Kyle's Passengers Walk Over Ice to Sydney.

Italians Kill 250 Rebels in Tripoli—British Note to Russia Shows Strained Relations—Howatt, Ex-President U.M.W. of America, Refused Entry to Canada.

MONTREAL GOES TO KYLE'S RESCUE. OTTAWA, May 8. The Canadian Government ice breaker Montcalm left St. Paul's Island to go to the rescue of the passenger steamer Kyle which became helpless in the ice ten days ago while on a regular passage from Newfoundland to North Sydney, and is now eight miles off Flat Point with two of the passengers seriously ill.

27 PASSENGERS LEAVE KYLE. NORTH SYDNEY, May 8. Abandoning the little steamer that had been their icebound prison for ten days the four women and twenty-three men passengers from Newfoundland for North Sydney on the steamer Kyle, left the ship at noon to-day in an attempt to reach Flat Point over the ice. It was considered that the party were attempting a hazardous journey, as the edge of the field inshore was known to be breaking up.

ALL SAFE BUT A HAZARDOUS ENTERPRISE. Weary and exhausted, twenty-seven refugees from the ice bound steamer Kyle, who have been imprisoned within sight of land for ten days, landed at Flat Point this afternoon, after walking eight miles over the treacherous fields that separated them from the shore. Grim determination and urge of self preservation was all that kept some of them up as they picked their uncertain way over the ice floes, according to the statements of those in the party. There were four women, and with one exception, they stood the strain much better than the men. Capt. Peters, light keeper at Flat Point, welcomed the refugees with hot drinks, and in a short time they were ready to walk to Waterford, where they entrained for Sydney. Miss Ellis, one of the ladies, fell between the floating cakes of ice and had a narrow escape, but she pluckily climbed out and continued. It was an individual battle, each for himself. There were no ropes, and, if one stumbled, it would have been practically impossible for the others to render assistance, according to the various accounts of their escape.

NOTE TO RUSSIA PRESENTED. MOSCOW, May 8. A lengthy note, reviewing the numerous British complaints against Soviet Russia, couched in such very strong terms that they might bring Russo-British relations to an issue, was handed to Maxim Litvinoff, Asst. Commissar for Foreign Affairs, this afternoon by the British representative. Anticipating a break in relations, the British Mission several days ago warned all the British in Russia that they should be prepared to leave the country on short notice.

ROUNDING UP CONTINUES. DUBLIN, May 8. A round up of Irish irregulars is progressing in the mountains near Blessington, Wicklow, where large numbers are reported in hiding. Heavy firing was in progress this morning, and, later, more than a dozen prisoners were brought into town.

SEDITIONIST APPEAL DISALLOWED. OTTAWA, May 8. The appeal of Alexander Howatt, ex-President of the United Mine Workers of America, against the action of the Inspector of Immigration at McAdam Junction, in refusing him admittance to Canada has been dismissed by the Department of Immigration here, it was announced this morning.

THE TRIPOLITAN WAR. ROME, May 8. Fifteen hundred rebels were dispersed and two hundred killed by Italian forces in their war against Tripoli, according to the latest despatches from the scene of action.

Notable Opinions. I believe that the safest and surest way to get rid of war is to join some sort of League of Nations. That misrepresented and much despised League has already prevented three small wars; it has registered over one hundred treaties, has repatriated nearly four hundred thousand prisoners—not a bad record for only half a league. Quite apart from its political work, it has active humanitarian sections dealing with health, labor conditions, traffic in opium and drugs and the white slave traffic. Each of these must surely find hundreds of thousands of women backers in the United States and throughout the world. I think it is enough to make every woman want to support it in some form or other; certainly any of those who have had sons in the war. The anguish of a mother's heart is felt in all other mother's hearts all over the world, even though they be enemy mothers.—Viscountess Astor, M.P.

Service is the richest exercise of our gifts, the one which brings the most substantial rewards in happiness and peace. There is a danger sometimes, more especially in happy homes, to regard the four walls of the house as the limit of its operations. But the heart turned in on itself does not expand. It misses the chief joy of life. So children should be taught quite early the joy of service, particularly the kind of service which costs something to give. There is no lesson we are slower to learn than this, that nothing that is worth having is, or can be, cheap. Somebody has got to pay for it sooner or later. And all the good that is worth having comes through service; and through giving up something in order that others may be blessed.—Annie S. Swan.

The Experience of Critics. There are so many Talcum Powders, that it is difficult to choose the correct one. You have the benefit of the experience of thousands of critical persons when you select Huddn's Three Flowers Talcum. It has a reputation that few Talcum Powders enjoy. Best for all toilet uses, this delightfully fine powder appeals for its fascinating odor as much as for its fineness and purity. Huddn's Talcum may be obtained at any Drug or Department Store. It costs a few cents more than some Talcums, but it is a great deal better. Those who use it now, claim it is the very best Talcum. Try it yourself. You will love the beautiful, fascinating odor of Three Flowers.

MINARD'S LINIMENT USED BY PHYSICIANS. MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR FALLING OUT OF HAIR.

Gliding is an Old Art.

The art of gliding is very nearly as old as the hills. There is the well-known Greek legend of Daedalus and his son, Icarus, who by watching the flight of sea-gulls obtained enough knowledge to make wings from the feathers of the eagle and the osprey; using a framework of bones for the foundation. It has also been discovered recently that a race of South Sea Islanders understood gliding some thousands of years ago. They were able to cast themselves mounted on wings having a framework of wood, with a covering of palm leaves, into the sea from the top of a high hill. One of the earliest recorded efforts at gliding is that of Oliver of Malmsbury, an English Benedictine fastened wings to his hands in an unsuccessful attempt to fly from the top of a tower.

The next was made by an Italian towards the end of the fifteenth century, one Giovanni Battista Danti, who launched himself from the top of a tower at Perugia by means of wings fitted to his body. He covered a distance of 100 yards. Another Italian, Paolo Guidotti, made wings of whalebone covered with feathers, which he used several times with success. Allard, a Frenchman, in 1660, offered to glide in the presence of King Louis XIV from the terrace of the Palace of St. Germain, but was unsuccessful.

The next French glide was made by the Marquis de Bacqueville, who fastened wings to his hands and feet and jumped from the balcony of his house, alighting in the Seine. In 1861, Otto Lilienthal, a German, at the age of thirteen commenced to make experiments. In 1890 he constructed his first successful glider, which weighed about 40 lbs. This was of the monoplane type, consisting of a willow framework over which was stretched cotton fabric. He made a hollow conical hill, inside of which he stored his machine, launching it from the top. Lilienthal's work was continued in England by Plicher, and in America by Chanute; the latter developing the biplane type of glider. Plicher built five gliders, with one of which he covered a distance of 250 yards.

Two Americans, Wilbur and Orville Wright, learnt German as boys in order to study the writings of Lilienthal. They used several biplane gliders with which they made numerous flights in winds varying in speed from 14 to 30 m.p.h. These experiments were of great value, as they introduced a system of warping the wings to secure lateral control, instead of the clumsy method of swaying the pilot's body as used hitherto. The Wright brothers also introduced the use of upward air-gusts as a means of prolonging flight.

Bullied Schoolboy Censures. Thackeray's Broken Nose and Cowper's Tortured Spirit. Thackeray always called Charterhouse the Slaughterhouse, and, although the most moving passage in his novels makes reference to the old place, he hated the thought of his school life.

He went to the school as "a pretty, gentle, and rather timid boy," and in several of his novels he describes graphically the brutality of the school-life of his day.

Thackeray had his nose broken at school, an incident which marked him for life. So had Michael Angelo when, as a youth, he was studying art.

Cowper, the poet, had a horrible experience at his first school, kept by Dr. Pitman, at Marketstreet, in Bedfordshire. He was a lamb among wolves. The leader of the pack was a lad, as greedy as he was cruel, who must have lain awake at night devising new and curious forms of torture for the white-faced little child of seven.

"Mad Shelley." Cowper had two years of this agony before the bully was expelled for some special enormity of conduct, and Cowper, who was but eight even then, was removed also; and later sent to Westminster.

Shelley was a born revolutionist, and at Eton he refused to fall in with the then odious fagging system, and had to pay the price in "good lookings." He was dubbed "Mad Shelley" and "Shelley the Atheist."

But, although of a kindly and mild disposition, he broke out into mad freaks occasionally, and did not suffer bullies patiently. He is credited with chasing the college cook with a roasting spit, setting fire to a tree in the college grounds with a burning glass, and hiding a savage bulldog in the headmaster's desk. He is also said to have been cruelly flogged. A later headmaster ascribed Shelley's atheism to the treatment meted out to him by his school-fellows at Eton. Goldsmith was the butt of all the bullies at school. Smallpox had spoiled all good looks he ill-favoured, backward boy, and he tasted all the tyrannies a band of young ruffians know how to inflict both on mind and body. He bore marks of this treatment to his dying day. Blackmore, the author of that famous novel "Lorna Doone," was all his later life a victim to a certain nervous malady which he rightly or wrongly attributed to the bullying to which he was subjected at school, and so badly was Tennyson bullied both by big boys and masters at Louth Grammar School, that he was removed very early in life, and never again sent to school until he entered Cambridge as an undergraduate.

