Volunteer committees have formulated and rendered reports on the subject and a parliamentary committee, of which Mr. Cronyn is the chairman, made further progress in the past few months.

Concrete Examples. Several concrete examples of the value of research as applied to industry were quoted by the speaker. WORK IS EXTENSIVE. Eleven Officials Attempting To Look After 8,000 Buildings.

Hamilton, Aug. 25.—Objectors of complaints had an initial at this morning's session of the Canadian Federation of Labor convention at the I. O. O. F. hall. The provincial department of labor, for not having more than eleven factory inspectors to see that the provisions of the factory act were carried out, it was stated that there are over 8,000 buildings in the province under the act, and that it would be impossible for a staff twice the size to attend to them in the course of a year. It was decided to request the Provincial Government to greatly increase the staff of inspectors at an early date. Complaint was also made as to the check-off system in vogue in some closed shops in Canada, by which the dues for the International Union are collected by the employer each week or month and handed over to the treasurer of the local union.

It was stated that some members of the Canadian union had to pay international dues, although not a member of the organization, to hold their jobs.

Thus the majority of the Federal Government to take steps to stop the compulsory check-off system, as explained by Mr. Compton of the labor department of labor. It was stated, however, that Canadian unionists were told before they went to work that the shops named that they would have to pay international dues.

REFORM CHIEFTAIN REMINDS HEARERS LIBERALS HELPED ELECT ONTARIO CANDIDATES.

Queensville, Aug. 25.—Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King completed his series of public meetings in North York here last night, and left today for Renfrew, where he speaks on Thursday. The Liberal leader expressed himself as being exceedingly well pleased with this two weeks' campaign. He has addressed at least 7,000 constituents at the annual meeting that has been held in the riding, and met scores who were unobtainable to the voters of Liberals.

The meeting here last night was typical of the whole campaign. Queensville is situated in the heart of a U. F. O. stronghold, yet, as the chairman, Mr. James Milne said, it was the best Liberal meeting he had ever held. The large skating rink was filled, and many stood outside the entrance.

Mr. King said that from a local viewpoint the success of the farmers in the Liberal meeting was a matter of great importance, but that such would be just as great as at the provincial elections in Ontario, but that such would be a matter of great importance to the U. F. O. candidate was due in no small measure to the fact that the Liberal party turned in and helped. The reasonable course was for the farmers to fight with the Liberal party, which was broad enough to include all classes, and yet fight the battles of the farmers.

Space will permit of printing only the last two days of the campaign. On May 7 I wrote you as follows: Dear Mr. Mayor.—A great responsibility rests upon the members of the town planning committee, by a vote of the citizens and by authority of the council, we are expected to prepare plans for many millions of expenditure by London.

Are we giving this work that attention necessary on plans for a private house which will be erected?

The city is about to undertake public work which, once begun, will make impossible the changes which the committee is sure to desire when members become familiar with the problems. Such changes could be easily made beforehand, merely by a stroke of the draughtsman's pencil, and in saving many thousands of dollars, the only committee shall become aware of the need in this connection.

Is there in the hands of the committee, for instance, that information about storm sewers which is being studied by every member in view of an early start on an expenditure of $300,000 to $500,000 for storm sewers? Are we meeting frequently enough to assure citizens that this town planning work is receiving adequate attention?

Am I giving the citizens the right kind of information? Am I increasing sense of the importance of this work, together with the pressure of private affairs, which compel my resignation from the committee at an early date. I do not wish to remain responsible for the work which I cannot accomplish without undue pressure. Faithfully yours, JOHN COTTAM.

Again on May 15, I sent you the following: Mr. Mayor.—My last letter has been somewhat misunderstood in certain quarters. I am not asking to have a long list of progressive business men, particularly construction work. But I am deeply concerned as to our responsibility for the progress of the town planning work, in accordance with the principles of town planning set before the citizens in the various public commerce pamphlet when the ratepayers voted on town planning. I herewith submit a copy of the pamphlet.

Why No Meetings? Mr. Adams, the Dominion Government representative on town planning, has said that we are ahead with certain preparatory work which will be done in the course of the year. The council have appropriated $2,000 for this purpose. Yet so far as I know nothing has been done in the town planning committee. We are holding no meetings. And none are proposed, unless a night turn out, then on which no other body is to meet.

There are various preliminary studies of the city which are being made until this expert work is attended to every piece of public construction will be done in accordance with the needs of the city which expert study alone can disclose. But each year the town planning for the city cannot become apparent in our actual construction for the time being. This procedure will involve the city in an ever-increasing detriment on all future construction.

Remedy for Past Mistakes. It is not in our power to determine what the city should be in five or ten years hence, but it is in our power to proceed towards formulating certain practicalities, which can be discharged by membership on a committee which seldom meets.

The town planning committee, it seems to me, should meet regularly, and as often as may be necessary, to vigorously prosecute whatever preparatory work can be done under existing legislation, and of course, within the council's appropriation for that purpose.

Or am I mistaken as to the responsibility which rests upon the committee to avoid delay in having the data, upon which the future construction of our city so largely depends? Shall we give up the responsibility which rests upon us in support or criticism of such a policy. Faithfully yours, JOHN COTTAM.

But you did not try to make me glad, Mr. Mayor. And failing to elicit from you the slightest acknowledgment of this certain responsibility which dates back to February 16, and which which were sent to every member of the committee, I am falling back upon the source of power which seldom fails, viz., the people and publicity.

And again I give warning, Mr. Mayor. You have allowed certain proposed town planners to go the limit in not town planning. I personally do not believe you realize what the opposition has been able to accomplish right under your nose. A dexterous game has been played, and I hope without your conscious participation.

