MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DIS-TEMPER.

Remington "Wetproof" Shotgun Cartridges

Are supplied under four trade marked brands known the world over.

- "NEW CLUB" with black powder loads.
- "REMINGTON"—a moderate priced smokeless cartridge of excellent quality.
- "NITRO CLUB"—known for sportiveness everywhere as a smokeless powder cartridge of superior quality and dependability.
- "ARROW"—the cartridge de luxe with a one-inch brass base and other features making it the highest type.

There are four types or kinds but only one grade—the HIGHEST.

All cartridges loaded at our factory are now being treated with the Remington special exclusive patented "Wetproof" process which prevents damage from rain, dampness, or similar conditions frequently met in the field and deterioration which often results in warm damp climates from storage of ordinary cartridges.

Remington Arms and Ammunition are sold wholesale and retail by the leading hardware firms in St. John's.

THE Phantom Lover.

(By the Author of "A Bachelor Husband.")

"It was a rotten thing to do, but I wanted to help you."

"You did help me . . . and—Micky."

"Darling . . . can I—will you give it back to me?"

"I do—"

"Say it then," he urged gently.

For a moment she did not answer; she was still a little afraid of him; she still felt something of pride and constraint between them; though she knew it was for her to sweep away the last barrier.

She looked up at him, the sensitive colour rushing to her face.

"I love you," she said softly. "Oh, Micky, some one will see—"

But Micky only laughed.

The train was running on to Dover Harbour before Micky realised it. He looked at Esther with pretended dismay in his happy eyes.

"And pray, what am I to do with you, madam? Do you realise that I'm going to Paris?"

"I know—"

She laughed. "I'm going there too—of course, if you'd like to travel in a different train to me."

She was a very different Esther from the pale, frightened-looking girl who had said good-bye to June at Victoria. Her eyes were dancing now, and her face was radiant. Micky regarded her with proud satisfaction.

"You look years younger and prettier already," he said. "And that's after only an hour or two of my wonderful society; so what you'll look like when we've been married for years and years . . ."

He stopped, and a sudden emotion filled his face.

BABY COATES.

"Once Weak and Delicate."

65, Ellerslie Road, Clapham Park, S.W.4.

Dear Sirs—At three months old our baby was weak and delicate, causing us a great deal of anxiety. We were advised to try "Virol," and did so, with the result that now at 11 months of age he is as bonny a baby as any mother could wish to have: he weighs 22 lbs. 2 ozs., is firm and well proportioned. We feel confident that this is due to the regular use of Virol, and should advise all mothers to use it.

I am, yours truly,
E. COATES.

Virol is invaluable for the expectant and nursing mother, because it supplies the children with those vital principles that are destroyed in the sterilising of milk: it is also a tonic and tissue-building food of immense value. Virol babies have firm flesh, strong bones and good colour.

THE Lady of the Night

OR Amelia Makes a Success

CHAPTER II. THE HERO.

She was an extremely handsome girl, with a mass of yellow hair, seeming all the lighter by contrast with her dark eyes; they were not only dark, but sharp and keen-looking; but notwithstanding her beauty, there was something in the face, some expression, which repelled Nora. And she felt that of all the women there she would least like to be seen by this young girl.

Presently she heard the girl say, "There's tea in the drawing-room; let us go in and get some," and the men and women passed into the house again. The young fellow who had been sitting on the rail had disappeared; the coast was now clear, and Nora continued her pursuit of Brindle. The tracks skirted the lawn, then went in the direction of the shrubbery; Nora followed them, and saw the heifer grazing, with the peaceful enjoyment of the successful sinner, in a little clearing ahead of her. She was approaching it cautiously, when some one came out from amongst the shrubs and intercepted her. It was the young man she had been on the terrace.

"Hello!" he said, with surprise and inquiry, "who are you? What are you doing here?"

Nora was silent for a moment, and bit her lips in annoyance. A light cloud had come across the moon, and she was standing in the shadow; but she could see him plainly; saw, with a girl's quick eye, that he was extremely good looking; and, with a girl's quick ear, she knew that his voice was not that of a servant. All in a moment she decided that it was not only a handsome face, but an extremely pleasant and open one; and half-unconsciously she wished that her hair was a rich chestnut like his, and that she could speak as abruptly and masterfully as he had spoken.

"Well?" he inquired, not impatiently, but good-temperedly and with a faint smile.

"I have come after my cow," said Nora; "she has broken and strayed on to your land; she was just in front there a moment ago, but she has moved."

She had drawn her tam-o'-shanter well over her head, the old cape, which might have been a man's or

"What shall we do, love of mine?" he asked tenderly. "Shall we go on, or shall we go back?"

She shook her head.

"I don't mind—either way, I'm afraid you'll have to pay for me," she told him saucily. "June rushed me off so, I forgot my purse—Mr. Rochester got me a ticket, but . . ."

"We'll go on," said Micky hurriedly. The train was almost at a standstill. "You said you hated Paris—but you won't hate it with me. We'll get married as soon as we get there—I'll take you everywhere."

Her eyes fell.

"I haven't any nice clothes—I only brought a small case; I never thought you . . . you . . ." She stopped, stammering.

"Paris is full of clothes," he told her. "We'll stay just long enough to buy what you want, and then we'll go south. Either, you've never seen the south of France in springtime, have you? I'll take you there for our honeymoon."

She drew back a little.

"But, Micky—there's June—what will she say—what will she think?"

"She'll think that you've behaved sensibly—at last!" he answered, audaciously. "June knew she wouldn't see either of us again for some time when we left her at Victoria—June is a most discerning woman."

"She's a dear," said Esther warmly. "I owe all my happiness to her."

Micky pretended to look offended.

"I was under the delusion that you owed it to me," he said with dignity. "To you!" Her face changed wonderfully; she bent her head and kissed the sleeve of his coat.

"I can't talk about what I owe you—it's just—everything!"

Micky drew himself up, a dignified inch.

"I'm beginning to think I'm a very wonderful man, do you know?" he said, addressing some imaginary person.

Driver appeared at the door. He hesitated for just the faintest possible moment when he saw Esther, but his face was as stolid as ever.

Micky rose to the occasion, though he turned rather red.

"Driver," he said, "let me introduce you to my wife—"

Driver touched a respectful forehead; he felt surprised he did not show it.

He took Esther's suit-case down from the rack.

"Was you—was you wanting to send a wire, sir?" he asked stolidly.

Micky looked at the girl beside him. "Send June one from Paris," she said. "I don't know what she'll say."

But June might have been expecting the wire, judging from the calm way in which she received it; she showed it to Rochester as if it were nothing out of the way; she looked over his shoulder as he read it.

"Married in Paris this morning. Love from Mr. and Mrs. Micky."

She laughed and met Rochester's eyes; there seemed to be an inquiry in his. June hesitated a moment, then she nodded.

And, forty-eight hours later Micky and Esther read her reply just as they were leaving for the flower-fields of France—

"Married in London this morning—June and George."

"Some people have no originality," Micky complained in pretended disgust.

"But if they're half as happy as we are," Esther said shyly.

Micky looked scornfully sceptical.

"Oh, well! if you're going to expect impossible . . ." he submitted.

THE END.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Sachem arrived at Halifax from Boston at 11 a.m. Saturday and leaves for this port to-morrow morning.

Schooner "Nevis" sailed from Barbadoes for St. John's on the 2nd inst., loaded with molasses and sugar, consigned to W. A. Munn.

