CHAPTER II.

To the Gentlemen of P. E. Island, Greeting: GENTLEMEN.

ME and Tide wait for no man, and in order to keep pace with time, we must travel a raitroud speed if we expect to posses ourselves of the tide there is in our affairs. Time passes very slow with the youthful mind? But with the middle aged man, how swift: writter than a weavers shuttle, we are told. Yes, gentlemen, the world is growing wiser and weaker—weaker in superstition and hiolaty—where in training up the mind to perfect manhoud—keeping all our appetites and passions under subjection—cherhing the body with the fusest, mattest, and most fashionable productions of the NEON YORK CLOTENING
STOREE, until you because like the lilly of the vaily, which neither tolks nor spins, yet solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these. Gentlemen, as
