

CHARGES CHURCH WITH INTRIGUE

Spanish Government Openly Claims That Cardinals Secretly Arranged Demonstration at San Sebastian in Order to Force King to Get Rid of Premier Canalejas.

Madrid, Aug. 5.—Simultaneous with the rushing of troops to San Sebastian to cope with an uprising which the government fears may flow out of the holding there next Sunday of the interdicted demonstration of the clerical forces in protest against the government's stand in its dispute with the Vatican, Premier Canalejas issued a statement today outlining his policy in the premises. In it Senor Canalejas declares that the demonstration would have been permitted elsewhere than at San Sebastian or Bilbao, in fact that he desires it to be held in order that its strength may be shown. He says however, that the law will be enforced by troops and that his adversarial will be responsible for whatever happens.

The government openly charges that the scheduled manifestation at San Sebastian was secretly arranged in Rome at a meeting of five cardinals included among whom were Cardinals Merry Del Val and Rampolla, the object being to bring pressure upon King Alfonso to get rid of Premier Canalejas and appoint a new and more friendly ministry with which the negotiations between the government and the Vatican could be resumed. If Canalejas did not fall, it is charged, that Mr. Vico, the papal nuncio was to be recalled to Rome.

Premier Canalejas declared today that he knew of the alleged intrigue making an apparent religious movement and that King Alfonso had been informed.

San Sebastian, Aug. 5.—The republicans have tendered their services to the governor for the maintenance of order during the proposed demonstration Sunday.

Numerous clericals are coming here on foot from various parts of the four nearby provinces. Two trains from Bilbao were so overcrowded with passengers that half of them were ordered to disembark en route.

A regiment of cavalry has been ordered here from Saragossa.

It is officially announced that the manifestation scheduled to be held at San Sebastian on Sunday has been abandoned.

The Catholic newspapers will publish manifestos explaining the decision.

A NEW MOVEMENT FOR WORLD PEACE MAY FOLLOW DA FONSECA'S VISIT

New York, Aug. 5.—Marshal Hermes da Fonseca, president-elect of Brazil, will arrive here to spend four weeks as the guest of the nation. He will visit President Taft at Beverly, Secretary Knox at Valley Forge, and a number of inland cities. He is to be inaugurated president of his country in November.

Brazil is second to the United States in population on this side of the world, and has an area one-fourth as large as this country. It is rapidly forcing ahead as a world power. Brazil has an annual foreign commerce valued at $500,000,000, and is entering on a period of greater material and commercial expansion. Its Atlantic coast line is twice as long as that of the United States, and out of the Amazon river flows four times the volume of water that empties into the Gulf of Mexico from the Mississippi. Rio de Janeiro, its capital, has a population of a million, and Amazonas, its largest state, is nearly three times as large as Texas. We buy from the big South American republic $90,000,000 worth of coffee, rubber, hides, skins, and cocoa, and other products, and sell her about $15,000,000 worth of chemicals, steel automobiles and similar manufactured products every year. The visit of Da Fonseca will probably promote the exchange of commerce and cement friendly relations.

Da Fonseca gets his title of Marshal from holding the highest position in the Brazilian army. But while he is pre-eminently a soldier, he is also a statesman and an advocate of peace.

MILO DE OJEDA,

Spain's Ambassador to the Vatican. Madrid, Aug. 5.—It now looks as though a pronounced rupture is sure to come between the government and the Vatican as a climax to the religious crisis in Spain. Ojeda, Spain's ambassador to the Vatican, has been recalled, and Premier Canalejas, who is standing with King Alfonso for the manifesto allowing protestant sects to display the insignia of public worship outside their churches, is preparing for a supreme battle.

Don Jaime, the pretender to the throne, says he will lead the Catholics in the battle he believes is to

A LANDSLIDE BURIED TRAIN; THREE DEAD

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 5.—A landslide on the Erie Railroad five miles west of here, early today, caused the wreck of an eastbound fast freight train and the loss of three lives. The dead:—James J. Bardley, engineer, of Port Jarvis; Howard E. Taylor, fireman, of Port Jervis; George Carpenter, brakeman, of Jersey City.

The landslide is believed to have been due to a heavy rain which loosened the hillside and caused large quantities of rock to crash down upon and block the tracks. The freight hit the obstruction with terrific impact, and was badly wrecked, eleven refrigerator cars being piled up in a tangled heap around the locomotive. Wrecking crews were rushed to the scene to clear the road.

LIGHTNING DOES MUCH DAMAGE AT DARLING LAKE

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 5.—The Gloucester schooner Pythian, which is on a halibut trip and which was ashore at Seal Island, was towed to Liverpool today by the Yarmouth tug Hugh D. The vessel is leaking somewhat, but is not damaged otherwise.

Bishop Derrick of the A. M. E. Conference made it known today that there would be no changes this year in the N. S. and N. B. pastorates.

Darling's Lake was visited at 1 o'clock this morning by a severe electrical storm which caused great damage to property, the fluid entered Harvey Churchill's house and went down the chimney, none of the inmates were injured but the house was badly wrecked. Mr. Churchill is insured for $700. A sawmill with its machinery and contents owned by Irving Churchill was completely destroyed the mill being burned to the ground. There is no insurance.

A barn owned by Arthur Wyman was badly damaged, the ends being torn out. There is no insurance. The storm must have centered at Darling's Lake as no damage is reported from other sections of the country.