What Others are Saying. MIXING UP THE TIME. London Chronicle: France has abandoned summer time. Eighty per cent of her population is agrarian, and the peasant in no country has taken kindly to this reform, which is chiefly of benefit to the town worker. In place of a legal summer time the French Government propose to advance railway time-tables and the opening of public offices for half an hour between April 28 and November 3. The result will be a very serious derangement of Anglo-French traffic. During the winter months French and British railway time-tables will correspond. From April 22 to 28 British time will be an hour ahead of French time; from April 28 to September 15 half an hour ahead, and from September 15 to November 3 half an hour behind. Four adjustments will be necessary annually.

THE MAKING OF A GOLF FAN. Philadelphia Ledger: Nimrod and Isaac Walton at last have a rival in the affections of Governor Pinchot. It's all the fault, Governor Pinchot explained, enthusiastically, of a 175-foot drive. The governor, who already was known as a fisherman, hunter, canoeist and lover of outdoor life in general, took his first golf lesson Saturday. Things didn't go so well. He topped drives, missed the ball altogether, explored every hazard on the course and dug up sod by the bucketful. Then, just as he was ready to throw his stick into the attic, his driver connected fairly with the teed-up ball, and the ball became a little white speck away down the fairway, almost out of sight. And that's how golf fans are made for life.

The Bonavista Election
AND SOME THOUGHTS THEREON.

The political contest in Bonavista District, although it did not result in the election of the Opposition candidates, Messrs. Monroe, Little and Captain Winsor, has probably given more gratification to the friends and supporters of the Opposition Party than the returns of any other district in the country. Mr. Walter Monroe should be regarded as having achieved a great victory in reducing Coaker's majority down to about one-fifth of what it was in 1919, coming within 304 votes of his third man, which means that a turn over to him of 152 votes would secure his election. The good will and approbation of all lovers of liberty and clean government should be accorded to Mr. Monroe for the disinterestedness, self-sacrifice and courage displayed by him in volunteering his services to face Mr. Coaker in his stronghold and reduce his majority to such a low figure. He and his colleagues have shown the country that Coakerism has been broken up in the North and that the next assault, let it come early or late, will see its downfall. It is quite likely that if Mr. Monroe and his colleagues had gone to the district a few weeks earlier they would have defeated the three Government candidates with good majorities. We recognize at the same time that the good campaign work done by the United Fishermen last winter was a strong factor in the result and the public will not hesitate to accord to them the meed of praise to which they are justly entitled. It is to be hoped then in view of this good work that this splendid organization will keep together and not take off their armour till they have accomplished the patriotic work they set out to perform. One of the most desirable things that is in their power to do is to kill sectarianism, and the vote recorded shows that as a political factor this baneful influence was given no chance to poison the minds of the people at the election. Well done Bonavista District! Those of us who live to see another election in Newfoundland will, we have no doubt, have the gratification of recording the completion of the work that Mr. Monroe and his colleagues have so bravely and effectively all but accomplished.

Unemployed Men.

Sir Richard Squires, now that the election is over and another four year term of office for himself and his followers is in prospect, lost no time in closing down all Government sources of employment for laborers in the city. He deemed it right to find through his friends work for them up to Nomination Day and to get around the law and go to the extreme of giving them orders for groceries up to $12 per week. If it was so necessary to go to extremes to give the needy laborers assistance that week, surely they must want work today. The difference lies in this, that at that time the men had not deposited their ballots. They have voted since and they may go to Jericho. Standing around the streets to-day there are more unemployed men than were ever seen in St. John's. We do not want to hamper Sir Richard Squires or his Government, but we want to warn him that he had better lose no time in finding the promised employment for the workless men of the city and country in order to avoid starvation in many families if not something worse. If this Humber Deal is to give all the employment that he led the people to believe it would give he had better provide it quickly. But we fear that this employment and the good times it will bring have been grossly exaggerated for political ends and that it will not find work for one-tenth of the unemployed that are looking for a way to earn something to support themselves and their families. The employment for the majority of St. John's laborers must come back through its legitimate channels, that is to say a revival of city trade in all its ramifications through the fisheries and the fisheries can be carried on only through the co-operation of the trade and the merchants whom Sir Richard Squires went out of his way to abuse and vilify from public platforms and in his papers during the election campaign. It is against Nature to suppose that these same merchants are going to risk what little capital they have left to make it easy for Squires and Coaker and run the risk of being tied up again next fall with restrictive laws that will take the fish that they have risked their capital on completely out of their hands.

A Moral Triumph.

Coaker got 3732 votes in Bonavista Bay in 1919; this year he got 3045, an actual loss of 687. If the proportion of votes he got in 1919 had been maintained he would have got 3900 this year, so that his strength declined 855. His percentage of the total in 1919 was 71, this year only 55. In 1919 he scored 150 more than his colleagues R. G. Winsor, this year only 95, so that he lost more than his running mates. The loss was, therefore, personal as well as party. On the other hand, Capt. Wm. Winsor got only 1550 votes in 1919, and 2,458 this year, a gain of 908; Lewis Little (who replaced Dr. C. A. Forbes) got 2429 this year, as compared with 1485 for Forbes in 1919, an increase of 1013. Capt. Wm. Winsor, occupying lowest place this year, has 1003 more than Mr. Morine got in 1919. It may be said, therefore, that the Opposition candidates won and the Government candidates lost one thousand votes this year as compared with the last previous contest. And this in the hitherto strongest Union district in the Colony. Truly, the handwriting is on the wall for Coaker. He has been tried and found wanting. He was, doubtless, convinced of the truth of the forecast made over his name; "conservatively estimated, my majority will be eighteen hundred." Now then can he explain having got only a beggary four hundred? The mandate he has received, rightly understood, is not "go on," but "go out." Our congratulations are due and are hereby paid to Mr. Monroe and his colleagues, and their supporters in Bonavista Bay, for their splendid work. When regard is paid to the short time for canvassing, and the difficulties thereof, and when it is remembered that the Humber proposal was put forward as a gigantic bribe to corruptly influence a people sadly needing employment, the result in Bonavista Bay is a striking testimonial to the independence of the electors, the work of the Opposition committee, and the popularity of the candidates. Another opportunity will offer, sooner, perhaps, than most people think, and when it does, no better trio can be put into Bonavista Bay than Monroe, Little and Winsor.

VISIT WATERFORD HALL.

His Excellency, the Governor, and Lady Allarday, paid a visit to Waterford Hall yesterday afternoon, in company with Mr. W. G. Gosling, Hon. Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Nfld. Training and Employment Institution for the blind, and Mrs. Gosling. Upon arrival the party was met by Mr. Weir, Secretary of the Board and Supt. of the Institution, and Major Howler, a member of the Board. Mr. Weir gave a thorough description of the nature of the alterations required for the fitting up of the Institution and all information concerning the blind of the country was furnished the party. His Excellency and Lady Allarday manifested a lively interest in the work which has recently commenced, and expressed their wholehearted appreciation of the objects for which the Institution is being placed in readiness.

Mr. M. S. Sullivan Heads Poll.

PLACENTIA AND ST. MARY'S RETURNS THREE OPPOSITION CANDIDATES.

That Placentia and St. Mary's District was "cognizant of all the facts concerning the miracle of the past three and a half years is proved by the overwhelming majorities accorded the Opposition candidates, who have completely smothered Messrs. Bona, Bindon and Brown in the battle of the ballots. The Mail and Advocate repeatedly said that Bona had the District in his pocket, but the vote polled by Capt. Tom and his colleagues, to prove otherwise. Two of the Advocaes so-called, Humber Candidates have lost their Nomination fee whilst the redoubtable Mr. Bona barely saved his by 32 votes. To Mr. Sullivan goes the honor of leading the poll and we take this opportunity of offering him and his colleagues, Messrs. Walsh and Stanott, our congratulations. The District of Placentia and St. Mary's has done its duty.

Rotary Club Luncheon.

The members of the Rotary Club met for luncheon at 1 p.m. yesterday in the West End Restaurant. Rotarian J. Coaker presided. Rotarian D. M. Baird, the speaker of the day, delivered a very interesting address on boys work in New York City. The lecturer was accorded a hearty vote of thanks at the close. Rotarian C. E. Hunt who headed the poll in St. John's West, was present, and received the hearty congratulations of his fellow Rotarians.

Card Party and Dance.

T. A. LADIES' ENTERTAIN.

A very enjoyable card party and dance was held in the T. A. Club Rooms last night, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary. Upwards of seventy players participated in the card tournament, the prizes being won by Mrs. Gaul and Mr. Wm. Moore. During the interval, tea was served by the ladies. The dance music was provided by Mitchell's Orchestra and was greatly enjoyed. The weekly card party and dances are proving quite popular, and last night's affair was a distinct success.

Annual Meeting.

