FRIDAY EVENING, JUNE 21, 1872

TO ADVERTISERS.

Respectful parties who have contracted advertisements in the WEEKLY MERCURY must bring in their fresh advertisements, or give us notice of the same, on Saturday, before the first side of the next week's paper is printed.

Col. Higginbotham's Nomination

Our readers will see by the report in another column that Col. Higginbotham's nomination for the North Riding has been confirmed. We have no room to-day for any lengthened remarks on the subject, but must congratulate the reformers of the County on the auspicious result.

The Meeting To-Night

In compliance with a numerous and respectfully signed requisition the Mayor has called a public meeting to be held this evening in the Town Hall, in order to elicit an expression of public opinion upon the action of the Council whether or not the rate-payers deem it right that the Exhibition building shall be closed for all time except for Exhibition purposes.

To our mind the difficulty can very easily be solved. If a majority of the ratepayers of the Town whose money bought the land and put up the buildings, pronounce in favour of granting the building for the purpose asked, then it is the duty of the members of the Council to do so.

Complimentary Banquet to Lord Lisgar

A complimentary dinner was given this evening by the citizens of Montreal to His Excellency the Governor-General, on his departure from Canada. The dinner took place in the large dining-room of St. Lawrence Hall, which was decorated with flags and banners.

being versed in the accomplishments of society and political life. (Cheers.) Taking a retrospective view he found that most of the anticipations he had formed at his first entrance to Canada had been realized, and all within three years or so.

As to the Public Works, when he first came to Canada, he had not expected to find the Pacific Railway so soon commenced. It was certainly a vast undertaking, but he believed the united energy of the people of Canada could accomplish it.

The 30th Wellington Battalion

The correspondent of the Mail, speaking of our Battalion, says, "The 30th Wellington, for companies, marched from the Great Western station in rear of the 2nd. This is in every respect a crack corps, with a total strength of 605 men."

CHAPTER III.
WHAT BENNETT AND THE FISHERMEN FOUND ON THE ROCKS.

The stout fishing-boat breasted the huge waves in a way which gave confidence to its occupants. Nevertheless, it was tossed hither and thither in a manner which alarmed those who watched it from the shore, and to whom it was oft-times entirely hidden by the billows, which broke over and seemed to swallow it. Every breath was stopped, every heart seemed to stand still, each time it sank behind a billow; but in a moment or two it was visible, topped the succeeding crest, and a slight thankful relief was evoked by the sight.

In this manner it receded steadily from the shore, and began to draw near the rocks. The anxiety of its inmates increased as they approached the dark jagged masses which the waves were whitening with their foam, for a sea might catch them at an unlucky moment and dash the boat on one of the sharp edges, with what result they shuddered to think. There was only one point which it would be safe for them to touch—a little creek between two higher rocks at the side nearest the shore, where the force and fury of the waves were broken. But the entrance into the recess was narrow, the rock on either side was sharp, and a violent lurch as they entered it might prove fatal. It was therefore with excessive care that they watched an opportunity to get within the opening.

While the attention of every one was occupied by this endeavor, Kenneth, who had no share in the management of the boat, was engaged in earnestly scanning the tops of the rocks in hope of seeing the form which he had beheld from the window. It is true he was disappointed, though, as the wreck had occurred on the other side, this and the height of the rocks, were they near them, could easily conceal any living being who might be sheltering in a crevice.

As they kept the boat off, and on waiting a favourable chance to pass into the creek, Kenneth suggested that a shout should be raised to attract the attention of any one who might be on the rocks. This was done. Cutting their exertions they sent forth one loud simultaneous cry, which, though it sounded feeble amidst the hoarse roar of the waves, must still have been discernible at some distance, and all eyes were directed to the various points of the rocks to note if it was responded to; but nothing resulted from it.

No form came into view.
"There's our chance," exclaimed Dan Fitzroy, with sudden vehemence, as a human cry was heard in the rushing of the waves. "Put steady, lads; put steady."