CANADA'S APPLE CROP DECLINES

But Other Apple Producing Countries Show Gain Over Previous Years—How Outlook Stands At Present.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 5.—C. P. Rothwell, of Martinsburg, W. Va., secretary of the international apple shippers' association, submitted his annual report today on the condition of the apple crop on Aug. 1, compared with the same date a year ago.

"If the present prospects are maintained," he says, "the country will have plenty of apples of better than average quality. The Pacific states will produce one of the heaviest crops ever harvested."

Canada, not including Nova Scotia, shows a decline of 30 per cent. The New England group shows an increase of about 40 per cent. Upon the question of quality the situation is decidedly better than one year ago. New England, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio all promise much better quality.

TREASURE FOUND IN SUNKEN SHIP

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 5.—Believing they have a $400,000 treasure in their grasp men are guarding night and day what is believed to be the wreck of the steamer Atlantic off Long Point in Lake Erie. The Atlantic was sunk in collision in 1852 by the steamer Ogdenburg, and 150 lives were lost. Many were drowned in their berths. The wreck lies in 45 feet of water. In the hold, it is believed, divers found two boxes containing $400,000 in gold. The wreck of the Atlantic is virtually intact. No skeletons were found in the superficial examination.

STORY OF A CONFESSION IS UNTRUE

Crippen Did Not Admit Wife Slaying

Neither He Nor Miss LeNeve Made Any Statement That is Material To Charge Hanging Over Them.

Special to The Standard. Quebec, Aug. 5.—Despite rumors which have been in circulation that Dr. Crippen had made a full confession of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, it is now definitely known that the story was a fabrication. Neither Crippen nor Miss LeNeve have made any statement material to the charge hanging over them.

The first report of Crippen's alleged confession was denied emphatically by Sir Lomer Gouin, premier and attorney general of the province, who said that no statement had been made by either prisoner. It is almost certain in spite of the fact that Inspector Dew would endeavor to suppress the news of a confession if one were made, that the local French Canadian officials would give it out to their friends and the Quebec newspapers.

"Un Canard Absolu." A later report of a confession by Crippen was instantly denied by his father, Joseph Marin, whose gray military mustache bristled with indignation when he heard about the report. "Ma foi," said Morin, "je vous assure c'est un canard absolu."

In a conversation with a deputy jailer, Crippen said earnestly, "I will make no fight here. I will make my fight in London."

London, Aug. 5.—When asked to-night respecting the reported confession of Dr. Crippen, officials of Scotland Yard said that no telegrams had been received from Inspector Dew except those reporting Crippen's arrest. Arthur Newton, the well-known solicitor, who has undertaken the defence of Crippen, places absolutely no credence in the reports of a confession current in Quebec. Mr. Newton said tonight:—

"Having been approached on behalf of Crippen by his friends in London, I called to Crippen that I was willing to undertake his defence if he would promise not to speak about the case to any one and not answer any questions. I thought it wise to give Crippen this advice, although I am quite sure that such an experienced and fair officer as Inspector Dew would not take the smallest advantage of my client. At the same time I thought it well to be cautious, knowing something of American methods."

Crippen's Cabled Reply. "I have received a telegram from Crippen. This is the message:— 'Will accept you to defend me and adhere to all your instructions. Thanks to my friends.' 'What do I think about the case?' continued Mr. Newton. 'It is rather early in the day to say anything beyond what every one had seen in the newspapers. It seems to me, however, upon the evidence already available, that the case against Crippen is not one to discourage me in the smallest degree. As far as I can see, there is no kind of evidence that murder has actually been committed. It would, however, perhaps be as well for me not to go further into my views at present, although I am sure, in view of the statements in various newspapers, that you will give publicity to the fact that I am in telegraphic communication with Crippen, and that the statement that he has confessed is altogether without foundation."

BADEN POWELL ON BOY SCOUTS

Famous British General Talks of Boy Scout Movement Which is Spreading to All Parts of Civilized World—Many Qualifications Necessary for a Good Scout.

Special to The Standard.

Quebec, Aug. 5.—Lieutenant General R. S. Baden-Powell, K. C. B., the chief scout, leaves today for Vancouver whence he will work back to the east, being due to return here about Sept. 3. This morning he went to see the Y. M. C. A.

He was interviewed last evening at a banquet given by his host, Lieut. Col. W. Molson MacPherson.

In reply to his toast, General Baden-Powell said that while he did not aspire to any very high reputation as an orator, he would be glad to answer any question that might be put to him.

The scout's oath compelled them to observe three rules: To do their duty to God and king; to help other people at all times and to obey the scout law. If a boy wants to become a boy scout he must join a patrol. Patrols were usually composed of boys of much the same age. One boy was chosen as patrol leader and another was elected as corporal. Several patrols could form a "troop" under an officer called a scout master. Every patrol was named after some animal and each scout in it must be able to imitate the cry of that animal in order to communicate with his comrades. Thus there were the wolves, eagles, crows.

Scouts had to pass tests to win a badge of first or second class scout, that of first class consisted of a brass arrowhead with the motto "Be prepared." Second class badge is merely motto without arrowhead. They had to know about woodcraft, which included spying and acquaintance with nature. They had to practice chivalry, "To play the game," to do at least one good turn every day.