PAINS IN SIDE AND BACK

Caused by Woman's Ills and Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Grafton, Pa.—"I was troubled with inflammation and pains in my sides and back. After doctoring with different doctors and not getting relief, I had almost given up hopes when my sister told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and knowing that she had really been helped by it, I purchased it. I was unable to do my work at that time, but after taking several bottles of the Vegetable Compound I can now do anything about the house or farm that a woman should do. I have a four-months-old baby that is the healthiest and biggest baby for his age that I have ever seen, and I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all the praise for his health."

Mrs. BLAIR L. FISHER, R.D.1, Box 37, Grafton, Pa.

Working early and late—lifting, carrying, and the heaviest of household duties—is it any wonder that it results in backaches and kindred ills. But every woman who suffers as Mrs. Fisher did should profit by her experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

woman's, covered her short skirt, and just showed the long boots.

"I suppose you come from Ryalls?" he said.

"Yes, I come from the Grange," she replied as bluntness and abruptly as she could.

"I will help you get the cow," he said cheerfully.

"Thank you," said Nora. "She's troublesome sometimes—but she's a good heifer."

He walked beside her, and she knew, without looking at him, with the extraordinary faculty which her sex possesses, that he was glancing shyly and curiously at her.

"There it is," he said. "Couldn't one of the men have come after it?"

"No," replied Nora shortly; "they were busy. Besides, I have come myself."

"It's wet and heavy under foot for a girl to be tramping after a cow; and at night, too," he remarked.

"I don't mind it," said Nora. "I am used to it. And don't trouble, please. You'd like to go back and listen to the music."

His face flushed, and he looked at her, not angrily, but rather shamefacedly.

"You saw me on the terrace?" he said in a low voice. "Yes, I was listening to the music; I am fond of it. That lady was singing well. I suppose I ought not to have been there," he added reflectively, and with just the faintest touch of bitterness. "I might have been seen."

"Would they have been very angry?" asked Nora. His voice was as pleasant as his face, and there was something in both that appealed to her, attracted her, she saw that, big as he was, he was only a little older than herself; in fact, of the two, she seemed the elder; for a girl, especially a girl like Nora, is far older than a boy whose years exceed hers by five; in her own eyes she was a grown-up woman, while this big fellow was just a frank and now somewhat bashful boy.

The note of trouble in his voice interested her, and aroused her sympathy.

"I don't know why you should mind being seen," she said, with a little tuss of her chin. "If I were a boy—man—I would not have minded sitting there and listening to the music. Who'd object? You weren't doing any harm. And if any one objected, I'd tell them what I thought of it."

"I believe you would," he said, with a laugh, looking down at her small, straight figure with amusement and a touch of the man's admiration of woman's audacity.

"I thought you were one of the people," said Nora, with the casualness with which a girl masks her curiosity.

"The lad brushed against his blushes were as ready as, more ready, perhaps, than a girl's."

"You did?" he said. "Well, I am, in a sense, I am Sir Joseph's cousin, or something of the sort."

He made the announcement quite quietly, without any pride, with a note of gravity strange in so young a lad. They had come up to Brindle by now, and Nora covered her surprise by scolding the heifer and driving her forward.

There was a little awkward silence; then, as if she could not help it, Nora asked—

"Then, why were you sitting there by yourself? Why weren't you with the others, playing and singing, and dancing? They're dancing now; that's a waltz tune."

"Ah, why aren't I?" he said.

"That's rather a long story. I am Sir Joseph's relative, but I am not one of the family, so to put it. My father—but why should I bother you with my affairs?"

"You need not, if you don't like, of course," said Nora; "and I am sorry I asked the question. I am not curious."

Oh, Nora!

"Oh, that's all right," he said good-naturedly. "Seeing me there, on the terrace, it was natural enough for you to ask. It's just this way. My father—came to grief; never mind what it was about. He's dead. There wasn't any money; I couldn't get anything to do. Sir Joseph helped about it—about the trouble, I mean—and he offered me a place down here. He's breeding horses, and I am looking after them. I'm just a kind of stable hand; though I haven't anything to do with the house stables, and only manage my own. I know what you are thinking; that I am rather young for a berth like that."

"Yes, I was thinking that," said Nora.

"I have been used to horses all my life," he said. "We lived abroad, in Australia, and bred them ourselves. Oh, I can manage all right," he added, with a quiet confidence, which he displayed for the first time.

"Yes, I am sure you could," said Nora. "But I wonder—"

She paused, and he waited, then said—

"Why don't you go on? What is it you wonder?"

"Well," said Nora, "I am surprised that Sir Joseph should like to have a relation at the Hall; and treat him like a—"

"Servant!" he said, without any show of resentment. "Yes, I don't suppose he likes it; but then nobody knows—excepting you."

BELGIUM APPROVES.
BRUSSELS, May 8. The Cabinet yesterday approved the London reparations decision and ordered the mobilization of one class. The Socialist Minister of Justice voted against approving the decision and two other Socialist Ministers abstained from voting. A Cabinet crisis is said to be due before the occupation of Ruhr, but may be averted if Germany gives in.

TAMBOV REVOLT QUELLED.
RIGA, May 8. Moscow despatches to-day announce the quelling of the revolutionary movement in the Province of Tambov, led by General Antonoff, former Bolshevik commander, which has been reported in progress for almost two months past. The revolt was organized on lines similar to those of the Kronstadt revolt in the middle of March.

MURDER AND REPRISALS.
CORK, May 8. Constable Sterland was shot and killed this evening as he left his hotel in civilian clothes. Shooting of two former soldiers and a woman Saturday night led to reprisals when the Crown forces went through the streets and looted shops and broke windows.

COMMUNITY OF INTEREST.
LONDON, May 8. Eamonn De Valera, Irish Republican leader, writing in the Irish Independent of Dublin to-day says, "we shall never cease to maintain there is a community of interest between our countrymen of the Northeastern corner of Ireland and our people of the South and West."

KENTUCKY RACES.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 8. "Behave Yourself," Kentucky bred three year old, won the Kentucky Derby this afternoon, winning for her owner, E. R. Bradley, of Lexington, $38,000. Blackservant, second, won another $10,000 for Bradley. Sixty thousand people saw "Behave Yourself" win and beat his stablemate by a neck at Churchill Downs.

CRAIG ASKS DIRECT DEALING.
BELFAST, May 8. Sir James Craig, premier designate of Ulster, whose recent conference with Eamonn De Valera is still the subject of much comment, said, in speaking at Lisburne, yesterday, that he made it plain to the South and West of Ireland that it was not with amateur peace makers and meddlers in Irish affairs they had to deal, but with the leaders of the people of Ulster, if there were to be peace negotiations.

NATIONALIST TO TAKE NO PART.
DUBLIN, May 8. John Dillon, Chairman of the Nationalist Party, will publish a letter to-morrow saying he has advised his friends to take no part in the Southern Elections, in view of possible difficulties between Sinn Fein and Nationalist.

SUNDAY IN IRELAND.
DUBLIN, May 8. Week-end disturbances in Ireland included the killing of two constables and the wounding of two sergeants, besides a stampede of the Jewish congregation in Dublin, in which several persons were wounded. The stampede was caused by firing outside the Church. Dublin Castle reported unsuccessful attacks on barracks at Dublin and Gomburn.

POLISH GOVERNMENT DEPLORES INSURRECTION.

