Our readers will remember that in the officers attempted to obtain possession of a lot in the Township of Maryboro', be-longing to a widow woman named Grey, over which there had been considerable litigation, and which by the verdict of the Court had become the property of Mr. Ball, Barrister, Galt. The officers were at that time met by resistance on the part of Mrs. Grey and her sons, and people in the vicinity sympathizing with her as an innocent victim of the law's behests, these functionaries, after vainly attempting to carry out their instructions, left Mrs. Grey for the time and other great financial houses. A rebeing in full possession of the disputed ward of one thousand pounds has been property.

MONDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 3, 1878.

If there is one thing more-amus-ing than another, at the present time, it is to read the torrents of abuse, poured ought through the colums of the Tory press, upon the heads of the present Ontario Government. "Recklessness and extravagance is the order of the day," and the "resources of the country are being wasted by the powers that be," is the never ending cry. These statements are made without the slightest regard to truth, and for no other purpose than that of imposing upon the cre-dulity of the readers of the Oppo-sition press. These are the facts as given by the London Advertiser:—

In 1868 the expenditures amounted to $1,183,852; in 1869, $1,444,608; in 1870, $1,580,663; and in 1871, to $1,816,866—an average yearly increase of about $211,000! In 1872 under the Blake and Mowat Govern ments, the expenditures totalled $1,847,956, or $31,109 only in excess of the last year's expenses under the Sandfield regime—a wide difference in favour of the economy of Reform rule, being a saving of $180,000 on the annual ' natural' increase of the public expenditure under the parsimoniously economical Sandfield ad, ministration! A charge of recklessness and extravagance against a Govern. ment able to point to a record like the above comes with very bad grace indeed from the eulogists of Patent Combination "economists."

Another method adopted by the Tory Opposition to endavour to damage the Reform Government in the eyes of the people, is to take the actual expenditure for 1872-1,847,-956, and compare it with the estimated expenditure of 1873—$2,771,023, and as a proof of the reckless prodigality of Reformers. But a simple application of the same rule to the model economist's accounts disposes of this piece of deception, and leaves the balance still largely in favour of the present Government. Take, for instance, the estimates of 1871—the last year of the Patent Combination —$2,581,560, and compare them with the actual expenses for 1870—$1,780,-683, and we find that the economy of the "model" government exhibited itself in a sudden excess of more than one million dellar. than one million dollars!

It will be seen from the above ex hibit that the balance of economy and careful husbanding of the resources of the Province is greatly in favor of Reform rule. But why pursue the subject further. The fact is patent to the people, and all the untruthful abuse of the Opposition press will not convince them to the contrary.

MONDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 3, 1878.

If there is one thing more amusing than another, at the present time, it is to read the torrents of abuse, poured ought through the colums of the Tory press, upon the heads of the present Ontario Government.

"Recklessness and extravagance is the order of the day," and the "re-the order of the order of the order of the day," and the "re-the order of the order o the order of the day," and the "resources of the country are being wasted by the powers that be," is the never ending cry. These statements are made without the slightest regard to truth, and for no other purpose than that of imposing upon the credulity of the readers of the Opposition press. These are the facts as sources of the country are being wastsition press. These are the facts as given by the London Advertiser:—

In 1868 the expenditures amounted to $1,183,852; in 1869, $1,444,608; in 1870, $1,580,663; and in 1871, to $1,816,866—an average yearly increase of about $211,000! In 1872 under the Blake and Mowat Govern ments, the expenditures totalled $1,847,956, or $31,109 only in excess of the last year's expenses under the Sandfield regime—a wide difference in favour of the economy of Reform rule, being a saving of $180,000 on the annual ' natural" increase of the public expenditure under the par imoniously economical Sandfield administration! A charge of recklessness and extravagance against a Govern ment able to point to a record like the above comes with very bad grace indeed from the eulogists of Patent Combination "economists."

Another method adopted by the Tory Opposition to endavour to damage the Reform Government in the eyes of the people, is to take the actual expenditure for 1872-1.847. 956, and compare it with the estimated expenditure of 1873-$2,771,023, and point to the increase of some $900,000 as a proof of the reckless prodigality of Reformers. But a simple appli cation of the same rule to the model economist's accounts disposes of this piece of deception, and leaves the balance still largely in favour of the present Government. Take, for inance, the estimates of 1871-the last year of the Patent Combination -$2,581,560, and compare them with the actual expenses for 1870—81, 80, 683, and we find that the economy of the "model" government exhibited itself in a sudden excess of more than one million dollars!

It will be seen from the above ex hibit that the balance of economy and careful husbanding of the re sources of the Province is greatly in favor of Reform rule. But why pursue the subject further. The fact is patent to the people, and all the untruthful abuse of the Opposition press will not convince them to the Street Singing.—Blessed is the city that can reduce terment to pleasure, masted mendienney to a respectable profession. This is exactly what Paris has done. Nobedy can sing in the streets without special permission from the authorities, and only one hundred of these permissions may be in existence at one time. The bolder of a certificate must die oer ritie before another may enter the ranks; an instant street is the penalty of singing in the streets without the precious paper in his pecket. Moreovermoting in verse or prose, may be sung or recited which doesn't bear the official at any. Some of these open-air singers are said to have not only talent but genium. Besides having excellent voices, they are for deficient in style, and show both skill and taste in the composition of shaple and amusing songs, full of local and national character. But even now they had little mere than they had before to guide them in their conjectures. The light given by the telegram was very little. It just enabled them to suppose that the old gentleman was the proprietor of an estate in Yorkshire, named Rockstone, but beyond this point the veil of darkness still rested. Still, an hour or two would make the revelation complete, and the knowledge of this made the railway journey a peculiar one to them.

The station whither they were bound was the second from Liverpool at which the mail train stopped, and it stopped there only because it was a junction, where passengers and mail bags from another direction joined it. Aware of this, the pair had—when the train resumed motion after the first stoppage—afted impatiently for that slackening of specific which would be to them an intimation that their railway journey was ended, and the time of enlightenment come.

motion after the first stoppage—saited inpatiently for that slackening of specity which would be to them an intimation that their railway journey was ended, and the time of enlightenment come. But the minutes passed, and the train rushed along at the same headlong speed. It was now quite dark outside, the open country through which they were passing was invisitle, and nothing could be discerned but perhaps the momentary flash from a lighted station as they dew past it. The time which clapsed at the rate of speed mentioned, must have carried them very many miles, and a still no sign of stopping, was given, they began to entertain the fear that they had been carried past the proper place, and might be conveyed to some remote region which to them might be altogether strange place was highly enhanced, and to be set downsta late hour; in a strange place was highly enhanced, and to be set downsta late hour; has been a discontinuous country but with Philip by her side she was quite at her case, she felt so safeunder his protection, so happy and prend in the shelter of his strong and noble love.

It was blit, however, their own impations which manufaid the length of the way. The time taken was not longer than its tud, and almost at the proper minute the unit the sounded, the speed of the farm speakened, lights appeared, a signal-post with red light a top of it was slowly passed, and preend in the shelt country in the particular properties. The time taken was not longer than its tud, and almost before they had time to look around them the bell rung, the whistle shrieted again, the length of passed of her Majesty's mail.