Then they must practice life saving, practice the actual things that had to be done, for instance they must know how to cover their mouth and nose with a wet handkerchief to enable them to breathe in smoke; how to tear a sheet into strips and make a rope to escape from fire; how to open a manhole to let air into a gassy sewer; how to lift and carry an insensible person; how to collar, save and revive apparently drowned people and so on.

Asked if the movement did not savor of militarism the general replied in the negative. Their object was to discourage drill and routine; to develop, not to destroy a boy's initiative. The boys were taught to make the most of their God-given faculties. They wanted them to grow up observant, chivalrous, dutious, self-reliant and kind hearted.

The organization was spreading to every country and the patrols of the different countries were exchanging visits, instances of which he cited.

VICTORY FOR MR. HAYS AND GRAND TRUNK

One Thousand Men Will Lose Their Places On The Grand Trunk System The Recent Strike.

Special to The Standard.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—Supt. Morley Donaldson, of the Grand Trunk, made the following statement after his return from Toronto today: "The opinion in Toronto and all along the main line is that the strike settlement is an absolute victory for Mr. Hays and the G. T. R. One thousand men will lose their positions over the whole Grand Trunk system as a result of the strike."

"The men who will lose their positions will do so because they have committed acts of intimidation, or the like. The rest will be taken back as rapidly as possible. The men who have come on during the strike, however, will be allowed to stay as long as they wish, and where the places are filled by these new men, the men who were on strike will just have to be patient and wait."

THEY PELTED HIM WITH A "SNOWBALL"

Washington Man Claims He Was Soaked With Cracked Ice And Strawberry Juice On Hot Day.

Washington, Aug. 4.—To be snow-balled with the official thermometer showing 91 in the shade was the unique experience here this morning of a short little man named Daniel Cohen. It made him hot, and he rushed to the Municipal Building as fast as he could and demanded a warrant.

"What's the matter?" asked Assistant District Attorney Weyrich. "He hit me with a snowball," was the unexpected reply.

Mr. Weyrich made sure that two policemen were within call before he soothingly told the complainant that it was August and snowballs were out of season.

"That's foolish," was the indignant retort. "and this snowball was flavored with strawberry. I didn't mind that part, but it was too squishy."

Cohen then explained that in the course of an altercation with an ice cream vendor the peddler had taken a handful of cracked ice soaked in strawberry juice, which is sold to children under the name of snowballs and had dashed the melting mass into his face. The warrant for the peddler's arrest was then issued.

HIGH FLYERS ON A STRIKE

German Aviators Threaten To Quit Air Speeding Because Of Police Ordinance To Which They Object.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—For the first time in history a strike of aviators is threatened. The trouble is brewing here and is all in consequence of a local ordinance prescribing the conditions under which aeroplaning may be conducted in Berlin and the province of Brandenburg.

The objectionable ordinance forbids spectacular or cross-country flying unless the operator of a machine possesses an aviator's certificate and has notified the police authorities three days in advance of his flight. Flying over towns and villages is absolutely forbidden under any circumstances, and breaches of the law are punishable by fine.

The ordinance has stirred the aviators to indignant protests, and 16 men who have been practising at the Johannisthal grounds preparatory to appearing in the national air events, which begin August 7 and last for a week, have denounced the law as absurd. They add that it is a foolish attempt to hinder the progress of airships and they insist that if their protests go unheeded they will call a formal strike.

QUEEN WILHELMINA'S HUSBAND INJURED

Prince Henry Of Netherlands Collided With Young Woman While Cycling And Broke His Collar Bone.

London, Aug. 5.—Prince Henry of the Netherlands, Queen Wilhelmina's consort, has had to postpone his visit to Brussels owing to a fracture of the collarbone sustained in a cycling accident. The details are given in an Amsterdam dispatch as follows:

The prince's consort came in collision with a young lady who was learning to ride. Early in the evening it seems, a woman standing by her cottage saw a lady cycling up to her. She asked for water and said she had collided with a gentleman who suffered a heavy fall from his bicycle. She ran into him, she said, at a corner where she had not room to avoid him.

After his fall the gentleman asked her in a kindly way, "Did you hurt yourself?" His right arm was stiff and painful.

Some one then borrowed the lady's bicycle and went for help. A motor car and a doctor were taken to the spot, and the Prince was taken to the Queen Mother's palace.

The royal family wishes no inquiry made as to the identity of the woman cyclist.

LOWDOWN PRESS APPLAUDS ENTERPRISE OF PROVINCE IN BIDDING FOR SETTLERS

Aggressive Policy of Premier Hazen's Government Shown in the Opening of New Brunswick Offices in London--A Great Contrast to Dingy Quarters Occupied Under the Old Regime.

The new offices of A. Bowdler, the representative of New Brunswick in Great Britain, were formally opened by Lord Strathcona on July 26. Mr. Bowdler's new quarters are located at 37 Southampton street, near the Strand, and are spacious and well adapted for their special purposes. In contrast with the dingy out-of-the-way office of the late Duff Miller, the province now has its office on the ground floor of a building in the heart of London's traffic, equipped with a large show window where literature dealing with the agricultural and other natural resources of the province are displayed, and where from time to time it is intended to place exhibits of the various products of the province. At the opening of the offices a large number of representatives of the London and provincial papers were present, and practically all the late exchanges contain flattering references to the enterprise of the province and its popular representative.