But unless town planning action is forthcoming and forthwith, I shall probably give some further attention to the obstacles. And I am giving notice that certain reputations will not thereby be materially advanced nor any great lustre be added to your own administration. Mr. JOHN COTTAM.

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—So far as can be learned no official reports have so far been received dealing with the damage done by the submerging of large areas of meadowlands in the Lesser Slave Lake district, owing to the unusual high level of the water. The necessity for government action has been suggested in dispatches from the west. It is likely to be done, until the facts are known.

The meeting here last night was typical of the whole campaign. Queensville is situated in the heart of a U. F. O. stronghold, yet, as the chairman, Mr. James Milne said, it was the best Liberal meeting he had ever held.

Mr. King said that from a local viewpoint the success of the farmers in the Liberal meeting was a matter of great importance, but that such would be just as great as at the provincial elections in Ontario, but that such would be a matter of great importance to the U. F. O. candidate was due in no small measure to the fact that the Liberal party turned in and helped.

Space will permit of printing only the last two days of the campaign. On May 7 I wrote you as follows: Dear Mr. Mayor.—A great responsibility rests upon the members of the town planning committee, by a vote of the citizens and by authority of the council, we are expected to prepare plans for many millions of expenditure by London.

Are we giving this work that attention necessary on plans for a private house which will be erected?

The city is about to undertake public work which, once begun, will make impossible the changes which the committee is sure to desire when members become familiar with the problems. Such changes could be easily made beforehand, merely by a stroke of the draughtsman's pencil, and in saving many thousands of dollars, the only committee shall become aware of the need in this connection.

Is there in the hands of the committee, for instance, that information about storm sewers which is being studied by every member in view of an early start on an expenditure of $300,000 to $500,000 for storm sewers? Are we meeting frequently enough to assure citizens that this town planning work is receiving adequate attention?

Am I giving the citizens the right kind of information? Am I increasing sense of the importance of this work, together with the pressure of private affairs, which compel my resignation from the committee at an early date. I do not wish to remain responsible for the work which I cannot accomplish without undue pressure. Faithfully yours, JOHN COTTAM.

Again on May 15, I sent you the following: Mr. Mayor.—My last letter has been somewhat misunderstood in certain quarters. I am not asking to have a long list of progressive business men, particularly construction work. But I am deeply concerned as to our responsibility for the progress of the town planning work, in accordance with the principles of town planning set before the citizens in the various public commerce pamphlet when the ratepayers voted on town planning. I herewith submit a copy of the pamphlet.

Why No Meetings? Mr. Adams, the Dominion Government representative on town planning, has said that we are ahead with certain preparatory work which will be done in the course of the year. The council have appropriated $2,000 for this purpose. Yet so far as I know nothing has been done in the town planning committee. We are holding no meetings. And none are proposed, unless a night turn out, then on which no other body is to meet.

There are various preliminary studies of the city which are being made until this expert work is attended to every piece of public construction will be done in accordance with the needs of the city which expert study alone can disclose. But each year the town planning for the city cannot become apparent in our actual construction for the time being. This procedure will involve the city in an ever-increasing detriment on all future construction.

Remedy for Past Mistakes. It is not in our power to determine what the city should be in five or ten years hence, but it is in our power to proceed towards formulating certain practicalities, which can be discharged by membership on a committee which seldom meets.

The town planning committee, it seems to me, should meet regularly, and as often as may be necessary, to vigorously prosecute whatever preparatory work can be done under existing legislation, and of course, within the council's appropriation for that purpose.

MRS. LUCY DOUCETTE of Manchester, N. H., who says she's just so happy over the way Tanlac restored her health she can't keep from telling people about it.

"I am just so happy over the way Tanlac has restored my health that I can't keep from telling people about it," said Mrs. Lucy Doucette of 79 Stark street, Manchester, New Hampshire, a few days ago. "I suffered so long with chronic indigestion that I didn't know what it was to sit down and enjoy a single meal. My stomach was so badly disordered I had to live on the strictest diet, and nothing seemed to agree with me. At times my breath seemed to be cut off, and I would suffer terribly for hours at a time."

"I lost my strength completely and became so weak and rundown I would give out several times during the day and would have to stop and rest. I was extremely nervous and irritable, and just felt like I would break down completely. "One day I saw a statement from a friend of mine who said Tanlac had helped her wonderfully, so I was convinced it was a dependable medicine and I began taking it immediately, and I am more than pleased at the splendid results. My appetite improved right from the first, and the horrible indigestion from which I suffered so long has entirely disappeared. "I have now finished my fourth bottle, and can eat just anything I like, and sleep better and have more strength and energy. It is a pleasure to tell others what Tanlac has done in my case."

Tanlac is sold in London by Standard Drug, Limited, and by an established agency in every town.

Rheumatism

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It. In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried every remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with rheumatism, some of them 70 to 80 years old, and results were the same as in my own case. I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that truest of remedies, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it, don't pay. Why suffer longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today. Mark H. Jackson, No. 715g, Durston Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. Jackson is responsible. Above statement true.

CHATHAM, Aug. 24.—Masked thieves forced their way into a local factory at an early hour this morning and after holding up the night watchman at the point of a revolver and tying him up, they conducted a search party through the factory, but failed to locate the object of their search. An alarm was turned in to the central police station at 1:30 this morning and two patrolmen were dispatched to the scene, but the robbers had by that time disappeared.

COURT DISAGREES IN CASE OF INTEREST TO LAKE FISHERMEN

Fish Inspector Asks For Removal To A Higher Court.

