford, this morning, because of trouble between drivers and management, similar to that which tied up No. 9 at Glace Bay, and No. 1 at Dominion. Five hundred miners at Glace Bay are still idle, although they voted to return to work last night, pending investigation. Company Headquarters say mine would have been idle to-day, anyway, on account of a lack of orders. Dominion No. 1 is working again.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.
The American proposal, to re-define the open door policy in China, and create an International Board to examine both existing and future concessions, which appear to conflict with the open door principle, was adopted in Parliament to-day by the Far-Eastern Committee of the Washington Conference on motion of Sir Robert Borden, Canadian delegate.
PURCHASERS WARNED.
OTTAWA, Jan. 18.
Secretary of State Copp, to-day, issued a notification to investors not to purchase Canadian securities owned in Germany before the ratification of peace, and now being offered for sale in Canada and United States at greatly reduced prices. The view is taken that such transactions are illegal, and contrary to the Peace Treaty. Large volumes of Canadian Pacific Railway Securities are being offered, but purchasers of these securities, says Mr. Copp, acquire no property or title that could be recognized, either by the Canadian Government or Canadian Pacific Railway, and purchasers are throwing money away. It was suggested to Mr. Copp that the Treaty might be changed or otherwise pre-war conditions established, as to these securities, so that purchasers would have something to deal with. "That is purely visionary," said Mr. Copp.

of those perished by the capsizing of small boats. The wharves of Vigo were damaged, preventing discharging vessels to-day.

WE HAD IT HERE.
SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 19.
The worst blizzard of the season was raging over Cape Breton last night.
PONTIFF HAS SEVERE FEVER.
ROME, Jan. 19.
Reports from the bedside of Pope Benedict, who is suffering from an attack of grippe, stated this morning that there was no change in his condition since yesterday. The Pontiff had quite a severe fever yesterday, but so far as is known, grave symptoms have not made their appearance.
N.F. RECEIVED A FEW.
LONDON, Jan. 19.
All records in creating peerages have been broken by the present administration, according to the new issue of Debut, the standard work of reference concerning the British aristocracy. In six years ninety-four Peers, 235 Baronets and 2,018 Knights have been created.

RESUMED FIGHTING.

ATHENS, Jan. 19.
Scattered fighting along the battle-front in Asia Minor was reported in an official statement, relative to operations there, which was issued last night. The front has been very quiet for several weeks.

WILL BE COMMANDEERED.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 19.
All bake shops in Mexico City will be taken over forcibly by the Bakers' Syndicate on January 26, if the demands which caused the present strike of bakers, here, are not met before that time. An announcement to this effect was issued last night, at the end of the first day of the strike, which left Mexico City short of bread rations.

FOUND THE LIQUID.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.
When the motor schooner, Bertha A. was run down by the steamer Sheaf Leaf, and was forced to put into quarantine late yesterday, Federal officers claim they found 1,900 packages of assorted liquor, worth $150,000 in her hold, and evidence that the little craft had been engaged in extensive rum-running operations.

PLAUSIBLE ARGUMENT.

SOFIA, Jan. 19.
Anarchy is feared in Bulgaria, if, in obedience to orders of the Allied

Council of Ambassadors, Count Siska's once proud and formidable army is disbanded. The little state would thus be reduced to such a condition of military unimportance that her frontiers would be endangered and the internal order of the country menaced, it is declared by Constantine Tomoff, Minister of War. The Council's order gave Bulgaria a month in which to comply with their edict to disarm completely. "If Bulgaria should have the misfortune to have internal riots or disorders, arising from lack of bread, or from other causes," said the War Minister, "the country might be plunged into revolution, and there would be no forces to preserve order. How are we to repress raids, which are constantly occurring along our boundary," he asked.

Ice Harvesting Begins.

Ice-men are now engaged making their annual harvest. Mr. George Summers has a team of men cutting from Long Pond for Mr. E. J. Horwood. The ice is nearly 12 inches thick and exceptionally clear, there being no slob. The past two days teams with drays were engaged pulling the ice to the storehouses, but after the snowfall of last night catamarans will be used. Mr. Horwood will stow between six and seven hundred tons.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Sackem is due from Halifax tomorrow. The Furness Withy Co. had not received any word of the Digby up to press hour, and it is believed the ship is too far off for communication, and will not likely make port before tomorrow. S.S. Meigle is sailing to-morrow for North Sydney taking foreign mails. S.S. Susu reports being storm bound at Bay Roberts.

ASTHMA Quickly Relieved.
Mr. Thomas Bond, Shel Drake, North Shore, Que., writes: "I suffered for years with asthma, sometimes being unable to lie in bed, but after a treatment of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine I am now quite well and thank this medicine for restoring me."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

A WISE WOMAN.
She knows that she has done her share of the world's work, that she has never faltered before hard work or work of any sort that she was able to do. She knows that as a girl she gave many of the productive years of her life to taking care of an invalid mother. Had she worked at any other work as hard, and stunted herself as strictly, as she did in those years she might have saved enough money so that she would not have had to go into the old folk's home. But she did her duty then and the world owes her care now.