The Canadian Gazette, published in London says:--

"New Brunswick had a great day in London on Monday, when Lord Strathcona formally opened the new offices at 37 Southampton Street, Strand, and in the words of Mr. A. Bowdler, the able representative in Great Britain of the New Brunswick government, gave the province an exceptionally good 'send-off.' As was stated in these columns last week, the new offices are spacious and easily accessible, and should do much to help in making known the resources of that province.

"Many friends of Canada were present on Monday to join with the High Commissioner in wishing prosperity to New Brunswick, among them being Mr. G. McL. Brown, Mr. F. Williams Taylor, Mr. A. R. Creedon, Hon. H. M. Howell, Mr. W. D. Scott, Mr. J. Obed Smith, Mr. John Howard, Mrs. and Miss Close, Colonel Lamb, Major Howell, Mr. F. Green, Mr. Jacob Myers, Mr. R. Romsney, Miss Wildman, and Mr. T. B. Lawrence. The Hon. J. H. Turner and Mr. W. B. Colecock were prevented at the last moment from attending.

"Mr. Bowdler said that hitherto New Brunswick had done nothing to advertise itself, but, on the death of Mr. Duff Miller, the government decided to make the province better known by transferring the offices to a more central position. Lord Strathcona, in declaring the new offices open, said that New Brunswick was one of the most important of the provinces, and a delightful place to settle in for those who did not get on so well as they might wish in the Motherland. Then as regards sport there was no better place. The moose was there in abundance, and there was some of the best possible salmon fishing. New Brunswick was a very progressive province, and there were opportunities for business in the 17,000,000 or 18,000,000 acres. The population was now nearly 400,000, and the authorities would welcome as many people as possible who wished to become settlers. It was the duty of the High Commissioner to do the best he could for the whole of Canada, and not for one province alone, but it was highly desirable that the different provinces should have separate offices, such as that of New Brunswick, where the best of information could be given to all intending settlers. People went from New Brunswick to other parts of Canada, where they became good work, and which he looked upon as a labor of love on her part.

"Mr. John Howard, the Agent-General of Nova Scotia, congratulated New Brunswick on its new move. The Maritime Provinces were doing well to centralize their work, and it was right to take steps to replace the men who left the Maritime Provinces for other places.

"Mr. W. D. Scott, Superintendent of Immigration, said that he had come unprepared to make a set speech. He could only congratulate New Brunswick on the opening of the offices. He was sure that Mr. Obed Smith would always be ready to give any help in his power.

"Mr. F. Williams Taylor stated that statistics would show that New Brunswick men had done their part in building up Canada, and would do their full share in the future.

Colonel Lamb also spoke. In replying to a vote of thanks, Lord Strathcona said that, while the progress in the West of Canada was greater than in the East, the Maritime Provinces were not standing still. The present advance in the Dominion was not a little owing to those energetic men who had gone away from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and who now filled most important places in public life.

The Daily Chronicle, of London, referring to the event, says:-- "New Brunswick is the latest of the Canadian provinces to open a 'publicity' office in the neighborhood of the Strand, this now being the recognized centre of Colonial advertisement."

Lord Strathcona, who inaugurated the building yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a considerable gathering, said that the Dominion was much indebted to New Brunswick, for it had sent many pioneers to the west who had made the development of those vast territories possible. It was a charming country for settlers, and though much of its territory, covering 18,000,000 of acres, was well occupied, there was plenty of space for those who are capable and desirous of becoming settlers on the land.

There was no better country for sport, even in Canada, while its potentialities in business were immense. It was the duty of the high commissioner to do the best he could for the whole of Canada, and it was very desirable and important that each province should put forward its claim for the consideration of the settler in its own way, as New Brunswick now proposed to do.

The office is situated at 37 Southampton street, a few doors from the Strand, and here Mr. A. Bowdler, chief general, and his staff will supply all information regarding the province.

Western Morning News. The Western Morning News, of Plymouth, has the following: "An important event of this afternoon was the opening ceremony at the new offices for the province of New Brunswick, Canada, just off the Strand. The value of such London offices for the colonies has been demonstrated in every possible way. But there is a reverse to the shield, for the officers and offices have become so popular with visiting colonials that life is almost a burden to those in authority. Day after day the premises are crowded by people on business and the commercial side of the work done is a most valuable aid in colonial trade. So far so good. The complaint, however, is that every colonial who comes to town feels that he must see the High Commissioner, and the chief official finds if he lives in the demand—that his time is taken up by people who are pleased to see him, and whom he is pleased to see, but who waste time that might be devoted to house-holding. The question of sites for the offices has an interesting history. At first the idea was to get as near the Government as possible, and Westminster was the haunt of the group. Then there was a swing of the pendulum, and one after another the offices were transferred to the city for commercial reasons. Now another movement is in progress, and one by one the colonial representatives are locating their headquarters in the Strand district, which is a sort of half-way house.

HALIFAX LEADS. Halifax, N. S., Aug. 5.—The golf match between Halifax and St. John started on the links of the Halifax club this morning, and at one o'clock was about half over. The score at one o'clock was Halifax, 10; St. John, 2.

Mrs. D. F. Brown, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Dorothy, and her son, Mr. H. H. Brown, left on the Ocean Limited this morning to visit Montreal.

