Probability of the Question Being Soon and Permanently

Canadian negotiations recently concluded here led to the signing of a protocol which formally agreed to the exact subjects to be submitted to an eneral understanding among officials that the Bering Sea question wil be adjusted and finally settled by the complete termination of pelagic scal-

This has been a source of controversy or many years, the United States eeking to put an end to pelagic sealing, and Canada, through the Imperial Government, contesting this termination of an industry very profitable to many citizens of the Canadian Pacific coast. During the recent negotiations, however, it developed that this industry was practically extinct, and was no longer profitable to any considerable number of Canadians. Heretofore the Canadian sealers have gone to the Bering Sea by the hundreds, and it was impossible for Canada to stop the industry without paying these sealers a very considerable sum, running into the millions, for the externation of their industry. Now, under the changed conditions, it is said that Canada has only a few sealers to deal with, and that she is therefore a position to meet the contentions of the United States without seriously juring a large established industry. no agreement toward giving pelagic sealing was reached during he recent meeting, the discussion was along lines indicating that the coming without difficulty and with due regard for the interests of oth governments, could put an end to the Bering Sea controversy by agreeing to a complete suspension of

The Growth of Their Friendship and Its Mutual Benefits

[Detroit Free Press.] The wave of Anglo-Saxonism that is sweeping over the English speaking peoples is the most encouraging sign of the day. The old feeling of bitter ness between England and the United States has been gradually giving way ance, in response to a request by Mr. to a new feeling of friendship. The change has been gradual and unnoticed posal, made in influential circles, and conditions upon which the harbor com- until brought into prominence by recent Strange as it may seem the Venez-

The ship between the two nations. The firm attitude of the American Government in standing up for the Monroe doctrine even to the point of war if necessary seems to have impressed Englishmen with admiration for the grit" of the American people. There is hardly any quality in human nature that appeals so strongly to Britons as a manly disposition to stand up for one's rights. When President Cleveland therefore issued his famous Venezuelan message and the American people stood ready to back its declarations England may have been surprised at the exhibition of American pluck, but she admired it and what is more had the good sense to back down from a position so obnoxious to America. By ican contention England averted trou-ble between two great nations and turned the tide of American sentiment from one of hostility to one of good

"The place for an American when his country is at war is America," said Gov. Flower when he stepped off the St. Paul at the end of her last trip as the property of the American Line. This is the feeling that keeps thousands of men at home or brings them back from Europe. More thousands than are influenced by this cause find it incompatible with their business interests to separate them from themselves by the breadth of an ocean.

"You can never tell what war is going to bring about in my line," the business man. "My best hold is to stay here and keep my eyes open. And if he stays at home, so does his family, in nine cases out of ten. Taking into consideration all who, for one cause or another, have already changed their plans of crossing the Atlantic this season, or will change them, it is pretty safe assertion that the transatlantic travel of 1898 will be cut down by the Venezuelan controversy also had to about 50 per cent of that of 1897 this effect: It caused both people to Some lines will be affected more than Some lines will be affected more than others, perhaps, and none of the companies will admit any such decrease States would be, and stimulated the thus far, but the immediate future is tion, if not made in the house, were at least insinuated, and they were more than insinuated in other places, Mr. Tarte was held up from one end of the country to the other as a corrupt panied the effort to form such a treaty increased the friendly spirit that was increased the friendly spirit that was sorved to moderate the corrupt of the country to the other as a corrupt increased the friendly spirit that was increased the friendly spirit that was sorved to moderate the corrupt of the country to the other as a corrupt increased the friendly spirit that was increased the friendly spirit that was increased the friendly spirit that was increased to moderate the corrupt of the country to the other as a corrupt increased the friendly spirit that was increased the friendly spirit that was increased the friendly spirit that was increased to moderate the corrupt of the country to the other as a corrupt increased the friendly spirit that was incre view with equanimity. The practical and this has served to moderate the loss of traffic. Nevertheless, the manager of a well-known line said only a few days ago: "Half of our reservations of last winter have been cancelled. We have been doing pretty well so far, but unless the war ends quickly the summer is going to be a hard blow to us." Accurate figures are impossible to obtain, but it has been estimated that fully $100,000,000 was spent in Europe last year by Americans, this sum in cluding the cost of travel across and persons went abroad. Now, assum that half of the persons who would otherwise have gone will stay home on account of the war. There is $50,000, 000 kept in this country. But this is assumed that the 50 per cent of stay at-homes represent 50 per cent of the amount spent abroad. As a matter of fact, they represent far more than this, for the men restrained from going by the ticklish state of business in war times are the men of great interests who are able to and do spend large sums of money in making purchases in Europe. As for the economical tourists, those who save enough to go to Europe once in a lifetime, any slight inclination they might have toward staying at home this year is augmented by the fact that in 1900 comes the Paris Exposition, which will be worth waiting for. A well-known banker of this city estimates that from $60,000,000 to $75,000,000 will be kept at home this year unless the war should end very

