Lord Cecil's Dilemma

The Picnic
Woodall Forest

CHAPTER XLII.

"Mr. Gardner and I dine at the abbey to-day," Lord Cecil said to Lady Stanhope, at the breakfast-table next morning.

The young barrister almost resented the brusque manner of Lord Cecil, and he noticed that he never called the sweet and gracious lady by the name of mother.

Once or twice he caught Lady Stanhope gazing at him in a strangely wistful way, and he wondered why his heart went out to her. Was it because he pitied her the possession of a son who was so inconsiderate toward her—a son who barely troubled himself to be civil, much less to show filial respect?

He left the room whistling, to speak to a groom who had come to make a report concerning a horse that was sick. There was a sorrowful light in Lady Stanhope's eyes as they followed him.

"I believe that you are my son's friend, Mr. Gardner?" she said, presently.

"I am, indeed," was the earnest reply. To himself he thought: "I will be for your sake."

"I am glad to hear it, and I believe that you have some control over him: I cannot understand the change in him of late, and am half-fearful that he is resenting my objections to people who are not only vulgar but vicious. He has a strange temper, and I do not believe that we have one sympathy in common. He does not resemble his father, either. My husband was a simple and kindly man. These are strange words for a mother to speak to one who is almost a stranger, Mr. Gardner, but you must not think ill of me for it."

"I could never do that, Lady Stanhope. Lord Cecil and I have not been friendly, in the sense of close companionship, but I think he has discovered that the horse people to whom he has been so fond of extending his patronage are little better than human sharks. I even believe that he is bent seriously upon giving up the old life, for he has sent to me, as an old friend, as a legal adviser, to help him out of some trouble, the nature of which he has not yet explained."

Lady Stanhope's fine face lighted up with pleasure.

"I could not trust him in better hands," she said. "I had some hopes of his reformation when I considered that a marriage between him and Lady Gladys Howard was a settled thing, and I cannot understand why the engagement has been broken. You see, I go very little into society now; I have never cared for gaiety in any form since my dear lord's death, and the few intimate friends who visited me have almost become alienated by my son's conduct. When annoyed with me, he has appeared before my guests partially intoxicated with a crowd of his evil companions."

The young barrister's hands clinched, and he felt his heart burning with pity for Lady Stanhope, with rage and contempt for her son.

"It is cruel—cruel!" he said; "but let us hope that there is soon to be a change in him for the better. I can say that something has deeply moved him, and that he meditates some renunciation—some great self-sacrifice."

"You will not let anything that I have said influence you against him, Mr. Gardner. I do not know why I have told you; but I feel that there is no breach of faith in doing so. I feel that I can trust you. Do you know why? It has only just occurred to me."

"I am interested in all that you say, Lady Stanhope. I am pleased to think that you should be interested in me," the barrister smiled.

She was silent for a few moments, then she regarded him earnestly, saying:

"I like you, Mr. Gardner, because you remind me of my dead husband. Your eyes are darker, but there is the same grave earnestness in them—the general contour of your face is the same. Is it not wonderful how these chance likenesses occur?"

"It is, indeed," replied Herbert Gardner, a painful flush spreading over his face. He wondered what this proud patrician would think of him, if she knew that his origin was a mystery.

At this juncture Lord Cecil came in, and announced that the condition of the Earl of Swinford had much improved. He was quite sensible, and his speech was partially restored.

Since the earl's illness Stanhope had sent a servant daily for news of his progress.

the grandeur, and the time-honored magnificence of her home. As far as she could see over the undulating woodland, all was one day to be her own.

"I will make one prayer," she murmured; "and it is that I may go live my life that at its close the truest epitaph that can be placed above me will be, 'Held with honor.'"

A footman came slowly toward her, and she turned away lest he should see the tears in her eyes. It was only a message to say that Lord Caledon was in the breakfast-room awaiting her ladyship's presence.

"I hope I have not detained you, papa!" she cried when she entered the room. "It is so beautiful on the terrace that I could hardly leave it."

"There are few places like Caledon," returned the earl complacently. "There are few people like you, papa," she said, kissing the kind face looking so admiringly at her.

CHAPTER II.

The breakfast-table was cleared, but the earl and his daughter still lingered in the pretty, airy, bright room. Lord Caledon had opened the "Times," and was reading one of the leading articles; Mrs. Bellew was busy with some fine lace-work; and Lady Iris was gazing thoughtfully from the window at the spring flowers.

"Papa," she said suddenly, "when I was here last I was a child, and I had no greater interest than in a new dress or a doll. Now I should much like to know who are our neighbors."

With an amused smile the earl laid down his paper.

"I shall be very pleased, my dear Iris, to put you quite au courant with the neighborhood. It will not take very long. Our nearest and I may say best, neighbor is Lady Clyfarde of Clyffe Hall."

"I remember her," said Lady Iris. "She is tall, with dark eyes and hair."

"Yes, that is Lady Clyfarde. Her son Sir Fulke succeeded last year. Do you remember Fulke at all?"

"No, not at all, papa," was the girl's reply.

"I am very fond of him," said the earl; "he is, to my mind, a very fine young man; besides which, he has a great political career before him."

"I hope he will enjoy it, papa," she returned, with calm unconsciousness. "I shall be pleased to see Lady Clyfarde again."

"She has often talked about you, Iris; she will be the first to call upon you. Clyffe Hall is very ancient and very beautiful—you will be delighted with it."

Turning to him suddenly, she asked:

"Who has bought Hyne Court, papa?" I heard that it was sold."

"Ah, Iris, you have touched now upon the weak point of the whole county! When poor Lord Hyne died, his affairs were in a terrible state of embarrassment. Everything was sold—from the old house where the Hynes have lived long generations to the rings its last mistress had worn. The Court and everything else—plate, pictures, horses, and carriages—were purchased by one of the wealthiest men in England—a wealthy man, but a horror—you understand, Iris—a horror!"

"In what way, papa?" she asked, gently.

"My dear, he is a millionaire. And he made his money—imagine how!"

"Made it?" she questioned, with a curl of her beautiful lip. "Made it, you say?"

"Yes, he has accumulated this enormous fortune by means of coal and iron. He began life as a collier's boy. He worked himself into a better position, educated himself, was made overseer of a mine, and then he hit upon some great invention and was taken into partnership."

LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;

Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER I.

After a few days the earl and his daughter found themselves comfortably established in their magnificent home. A beautiful suite of rooms had been prepared for Lady Iris. She loved the sunshine and the flowers, and her rooms overlooked the terrace on the western side of the building. Few lots in life seemed more enviable than hers. Young, healthy, gifted with rarest beauty, heiress to one of the finest estates in the kingdom, clever and witty, loved and adored wherever she went, able to do anything she wished—what brighter life could there be than that of Lady Iris Feyne? She lived in a palatial home, rich in pictures, decorations, and furniture, and she possessed every luxury that her heart desired.

She owned this to herself, on the morning following her return, as she stood on the terrace, a gentle breeze bringing a delicate bloom to her face. Over the great western window ran the proud words, "Held with honor."

The girl's eyes grew dim as she saw them; her heart beat faster, and she drew a deep breath.

"They are beautiful words," she said to herself; "and they shall be the rule of my life."

She seemed to realize the beauty,

KEARNEY'S.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

ARE YOU A LUGGER?

Are you a lugger?

Naturally I don't mean the sort of lugger made familiar by "once aboard the lugger and the girl is mine."

What I mean is the person who always seems to have a lot of things when he or she goes anywhere.

Men Seldom Are.

On second thought that "he" is about as superfluous as it is awkward.

Someone once told me of a masculine lugger that he knew—a man who loved to wander into shops and lug home bundles of bargains of all sorts. But I never met one. Indeed the exact opposite of the lugger habit, a detestation of carrying even the smallest, lightest bundle has been a trait of several men I know. One man has this handphobia so hard that the men in his office try to put him in the position where he will have to carry home some small bundle, even bringing him a dozen eggs to take home to the wife, but up-to-date he has somehow managed to squirm out of carrying any bundle.

Women are the natural born luggers. I suppose it is because they are the guardians and chaperones of all the small things of life that they get the habit. If a man were visiting, no one would think of saying to him just as he started out with a suitcase in his hand and an umbrella in the other "Oh don't you want to take home a number of this jelly?" or "I've just picked a bunch of flowers for you. What until I do them up?"

What a Woman Carries.

And if a man could save 15 cents by buying an article at a store from which it couldn't be sent, he would probably tell himself that the bother of lugging it was worth a good deal more than 15 cents, yessir! But a woman wouldn't. She would go home with the ten cent dishpan under one arm and the new shoes that Johnny couldn't wait another day for under the other, and the hat she is going to trim this very night in one hand, and her shopping bag with several small articles that either couldn't be sent or couldn't be waited for in the other.

Those Last Minute Bundles.