COLUMBUS LADIES' ASSOCIATION

The Columbus Ladies' Association held their annual meeting recently, a large attendance of representatives of the Financial Executive and Council Executive was present. The report presented for the past year showed that the Association was in a flourishing condition. Despite the existing financial depression the work had been most successful and a substantial cheque was handed over to the Council for the Memorial School Fund. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—
President—Mrs. W. H. Tobin.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. Josephine Thorburn.
Treasurer—Mrs. Atkinson.
Asst. Treas.—Miss May Kelly.
Secretary—Miss Margaret Dunphy.
Asst. Sec'y.—Mrs. N. J. Wadden.
Previous to adjournment a vote of thanks was tendered to the retiring officers.

President Coaker's Majority.

NOT UP TO HIS EXPECTATION.

The result of the Bonavista District election was made known yesterday evening and showed that Mr. Coaker and his colleagues, Messrs. Winsor and Abbott had been elected by a small majority. Mr. Walter Monroe who led the Opposition ticket was only 304 votes behind Mr. Abbott, whilst Mr. Coaker was only 417 votes ahead. The final figures were:—

BONAVISTA.

Coaker 3045
R. Winsor 2950
Abbott 2832
Monroe 2628
Little 2498
Winsor 2458

In the face of the vote polled by Mr. Coaker and his colleagues in the 1919 election, their defeat in the present contest was almost too much to hope for. Then Mr. Coaker headed the poll with 3732 votes, whilst the leading Opposition candidate polled only 1,550. About two weeks ago, or to be exact, on April 26th the worthy President sent the following message to the Advocate:—"We have about finished the canvass of Bonavista District. My carefully prepared estimate is that 5,400 votes will be cast on election day. 1,500 will be cast against us and 5,000 for myself and colleagues. This is the result of a personal knowledge of every settlement in the district and an experience resulting from three campaigns covering the same period. There will not be 100 split votes."
(Signed) W. F. COAKER.

The figures in the final count yesterday were somewhat different, and instead of Mr. Coaker receiving a majority of 1,500, it was less than one-fifth of that figure. Of course there will be joy in the Advocate's Office because Mr. Coaker is elected, but there will likely be rueful too, because of the failure of the Union fire to burn as brightly as before.

Street Traffic Regulations.

SECTION 8 OF ACT WILL BE STRONGLY ENFORCED.

In the Magistrate's Court this morning the driver of a well known victualer was summoned on a charge of breaking Section 8 of the Street Traffic Rules. In this case the driver of the team failed to stop his vehicle while an elderly lady and a crippled old gentleman were alighting from a street car at the junction of Long's Hill and Queen's Road, when they barely escaped with their lives. Judge Morris, who tried the case, stated that these regulations were made in the best interests of the community and as a protection of those travelling by street car. He strongly condemned the negligence of drivers who disobey this rule, and he intends to deal severely with lawbreakers of this Act in the future. The accused was fined $5 or 10 days. As a safeguard to drivers, Section 8 of the Street Traffic Regulations, as quoted by Judge Morris this morning, reads as follows:—"The driver of a vehicle meeting or overtaking a street car which is standing for the purpose of taking or discharging passengers, shall stop his vehicle at a distance of at least ten feet from such car, and shall keep such vehicle at a standstill until such car is set in motion, and any passengers who may have alighted therefrom shall have reached the place of safety." The above rule should clear up all misunderstandings—that there might have been on the part of a driver or drivers, and they are now left to govern themselves accordingly. Pedestrians always have the right of way, either in the middle of the road or on the sidewalk, and their lives must be safeguarded at all times from approaching vehicles.

GOVERNMENT APPOINTMENTS TO POST OFFICE.
Mr. W. B. Jennings, late Minister of Public Works, has been appointed Stamp Clerk at the General Post Office in place of the late Mr. James Keane. Mr. Denis Galway, Merchant Tailor of Water Street, has also been appointed to a position in the General Post Office. To-day's Gazette announces that he has been placed at the head of the Parcel Post Department in the position made vacant by the death of Mr. J. W. Kinsella. The appointments are probably some of the strongest planks in the Prime Minister's great industrial programme.

The Court Martial here of officials of the Krupp works for inciting their workmen to resist French troops, resulting in the shooting of March 21st handed down the following penalties: Dr. Krupp Von Bohlen, head of the Krupp Works, fifteen years in jail; Directors Hartwig and Oesterlin, fifteen years each; Director Bruhn and Superintendent Gross of the Apprentice Dept. ten years; Directors Baup and Schaeffer and works managers Schraepfer and Cuntz, twenty years; factory conciliator Nallier, six months; in addition all were fined one hundred million marks each.

TRAGIC DEATH. BEDFORD, Mass., May 9.

Peter Crox, former Commodore of South Boston Yacht Club, was dragged to his death at the bottom of Mystic River yesterday by the anchor of his yacht. A passing coal barge cut his anchor line and Crox put out in a tender to retrieve it. After pulling the anchor near the surface he wrapped the line about his wrist, but lost his balance and fell overboard. When the police pulled at the anchor they found the line still wrapped around the dead man's wrist.

STANLEY AND MONTCALM AS LIFESAVERS.

The two Government ice-breakers Stanley and Montcalm are being rushed to St. Paul's Island to the Island Lighthouse where Mrs. McIntyre, wife of one of the lighthouse staff is ill. The Montcalm has been endeavoring to reach St. Paul's Island for two days to bring two men to Sydney. The Stanley arrived at North Sydney last night and after effecting repairs to her propeller was expected to get away early this morning with Dr. J. G. S. Lynch, of Sydney.

BRITAIN'S NOTE TO RUSSIA.

The British note to the Russian Government is a virtual ultimatum and Russia is given ten days in which to reply complying fully and unconditionally with certain specified demands, failing which Great Britain will recognize that Soviet does not wish to maintain existing relations. The demands of the note are: (1) Satisfactory assurances concerning propaganda; (2) Admission by the Soviet of liability for various offences against British subjects and ships, with and understanding to pay compensation for these offences; (3) Unequivocal withdrawal of two communications framed by the Soviet Government in reply to British protests concerning religious prosecutions.

A BRITISH COUNTER.

LONDON, May 9.
A Bill to provide that any ship entering British waters or leaving a British port, be obliged to carry a reasonable amount of alcoholic liquors for the supply of passengers on demand; is to be introduced in the House of Commons to-day by Lieut. Colonel Courtnepe, Conservative for Rye Division of Sussex. The measure is believed an effective counter ruling against the American Prohibition Law.

Count Takes Place at End of Week.

It is rumored that a vote is now being taken in the portions of Burgeo & LaPointe district which could not be reached on May 3rd. An enquiry made by the Telegram at the Colonial Secretary's Office elicited the information that owing to no telegraph communication in the portions of the district referred to the department was not cognizant of what was transpiring there. According to a message from the Magistrate, however, the ballot boxes were expected to arrive at Burgeo and the count takes place before the end of the week.

CASINO THEATRE
THE GREAT MYSTERY PLAY
"The Nightcap"
WILL BE REPEATED
TO-NIGHT
This intensely interesting play, full of mystery has taken hold with theatre goers and was thoroughly enjoyed by last evening's audience. Delightful comedy strain runs right through making every moment enjoyable.
At the Saturday Matinee
To each of the first 500 entering the Hall, photo of Miss Dennis, the leading lady, will be presented.

Van Camp's Pork & Beans
A delightfully palatable dish that took years to perfect—delivered ready to eat, for only a few cents a portion.
Van Camp's Pork and Beans have the delicious flavour of old fashioned beans, with the added zest of the incomparable Van Camp Sauce. They are so prepared that all the beans remain whole and unbroken, cooked to a tenderness and a digestibility that home cooking can never approximate.
Something Good For Every Meal.

WANTED
REGIMENTAL and NAVAL SONGS
— Also —
All War Compositions of Local Interest
Ex-Service men will help us in collecting words of War Songs having a local interest, that they may be included in the Newfoundland and 29th Divisional War Histories? If a greater interval of time is allowed to elapse, the songs, etc., which mean so much, will be lost for all time.
All Songs, Compositions, etc., which have local interest will be gratefully received at the G.W.V.A. Office where copies will be taken and the original returned to its owner. The following are particularly required—
"Number 9," "Hadow the Laddo," "Potatoes on the Race Course," "How Dearly We Love Surva," "Cuthbert's Our Colonel," and "Copy of Soldiers' Will"

Shipping.

THE "NIGHT CAP."

"The Night Cap," the second performance of which was given last night by the talented Casino Stock Company, assisted by several well known local artists, greatly pleased the audience, which had the good fortune to be present. The scene of the plot is at the country house of Robert Andrews, a successful Bank Manager, who gives a party to his friends, which include the directors of the Bank. When the party breaks up Andrews gives his guests a night-cap, during the drinking of which he astonishes the directors by announcing that they, with himself, were involved in a shortage of the institutions funds and an investigation by the State authorities was then under way. Exciting developments follow in quick succession and a most puzzling murder mystery is offered for solution. The death of Lester Knowles, one of the Directors who is jealous of his wife's intimacy with Andrews. On being investigated, the Coroner provides an opportunity for comedy which is irresistible. The absorbing interest of the tangled skein, caused by the murder of Knowles, is not diminished in the least by the laughter which a grouchy Bank Director, Jerry Hammond, provokes as he is being questioned. Mr. Fred Allan, who plays the part, is a whole team in himself. Mr. Frank Harvey's portrayal of Col. James Constance, another Director is also exceptionally good. Miss Ida Moulton, as the wife of Lester Knowles, has an exacting role in which she displays wonderful, emotional ability. Miss Amy Dennis as Ame Maynard, ward of Robert Andrews, has a very pleasing role. Miss Nettie Devenport's role called for much action, which she skillfully handles. The scenery used in the play is an attraction in itself and during the balance of the week crowded houses should greet the talented troupe. Many will be glad to learn that the Casino Stock Company has arranged that part of the proceeds of the show for Friday and Saturday nights, will go to the Child Welfare Association. Tickets for these nights may be obtained from Miss Mary Doyle.