The steamship lines are firm enough to weather the storm and be ready for an increase of business next season. It is on the European tourist resorts that the blow will fail most heavily, and France, which is howling because her Spanish bonds are deteriorating in value through the humble efforts of this a new note of mourning when she find the American dollar lying stationary at home instead of rolling her way Switzerland, which almost lives on the American tourist, will also suffer very severely. About $15,000,000 is spent every year in traveling expenses about Europe by tourists. Europe will be fortunate if half that amount is spent this year, supposing, always, that the war lasts through the summer. It is well within the possibilities that a swift end should come to the war. In that case an unprecedented rush for transatlantic accommodations will reresult, and the lines will undoubtedly be swamped with business. All the ed upon this possibility.

LONDON BADLY BEATEN. The Saginaw team turned the tables on the London boys Friday and won in one of the hardest-hitting contests ever seen in Saginaw. Triples and doubles and an occasional home run were fea-tures in several of the innings. The home team fielded perfectly, and the visitors seemed to fall down completely. Score:

Port Huron Times: There is no disputing the fact that a large black eye was given to baseball enthusiasts in this city on Memorial Day, when the home team piled up 18 errors in two games, and played of trageously at every point. Port Huron is a good ball-town, but will not patronize a team which loses 16 out of 23 games. If Manager Murphy expects a good attendance at the games played in this city he must see that the amateur games of Monday last are not repeated. The Griffiths Corporation has found it impossible, owing to the prevailing low prices, to handle imported wheels at a profit, and the directorate has therefore given instructions to have the English stock disposed of without reserve. Every wheel is fitted with Dunlop tires and covered by the regular guarantee of the makers, who are a thoroughly responsible firm. This is the first time that such well known bicycles have been placed in Canada at auction prices, and it will be an opportunity which Londoners desirous of securing an A1 machine at moderate cost should not allow to pass.

HEN a dealer states to you that his wheel is the easiest running wheel on top of clay, you natur ally put the query, "Why?"

Sometimes he will give you a reason that to you does not seem very plain, and again he will answer "Because."

Red Bird agents have never been charged with being too modest in telling how easy the Red Bird runs, but they are more aggressive and emphatic than ever this

If you put the inevitable query "Why?" and watch for them to look wise and answer "Because" you will be disappointed.

They will take out the crank axle or the axle of one of the wheels and show you how all friction is reduced to a minimum by the ball retaining cage.

They will show you that with other wheels, the makers place the balls in a cup on the shaft and the balls are allowed to find their own position during the period of momentum.

The consequence is that the balls fall one upon the other, each acting as a retarder for the others, with the result that there is a sliding friction manifestly opposing.

With Red Bird Special bearings, every ball runs in a separate cage, the balls never touching each other.

The action of the ball retaining cage offers no resistance to the balls other than that due to its weight, which is too light to be taken into account.

With this retaining cage the balls in a bearing are loaded equally, while in bearings where it is not used it is well known that at the top of the bearings the balls are loose, and there is no contact between the bearing and balls at that point.

After an unretained ball crosses the top center of a bearing the weight of the ball itself is conveyed to enough of its fellows in front to throw their combined weight against the ball that is locked between the cup and the cone.

Such condition is not possible when the ball retaining cage is used, the revolution of each ball being regular and without any more friction at one point than another.

Another advantage in using this ball retaining cage is that fewer balls are required, another reason for less friction.

Actual experiments and calculations made by experts have shown that in the working of a bearing equipped with this retaining cage the avoidance or saving of friction reaches a maximum of 40 per cent.

When the Red Bird agent has explained this to you (and he will do it if you ask him), you will understand why there is nothing apologetic about this claim of easy running qualities.

He rides a Red Bird Special every day, and knows that it runs wonderfully easy, but best of all he knows exactly why it runs easier than other wheels.

When you have a moment to spare call at the nearest Brantford Red Bird agency and see what superb wheels we are turning out this year, or write us for our handsome '98 catalogue. A post card will bring it.

Which Shall Dominate?

hall Saxon or Slav Hold Supreme Sway in the World?

Is Even Now Pressing for Solution.

It Comes Home to the United States as Well as to Citizens of Great Britain.

The Problem Handled in an Able and Conclusive Manner by Hon. David Mills, Canadian Minister of Justice.