Being able to make any journey without a mess of last-minute packages is something only an infinite amount of planning and organizing will accomplish. I have a deep admiration for the woman who gets everything in her trunk and on the morning of her departure calmly sails off with nothing but her overnight bag and a magazine, not one extra bundle or sweater or handbag! I, too, put everything in my trunk the night before, but when the morning comes I find that a few more maddening little articles have come to light,—that book someone returns at the last minute (does no one ever return books at the last minute to the lady of the handbag and the magazine?), the flashlight that was kept out to see the time by a face cloth, and so on. I hope sometime to be rich enough to simply leave these articles behind. In the meantime we have another plan that a friend who has made many moves taught us. I recommend it to all movers.

A Duffie Bag.

We have a duffie bag. We pack everything we can think of in our trunk and then when the final morning comes we simply have an overflowing meeting of all odds and ends in that duffie bag and tip someone to send it by post.

Have you a little duffie bag in your home? Better get one if you do much travelling.

U. S. Administration May Take Over Railroads and Mines.

Government Determined to Maintain Adequate Service. --- Threat Against Life of French Premier.--- De Valera said to be in Open Rebellion.

U.S. GOVERNMENT TO ACT.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.

The administration will seek legislation from Congress authorizing the taking over of certain United States railroads and Anthracite mines, if there is not a radical improvement in the industrial situation within a few days. This was indicated tonight after Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Inter State Commerce Committee and Attorney General Daugherty had conferred with President Harding for more than an hour. Railroads will be given an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to furnish adequate service, it was declared. But those which cannot give proper service will be taken over by the United States Government under the present plans. If production of Anthracite is not resumed "within a few days" it was added, a Bill will be introduced in Congress to authorize the Government to take over the mines and produce coal. Legislation to enable such seizures, Senator Cummins predicted, would quickly be rushed through Congress.

Bank of England Mystery

SENTRY FOUND SHOT.

A sensation was created at the Bank of England in London recently, when one of the sentries, Guardsman George Harpham, was found near one of the bullion rooms shot through the cheek.

He was taken to hospital and operated upon. His condition was too serious to allow of questions being put to him as to the circumstances, and the whole affair remains a complete mystery.

Harpham, who had served for several years in the Army, was to have returned to his home at Nottingham on a month's furlough before being definitely discharged, and was within 40 minutes of being relieved of his sentry duty.

Alarmed by the sound of an explosion, Harpham's comrades on duty at the bank rushed towards the spot, and were horror-stricken to find the Guardsman staggering to them with half his face blown away.

It was found that his little canvas bag, made to contain ten rounds of ammunition, had been ripped open and one round extracted. An empty cartridge shell was found in the breach of his rifle.

Harpham is stated to have been of a cheerful disposition until recently, when he began to worry about trifles, and he had been depressed at the idea of bidding farewell to his comrades in the regiment.

The Bank of England has had a military guard since the Gordon riot. It consists of 30 Guardsmen with a subaltern, and generally arrives from barracks about 6 p.m.

Before the war the Guardsmen used to march in all the glory of scarlet tunics and bearskins, but they now wear khaki.

Their evening march to "The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street" resembles one of the picturesque sights of the city.

A Runaway Horse.

STOPPED BY POLICEMAN.

A square body wagon owned by Mr. Ralph Murrin was badly smashed last evening as a result of his horse bolting. The horse with wagon attached was tied to a pole at William's Street, but taking fright the animal bolted, going at a gallop out Monks-town and over King's Road. In crossing the latter street, the carriage hit a pole, and turning bottom up, frightened the horse to a greater speed. Children and pedestrians scattered in all directions and it is probable that some of the former would have been injured or killed but for the promptness of Constable Wm. Fife, who from his box on Rawlin's Cross made a short cut to head of the runaway. He succeeded in bringing the horse to a standstill near the Empire Steam Laundry.

They propose making a sea picture which E.H. Griffith's will direct.

Conditions North.

A GLOOMY OUTLOOK.

Conditions on the North East coast of the Island are not very promising, and the outlook for the winter is gloomy. The shore fishery on that coast was a complete failure this season and some form of relief work will have to be found to keep the people from starvation. There were barely one-third as many schooners prosecuting the northern fishery this year as there was ten years ago, and despite this, the catches were, in many cases, the worst on record.

Valuable Presentation.

The Library of the B.I.S. Reading Room has recently been enriched by the addition of a number of valuable books of ancient Irish history through the generosity of Mr. J. H. Dwyer, Oak Farm. Some of the volumes were printed in the sixteenth century and are very rare.

Domestic Missing.

The police have been asked to locate a girl named Nellie Jude, whose whereabouts is causing her relatives some anxiety. She left the service of Mrs. Sharpe, Military Road, over two weeks ago, and is believed to be residing at a home on Barter's Hill. Since then her sister, who is a domestic with Mrs. McNeilly on Barnes Road, has lost all trace of her.

SAINTS DEFEAT STAR.

The Saints carried off the honours in their contest with the Star in last night's League game, winning by the narrow margin of one goal to nil. The game, as the score shows, was quite good and both sides played hard throughout. There was, however, a lot of very wild shooting. This ends the regular schedule but the postponed games will start next week and the big game between the Saints and B.I.S. should be played on September 8th.

MILNARD'S LIMEWORT FOR GARBET IN COWS.

Newfoundland Films Limited. HEAD OFFICE - ST. JOHN'S. Incorporated Under the Companies Act. AUTHORIZED CAPITAL: $100,000.00. Divided into 1,000 Shares at $100 each. DIRECTORS: E. A. Bowring, W. G. Gosling, A. E. Hickman, Jas. J. McKay, David Baird, J. C. Hepburn, R. B. Job, C. A. C. Bruce. The following gentlemen have also consented to become Directors: Hon. Tasker Cook, Mayor of St. John's, J. P. Kiely, Proprietor Nickel Theatre, Ernest Shipman, Motion Picture Producer. Newfoundland Films, Ltd., has been formed for the purpose of producing a Newfoundland screen story, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Shipman, a Motion Picture Producer of world-wide repute. While the principal characters will be drawn from the Motion Picture centres of the United States, the minor roles will be selected from local talent. The Newfoundland picture will convey to the world the beautiful scenic attractions of this Colony, and thus advertise this country to prospective tourists and others. Millions of people will see Newfoundland on the screen. The public are demanding nature-made outdoor productions in place of the time worn studio-made fashion plate dramas, and a good reception is assured the Newfoundland film story. The extraordinary financial success of "The Sky Pilot", "God's Crucible" and "Cameron of the Royal Mounted", all produced by Mr. Shipman, give some indication of what we may expect. The takings of "The Sky Pilot", which has been released but a short time, now exceeds one quarter of a million dollars, and is estimated to gross $750,000 when the returns are in from all countries. In addition Mr. Shipman has produced film versions of three of James Oliver Curwood's Stories, which have already grossed receipts of over one and one half million dollars. Mr. Shipman is confident of a ready market and when the Newfoundland picture is made and released in October, it is anticipated the Company will receive in cash from $75,000.00 to $100,000.00. This would enable the Company to return the original capital to investors—who would, however, continue to share in the profits during the life of the picture, which is at least five years. A limited number of shares are offered to the general public at $100 per Share. The Directors, however, reserve the right to refuse further subscriptions, if they consider that sufficient has been subscribed for the purpose of the Company. Copy of Prospectus will be sent on request. To make sure of your requirements communicate promptly with C. A. C. BRUCE Investment Broker St. John's

Pencil Points.

There are Superstitions Based Upon The Everyday Blacklead Pencil.

Stockbrokers and jobbers will never use a full length pencil. When a new one has to be taken, the man on 'Change invariably cuts it in half. To use a full-length pencil spells bad luck. He believes the investments or speculations which he figures out with an unbroken pencil would be destined to failure from the start. The idea is as deeply rooted in him as his passion for almonds and raisins, which are essentially the favourite nibble of the man who throngs Throgmorton Street. One notable person who has no liking for a short lead-pencil is Mr. Lloyd George. He always takes and uses a full-length one, an ordinary H.B., and in his respect Miss Stevenson, his secretary, follows his lead (pronounced this time "L-e-a-d"). You can't get an actor or an actress to use a shiny green pencil. In spite of their green-room, the verdant colour is looked upon with great distrust by the theatrical profession. Green means bad luck when you belong to the stage. An Irish Superstition. Carpenters always use flat lead-pencils, as is well known, and the popular belief is that they are made especially this shape to prevent them from rolling off the bench—an exasperating trick to the man of shavings, which might spoil his job. The reason for the flat pencil is, however, that it forms a handy flat rule in cases of emergency. What seems at first sight a curious fact among cinema reviewers, is that they always insist upon using very soft B.B.B.'s. However, there is a reason for this. The notes of the film man are made in the dark, and very often he finds it difficult to make out afterwards what he has written unless he uses a very soft pencil easy to write with. Artists, of course, nearly always carry a soft pencil with them. Sir William Orpen's favorite lead is a half-length one, yellow in color outside, over which he crooks his fingers as he sketches upon the table-cloth. There is a queer superstition in Ireland that a broken pencil-point is the precursor of a domestic jar; and an old-fashioned rule incanted into shorthand writers was to sharpen a pencil at both ends in case of a breakage during the taking down of important verbatim notes. Journalistic Safeguards. The popularity of the fountain-pen has a little dispelled this habit. Journalists rarely use a pen when reporting, but nearly every journalist carries a spare pencil and there is a queer dislike among journalists of lending a spare pencil; not because of churlishness, but from an inherent sense of dismay at the possibility of leaving themselves without the necessary safeguard to preparedness. One of the most persistent beliefs in connection with lead-pencils is that no woman can sharpen one, and men have invariably laughed because 'woman always sharpens her pencils away from her. She does this so that she shall not blacken her dainty finger-tips, while a man will conscientiously let the pencil-dust fly over his shirt-front as he sharpens his H.B. pencil. People sometimes wonder why a pen-knife is called a pen-knife, since it is more frequently used to sharpen pencils than for anything else. The Car Badly Smashed.