WARSAW, May 8. In face of increasing clashes between insurgents and Germans, the Polish Government has decided upon a vigorous plan of action in an attempt to settle the insurrection, initiated by Adelbert Korfanty, former Plebiscite Commissioner in the Upper Silesia province, with the object of joining the industrial section of Upper Silesia to Poland. The Polish Cabinet has issued a statement to the effect that while the ministry thoroughly understood patriotic motive which led to the outbreak, the Government again disapproved of the insurrection and considered it a vain move. One of the problems the Government is compelled to face is, relative to efforts of the Poles to go to the assistance of the insurgents. Despatches received to-day report that twenty thousand armed workmen have attempted to cross the frontier from East Silesia. Pitched encounters between insurgents and Germans have occurred in the Rybnik area where, according to reports, more than one hundred and fifty Poles and even more Germans were killed. In a protracted fight for the possession of the important foundry centre more than thirty Poles were killed. Despite the efforts of the Government to soothe public opinion, repeated labor demonstrations have taken place in Warsaw. Several have occurred before the British and Italian Legations, the workmen showing resentment.

RORDON IN DIFFICULTIES.
MONTREAL, May 8. In a letter from the Committee of the Directorate of the Rordon Company, sent to shareholders on Saturday, the principal item is the statement, "This Committee reports the financial position of your Company is serious, and unless further working capital can be secured immediately your Company will be unable to continue business." The balance sheet of Rordon for end of March shows a deficit of working capacity of over three million. It is proposed to issue five million ten year eight per cent. mortgage and collateral trust bonds.

THE COAL SITUATION.
LONDON, May 8. Efforts will be made this week by outside influence to secure a renewal of negotiations for the settlement of the miners strike, it was indicated here to-day, but hope among interested parties seems remote until after the Whitsuntide holidays. There is talk among the Executive of the Miners' Federation of returning to London before the end of the week to compare notes of information they have picked up on visits to the mining districts, and to consider the suggestion that they abandon their demand for a national pool, which has been the stumbling block in the negotiations in favor of some scheme that will answer the same purpose. Meanwhile the position of the country's industries and public utilities is going from bad to worse. Railways, street car and underground transportation systems have announced drastic reduction of services. Even newspapers are affected, some of the larger London dailies going to press at ten o'clock at night to conserve coal and light and enable employees to leave for home before transportation stops for the night.

WILL HANDLE IRISH COAL.
DUBLIN, May 8. Irish and British Railwaymen and Transport workers have decided to permit handling of foreign coal shipped direct to Irish ports and intended for Irish purposes only.

Moderate Prohibition.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me space in your esteemed paper to make a few remarks in reference to the Moderate Prohibition Act, as I haven't heard of any move made by the Government of what they intend doing in the matter, neither by the Commission sitting on it. Myself being one of the committee, who worked hard for the Act, canvassing Trinity Bay, the district in which I was born, I know the majority of the people in that bay, and I have in my possession a petition signed by upwards of 2,000 voters in favor of the Act, and is their call to be in vain. I may say that upwards of 20,000 voters in the island signed petitions asking the Government to do something in this matter in answer to their request and amend the Prohibition Act; still they are in ignorance of what the Government intend doing. As regards the Prohibition Act the people supported it and thought they were doing right, but to their grief it was the greatest curse that ever befell any country. It has done ten times more harm than good. We are badly in need of revenue to-day as a result of this so-called prohibition. The people want the Act changed; they know now that they were tricked into voting as they did. They now see that a certain few can do as they like and break the law that they helped make; if they had known what would happen they never would have voted for it. This is a matter that concerns the Government and Opposition; and it is their duty to fight it on the floors of the Assembly; that's what the people want. I would respectfully ask the Hon. W. Halfyard if the Government intend moving in the matter, he being the senior representative for Trinity Bay, and I myself holding quite a number of signatures of his supporters in my possession who is wanting something done for them. I would suggest to the three members for Trinity not to hold it over until the next general election; if they do some of them are very likely to lose their positions. It is about time the people should know what is going to be done. As regards the masses, they are good for the masses, but I am sorry to say there is a vast difference between the two. It's the trouble of the world to-day that the poor man don't seem to get his just rights. All we see day after day is trouble and dissatisfaction among the people. There is something wrong with the world generally, and instead of it getting better it is quite the opposite. And it is all because the people never got what is theirs and that is Equal Rights. What God intended for every man to have.

I trust that some man or men will rise up in our midst and do the right thing for the people; but we haven't struck that man or men yet. And, Sir, turning to the point again. I say that a glass of spirits if used moderately, is not the worst curse that this country is afflicted with to-day. A man may use it in lots of ways; the doctors have to use it in many cases; it was ordained to be used aright like every other thing a human being partakes of, and it is up to the individual to use or abuse it; and I think, Sir you will always have a dissatisfied people so long as they are deprived of their just rights. Now I would say to the Government do something in the matter and let the people know about it before the present session closes. As it now stands the present Prohibition Act is a disgrace to any country.

Mr. Editor, I could write quite a lot on this subject as I understand the temper of the people, especially those of the district of Trinity district, and know what they want as regards the Act of which this letter forms the main topic. I would also ask the Commission, who are sitting on this matter to let the public know if they are doing or intend doing anything. Hoping that something will be done by the Government, and thanking you, Mr. Editor for space in your valuable paper, I remain

Yours respectfully,
WILLIAM FRENCH,

"At Forty-Five"

"YES, at my age I suppose I should expect a change in my condition. But I am so nervous and irritable, so easily excited and worried, that I cannot understand what is wrong."

"I know just how you feel, my dear, for I have gone through exactly what you are experiencing now."

"But you are not nervous."

"No, not now, but I was in a far worse condition than you are, when a friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I need not tell you more, for you know how well I have been for the last few years."

Mrs. H. Alcorn, 23 Gerald St., Charlottetown, P. E. I., writes: "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food was recommended to me by an aunt who used it while passing through the change of life and was completely built up by its use. From my experience as a wife and mother I find that the majority of users are women, especially women passing through the change of life; next by young mothers to regain strength after baby comes, and also by mothers for their young daughters entering their womanhood. While it is good for all classes of humanity, I am sure it is especially so for women, as they seem to be troubled most by nervous diseases."

My Pa says when he was in school He got a hundred as a rule, An' grammar was his knee, Becoz he paid attention To his teacher an' he learned the way To write good English an' to say The proper things, an' I should be As good a boy in school as he. But once I asked him could he give Me help with the infinitive. He scratched his head and said: "Great Scott!"

My Pa says when he was a boy Arithmetic was just a toy. He learned his tables mighty fast An' every term he always passed. An' had good marks, an' teachers said: "That youngster surely has a head!" But just the same I notice now Most every time I ask him how To find the common multiple. He says, "That's most unusual! Once I'd have told you on the spot. But somehow, sonny, I've forgot." I'm tellin' you just what is what. My Pa's forgot an' awful lot!

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

123 THE R...

The Bell Island Agreement.

The Bell Island arrangement seems to be the chief subject of attention just now, and public comment, guided by the opinions of the city papers, is general and divided. This matter should have been given more public consideration before the compact was made, but as to first and argue afterwards seems to be the reasoning and procedure followed by the people in general outside and independent of the Government, the people have not given any expression of their opinion until the deal has been closed, and then find fault. The Bell Island iron deposits are such that a large part of our population would and should find all the employment needed—with the mining of the ore and the smelting of it. The Companies operating the deposit have untold backing, sufficient and more to put in a $25,000,000 extra smelting plant in Sydney, and still the tax of 25 cents a ton export duty is held to be too great. Frankly, the granting of a free export to foreign countries is objectionable on Imperialistic grounds, and while the preference should be given to British enterprises and customers, those who need ore for their industries, we should look to ourselves first. Give every concession possible and reasonable to encourage the smelting of the ore in this country, and to that end tax all export of ore to the highest figure. The Companies need the ore of Bell Island to set going the industries of Sydney and to carry on their work profitably, and we want the wealth of the Island to be used so that the people and the country will receive the benefit to the fullest extent. Tax all the ore, give concessions to the first company to start smelting in the country so we shall receive employment and derive some lasting benefit from one of our greatest resources.—Hr. Grace Standard.