PORT STANLEY, Aug. 24.—The charge against H. A. Wright and Luke Berry, Port Stanley fishermen, of taking from the lake fish weighing less than ten ounces was heard today by the county magistrate and N. S. Cornell, J. P., but the court disagreed on the evidence, and the prosecutor, Fish Inspector H. C. Schluhauf, will advise the department to remove the case for a hearing to the county judge. The county magistrate favored a conviction, but his brother magistrate, Reeve Cornell, would dismiss the charge on the ground that the testimony was purely circumstantial. The fish had been smoked, and weighed three ounces. The inspector claimed that the deterioration of the fish from the time they were taken from the lake until they have been smoked would average from 42 to 45 per cent. The inspector had weighed a quantity of the fish in bulk, and declared he had sufficient grounds for a conviction.

GEORGE DUNCAN IS RELEASED

Former Brantford Police Officer Served Eighteen Months in Jail.

[Special to The Advertiser.] BRANTFORD, Aug. 24.—George Duncan, former city policeman here, who in November, 1918, was sentenced to serve eighteen months in penitentiary by Justice Lennox following a conviction on a charge of manslaughter, has been released after serving eighteen months, according to information received here. Duncan was arraigned on a charge of having murdered Alfred Lauges, an Indian, and after three days' trial with evening sessions, the jury brought in a verdict of manslaughter, with a strong recommendation for mercy. W. E. Kelly, K.C., and son, David Kelly, both of Simcoe, who have been retained as counsel for Lorne Helmer, 20-year-old youth, charged with the murder of James Leary at Silver Hill on July 13 last, defended Duncan at that time, and upon petitions being forwarded to the minister of justice at Ottawa, a review of the evidence was taken and Duncan's release from Kingston penitentiary ordered. The prisoner, who is well known here, may return to Brantford to reside.

INTERPRETERS IN TONG WAR CASE AT WINDSOR ARRESTED BY POLICE

Trouble Alleged To Be Outcome of War-Time Action.

WINDSOR, Aug. 24.—The Tong war in progress here between two opposing factions of the local Chinese colony took on new aspect today following the arrest late last night of the Chinamen engaged to act as interpreters in the case against J. C. Leon, Toronto Celestial, which was to have been heard today. The two men are held by the police charged with tampering with witnesses to be summoned. Leon is facing trial for the theft of a watch, and the illegal possession of cocaine and liquor. Aftermath of War. E. W. Curran, K.C., of Toronto, who is defending Leon, today refused to proceed with the case, declaring the arrest was the result of a frame-up by enemy countrymen of accused, and charged that the trouble in the local Oriental camp was the outgrowth of animosity given the crown by both sides in the prosecution and conviction of the Chinese National Association during the war, and the subsequent court ruling that it constituted an illegal organization. Crown Attorney Rodd refused to permit the release of the two interpreters, but promised an investigation that would be concluded in a few hours, granted the continuance of the cash bail of $1,000 to Leon, and secured an adjournment until September 1.

LICENSE OFFICERS FIGHT REAR GUARD AGAINST RUMMIES

Following Successful Raid and Capture of Four Prisoners.

AMBUSHED FROM MARSH

WINDSOR, Aug. 24.—With strong evidence in their possession as to the identity of the party of rum runners who opened fire on the special license inspectors who arrested Frank Ryan and Ernest LePlant of Petite Cote, Stanley Kinville of Windsor, and William Robb, of Walkerville, who are to appear for trial on Wednesday, License Inspector Mousseau expects to make arrests in a few hours, he declared tonight.

The incident in which officers were compelled to fight their way to safety under heavy fire from a party of men in ambush in bushes nearby, occurred when the officers came upon the men in the vicinity of Sunnyside Hotel, a well-known Sandwich West roadhouse, while they were unloading a quantity of liquor from an automobile. Seizure was made of 32 cases of whiskey, 13 cases containing two dozen quarts each of whiskey, and 50 cases of beer. Hardly had the raid been consummated when a fusillade of bullets from an impenetrable ambush of marshland and bushes was opened on the officers. They were forced to return the fire and retreat as rapidly as possible to safety, maintaining a rear guard action until out of range of the bullets of the attacking party.

RUSSIA AND THE ALLIES.

Great Britain and Italy are reported as refusing to have anything further to do with the Russian Soviet Government until the peace delegates of the latter withdraw their demands for the establishment of a proletarian army in Poland. This course should meet with general approval. When it seemed certain a few days ago that Warsaw would be captured, Lenin and Trotsky figuring on the powerful position this would give them boldly inserted in the peace conditions submitted at Minak the objectionable feature which did not appear in the draft presented by the Soviet's representatives at London, Paris and Rome. Their action bears out the charge that the real object of the Red drive against the Polish capital was not for the purpose of vengeance or conquest, but for the establishment of their political system in Poland through the Polish Reds. Once a Red force was in control of Poland that country would, of course, be run from Moscow. Warsaw would be the starting place for Lenin's "world revolution." This has been the motive behind every manoeuvre, political or military, of the Bolsheviks. It is amazing in view of their past treacheries that the Soviet leaders should have been trusted in the slightest degree by the Allied Governments. Only the success of the Bolshevik arms and the necessity of quieting certain influences at home explain the attitude of compromise that has been shown recently towards the Moscow Government.

What was clearly an attempt to make a shambles of Poland in order to carry the flag of disorder and confusion into western Europe should open the eyes of those in Allied countries who have been hampering their governments' efforts to prevent this hideous crusade spreading beyond the confines of Russia.

REBEL MOVEMENTS.

Interesting, and in all probability accurate, statistics on labor and labor class movements in Canada is contained in a pamphlet just issued by the Dominion department of labor. There are 260,247 international (trades) unionists, 33,372 non-international members, 8,278 independents, 35,000 in the National Catholic Union, and 41,150 in the One Big Union.