YOUTH SENDS MOTOR OVER RAILING WALL.
The Buick car owned by Councillor P. E. Outerbridge was badly smashed last evening as a result of falling over a retaining wall at the rear of the Bank of Montreal. The accident was caused through the pranks of a youth, who in the absence of the owner, boarded the car and released the brakes. Shortly before six o'clock Mr. Outerbridge left his car parked near Maunders' Tailoring establishment whilst he was attending to some business. Meanwhile a boy came along and started the machine, which going backwards went over McBride's Hill. Here it gained momentum, but when part way over the incline it swerved, crashed through a wooden fence and fell back on over a high stone wall. The weight of the engine and the force of the impact practically folded the car up. The boy made good his escape before the car went over the wall. The car was not insured and is thought to be beyond repair.

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF AGENT, WEEK ENDING AUGUST 26th.
Attended to the landing of seventy head of cattle from the Sable I. and sixty sheep. Saw them all carefully landed. One cow was taken sick. Mr. Jay at Harvey & Co. took it to the table and carefully attended to it. Cows in this condition in the future will be landed in a crate. Saw Mr. Corrick, who promised to have a proper crate or box made; also Mr. Kennedy at the Furness Wharf. Attended to thirty-five head of cattle which came in by train. One hundred and fifteen on the Canadian Sapper, twenty-three sheep, five horses and some pigs. Fifty head on the Cecil S. Beck and some sheep. Sixty head on the schooner Blake and twenty sheep. Saw them all carefully landed. Captain gave orders that whatever I wanted done for handling the cattle humanely should be done. Everything was satisfactory. Called to Pleasant Street to shoot a dog which had hurt its leg. Received word from Mr. Doyle at the Goulds of two men with horses and carts who ran over a sheep owned by him on the nineteenth and broke its leg and left it. He reported to me on Tuesday night, 22nd. I found the sheep perishing. I also found the men who, he says, did the deed and had them summoned on a charge of cruelty. Several minor cases have been attended to, and all calls promptly answered.

THIRD RAID ON BOOZE JOINT.
Some people will never know just how far they may go. John Nikosey, New Gower Street shopkeeper, is one been raided and he has been fined for selling liquor. The last occasion was only five days ago. Last night his store was again searched by the police and a quantity of booze was captured. More trouble will be in store for Nikosey when he faces the Magistrate next week.

THE HECLA PIPELESS FURNACE.

Thousands of these heating systems have been installed, are giving every satisfaction, and you are sure in buying a Pipeless Furnace—absolutely safe—if it is a "Hecla." For those who live in districts where wood is still the fuel ordinarily used we recommend the "Hilborn" Pipeless Furnace. It has a regular wood fire box, takes sticks from 2 to 4 1/2 feet long and there is no trouble in keeping a fire all night in the "Hilborn."

The same guarantee that applies to our other Furnaces applies to this, it must do the work we say it will, or we will take it out and refund your money.

AGREEMENT ARRIVED AT IN NOVA SCOTIA COAL STRIKE.

Miners, However, Must Acquiesce to Terms. —If Accepted Contract Good for Sixteen Months.

TERMS OF AGREEMENT.
 SYDNEY, Aug. 26. After a Conference last night, going into an early hour this morning, representatives of the Empire Steel Corporation and mine workers of District 26 arrived at an agreement for settlement of the Nova Scotia coal strike. The contract, if finally reached, will last sixteen months, or until January 15th, 1924. Acceptance or rejection of the proposed scale rests with twelve thousand striking miners of the province, who will be asked to vote on a referendum. The date of which is not yet fixed, but will probably be Wednesday, August 30. Rates and conditions as mediated, are, minimum daily rates to be increased $3.20 per day, with a minimum increase of forty cents per day and adjustment of higher rates as per attached schedule. (A) date minimum rate at Sydney mines to be brought up to Dominion Coal Company, Cape Breton, minimum rate, namely $3.20 (B) with increase in other daily rates corresponding to increases given in Dominion Coal, Cape Breton Mines, plus twelve cents per day; (C) contract rates to be increased 15 1/2 per cent, one half cent to be added to the machine and cutting the 3 cents added at Sydney mine. (D) The contract to cover all classes of men included in the Montreal agreement of 1921, and to extend to 15th January 1924, and shall not terminate on that date unless 40 days notice, previously to 15th January 1924, be given by either party to the contrary. Failing such notice the contract shall automatically continue but may be terminated any time after 15th January 1924, on 40 days notice, contract to be made retroactive to 15th July, 1922. Provision for overtime and night work at Glace Bay machine shop to be re-established. An outstanding feature of the settlement is the long term contract, something for which the miners have been contending, and substantial wage increases. Also, in so far as could be learned, troops will not be withdrawn for awhile until the miners are back to work. Pending referendum, the final session of the conference concluded with expressions of satisfaction and amity on the part of the conferees. Dr. Clarence MacKinnon, who some years ago negotiated the basic MacKinnon Award, arrived in the city in the morning, and joined in the conference. It was predicted that after his arrival things would speed towards an agreement and this proved to be the case. Dr. MacKinnon is said to have been gratified by the spirit of reconciliation and good will which marked the conference, and also predicted that the settlement would have a beneficial effect upon industries of the Province. Col. Gordon Harrington, legal adviser of U.M.W., said: "After considerable negotiation I believe a mutually satisfactory program has been concluded. Attitude of conference throughout has been most satisfactory, and the agreement holds great possibilities for the industries of Nova Scotia." The minimum daily rate in 1921 was $3.90. This was cut to $2.44, at the beginning of the year under the general thirty-three and one third per cent wage cut, put in force, but was adjusted to $2.60. The Company offered to increase this to $3.00, and on August 13th to $3.25. Contract rates since the beginning of year have been fifty-nine cents per ton, against eighty three cents in 1921.

 LONDON, Aug. 26. Former Emperor William is betrothed to the widow of a German aristocrat, according to a report in the Times. The fiancee is said to be of almost Royal rank, and is the mother of three children. She and family visited the exile at Doorn recently, and it is said the wedding will take place during the coming winter.

PECULIARLY GERMAN.
 BERLIN, Aug. 26. Economic distress, prevailing in many sections of Germany threatens to become more acute in consequence of the economic fall in the value of the mark, and the situation is causing the Government serious concern. Premiers and ministers of various German states have been invited to Berlin to discuss the situation with the Government.

FRENCH WARSHIP TURNED TURTLE.
 BREST, Aug. 26. The French dreadnought France capsized in Quiberon Bay after striking a rock. Number of casualties is unknown. The ship was built in November, 1912, her normal displacement being twenty-three thousand tons. She carried a crew of eleven hundred men.

RUSSIANS EXILED.
 MOSCOW, Aug. 26. Approximately fifteen hundred intellectuals charged with secret counter revolutionary activities, or who are unable to reconcile themselves to the Soviet regime, have been ordered exiled. The number included Russian lawyers, who withdrew from the defence, during the recent trial, of thirty-four Social Revolutionists, charged with treason.

The Menhaden.
 The menhaden (brevoortia tyrannus) is a handsome little fish, conspicuously scaled with a few irregular spots upon its flanks. They are migratory and strike the American Atlantic coasts in myriad swarms with the advent of warm weather. In the Chesapeake Bay region they appear in March or April and vanish in November and December, and their coming brings the bluefish, squeteague, and striped bass as predaceous trailers in their wake. The menhaden seems to have no friends. Whales, sharks, horse mackerel, swordfish, and other species devour and destroy them in countless numbers, and man's decimation is but a tithe of the whole.