CANADA'S NO MOVE YET MADE BY UNITED STATES TO PUT FISH CONSERVATION AGREEMENT INTO EFFECT.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—It is more than a year since regulations drawn up by an international commission for the conservation of the fish in international waters between Canada and the United States were ratified by Great Britain and the United States, but the application of the regulations appears to be as far off as ever.

This delay has provoked numerous complaints on the part of Canadians who are interested in the fishing in inland waters, especially as the United States Senate has made no move to put the regulations into force on the American side of the frontier.

Canada has done what it can in the matter, but for several months it has been waiting on Washington. Now the Senate and Congress have adjourned without taking any legislative proceeding necessary to put the regulations into force. On Canada's part these legislative decisions were taken at the last session of parliament, and by a unanimous vote of the House of Commons.

It is thought that the delay on the part of Washington is due to the influence of American fishermen in Saginaw bay and Lake Huron, who have strongly opposed the introduction of any more stringent fishing regulations in the great lakes. Their influence, exercised on the senators of Michigan and the members of congress in the same state, seems to have arrested this most desirable reform for the preservation of the fish in the great lakes.

J. C. MACKINTOSH'S WEEKLY FINANCIAL LETTER

St. John, N. B., Aug. 5.—That there has been a decided improvement in the general financial conditions in both Europe and America in the past few weeks is very apparent. While the Bank of England still retains its rate of discount at 3 per cent, no special effort has been made to increase its already abundant reserves, the last statement showing that the proportion of reserves to liability was 51.29. The speculative activity on the London Stock Exchange, which marked the earlier months of the year, has been stopped and in consequence the output of new securities has fallen off. In America money has been in good supply and short term rates continue low in New York. Montreal during the week has shown a tendency toward easier money. Many Canadian banks which have been refusing money on a tight edge security and which have advanced their rates, during the week exhibited a desire to let their money out. Whether or not loans have been placed at one-half per cent. lower than the rate prevailing for the past few weeks. On the other hand, there seems to be no improvement in the security of securities of acknowledged worth are cheap and bring good returns.

New York Market.

While the strong upward movement of New York stocks which commenced last week has not continued, the market gives every evidence of good support all along the line. On the strength of rumors of cutting of dividends some stocks have been adversely affected, notably Northern Pacific, which sold down to 111 7/8, but this did not affect the rest of the list. There seems to be a feeling that the elimination of the Pease syndicate as a factor in the market has cleared the air for the time being at least, and that with the improvement of financial conditions which is apparent, the market should show some rallying power. Against this, however, hangs in the background the dread specter of supreme court decisions against the Standard Oil and the Tobacco Trust; the fact that the interstate commerce commission has not as yet commenced aggressive action against the railway and last but by no means least, the threatening overthrow of the Republican party in the approaching fall elections and the consequent fear of tariff revisions. With this rather imposing array of obstacles to the market, it makes an encouraging show of strength. From present indications it would seem as though the political situation and the possible requirements for the moving of the crop syndicate and terminalization of the market this fall. Judging politics from what has taken place in Iowa and Kansas the past week, it would seem as though the regular Republicans stood small chance of success. Whether or not Wall street has already discounted the political situation is yet to be determined. There has been but slight fluctuations in any of the active stocks during the week. In common with other copper stocks have held firm, with very little news to indicate cause for changes other than those brought about by general conditions.

The Canadian Market.

Montreal stocks throughout the week have held firm. The older and more firmly entrenched securities have made substantial gains over the low prices of a week previous, but there has been little activity and evidences of only moderate strength in the more recent listings. C. P. R. remains stationary around 185 but 800 seems to be active at 124 which is ten points above its low figure of a few days ago. The feature of the week in Montreal has been Detroit United. Mr. R. Forget has been interesting himself in this stock and accumulated quite a load of it, resulting in the price going to over 55, which was 12 points or more of a gain. It was rumored that 80 had been offered for enough to give a controlling interest. Later in the week, however, the stock fell back to below 50. Dominion Steel held firm around 55 and General P&I seems to be anchored at 80. Cobalt stocks still remain inactive in the face of heavy shipments and reported ore strikes in some of the larger ones. There seems to be an entire lack of interest and support to many of the stocks of the recently floated mergers. Information from the offices of these companies indicates a very healthy business condition. This is particularly true of the Canadian Central and Mining Co. A leading official of this company in con-

MAHARANEE IS HARD ON WOMEN

Wife of The Gaekwar of Baroda Says American Women Impressed Her With Their Amazing Ignorance.

London, Aug. 4.—A small, dark man, accompanied by two beautiful women in eastern dress and with a train of olive-skinned dependents, landed from the liner Mauretania. No one who saw him land or who watched his pleasant, modest demeanor on board during the voyage from New York would have guessed that he was the ruler over 2,000,000 people, the richest, one of the most enlightened, and one of the most powerful of the princes of the native states of India.

The Gaekwar of Baroda is no stranger to this country. The Gaekwar is a great admirer of the English institutions. He has been especially struck with the quiet, friendly charm of our country life. He hopes to spend some time here before he returns to India in November. "One object of my journey," he said, "is to add to my knowledge of educational methods and ideals. Baroda is the only state in India where schools are free and compulsory. I established them because I am sure that it is useless to expect any real progress among the Indian people until they become less ignorant. Of course, we have begun in a small way. We teach simply 'the three R's.' Later we may do more. We must see how the experiment succeeds. I am particularly anxious to introduce games and exercises for the Indians who study at all almost always study too hard and endanger their health by too constant application."