Bearing in mind the very recent birth of the One Big Union, the fact that although still outnumbered six to one by the members of American Federation of Labor locals, it stands second in a list of five labor groups, naturally suggests the question whether it is already dying out, as some international union advocates claim, or whether it is still growing.

The assumption made in the department of labor's pamphlet that the One Big Union is part and parcel of the soviet government movement in Canada is not exactly true. Unless one is very careful in using the names, national, international and anti-international, in respect to the labor movement, he is very apt to become confused. For illustration, as most people are aware, the international labor unionists in Canada are opposed to the socialist or red "internationalist" movement in world politics. An internationalist used to be a name synonymous with "red" or "radical," while now in Canada it designates the mildest and most constitutional type of trades unionist.

The assumption that the One Big Union is purely a "red internationalist" movement is not entirely correct. Not a few workers have joined the One Big Union because of dissatisfaction with the control of Canadian labor questions by head office bureaux in the United States. The One Big Union grew much more rapidly in Canada than in the United States, and its devotees in the United States look to Canada for their leadership, just as the international trades unionists look to the American Federation of Labor at Washington as their supreme authority.

The secret of a large part of the spirit actuating the rebel labor organizations of Canada may be discovered in an article in no less a conservative journal than the New York Outlook, by no less a sanely democratic personage than the present premier of Japan. The article, entitled, "Through Nationalism to Internationalism," pleads for a mutual recognition of the rights and individuality of every race and nation by all other races and nations. The most despised of nations and races have peculiar characteristics and traits, which make them specifically important and valuable to the rest of the world. Unanimity in diversity is the keynote of the article by the Japanese premier, and it suggests a possible reason why "reds," socialists and Sinn Feiners are boon companions of the most rabid of Quebec Nationalists in the hotbeds of insurgency in Montreal.

CHRISTOPHER PLANTIN, PRINTER.

Literary anniversaries are once again being celebrated in the countries of Europe, some of them long postponed celebrations for the very best of reasons. Belgium is having one such celebration this month, paying honor to Christopher Plantin, the famous printer of Antwerp, whose place of business, dating from the sixteenth century, may still be seen in this ancient European city. Plantin was a Frenchman and learned the rudiments of printing in France, but in his twenties he removed to Belgium, where for a time he earned his living as a bookbinder until an injury to one of his hands sent him back to his old trade. In 1555 his books began to appear—thin octavos at first and then going on later to larger-sized volumes and more ambitious ventures.

Plantin had been attracted to Antwerp by the importance of its printing industry, but this gave him more serious competition than he might have experienced elsewhere. He tells in one of his letters how his four eldest daughters, born between 1547 and 1557, "from the age of four or five until they were twelve, each one of them, according to her years and standing, helped me to read the proofs sent from the press in whatever handwriting and in any tongue." For a time he was an exile and fugitive in Paris, having been suspected of heresy, and much of his property was confiscated. Returning in 1563 he experienced better fortune, being commissioned by the Spanish king to print a new edition of the Bible, now known as the "Royal" Bible. The work was finished in four years, making eight folio volumes with handsome title pages. Further good fortune followed when Plantin secured the Netherlands rights for the new Breviary which Plus V. had prepared in accordance with the decisions of the Council of Trent. These and other like volumes of devotional reading were in such great demand that the fortunes of the family were well established and the printing house was largely maintained by these service books until 1876, when it passed into the hands of the city of Antwerp and became the Musée Plantin-Moretus.

In the Barnett library of Western University may be seen a number of volumes printed in the Plantin Press and bearing the device of this famous maker of books. The list of the various works he published would make a book in itself. He was the official printer for many of the noted publications of the University of Louvain, which in his day ranked as one of the great universities of the world. Editions of the writings of Augustine and Jerome came to him from the Louvain theologians, whose scholarly researches had unearthed manuscripts in all corners of Europe. The burning of the Louvain library by the Germans early in the war must have caused the destruction of many of the rarest of the Plantin publications and doubtless also scores of the rare manuscripts which had been the inspiration for Louvain's learning.

The Plantin-Moretus Museum is today one of the chief attractions for visitors to Antwerp. The ancient building with its picturesque courtyard, draped with vines, is attractive from the exterior, but the interior is still more interesting with its spacious rooms, carved oak doorways and staircases, its quaint old fireplaces and tiled floors. In the old shop, facing the street, may still be seen the composing-room and the proofreader's room, the study and the library with its collection of Plantin imprints. Here was one of the centres of light and learning in an age when Belgium was ravaged almost as badly by internal and external troubles as it was destined to be in the fourth century after the printer Plantin first began to turn out his books.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

With the terrific thrashing he is getting, the Russian Red must be turning pale.

There are moments when we would like to see a Thorold mob get its hands on the motorist who misuses his spotlight.

Rum-runners are reported sending whiskey across the Detroit River by torpedoes. That seems a natural way of securing a "shot."

Years ago Mr. Meighen made a speech filled with the bitterest prejudice against French-Canadians. It would be interesting to know how much the premier would give if he could have that speech forgotten.

PRINTERS ACT WISELY.

[Buffalo News.] From long association with him we have come to regard the printer as the master craftsman—the most intelligent of all workmen. He renewed the faith we have in him by his action at the recent convention of the International Typographical Union in Albany, when he rejected the proposal to set away with the arbitration machinery provided for use in case of disagreements arising with employers. The idea was to have the local act independent of the general organization in disputes. The plan of arbitration has worked well—worked to the advantage of both parties to shop contracts. It has always seemed to us that other unions would be the better for taking pattern from the printers in this respect. From strict observance of the plan has come the strength of the craft. To do away with it would be a step backward, not forward. The vote against the proposal is additional evidence of the good sense of the rank and file of the trade.

