and their tears flowed thick and fast as he bade them adieu. Nor could be himself, without emotion, look upon the spot which he was quitting, as it turned out, for ever. One image, too, we may well believe, flitted before him at that hour. As the kindness of Poccahontas and her self-sacrificing love rose before him, mingled with the recolection of promises broken, or expectations awakened only to be disappointed; as he thought how she would feel when she learned that he had departed; there must have stirred within his breast dark and gloomy reflections. The vessel's sails were heisted however, a favouring breeze filled them, and James town faded from Smith's view. How Pocahontas bore the gloomy intelligence which announced to her the Governor's departure, we must leave the reader to conceive. It is said that, by a base deception, she was told that he was dead a fraud all but too likely to have been practized. Ingratitude, however, did not chill her heart. Her good offices towards the e them adieu. Nor could he his

of Smith by othering to sacrince her own that she swam the cold river to give timely intelligence of the destruction of James-town—that she married and died as above related—are real events in her life. Justly, therefore, is her memory regarded with a tender and almost romantic interest. She tender and almost romantic interest. She has been praised in song, sculptured in marble, and embalmed in history. But there is a higher satisfaction even than this. It is pleasing to know that there is good roason to hope that this true heroine was led to a heartfelt nequaintance with the Saviour; that a disposition naturally so amiable was purified and refined by the grace of the Holy Spirit; and that her heart, so loving and affectionate, was given sincerely to One whose nature is love, and whose service is perfect happiness. A contemporary account of her dath states—"that it gave joy to the beholder, to hear and see her make so religious and godly an end."

*** In reference to Smith's conduct to

Mr. Rolfe, she had been given to understand that Captain Smith was dead; for he was the first man she had set her affections upon, and I make no doubt he had promised to marry her when he was in her father's court; for when he came to whit upon her, on her arrival in England, she appeared surprised, turned away from him with the dromptinge.

I was of her, the the them the so much and ran so many hazards, would have deceived her; and when she did vouchsafe to hear him, she still repreached him with ingratitude.

The account which the German writer has followed differs, we may add, from the English version, chiefly in point of chrone-logical arrangement. The delivery of James-town, for instance, by Poccahoutas swimming through the river, is in the English accounts made to follow, instead of precede, her rescue of the Governor from the club of the savage executioner. Jukka has evidently, also, in the German version, been substituted fog a savage described by the English writers under the formidable name Opechankanough.

Lond Earnest Vane.—The following case, with regard to the enlistment of a son of the Marquis of Londonderry, is, we believe, substantially true:—"A good deal of surprise was occasioned on Friday by the announcement that Lord Ernest Vane, youngest son of the Marquise of Londonderry, had enlisted in the 4th Royal frish Dragoons. It appears that the noble lord has been for some time past staying in the neighbourhood of Winchester as a pupil in the house of a clergyman, and on Thursday last, came to town by the South Western Railway, accompanied by his groom proceeded at once to Charles-street, where he fell in with a recruiting serjeant, with whom he enlisted, and then tried hard to induce the groom to follow his example, but without effect. The servant returned to Winchester, and communicated the extraordinary news to the family, and the electric tolegraph was resorted to; but the information reached the noble marquis foo late. The noble lord and a party of recruits were regularly attested at Rochester-row police-court on Friday; and although some of the authorities at the magistrate's office recognized him, he said his mind was made up. He gave the name of Ernest Smith, and started with his comrades for Dublin. His lordship is in his nineteenth year, about five feet ten inches in height, stout and well made, and appears at present resolved to follow out his newly-adopted career." Since the above was published in the Observer, we learn that the fast young lord has been released, and that his father has sent him to a military academy. This case, a then, shows that there is a law for the rich, and another for the poor. If Ernest Smith had been the only son of a poor widow and had enlisted in a moment of desperation, the widow might have wept till her heart-strings broke before liberty would have been granted to her son. If we remember rightly, a son of the late Sir Bollingham Graham enlisted some years ago in the Life Guards. His wise father did not buy him off, and the son, who also by no means lacked wisdom, proved by his conduct that he was not unworthy of being curvelled among the "Gentlemen of Her Majesty's Royal Guards." The Princes of Prussis begin the rilitary career as private soldiers, and we have seen one of the son of the son of the presence of the pound), canta, and mile.