According to authorities in piscatorial science, the menhaden was meant to be eaten by other fish. But as far as man is concerned, the menhaden looks better than it tastes, and it is not popular as a food-fish by reason of its excessive oiliness, and the amount of bones it possesses. Its prime value to man is in the oil which is extracted from it and the fish meal and fertilizer which is manufactured from the pressed fish. Though captured, eaten and destroyed in millions by its enemies, Nature has protected their spawning when they make their coastal migration—a fact which undoubtedly accounts for their abundance in spite of the annual inroads into their numbers. The menhaden masquerades under a variety of names. In northern waters it is often called pogy, mott-bunker and bonny-fish; down South it may be called old-wife, alewife, bug fish, or fat-back. If you would know more about the menhaden, its near and distant relations, history, dimensions and peregrinations, I would recommend you to peruse a 650-page tome upon it, compiled by Dr. G. Brown Goode in 1880. This painstaking scientist has covered the subject so thoroughly that he has left me with nothing to add to his observations.

USES OF THE MENHADEN.
 We do not use the menhaden to any extent nowadays in a food-fish. And with the high gastronomical standard now attained by the American people, it is a safe bet that its use as a food will not increase. The fish producers of this country have all they can do to sell much better fish in the shape of cod, haddock, herring, etc., which can be caught in quantities sufficient to feed the whole population of North America—if they would only acquire the desire and taste. So the menhaden, oily and bony, can be counted out insofar as a food-fish is concerned and well-meaning conservationists might take note of this fact when advocating abolition of the right to take them. The menhaden in the sea is but a free lunch for the other creatures that swim—some of which are useful and others which are not. But the menhaden processed into oil, meal and fertilizer is of distinct economic value to the country. The uses of menhaden oil are manifold. For dressing leather, as a component part in paints, varnishes and linoleums, for waterproofing, cement, core-making in foundries, tempering steel, compounding for lubricants, and, lastly, it has been largely used as an ingredient in soap. "He who can make two blades of grass grow where but one grew before is a benefactor to his country." If memory serves me right, some poet, prophet, priest or king made this aphorism. I may have made a mistake in the quotation, but it sounds good enough to apply to the fish fertilizer industry. Those persons who can take inedible fish and convert them into a fertilizer which enriches the soil and increases the farmer's crop production are fully entitled to rank as members of a beneficent industry. As a fertilizer, fish scrap is one of the best obtainable. There is one more use to which the menhaden is put which is of no mean economic importance. This is its manufacture into fish meal for the feeding of cattle and hogs. In Europe fish meal is an old story with animal husbandmen, and they have used it for years. In the United States its use is growing yearly, and feeding tests made by the Bureau of Agriculture have proved eminently satisfactory. The value of fish meal lies in the fact that it saves land acreage

Capital Ships And Airplanes.

FIGHTING IT OUT IN ENGLAND.

London.—The question of the aircraft menace and the building of the two capital ships sanctioned by the Washington Naval agreement, has been raised in the House of Lords by the Marquis of Lidlithgow. Why, he asked, should it be thought that the belligerent that obtained the military advantage belonging to command of the sea? He doubted the ability of the aircraft to carry any appreciable quantity of the food supplies needed by Britain, or to protect her lines of commerce. Also he doubted that the bomb-dropping or torpedo-throwing airplane would be able to neutralize the capital ship, against which a stream of "interested propaganda" was being directed. Lord Lee replied: "CONSTRUCTION MUST CONTINUE."

"There have been no new developments in connection with either aerial or under-water attack," he said, "which necessitate a reversal of decision of the government to proceed with these capital ships, or indeed any modification in the constructional designs which have been already approved. It is the view of the Admiralty and its military advisers," he added, "fortified and based on the experience of the war and by a long series of experiments, that it is possible, both constructionally and financially, to build capital ships which shall be reasonably proof against any known or likely methods of attack. The necessary designs for that purpose or likely methods of attack. The necessary designs for that purpose have been worked out and approved and are ready for the use of the builder. Unless these two capital ships are proceeded with," Lord Lee concluded, "we shall have to abandon the one power standard and fall to third place, as compared to the United States and Japan, in the most vital portion of a fleet. Such a course would be fatal to our prestige and incompatible with government pledges."

BETTER EQUIPPED.

Britannia still rules the air though she may not quite rule the waves. So claims the Air Ministry in a statement. From this it appears that in regard to aircraft than that of any other power. The number of fighting aircraft available for her navy can be expanded at the briefest notice, and pilots supplied. Important new types of machines for the use of the navy shortly will be adopted. "Development of the naval wing of flying," said the official of the Air Ministry, "has been greater in Great Britain than in any other country. We claim that the naval side of the air-service is the most efficient and up-to-date in the world. We have about 98 fighting machines in commission, equivalent to eight squadrons; another 48 are in use for training purposes, and over 300 are in reserve, apart from machines requiring reconditioning. These can all be manned. Only one squadron is abroad. "At any moment we can put 700 or 800 machines in the air, and we have an additional 3,000 machines available."

SECRET TESTS BEING MADE.

Secret tests carried out by aircraft attacks on battleships are said to have proved the effectiveness of smoke screens thrown out by aircraft before using torpedoes. The machines used were torpedo-planes and the torpedoes carried oil instead of the usual explosive charge. A part of the fleet was detailed to be prepared for a sudden attack from the air, but the time of the attack was not given and the anti-aircraft gunners were kept on the alert. The planes appeared high up out of range and suddenly planted a smoke screen round the fleet by means of bombs. Behind it they twisted and turned until they had obtained broadside position. The torpedoes were discharged at short range and it is understood the umpire awarded 100 per cent hits. All the machines returned safely to their base and the operation is said to have only lasted 80 seconds from the time the gunners sighted the planes to the time they got safely away.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

And As We See Ourselves.

(BY OBSERVATOR.)

NEW TITLES AND SO FORTH.
The true ambition there alone resides. Where Justice vindicates and Mercy guides. Where inward dignity joins outward state. For purpose good as our achievement great.

The prospect of new titles in connection with the appointment of Governor Allardice brings up to one's recollection the "honors" that already have been granted in Newfoundland and what they were given for. Sir Hugh Hopes, Sir Frederick Carter, Sir Ambrose Shea, Sir W. V. Whalley, Sir Robert Plesant, Sir Joseph Little, and the rest of our chivalry gentlemen were honored in this way beyond and above their brethren. Sir Hugh won his title by distinguished services in and to his land and obtained it by public acclaim. At a time when political tyranny and intolerance came in like a flood, single-handed he stood alone, and by his valor, isolated a tract of land and sectional liberty coincident with the geographical boundaries of the island. For this he was exiled from his native land by a narrow margin of politicians, who never forgot a heroism that they could not imitate and a distinguished course of patriotism that they could not appreciate. At a time of life when his rugged judicial experience and powers of mind had just begun to fit him for the Chief Magistracy, he was driven from the bench and doomed to wander away the harvest of his life in a glorious idleness, in a pitiable effort to kill time and to shorten as much as possible a life that had seemed to be useful to anyone.

SIR HUGH'S SUCCESSOR IN KNIGHTHOOD.
Regarding the knights that followed Sir Hugh in rapid succession I shall have very little to say at present. Some of them were good, others bad, and most of them indifferent. The sensible, level-headed men of today, those titles are of little value. In the old days of chivalry titles meant honor, now they have become, for the most part, the mere results of wealth and backstairs influence. The latest unscrupulous trader or contractor puts himself on an equality with the best of "the knightly breed," whether the latter like it or not. The principle of the distribution of honors is hard to understand. The day of his wedding Lord Loucheur of Mountbatten was made a K. C. V.O., but on the evening after the new County Hall in London had been opened the architect was still plain Mr. Ralph Knott. But perhaps he preferred it should be so. A King can make a belted Knight, Marquis, Duke and so on.

is likely to be wiped out completely within the next few years, or the next generation, at all events. Just as the dreaded plagues of leprosy and smallpox no longer hold any terrors for civilized communities so consumption in its turn must give way before the onward march of medical science.

A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH.
The other day I visited the Sanatorium, spent a pleasant half hour with the genial Superintendent, Dr. Rendell, and came away full of sympathy for the long suffering inmates. Now, however, I am delighted to learn from an article in a recent number of the London Record that tuberculosis—the "scourge of civilization" is the most preventible of all diseases. By the inoculation of young children who have been specially exposed to it with a vaccine of sub-cultured tubercle bacilli the deadly white plague may be completely wiped out of civilization.

A SERIES OF RIGID TESTS.
Hitherto helpless under the scourge of consumption for hundreds of years humanity must view this triumphant development with incalculable interest. The vaccine treatment discovered by Dr. Nathan Raw has been used for two years by physicians all over the world in a series of rigid tests to prove its efficacy. It has emerged triumphantly, and is now generally believed among physicians to be the preventive for which they have been searching in their fight against tuberculosis. Science is making such progress now that all preventable diseases, such as tuberculosis, typhoid fever, malaria, smallpox and leprosy, will soon be entirely wiped out," said Dr. Raw to an interviewer. "Of them all tuberculosis is the most preventable. It need only to be inoculated against in childhood."