HIS ACCUSING PAST.

[Grantford Expositor.] It is most unfortunate for Mr. Meighen, in view of the conciliatory tone of his speech at Portage la Prairie, that he has been guilty, while a member of the House of Commons, of making bitter and violent attacks upon the French majority, including the old Liberal chieftain, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which aroused keen and unrelenting antagonism against himself, and which to this day seriously militate against his leadership in the House. Mr. Meighen was well wish that he had listened to wiser counsels in earlier days, and that he had not stooped, for the sake of temporary political expediency, to stir the fires of racial hatred and prejudice. The premier is wiser now, and no doubt regrets that he ever indulged in inflammatory appeals to passion and prejudice, for his influence and prestige in Quebec are irretrievably gone. It ought, however, to be a lesson to all aspiring politicians in Canada never to resort to the base methods of appealing to racial prejudices and passions for the hope of political gain.

REQUIESCAT IN PACE.

[Portland Oregonian.] They say that the Lusitania may be raised from her grave on the ocean floor—that it is practicable to hoist the plucky hulk, with her freight of death and memories, to the surface and the sunshine, where she floated when the torpedo drove home. What purpose would be served in breaking the sleep of those who rest with the Lusitania—the great ship that suffered outrage and became a cause celebre, a symbol of retributive justice against Germany? Irrevocably she should be the property of that very sea that swallowed her, the same that was to be scourged by vengeful destroyers sinking the submarines. When the Lusitania sank she became a surety, held in trust by the ocean, that thereafter the seas should not be stained with murder. The shattered liner holds memory with a firmer grip, there on the floor of the sea, than if she cruised again. And an unimpairable memory of the Lusitania is worth the keeping.

HAS NO EXCUSE.

[Toronto Star.] Whatever excuse Union Government under Sir Robert Borden had for continuing in office and declining to appeal to the country, the Meighen Government will have none. It must go to the country this fall, or by failing to do so, confess its fear of the country. The people of Canada did not endorse Union Government in 1917 in order that, on its dissolution in 1920, a new political party, led by Hon. Arthur Meighen, might inherit office and hang on to it, until driven out by effluxion of time in 1922.

THE MIDDLE TEMPLE MURDER

A Detective Story by J. S. Fletcher. Copyright 1920, Fred A. Knopf. Copyright, 1920, by the Public Ledger Company.

"And he'd never given you any documentary evidence of any sort to prove the truth of that story?" "Never! I never questioned his statement. Why should I?"

"You never remember anything of your childhood—I mean of any person who was particularly near you in your childhood?" "I remember the people who brought me up from the time I was three years old. And I have just a faint, shadowy recollection of some woman, a tall, dark woman, before that."

"Miss Bayliss," said Spargo to himself. "All right, Breton," he went on aloud. "I'm going to tell you the truth. I'll tell it to you straight out and give you all the explanations afterward. Your real name is not Breton at all. Your real name is Mattiland; and you're the only child of the man who was found murdered at the foot of Cardlestone's staircase."

Spargo had been wondering how Breton would take this, and he gazed at him with some anxiety as he got out the last words. What would he do?—what would he say?—what? Breton sat down quietly at his desk and looked Spargo hard between the eyes. "Prove that to me, Spargo," he said, in hard, matter-of-fact tones. "Prove it to me, every word. Every word, Spargo."

"I will—every word," he answered. "It's the right thing. Listen, then." It was a quarter to twelve, Spargo noticed, throwing a glance at the clock outside, as he began his story; when he brought up to an end. And all that time Breton listened with the keenest attention, only asking a question now and then; now and then making a brief note on a sheet of paper which he had drawn to him. "That's all," said Spargo at last. "It's plenty!" observed Breton, ironically. He sat staring at his notes for a moment; then he looked up at Spargo. "What do you really think?"

"About what?" said Spargo. "This flight of Eiphick's and Cardlestone's." "I think, as I believe that they know something which they think may be forced upon them. I never saw a man in a greater fright than that I saw in Eiphick last night. And it's evident that Cardlestone shares in that fright, or they wouldn't have spoken in this way together."

"Do you think they know anything of the actual murder?" Spargo shook his head. "I don't know. Probably, they know something. And—look here!" Spargo put his hand in his breast pocket and drew something out which he handed to Breton, who gazed at it curiously.

"What's that?" he demanded. "Stamps?" "That, from the description of Crieder, the stamp dealer, is a sheet of those rare Australian stamps which Mattiland had on him—carried on him. I picked it up just outside of Cardlestone's room, when you were looking into his bedroom."

"But that, after all, proves nothing. Those mayn't be the identical stamps. And whether they are or not—" "What are the probabilities?" interrupted Spargo sharply. "I believe that those are the stamps which Mattiland—your father—had on him, and I want to know how they came to be in Cardlestone's room. And I will know."

Breton handed the stamps back. "But the general thing, Spargo," he said, "if they didn't murder—I can't realize the thing yet—my father."

"If they didn't murder your father, they know who did!" exclaimed Spargo. "Now, then, it's time for more action."

"Let Eiphick and Cardlestone alone for the moment—they'll be tracked easily enough. I want to tackle something else for the moment. How do you get an authority from the government to open a grave?"

"Order from the home secretary, which will have to be obtained by showing the very strongest reasons why it should be made."

"Good! We'll give the reasons. I want to have a grave opened! Whose grave?"

"The grave of the man Chamberlayne at Market Mileester," replied Spargo. "My father?" Breton started. "His? In heaven's name, why?" he demanded.