The Labor Situation.

So far no agreement has been reached between employers and employees in connection with the L.S.P.U. strike. The Union Executive met on Saturday afternoon to discuss the sixteen proposals made by the employers as already reported in the Telegram. The matter was fully discussed by the Union Executive, and it was decided to meet the employers again for a further discussion with a view to reaching a settlement. This meeting took place at the Board of Trade Rooms at 10 a.m. to-day. In the meanwhile, whilst the strike is on, the various Water St. firms have their office staffs and other permanent employees at work on their wharves, packing fish and loading and discharging cargoes. It is reported that efforts were made to get men up by boat from Torbay to unload as Resolved which arrived yesterday afternoon to Harvey & Co. from New York. It is further stated that some fishermen went down to the settlement in motor cars to dissuade any trouble coming here for that purpose. Meanwhile the ship is waiting in port with a cargo of perishable goods which may have to be unloaded by the office staff. If there is any delay, however, the Red Cross agents at New York have ordered that the ship be immediately sent back to that port with her inward cargo on board. It is not thought, however, that this step will be necessary.

Personal.

Mr. R. A. Parsons, formerly of Bay Roberts, and brother of Mr. Ralph Parsons, Manager for the Hudson's Bay Company in this city has just graduated B.C.L. with honors at McGill University, Montreal. The Telegram extends congratulations and felicitations to this latest recruit in law.

Dr. Wm. Grant, who has been practicing his profession at Port aux Basques for the past 28 years, was a passenger by the Kyle to north Sydney recently. The genial doctor, who was accompanied by Mrs. Grant, has given up his practice in Port aux Basques and intends to retire from the worries of his profession. He intends to make his future home in Wolfville, N.S., in the land of Evangeline. His many friends in St. John's, will be pleased to know that Mr. F. Wadden, the popular Druggist of the city, who has been attending a Retail Convention of over 150 Canadian Stock Holders in the United Drug Company and at Toronto during the last month, has been transferred to the Louis K. Liggett Co., New York, and is now assistant manager of one of the stores in New York. Mr. Wadden will return to St. John's during the summer in the interest of the United Drug Co., for whom he was salesman and general agent in Newfoundland since the Retail goods were introduced.

Obituary.

There passed peacefully away, at Greenspond, May 6th, after a long and painful illness, Julia Osmond, beloved wife of Robert Burry. Mrs. Burry was highly respected amongst all who knew her, and though ailing for over three years, she bore her sufferings with fortitude. Her daughter Gertrude was constantly at her side and did all she could to alleviate her sufferings. Left to mourn their sad loss of a kind wife and loving mother are husband, 5 sons, 5 daughters, 3 sisters, 2 brothers.

She is gone but not forgotten. Never shall her memory fade. Around the grave where she is laid.

But dear mother we would not call you back
To this world to suffer any more;
For we know that you are safe,
Over on the other shore.

But some day we hope to meet you,
At your heavenly home above;
Where no parting never enters,
Where no tears shall ever flow.
—Inserted by her daughter Alice.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION MEETS.

A meeting was held yesterday morning in their Armoury by the C. C. C. Athletic Association when matters in connection with the coming season were arranged. The Cadets are entering competitors in various sporting events during the summer and have quite a lot of new material to help make up their teams. It was unanimously decided that every competitor representing the C.C.C. must belong to some branch of that body and at a further meeting which will be held to-morrow evening all entries will be made. The following were elected as football officers for the coming season:—

Captain.—Lt. A. Galgay.
Vice Capt.—W. Clare.
Secretary.—Lt. T. Christopher.
League Delegate.—Lt. J. M. Spearna.

Cissy says "the boys here are so slow they make New Year's calls on the fourth of July. I have absolutely no fun whatever; no dancing, no theatre." Now then, you young chaps, don't let YOUR sweetheart say that about you. She wants to see "What Happened to Jones", so it's up to you to get the tickets at the Royal Stationery Co. TO-DAY. Remember, too, it's for the Orphans—may it Strikes at St. John's.

(Harbor Grace Standard)

On Monday morning last, the Longshoremen and the Typographical Unions went on strike. The former body received notice from the Employers' Association that the wages of the Longshoremen would be reduced to 50 cents an hour. This the Union declined to accept, and on Monday morning stopped work. Work is as usual on some premises where the old wages are still being paid. The action of the Union in refusing the offer may be condemned on first thought, but there is the other side to be taken into consideration. The Longshoremen should accept a reduction in their pay according to the general decline of the price of the necessities of life. It would be unfair to make a heavy cut on one side while the prices decline only by small stages. Strikes do no good and in most cases, the strikers suffer, not only themselves but their dependents as well. High rates and high prices demand high rates of pay for the men who labor hard to secure the wherewithal to keep themselves and their families. The margin is not greater now between prices for necessities and for labor than it was before the war. The whole question is one of the heroisms of the extreme conditions existing since 1914. It is hoped that matters between the Union and the employers will be amicably settled very shortly.

The Typographical demanded a 44 hour week instead of a 48 hour one with the rates of pay to remain the same. This proposition really means an increase of nine cents on every dollar paid in wages and the newspapers declined to accept the demand, hence the strike. The Telegram which is a Non-Union shop was not affected while the remainder of the Daily papers were. The Daily News issued all through, while the Advocate and Daily Star published on Wednesday though in reduced form. It looks as if the papers will fight the Union and at present both strikes are still in force.

Grand Card Party Supper and Dance

C. C. C. HALL.

A number of young lady friends of the C.C.C. Band are holding a Big Card Party, Supper and Dance in the C.C.C. Hall on Wednesday next, May 11th, at 8 o'clock, proceeds of which will go towards wiping off the debt for the new alterations made in the Hall last year, and no doubt there will be a large attendance, as these energetic ladies have been working hard during the past two weeks selling tickets, and making arrangements for the Supper, etc.

Card Party.—The Card Party starts at 8 o'clock sharp, in order that the Dance may start at 9.45. The prices Lady's and Gentlemen, two Five Dollar Gold Coins. We would therefore ask all who are taking part in the Card Party to be on time at 8 o'clock sharp.

Dance.—The Dance begins at 9.45 for which there will be the regular 14-Dance Programme including Lancers, Waltz-Lancers, One Steps, Fox Trots and Waltzes. The C.C.C. full Band will be in attendance, and no doubt they will be at their best on this occasion. They have specially prepared all new dance music as will be seen from the following list: "Alice Blue Gown" Waltz; "Irene" One-Step; "Feather Your Nest" Fox Trot; "Whispering," "Humming," "Roses of Memory," Waltz; "Broadway Rose," One Step; "Pekin," Fox Trot; "Daddy You've Been a Mother to Me," "My Home Town is a One Horse Town."

The floor will be looked after by Messrs. Garrett Brownrigg, Ed. Brophy, P. F. Fearn, E. Spry and T. Ryan. Therefore do not miss the biggest and best Card Party, Supper and Dance for the year.

Literary Prizes.

Mr. Cutcliffe Hynes says that he was working hard at writing for five or six years before he made the barest living. Edgar Jepson has confessed that his first two books brought him the princely sum of $2 in 6d. Mr. John Cranham states that his first year's literary work brought him about $25.