What I should. Then if some misfortune landed me in the poorhouse I should not blame myself, and hence would not need to be ashamed.
We Can't Always Predict.
I do not say I should like it, and perhaps if it happened I should feel shame, too. Our feelings are not always governed by reason. But I don't think I would have any reason to. And I don't think anyone who accepts help in time of need ought to feel any sense of shame provided that when they were able they had done all they could to help themselves. In fact, I think there are times when it is very wrong not to accept help and to accept it cheerfully.

CASCARETS 10
For Constipated Bowels, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Bilious Liver
The nicest cathartic-laxative in the world to physic your liver and bowels when you have Dizzy Headache, Colds, Biliousness, Indigestion, or Upset, Acid Stomach, is candy-like "Cascarets." One or two to-night will empty your bowels completely by morning, and you will feel splendid. "They work while you sleep." Cascarets never stir you up or grip like Salts, Pills, Calomel, or Oil and they cost only ten cents a box. Children love Cascarets too.

RESOLVED
1. That I owe myself each day a part of my pay for my work.
2. That I will protect myself against old age, sickness, hard times.
3. That I shall save each month a part of my earnings and make it work for me.
4. That I shall put it in a safe investment where I can get it when I want it.

The most sensible book yet written on this subject. An outspoken, fearless work which seems to clear away much of the "hot air" that has obscured so long the plain truth about "Crimes and Criminals."
Dr. Mercier stands as the exponent of common sense and recognized science applied to the study of Criminology.

RECOGNITION.
The care of the teeth is now recognized as a necessity. In fact the large hospitals all over the world examine the patients' teeth and where it is possible put them in good condition before attempting a surgical operation. Experience has shown that the patient has a better chance for recovery with a clean healthy mouth than without it. This ought to convince the most skeptical that care of the teeth is requisite to health.

REFRIGERATING MACHINERY.

The boiler plant consists of two 112-H.P. Heine cross-drum high pressure water tube boilers, supplied through a feed-water heater made by the Harrison Safety Boiler Company. The engines are Ames Unaflo type direct connected to Allis-Chalmers 100 KVA two-phase, 60-cycle, 230 volt 277 R.P.M. generators. This equipment supplies lights as well as power to the whole plant.

The condensing equipment was furnished by the Schutte-Koerting Company and is multijet ejector type. The pumping equipment consists of two 1,000-gallon pumps furnished by the Union Steam Pump Service Company of Battle Creek, Mich.

Refrigeration equipment was designed and manufactured by the Cardinale Machinery Company and consists of two generators, two absorbers, two brine coolers, three exchangers, ammonia pumps, condensers, receivers and rectifiers.

From an operating standpoint the plant has proved a success, but whether or not the project of freezing fish for transportation to France will prove profitable cannot be judged until an exhaustive effort has been made to popularize frozen fish in Paris and environs, which it is understood will be commenced during the coming winter.—N.Y. Fishing Gazette.

Wedding Bells.

MILLS-BALSON.

A pretty wedding took place at Shoal Harbor Methodist Church on Wednesday afternoon, January 11th, when Mr. Alfred J. Balsom of Clarendville, led to the altar Miss Nellie Mills of Shoal Harbor, Rev. Isaac Davis performed the ceremony, assisted by Miss Inez Gulliford of the organ. Precisely at three o'clock the bride party entered the church. Miss Clarice Tuck, Miss Floesia Balsom and Miss Minnie Adey took their positions to the left of the bride while Mr. C. Mills, Mr. E. Balsom and Mr. W. Wells stood to the right of the groom. The bride looked exceptionally neat and pretty in a beautiful dress of white satin with panels of Georgette trimmed with silver lace and bridal veil, with wreath of lilies of the valley and carried a beautiful bouquet of white and pink carnations. Immediately after the wedding the young couple and friends proceeded to the home of the bride's father, Mr. Wm. Mills, the well known merchant, where a reception was held. The guests numbering one hundred and twenty sat down to a repast that was all that could be desired. Person Davis proposed the health of the bride and groom. Responded by Caleb Tuck, Esq., J.P. The groom's presents to the bridesmaids and flower girl, little Marjorie Mills, were gold brooches and the groom's men received gold stick pins. On Thursday evening following, a reception was held at Clarendville for those who were unable to attend the Shoal Harbor Function. The groom is employed by the Reid Newfoundland Co., and is the son of Mrs. Sarah and the late William Balsom. The young couple are making their home at Clarendville. Many useful and valuable presents were received, testifying to the popularity of both. Their many friends wish them bon voyage on the Matrimonial Sea.—COP Jan. 15, 22.

York and Lancaster United.

It was on January 19, 1485, that Henry VII. of England married Elizabeth of York, and thus ended the Wars of the Roses by uniting the Houses of York and Lancaster by the strongest of ties, those of mutual interest, if not of mutual affection. Henry had a difficult part to play before his accession to the English throne, for many of his supporters were anxious that he should marry Elizabeth of York before he had gained, by might or strategy, the throne of England. Henry, however, was determined to reign as England's lawful king and not to assume the subordinate position which that step would have necessitated. He had no intention of resigning by favour of his wife, and although he readily swore in the Cathedral of Rheims to reconcile the hostile parties by contracting an alliance with Edward IV's daughter—he took care that the marriage was not definitely settled until by his victory at Bosworth, and the death of Richard III. on the battle field, he had attained the Crown by means of his own resolute and spirited policy.