The Weslevans.—In a course of a trial before Vice Chancellor, Sir W. P. Wood, respecting the trusts of a Methodist chapel, it was stated that in the Weslevan body there are 14,000 local preachers, who are not pastors, but who besides preaching, are engaged in their daily callings and purenits, "embracing many members, of the senate and the bar, down to the lowest artisan."

many a tong year, more than one notice who kneist at the "adorable assertice" was Jew in blood or Mahometan by dessent.

Amid much recounted of the Aztees' that is romantic and equivocal, we may gather a few leading facts which will hardly bear disputing. Among others it would seem that there is somewhere located a tribe of this singular people, living in isolation, admitting no attranger among them, and never marrying out of particular families. One consequence of this latter custom is a degeneracy of race; and one fashion adopted in certain marked cases of degeneracy is that, when individuals are of unusually minute stature, they are received into the family of gods, and are made objects of worship.

they are received into the family of gods, and are made objects of worship.

Such is said to have been the condition of the two Aztec Liliputions now exhibited at the Hanower-square Rooms. Their ages may be the boy's thirteen, the girl's ten. They weigh about two and twenty pounds, are really Liliputians, have heads not larger than that of an infant a day or two old, with large, brilliant, and restless eyes. Their arms are rather beyond the usual length, and their legs are somewhat ricketty," caused by the position into which they had been early puthat of Mexican idols, seated on the calves of their own legs—a position into which they naturally fall when seated by themselves on the ground. They have superb black curling hair, and are copper-colored.—They have no speech of their own, but they repeat words readily though incomfeats.

ground. They have seated by themselves on the ground. They have superb black curling hair, and are copper-colored.—They have no speech of their own, but they repeat words readily though imperfectly.

Perhaps the most striking trait connected with them is the total disregard which each has for the other.—There is something painful in.it. They notice every individual in the room, play with all comers, and are delighted if visitors will draw figures for them, or lend them a pencil that they may attempt the feat themselves. But all intercourse of one with the other seems to be non-existent: they neither look at, smile at, or make stans between themselves. Each passes the other as if they were mutually invisible; and yet, without much trouble, we induced little 'Batti?' to kiss "Meximo," who received the salute impassively, as if nothing more than the wind was kissing his cheek, and he glidde on his way unconscious or careless of the nymph who sooth to say, seemed as little conscious as impedit.

attention—an attention which will be increased ten-fold when the impatient philosophers and the wealthy admirers of phenomena have satisted their curiosity at five shillings or half a crown-cach, and the price of admission is reduced to the customary and sufficient shilling. Then the "owners" of Azice Lilliputians will probably vap as rich a harvest as did the hirer of our ascient friend "General Tom Thumb."

A Nosle Monument.—To honor the memory of the late Duke of Wellington, a magnificent school is to be established, at which children of army officers are to be admitted free of charge. The Queen heads the subscription with $5000; Prince Albert and the Duke of Cambridge (the Queen's uncle) follow with $2,500 each; and there are several subscriptions ranging from $500 to $1000. The entire subscription already amounts to $400,000, and will probably be increased to $500,000. Isn't this better than a pyramid of useless granite?

Anormer Fearrer Rahway Accident !—For some time past the American papers have teemed with accounts of fearful railway accidents; and it would appear as if some dreadful fatality hung over the railways in the United States. During the early part of last week several minor accidents occurred, the most serious of which was the collision on the Camden and Amboy Railroad, which caused the loss of four lives. But on Friday last, one of those fearful collisions took place on the Providence [R. I.] Railroad, which causes the most fearles to shudder. We learn from a telegraph despatch that the regular train of ears from Providence for Worcester, and an excursion train from Whitnewille, going to Providence and Newport, came in collision on Friday morning, about fifteen miles from Providence, near Valley Falls.
Both trains were at full speed, and the result was terrible indeed. The first car of the excursion train was completely smashed, and the second and third budly injured. Fifteen dead bedies have been taken out of the ruins, and sixty persons are wounded! Among the killed

STRAMES TO CHINA.—The people of the United States are earnestly considering the project of connecting the Eastern shores of the Pacific with China, by means of steam vessels; and in a very short time, we should not be surprised to hear of a line of steamets being placed on the rout. A map has recently been published, shewing the distance of the different routes to Shanghae, in China, from scaports on the American continent. From Lina direct to Shanghae, the distance is 9800 miles—from Panama to the Sandwich Islands, 4760—Sandwich Islands to Shanghae, 4479—San Francisco to the Sandwich Islands, 2200—San Francisco to the Sandwich Islands, 2200—San Francisco to Shanghae, direct, 5775—Astoria to Shanghae, direct, 5550 miles.