TIME AND METHOD OF TREATMENT.
The Doctor adds:—"In children exposed to tuberculosis the germs often lie dormant for years before they become active. Then at the period of adolescence the child becomes consumptive. I believe firmly that the protection of young children who have been specially exposed to infection will result in a steady decrease in tuberculosis in the world. If this deadly disease is to be eradicated from civilization it can only be by prevention, rather than by expensive and long-continued efforts to cure it." This statement of the learned doctor recalls a remark made by the Minister of Public Works (Mr. Jennings), in the House of Assembly last session—I think it was—when he said: "The sanatorium here is only a home for incurables." Professor Lyth, Cummins and Dr. Raw were the English representatives at the Brussels Medical Conference.

OUR HOLIDAYS AND HOW WE ENJOY THEM.
Somebody has said that most of the best lessons that life teaches us are to be learned in the midst of the activity and bustle and responsibility of everyday things. As we do and hear we learn, learn lessons that could not be learned so well in any other save an everyday world that has its cares and disappointments, and hard tasks. But just because this is so there are some other lessons and very important and much-needed ones too, that we best learn away from the hurry and worry of things, when we are by ourselves and have laid the cares and burdens away for a time.

THE NEED OF REST AND RECREATION.
In the experience of many of us life is mostly work, not always unpleasant work, but work nevertheless that brings its weariness and its care. But it also has to have its periods of rest and recreation, its garden parties and its regattas, its moving picture shows, and its football matches, when work is laid aside, and care is as if it were not. If we do not have these periods we will probably fail to get some of the best things life has to offer and miss some of its best lessons. A getting away from our work occasionally and a laying aside temporarily, of our care, makes for sanity and wholeness of outlook. Take, for example the exodus from congested sections of the city on the occasion of "our great annual Derby" as President Hiscock not inappropriately terms it. Note the hundreds of happy families who spend the day amid the shady groves and fragrant atmosphere of Quidi Vidi Lake and elsewhere. Who can fully estimate the amount of pleasure and enjoyment they derive from the facilities afforded and the opportunities available on that day of delight to young and old?

SEEKING THINGS IN A BETTER PERSPECTIVE.
Yes, when we get a little distance between us and the things that have worried us, the idea often comes to us that perhaps they ought not to have worried us as much as they did. We see them in a better perspective, understand their relative importance, and are able to shake the burden and dread of them off us. How much this is needed many of us would be quite ready to confess. The lesson of not making life too much of a care is one, indeed, that we nearly all need to learn. The things that burden us, that fill us with apprehension, at times, may be important and critical enough, but when we get out into a broader place and look at them, they do not deserve that we should let them spoil our lives as nearly as they do.

"Oh what they miss, who joy not in the love,
Of wandering freely 'long the wild-ering way,
Where health-clad hills with green or wooded slopes
Mingle their purpling tones at close of day."

ONE OF THE OPPORTUNITIES IT PROVIDES.
Then, again, the holiday provides an opportunity for the less serious-minded clerk, typist, school-teacher, and others following similar occupations to read the better-class novels, some of the classics, and biographical works. And that many young men and girls avail themselves of the opportunity is vouched for by our booksellers with some of whom I have discussed the subject. When intelligent persons go off on their holidays they invariably take with them a supply of wholesome literature. We are all book-lovers from the greatest in the land to the humblest. And we are catered for most generously. We read at all times, anywhere, and—this is to be regretted—anything. That is to say, those of us who can read and write; but alas! there's a deplorably large percentage of our people who can do neither. However, now that we've got a "Bureau of Education," with the energetic Dr. Barnes at its head, let us hope that things will improve, educationally, and that henceforth something like reasonable returns will be made for the extravagantly large amount voted by the Government annually on account of public (or rather denominational) schools in this colony. But, without further digression, let me say that books are not only a source of pleasure and profit during the holiday season, they are equally so all the year round. In our northern climate, with its long and severe winter the book is indispensable. It is an everlasting companion. As the poet says:

"Give me my holly, roaring fire
And my dog, Bob, with his tender looks,
Give me that restful family couch
And I'm in Heaven with my books."

Romans First Landed in Britain.

The Romans, under Julius Caesar, landed for the first time in Britain on August 26th B.C. 55. The expedition which consisted of a hundred vessels of all kinds, carried two legions, numbering from nine to twelve thousand men, and sailed from Portus Hino, which is claimed to have been between Boulogne and Calais. After a passage of about ten hours, Caesar arrived on the coast near Dover, and found the Kentish cliffs covered with armed Britons, who were evidently prepared to dispute his landing. For some time he hovered about the South Foreland, and then, favored by wind and tide, sailed northwards to the flat beach which extends from Walmer Castle to Sandwich. Here also the Britons were drawn up in battle array, and greeted the invaders with fierce cries and menaces. They did not confine themselves to idle demonstration, however, for on the Romans jumping into the surf, and attempting to land, they resisted their advance with much spirit, driving them back for a time until the standard bearer of the Xth Legion, marching to the front with the Eagle gave fresh courage to the men who followed him bravely and gained a firm footing on the land. The contest was very severe, but of course terminated in favor of the Roman Legion. After various misfortunes Caesar refitted his vessels, which had been shattered by a storm, and recrossed the Channel, within three weeks of his landing, and thus the first attack of the Romans upon Britain was a failure.

Delightful Music at The Nickel.

VISITING ORCHESTRA PUTS ONE OVER.

The visiting American Orchestra put one over at the Nickel Theatre. The selections from "Aida"—Verdi and "Mary"—Hirsch were never heard before with such emphasis. The addition of a Cello added greatly to the beautiful music. At the conclusion of the programme an appreciative applause was tendered the musicians. The jazz selection by Harry Murker was a treat in itself. The motion picture attraction is "The Girl in the Web" featuring Blanche Sweet. It is the class of mystery story just now very much in vogue. It is, however, superior to most of them in stimulating the reaction of surprise. There is reasonable preparation in "The Girl in the Web." The guilty individual is right there before our eyes and under suspicion, but so skillfully is suspicion diverted and misdirected in a consistent telling of the story that there is mystery to be solved until the last few scenes, as it should be in plays of this kind. To nice construction, careful treatment and skilled editing, therefore, are due the chief values of "The Woman in the Web."

TRINITY.

I have so thoroughly enjoyed the preparation of my weekly contributions to the Evening Telegram, that I am sorry to have to bring them to a close for awhile with this issue.

The week ending August 19th was delightfully fine at Trinity, and the visitors had the time of their lives.

The distress, resulting from this failure in the fishery which has already been felt in more homes than the general public know, it is not altogether the result of this summer's failure; rather it is a climax which has reached its highest point just now.

One result of the poor season is the leaving of Trinity by Captain Batsone and family. We were glad when they came to us and settled down in our midst.

A TIP TO MOTHERS WHO HAVE BOYS GROWING UP.

A mother-friend of mine had six boys. One of the several good habits she taught them to cultivate as they grew up, was to keep their boots polished.

Whilst in the generation to which I have the honour to belong, Trinity has been par excellence the producing part of Trinity Bight in respect of candidates for Holy Orders—the boys of the present younger generation, I am sorry to say, show little or no inclination for such, and are sadly lacking in ambition.

tre, however, though still within the Bight has shifted to Bonaventure. It, Bonaventure, has produced, and is increasing its output of young men who are preparing themselves with credit for all concerned, for the positions of Leaders in Church and State within the next decade.

Two others, Rev. Robert Baily, and Rev. N. G. Vivian, are recognized as good men and true in the priesthood of Holy Church to-day. Others should, and I believe they will dedicate their lives, and consecrate their talents for use in the same sacred office of the priesthood; than which no temporal office offers such real joys; than which the highest earthly authorities fail to exercise such powers.

The present visit of Rev. Robert E. Laite to his old home at Trinity East, recalls the fact that there are others, in addition to those I have so often referred to, who claim a niche in our local Temple of Fame.

After a few years of practical experience at sea, he entered Boston University, where he spent four years in the study of Arts and Divinity—the latter as supplied by the Congregational Theological College. He was then ordained to the Ministry of the Congregational Church, and during the next two and a half years, he was pastor of the Congregational Church at Hancock, New Hampshire.

Through our very fine weather of the past fortnight had taken a rest for a few days during their visit, it did not prevent them from meeting some old friends and making some new ones. It was their first visit to Trinity, and though they were unable to climb Gun Hill, and other vantage points to "view the landscape o'er," they were impressed with our natural beauties, and will, we believe, be prepared to give a valuable testimonial to that effect. They brought kind messages from Mrs. Mitchell to friends at the Hotel. We reciprocate Mrs. Mitchell's good wishes, and we are glad to hear of her return to Newfoundland, with health restored. Mr. and Mrs. Bourne returned to Greenspond by the Prospero on Wednesday last. Come again.

THE FOOTBALL MATCH.