On the other hand, Tennyson for many years before his death drew a steady £10,000 per annum from his publishers; Scott got £3,000 down for his worst poem "Rokeby" and Moore got the same price for "Lalla Rookh," another work which few read to-day.

Victor Hugo got £10,000 for "Les Miserables," a work made familiar to thousands lately on the film. Lamartine got £20,000 for his history, and Macaulay the selfsame sum for his. Zola made £60,000 out of eleven novels, and Dumas per lived like a prince on his income.

Lord Morley is said to have received a cheque for £10,000 for his "Life of Gladstone," Winston Churchill £3,000 for the biography of his father. Marie Corelli got £ 8,500 for the "Master Christian," and even George Eliot got £10,000 for "Romola."

Yet Daudet put all these prices to the blush by netting £40,000 for "Sapho."

But that witty man, James Smith, of "Rejected Addresses" fame, takes the biscuit, with the enormous figure of £75 per line.

One evening at dinner he met Richard Strachan, the King's printer, who, although badly crippled with gout, conversed so brilliantly that Smith sent him the following tribute:

"Your lower limbs seemed far from stout
When last I saw you walk;
The cause I presently found out
When you began to talk.
The power that props the body's strength
In due proportion spread,
In you mounts upwards, and the strength
All settles in the head."

On receiving this, Strachan added a codicil to his will, leaving the author £3,000.

Coakerism— Past and Present.

(By Historicus.)

ARTICLE III.

It is unfortunate for Newfoundland that her present rulers choose the reconstruction period immediately after the Great War as the proper time to experiment with the old established industry—the codfishery. The industry is as old as the country itself. Three-fourths of the people depend entirely upon it for their existence. Newfoundland is only a competitor in the salt fish markets of the world and any attempt on her part to control the foreign fish markets in the way of prices and sales, would be sheer madness. The law of supply and demand is inexorable and must govern the fish markets, notwithstanding the statement of a Minister of the Crown upholding the theories of Coakerism to the contrary. The Fish Regulations may be called a growth of Coakerism. The idea of regulating the price and sale of salt codfish did not originate with Hawes, Job or Barr or any other rotary of the Fish Regulations. These only grasped at the idea to further their own financial schemes. They are merely the fulfillment of one of the threats made by Mr. Coaker in 1921 against the Water Street fish buyers when he found he could not control the policy of their business. It was embraced in his Port Union scheme. This fact is apparent to all who have carefully followed the growth of Coakerism in the North.

The injury, however, which it has caused the country is now plain to all, and is only surpassed by the social incompetence and consummate egotism of the man who brought them about. They were not the outcome of a spontaneous attempt on the part of Coaker to regulate the supply of salt codfish to the various European markets after the Armistice, but the calculated growth of years. Once seized the power which he now has, the Fish Regulations would have come—war or no war. Let there be no mistaking this point. It was one of the theories of Coakerism which, like Communism, once given the power, had to come and be exploited by its own rotaries. Some well meaning people even among Opposition members of Parliament, give Mr. Coaker credit for "good intentions" in introducing the Fish Regulations. This is mere silly sentiment and no one knows the truth of this better than Mr. Coaker himself. Had it been possible to describe to him two years ago the essential features of present conditions as direct results of his fishery regulations, he would still have experimented with them. Such is the disposition of the man as he has presented himself to us in his public life and the manner in which he has disclosed the events and influences that have directly and immediately created the conditions under which we now exist. The whole country to-day literally groans under the laws enacted through the menace of Coakerism, and the proud boast that freedom can always be found under the folds of the British flag no longer exists in Newfoundland. Ministers of the Crown have committed flagrant deeds against the public weal, which had they been committed to us in his public life and the manner in which he has disclosed the events and influences that have directly and immediately created the conditions under which we now exist. The whole country to-day literally groans under the laws enacted through the menace of Coakerism, and the proud boast that freedom can always be found under the folds of the British flag no longer exists in Newfoundland. Ministers of the Crown have committed flagrant deeds against the public weal, which had they been committed to us in his public life and the manner in which he has disclosed the events and influences that have directly and immediately created the conditions under which we now exist.

Such is the present state of affairs to-day in Newfoundland attributable mainly to the menace of Coakerism. But let us thank God and take fresh courage for there is one gleam of sunshine appearing through the gloom and that is the awakening of the North. Thousands of fishermen North of Bacallien who were once followers of the Coaker theories, have now declared their independence of mind and thought, and but for the money which a few thousand have invested in the various Coaker Companies, the F.P.U. would not hold together twenty-four hours. The theories of Coakerism have been weighed in the balance and found wanting. They have engendered strife and ill-feeling in small communities where harmony and goodwill one time prevailed; they have shattered confidence which existed between merchant and fishermen to the detriment of both; they have sown the seeds of political debauchery and corruption, which will take years to eradicate from our system of government, and they have brought about appalling destitution and distress throughout the length and breadth of the land.

The word "Ichabod" is written across the pages of this man's life. He has proved himself a failure in everything he has undertaken. The Government in which he is the dominant factor do not know how to deliberate or dare not if they did know. They are competent only to be "architects of ruin" and to carry out a policy of devastation. Taught by the lessons of the past, and schine under the controlling power of a divine and gracious purpose, let us "carry on," and have full confidence that earnest efforts in the paths of Justice, right and truth shall bring us yet to a better and brighter future.

Outwitting the Customs.

War has evidently sharpened the wits of the Frenchmen in and around Paris who make a practice of bringing produce of various kinds through the city gates. As the price of necessities, especially oil and wine, steadily rose in Paris, some of the drivers began to scratch their heads and wonder if they couldn't devise some innocent-looking receptacles that they might take through the city gates every day right under the very eyes of the inspectors and yet not be caught in the act of smuggling taxable goods.

Accordingly they began to exercise all of their inventive genius, and presently they had evolved many queer receptacles that varied in capacity from a few quarts to several gallons. The men at the octroi stations (writes George F. Paul in the "Scientific American") were deceived for several weeks by the boldest of them. He was always very cordial with the officials, and sought to win their good will by giving them tobacco and other presents from time to time. Presently rumors reached them that he was smuggling oil into the city every day. This put them on the alert, with the result that the following day when he appeared as usual with his innocent-looking load of lumber, they began to tear it all apart. In vain did he protest that he was late even then and, that he simply had to hurry on. This only made them the more determined to go through the whole load. Presently they came to five boards that were nailed together in a manner that aroused their suspicions, and on examining them closely they found that the top board simply covered an opening through which a tin receptacle nearly five feet long could be passed to the snug place of concealment hollowed out for it. The driver, who had been very indignant and blustering up to this point, became very meek and penitent when several gallons of smuggled oil were confiscated. While this examination was in progress, one of the police noticed that the horses were remarkably large and peculiar collars. He ordered the driver to remove the collars from the horses' necks and when this was done it was discovered that the collars were hollow and so fitted up that they could hold oil. Needless to say the career of this particular man as a smuggler ended that day.

This experience seemed to arouse the inspectors at all of the city gates. They almost turned wagons and carts upside down in their efforts to detect any smuggling. One of their first hauls was a magnificent funeral wreath that seemed uncommonly heavy. When some of the flowers were removed and a tap unscrewed, three jugs were filled with the wine that was being smuggled through. Some abnormally large cabbage heads were examined closely; each contained nearly a quart of wine in a flat basket hidden in the heart of the cabbage. Rolls of cloth also aroused the suspicions of the inspectors. These rolls were found to have genuine cloth at the ends so as to present the proper appearance, but in the middle was a handy receptacle capable of containing several bottles of wine or oil. Even the cushions on which the drivers sat were pressed into the smuggling service. Of course, they were made hollow, and filled with flat tanks that were not comfortable, but the drivers did not care, so long as these cushions proved money-makers. —Glasgow Herald.