[From the North American Review for

The question of the future position the United States among nations, is one of greatest interest and importonce. Shall she unite with Russia, and endeavor to put an end to Anglo-Saxon leadership in the world, or shall she oin with the British Empire in giving additional strength and assured permanency to that ascendancy? For a century the United States has acted upon the advice of Washington and "avoided entangling alliances." Apart from the Civil War, in which slavery perished, her history has been mainly a history of peace, and her condition has not differed, in any marked degree, must either be destroyed, or modified from that of a self-governing dependency. She has now reached the point where the road parts, and circumstances are forcing her to abandon her position of isolation and to take her place among the great states of Christendom. The problems that now confront her, being, and even when its mission is like those that have confronted the United Kingdom for a century, are as interesting as they are important, and bloody exchange of ideas." Providence seldom lifts the mists which He in the pathways of history." Men sometimes sympathize states. It seldom permits them clearly what lies before them; but there are laws of national growth that deserve careful study, and which, when understood, point, with moderate accuracy, the direction in which both the duty and the interests of a state lie. Sometimes the state's rulers are driven on to conflict by the force of public opinion, and when they undertake to assign the reasons they find them, as justifying causes, wholly inadequate. It may be that a state is losing its moral fibre. It may be that it has not the courage to resist popular clamor. It may be that there is an instinctive feeling prevalent, that hostilities are necessary in order to escape greater evils. state may have been called upon to endure no trials, to surmount no difficulties, to make no sacrifices. There is nothing in its political life to awaken noble aspirations. A low feeling of self-interest has taken the place of a Anglo-Saxon new centers of influence, from America until she had posesshigh sense of public duty, and war which will serve to impart to him sion of the Lower Amour, until she may prove to be the only adequate new life and energy, and thus proremedy for the political disease. "There is a divinity that shapes our Rough hew them how we will."

THE GROWTH OF STATES is always a subject of profound interest. The Anglo-Saxon whose mind has been perverted by prejudice, feels a pride in the fact that he is an Anglo-Saxon—one of a race that for 200 years has held the first place in the march of humanity. He naturally observes, with interest, those who are treading immediately in the rear, and who are obviously striving to supplant the race to which he belongs, and he cannot well do otherwise than consider the conditions upon which he holds the first place. He is forced to ask himself whether the end of his leadership is approaching; whether he has fulfilled his mission; and whether the standard. which he has long carried, is soon to be wrested from him? Are we, as a race, to be called upon to yield to the Slav the place which we hold, because we are no longer qualified to retain it? Is our race sinking into a condition of lethargy because its energies are spent, and its moral fibre gone? Have we become weary with our constant struggle to overcome difficulties, and in our efforts have we lost the capacity, any Analogies have often been instituted between states and persons. It is said that they have alike their period of infancy, of growth, of maturity, and of decay. This, no doubt, has hitherto been so; but is it, equally, a necessary condition in each? Mr. Burke says that the analogy between states and individuals is misleading. They do not belong to the same order of being. States are not physical but moral persons, and are not subject to the same vicissitudes. The fact, however, remains that the world has seen a succession of leading states which have risen to greatness, attained the first place, and have themselves been subjugated and forced to yield to some other state, which has, in turn, sunk into decrep-

This succession of great states as leaders of the world has also been a succession of distinct races, and their history may be summarized by saying that they have risen from obscurity to a controlling place; they have led humanity a certain distance; each has spread itself abroad by the force of arms; each has imposed its thoughts and habits upon the world, has exhausted its energies in the operation. and has finally had its place wrested from it by the superior energy of another race. I take it for granted, because I think it is demonstrated in history, that there is a divine purpose in the relative condition of states, and that the status of each is mainly

The order of events, in the of great states, must be one of rogression, an order which nas, had a beginning, a middle, and ; and when that end is reached, e seems rounded off and comoleted. I am not asserting that everyning a state does is a necessary part of the controlling thought which odies. It may make mistakes, and hese mistakes may hinder and delay ts progress; but they are only perurbing influences which, though rend-it unsteady in the course in it marches, cannot change the eral direction of the currents in its energies flow. A careful of the history of every great will always enable us to estiate correctly those influences, and to scertain the precise purpose which forces serve by which it is imelled onward. It has been well said Cousin, that the whole history a state is wrapped up in the ideas which it represents. When these are completely developed its work is done. It can no longer move forward, its impelling force is exhausted, its journey s at an end. Where a nation has still progressive life and energy, the instiations which it has outgrown are certain to produce friction, and they so as to meet the new condition of things. When a people have spent their force, there is first rest, then decay, and finally disintegration.

The The Anglo-Saxon, in the history of and professions of friendship may do unity between the United States and no harm, and can do little good. But the British Empire is a matter both of what is there between the United race and growth. They touch each other, and as peoples unite and great states rise, they must be, for all great international purposes, one people. They are parts of the same race, whose extension is being pushed more and more rapidly forward by the sleepless energy of individual men, under the protection of the United Kingdom, into barbarous regions where they are acquiring new standing room for the formation of new states. In science, in literature, in government, in religion, in industrial pursuits, and in the conception of human rights and of human duties, they are one people, having common aims, a common origin, and from their necessary relations.