On Tuesday last, in the presence of "all the world and his wife" as spectators, the first football match that was ever played in Trinity between a town team and a visiting team, was played and played well. It was the return match between the Catalina team and the Trinity team, and resulted in two to one in favor of Catalina. Details of the match will, I presume, be reported by some one who understands the technique of the game. From an observer's standpoint they were "gentlemen all" in their actions towards one another; and the number of goals won, was but a small matter as compared with the spirit of comradeship that such meetings and contests develop. It is only by getting so near to the other fellow, that we find out what a fine fellow he is. Such raw material as is embodied in those teams, if thoroughly worked up under intelligent discipline and on a good field would produce a highly finished article.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS. A.S.—Thank you for the address of Lankester and Sons, Southampton, England, who made the copper kettle.

C.M.—Glad to have heard from you upon your return to Chicago. Very sorry that you could not arrange to visit Trinity; but, I understand.

W.S.T.—Trinity was captured by the French under Count de Hassenville in 1762. No resistance was offered.

W.B.S.—No, the "gull," is not an emblem of mortality, although it appeared in my list of such last week. The word "Gull" was a printer's error for skull; as "hoor space" was also an error for floor space.

Enquirer.—The last person buried in the old Churchyard, Trinity, so far as the register shows, was John L. Cook, aged 8 months, on August 16th, 1880.

H.W.—Your grandfather and grandmother were married in old St. Paul's, Trinity, in 1844, by Rev. Henry James Fitzgerald, M.A.

H.L.—(Sanatorium, St. John's)—1801, "Married George Laite of Axminster, County of Devon, Eng., and Mary Dewey of Trinity."

As the Dewey family lived at Trinity East, and the Late's living there now are known to be living on the old Dewey property; George Laite as their ancestor is the person referred to in the above marriage entry. Coming from Devonshire, probably as a youngster, he came either to Garland or Slade—probably to Garland.

To my many readers I say Good-bye, which is but a contraction of God be with you, till we meet again.—W.J.L. August, 26th, 1922.

DELCO-LIGHT

Spectrified and used by the U.S. Army and Navy, the Red Cross and the Y.M.C.A.

More than four thousand Delco-Light plants were delivered for war work. They were used to supply electric light in camps, storehouses, hospitals, Y. M. C. A. huts, airplane hangars, sub-chasers and other branches of the service.

In Red Cross hospitals at the front, Delco-Light operated life-saving X-ray apparatus. Delco-Light was specified by the Government because it is dependable, efficient, simple to operate, requires little attention, and because it is AIR-COOLED.

The result of Government tests and the satisfactory use of Delco-Light on over 60,000 farms are your assurance that Delco-Light will give you the same dependable service.

It better living conditions, increases farm efficiency, and soon pays for itself in time and labor saved.

"I ken that, father," returned the sensible lass, "but it's a solemn thing no to be married."

A humorous old divine, who had strong feelings on the subject, was in the habit of prefacing the ceremony thus: "My friends," he would say, "marriage is a blessing to some, a curse to many—and a great risk to all. Now do you venture? and no objections being made—Then let us proceed."

THE DEMON DRIVER.
He asked me to ride,
And he opened the door
Of his roadster full wide
But I'd ridden before.
With that demon of speed
And I thought of my nerves,
How they danced like a reed,
As he swung round the curves.

And I thought of my heart,
Beating faster with fear,
When he just missed a cart
And a child playing near;
And I thought of my nerves,
How they danced like a reed,
As he swung round the curves,
And the chances he takes.

A few months before
I had sat at his side,
Heard his great motor roar
In that perilous ride.
There was sweat on my brow
Which grim terror had drawn,
For I thought: "Here and now
Is eternity's dawn."

I clung to my seat
As he drove through the town,
Passing street after street,
Never slackening his speed,
As we swung and we swayed
Through the women and men,
This the vow that I made:
"Never, never again!"

LIFE'S ROAD.

Along life's road I bear my load,
I ope a d, which chafes my faded shoulder;
With rest I travel west among the stumps, a n d boulders. Sometimes I shed some teardrops red, by weariness I'm smitten; the trip's a bore, my legs are sore, where country dogs have bitten. The night is dark and I must park my person in a stable, and ere I sleep I sometimes weep as sorely as I'm able. The night is damp and I must camp where rain and thunder pound me, the night is cold and I must fold a burlap sack around me. And such is life; its storm and strife gave me the peagreen willies; a thousand groan, a thousand moan, where two kids round like fillies. Now comes a knave with hand made grave, he's strongly recommending; he says, "Lie here, and all your fear, and grief will have an ending. This grave," says he, "I guarantee to finish all your troubles; just climb right in, and woe and sin and care will fee like bubbles." "I want no tomb," I say, "my gloom is merely grand stand playing; I'll bear my pack along the track, the sunshine on me playing. Men frown and scowl, they hoot and howl, denouncing life's dark journey, but they all balk when salesmen talk of lots in churchyard ferny."

NO ROOM IN THE SAFE.

The travelling man was standing looking disconsolately at the floor. The hotel keeper was watching him. By and by the hotel keeper said to the travelling man: "Loose something?" The travelling man nodded. "Something valuable?" "Another rod." "Sure you had it when you came here?" "Another rod." "Then why didn't you put it in the safe?" "Couldn't." "What was it?" "My job."

Modern Cooking—Electrically

Just as electricity is displacing other forms of heat in industry, so in the kitchen we find the Westinghouse Automatic Electric Range to be the newest and most modern method of cooking. The special construction of the ovens and the perfectly clean electrical heat combine to cook the food in a way that preserves the flavors and juices of the foods to an astonishing degree. And electricity has neither taste nor odor—hence there are no foreign flavors to spoil the natural taste of the food.

THE HINTELE AND THE ROSE
Jan Ramsay tells an amusing story of a Stirlingshire farmer's visit to a Glasgow business in Liverpool. The son finding the father de trop in his office, one day, ordered him to cross the ferry over Mersey, and inspect the harvest on the other side. On landing, he approached a young woman reaping the sickle in a field of oats, the following dialogue ensued: "Lassie, are you aite bookit the year?" "Sir."

"I am speirin' gif yer aite bookit the year." "I really don't know what you are saying, sir, unless in equal astonishment, I am sure you do ye no understand the plain English?" "Are yer, Miss bookit."

"Might as well have asked the Rev. Mr. Yule, a Perthshire minister, who was in the habit of going to the village on the Sabbath persons in summer, and having people to open air service in the wood where there were a number of inhabitants congregated for the purpose of further discussion of current local events, good man had not time to declare mission when a douse village woman folded her hands complacently over her lap, and looking towards the minister, said: "Eh! you was a grand ye g'ed us this forenoon, Mr. "

"I am glad you were pleased with the forenoon," the minister modestly replied.

"Pleased!" echoed the matron. "I am just so perfectly pleased w' it I cam hame an' gaird Tammas up 'Mathew Henry' and read 'ower again to me."

During a walk through his parish a minister came upon a woman seated at her door reading a book. He at once concluded was the New Testament, but which was "Blind Harry's Wallace?" Expressing his gratification at finding her well employed, he said it was a book which no one would ever grow weary of reading.

"Weel, sir," said she, "I never get it. I've read through an' I dinna kin hoo often, an' I'm afeard o't yet as ever."

"Janet," exclaimed the enraptured minister, "I am so glad to hear you say so; and how happy I would be if all my parishioners were at the same book, and what benefit it would be to themselves, too."

"Janet, what He did and sut for us!"

"Ay, sir, an' that's true," answered Janet, "an' to talk how in soomed through the curran water on a cauld frosty mornin', w' his broadsword in his teeth, it was awfu'."

A city congregation not long since presented their minister with a sum of money, and sent him for a holiday. Soon after, a gentleman, just returned from the Continent, meeting a prominent member of the congregation, said, "Oh, by the by, I met your minister in Germany. He was looking very well—he didn't look as if he wanted a rest."

"No," said the member calmly, "it wasn't him; it was the congregation that was needin' a rest."

"Sir," said the long-haired lessee of a small farm in the North one day as he came up to the door of the Free Church Manse, "this is awfu' weather w' drooth, an' I ha'e come across to see if you wad put up a petition for a shower of rain, for my neeps are just perishing."

"You are a member of the Established Church," said the clergyman addressed. "Why not ask your own minister to intercede on behalf of your turneps?"

"It's no very likely he'll pray for rain for my neeps," was the blunt response, "when his ain hay's no in yet."

"Hoo many o' the elect will there be on the earth noo, think ye, Janet?" said an old crone to another. "Ten, na; naething like it, woman."

"Hoots, Janet, ye think there's naebody good enough for heaven but yerse!" and the minister.

"Deed," replied Janet, "I have sometimes very grave doots about the minister."

"I hope you have made due preparation and are in a fit state to have the Sacrament of Baptism administered to your child, John," said a minister to one of his parishioners, a ploughman, who had called at the Manse in connection with a recent event in his domestic circle.

"Well," said the ploughman, "I have been over extravagant in the way of preparation, maybe. I'm a man o' sma' means, ye ken, but I've gotten in a bottle o' whisky and the best haive o' a kibbock o' cheese."