What Will Become of Europe's Currency?

It is popularly supposed that all one has to do is to purchase some of Europe's depreciated paper currency, put it away until the political situation clears a bit, and then sell at a handsome profit. However, no less a person than John Maynard Keynes, who acted as representative of the British Treasury at the Peace Conference and author of "Economic Consequences of Peace," dismisses the mind of any rosy prospect. He makes the almost startling statement that the revival of prosperity does not mean an appreciation of paper currency in those countries where the issues have reached or are likely to reach a low market value. The speculator in German marks or Austrian crowns bases his hopes on the industry and skill of the German and Austrian workmen, which he feels must enable them to pull through in the long run. Mr. Keynes is of the opinion that such reasoning is fallacious if by it the conclusion is reached that certain pieces of paper called bank notes must under these circumstances be more valuable than they are at present. The amount of it is these paper issues are all out of proportion to the wealth of the nations and their ability to pay. Germany now has a national debt of 350 billions in paper marks, and it is likely to be more before it is less. This debt is, roughly, reckoning the mark at par, 87 billion dollars. So it is that Mr. Keynes figures out that the only thing for Germany to do is to burn up this currency, charge it to profit and loss and start over again.

After all we can only judge these matters by examples in the past history of the world. In the case of the money of the French revolution, the depreciated notes were simply swept away, and their place taken by a new currency of gold. The contrary was that of the case of the American greenbacks after the Civil War, which eventually recovered to their gold parity. But in this case the maximum degree of depreciation was moderate, about 60 per cent of par. And besides the United States had a great new country, abounding in natural wealth, to lean upon during the period of reconstruction and resuscitation.

able to place their purchase in a glass case and look upon it as a curiosity. Worthless but interesting—Saturday Night.

"Laugh, or the 'Blues' Will Have You."

I understand that a local troupe under the direction of Major J. J. O'Grady are preparing a playlet at the latter part of the week in St. Joseph's Hall, Holytown. The title of the play is "All Tangled Up" and I can assure those who attend that the humor and positive fun, nothing of the kind has seldom or ever been presented here before. My chief reason for writing this is that I have seen this humorous piece in Canada about five years ago, and in one of the theatres in Quebec the show was fully patronized for twelve nights. From the beginning of the play to the last word of the dialogue the audience are in fits of laughter, there is not one dull moment in the whole performance. Wit and humor abound in the placing of the article, and the audience will be so enthusiastic that they

Wage Comparison Over a Period of Years

The Canadian Department of Labor has lately been publishing some illuminating documents in respect to wages, with comparisons over a period of years. These tables are divided into groups, the different classes of the same trade being computed as one. For instance, the building trade is composed of seven classes, the metal trade five classes, the printing trade two classes, the street railways six classes, and the steam railways six classes, or twenty-one classes in all. Using the wage scales in force in 1913 as a basis from which to calculate it is found that the wage increase in the building trades (hourly rates) amounts to eighty per cent, over the increase covering the same period, 1913 to 1920, was one hundred and nine per cent, the printing trades eighty-four per cent, street railways employees ninety-four per cent, steam railways eight-six per cent. In the latter case no account is taken of the overtime charge of which the railway companies complain so seriously, and which is paid for at the rates of one and one-half times the regular scale on all work over eight hours.

In the factory group the average is obtained by bulking seventy-two "samples," and the result shows an increase in wages of one hundred and sixteen per cent, comparing 1913 with 1920, while the common labor group shows a wage increase of one hundred and fifteen per cent. over the same period of time.

As before stated, these figures are in all cases comparisons between the years 1913 and 1920. When one goes back a still further period, the facts revealed are even more startling. Comparing the year 1901 with 1920, it is found that in the building trades the increase in wages has been threefold; in the metal trades a trifle more than threefold, while common labor seems to have fared equally well.

In other words, everything else being equal, it is self-evident that a carload built in 1901 at a cost of $10,000, would cost $30,000 to construct to-day.

High costs all along the line on this continent are the cause of some curious depressions. For instance, California's lemon crop has no market, aside from the comparatively small local sale, the reason being that this fruit cannot with advantage be shipped East, owing to excessive costs, railway rates, etc., for in the East the California lemon comes in competition with the lemons shipped from Southern Europe, the ocean freight rates having come to smash, owing to stagnation of trade.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON GETTING ALONG WITH CHILDREN.

"Grown-ups and children never were meant to live together."

So says a mother of my acquaintance.

"Of course," she went on, "I don't mean a mother and her own children. That's different. Though I have seen some mothers that really didn't know how to live with their own children. But most mothers and some fathers can manage fairly comfortably. What I mean is unconnected grown-ups and children. Put them together and unless the grown-ups have the rare gift of understanding children you are sure to have trouble."

"You ought to know," I admitted. She is a person who has a large family of relatives and in-laws who are constantly visiting her.

"Hah! I," she acknowledged with a smile.

"You might tell me some of the chief difficulties," I suggested.

Children Never Know When to Stop.

"Well, for one thing," she said, "grown-ups never have any sense about playing with children. They will romp with them a while, get them all high and excited, and then when they themselves are tired they will want to stop. And when the children aren't ready to stop (did you ever see a child that was?) and try to keep on, they get cranky. I can't tell you how often those romps end in trouble and criticism."

"Then here's another thing grown-

THE SLEUTH.

In the best detective fiction there's a superman, a n. a. sublimine, who, with little fuss or friction, follows up the threads of crime. When the city cops are baffled, comes old Sherlock to the place, leads the guilty to the scaffold, and remarks, "A simple case!" Oh, the cops are represented as a bone-head bunch of yaks, men whose domes could not be dented with a cleaver or an ax. But the cops do things surprising, putting guilty cents in jail. Though they get no advertising in the Sherlock kind of tales. Crimes of mystery, unending shock the virtuous and true, and we see the fly cops wending, following some feeble clue; and no Watson with them capers till their weary quest is done, writing up for books and papers stories of the triumphs won. By biographers forsaken, sleuths go forth to earn their pay, and they oft bring home the bacon in their drab, official way. Not by making brilliant dashes through deduction's puzzling maze, not by analyzing, as they do they pinch the erring jays. Just by stern and patient plodding, just by using honest brains, they put down the base marauding of the sinful jakes and janes.

Meeting on War Memorial.

A public meeting at which His Excellency the Governor will preside will be held in the Casino Theatre on Wednesday, May 25th, when the matter of the proposed War Memorial will be discussed. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

Minard's Eminent Cures Diphtheria.

Produce and Provisions.

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)

Codfish.—The total shipped this week was 17,000 qtls., as follows, from St. John's 9,038 quintals and from the outports 8,532. The schr. Armistead loaded at St. John's by Barle & Sons took 3,519 quintals for Alicante; James Baird, Ltd., took 5,542 qtls for Pernambuco. From Outports, the John Llewellyn took 4,500 qtls from Harvey & Co. at Beloram for Lazo & Co., Seville, and the schr. Vogue took 4,082 qtls. from Wareham & Co., Hr. Buffet for Bahia.

