After the Bishop had examined him concerning his faith and the cause of his imprisonment, he looked on him steadfastly, tears standing in his eyes, and said, "Ah, poor boy, God hath taken from thee thy outward sight, for what reason he best knoweth : but he hath endued thy soul with an eve of knowledge and faith. God give theegrace continually to pray unto him, that thou lose not that sight; for thou shouldst then be blind both in body and soul."

The boy's name was Thomas Dowry. How often or how long he had endured imrisonment for the truth's sake, is not known; but on his final examination he was brought before Dr. Williams, Chancellor of Gloucester, sitting judicially with the register of the diocese in the consistory, near he south door of the cathedral church, who dministered the usual articles, chiefly urgng that on transubstantiation, and saying : " Dost thou not believe that after the ords of consecration spoken by the priest, there remains the very real body of Christ " No," replied the blind boy, " that I do

"When did I teach thee so ?" Dowry answered, " When you preache ere (naming a day) a sermon to all men well as to me, upon the sacrament.-You said the sacrament was to be received spiritually, by faith, and not carnally and really, as the papists have heretofore taught. The shameless apostate answered : Then do as I have done, and thou shalt

"Then God have mercy upon thee," re-oined the Chancellor; for I will read the condemnation sentence against thee." "God's will be fulfilled l" answered the young martyr. Hereupon the Register, being moved with the scene, stood up, and said to the Chancellor :

Missions and the Village System of India.

Our readers are aware that in the native overnment of India every village is an oranized municipality, having its council of head men, its revenues, and its formal meetings for the transaction of business, and to the necessity of paying some regard to these institutions, as we have some time since pointed out, is to be attributed the differences observable in the administration of the East India Company's government in the different presidencies. A writer in the Colonial Church Gazette thus shows how this village system has, by the missionaries of the Church of England, " contributed largely to the consolidation, if not to the extension of rural missions generally, but especially in Tinnevelly."

When a Tinnevelly village embraces Christianity, it immediately forms itself, almost as a matter of course, into a Christian municipality, and authorizes its head men to exercise a general superintendance over the congregation, and, in conjunction with the catechist, to carry into effect the missionary's views. Even in those cases where only a portion of a village becomes Christian, and that not the most influential portion, it forms itself, not only in ecclesiasical and educational matters, but even in the greater number of social matters, into a new municipality, and generally manages to maintain its independence. The heads the community, have much more power and a much wider scope of influence than English churchwardens, and where they happen to be really good, prudent men, are measurably more useful to the minister. They feel themselves responsible for the obedience of the rest of the people to Chris. tian rules, or their regularity in attending church and sending their children to school, for the collection of contributions for chari table and religious purposes, for carrying into effect decisions of church discipline, as well as for the settlement of any civil and social disputes that may arise. The head men may be said to hold their appointment by hereditary right, or in virtue of their position in society; for though they are chosen by the people, and appointed by the missionary, yet, in almost every instance, those persons alone are appointed to whom the people have always been accustomed to look up; and thus the head of the village is also the elder in the congregation. So long as Christianity has not acquired a recognized footing in a village, but is only eeking an entrance, the corporate action of ternal weight of glory."-Beveridge. the community is undoubtedly a serious obstacle to its progress; but when once a vil-

To the courage of a soldier he added the practical sagacity of an Oriental statesman and the deep piety of an experienced and active Christian. It strikes us that this is a complete as suption of secular as well as religious authority, inasmuch as not only does the missionary become virtually the executive and the administrator of the laws, but gives the law also in the form of his views and wishes. The late Rev. W. Bennett.

MR. EDITOR, DEAR SIR,-In your paper of this week you will have to record the death of my late venerable friend, the Rev. Wm. Bennett, whose name recalls to my memory many delightful seasons of religious enjoyment in former years. Without attempting to write a regular memoir of my late of the Spirit," which only can admit us into ing to write a regular memory of the Spirit, which only on additional of the spirit, which on additional of the spirit, which still dwell upon with great pleasure, and which may be profitably perused by his beloved family and your numerous readers in general. Our friendship commenced on my arrival in this country in the year 1812, and has continued ever since, as far as circumstances would permit. He was at that time the Chairman of this District, which then ineluded New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. At our first District Meeting, which was held at Granville, I had an opportunity of witnessing how greatly the brethren respected his sound judgment, and sterling piety; and my long and close observation his character ever since, has tended greatly to deepen the impressions then made upon my mind.