A COMMON DESTINY The very forces which would establish Russian ascendancy over the United Kingdom would in an incredibly short time establish Russian ascendancy in America, in South Africa and in Australia. The leadership of the Saxon would be at an end, and that of the shrinkage. Slav would be begun. It is impossible to follow the course of Russian diplomacy without seeing that Russia aspires to the possession of all Asia. The aims | year. of Russia concern not only the people of the United Kingdom, but the English-speaking people everywhere. Russia was, at one time, overrun by Tartars. She long felt their iron hand of government. They were incorporated with the Slavonic population, and they have impressed themselves in a large degree upon the Russian nation; so that, in their mental make-up, the Russians are quite as much Asiatic as European. Their conceptions of government are Asiatic, and citizens of the United States who advocate a Russian alliance, rather than an alliance with those of their own kin, can never have seriously considered the objects and aims of Russia as a political force in the world. This, then, is not a question between England and Russia, but it is a question between Saxon and Slav. The danger is a danger not to one state, but to the race to which we all belong. This danger is due to many causes, and among them not the least is the tendency of democratic institutions, which are a marked characteristic of our Saxon civilization. The dangers which spring from this source are not always apparent; and men who toil, and do battle with want, are seldom in a mood to make great sacrifices to ward off perils which they do not think immi-It is easy to conceive that, in a period of distress, there are millions of freemen, in the British Empire and in the United States, who think only of questions of local and domestic reform. They have before their minds those changes in government which they think will increase their comforts and will relieve them from the evils that are pressing upon them. They refuse to see the consequences which spring from the relations of states. They are not willing to submit to burdens which the struggle for empire may impose, though the statesman sees that what the masses possess can only be retained by a triumph over the larger danger which threatens.

The interests of the world call for Anglo-Saxon alliance. Let not the British Empire and the United States revive, after the lapse of centuries, the old contest of Judah and Ephraim; but. remembering that their interests are one, as the race is one, let them stand together, to maintain the ascendancy which they will hold as long as Providence fits them to lead; which will be Good Reports of the Commercial Situation in Canada.

Outlook Across the Border-What Dun & Co. and Bradstreet's Say.

New York, June 4.-Bradstreet's weekly review says: Seasonably warm weather has improved retail distribution in the Dominion of Canada, and the crop outlook favors a heavy fall trade. Toronto reports hides and skins higher and firmly held at the advance. Large quantities of cotton dress goods, bought at low figures in the United States, are selling freely. Canadian securities are active. Montreal reports collections better, the fruit crop abundant, with a heavy fall business practically in sight. The weather has improved retail distribution at Halifax. Victoria reports the sealing catch this year 30 per cent larger than that of last year. With restrictions likely to be enforced this year, the outlook is for a small catch in the near future. OVER THE LINE.

In regard to business in the United States, Bradstreet's Review says: The situation might well be expressed by the single word "crops. Certainly the very flattering outlook reported in nearly all the grain-growing sections of the country, and parwheat, has been of a nature to dominate the entire trade situation. From all the surplus growing wheat states comes only one report, that of a large acreage, extremely good weather and crop prospects, overshadowing an exceedingly large crop. From the progress making towards a large wheat yield has come the final elimination of the May wheat deal and a considerable quieting down of speculative fever and prices. The close of the week witnesses an immense shrinkage in the price paid for cash wheat, as compared with a short time ago, partly the result, of course, of former high reserve wheat stocks into markets not only at home but abroad. Accompanying the decline in wheat have been the emphatic declines in oats and flour, but corn is steady and higher, partly because of some complaint as to the crop outlook, but large-y owing to improved export demand. Reports as to distributive trade are encouraging this week, in spite of the advanced stage of the season. With a better tone reported, the cotton and voolen industries of late remain unimproved, print cloths having advanced again, while wool remains firm. Manufacturers are rather slow to handle the latter, but the increased inquiry and the firm tone of prices is regarded by the trade as evidencing a future good business.

Business failures in the United States this week show a sharp falling off, numbering only 178, against 231 last week, 182 in 1897, 236 in 1896 and 1895, and 207 in 1894. Dun & Co.'s review says: May having been the first full month of actual war, the fact that failures in that month were smaller, even though but little, than in the corresponding month last year, and nearly 10 per cent smaller than in 1896, is somewhat encouraging. Wheat dropped 74 cents from the highest point after the May deal culminated, and has since been weaker for July, because of accounts promising an enormous yield, and those who were nearest the truth last year now predict 700,000,000 bushels for 1898, and all accounts make the acreage much larger and conditions much better than a year ago. But with $1 15 still paid for No. 2 red in elevator, and a foreign demand, taking 4,294,498 bushels, flour included, from Atlantic ports, as against 2,645,887 bushels last year, and 929 last year, the decline evidently hastens the marketing of surplus and receipts for the week were 4,263,520 pricons. bushels, against 2,099,795 last year, although the crop has by some been for the week have been 4,887,620 bushels, against 1,926,566 bushels last year, and for the first time in history exmanufacturers only give some sign of making 79,155 in all.