Ladies' Gymnastic Club.

HELD SUCCESSFUL DANCE.

The Ladies of the Terra Nova Gymnastic Club held a successful dance in the Grenfell Hall last evening. The attendance was large and judging by the repeated encores which were given each number, the affair was undoubtedly a marked success. The Prince's Orchestra as ever furnished excellent music. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion, the club colors, colored balloons, and long streamers presented a very pretty scene. The programme included several novelty dances which proved most successful. The elimination dance was won by Miss Tucker and Mr. Pike who were awarded handsome prizes. The affair did not conclude until an early hour this morning, and was voted an unqualified success. The ladies of the club are contemplating holding a gymnastic exhibition in the near future, promises to be interesting.

Obituary.

MRS. JOHN ROBERTS.

At 7.30 p.m., this morning, at 92 Freshwater Road, there passed peacefully away, Jamima Roberts, the beloved wife of John Roberts. She was taken ill about a year and a half ago, and though her suffering was great she bore it patiently. All medical aid and assistance were rendered, but death was inevitable. She was liked by all who knew her and had a genial disposition, which makes a good mother. She leaves to mourn their sad loss a husband, four sons and three daughters. The funeral takes place from her late residence, 92 Freshwater Road on Friday at 2.30 p.m. Friends and acquaintances please attend without further notice. Funeral notice later.

MISS NAN REDDY.

There passed peacefully away, at her home, Marytown, Monday, May 7th, Nan, oldest daughter of Michael and Alice Reddy. Deceased young lady possessed a sweet and amiable disposition, which made her a general favorite with her acquaintances, especially with her school companions. Nan had just finished her education at St. Bride's Academy, Little-dale, where she spent about three years. She there took up the teaching profession for a short while, but had to retire owing to ill health. Her kind parents did all possible to try to prolong life, but Divine Providence willed otherwise and Nan's young life of 18 years was brought to a close. To her sorrowing parents, brothers and sisters, the writer extends heartfelt sympathy. Mourn not, brave parents, Bear patiently the cross God sent to-day I know the home is lonely, Since Nan has passed away. Schooner Inspiration has sailed for "poppyland"

Train Notes.

The Carbonar train arrived at 2 p.m.
 The Trepassay branch railway was opened for the season this morning, when the first through train left the city at 11.30.
 A local express from Port aux Basques left Humbermouth at 6 a.m.
 Yesterday's cross country express left Bishop's Falls at 11.30 a.m.
 All trains are now making fairly good time. Snow to a depth of nineteen feet still remains along the Gaff Topalls.

Sagona Inward.

S.S. Sagona, Capt. Tavernor, arrived from the Northward at 6.30 last evening, bringing the following passengers:—Mrs. Gillingham, Mrs. Spurrell, Capt. Hann, Miss Mullett, Miss Hall, Mr. Hicks, Capt. Winsor and Frank Harvey. The Sagona is expected to leave here at midnight Friday for Lunenburg, taking foreign mail matter and upwards of 100 men from the South Coast who are going to Lunenburg, N.S. to fish.

THE OBSERVATION.

Le Soleil—"Forest Week" was inaugurated Monday. All our public men, all those who had some authority, should join the organizers of the movement to preach the crusade in favor of the tree. It should not be necessary that in the course of the coming season we should have the sad sight of a flaming sky or a heaven obscured by dark clouds carrying the cinders of our woods. If each citizen does his duty, fire will not devastate our heritage.

The World's Press.

THE GREATEST BOONS.

Brooklyn Eagle.—Statenmanship must always recognize that general prosperity means most to everybody, and stimulated production, stimulated commerce, are the greatest boons to the working classes, always and everywhere.

TAXATION; PRICES; WAGES.

London Morning Post.—The landlord is ruined by heavy taxation; the farmer is impoverished by low prices, and the laborer is brought to penury by high prices and low wages. A very dangerous state of affairs.

THE NEW PRINCIPLE.

St. Paul Pioneer-Press.—The workmen who are responsible for the new order of things in railway associations have written into their plans the principle that the general strike is an economic fallacy and a trades union failure.

THE ONLOOKER'S VIEW.

Johannesburg Times.—Under present conditions and policies Europe is heading for a long period of wars and upheavals. If America could bring itself to give a strong lead in favor of a lasting peace by international action, much precious time might be saved.

THE IMPREGNABLE ROCK.

Washington Post.—The quarrel of the Soviet with religion is that it balks at some of the excesses of communism and urges limitations that the proponents of communist license are unwilling to accept. Therefore the Bolsheviks are against it. Religion has held fast against similar assaults in the past, and will so hold when the revolution is lost in the night of time.

ECONOMICS AND POLITICS.

Johannesburg Times.—In South Africa revenue decreased alarmingly, whilst expenditure remained high. There was only one safe thing to do—retrench. The Government did it. War allowances were struck off. Economies were effected everywhere. And human nature being what it is, the majority of the men turned against the Government. The depression in agriculture and commerce had much the same result. People vaguely blamed the Government. Its popularity waned. Hence Outschorners and the other five seats lost. It isn't politics. It's economics.

THE VOEGE OF WIRELESS.

London Daily Express.—Like a child with a new toy, the whole of England for the moment thinks, and talks, and lives in terms of wireless. The speech by Lord Gainsford, the Chairman of the British Broadcasting Company, complaining that there are 300,000 wireless sets in use, and only 8,000 licenses, has brought shoals of letters all indignantly protesting in their own language, that the "pirate listener-in" is perforce, not one of choice. They point out that it is impossible to obtain a license for a home-made set, and that you cannot expect a poor man to pay anything from 30s. upwards for a ready-made "B.B.C." set, when a home-made one can be constructed for a matter of a few odd shillings.

GETTING THE MOST OUT OF LIFE

Boston Transcript.—Americans do not get enough out of life, according to the opinion of a Swiss gentleman who is in this country for a while. His criticisms can be called such most justly, for what he says is in the nature of a judgment, not disapproval. It might be said in reply, and perhaps by way of extenuation, that he simply compares conditions in Switzerland, of which he is a citizen, with conditions in the United States and quite leaves out of account the great elements of history and evolution in societies. None the less what he says raises a fair question, are Americans getting enough out of life? Many a most energetic and industrious businessman is perfectly childish outside of his role with a good deal of bore into the bargain. Would not a little mild amusement—would not this, if taken in regular quantities, do him much more good than his occasional clumsy incursion into those so-called pleasures that are so strictly forbidden and so well known? Elephants lend themselves but ill to revelry.

Daring Thieves Captured

SENTENCED TO FIVE LASHES OF BIRCH ROD.

Last night about 10 o'clock while Const. Effort was doing police duty along Scott Street, he caught three boys attempting to force an entrance to a grocery store. The officer awaited his opportunity and captured two of the trio and took them to the lockup. The third lad was arrested a few hours later. In the juvenile Court this morning the lads were given a sound lecture. The charge was a most serious one, and each of the accused was ordered to the Penitentiary to receive five lashes of the birch for their bad behaviour.

RUGBY MATCH.—

A rugby match between the Fieldians and a picked city team will be played on Calvert's field on Saturday afternoon. The game promises to be interesting.

AIN'T IT THE TRUTH!

You kick when you stand in a movie show,
 You kick when you stand in a train,
 You kick when you stand where'er you go,
 But you stand up just the same,
 When you're standing upon the gallows,
 And the crowds all gather 'round,
 You'll never appreciate standing room,
 Till your feet are off the ground.
 Instead of beginning at the bottom and working up, an old timer has noticed that some young couples begin at the top and slide down.

PROFITABLE FINDS BY BEACH SEARCHERS.

There are no "methodists and wreckers" in Cornwall, or elsewhere, nowadays, luring vessels to their doom with a display of misleading lights, and earning a livelihood from the results of their glib frauds. "Wrecking," however, is not quite out of fashion, but it is filled in much more legitimate fashion. The recent sequence of storms at sea has strewn the shores of the more remote islands and creeks of the country with the flotsam and jetsam washed off the decks of some battered ship or out of the holds of others which have gone to the bottom somewhere off the coast.

Raking the Shore.

Every morning sees the fisher-folk and crotchers of these parts searching the beach for any wreckage that may have been washed up during the night.

They are trained to the task, not because "wrecking" was really part of their regular calling in the days before there were lighthouses, but because it is still their everyday business to rake the shore for the sea wreck, which they burn to make kelp.