"Tuts, tuts!" interrupted the minister, "I do not mean preparation of the things that perish, in your mind and heart in proper condition?"

"Do you mean that I'm no sound in the head?" queried the ploughman.

"No, I do not mean that at all," said the divine. "You do not appear to have an intelligent idea of the matter that brought you here." Then, after a minute's reflection, he continued, "How many Commandments are there, John?"

"I couldna tell ye just exactly on the spur o' the moment," said John, scratching his head, "but there's an auld beuk lyin' in the house yonder, gin I had it here I could sure answer yer question."

"John," said the minister, "I am afraid you are not in a fit state to hold up your child for baptism."

"No fit to hand him up?" echoed the ploughman, starting to his feet, and pointing in the attitude best calculated to display his great muscular form. "Me? man, I could hand him up gin he were a bull's strick."

Newer Form of Iron Quickly Increases "Pep" Strength and Energy

"You cannot be well and strong, and full of vigor, force, and power unless your blood is rich in iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician Bellevue Hospital (Out-Door Department) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "It is your red blood that enables you to resist and overcome disease and that nourishes every organ in your body. Without iron your blood becomes thin, pale, and watery. Poor blood cannot nourish your vital organs and as a result you will have pains in your heart or kidneys, indigestion, headaches, and feel all run-down and tired out."

"When your blood lacks iron do not waste your time taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, but directly enrich your blood with the newer form of iron sold by all druggists under the name of Nuxated Iron which is like the iron in spinach, lentils, and apples as in a form easily assimilated into your blood. Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today. Take it for two weeks and if you have not improved, return your money. The following local druggists will sell you Nuxated Iron with this "satisfaction or money back" guarantee. For sale in this city by Thos. Mc Murdo & Co.

Baltic Rum-running Shows Large Profits.

STOCKHOLM. — Legislation in Sweden against drunkenness and consequent heavy taxation on liquor and beer has resulted in very high prices for liquor of every kind. So much so that smuggling of drink into Sweden has developed all along the coast, and it is asserted that about 5000 gallons from the Baltic are landed and sold in Sweden every day. Recently a German ship was said to be anchored outside territorial waters with a cargo of spirits for sale. In order to establish the truth of this alleged rum-running, the correspondent of the Associated Press decided upon a personal investigation. With a friend he embarked on a six footer for this German boat, which was expected to be Sandhamn, and after a pleasant sail in the moonlight came up with the vessel which was riding at anchor with the usual lights showing.

SELLING ON THE HIGH SEAS.

On halting the vessel we were requested to go aboard and were received cordially by the Captain. "Just waiting for somebody else," he said, "but you are very welcome anyhow." Asked down to the cabin, the visitors explained that they were neither buyers of alcohol nor in the service of the customs, but only wanted to learn something first hand about selling spirits on the high seas. The Captain was a young German, about 30 years old. "You take me for a smuggler," he said, "or bootlegger out for business beyond the law, but you are quite mistaken. My name is Ludwig Wolf, formerly of the German navy. I do business which cannot bear examination, and would not for anything in the world infringe on the privileges of Sweden. I am in international waters, and am entitled to trade here as much as I wish with anybody who wants to do business with me. I can offer you the purest and best whiskeys, English and American at about $1.25 a quart. I have the best Danish schnaps at 3 krenner a bottle, and many thousand bottles of German brandy."

BIG MONEY BEHIND IT.

Wolf, referring to himself, explained that he had been paid off from the navy when the armistice was declared, and of hearing of the liquor trade with Norway, he decided to join in it. "I am not dealing for my own account," he said. "This business is organized in Hamburg by big capitalists. Liquor in Germany is very cheap and Scandinavian currency very big and although we sell much cheaper than do registered dealers ashore, the profit for us is nearly 500 per cent." He added he expected to get rid of his present cargo within a week and return for more. He made ten trips last year to Norway, and with the same number to Sweden this year, he expects to clean up enough for a five year's rest.

Clergyman Now Have Small Families.

LONDON. — Clergymen no longer have large families, the members of the Neo-Malthusian Birth Control Society were told by Professor MacBride at a recent conference. Thirty years ago the clergy were reckoned among the most prolific members of the community, and rightly regarded as breeders of talent; but to-day road sweepers, dock laborers and people of that class indulge in large families, while clerical families consist of only one or two children. The Professor declared that every species of animal and plant, if allowed to exercise unchecked its natural powers of reproduction, would in a few years completely overrun the earth and crush out other forms of life.

Couldn't be a Scot.

An expedition was moving through reputedly unexplored African bush. They emerged one day from the dense tropical undergrowth into a small clearing, where they were astonished to see a pile of empty whisky bottles. "There's been a Scotsman here," remarked one of the party, himself a Scot, and proud to think that one of his nation had been first in this lonely spot. His pride was soon turned to anger, for another voice broke in: "Nonsense! If that had been a Scotsman he'd have taken the bottles back!"

Liked the Wobble.

Little Teddie was full of questions. Approaching the aged man on the pier again, he said: "What times does the tide come in, Mr. Fisherman?" The aged man looked at him wearily. "I've told you several times already, you young rascal," he said. "At 5.55." Then little Teddie explained. "Yes, I heard you the first time, but I like to see your whiskers wobble when you say 5.55." The new model Remington has a touch which is the delight of every operator. See it at my office. W. J. EDGAR, Bank Chambers, Agent for A. Milne Fraser, aug24,28

Babies and Old Men Swell New York's Fatalities.

New York—Babies who were too young to realize danger, and old men who couldn't move quickly enough to avoid it, swelled the total of accidental deaths to 3,483 in New York City last year, health department reports reveal. This represents a decrease of 400 from the accidental deaths of 1919. Only 987 of the victims were females. Even among infants the death rate for the males was by far the higher, probably, according to the health officer, because often come to death through inquisitiveness and a natural tendency to seek adventure. "The most important cause of accidental death from a numerical standpoint is the automobile," the report continues. "Last year 849 persons were killed in this city as the result of automobile accidents. This is equivalent to a ratio of almost 15 per 100,000 of population and represents a net increase of one per 100 since 1919."

REGULATIONS SAVE LIFE.

We must not lose sight however of the fact that the number of fatal street accidents has not kept pace with the increase in the number of vehicles using the streets. It is the same ratio between accidents and vehicles obtained to-day as in previous years, so that in reality a big saving in life has been effected through regulation of traffic and the closing of streets for play during certain hours of the day. Almost 12 persons per 100,000—numbering 684—died in falls, says the report; 103 from scaffolds and buildings and 138 from fire escapes and windows. "Certainly there was a needless loss of life," says the health department. "Almost one-third of these deaths occurred among children under five years of age. In other words, among little children who were allowed to go out on fire escapes or to lean out of windows. Surely this indicates gross negligence and calls for active propaganda to educate parents not to permit little tots to engage in such hazardous forms of play."

German Propaganda.

The German propagandist is still abroad in the land. Small and cheap printed pamphlets are being broadcast in the mails with demands that they be read and circulated everywhere. These are "made in Germany," published in Bremen, and sent anonymously to the homes and offices of persons whose names presumably appear in the mailing lists of distributing companies. How the circulation is financed does not appear. Here is "The Monstrous Lie," written by O. Harwich, and published by "The National League, 'Save the Honour.'" The "monstrous lie" is the common affirmation that Germany was responsible for the war. The nature of the pamphlet is clear from this paragraph: "The European tension of the last decade was like a powder barrel into which no spark must fall. But France worked for 43 years on making a fuse, Russia lighted the fuse through the hand of Serbia, and England threw it with full and clear deliberation into the powder-barrel, in order to rule supreme in the world-market." And here is "England's War Guilt," by the same author, described on this title page as "Minister of the Bremen Cathedral and President of the National League for the Vindication of Germany's Honour." This time the argument is that England needed to cement the British empire with blood, that the empire was falling apart and the war therefore "could only appear a state necessity to every thinking Englishman," that "as Prussia could only unify Germany through spilling the blood of all the German races, so England could only cement all the states that belonged to the British empire through the spilt blood of them all." A larger booklet and a more dignified publication, and coming to us from a person whom we know and not anonymously, is "The Counter-charge," dealing "with the matter of war criminals from the German side," by Dr. August Gallinger of the University of Munich. With many citations from documents and the testimony of many witnesses, this volume charges France and England with violation of all the rules of war and the principles of common humanity in their treatment of German prisoners. Clemenceau was a "brave" and "conscious liar." The sentence "wanted justice for all," but "by means of the most detestable methods the German have been branded as a criminal by having invented crimes laid at his door," and the allied nations "have throttled justice in cold blood."

In our judgment the defenders of Germany will do better to abandon every method of propaganda, anonymous or otherwise, for many years to come. It will be well for them to say little and "saw wood." They have stripped themselves as a people for the long and hard climb back to the higher levels of industrial and political prosperity. They should concentrate on that upward struggle. To rehash the old war questions now will only keep the fire of animosity hot and do the German course

Not so Easy as it Looks.

