VOL. 6--No. 49. CHATHAM, NEW BRUNSWICK, OCTOBER 7, 1880.

D. G. SMITH, EDITOR & PROPRIETOR. FOR TERMS--See Business Notice.

thinks is likely, to be recognized as the sixth sense. A French journal is responsible for the following: During a recent violent storm, a young man was walking with an unlighted carriage lamp in his hand. Suddenly he experienced a severe shock in his arm, and concluded that the lightning had either struck him or some point very near. But what was his astonishment to find that his lamp had been lighted! Several persons near him witnessed the remarkable phenomenon. The chief obstacle to the success of Edison's electric lamp has been the speedy destruction of the delicate carbon threads which furnished the light. Mr. Swan of Newcastle, England, claims to have removed this difficulty. He exhausts the air to a high degree in the glass containing vessel, or globe, and heats the carbon to a higher temperature than it is likely to ever again experience, hermetically sealing the lamp while the carbon is hot. M. Amat recently gave the French Academy an account of some remarkable displays of atmospheric electricity observed in the north of the Sahara. Without insulating himself to prevent the escape of the electricity into the ground, he could, by passing a pocket-comb through his hair or beard, produce sparks of nearly two inches in length! Even more striking electrical phenomena were exhibited by the tails of herons, the horns of the animals' hoofs acting as insulators. Prof. Tait, of Edinburgh, contends that people must be mistaken in supposing they see a lightning flash ascend or descend. The duration of a lightning flash is less than the millionth part of a second, and the eye cannot possibly follow movements of such extraordinary rapidity. He thinks the origin of the mistake may be found in the fact that the central parts of the retina are more sensitive, by practice, than the others, and, therefore, that the portion of the flash which is seen directly affects the brain sooner than the rest. Hence a spectator looking toward either end of a flash, very naturally fancies that end to be its starting point. The President of the London Anthropological Institute has attempted a solution of the long standing and perplexing question of the means employed by ancient peoples to lift the huge stones which now stand as monuments or in groups as tombs and temples. Some of the hills tribes of India still erect high stone as monuments, and it is reported that the members of one of these tribes recently carried a stone weighing 20 tons up a high hill in the course of a few hours! The ponderous block was enclosed in a wooden frame-work so arranged that a large number of men could lift at the same time, and in this simple way it was borne to the hill-top a height of four thousand feet. It has been believed that the ancients may have practiced this primitive engineering.

The electric light is now used to produce scenic effects, such as the rising sun, rainbows, etc. A balloon society has been organized in England for the purpose of advancing the cause of aerial navigation. A German experimenter has found that warm and insular climates are unsuitable for the sugar-beet, which is richest where early cold follows a hot summer. The observations of a Scotch chemist have shown that tree growth may be from ten to forty per cent greater in a warm and dry season than in one which is wet and cold, heat appearing to be much more important to the development of trees than moisture. By enclosing in a Goussier tube sulphuric barium, or some other substance which is rendered phosphorescent by sunlight, and passing through it a weak but constant electric current, Dr. Phipson claims that a uniform and agreeable light can be obtained, at a cost lower than that of gas. Prof. J. Norman Lockyer's theory that the so-called chemical elements are in reality compound bodies, is based upon the results of his researches with the spectroscopic study of the sun and stars. It is interesting to note that purely chemical investigations point to the same conclusion. The Equinox are said to possess a wonderful power of eye-sight, so that objects become visible to them at a much greater distance than to Americans or Europeans. This remarkable keenness of vision enables them to spread intelligence by means of sign-telegraphy over hundreds of miles of territory in a single day. Letters from Senegal state that the survey of the Niger is in active progress, with the prospect of completion by the month of May, 1881. Three topographical parties have been formed to determine the position of the intended ports and the route of railway by which it is proposed to connect these rivers. In a late paper, Dr. Hughes Bennett, of Edinburgh University, stated that the tendency of modern physiology is to ascribe to a man a sixth sense. It there be placed before a man two small tubes, the one of lead and the other of wood, both gilded so as to look exactly alike, and both of the same temperature, not one of the five senses could tell the man which is lead and which is wood. He could tell this only by lifting them, and this sense of weight, Dr. Bennett beginning establishment, after a good season's work. A BREAK—The tug, Champion, broke her walking-beam bearing when entering the lower bay yesterday morning from Kouchibouguet. The tug St. George and Gladstone were sent to her assistance.

Teachers' Institute. According to announcement of the Secretary to the Committee of the Normal-School Teachers' Institute, a general meeting of that body is to be held in Chatham, commencing to-day. A meeting is announced for this evening in Masonic Hall which is to be "public."

She then said they were in the back yard. I ran through the verandah and met Loggie, Muirhead and Barry near the garden and on asking where my brother was they said he had gone in the back door. I ran up stairs and Mrs. Crimmin had the door open and Dan was coming in all covered with blood and said he was out. I saw the crowd in the yard and came up to see if I could get a policeman or any help. I saw a man I met up the back road, while I was by the door. The other person met Mr. Buckley and sent him down. I went up and assisted in the arrest.

MAN'S CRIMES. Stevelore, was sworn and after testifying to the meeting of the parties already named by previous witnesses, on the front street said—Capt. Barry wanted to see a party, as he was going away next morning and said I'd have to go to tell the mistress I'd be gone for a few minutes. When this happened I heard a great running coming down the street. I stopped to see what it was and the next thing I saw was Capt. Barry "in hula." Another man went for Mr. Muirhead. There was a couple more coming and I stopped one and told him to "leave them alone, he was far enough." The next thing Capt. Barry, Muirhead and Loggie were gone out of sight. I ran up the lane as far as my back gate. "Then I saw Mr. Loggie in my hands and asked him where the other two were, and he said they were "in back." At this moment there was a crowd of men coming in the back gate a short distance away. We had a good piece to run to get to the back door. Mr. Loggie kept on and went through the gate into the flower garden. I turned around and saw the crowd of men coming around Mr. Moore's house. I saw Mr. Loggie in my hands and asked him where the other two were, and he said they were "in back." At this moment there was a crowd of men coming in the back gate a short distance away.

POOR COPY

Leap Year Proposals.

"Charlie, I do think it's a shame for a good-looking, likely fellow like you to insist upon remaining a bachelor. It's a duty you owe to society in general and yourself and some pretty girl in particular to get married."

"You marry me! Say 'Yes,' quick, before she comes in, and then you'll be safe from her."