How much revenue these modern "wreckers" derive from their salvage work it is, of course, impossible to estimate. Nobody ever gets rich at the job, but occasionally the treasure trove carried home yields a reward sufficient to help to pay the rent or to buy a sheep or a pig or a pair of boots (says a writer in the "Daily Express"). Timber in fair quantities, cases of food, fruit, lard, rubber, oil, tobacco, even wines and whiskies, are picked up in this way. Very seldom do the "wreckers" retain any of their finds; these are reported to the nearest Official Receiver of Wrecks, who, on disposing of the articles, pays the finder a percentage of the sum realized.

A Fisherman's Find.

One fisherman recently received almost $5 as his share of the selling price of a quantity of salvaged timber.

Sometimes the material found has so deteriorated by contact with the salt water that the Receiver of Wrecks considers it cheaper to let it go to the finder for any reasonable sum he may be willing to offer, rather than transport it for sale elsewhere.

Big Pictures Coming to the Nickel.

D. W. GRIFFITH'S BIG PICTURE IS HEADLINER.

Mr. J. P. Kieley, proprietor of the popular Nickel Theatre has been most fortunate in securing some of the greatest pictures of the day, some of which are due in St. John's in a few days. As a headliner there will be D. W. Griffith's great photoplay, entitled "The Greatest Question." Everybody in St. John's is familiar with the wonderful productions turned out by this master genius, and naturally we all know what to expect when we see one of his pictures advertised. Again there is another big one, entitled "The Man From Hell River." In this picture we expect to see thrills and pathos, and of course a little comedy. No production is complete without that little bit of humour attached to it. Another film that will be looked forward to with interest is, "Cameron of The Royal Mounted" produced by Ernest Shipman, the man who visited Nfld. last summer in an effort to stimulate sufficient local interest to make a local film story. Mr. Shipman informed the writer that "Cameron of The Royal Mounted" is by far the best picture made by him up till that date. Definite announcements of showing dates of the above will be made in this paper within a few days.

Money You Throw Away

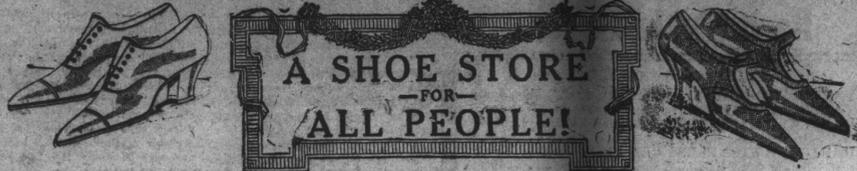

Housewives.

Much of the money spent on food is actually spent on—nothing!
Take meat, for instance; a six-pound joint, by the time it reaches the table, weighs very little more than four pounds, the rest having been "lost" in the cooking. And then there is the bone to consider, so that in the end you find that you have paid for six pounds of meat and have only about three pounds of it to eat. So it is all the way through. Six pounds of potatoes don't make much more than four pounds when they are prepared and cooked. A six-pound cabbage is necessary to produce four pounds at the time, and a pound of parsnips yields only ten ounces when cooked.

Green peas are even worse in proportion, a pound of these articles producing little over seven ounces for consumption.
A six-pound ham loses quite one pound in cooking, and then the rind and bone account for at least another pound. With fish, nearly a third of the original weight has disappeared by the time the food is served.

London, March.—Every egg sold in England will be stamped with the country of origin. If the plans of various housewives' organizations to put such a bill through Parliament are successful. Much interest has been aroused in London recently by the declaration of the National Poultry Council that only about ten per cent. of the eggs sold as new laid eggs come from the provinces of England. It has been shown that huge quantities of eggs are shipped into England every year from Holland, China and Egypt, are mixed with other eggs, and sold as native eggs. Because the foreign eggs are of a better color and larger than English eggs, it is said the retailers are able to sell them more readily than English eggs.

Equal a sum sufficient to pay all the Allied war debts. Among the choice trees indigenous to the islands are the camagon, whose wood is yellow and black like tortoiseshell and the molave, which resists the ravages of white ants and sea slugs, so destructive to other trees. There is also a fine growth of mahogany, both red and yellow varieties—the red taking on a beautiful rich wine color when immersed in sea water. The tall lawn, used in the making of mats and ships is found in plenty, as well as the dagan which is the hardest wood known. The difficulties encountered in taking out timber in

ROBERT TEMPLETON

Forty-Four Years in the Service of the Public—The Evening Telegram.

Tales That are Told.

FUNNY STORIES OF FAMOUS PEOPLE.

Dr. Jowett, who has been hailed as the greatest preacher in the world, started some religious meetings at Newcastle for boys and girls. At the first service four "bad lads" who had hidden themselves in a back gallery upset the proceedings by playing an obligato on penny whistles while Dr. Jowett was speaking.

Dr. Jowett asked, contemptuously: "Can't you fellows play tin whistles any better than that? If you can't, I'll have to get Mrs. Jowett to give you some lessons."

A few weeks later, after they had had some lessons from Mrs. Jowett, the four boys trooped on to the concert platform at the children's service and played a quartette on their whistles.

Mr. Lloyd George praised Dr. Jowett to return to London at the close of his New York ministry, and Mr. Arthur (Cassell) tells a story as a sequel.

A Rival Windbag.

"When I was in America in 1920," he says, "I heard that a megaphone man on one of the 'rubberneck' tourist cars in New York was drawing the attention of his sightseers to Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in the following terms: 'On your left is Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, the wealthiest church in New York. For several years the pastor of this church was Dr. John Henry Jowett, the greatest preacher in the English-speaking world. He ministered here until 1918, when he was recalled by the King of England.'"

Here are some more good stories told by Mr. Porritt. Mr. Seton Thompson, the naturalist, once told of an old Indian whom he had brought down from one of the reservations to show him New York. He took the old man along Broadway at night, over Brooklyn Bridge, on the overhead and underground railways, and so on.

At last he asked the old man what he thought of New York, and this was the reply: "Mr. Seton Thompson, in the land from which I came we have no bridges to span our great rivers, no great white ways to spoil the darkness of the night sky, no trains under the land and over the land; but we have peace of mind!"

The late Mr. Spencer Leigh Hughes, M.P., was at a dinner in the Holborn Restaurant, and in an adjoining room a party of Scots were dining—it was a "Burns night." As Hughes was proposing a toast a bagpiper began to play in the next room.

Hughes paused and then remarked: "Now that the rival wailing in the next room has finished, I will proceed."

Another Try.

The late Dr. Charles Berry told of a prayer-meeting in a Lancashire church when a working man offered a prayer and said: "O Lord, thou hast tried me in many ways. Thou hast tried me with sickness and with sorrow, with my wife and with my work; but if Thou art going to try me any more, try me, if it please Thee, with a bit of brass."

A politician visited a constituency with a view to being selected as its candidate for a by-election. He addressed a meeting of the electors and sought, through his speech, to discover the prevailing religious tendency of the constituency.

"My great-grandfather," he said, "was an Episcopalian (stony silence), but my great-grandmother belonged to the Presbyterian Church of Scotland (continued silence). My grandfather was a Baptist (more silence), but my grandmother was a Congregationalist (still frigid silence). But I had a great-uncle who was a Wesleyan Methodist, and—and I have always followed my great-uncle (loud and prolonged cheering)." He got 'in.

Use Corks for Cleaning.

Cork has wonderful cleaning properties. Spots and blemishes on window-glass that may have defied ordinary cleaning will nearly always disappear if rubbed vigorously with a dry cork.

Corks moistened with turpentine will remove marks from hearth tiles or white glazed bricks, and rust spots on metal will yield speedily to like treatment with corks dipped in paraffin. Substitute petrol for paraffin, and spots on linoleum can be removed with equal ease and celerity. Brisk rubbing is, of course, necessary in all cases.

Burnt marks on pie-dishes and plates will vanish like magic if treated with a cork dipped in wet salt.

For scouring the insides of glass decanters and other narrow-necked vessels, there is nothing to beat finely-divided cork well shaken with warm soapy water.

A dry cork will remove stains from plate or silver more quickly than anything else, and, of course, it never scratches. If the cork is cut to a point it can be worked into crevices which have become tarnished.

France Anticipates

POLITICAL GUIDANCE BY YOUNGER CHIEFS.

PARIS—Look forward and not backward; build resolutely upward with a complaint about the past, and with complete faith in France's power to accomplish results and overcome all obstacles, is the battle-cry of a Frenchman who is rising on the political horizon and who, his friends say, will one day be prime minister of the republic. That man is Andre Tardieu. He is young—only 46—active, buoyant, gripped with energy and vital force, and leader of the opposition in the Chamber of Deputies. He is well-known in America, for he lectured at Harvard University some years ago and during the war was French High Commissioner at Washington.

No parliament in a republic would be real without an opposition, and the fact that Tardieu heads the party that keeps its eye on every move of the cabinet does not mean that in these days of troublesome reconstruction he is in any sense less patriotic than his fellow countrymen.