Could Not Tell What She Looked Like. Got Worse with Doctor's Medicine. Could Not Sleep From Intense Itching.

CURED IN ONE MONTH BY CUTICURA

When my baby was four months old her skin broke out, and I thought it was ringworm. I took her to a doctor and he said it was Eczema. He gave me medicine to give her, but she kept getting worse all the time, and you could not tell what she looked like, her little face and hands were so covered with sores and large scales. It got under her little finger nails. She was the worst looking sight I ever saw. I heard of CUTICURA REMEDIES. so I thought I would try them. Before I tried them we got no rest at night. She could not sleep it itched so. After I gave her CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I saw a change in a week. It commenced to dry all up and she would sleep all night, and when it was drying up the skin all cracked open, so then I got CUTICURA (ointment) and CUTICURA SOAP, and in one month she had not one sore on her face, and I don't think it is any more than justice to let you know what it has done for my baby. She now is fifteen months old and has got beautiful skin. She doesn't even have a pimple of any kind, and she is as fat as pudding. March 7, 1898. Mrs. MARY SANDERS, Pidgetown, Ont., June 4.-At the morning session of the Disciples of Christ. President John Campbell, the board of co-operation; Rev. P. The treasurer's report showed that sufficient taken from college to fill the circuits funds had been raised to meet all when young men are required. It was obligations, including the deficit of Rev. R. Ballah presented the report on statistics, and the report on Sunday schools was read by Mr. R. N. The morning session closed with an address by Rev. Mr. Ballah, on "Our Strength and Our Weakness," which was listened to with great interest. In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Cunningham contributed a very valuable paper on Christian Endeavor work. Rev. W. G. Charlton read an able paper on the evangelist and evangelistic work.

An encouraging report followed from Rev. R. Butchart, business manager of the Christian Messenger. That paper was shown to be growing in influence and popularity. The evening session was devoted to hearing an address upon Japan by Miss Mary Rioch, returned missionary from that country. Miss Rioch said been the statement had frequently made that Japan soon would be a Christian nation, but this was doubtful in view of the fact that the proportions now were 40,000 Christians to 44,000,000 heathens. Important Letter From Engineer Horetzky on the Proposed Change.

Land Filtration the Most Satisfactory and the Least Expensive.

The Experience of a Wisconsin City Set Forth.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: In your issue of the 26th inst, reference is made to the system known as the International Process of Sewage Disposal, as now proposed for your city by the company's agent, Mr. John Mc-Dougall, of Montreal. In view of the single process, and satisfactory. The arguments set forth by the latter, it land treatment plants, on the whole seems opportune for me to adduce same did not strike us nearly as favorably

Ferozone has been discarded at the Kingston Hospital for the Insane (the sewage disposal works of which institution were designed and built by myself three years ago), and replaced by a cheaper and better precipitating agent.

The sole redeeming feature of the International Process lies in the polar-Ite filters, which are, however, expensive and suitable only for use in the small way where land filtration is out

C. G. HORETZKY. Toronto, May 30, 1898.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: ments which, unexplained, would be misleading to a majority of laymen. Having given this subject a great deal of attention as member of the com-mon council of this city and also in the office of mayor, and, as our corporation has passed through a phase similar to the one which you are in at the present time, I wish to give you a few brief remarks from my own experience and observation. The subject of disposal has been under consideration here ever since the general plan of sewerage was adopted, thirteen years ago, and more particularly during the past four years, during which time we have had plans and advice from a number of the foremost engineers in the country. Some were in favor of land treatment, but the majority were in favor of chemical treatment. No conclusion was, however, arrived at, until a special committee of the common council was appointed, with instructions to bring the matter to a close. The committee employed the city engineer, McC. Dodge, and Capt. J. Nader, an experienced civil engineer, to jointly produce a plan and report to the commit tee as soon as practicable. They reported a plan combining chemical precipitation with sand filtration. Their principal reason for this was