Spargo laughed as he got up. "Because I believe it's empty," he answered. "Because I believe that Chamberlayne is alive, and that his other name is Cardlestone!"

CHAPTER XXXI. The Penitent Window-Cleaner. That afternoon Spargo had another of his momentous interviews with his proprietor and his editor. The first result was that all three drove to the offices of the Watchman, where the editor, the Watchman when it wanted any law, and that things were put in shape for an immediate application to the home office for permission to open the Chamberlayne grave at Market Mileester; the second was that on the following morning there appeared in the Watchman a notice which set half the mouths of London watering. That notice, penned by Spargo, was to the following effect:

"ONE THOUSAND POUNDS REWARD. "Whereas, on some date within the last twelve months, there was stolen, abstracted or taken from the chambers in Fountain Court, Temple, occupied by Stephen Aylmore, M.P., under the name of Mr. Anderson, a walking-stick or stout staff of foreign make and of curious workmanship, which stick was probably used in the murder of John Marbury, or Mattiland, in the night of the 21st of June, 1912, and is now in the hands of the police;

"This is to give notice that the proprietor of the Watchman will pay the above-named reward (one thousand pounds sterling) at once and in cash to whoever will prove that he or she stole, abstracted or took away the said stick from the said chambers, and will further give full information as to his or her disposal of the same, and the proprietor of the Watchman moreover engages to treat any revelation affecting the said stick in the most strictly private manner, and to abstain from using it in any way detrimental to the informant, who should call at the Watchman office, and ask for Frank Spargo, at any time between 11 and 1 o'clock midday, and 7 and 11 o'clock in the evening."

"And you really expect to get some information through that?" asked Breton, who came into Spargo's room about noon on the day on which the promising announcement came out. "You really do?"

"Before today is out," said Spargo confidently. "There is more magic in a thousand pound reward than you fancy. In fact, it's possible that the stick before me tonight."

"How are you to tell that you won't be imposed upon?" suggested Breton. "Anybody can say that, or she stole the stick."

"Whoever comes here with any tale of a stick will have to prove to me how he or she got the stick and what was done with the stick," said Spargo. "I haven't the least doubt that the stick was stolen or sent away from Aylmore's rooms in Fountain Court, and that it got into the hands of—"

"Yes, of whom?" "That's what I want to know in some fashion. I've an idea, already, but I can afford to wait for definite information. I know one thing—when I get that information—as I shall—we shall be a long way on the road toward establishing Aylmore's innocence."

Breton made no remark upon this. He was looking at Spargo with a meditative expression. "Spargo," he said suddenly, "do you think you'll get that order for the opening of the grave at Market Mileester?"

"I was talking to the solicitors over the phone just now," answered Spargo. "They've every confidence about it. In fact, it's possible it may be made early tomorrow morning."

"Shall you go?" asked Breton. "Certainly. And you go with me, if you like. Better keep in touch with us all day in case we hear. You ought to be there—you're concerned."

"I should like to go—I will go," said Spargo. "And if that grave proves to be empty, I'll—tell you something."

Spargo looked up with sharp instinct. "Never mind—wait until we see if that coffin contains a dead body or lead and sawdust. If there's no body there—"

At that moment one of the senior messenger boys came in and approached Spargo. His countenance, usually subdued to an official stolidity, showed signs of something like excitement.

Poetry and Jest

THE COWARD. [Theodosia Garrison.] I must be off and a long time gone before the spring comes back. Before the last snow melts and runs, before the first bird sings, before we hear the like of hers with yelping bounds on its track. With the old sounds and the old sights and the old litin' of new-fledged wings.

I must be off and a long way off before the spring comes on. Before the hedges are comin' green the way that I use to go. 'Tis well enough on a winter's night for a lad to sit by his lone. But I'm dreading the time when Phelin's pipes sing up from the glen below.

I must be off and a long way off, and there's no one to bid me stay. And she and the man of her choice may laugh at seem' a fool de-part.

I must be off and a long time gone before the spring comes this way. Before the sight of a child of hers would tear the strings of me heart.

HE KNEW THEM. "Want to hear the latest phonograph records?" "No, thank you. I've heard all of 'em. I live in an apartment house."

THE SOUND OF THE SEA. [Longfellow.] The sea awoke at midnight from its sleep And found the pebbly beaches far I heard the first wave of the rising tide Rush onward with uninterrupted sweep A voice out of the silence of the deep, A sound mysteriously multiplied, As of a cataract from the mountain's side, Or roar of winds upon a wooded steep, So comes the sea at times, from the unknown, And inaccessible solitudes of being. The coming of the sea-tides of the soul; And inspirations that we deem our own Are such divine foreshadowing and foreseeing. Of things beyond our reason or control.

JUST TO KNOW. [Minneapolis Tribune.] Shopkeeper—What can I do for you, my boy? "Please, I've called about your advertisement for a man to retail cameras."

"Yes, and do you think that you could do the work?" "Oh, no, sir; but I only want to know how the cameras feel their tails."

A FADED FLOWER. No red rose or yellow rose, Or pinky rose or white, Or blue flower or violet flower, Or other flower than that grows. And once as fragrant, I suppose, This withered flower tonight.

None purer or more tender, Or fitted more to wear, Or more delicate so slender, Interlaced in fringed splendor, By spray of maiden-hair.

No blue flower or violet flower, Or other flower than white, Or flower of the purpose of the hour, So well as this from woodbine bower, A month ago tonight.

Naught more fragile now or frail, Or surer to decay, Than this flower of the sun you regal, And but for that you'd wholly fail, To please another day.

FOREHANDED FRAU. [London Opinion.] Mr. Gaydosge—Well, by-by, my dear. In case I am really prevented from coming home to dinner, I will send you a telegram.