Tardieu is a moderate Republican. He believes that the majority of the Chamber has been conducted by the governments since 1920 in a way which properly safeguards neither the external nor the internal policies of France, and that the bureaucratic machinery of the old ante-war organization, which is out of sympathy with modern ideas of progress, is too influential. He believes that before the elections of next spring a government should come into office which will be less disposed to bargain with the Radicals, and put them in office, and which will openly proclaim itself moderate. He is convinced that the time has come when France should be governed by a younger generation, not necessarily lawyers and orators, and that the school represented by Poincare, Barthou, Briand and Cailhau has lost touch with present-day realities. Such men, in his opinion, have been too close to the mental current of fear of Germany. He believes there is a place in France for a stronger and more efficient policy both at home and abroad, because France is the strongest nation in Europe and must go resolutely forward to the attainment of results which shall be the best test of her greatness. He thinks that the French occupation of the Ruhr was insufficiently prepared and lacks adequate organization.

The United States, which Tardieu knows so well, strikes him from this angle. He deems that an urgent need of the French people is that they should know American and American ways better. Much has been said, as he puts it, about Americans not understanding the French, but he is confounded at the amazing ignorance of the French concerning the United States. He would, therefore, have more news come directly from the United States to France, and less through London and English newspapers. He believes that every leading newspaper of France should have its own special correspondent in America, so that the people of France may have placed before them a direct interpretation of American events, American policies and American aspirations. Conversely, he favors the establishment in Paris of a French bureau of information.

He does not believe in propaganda. He knows France has nothing to hide, but he fears that the impression of "something to conceal" gets abroad because of the difficulty of getting in the facts which interest them. He wants France to kick over bureaucratic methods in its administrative life just as it crushed every obstacle when it organized and, with its allies, won the great war. Such are some of the ideas of younger France as represented by Tardieu. All France is watching him. Everybody seems convinced that until the Ruhr problem is settled in a way favorable to France, every Frenchman will stand solidly behind Poincare, and the existing government of France. But when this crisis is over younger leaders may be called to carry on the work of building the great France of the future, and it is then that Tardieu's friends expect to see him in the front ranks.

Making 'Tin Lizzies'.

Just over forty years ago a young American mechanic, foreseeing the immense possibilities of mechanical road transport, then in its infancy, set to work to build what he called a 'gasoline buggy.' It was to be easy to run, cheap to construct, and reasonably strong.

After twelve years of patient experimenting the youthful mechanic—whose name was Henry Ford—succeeded to his entire satisfaction. A week later he had formed the Ford Motor Company, of which he was the president, general manager, superintendent, designer and head engineer.

This was in 1892. Twenty-eight years later, on May 31st, 1921, this company completed Car No. 5,600,000, and this five-millionth car was constructed very much like the first.

Herein lies the secret of the success of one of the greatest modern captains of industry. He spent twelve years in perfecting his first car, and having done so, he changed nothing, added nothing, removed nothing.

There was no need. He had thought out everything down to the smallest detail. It remained only to make as many cars as he could, all of one pattern, and sell them at as low a price as he could, consistent with a reasonable rate of profit.

The result is seen to-day in his vast factories at Detroit, where four thousand completed cars are turned out every working day of the year by an industrial army of fourteen thousand work-people.

How Some Animals Pass the Winter.

The habit of hibernation or passing the winter months in sleep, is common to a good many animals, birds, reptiles, fish, insects and shellfish.

Hibernation is a natural protection against the cold, which makes such strenuous demands on the heat and vitality of all living creatures. Animals hibernating do not suffer from the cold, nor do they generate more than a minimum of bodily heat. Their organs, apart from the lungs, are all practically at rest, and as there is no movement, there is no waste. Their breathing, even, is reduced to an almost negligible amount.

A bat in a sleepy state has remained sixteen minutes under water without harm. A hedgehog, which normally would drown in four minutes, has been kept under water for over twenty-two minutes when in a state of winter sleep. Marmots have even lived in that deadly poison gas, carbon dioxide, for four hours, and many other experiments have proved that hibernating animals breathe so little as hardly to count.

The hole or burrow wherein these creatures hibernate becomes almost as warm as the sleeping animal, which thus loses very little heat. A certain amount of tissue, largely fat, is consumed during hibernation, and most hibernators lose over a third of their weight.

Strength Often Returns Slowly
 Mothers May Depend Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Restore a Normal Condition

Many, many letters similar to the following recommend the Vegetable Compound as a wonderful medicine for bringing the mother back to normal health and strength.

It is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs and may be taken in safety by a nursing mother. Thousands of mothers who have regained their strength by taking it are its best recommendation. Why not take it yourself?

Could Not Gain Strength
 Bury, Quebec.—"I have had great help from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am a different woman now. I was very sickly before my first child was born. I did not get my strength back afterwards, and he did not stay with us long. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound three months before my second child was born, and have taken it occasionally ever since. My doctor had said that medicine would not do me much good, but my nurse wished me to try the Vegetable Compound, so I did. I do not go without having it in the house now and I am looking well and feeling fine. I do all my work, sewing and all."—Mrs. JOHN SIMPSON, Box 100, Bury, Quebec, Ontario.

Towns That Squabble.

Towns fall out with each other almost as often as individuals do.

Sheffield and Leeds are always at loggerheads. Leeds regards itself as the finest city in Yorkshire, while Sheffield, with its world-wide fame as a steel-producing centre, warmly disputes this.

Edinburgh, again, has little that is good to say of Glasgow, which is the second city in the Empire and won't let Edinburgh forget it. Edinburgh, on the other hand, challenges Glasgow to produce a history comparable with its own, a point on which Glasgow, a city of modern development, maintains an obstinate silence.

Or take Bristol and Cardiff. The last-named boasts its yearly ten million tons of trade in Bristol's face, to speak, and by way of repartee Bristol snappily reminds Cardiff that trade is not everything and that it can beat Cardiff in the matter of both size and population. Even more keen is the rivalry exists between some seaside towns. Plymouth and Devonport, neighbours, fall out over the pretext, while Brighton, the competition put up by Eastbourne, pertinently refers to itself as don-by-the-Sea, and challenges town, Eastbourne in particular, to wrest this title from it.

Chinese Coolie in Manila.

NOW HATED A MILLIONAIRE.
Manila, P.I., March—From coolie to millionaire in the space of 12 years is the experience of Ong Che, who came to the Philippine Islands 15 years ago from China. He worked as a coolie in Manila, performing all sorts of menial tasks, for nearly three years. After accumulating a few hundred dollars, Ong went into the business of buying and selling junk. To-day he is rated as worth 1,000,000, all of which he acquired in this field.

Ong declares he will buy anything from a wire nail to a steamship. In order to substantiate the latter statement, he announced he had just purchased the old steamer Misocula from the quartermaster department of the United States Army.

And all things flow like a stream."
OUR BURDENS AND HOW TO REDUCE THEM.

Now that the tumult incidental to a general election has ceased, let us hope the party in power will make a supreme effort to reduce our burdens of debt and taxation and lead the colony back to easier and better conditions. The advantage of reducing debt can be summarized in two words—better credit. There are many ways in which we benefit by improving our credit. The most practical is that the exchange value of the dollar is improved, and so we pay less to our outside creditors. The actual interest on the debt is reduced. Government securities rise in price, and so we pay less to our creditors at home, both for our floating debt, and for any new loans that we have to raise. What are the advantages of reduced taxation? Need you ask every taxpayer will say. The direct advantage to all of us of having more of our income to ourselves is clear enough. But the indirect advantage is truly more important. Industry and production cannot be maintained, still less increased, without regular fresh supplies of capital. It is not out of the dominion's income that those supplies must come. And the less of that income that goes in taxes the more there is to provide fresh capital for industry. Truly that is a more important reason for the reduction of taxation than that we should have more to spend on consumption. Of its annual income a country spends a part on consumption, pays a part in taxes, and invests a part as fresh capital for industry. When taxes are moderate there is enough for investment. When they are excessive there is not enough. Lacking the fresh capital which they need, industry and production then languish and decline, and unemployment increases. The greatest specific benefit to be derived from the reduction of taxation is the re-energization of industry by increasing the supply of savings available for investment. The impetus given to enterprise and hard work by increasing the proportion of the fruits of its toil which a taxpayer is allowed to retain, is but another aspect of the same benefit.

CHARITY AND THE CHARITABLY-DISPOSED.