WEAK, NERVOUS WOMEN

Mrs. Alexander Setter, of Pigeon Bluff, Man., writes an account of her case as follows: "I have great pleasure in giving my experi-ence of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. For about s I was troubled with throbbing the absence of suitable soil within a easonable distance from the city. The special committee reported the plan to the common council unaninously, and recommended its adopion and construction as designed. I accompanied a special committee on a tour east to examine works in pperation for comparison with the plans we had adopted. Among these was the plant at East Orange, N. J. Here, it appears, that owing to leaky ewers, they had to treat more ground water than sewage; every other department, as well as that of sewers, was run under high pressure, so that the cost of operation exceeded the interest on the cost of a sewer to tide water, and on this account the tide water sewer was built, and the disposal plant abandoned. At Worcester, Mass., provision had been made for the treatment of 3,000,000 gallons daily; this had run up so, that at the time of our visit they were treating 17,000,000 daily, which overtaxed the plant. This is now being proportionately increased, and it is the intention to add sand filters and make the plant complete. Canton, Ohio, has chemical precipitation only, and the effluent flows into a very small stream, facts, which for brevity's cake, were as the chemical process alone.

As to the percentage of purification by chemicals at certain cost, this crude sewage; while a 60 per cent purification of Madison sewage would the asylum authorities. Hence, I can lay claim to some experience of the working of both these methods of sewnon-putressible.

1896, I carefully examined several of the conclusion that our engineers had the best known plants in the United given us a plan of purification which was, to say the least, a little better abroad enables me to state, in reply to zens in favor of land treatment, sim-Mr. McDougall's arguments, that the ply because one eastern expert would advise nothing but that, clamored so forcibly for further investigation of soil that the council ordered the same to be done by disinterested engineers. Capt. Neder, our associate engineer, declined to serve in this connection. The result was that after delaying the work an entire season and expending about $1,000, the soil could not be found, and our engineers were vindicated in every point.

Now we come to the sudden revolution and change of plans. The council was waiting for a report from the small way where land filtration is out of the question, as stated in my report to your board.

Any biological examination of the filtered effluents from either process will invariably result in favor of land treatment, wherever suitable soil has treatment, wherever suitable soil has to examine and investigate these plans.

The result of the guestion, as stated in my report to your board.

Any biological examination of the apparent advantages, and requesting and indefinite time, to enable them to examine and investigate these plans to examine and investigate these plans and plant the process of the apparent advantages, and requesting and finally settled in my neck. We then decided to ask Miss Rodd upon her return, for an interview, but it was some time before it took place owing to the limited time at our disposal between trains, and partly owing to a desire to wait and see if the offs, we finally called at the home of Mrs. Doolittle, sister of Miss Rodd's, who has carefully cared for her during the long illness. He could not walk incognito spent a very quiet day. He also enjoyed his dinner again. along the streets, for all heaven knew him. For eternal ages he had dwelt amid the mighty population of heaven. No holiday had ever dawned on the city when he was absent. He was not like an earthly prince, occasionally issuing from a palace heralded by a troop of clanking horse guards. No; he was greeted everywhere as a brother, and

So in this Bible I see two storms gather, one over Sinai, the other over Calvary; and they respond one to the other-flash to flash, thunder to thunder. boom! boom! Sinai thunders, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die"; Calvary responds, "Save them from going down to the pit, for I have found a ran-som." Sinai says, "Woe! woe!" Calvary answers, "Mercy! mercy!" and then the clouds burst, and empty their treasures into one torrent, and it comes flowing to our feet, red with the carnage of our Lord—in which, if thy soul be plung-ed, like the bird in the text, it shall go forth free—free! Oh, I wish all people to understand this; that when a man becomes a Christian he does no become a slave; that he has larger liberty after he becomes a child of God than before he became a child of God.

SHOULD GO HEAVENWARD. We should be going heavenward. But I know that we have a great many drawbacks. You had them this morning, perhaps. You had them yesterday, the day before; and although you want to be going heavenward, you are constantly discouraged. But I suppose that when that bird went out of the priest's hands, it went by inflectionssometimes stopping. A bird does not shoot directly up, but this is the motion of a bird. So the soul soars upward toward God, rising up in love, and sometimes depressed by trial. It does not always go in the direction it would like to go. But the main course is right. any other: "He knoweth our frame, and he remembereth that we are dust."

There is a legend in Iceland which says that when Jesus was a boy, playing with his comrades one Sabbath day, he made birds of clay; and as these birds of clay were standing upon the ground, an old Sadducee came along. and he was disgusted at the sport, and dashed the birds to pieces; but the legend says that Jesus waved his hand above the broken birds, and they took wing and went singing heavenward. Of course, that is a fable among the Ice-landers, but it is not a fable that we are dust, and that the hand of divire grace waved over us once, and we go singing toward the skies.

Oh, that in that good land we may all meet when the trials are over! We cannot get into the glorious presence of our departed ones unless we have been cleanted in the same blood that washed their sins away. I know this is true of all who have gone in, that they were about 8 per day, or 2,504 per year. It will be readily understood that with 9,192 offices in the Dominion, through which there passed last year a total of 123,830,000 letters, with dead letters from all in the same proportion as in London, there must be a vast amount of work in this department at Ottawa. REMEMBERED HIS FIRST LOVE Remarkable Story of Otto, the Mad

King of Bavaria. [London News.]