On looking a little further we found that our contemporary idea of "The Government" resolves into "George Coles and Edward Whelan," who he says are the sole representatives of what we may fairly term the late Government. In this we agree, and we acquit all the Executive of being in the least concerned in it. No! our opinion still is, and will we think still sontinue, that the whole credit of the thing belongs to Mr. Whelan, in conjunction it may be with Mr. Coles. That Whelan has had a rap over the knuckles, we do not in the least doubt, and we trust that it will have the effect of teaching him to confine himself to truth—if it be possible—not that we care ourselves much about the matter. It hurts not us. Mr. Whelan and his auxiliary of the Weskly Advertiser are so well known, that any thing that falls from their pen can blacken nought but the paper it touches. It is said, by the way, that the former writes the abusive articles for both papers, it is not unlikely, there is a sameness, grosmess, and utter want of either wit or humor pervading the effusions of both.

The apology made by the Editor of the Gazette only makes the original fault the worse, and as to his pretensions of amendment in fature, for that we suppose the concluding remarks were meant for such, they are of as much value as the promises of a thict while smarting under the lash, made in the hopes of mitigating the present punishment, but without any intention of being kept in future.

Have our readers seen A. Willard's Butter Machine? If they have not, let them, especially the rural part of them, step into the Royal Agricultural Society's Warehouse and examine it closely, they will find their labour well paid for by the gratification it will afford. It is almost impossible to give an intelligible description of it in words, but of its powers nothing is more easily done. It is in appearance a box churn but the dasher is altogether different from those in common use. The cream being put in, there is a thermometer which is marked with a number indicating the temperature it ought to be brought to, in order to cause the butter to separate with the greatest facility. In summer, cold water is poured into an outer case, and in winter warm, until the mercury indicates that the proper temperature has been attained. The winch is then turned for a few minutes and the butter is made; a stop cock, at the bottom of the machine protected by a strainer, allows the butter milk to be drawn off; water is then poured in and the butter is thoroughly washed, and the milk to be drawn off; water is then poured in and the butter is thoroughly washed, and the butter milk pressed out by merely a few revolutions of the machine: in like manner the pickle is poured in, and the butter salted or rather preserved. It is then removed from the wheel or dasher with a wooden spatula, and may be either packed for future use or printed, for which last purpose, there is an ingenious sort of print accompanying the machine, which forms an oblong mass, of about a pound weight we should say, prettily invented. This is literally making butter by machinery, for the hand need never come into contact with the made, we suppose we must not now call it menufactured, suppose we article.

To THE EDITOR OF HARRAND'S GAZETTE.

Sin;

Permit me to correct an error in your notice of the demise of the late Mrs. Wightman. The departed numbering only 74 years of earthly pilgrimage, and desavving a parting tribute to her worth and usefulness, more than many who have been the subject of powerful laudations. Placed in a public position she had abundant opportunities of doing good, which were not suffered to pass unimproved, and many will be the regrets, felt for the loss of her cheering smile, comforting word, and substantial relief. She was no stranger at the count of sickness, whilst her parental value may be estimated by the angulah manifested by her sorrowing son and daughter.

So the spare pieces of time, the shreds, the odds and ends of time put together, may form a great and becutiful work. Hall wrote his contemplations when on his circuits. Dr. Mason Good translated Lucratius in his carriage, while, as a physician, he rode from door to door. One of the Chancellors of France penned a bulky volume in the successive intervals of daily waiting for dinner. Doddridge wrote his Expositor chiefly before breakfast. Kirke White studied Greek, went over the nouns and verbs, as he was going to and from a lawyer's office. Burney learn't French and Italian while riding on horseback. Franklin laid the foundation of his wonderful stock of knowledge in his dinner hours and evenings, while working as a printer's boy.

The painter complied, the likeness was introduced, and the husband looked with a glance of satisfaction on his three spou ses. Not so the lady. She remonstra-ted; never was such a thing heard of! Out her predecessors must go. The art ist painted them out accordingly.

BORROWERS AND LENDERS. There are scores of persons about town who possess no adequate means of subsistence visible to the rest of mankind. We may depend upon it, there might as truly be found an equal number of thoughtlessly ngs, who consume in their vn personal gratification but a limited coportion of the cash that somehow or proportion of the cash that somether continues periodically to glide through their fingers. The man who can live for any length of time, without direct robbery, beyond his legitimate means, must avail himself of one or both means, must avail himself of one or both of two expedients; to wit, getting into debt, or "sponging" upon one or more of those kind-hearted souls whose excessive amiability, and fear of giving offence robs them of the courage to utter the disagreeable monosyllable "no," commenced taking the Gramp and Pain Killer in the Spring of 1847. I had been a great sufferer for ten years previous some four or five years of the time I suffered beyond all my powers to describe.