Seeing that our charitably-disposed citizens are taxed to the utmost to relieve the poor of this community, it may not be amiss just here to remind them that there should be a distinction between helping those who cannot work, and contributing to the comfort of those who seldom work, and who, when they do, give more of their earnings to the State than the receipts with which to obtain "freshness" from the Controller's office. This is being ever made more clear to those who have given studious attention to the administration of charity. As to steal is to deprive others of benefit without yielding benefit in return, those who are physically and mentally able and have the opportunity to maintain themselves, but who abstract from others the benefit that conduces to that maintenance by the stimulation of industry, are not entitled to sympathy, are no less than thieves. And, likewise, those who by appeal to sympathy obtain from others benefit in excess of that to which they are entitled under the unhindered working of the law of supply and demand, in common with those who because of sympathy extend that benefit, inflict a wrong upon society as a whole. Many persons of fine sensibilities, who live in comfort and are kindly disposed toward all men, feeling it their duty to alleviate pain, succor the distress, and elevate the body, in the attempt to lift to a higher standard the life of those whose lot appeals to them in piteous contrast with their own, have scattered gifts and expended energy often misdirected, because they have not recognized that the mold given by heredity and environment cannot suddenly be changed, that true and lasting improvement to any one can only result from his own perception of and desire to reach a higher standard, and his own effort directed toward that end. The fallacy that work is for hirelings, and the life of a gentleman a life of leisure, falls in the perception that no servitude is dishonorable, for from the maid in the kitchen to the statesman in the Cabinet, from the fisherman in his little boat off Cape Spear to the commander of the majestic battleship, from the merchant in his office on Water Street to the King's representative at Government House, the efforts of all are in the service and interest of mankind.

MISCHIEF OF AN IMPERFECT EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

The great mischief of an imperfect educational system, such as ours, is that it creates the public opinion by which itself is judged. The man of thirty-five, who to-day has children of his own at school, was a scholar himself only twenty years ago. Things have not changed much in that time. If the spirit of competition was stamped into him, he will want it stamped into his children. If money is his chief preoccupation, he would not like to hear that a public school teacher taught anything to lessen the importance of money in their eyes. He could be willing enough that other children should learn that lesson, but not his own. The case I am persuaded, is far from being an imaginary one. The average parent sends his children to school with no other view than that they shall be prepared for some money-making occupation; and he expects that object shall be kept uppermost by the school authorities. Of course, if we had every reason to be satisfied with the moral progress of the masses and the signs of the times generally there would be no need to raise this question; we might assume that the schools were doing all that was required of them; but such is not the case; the signs of the times are in many respects unsatisfactory. The state has wrenched education from private hands, and now we have to consider what can be done to humanize the teaching which it is bestowing on the thousands of our youth. Very many individual teachers are doubtless occupying themselves with the problem, but their efforts will not make up for the general public indifference to it. A country cannot thrive on love of money, nor live on the virtues of a small minority. We must have, so to speak, the spirit of social duty and of moral responsibility, at the very base of our educational system; otherwise education itself becomes a fraud and a snare, and the very agencies which should consolidate the social fabric will work for its disruption.

THE COMMON PEOPLE.
Who are "the common people"? Certainly not the sordid, unprincipled characters that hang around public offices during an election campaign and promise to do anything for a money consideration. Neither are the common people those abnormal people whose names appear in the press so often in connection with charity concerts and mutual admiration societies. The common people are neither the prominently rich or politically noisy folks who receive overloaded attention. They are not the folks who live in hotels all their lives because they don't want to be at the trouble of building up a home. The common people in a community like ours are the unadvertised, non-titled, hard-working multitude, who live in simple fashion, who are not feverishly anxious to get rich quick, who do not care for newspaper notoriety, who go along year after year earning an honest living and rejoicing in the common everyday things. Yes, these are "the common people." We do not read about them in our dailies. We do not hear about their doings either in the circle of society or the annals of crime. And we sometimes deny their existence. But, all the same, they are still with us and their presence is indispensable. As a matter of fact, they are the foundation of civilization. We can get along without kings and knights and society leaders and political front-pagers. They are not essential. They make a lot of noise, but noise does not mean power or anything like it. The best thing that keeps the balance and preserves the heaven in the mass is the common people.

HOW SOME MEN MAKE A SUCCESS OF LIFE.

One day last week I met an old friend at the Department of Public Works, and after discussing with him the political situation and the merits and demerits of the respective leaders then marshalling their forces for the coming conflict, he made some reference to one of our more successful business men now prominent in public life, and used the well-worn expression "Nothing succeeds like success." To this I took exception, claiming that the two great essentials to success are application and industry. "Perhaps you are right, after all," he observed, and here our discussion of the subject ended. But much more might be said in relation thereto. Just look around and note the considerable number of ordinary men who are making a success of life, even in our own small community. There is plenty for those of us who have no great genius. All we need do is to take advantage of abundant opportunities. Examine into the history of any man who is "getting along" better than the average, and you will find the secret of his success is no secret at all, all he does is to be reliable, work hard, watch, out and practice politeness. And the importance of these things have been dinned into our ears ever since our birth. Almost every day I go up town I meet a very successful man who does not seem to know any more than I do, but on investigation I conclude he more readily practices a few of the more necessary business habits.

INSANE KINGS AND IMPULSIVE PREACHERS.

My ideas with respect to the insane Kings of the Bible do not at all coincide with the views expressed by one of our outstanding city clergymen in the course of his sermon the other Sunday evening. I have no desire to be personal, nor is it my intention to "quote and criticize" his remarks. I only wish to say that I cannot accept his teachings hereabout entirely without question, because I regard them as far-fetched and calculated to mislead some of the younger members of the congregation he addressed on that occasion. Let my readers briefly study, in the light of modern science, the cases of Saul and Nebuchadnezzar, so forcibly referred to by the reverend gentleman. Of Saul's case we find that his insanity was recognized, but at a time when secondary causes were ignored; it was called "an evil spirit from the Lord." Judged in the light of the present, it was but the natural outcome of his character, a character made up of unstable elements easily and unfavorably affected by attending circumstances. In justice to Saul, it should be remembered that he was merely a hardman's son, upon whom were thrust royal dignity, authority and responsibility, without precedent or guide, for he was "the first king in Israel." Nebuchadnezzar's insanity may have been caused partly by overwork. His treatment in view of the sacredness of his person, his delusions, the climate, and the private parks of Babylon, and the ideas of nudity, was the best. It challenges our treatment of to-day, as my friend the Superintendent of the Lunatic Asylum here will I think, admit; for it gave out-of-door life without stint, permitted the greatest activity, and employed neither mechanical, chemical, nor manual restraint. Nothing could be truer to Nature and the daily manifestations of the insane than the account of the recovery of the King; the coming out of chaos or self-absorption; the looking upon things about him, and seeing them gradually assume their correct proportions; the return of the understanding; the full return of reason; and then a heart overflowing with thankfulness—thankfulness that only those feel who, bereft of reason, have walked long in the valley of the Shadow of Death.

A CLERGYMAN'S SWEEPING INDICTMENT.

Just here I am reminded that the gentleman above referred to is not the only member of the clerical profession whose attitude towards the world, the flesh and the devil sometimes startles us. For instance, a little while ago the Rev. Mr. Kader created a tremendous sensation in Colorado by the startling nature of a prayer he offered up at the opening of a session of the House of Representatives there. He said:—"Our courts are corrupt; God has been expelled from our churches; our pulpits are filled with essayists; our boys and girls are going to the dogs; our laboring men are going to work with empty pails, while our farmers starve and the middlemen wax fat on exorbitant prices. Our banks are burning with money." The Minneapolis Tribune has the indictment as "sufficiently comprehensive to satisfy all but the most exacting." Precisians might vote that he failed to say that "the President was a fool, the members of the Supreme Court imbeciles, the representatives incurable maniacs, the lawyers criminals, the doctors knaves, the educators nincompoops, and the editors paid hirelings." Still, even with these omissions, the chaplain made a pretty thorough job of his "prayer." When he succeeded in getting so many things in, it seems like cavilling to note that there were really some things he left out. The Colorado House of Representatives—for some strange reason—passed a resolution censuring the chaplain. The Colorado representatives, it appears, had the quiet idea that they wanted an orthodox prayer rather than a Pseudo Shavian diatribe on the state of civilization. Certain circles of the church have recently complained that the church ought to occupy itself less with thoughts of spiritual salvation and more with specific criticism of the existing social order. The performance of the Rev. Mr. Kader before the Colorado House of Representatives would seem to indicate that the old fashioned view concerning the function of the chaplain are not so lacking in soundness after all.

World's Greatest Wall.

If the moon were inhabited, the Great Wall of China would be the only thing made by man on this planet that would be visible to the moon-man's eye.
This wall is 1,250 miles long in a straight line, whilst its twists and curves increase it to nearly 2,000 miles, a length almost beyond the power of imagination to grasp. It transported to Europe it would stretch from London to Sicily.
Begun in 219 B.C., the wall was built by the Chinese to keep the people of the North from invading their fertile plains, and in the days before artillery a wall was a very good way of keeping an invader out.
The first wall, however, was made only of mud, and in time crumbled away almost entirely. Eight hundred years after its first erection it was rebuilt, and added to by successive generations until three hundred years ago. At its best it was fifteen feet thick at the base, 15 at the top, and from 15 to 30 feet in height.
In addition, there were more than Harder Than Steel.

DIAMONDS CAN DRILL THE HARDEST ROCK AS WELL AS DEBOOR-ATE THE NECK OF PRETTY WOMEN.

Nature has given us several kinds of diamonds. The diamond of my lady's tiara is very different from the diamond of my glass-cutting implement, and there are other forms as well. All, however, consist of carbon.

When an element, such as carbon, has many different forms, it is said to be allotropic, and, if asked to define what is meant by the word diamond, we should be right in saying the diamond is an allotropic form of carbon.