At my second appointment in this country I was placed, at my own request, under immediate superintendence by uniting the Horton and Annapolis Circuits for that year. Most gladly did I avail myself of every practicable opportunity of learning from him the lessons of instruction which shall sustain thee." have been, I believe, useful to me through every subsequent period of my life.

My next four years were spent at St John, N.B., and Liverpool. In consequence thereof, our opportunities of personal intercourse were very few and far between, but his letters to me on the great business of our holy vocation were welcome to me as real treasures.

In the Spring of the year 1816, he was sent by the Committee with the late Rev. W. Black to Canada upon Missionary business. While at Montreal he had a severe fit of illness, so that his life was despaired of but his mind was most delightfully staid cn God during his affliction, and in due time he was restored to his anxious family and the people of his charge, to their great joy. ened to a discourse.

In 1821, our departed brother felt com pelled to retire from the itinerant Ministry in consequence of the failure of his health. He felt this to be a painful dispensation to him; but our circuits at that time were large and very laborious, and he was o opinion that nothing short of a state of sound health could qualify any man to perform their arduous duties. Having a young family to provide for, he removed to a farm at Newport, where he had almost everything to learn to qualify him for that mode of life; but he was a man of strong powers of mind, and of indomitable industry and perseverance. Providence kindly blessed his endeavours, so that his health consider. ably improved; but in consequence of some internal affection, he was never able to re enter his beloved itinerancy. He occasion ally supplied the place of an absent preacher, or gave a word of exhortation when occasion required it.

His time and attention were directed in a great measure to secular concerns for a umber of years . but he assured me when I returned to this country in 1823 that no change whatever had taken place in his mind relative to his love to the work of the ministry, or the people of God. Some of his friends, however, were apprehensive that he was engaging too ardently in temporal concerns ; but when the revival of the work In the beginning of 1840 we held a series of most delightful revival meetings at Newport, at which a great number of young persons were brought to God, and among them two or three of Mr. Bennett's children. This event, I believe, formed a new era in his own experience, as his exhortations and prayers were the most powerful and effective I had ever heard, and he repeatedly assured us how greatly the Lord was blessing him both at home and in the congregation. Similar meetings wese subsequently held at Meander and at Windsor, in both of which he took a very active and useful part ; and I have great reason to believe that many souls were brought into the liberty of the Gospel, through the blessing of God upon his benevolent exertions.

As soon as Providence seemed to open the way, he placed his farm in the hands of his sons, and removed to Halifax as his nermanent residence, and there he attended the duties of religious ordinances as much as his health would allow.

In 1851 I had to follow him to the same place, and hence our intercourse became more frequent and profitable. Here we often united in the ordinary means of grace, and at the table of our blessed Lord. Our personal intercourse at each other's houses and elsewhere was always of the most friendly and profitable description ; and I could not but regret when I was compelled by circumstances to bid him last farewell. Mr. Bennett was naturally reserved in his intercourse generalbut our long acquaintance and similarity of circumstances inspired him with great freedom in our mutual intercourse. He was at times the subject of severe temptation and mental conflict; but he knew where to fly for deliverance, and always succeeded in obtaining it, after many painful struggles in prayer. He continued to preach at the Penitentiary on the Sabbath morning as long as his health would permit, and some thought even beyond it. But he was remarkable as a man of prayer, not only as being rarely gifted in this sacred duty, but as being ever ready to lead therein.

Some facts connected with the late Bank robbery in Fredericton have come to light. It seems that there were several persons engaged in the robbery, and that Savage and others arrested in this city were merely acting as decoys, the real perpetators of the crime having escaped up the river, and so on to the United States, where they carried their booty, amounting, it is said, to the enormous sum of £25,000. A liberal reward was offered by the Bank for the apprehension of the robbers in the United States, and an active American police-officer succeeded in discovering and arresting the principal or chief of the band This gentleman, not liking to be lodged in the Penitentiary for fourteen years at least, agreed to surrender all the paper money, amounting to £20,000, and half of the gold, tor his discharge, and it seems after some negociation this was accepted .- Church Witness. that the present of the wheat crop market this tall. Freights being so very scarce, those vessels that have not already laid up will retire to winter quarters much earlier this seanow lying in our harbour stripped of every all regretted. inch of canvas. The Kingston News says that the American line of lake steamers has ceased to run and the "New Era" of our own through line has also laid up. The " Magnet's" last trip was made on Thursday. The News thought it probable that the other steamers would soon do the same. The season will close early on lake Erie, for freights from the west are not learn the extent of the movement in grain .--The elevators, which at this season of the year are usually daily unloading hundreds of cargoes of wheat and corn, were silent and deserted .--Not more than fifteen or twenty schooners and propellers were discharging? freight. Sailing vessels were being prepared for winter quarters; and hundreds of empty canal boats thronged the basins .- Port Hope Guide, Oct. $1.