Hoopskirt or Hobbleskirt

Look on this skirt—and then on this.—Not by Hamlet. Have you looked? Look again then, and then tell us which is the most beautiful? What d'ye say, brother? Give it up? So do we, but we'll tell you about the pictures. On the left you see a lady of 1867, when the hoopskirt was in flower. The Standard found the picture in Godey's Lady book for that year. Godey's describes "it" as being a "dress of steel colored silk, open at every breadth, disclosing an underskirt of rich blue silk. Each breadth is richly embroidered in blue silk and trimmed with a quilling of ribbon. The corsage is embroidered to suit the skirt and finished with a wide blue belt, fastened with a steel buckle. The hat is a gray straw, trimmed with a long and full blue feather. We now introduce you to the beautiful gown on the other side of the picture. It is a photograph of a United States lady in Paris, wearing the latest fashion in dress, to wit, the "hobbles" skirt, made by French dress makers for the commerce of 1910. As you'll notice this skirt is somewhat in restraint of legs, but not the least in restraint of trade, because the style is spreading fast over the eastern cities.

Anna Held and Her Baby

Same busy, flirtatious eyes! Same winking, wise old smile! Same nose and chin and neck and hair! One's Anna Held—the other Anna Held, Jr., so to speak—mother and daughter. Which is which? This photograph was taken 'other day' in the beautiful Bois de Boulogne, Paris.

STRIKE BREAKERS PLEAD GUILTY TO CHARGE

Sarnia, Ont., August 5.—Thirteen alleged Grand Trunk strikebreakers arrested here Wednesday appeared before Magistrate Gorman yesterday afternoon on the charge of making a false statement to the immigration department, whereby they secured entrance to Canada. They all entered a plea of guilty. The men who claimed to be from Minnesota and other western points alleged money and tickets had been given them to come to Canada. They were remanded for sentence. Summonses were served yesterday on John Boyd, local agent of G. T. P. for bringing men into Canada contrary to the immigration act.

SAINT JOHN, SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 6, 1910
NEW BRUNSWICK IN LONDON.

Further particulars of the opening of the new offices for the province of New Brunswick in Southampton Street, Strand, are given in the London papers which have just been received. Commenting on this important event the Daily Chronicle points out that the province has a "publicity" office in the recognized centre of colonial advertisement. The Western Morning News refers to the value of such offices for the colonies, having in the past been demonstrated in every possible way. "The new offices," says the Canadian Gazette, are spacious and easily accessible, and should do much to help in making known the resources of the province. This impartial testimony must be gratifying to the Hon. government, endorsing as it does, the results of a forward immigration policy started little more than two years ago.

Lord Strathcona in his opening address paid a high tribute to the advantages of the province. New Brunswick, he said, was a delightful place for settlers. It was a progressive province with potentialities for business in its broad acres.

It is worthy of more than passing note, however, that Lord Strathcona also laid stress on the duty of a high commissioner to do the best he could for the whole of Canada, and not for one province alone. In speaking for himself as high commissioner Lord Strathcona would naturally include the staff in his office, who are more directly in touch with inquirers desiring information before proceeding to Canada. Unless the attitude of the Dominion government's officials towards this province has undergone a change, the high commissioner's words convey some sound advice to these gentlemen in Victoria street, Westminster, which they would do well to lay to heart.

We can recall a case but a few years ago in which an Englishman, who intended emigrating to Canada, having viewed all the literature bearing on the subject, called at the high commissioner's office for some more detailed information relating to New Brunswick. This was in the days when the old provincial government was in power and it was considered sufficient to have a provincial office in a remote corner of the big city. So far from encouraging this inquirer to carry out his intention to locate in New Brunswick, the officials in the high commissioner's office had but one song to sing "Go West." They went further and described New Brunswick as a country covered with thick virgin forest out of which a settler would be compelled to hew out a home for himself and family.

It was a dark picture. No mention was made of fertile farms, of opportunities for apple culture, or of the hundred and one advantages in other directions which this province is known to possess. The advice of these boosters for the Great West was disregarded. In this particular case the inquirer came to New Brunswick. We can vouch for the fact that so far he has had no cause to regret it. What occurred in one case it is reasonable to assume has occurred in others, and there can be no doubt this province in the past has suffered in consequence.

Lord Strathcona is too big a man to be a party to any scheme to detract from one part of the Dominion for the advantage of another. As he points out it is the duty of those in charge of immigration matters to do their best for the whole of Canada. If this policy is now being carried out New Brunswick and her sister provinces by the sea will get all they are entitled to ask for—a square deal.

The activity which the provincial government has shown in establishing a central office in London will go a long way to assist in making the advantages of New Brunswick more widely known. Rome was not built in a day and the stream of settlers cannot be otherwise than slow at first. But with a progressive and businesslike immigration policy now established, even better results than have already been accomplished, are but a question of time.

DR. CRIPPEN.