Strangely they bent to their oars, and Dan keeping a firm hand on the helm, the boat was sent safely past the sharp edges of the rock, and next moment they were sheltered from the wind, and in much smaller water.

Being a place where boats were often moored, a heavy iron ring had been fastened in the rock, and to this the cable was at once made fast. Then they prepared to clamber up the slippery shelving side, and each face looked anxiously expecting for what they were about to behold.

They looked for something sorrowful to witness, but what they did find was far more awful than they dreamed.

Wedged into a cleft of the rock was the fragment of the wreck which could be seen from the shore. Several of the large isolated fragments lay here and there upon the rocks, beyond the reach of the waves. As they were beholding these things, their attention was immediately attracted by a human form, naked and bleeding, and bending over a bundle which he held in his arms. His hair was long and nearly white as snow, yet he was not an old man, not much above forty. His complexion was swarthy, as if he had lived under a tropical sun, yet he had European features, and his eyes though dark were not black and piercing like those of the men of the south.

These facts were well noted by Kenneth and his fishermen, for his appearance, his manner, and his attitude had made them stand still and gaze at him in astonishment. He saw them, but their presence produced no visible effect on him, his attention being more occupied with the bundle which he held in his arms, over which he bent, and moved to and fro with the slow rocking motion of his body.

On the rock at his feet lay the body of a woman, evidently dead, for her face was turned to the sky, and its eyes being closed, and the long masses of wet hair being pushed carefully away on either side.

The Windsor Camp.

WINDSOR, June 19.
The camp is still in its transition stage, and in receipt of constant accessions to its strength. The St. Thomas cavalry, with Lt. Col. Cole, officer commanding the first regiment of cavalry, arrived last evening; and this morning the second regiment of cavalry, Captain Stuart, marched into camp fully accoutred. The London and St. Thomas squadrons have already been served out with new Snider breech-loading carbines. Both corps have turned out well, and are amply supplied as regards clothing and equipments. Very little was done with either cavalry or artillery lines to-day, and indeed the same may be truthfully said as regards the camp as a whole. The efforts at preparation are not fully completed, and so much time has been spent in attempts to impart a degree of practical acquaintance with intended battalion and brigade work that little else has been thought of. Company drill has been the main resource of those who are striving to make every moment tell; but with one Battalion at the rifle range and fully half the remainder on fatigue, very little other than preparatory work has been done.

BREAKFAST—EPPE'S COCOA—GRAPEFUL AND COMFORTING.—By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine and purest of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which will save us many heavy doctors' bills.—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Each packet is labeled "James Epps & Co., Homeopathic Chemists, London." Also, makers of Epps's Milky Cocoa (Cocoa and Condensed Milk).

Farmers and "Horse Men" are continually inquiring what we know of the utility of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, and in reply, we would say, that we heard from hundreds who have used them with gratifying results; that is also, our experience.

IN AID OF THE Public Library of Kentucky,
At Louisville, Kentucky.

By authority of the act of the Legislature of KENTUCKY, the Trustees will give the SECOND GRAND GIFT CONCERT in the great hall of the Public Library building in Louisville, Ky., on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1872.

This magnificent hall, known as Webster Hall, is the largest, most centrally located, and best arranged for large and fashionable audiences of any in Louisville, and is fitted up in superb style. The building has a front of 100 feet on Fourth street by a depth of 200 feet, four stories in height, and was recently purchased for the Public Library at a cost of $200,000. Three large rooms are now fitted up for a library, and contain about 20,000 volumes and a museum of 100,000 specimens, now open and free to the gratuitous use and enjoyment of all citizens of every State in the Union. It is the purpose of the Trustees by the Grand Gift Concert now announced to raise the money with which to pay the balance of the purchase money due upon the Public Library building, to enlarge the library, and to so enow the institution as to make it self-sustaining and forever beyond the necessity of calling upon the individual who uses the books for the contribution of a single cent toward its support.