United States.

PROSPECTS FOR THE WINTER.-It is useless to deny that our prospects for the ensuing Winter are in this city gloomy and unpleasant enough. Few mechanics and laborers will be fully employed, and these will probably work at reduced compensation, while thousands and probably tens of thousands will be left entirely without employment. But probably no such by the precision and weight of the constant disharges from our batteries. On the 13th, the stagnation of trade ever found these classes of Cashmere bastion was in ruins, and had long our community better or so well prepared for ceased to return a shot to the fire that was con the change. There has been a long continuance of prosperous-times, during which employment tains on either side were similarly ruined, and of prosperous-times, during which employment tains on either from the debris of the Moree bastion only a light has been abundant and is remuneration liberal, gun or two at intervals replied to the heavy and it is bightly to the credit of the working and shell that were poured into it. At the classes that very generally in the time of their other end of the works the water bastion adversity they have prepared against these sea- had suffered scarcely less severely, its extreme sons of adversity. The deposits of our savings magazine had blown up, and a light gun which banks afford evidence of this. The amount enfladed our batteries had been silenced. And banks afford evidence of this. The amount thus available to each separate family may not be large, but those who economise when labor is Order. plentitul and money abundant, are sure to employ their resources wisely and prudently when the reverse is the case. Against this must be set off the fact that a small capital, however rigid the economy, soon becomes exhausted when is, as far as I know, the only communication of a whole family is living on the principal, and so late a date that has yet reached Bombaythere are no incomings to replenish the exhaustion. And then there remain thousands who have lacked the inclination, or the ability, to garner up anything against the time of scarcity. -N.Y. Spectator.

How TO PRESERVE BEAUTY .- Nothing is more becoming to a man or woman than a beautiful luxuriant head of hair, and a woman's beauty is certainly incomplete without a fair complexion, and he of she who neglects these great and im-portant dorament is of other more than the battery of be portant adornments of nature must expect to suf-fer the mortification of premature baldness, and ville Times.

The Firm Bank.

upposed to have been written by REV. Row-LAND HILL, at a time when public credit in Great Britain was shaken by the failure of everal Banks.

I have a never failing Bank, A more than Golden Store ; No earthly Bank is half so rich, How can I then be poor ?

'Tis when my stock is spent and gone. And I without a groat, I'm glad to hasten to my Bank, And beg a little note.

Sometimes my Banker smiling says, Why don't you oft'ner come And when you draw a little note. Why not a larger sum ?

"Why live so niggardly and poor, Your bank contains a plenty, Why come and take a one pound note, When you might have a twenty.

"Yea, twenty thousand ten times told, Is but a trifling sum, To what your father has laid up, Secure in God his Son."

Since then my Banker is so rich, I have no cause to borrow, I'll live upon my cash to-day, And draw again to-morrow

I've been a thousand times before. And never was rejected : Sametimes my Banker gives me more Than asked for or expected.

Sometimes I've felt a little proud, I've managed things so clever; But ah ! before the day was gone, I've felt as poor as ever.

Sometimes with blushes in my face, Just at the door I stand; I know if Moses keep me back, I surely must be damned.

I know my bank will never break-No, it can never fail, The firm-three persons in one God, Jehovah-Lord of all.

Should all the Banks of Britain break The Bank of England smash-Bring in your notes to Zion's bank, You'll surely get your cash.

And if you have but one small note, Fear not to bring it in ; Come boldly to the Bank of Grace-The Banker is within.

All forged notes will be refused. Man-merits are rejected; There's not a single note will pass, That God has not accepted,

'Tis only those beloved by God. Redeemed by precious blood, That ever had a note to bring-These are the gifts ot God.