Cod Oil.—The demand is poor in Montreal, Boston and New York, and the St. John's price has declined in consequence. There was none shipped this week. The prospective price for new season's oil will likely be back to pre-war levels from $80 to $90 per ton, judging from the present indications. As there will be none of this oil available before July, it is likely that most of the 1920 stocks will be cleaned out by that time, and the limited stocks held may strengthen the price abroad in the meantime.

Cod Liver Oil.—The demand is slow and the price in the local and foreign market is down below pre-war levels. There were no outward shipments this week. Manufacturers must be prepared for low priced oil the coming season, as compared with the past six years, and will have to govern themselves accordingly in the purchasing of livers at a basis of well under a dollar a gallon for refined oil. The superiority of our product, it is hoped, will be carefully maintained as Norway is now in full competition.

Lobsters.—The price for new season's canned Lobsters has been fixed by large packers in the United States at $4.00 per dozen for one pound tins, $3.00 for halves, and $1.80 for quarters. It is to be noted, however, that one pound Lobsters have lately declined in Montreal sixty cents a doz., and fifty cents on quarter pound tins. The decline on old pack (1920) is naturally to be expected, now that the new 1921 pack will soon be coming into the market. The above quotation of $6.00 per dozen means $24.00 for our Newfoundland cans.

Pork.—The market continues dull and weak with the lowest prices of the last five years being quoted. There is no confidence, however, that the present prices are at the bottom and will hold, consequently, still lower prices are anticipated. The decline in all live stock is persistent, due to an accumulation of hogs and cattle, largely caused by falling off in exports to Europe, due to the unsettled labor market and particularly the coal strike in England. Ham Butt is quoted here $40.00, Mess and Fat Back $31.00, Family $35.00. Imports short by 5,621 barrels.

Beef.—The market is influenced by the same conditions that governed the Pork situation. Prices are declining still in sympathy with other live stock products. Our total imports are 1,000 barrels short of last year. The present low price of meat is a favorable factor in the local situation, and will help the fishermen to solve the supplies problem during the next few weeks. The decline from the price that prevailed a year ago is about 40 per cent., while Pork shows a decline of 100 per cent., or half the price of last year. The local quotations of beef to-day are: Libby's Special Family $35, Boneless $28.00, Plate $22.00.

Flour.—In the early part of this week flour declined as low as $12.00 wholesale in the local market. The general quotation, however, for small lots was $13. While everyone was looking for a continuance of the gradual decline going since New Year, suddenly on Thursday a report came in from Montreal that flour had advanced $1.00 a barrel. Some dealers here believe that this is one of those temporary furies in the market, which so often arrests a steady downward tendency, and that the market will go back again in a few days and

Results Proved a Big Surprise to Sherbrooke Man

Robichand Tells Of Wife's Wonderful Improvement Since Taking Tanlac.

"Tanlac has done my wife so much good that I feel it my duty to give a statement of the facts, so that others suffering like she did may know what to do for their troubles," said Napoleon Robichand, 978 Gillespie St., Sherbrooke, P.Q., recently.

"At the time she began taking it she was in a terribly run down condition, had no appetite, and at times even the smell of food cooking would nauseate her. Everything she ate hurt her, and after meals she bloated so until she could hardly breathe. She complained of sharp pains across the small of her back, which were so bad at times she could hardly stand. I think she had indigestion as bad as a person can and live, for at times she had attacks when she just had to go and lie right down. She got so dizzy she could hardly walk across the room, and her nerves bothered her so much she couldn't sleep, and always felt so weak and miserable it was impossible for her to do any housework."

"But the way Tanlac has helped her certainly is a pleasant surprise to us. Her appetite is just fine now, and she is eating anything she wants without suffering afterward. She never complains of backache or dizziness, and her nerves are so steady she sleeps well every night and always feels strong and well. Tanlac is a wonderful medicine, and I believe it will help anyone suffering as she did."

resume previous tendency. There is a large Wheat crop to come forward and this is the best assurance of lower flour prices.

Sugar.—The F. C. B. is offering to the trade between 2500 to 2800 barrels American White granulated sugar for delivery on May 20th. This represents the Government stock remaining on hand at that date. It was arranged that the price of 10 1/2 cents duty paid, will not be affected by any tariff on sugar. The American market is now weak and declining, and it would not be surprising to a more favorable quotation on imported sugar before the 20th inst. In this event the F. C. B. will have to cut their price still lower. It looks as though we shall have 12 cent retail sugar after the 20th.

Molasses.—The Barqt. Carolina arrived here from Barbados Wednesday with the first cargo of new molasses, 600 puncheons. The local quotation for old is now down to 90 cents a gallon for Fancy, and 80 cents for Choice wholesale. New Molasses will likely open at about the same price. We hear that it is of an excellent quality and as good as the best ever imported here from Barbados. The schooner Optimist to A. E. Hickman's, is also due here in a few days with a cargo, and there are four other Newfoundland vessels at Barbados loading.

Butter.—Cable advices from Montreal this week report a decline of 15 cents a pound in Best Canadian Creamery Butter. The price is now 89 cents a pound, C.I.F., equivalent to 43 cts. per pound on May 2, and will no doubt be further lowered to compete with Canadian Butter, which will be on the St. John's market in a few days. This happens at an opportune time when the fishermen are getting their supplies.

Potatoes.—The Potato situation is now becoming very favorable to the consumer. Home grown sold this week as low as $3.00 per barrel and $2.50 for large purchasers. The general rate for the single barrel of picked home-grown, however, is $3.30. Imported potatoes that have been picked from residue of local stocks held over the winter, are selling at $3.80 per sack of 180 lbs.

Hay.—By the S.S. Mapledean last trip from Montreal 2,022 bales arrived. The price has declined $5.00 per ton from the prevailing winter price on the arrival of this shipment. Now that the spring is here, it is believed when grazing is general, hay prices will go lower. The quotation to-day in St. John's is $45.00 per ton wholesale. The market is well supplied and more consignments are due by the S. S. Winona.

Oats.—The import of oats this week totalled 3,900 bushels, all from Montreal. The local market is now well stocked and the price is down to $3.50 per bushel for Mixed, and $3.75 for White, wholesale, which are pre-war rates. Trade is now slow owing to the general depression. It is likely that oats have reached their lowest point. There are no black oats in the market.

Attempt to Steal the Crown Jewels.

All visitors to the Tower of London may see the regalia or State jewels of the Kings and Queens of England. They are, of course, extremely beautiful and valuable, and their value once induced a desperate adventure to try and steal them. Colonel Thomas Blood, an Irishman, had fought on the parliamentary side in the Civil War, and, consequently, was reduced to poverty when Charles II. became king. He then adopted many wild and desperate schemes. In the 1670 he kidnaped the Duke of Ormond and was going to hang him at Tyburn, but by struggling hard his victim escaped. He next formed the plan of stealing the Crown Jewels, and went about it in a thoroughly systematic manner. The jewels were then in the care of an old keeper named Talbot Edwards. Blood disguised himself as a parson, and with a lady who passed as his wife, went to see them. The lady pretended to be ill and Edwards took her into his lodgings and treated her well. Blood professed to be much indebted to him and brought him presents, and so got acquainted with him and called on him many times. At length he proposed a marriage between the keeper's daughter and a supposed nephew of his. It was arranged that he should bring the nephew on the morning of May 9, 1671. He also obtained leave to bring two friends who wished to see the regalia. At the appointed time, then, Blood and three men, all full armed, kept the appointment. They seized the old keeper, bound and gagged him and knocked him insensible. Blood then put the crown under his cloak, and one of his companions put the orb in his breeches. They then set about filing the sceptre in two, when they were interrupted by the arrival of a son of Edwards from Flanders, accompanied by a military officer, Captain Beckman. Old Edwards now managed to shout "Treason" and "Murder," on which Blood and his companions ran away with the crown and orb, not having time to take any more. They were near the gate, where horses were waiting, when they were overtaken by Captain Beckman, and captured after a struggle. They were imprisoned in the White Tower, and the jewels recovered. The king personally examined Blood, who, by cajolery, lying and threats, actually obtained a pardon and a grant of land, while Edwards and his friend the Captain were treated with neglect. Blood lived at Westminster till he died in 1680.