The diamond is the hardest known substance, and it practically the only material from which tools can be fashioned for cutting substances which are harder than steel. In the manufacture of watches and other intricate mechanisms involving jewelled movements, or bearings, made from rubies, sapphires, or other precious stones, diamond implements are used in cutting and shaping the gems.

"Black diamonds," a popular misnomer for a lump of coal (especially when it is dark), is in fact the correct name of a certain class of diamonds which, by being porous and imperfectly crystallized, have a black appearance. Black diamonds are found only in Brazil, and, if left in their natural surroundings, become perfectly crystalline. They are used for the cutting of rock drills.

Why Diamonds Cut Diamonds.

Many quite soft substances, such as fibre, rubber, paper, vulcanite, and bronze quickly wear out steel tools with which they may be ground.

The initial cost of a steel tool is only a few shillings, whereas that of a diamond tool may be several pounds; but the diamond will more than repay its first cost in a much shorter time than the steel tool, which may be ruined at the outset. Diamond-pointed tools last many times as long as any others, and, moreover, materials cut by them rarely require polishing or burnishing afterwards, so perfect are the cutting properties of the crystal.

The average rough diamond has a very ordinary appearance, differing little from a common pebble of the beach. The lustre and colourless property of the treasured jewel are only found in a small proportion of the diamonds discovered in the mines. The rough diamond, known as "brity," is as hard as the precious jewel, and is the kind generally used for grinding implements.

Diamond cleaving is an art in itself. The crystal presents a form of grain, or lines of cleavage, along which only can it be split. A knowledge of the lines of cleavage is very essential for the designer of diamond cutting implements. Even the most experienced diamond-cleaver will study a crystal under his microscope for hours before cutting it.

This crystalline structure, or property of being cloven, is probably related closely to that peculiar property whereby one diamond will cut another. Although one piece of steel will not cut another piece of steel of equal hardness, a sharp diamond will make a clean cut in another diamond, and be worn away hardly in the process.—Answers.

Once Landowner Toils as Peasant.

The following is quoted by the London Times from a letter written by a former Russian landowner who is now leading the life of a peasant with his father and brother on an allotment forming part of the family estate.

"I would like to describe to you in detail our life and occupations, so as to give you an idea of how so many educated and cultured people live in Russia nowadays.

"As you know, when the revolution came, my father, my three brothers and I managed to receive the permission of the government to stay in the country upon our estate (although it is not ours any more). We were given a standard allotment from our former land on condition that we worked it ourselves, and we settled down to the new life.

"Of work there was plenty and at first it was hard to give up old habits and tastes and to live like peasants; besides our little piece of land through want of skill, refused in the beginning to yield enough to make both ends meet. Gradually, however, we began to get accustomed to the new labor and things began to improve.

"Work is distributed in this way: Father is our shepherd. Each morning he takes the Bible, a copy of Pagan and a small piece of bread, and goes off with the few cows and sheep we have. He is the sower as well, so that when sowing time comes one of us has to take his place, and mind our little herd. One of my brothers keeps house, attends to the vegetable gardens, of which we have two, milks the cows and feeds the chickens; another looks after our two horses, and the third and myself do all the rough work in the fields.

"This division of labor is observed until the hay harvest, when all of us, except father, have to work from dawn to dark, for we have no hired laborers, and have to rely on ourselves to have all the hay stored away by the harvest time. Then the hardest time begins. At sunrise we are already in the fields, reaping till sunset, with only a few minutes at midday to swallow the bread and milk we bring with us, for nobody has time for lunch. When night comes there is not much rest either, for the peasants let their horses loose, and we have to patrol our fields in turns, chasing them away.

"As long as one is absorbed in work the whole day and is almost dropping with fatigue when bedtime comes there is no time to think; but in the long autumn evenings, when the family gathers round the little oil lamp, or when one lies awake at night not tired enough to fall asleep at once, all kinds of thoughts come to torture one. Pictures of the past rise before one's eyes, the military school, the regiment, the war. . . . One involuntarily begins to draw comparisons between the time, not so long ago, when life seemed full of promise and the dreary, hopeless existence to-day."

The Bride of Death.

WEIRD STORY OF A GRAVESIDE WEDDING.

There is more than a suggestion of the incredible in stories of dead men winning races, steering a ship for hundreds of miles, gambling with cards, going through a marriage ceremony and so on; and yet the evidence on which these stories are told is of such a character that one cannot refuse credence to what seem to be impossible feats.

Not long ago, a valuable cup was won in a bicycle race at Sydney by a man who was actually dead when his bicycle flashed past the winning post.

The race took place at an electric light carnival in the presence of 10,000 spectators. During the last lap, James Somerville was leading, and his victory was assured when, within twenty-five yards of the goal, he was seen to relax his hold of the handlebars and to lose his footing on the pedals.

A TRAGEDY OF THE SEA.

He stuck to his machine, however; and amid frantic cheers won the race by half a wheel, only to pitch head foremost from the bicycle the next moment. When the unhappy man was picked up he was found to be dead; and, in the opinion of the doctors, he must actually have ridden twenty-five yards of the race after life had departed.

During a recent voyage of the sailing schooner Arletta, when about one hundred miles from the Queen Charlotte Islands, a mastless ship which appeared to have been abandoned by her crew was sighted. When the Arletta drew near to her, however, a figure was seen at the wheel steering the dory; but as no answer was received to repeated hails and offers of assistance a boat was lowered, and the mysterious ship was hoarded.

It was then found that the steersman, whose hands still clutched the wheel, was not only dead, but had evidently been dead for many days. The ship, which was the General Siglin, bound from San Francisco to Alaska, had clearly been abandoned by her crew, and the captain, finding his strength failing, had lashed himself to the wheel and literally died at his post, steering the vessel for hundreds of miles with hands that held the wheel in as firm a grasp as when alive.

Not long ago a Russian cemetery was the scene of as strange and weird a wedding as has ever been witnessed. A young Jewess, who had been betrothed, died on the eve of her marriage, and her friends, finding in the spite of the intervening hand of Death, her marriage must take place in order that "she could avoid the dishonor of entering the other world as a single woman." The wedding ceremony was performed at the graveside, and when it was concluded the body was returned to the coffin and lowered into the grave.

Wandering Lake.

It was the Swedish explorer Sven Hedin, who has devoted much study to Central Asia, who gathered considerable information in regard to the "wandering" of Lake Nor in the Gobi desert. A phenomenon about which contradictory views have been entertained.

He says that the Tarim river, entering the lake from the west brings down during the period of high water late in summer a great quantity of silt, which has the effect of driving the lake, lying on the level floor of the desert, toward the southeast. But the summer wind, drifting the surface sand and darkening the heavens with dust, blows generally from the northeast, and it, too, tends to drive the lake to the east. The combined effect of the rising of the wind and the river is to force the lake southward. Yet Sven Hedin thinks

Making Safer Safes.

A safe may be as completely burglar proof as you like, but it is not a secure resting-place for money or important documents unless it can also resist the action of fire.

Not long ago papers worth $1,250,000 stored in a safe were reduced to ashes during a great fire which involved the destruction of many city offices.

This disaster led to the perfection of safes that are really fire-proof. The tests to which they are put, by the makers before they leave the factory are amazing.

The drawers and shelves are first of all packed with papers and account books. Then the doors are closed, and the safe is run on a trolley into the heart of a blazing furnace. Here it remains for three or four hours, until it is a glowing mass of white-hot metal.

The trolley is now hauled out, and the half-ton safe is raised by a crane to a height of 40ft. Released suddenly by the pulling of a lever it rushes like a great shooting star through the air, to fall with a deafening crash on to a heap of iron, stones and bricks below. This represents the shock that it might have to endure by falling from top to bottom of a blazing building if the floors gave way.

It is then cooled by streams of water and its contents are examined. If they are at all charred the safe is not passed as fit to be sold with the maker's guarantee.

Hints for Your Home.

If the soles of new boots and shoes are varnished every five or six weeks with copal varnish they will wear much longer. The varnish will also render them waterproof.

In a saucepan of warm water with a little soda, and let it boil for about ten minutes.

Through salt is excellent for putting into the water when washing colored materials, it should not be used for black fabrics, which must be dipped into a lather containing two or three teaspoonfuls of borax.

"RIM LAC"

THE LATEST THING IN OPTICAL SCIENCE.

Rim Lac on the edge of a lens greatly improves its appearance, leaving a smooth glossy finish which is most attractive, and prevents chipping of the edge, also cutting out the usual reflection of light from the edge of lenses.

MAY WE SHOW YOU THE ADVANTAGES OF RIM LAC?

Wallace Silverwear.

Is your Table Silver as good to-day as when you bought it?

Have you noticed that at the parts most exposed to wear, the plate has become worn?

Do you think this condition of your Silver is in keeping with your idea of a well appointed table?

Then why not, when you decide on replacing your old ware, give place to it with the "Wallace" Brand, the Silver that refuses to wear and is guaranteed without time limit.

Start with the Tea Spoons and gradually complete your Set with the one pattern—there are several for you to choose from and the price is very moderate.

Tea Spoons—cost $3.00 for a Dozen.