Conflicting reports have been received as to whether or not Dr. Crispin has confessed to the murder of Belle Elmore. The New York Sun publishes a circumstantial story that, following information gleaned from Miss LeNeve, Inspector Dew so played on Crispin's weary mind that he broke down and admitted that he did not intend to commit murder, but that he and his wife had been fighting and bickering, and that he "strangled her to keep her quiet." On the other hand the report of the alleged confession is emphatically denied by Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier and Attorney General of the province, who says that no statement of any kind has been made by either prisoner. The jailor has also denied the report. Inspector Dew maintains a discreet silence. There is also the statement of Mr. Arthur Newton, the London collector who has been retained for the defence, that Crispin has acted on his advice, to say nothing, and await developments when he arrives in England.

Mr. Newton, according to a despatch from London, not only places no credence in the alleged confession, but quotes the following telegram from Crispin:—"Will 'accept you to defend me and adhere to your instructions. Thanks to my friends." Mr. Newton adds significantly that he thought it well to caution Crispin, knowing something of American methods. In giving his client a peremptory order to "keep absolute silence and answer no questions," Mr. Newton of course did nothing unfamiliar. It is the usual practice with criminal lawyers to give these instructions, and with the stronger emphasis as they are the more confident that the man

THE CHARACTERISTIC PHASE OF THE SOUL.

The soul perceives temperance and justice in the intellect of herself, and of that which she formerly was, and views them like statues established in herself which through time have become covered with rust. These she then purifies just as if gold were animated, and, in consequence of being incrustated with earth, not perceiving itself to be gold should be ignorant of itself; but afterward, shaking off the earth which adheres to it, should be filled with admiration in beholding itself pure and alone.—Plotinus.

But—he knew there was a washout ahead. So he snatched off his red flannel undershirt and waved it in the engineer's face. That stopped the train. Percy was rewarded with a free pass to Squashville. As the train pulled away the bystanders saw ITS END.

THE "LEGITIMISTS."
Serenely undisturbed by royal deaths and accessions, the "Legitimists" of the Forget-me-not Royal Club, in Bayswater, London, have brought out their "Legitimist Kalender" for 1910, just as if nothing had happened. The cool way in which the present occupant of the British Throne is ignored, and all loyal conceptions of royalty set aside by this strange production, is really astonishing. According to the Legitimists, the real monarch of the British Empire is an elderly lady resident on the Continent of Europe, who, so far from occupying the throne, as she would be doing if all kings and queens had their rights, as "Mary IV, and III, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland," has to be content with the comparatively trumpery title of Princess Louise of Bavaria. The Kalender devotes five pages in tracing her descent from Mary Queen of Scots, which it does very triumphantly by ignoring all the reigning monarchs of these realms from William of Orange onwards, finishing up with Mary Theresa Henrietta Dorothea, the Bavarian lady's full name, in the heaviest black type at its disposal.

The most sensationally calm performance in the book, however, is the publication of the names of 1041 people "who have by strict hereditary right a prior claim to the Throne of Great Britain and Ireland to that of its present occupant!" There are 18 pages of these poor suffering souls whom King George V. is supposed to be doing out of the throne. All sorts of odd people are in front of his gracious Majesty in the true succession, according to the Kalender—people scattered about in such unlikely places as Parma, Sicily, Sardinia, Urach, Azambuja, Arco-Stepperg and many other obscure resorts. Most of these ill-treated personages bear titles. But not all, for 932nd on the list is none other than plain Patrick Hennessy!—Strangely enough, there are no Smiths or Browns among the true heirs to the throne. There is a great deal more in the Kalender about other thrones of Europe now occupied by the usurper.

AS THE WEST SEES SIR WILFRID.

It is altogether probable, says the Winnipeg Telegram, that if Sir Wilfrid Laurier had it to do over again he wouldn't do it. But since he has undertaken his tour of the Canadian West the trip must be completed at whatever the cost.

Premier Laurier is not discovering the west. But the west is uncovering Sir Wilfrid. At Brandon, at Saskatoon, and at other points the premier is being reminded of broken pledges, of oral and written words forgotten, ignored or spurned. Liberal leaders in the farming communities are flatly accusing him of treachery to interests inimical to public welfare. Sir Wilfrid is seeing himself as others see him—and the portrait is not at all flattering to the subject.

Premier Laurier can blame nobody but himself for the humiliation brought upon him. He has broken faith with the west. He has not kept faith with himself. Eastern Canada, especially that portion of Eastern Canada which has been for years under the hypnotic influence of Sir Wilfrid, has learned that the Canadian West has measured him at his true worth.

It is a pity Premier Laurier didn't come west long ago. Personal contact with a duped people would possibly have been of advantage to him. He is enough of an opportunist to have sacrificed something of Eastern Canada obsequiously in order to have saved himself from the cumulative wrath of an outraged and defrauded west.

CURRENT COMMENT

(Watford Guide-Advocate.)
If you have a home and are out of debt, don't fret and worry yourself into the grave for the sake of making money. You have only one life to live, and it is brief at best. Take a little pleasure and comfort as you go on day by day, and try to do a little good to others. A morbid, insatiable desire to possess the earth, to grab everything in sight, is at the foundation of more misery than any other thing known. Wealth alone will never keep memory green, a good life and kind actions will.

(Montreal Gazette.)
Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been telling the western people that his trip through their country has been educative. It should have been. It has brought somewhat forcibly to his notice the fact that the parliamentarians, office seekers and newspapers of his party who tell him he is the world's greatest statesman do not think all the thoughts that are current in Canada.