The following remarkable story is most nothing for some days, although his appetite is usually unnaturally good. He sobbed, wailed and screamed uninterruptedly for hours, and even came at times dangerous. One morning, however, his physician and a keeper cautiously pushed aside the heavy brocade curtain which divides their bedroom from that of the poor monarch, and found him with tears running down his cheeks, gazing into a little silver case which they had 1 often seen in a drawer, the key to which King Otto wore an a fine steel chain round his neck. As soon as the king perceived that he was watched he turned round and smiled so happily and naturally that the doctor, suprised, stepped nearer. Wearing the same joyful expression, the king cried

"Countess L. passed a better night. She is now out of danger." He then carefully locked up the lit-tle silver box, which contained nothing but a few dried strawberries, and This is another part of the story: In 1867 there was a merry picnic in a wood. Among the guests was the lovely 17-year-old Countess L., with whom the young prince fell madly in love at first sight. He sat next to her at lunch, paid her the greatest attention, clanking horse guards. No; he was greeted everywhere as a brother, and all heaven was perfectly at home with him. the mother of the countess became But one day there came word to the anxious, and sent men servants out in all directions. The culprits were found with their hets full of attemption which they were merrily eating. The next moment they were separated for-ever. Prince Otto went with the king to Munich, and the youthful countess was sent to the Convent of Misericorde, where she has remained up to this day. During the few throughout which the king had shown such unfavorable symptoms the girl whom he had loved in his youth was really lying dangerously ill in her cell. Somehow or other-how is not stated the incurably insane monarch had become aware of the fact.

be illegal—a crime against the state, as it is a crime against nature. Men and women who have inherited or acquired a tendency to pulmonary weakness should guard well against the first approaches of consumption. They should, above all things, keep their general health up to the normal standard by keeping the digestive system in good order, because consumption is a disorder of mal-nutrition. Such persons should beware of colds, for no cough is unimportant. They should avoid dampness; dress in pure wool, and have plenty of cleep. A cough shows either the lodgment of matter in the bronchial tubes, or else an irritated condition of the lungs and air passages. Do not neglect digestive symptoms! I have before me the portrait of a lovely young girl.

When I first knew her she was but seventeen; at mineteen I saw her lying in the coffin, white and pure as the roses clasped in her attenuated fingers. Her first symptoms pointed to stomach trouble; but they were neglected. She grew frail and slender as a lily. Her lover—for she was engaged to be married—urged her to wed and go South with him; but she gently refused. Her family did not realize that the doom was upon her. Mothers, do not neglect such symptoms in your dear ones, or you may see them drifting from you, as did my dear young friend from her heart-broken mother. Stomach troubles are the initial symptoms of that fatal form of consumption which attacks the whole system, but does its most deadly work in the bowels. Tone up the stomach by means of some good preparation of herbs, and break up the cough with Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure. A grand remedy, pure, harmless, healing, tonic and expectorant. When at the age of 14 George Sand heard someone laugh at the idea of a big girl playing with dolls, she concluded to give them up. With tears and hearty hugs she bid every one of them farewell and locked them up in a garret closet. At first the separation from her beloved playfellows was almost more than she could bear, and every day she would sit for an hour or two, sad and tearful, outside the closet door, sometimes whispering words of comfort through the keyhole to the poor exiles, but she never broke her vow to have done with dolls, and at last they were forgotten. CASTE AMONG WORKERS.

Clerks Are Not Artisans, Mechanics, or Laborers.

[Pall Mall Gazette.] "Is a clerk a laborer?" is a problem that has just been thrust upon the Glasgow public. It arose thus: The corporation provides tramway cars at early hours in the morning, and at the close of the day's labor for the benefit of "workingmen," who are allowed to travel at special rates-about onehalf of the usual fare. Any person not a "workman" can travel, if he choose, by the same cars, but must When fairies dance on the moor by pay according to the recognized scale. The guard is the sole judge as to whether any particular passenger is a "workingman" as defined in the bylaws governing these special cars, and consequently entitled to ride at the reduced fare. His guiding principal is clothes. Last week a young clerk ed to be carried at the diminished rate on the plea that he was as much a laborer as the man who used a hammer or carried a hod. The guard promptly rejected the plea, and in-sisted on the full fare, which was refused, and the matter ended in the poice courts. The defense of the clerk was at least one which gained him public sympathy. He declared that his wages was only £25 a year, and that it was no fault of his if he had to attend And when the wind breathes, far and than he could well afford. His fellowto his duties in a better suit of clothes occupants of the car were men who (Aeolian harps in the heather)—

WELL KNOWN VIOLINIST

Traveled Extensively Throughout the Provinces - Interesting Statements Concerning His Experience.