Tho' thousand ransomed souls may say, They have no notes at all_ Because they feel the plagues of sin, So ruined by the fall-

Delhi, as a city, has been more favoured the following instances of heroism, called them released from prison, set on his throng again, and presented with an annual pen-sion of £150,000 sterling. To such extent was pity shown, that for years the real ru-lers of the country were content to staud barefoot in the presence of his Moghul ma-jesty, and were not permitted to take a seat. In those days, the Government, throwing the reins over the neck of their liberality, presented to the Mahommedans a large sum of money to repair the metropolitan mosque, not that they thought Mohammedanism to be a Divine religios, for them they should have embraced it themselves,—but simply in the hope that by such unchristian con-duct they might open a way to the rich reduct they might open a way to the rich re- rope, and as they, bearing it down, slumbled, she, by rein and whip, raised them, zions beyond.

A YER's CATHALTIC PILLS have been pre-pared with the utmost skill which the medical pro-fession of this age possesses, and their effects show they have virtues which surpass any combination ous complaints, so quick and so surely, as to prove an efficacy and a power to uproot disease beyond my thing which men have known before. By re-moving the obstructions of the internal organs and stimulating them into healthy action, they renovate the fountains of life and vigor, — health courses anew through the body, and the sick man is well again. They are adapted to disease, and disease only, for when taken by one in healt they produce ut little effect. This is the perfection of medicine. It is antagonistic to disease, and no more. Tender children may take them with impunity. If they are sick they will cure them, if they are well they will do them no hare. Give them to some patient who has been up, tot-tering form straighten with strength again ; see his blossom into health. Give them to some sufferer whose foul blood has burst out in scrofula till his skin is covered with sores; who stands, or sits, or lies in anguish. He has been drenched inside and out with every potion which ingenuity could sug-gest. Give him these PiLLs, and mark the effect; skin this covered which sores; two stands, or sits, or lies in each all from his body; see the hat leper that is clean. Give them to him whose angry humors have planted rheumatism in his joints and books been soaked through every muscle of his body with lininents and astves; give him these PiLLS to purify his blood; they may not cure him, Give them to the lean, sour, haggard dyspeptic, which from his face and covery muscle for his body. See his appetite return, and with it his health ; see has hore is appetite, the ways with crutches now, and now he walks alone; they have cured him. Give her to the lean, sour, hagga Who they were it is now difficult to tell, for even their stone monuments are crumbling into dust; but doubtless they were men as we are, and what has befallen them will befel us all. How ead it is to think, that the great city, which still contains 152,000 inhabitants, should have added a new chapter of horrors to the list which fills so large a place in the pages of its past history. Multitudes of Hindoos have there been massacreed by the Mohammedan invaders, and in return, multitudes of Mohammedans have fallen by the Hindoos. One place is called by the Mussulmans the Field of Martyrs, for there 5000 Mohammedans were slain. Within the city, one gate is called the Gate of Blood, in commemoration of the multitudes massacreed there by order of the Persian invader Nadir Shah. And now alas ! the same soil has been moistened by the blood of numerous Christian martyrs -Three Missionaries, with the widow and daughters of another Missionary, and two native Christians, and a dear man of God, a chaplain and his dasghter, have all been slaughtered. Besides these, probably one hundred of our beloved countrymen and countrywomen have been sacrificed there, with a ferocity and an ingenuity in cruelty which none could rival but a benighted Asiatic, still lying in the darkness of nature's night. While I write these words I imagine myself in the place of the propher Jeremiah, when he said, "Oh! that my head were waters, and my eyes fountains of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people !" But we must not only weep; we must pray that the just and merciful God may avenge the blood of his martyred servests in such wise that the idolatrous Indian and the pharisascal Mohammedan may both be compelled to bow to the sceptre of the one only Mediator and Saviour .-- Missionary Magazine.

I tell the soul that feels self-lost. These notes belong to you.

The leper had a little note-" Lord, if thou wilt, thou can." The Banker cash'd this little note, And heal'd the sickly man.

We read of one young man, indeed, Whose riches did abound, But in the Banker's book of Grace, This man was never found.

But see the wretched, dying thief, Hang by the Banker's side, He cried, " dear Lord remember me." And got his cash-and died.