During this time, I have had medical aid, and tried various specifies, but found very little relief until I obtained your Gramp and Pain Killer. In one month after I commenced using it, I began to grow better. I continued to use it for a year, all the time improving until I was entirely cured.

PATENT ARTIFICIAL SLATE. This composition has been spwards of, three years extensively used in New Branswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, the Canadas and Nova Scotip, principally for covering shingled roofs, as you will perceive by the accompanying circulars of certificates. It has been severely tasted, and proved most aucoessfully is the proof qualities under most extraordinary circumstances; so much so, that I am of opinion that Fire Insergance, Companies should encourage its general application to all kinds of wood building (where the color would be no objection to its being used, such as the back walls of dwellings in the city, out houses, ware-houses, &c., as well as the roofs by lowering the premium of insurance on such buildings as are severed.

of the stomach. I have taken advice of the best Physicians in this city and New York, in London, Paris, Germany, and Italy, followed their prescriptions, and visited the several sulphur and other springs in this country, the watering places of Germany, and electures the Europe, and had found no relief. Since taking the Bitters I have never had a return of the Water-brush, which daily troubled me of late years to a very great degree. My appetite has returned; the extreme flatulence, severe constitution of the bowels, general debility, and sleepless nights unde which I suffered, have entirely left me. Having found so great relief from this most discouraging disorder. I have recommended a trial of your medicine to many of my friends, who are now using it to great advantage. And I cannot refrain from writing to you in its favour and praises for the good you have bestowed upon the community; and trust that what little is in my scope to offer in extending the circulation of your "Oxygenated Bitters," will be done with grateful pleasure at all times.

These Reprints have been in successful operation in this country for twenty years, and their cir culation is constantly on the increase, notwithstanding the competition they encounter from American periodicals. This fact shows clearly the high estimation in which they are held by the intelligent reading public, and sifted a garantee that they are established on a firm busis, and will be continued without interruption.

Although these works are distinguished by the political shades above indicated, yet but a small portion of their contents is devoted to political subjects. It is their diferency character which gives them their chief value, and in that they stand confessedly far above all other journals of their class. Mackwood, still under the masterly guidance of Christopher North, maintains its ancient celebrity, and is, at this time, anasully attractive, from the serial works of Bulwer and other literary notables, written for that magazine, and first appearing in its columns, both in Great Britain and in the United States. Such works as "The Caxtons" and "My New Novel," (both by Bulwer), "My Peninsular Medal," "The Green Hand," and other serials, of which numerous rival editions are issued by the leading publishers in this country, have to be reprinted by those publishers from the pages of Blackwood, after it has been issued by Mesers. Scott and Co., so that Subscribers to the Reprint of that Magazine may always rely on having the earliest reading of these fascinating tales.

To Professor Hollowax,
Sin,—I avail myself of the first opportunity of informing you, that, for a very long period, was afflicted with a dangerous giddiness and frequent awimmings
in the head, attended by loss of appetite, disordered stouach, and generally impaired health. Every means had failed to give me any permanent relief, and at length it became so alarming, that I was really afraid of going about without an attendant. In this melancholy condition, I waited personally upon Mr. Hughes, Chemist, Harlech, for the purpose of consulting him
as to what I had better do; he kindly recommended your Pills, I tried them without delay, and after taking them for a short time I am happy to bear teatmony to their wonderful efficacy. I am now restored to perfect health, and enabled to resume my usual duties. You are at liberty to publish this letter in any way you may think proper.

To Professor Holloway.

Dan Sin—I have much pleasure in handing to you a testimonial of the efficacy of your Medicines. A person in this neighbourhood, with whom I am well acquainted, was affected for a long time with violant spasmodic pains in the stomach and liver, arising from a teoping position, which he was obliged to assume in his business. The spasms were of an alarming character, and frequently left him in a weak and debilitaried condition. At length he heard of the salutary effects of your invaluable Fills, and was induced to give them a trial. The first dose gave him considerable relief, and hy following them up in accordance with your directions, they have acted so wanderfully in cleunsing the liver and stomach, and strengthening the digestive organs, that he has been removed to the enjoyment of good health.