STELLARTON, N.S .- James B. Murray, a well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes this statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 150 pounds. Prescriptions did me but little good. My trouble was called nervous dyspepsis. I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES R. MURRAY.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Now, in opposition to these people and their ways, St. Paul would say: "Let your considerateness be known unto all men." Wherein lies the especial injury of inconsiderateness? Is it not in this that it is a blow at another's selfrespect? Without self-respect no worthy work can be achieved, no genuine character can be evolved.

"Self-reverence, self-knowledge, selfcontrol, These three alone lead life to sovereign power.'

Now the sin of the inconsiderate man is that he wounds this sacred center of personal worth, that through his selfish assertiveness he is weakening the sources of spiritual excellence the sphere where even good and well-meaning people are liable to fall into consideration for the opinions of their taking care to echo the popular opin- of the Methodist Church, Brigden, the takes rank as a moral virtue. Mr. O'Reilly says: "I was for three years a sufferer from Diabetes, which defied every attempt to cure. My case was an unusually severe one, and I was glad to test any and every remedy ecommended to me. They all failed, however, until I gave Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial. A few doses convinced me that I had at last found a cure. I used only three boxes, but they swept the disease entirely out of my system. I heartily, confidently recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to any sufferer from Diabetes, as I know they are the only cure for that complaint."

Dr. John Hoskin, in moving the adoption of the report, said: The statements submitted to you are, as usual, very voluminous, and give indication of the very large amount of work involved in the conduct of the company's transactions. The managing director has repeatedly endeavored to curtail the number of statements which accompany the annual report, but when it is considered that we had to deal with a large number of estates closed up during the year, and with over twelve hundred estates still recurities held by the company. The work was done in a very exhaustive way, and while we cannot and do not claim exemption from losses, the results of the examination have, on the whole, been very satisfactory. Of the properties that have come into the company's hands during the depression, nearly $100,000 worth have been disposed of during the year, without great loss, and we have every reason to hope that we shall be equally or even more successful in making sales in the current year. Coming now to an examination of the profit and loss sheet, I may at once state that, notwithstanding the largely increased business of the company, and although our compensation for the management of estates has, owing to the increased volume of work, been greater than in any year, still our net profits have been considerably reduced. The explanation of this is one that will readily be understood by every share holder, and more particularly by those who are directors of loan companies.

This company has all along assumed the most drastic measures in its treatment of mortgages in default, ing, was in its way, and the animal which are held for its capital and guaranteed accounts by ceasing to take interest into its profits the moment that Provincial Road Commissioner such default assumed a permanent orm. We had, as that report shows, a contingent fund of over $50,000 to meet after writing off all losses that had been ascertained, we start the year with over $40,000 at the credit of that fund.

Owing to the loss of interest re-ferred to, some of which it is hoped vill only be temporarily suspended, the profits of the company have been very considerably reduced. For this reason it has been thought advisable by your board of directors to reduce the dividend to 4 per cent for the half-year. and securities of the company has been carried on quarterly by the inspection which, with the inspection and audit by the auditors appointed by the shareholders, constitutes the most effective system of security for the 29, after an illness of nearly three years' public that exists in any company, so

Mr. Vice-President Meredith, in seconding the adoption of the report, If we analyze the extraordinary increase in the new business assumed by the company during the past year we shall find that it is due to the growth of our proper business as a trust comthat the increase has been caused, not by the acquisition of a few large trust estates, but of a large number of comparatively small trusts. A DINNER PILL.-Many persons suffer excruciating agony after par-taking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment, it becomes a poison to the system. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct open the secretions and convey the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. campaign waged against us in the English press, the attacks of the British minister on Russia, the general illhumor of the English merchants, menaced everywhere in their interests, constitute disquieting symptoms which it would be peurile to ignore. The question naturally arises therefore in everybody's mind, Is the French navy ready for an eventual struggle with the English navy? As regards the number of ships now available, as regards facility of concentration of forces, the judicious choice and the preparedness of naval bases, our inferiority is no-torious. Since the application of the Navy Defense Act, our neighbors have doubled their resources by constructing with a feverish haste. They have been able to launch within a single year as many as five battleships of from 12,000 to 15,000 tons, eight large cruisers, and 22 smaller vessels, so that the disproportion, already great, which existed between the two navies has been enormously increased. England can now put into line 34 battleships of from 9,000 to 15,000 tons; 52 large cruisers, and a very large number of smaller vessels, among which should be noted a numerous flotilla of very rapid torpedo boat destroyers. Besides these vessels, twenty older battleships, for the most part remodeled, may be reckoned as a solid reserve to this already "What have we to set against this