Fishing Plants at Ingonish, C.B.

PREPARING FOR BUSY SEASON. Preparations point to the coming season being one of the busiest in the fishing industry in Victoria County. The factor in the field the coming season will be the Leonard Fisheries, one of the largest concerns in the business. Although just this concern spent many thousands of dollars with the fishermen in Ingonish they had no establishments there. This year they expect it is possible to secure one, and a plant at Ingonish to work in conjunction with their establishments adjoining the terminus wharf which was closed last year.

That a Sparrow Saw and Heard.

Bishop Spencer College on Saturday, May 7th. I saw a sparrow and live on the ledges of Bishop Spencer College. One day, a few weeks ago, I decided to hear one of the little birds in form of a little bird. I would like to have a sparrow. It all seemed to like the idea and I thought it would be an excellent way to get some money for the College. I asked their teacher, Miss Hale, and she agreed, and it was decided the bird would be held on May 7th, Friday. I decided I would not miss it, so I sat on the ledge and listened very attentively. I intended to put an account of it in the yearbook (which all sensible people read). That morning everybody was out at 2 p.m. the sparrow appeared. There were four stalls: Ice Cream, Fancy Work, Candy and Dolls. Tea was passed around during the afternoon but the stall which most frequently visited was the cream stall. The entertainment opened by a few words from Dr. Hall, after which followed a concert. The singing of Miss Chafe was greatly enjoyed by all as well as the other four items. About 5:15 I heard it rumored the money was being collected. I decided to follow this "hearer" to home. By listening very carefully I heard the total proceeds were $4.50. Expenses amounted to $5.50, leaving a surplus of $76.00 for the College Funds. Congratulations!

vacant House Burned.

About nine o'clock Saturday evening the Harbor Grace Standard was seen in the direction of the vacant house. It was first thought it was there until Carbonist folks decided to know if the fire was there. It was found that the old unused house on this side of the Valley, formerly occupied by Mr. James Hanrahan, was in flames and was completely demolished. The fairly large wood shed immediately near the house was not touched as the wind was from the north and the fire away from it. How the fire originated is a mystery as the house has been vacant for years.

Famous Italian Museum Robbed.

Milan, Italy.—(Domestic War Service.)—The Bologna Museum, one of the most important in Italy, has been broken into by thieves and robbed of a famous diamond and pearl collar of the Order of the Two Sicilies, worth half a million lire gold ($100,000 at the present rate of exchange), the Grand Cordon of the Iron Crown of the Kingdom of Italy and the historic armbands presented by Napoleon to Prince Joachim Murat, together with other precious historic relics. Among the objects stolen is a sword presented to Prince Murat by Napoleon, which had a solid gold handle, encrusted with cameos, worth by weight alone 20,000 francs, and a belt presented by the City of Paris to Prince Murat in gold and mother-of-pearl, worth half a million lire, besides a sash, with solid gold handle and gold sash, valued at 100,000 francs. Suspicion falls on two visitors who obtained admission a few days ago with a special ticket, and were accompanied by the custodian, who, at their request, opened the room containing these treasures. He proposed to take them into other rooms of the museum, but after they had had a full explanation of the valuable treasures they decided to visit the upper floor of the building, and remained an entire hour, apparently studying the precious objects. On the following day, which was free to the public, they were again seen, and remained a long time in the same room, but caused no suspicion then, as it was supposed they were experts. One is aged about 30 and the other about 20, and the police are making an active search. The thieves succeeded in entering the museum at night, probably by false keys, or else they remained concealed and broke open the glass covered cases containing the treasures, with the butt of a musket, also a Marat rifle.

Tommie G. Abandoned.

On April 14th, a wireless message to the Valentia Station reported that the schooner Tommie G., abandoned on April 9th in lat. 40.28 N., long. 46.17 W., had been set on fire by the crew before leaving. The vessel had a broken rudder and was leaking badly. The crew were taken off by the Dutch steamer Wandijk, and are now on the way home. The Tommie G. was owned by Thomas Garland, of Gaultois.

As will be seen in our advertising columns, tickets for "Officer 666" will be on sale from to-morrow. This highly successful play discloses the sad predicaments which befall an unfortunate Irish policeman in New York when he decided to lend his uniform to a young millionaire. The latter, unsuspecting to his thief-infested home on Fifth Avenue, and it takes one police captain, one detective, four ordinary policemen, two bogus ones, and eight friends of the young millionaire to clean up the mess that follows. It is also necessary to have an audience of 1,000 every night at "Officer 666" to encourage the unfortunate "Cop" and, incidentally, to help the poor children of St. John's.

Names and Phrases.

A British Columbia reader—whose own name is not Robinson—sends us in the following derivation of the name Robinson. Our correspondent naively remarks that readers will find it easier to believe his derivation than to search for proof.

"In the days of the Angles a powerful chief believed in beans as the best food for his warriors. As an experiment, he insisted for a time on the beans being eaten raw, with the result that his men, nicknamed him 'Raw-beans.' His son became known as 'Raw-beans'-son. The transition to Robinson is simple."

It is traditional in the family of Tollemache-Tollemache to name the eldest son Lionel. The Rev. R. W. L. Tollemache married and named his first boy Lionel. His wife died and he married again, and a curious problem arose when his first son was born by his second wife. This was how he solved it: English, Yiddish, Zigeuner, Saxon, East, Cromwell, Orms, Nevill, Dyarst—of which the initials read, "Lionel the Second."

A Manchester man called his first pair of twins Kate and Duplicate; a second pair were born, and he named these Peter and Repeater; a third pair were named Max and Chinox.

"To insure promptness" was the legend on the money boxes which used to be found in taverns, and from the initial letter of each word has sprung our word "tip."

On one occasion the Earl of Sandwich (1718-45) was wishing to leave his plate at the gaming table, called a waiter, and ordered some slices of bread with ham between them to be brought to him so that he could go on playing without interruption. To this combination his friends gave his name.

Among Northern European people it was customary for a newly-married couple to drink wine made from honey for a month after the wedding. Hence this period was known as honeymoon, or honeymoon. Others think that the endearing terms the couple use have something to do with the naming of the period.

In olden days a baker who gave short weight was subjected to severe penalties, therefore to be on the safe side he always added an extra roll to the dozen to make up for any possible deficiency in the others, and thus safeguarded himself. In this way thirteen has come to be known as a baker's dozen.

Up to the fifteenth century women used wooden skewers. Pins were then only just becoming known, and were welcomed as presents. Sometimes, instead of a pin, money to buy pins would be given, and hence a woman's pocket money has come to be known as pin money.

The fourth hour on a watch of clock is shown by four ones, IIII, instead of the usual Roman IV. This is because when the clock, resembling those in use to-day was made by Henry VIII in 1570 for Charles V. of France, the King found fault with the Roman numeral IV. He said it should be IIII. Vick ventured to suggest that the King was mistaken, whereupon Charles roared: "I am never wrong! Take the clock away and correct the mistake at once, on pain of my displeasure." The figure was altered to IIII, and has so remained ever since.