Put a coin on the edge of a table, with half the coin only resting on it, and half overhanging. This may seem three yards away, and close one eye with your hand; next advance and try to knock the coin off the table with one finger, keeping the one eye shut all the while. The odd thing is that a one-eyed man would be able to do this quite easily, because his single eye has adapted itself to its work, while ours are so accustomed to share the task of seeing that one cannot really work well without the other's help.

A Good Card Trick.

From a pack of cards take one complete suit, and arrange in the following order:—3, 8, 7, 1, Q, 6, 4, 2, J, K, 10, 5 and 5 with the three at the top face downwards. This must be done without anyone knowing. Now you are ready to begin your trick. You put three cards to the bottom of pack, saying, as you do so, "O N E spells 'one.'" For instance, 3 is the top card, so when you say "O" place 3 behind the pack, and so on. When you have done this the next card will be the ace or 1. Go on in the same way, "T W O," each time placing a card for each letter at the bottom. When you have got so far as the king, you will have all your cards in the correct order of the suit, and you lay them all down on the table face upwards in turn.

Warships Sacrificed to Assure Better Warships.

LONDON.—Having found no buyers for the great group of battleships which the Washington conference decreed should be scrapped, Great Britain is using the monsters as targets for the gunners of the Royal Navy and the members of the Royal Air Force. Like the United States and France, this country has a dozen or more specially fine cruisers and one-time dreadnoughts which must be relegated to the ignominious junk pile. Thunderer, Monarch, Conqueror, Colossus, Lion, Ajax, Centurion, King George V., Princess Royal, Erin and Orion, monsters of 20,000 or more tons, once the pride of the Seven Seas, are all doomed. Costing more than $15,000,000 originally, junk dealers have offered the government only $20,000 apiece for them. The navy is now engaged in a series of target tests on the famous battleships Agamemnon and Superb, which, like their sister ships, are to find their graves in the ocean at the hands of the gunners and jack tars that once manned them. The admiralty is trying by these tests to determine how a direct hit can be prevented from passing from the turret down the ammunition tube.

EXPLOSION PRACTICE.
In the battle of Jutland, Invincible, Indefatigable and Queen Mary blew up because of a flash passing from the ammunition tube to the magazines below. So Superb is now in the English Channel and is being shelled at punishing ranges to see whether or not the flash of explosion passes down to the powder and shell magazines under given conditions. Agamemnon, too, may soon need a successor. She is a moving target, more difficult to hit than Superb, which is stationary. She is propelled by oil. The supply of oil is turned on, her engines are started, and the engineers flee from her before she gathers too much headway. Her speed as well as her steering apparatus are controlled by wireless in another ship. The most exciting part of these tests is that played by the sloop Snadragon. She is responsible for taking accurate motion pictures of what happens to the target as the result of the shots. At times she runs the risk of being hit by the monster armor-piercing projectiles as well as being rammed by the 20,000 ton Agamemnon.

Cowboy Baronet.

"A TERROR FOR MORMONS"—INTERESTING ENGAGEMENT.

An interesting engagement announced is that of the Rev. Sir Gentile Cave-Brown-Cave, Bart, and Emma Julia, daughter of Sir Digby and Lady Pigot, of The Lodge, Sheringham, Norfolk.

The lady's father was Controller of the Stationery Office until 1905, and was knighted in 1906. He is one of our keenest ornithologists.

Sir Gentile is the celebrated "Cowboy Baronet," who, after a life of adventure in the Wild West, succeeded to the ancient family honour in 1907 on his father's death and took Holy Orders. He was ordained to the curacy of St. Andrew's, Walthamstow, in 1920. He was born on September 3, 1869.

The bridesmaid's mother is the daughter of the Hon. A. H. Macdonald-Moreton, Largs, Argyllshire.

Sir Gentile at one time held the title of champion roper of steers. He has seen service in the Navy and the British and American Armies. He fought in the Boer Rebellion, the second Burma War, the Spanish-American War, and as an R.G.A. gunner during the Great War; has been frozen in for four months in an Arctic expedition, and has punched cows in five American States.

He was "Kid Cave of Half Circle Ranch," breaking in wild horses at $2 each when his father died, and he succeeded to the title. He returned to England, found the family estate in Stretton-on-le-Feld, Leicestershire, worthless, owing to mortgages, and went back to America disappointed. In 1910, it is said, he advertised in the New York papers for a wife stating that if any woman under seventy would do it he would pay off the mortgages, but the title went begging.

It may be added that he is a "terror" for Mormons.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

Field Marshal Returns to the Whisky Business.

LONDON.—Field Marshal Earl Haig has been elected a director of the Distillers' Company at the annual meeting held in Edinburgh. The chief product of the company is whiskey. There are some people who think it rather detracts from the Field Marshal's dignity and reputation to be interested in a business of that sort, but their disapproval is hardly as vocal as it would be in America. The Haigs have long been financially interested in whiskey. Earl Haig is usually credited with being thorough in all that he does, and he intends to be thorough in the whiskey business. When he was asked to join the Board of Directors he consented. It was stated, "on the understanding that he would be no mere figure-head, but would take his full share of the work as well as of the responsibility attached to the office." He likes to have plenty to do. The Distillers' Company is planning to increase greatly its whiskey output, both in Ireland as well as Scotland. It has acquired half the shares of the United Distillers of Belfast, and expects soon to acquire the entire concern.

Bank of England to Have Better Quarters.

LONDON.—The long projected rebuilding of the Bank of England will start almost immediately, the Daily Express understands. A meeting of the Directors is to be held soon to make the necessary financial arrangements. It is understood that the plans to be adopted are those of Herbert Baker, the architect who collaborated with Sir Lutyens for the new capital at Delhi. Mr. Baker was also the designer of the South African government's administrative buildings at Pretoria, and of the cathedrals at Capetown, Pretoria and Salisbury (Rhodesia) and the Cecil Rhodes Memorial on Table Mountain. The staff of the Bank of England is now double what it was shortly before the war, largely owing to the vast growth of the National Debt, and the existing accommodations are utterly inadequate. Sections of the staff have been working for a long time at various places in the vicinity of the Bank.

HISTORIC WALL.

A special committee of the directors, including Cecil Lubbock, have been considering alternative schemes for the rebuilding. The idea of razing the whole of the existing one-story building to the ground, was it is understood, abandoned, partly on sentimental grounds and partly because of the difficulties of obtaining accommodation for the staff during the reconstruction. The present proposal is to retain the outer wall, which abuts on Threadneedle Street, St. St. Bartholomew's Lane, Lothbury and Princess Street. This wall, which entirely surrounds the site of between three and four acres, was erected from the designs of Sir John Seames about 130 years ago, shortly after the Gordon Riots, when the bank clerks, sword and pistol in hand defended the bank against a furious mob. The wall is in the classic Grecian style, and in some places is 40 feet high. Security demanded that it have no windows and the architect achieved the difficult task of making the wall look ornamental by masking it with Corinthian columns and blank windows. The new building will rise within the wall to a height of 70 or 80 feet above it, and will thus be nearly 120 feet in height.

Deaf and Dumb Wed.

A deaf and dumb wedding recently took place in the parish church of Beddington, Surrey, between Mr. James Lee, of Brighton, and Miss Emily Wilcott, of Beddington. Corner. The bridegroom is deaf and dumb, the bride is also deaf and dumb. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. H. A. Hodgson, the rector, and he was assisted by the Rev. E. B. James, missionary from the Royal Association in Aid of the Deaf and Dumb, who acted as interpreter.

Why Does A Cup of Tea In the Woods Taste Better?

Some of the "kill joys" will tell you it is imagination. But you mustn't mind them for that is what they lack.

The joys of trout are not for them. The music of the salmon reel they will never know. The beauty of the berry patch, the red of the partridge berry, the blue of the whort berry and the satisfaction of the well filled basket are not for them.

Even the beauty of our Newfoundland scenery, the glory of the Topsail sunset will leave them cold. But let us forget them and let us make for the old Southside Hill, now carpeted with the green and red of the partridge berry, or out to Topsail, or up to Manuels River, or let us make for the old "Cow Path" leading to beautiful Holyrood (and along the said "Cow Path" the whorls never grew thicker than they do this year) and let us "boil the kettle," and I bet you it will be a good "cup of tea," unless your grocer has done you dirty altogether. For the secret of it is, you steep the tea as soon as the kettle boils, and any old tea will taste pretty good, I'll bet you.

But it is just as well to take the best tea with you, it doesn't cost much more. The last time we were out we had a splendid tea and it only cost us 65c. lb. It had a sort of artistic name—"Mount View". We bought it at Henry Blair's. They had another good tea there at 80c. per pound, but the clerk said "the best is the best," and we believe him.

Freshly boiled water is the secret of the cup of tea you drink out camping, fishing, berry picking or picnicking, but it is just as well to have the best tea. You can get it for 65c. per lb. at Blair's "Mount View", that is the slogan.