Mrs. Gaydosge—Oh, that's quite unnecessary; I've already taken it out of your pocket.

THE OLD MEN. [Ernest H. A. Home in Farmers' Sun.] I often think of the old men Sitting alone in the sun, Watching the bees on the blossoms Now that their work is done. They are so wistful, the old men, So wistful and gently wise, My heart goes out to the old men Whenever an old man dies.

I often sit with the old men, So eager to speak are they Of those by the word of tongue. Of things of a bygone day. They know so much do the old men, And much though their books are few, I like to sit with the old men; The words that they speak are true.

I often walk with the old men, Suffering my steps to theirs, And I think when our tongues are silent. How many their griefs and cares! But it's little the old men murmur; They vision with clearer eyes, And patient are they, the old men, So patient and calmly wise.

I claim as my friends the old men Sprung of our native soil, Whose bodies are worn and feeble And bowed by the years of toil; And they, in their God-sent knowledge They read me with kindly eyes, And see, when my words are halting, The thought that behind them lies.

I keep a place for the old men, A place for them in my heart, For dauntlessly well and truly Each of them played his part, And now they are spent and weary, For theirs was no royal way, The old, old men whose labor Was yielding the fruits of today.

Oh, often I think of the old men Sitting alone in the sun, Watching the shadows grow longer, Leaving us one by one. They are so trusting, the old men, So trustful and simply wise, Heaven's richer and earth is poorer Whenever an old man dies.

SANDY AT GOLF. [Punch.] Goller—What's the matter, Sandy? Aren't you going to play this afternoon?" Sandy—"Man, have you not heard? I've lost my ball."

CANADIAN BORN. [Pauline Johnson.] We first saw light in Canada, the land beloved of God; We are the pulse of Canada, its marrow and its blood; And we, the men of Canada, can face the world and brag That we were born in Canada, beneath the British flag.

Few of us have the blood of kings, few are of courtly birth, But few are varabonds or rogues of doubtful name and worth; And all have one Canadian that entitles us to brag, That we were born in Canada, beneath the British flag.

We've yet to make our money, we've yet to make our fame, But we have gold and glory in our clean colonial name; And every man's a millionaire if only he can brag That he was born in Canada, beneath the British flag.

No title and no coronet is half so proudly worn, As the which we inherited as men Canadian born. We count no man so noble as the one who makes the brag That he was born in Canada, beneath the British flag.

The Dutch may have their Holland, the Spaniard have his Spain, The Yankee to the south of us must not be sold to a hand against the men who brag, That they were born in Canada, beneath the British flag.

GIRLISH CONFIDENCES. [Life.] "Fifteen dollars a week for teachin' school? It's a darn shame! They oughta give ya' eighteen or twenty dollars down to th' factory."

THOSE GIRLS. [Boston Transcript.] "Auntie, did you ever get a proposal?" "Once, dear; a gentleman asked me over the telephone to marry him, but he had the wrong number."

NO CARDS IN THE HOUSE. The fourth grade teacher had a great deal of trouble with Fred's attendance. He was absent so often that she got suspicious, and wrote a note to his parents, as follows: "I am afraid that Fred is playing truant, and I would like your co-operation in securing a better attendance for him."

Back that afternoon came this answer: "Dere Teacher,—If Fred is playing truant he didn't learn at home. We air church people, and hain't got a card in our house."

THE TEST. "Tim and I, we are not friends. We were pals, but friendship ends when distress is put to scorn; if you're sad, your friend should mourn, Friendship's tests are sharp, if few. On my car a tire blew, When I looked up mournfully Durn his head! He laughed at me!"

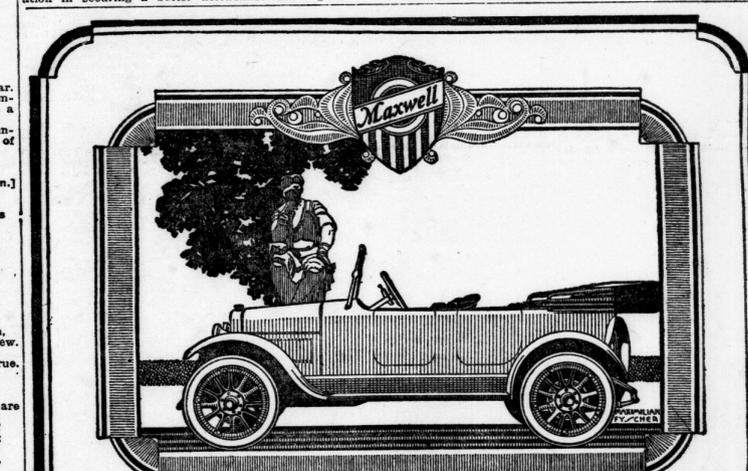

SAME OLD THING. "No man acts towards his wife after marriage the same as before," said a man. "I do," replied Smith. "Exactly the same. I remember just how I used to act when I first fell in love with her. I used to lean over the fence in front of her house and gaze at her shadow on the curtain, afraid to go in. And I act just the same way, now when I get home late."

"SO NEAR AND YET—" On a summer day when it's scorching hot, And I'm out in the scizzling field; And the sun beats down from a cloud-less sky Like a red-hot copper shield; When I'm wringing wet with a scalding sweat, 'Tis then that I think all day Of that swimming pool, so nice and cool, Just 'leven miles away!

The Simplicity of a MAXWELL is Due to Special Steels

A Maxwell is a simple car. Its engine, axles, clutch, transmission and gears are the utmost in simplicity, which is the goal of scientific engineering.

Special steels have made this possible. They are steels made to Maxwell's own formulae, the result of thousands of tests and years of analysis.

These steels give a Maxwell the remarkable combination of extra strength and lightness in weight.

In this way complicated construction has been avoided. Simple design has naturally followed and to this simplicity rare strength has been added by the use of these special steels.

Strains, twists, thrusts, shocks and blows are protected against in many other cars by reinforcements, extra weight in metals used, and a design that obviously is anything but simple.

In a Maxwell this simplicity has made the car easier to build, and it therefore is better built, easier to drive, and easier to care for.

That this should win friends for Maxwell is almost too obvious to call attention to.

Nearly 400,000 persons now drive a Maxwell, which is a very definite endorsement.

Tribesmen Gather Hits in Clusters On Steal To Flag

74 Healthy Swats Collected Off Winters, While Delotelle Allows But Six—Two Triples and Three Two-Baggers in Bag.

London won the second game of the series with Battle Creek 9 to 1 yesterday afternoon over at the West London ball yard before a crowd that made the Clusters feel at home—it was so thin.

Mr. Winters assumed the mound duties for the Clusters and brought a blizzard of 14 hits with him for the London crew. Calbert and Kennedy poling out three-sackers and the latter, Shay and Kuhn, two-swats each. Delotelle opposing, served up some wintry winds himself, but only allowed six hits, which he kept widely scattered.

After the first frame when Boyle was scored on a sacrifice and Hooker's single to left, the Clusters never seriously threatened, only having two left on bases. Kelly was the nearest home after he had singled in the fifth and several infield outs were made until the middle run garden had eight men put out, one of them in the sensational order on Calbert's fly in the sixth.

The Tribe were certainly all bright eyes on the batting and yesterday, falling in only two frames to get his swats were not only hits, but placed ones as well.

They started out as they did yesterday and in the first three innings gathered two hits in each to do it, whereas yesterday they put the work over on half the number. In the first Calbert's three-bagger was cashed in as a run by Kuhn's double to right, where they had Kaylor on first and Boyle on second. Calbert's hit was wasted when Crichton was mowed down at second on Pitt's sacrifice. Pitt himself made second on a wild pitch and scored on Dowling's cunning hit down the third base line. Boyle's double commenced proceedings in the next and he came in on Kuhn's long sacrifice fly to middle. Winters pitched a regular and went to Kuhn's second another wild heave, but Crichton fled out.

The Clusters were smart on the bases in the fourth and pared two down on the path, but in the fifth a regular gust of hits struck Winters. Kennedy tripled and was scored by Shay's simple, Calbert and Kuhn both singled to right again, the latter's hit scoring Shay. Writry grounded out and so did Crichton while the scoring was made on him at first Calbert slipped over with the third run.

Two more came in the sixth. Dowling was hit on the fourth ball and Delotelle sent one down at short field, which with delay and an abandonment of the play at second left it too late for anything at first, and then Kennedy's double between time in circles. Boyle's sacrifice fly, which Milan turned a double somersault to get, scored Delotelle and Kuhn. Boyle's sacrifice fly was scored on a sacrifice fly, which Milan turned a double somersault to get, scored Delotelle and Kuhn.

Meet To Arrange Soccer Cup Ties Series Tonight

Societies Regret Departure of Pats From City—R. C. R. Enter Team.

Tonight a meeting of the City Soccer League executive will be held at the Richmond House to arrange the details for the coming cup series, which promises to be the best soccer effort yet made in the city.

The entries already in for the cup ties are sufficient now to make competition of the keenest and there are still more prospective entries.

General regret is felt in soccer circles over the removal of the Pats. The Pats have proven themselves splendid sportsmen and good footballers, and besides had a good following in the regiment and amongst the fans.

The scores for the day were: St. Marks—Rev. A. L. Beverly, 4 losses minus 12. London Rowing Club—Edmund Weid 3 wins, plus 8.

Status of Cayuga Catcher Delays O. M. B. A. Play-Off

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 24.—The Bain baseball club management were today notified that the O. M. B. A. series between Bain and Gueph had been cancelled. Secretary Walker telephoned today that it would be necessary to hold a meeting of the sub-committee to deal with the disqualifying of the Cayuga team. It seems that Secretary Walker notified the secretary of the Cayuga district that Kinders catcher of their team was not eligible to play. Cayuga claims that on account of absence of the secretary they did not receive the notification and the O. M. B. A. has now decided to re-convene the case.

DIVORCES RISING MARRIAGES A CLOSE RACE IN CHICAGO

Speaker Declares Some Remedy Must Be Sought For the Evil.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—"Home Sweet Home" was the topic of the outdoor "Gasoline services" held tonight by the Third Presbyterian Church.

"If the present rate of increase of divorces continues in Chicago for the next generation the city will be more desolate than any of the war-ravaged cities in France," said William F. McDermott, one of the speakers.

"The present rate continues, there will be a single marriage by 1950 that will turn out successfully. In other words, the increase in divorces is so rapid that by 1950 the number will be equal to that of the marriages.

"Take the figures of the last ten years or in other words, the last ten years in 1911 there were 29,417 marriages and 3,442 divorces.

"The years following, being war years, cannot be taken as normal. But last year, the first full year of peace, there were 27,882 marriages and 4,000 divorces.

"What is the cure? Stricter divorce laws will help, but the real cure is only a symptom of a disease in the social fabric of the nation.

"More graphic illustration can be seen by the fact that Chicago, with 2,000,000 people now has more divorces annually than the whole United States in 1850.

"The divorce rate in Chicago is increasing at the rate of 23 per cent over the divorce rate for 1911. Three decades more, at this rate, will see divorces equaling the number of marriages.