(Kingston Standard.)
A Kansas newspaper man—a true friend of Kansas young ladies—has discovered how his and other young ladies may keep their hands soft and white. Here is his recipe:—"Soak your hands three times a day in dishwater while your mother rests." Now isn't that just like a man? The brute!

THE CHARACTERISTIC PHASE OF THE SOUL.

The soul perceives temperance and justice in the intellect of herself, and of that which she formerly was, and views them like statues established in herself which through time have become covered with rust. These she then purifies just as if gold were animated, and, in consequence of being incrustated with earth, not perceiving itself to be gold should be ignorant of itself; but afterward, shaking off the earth which adheres to it, should be filled with admiration in beholding itself pure and alone.—Plotinus.

PRESQUE ISLE MAN PRAISES OUR ROADS
Congratulates Government of New Brunswick on Excellent Condition of Country Roads in Province—City Streets Poor

The following from the Fredericton Gleamer will be of interest:
To the Editor of The Gleamer:
Sir:—I have heard that you said while in Presque Isle some weeks ago that the roads of New Brunswick were one hundred per cent. better than the roads in Maine. I presume that you mean the roads in this state east and north of Bangor. If so, I can say, as one who travels quite extensively, that you have not in any way over-stated the situation. The roads in New Brunswick for the last two years have certainly been well looked after, and although the spring was exceptionally unfavorable through the action of frost, and rains following so persistently, I must say that the roads in New Brunswick generally are in a condition very creditable to all who have to do with the making and maintaining of them.

There may be a few places where there is room for much improvement, but generally speaking our roads are excellent. The system upon which our road work is based is somewhat different from yours, and recently I have been urging upon my friends the advisability of adopting your ways. I know, as one who has been in this state calls upon him to move about a good deal to call your attention to the fact that while your country roads are in good shape your city streets are far from being creditable. I do not know of any city in Maine or in your own Province in which the streets are in such wretched condition as in Fredericton. If you take into consideration all the natural advantages which you enjoy as a city, and Nature seems to have bestowed nearly every blessing upon you, your streets are a disgrace to all who have to do with them.

In the city of St. John the streets are only a little better than in Fredericton. In Campbellton, before the fire, they were nearly quite as bad. These streets, I understand, are under corporation management, and while you knock our country roads in Maine I feel at liberty to say that our towns want to feel positively disgraced if our people were obliged to tolerate such streets as you have in Fredericton.

I congratulate your provincial government, or your municipalities, or whoever may be responsible for the maintenance of your country roads, but in the three towns I have named in your province the corporations are badly in need of instructions in the first principles of street making. One miserable feature in Fredericton is its wretched streets, and I am told that your taxes, although unevenly portioned, are high enough to meet all the requirements for first class streets.

Yours truly,
A FREQUENT VISITOR,
Presque Isle, Me., July 29th, 1910.

When Robert Lair Borden became leader of His Majesty's opposition Nova Scotia lost one of its most prominent members of the profession. The day that the Conservative party declared him the successor of Sir Charles Tupper it robbed that province of one of its most learned lawyers.

He is a linguist, an historian, and an authority on constitutional questions, well acquainted with the literature of nations and can quote in their own language the best stanzas of most of the European poets. While he is a Christian gentleman, to whom there is no keener delight than to address kindly words to the bairns of a Sunday school.

But today he is a politician, and as there is no man his equal in the Conservative party, it is certain that his followers will not allow him to think of any other calling than that of leading their great struggle to get back into power.

At a parliamentary press gallery banquet not very long ago, after Mr. Borden had spoken of some of the literary dreams he had never found time to realize, Sir Wilfrid Laurier turned to him and said: "Suppose we leave politics and devote the rest of our lives to literature?" "I will if you will," was Mr. Borden's reply.

Then they both laughed and thought occurred to many that perhaps, after all, political leaders have had ambitions which, if they had had time to pursue them, would have won them more lasting fame than mere political leadership.

Amongst the men of affairs, or the politicians at any rate A. J. Balfour compares most nearly with Mr. Borden. Both exhibit much the same qualities they have similar ideals and accomplishments, and they are patriots in the highest sense of the term. But there is a difference in temperament. While the author of "The Foundations of Babel" has acquired the faculty of detaching himself from his environment and burying his whole soul in a game of golf on Scottish links, Mr. Borden cannot rid his mind completely of the worries of office. Possessed of a vigorous constitution, he has yet allowed himself, on occasions, to be worried into illness. It is unquestionable that his recent indisposition was attributable partly to the strain of the last parliamentary session, during which there was some rancour. Bitter feelings were displayed and the discomfort occasioned by his super-sensitive mind will never be forgotten.

As the leader of one of two great political parties in the Dominion, Mr. Borden is a detouring force upon whom the people ever want to know more. What are his characteristics? What is his nature? Why doesn't he do this or that? In short, what is he? These are some of the questions asked frequently by the public.

An old friend of Mr. Borden once said after the opposition leader had refused to take advantage of an opening to attack the government, which would have been entirely unscrupulous: "He is not an opportunist. Thank God for that."

That is his leading characteristic. He is honest and square, and he is dogged and determined. He sticks to any attitude he thinks it right to assume. Nothing will drive him from the right course, however unpopular it might prove to be at the time. Alex. McKenzie sank under the weight of trouble brought upon him by enforcing principles of rectitude. Mr. Borden's will power is fiercer and stronger. Should the people call him to power he will win over every other candidate.

No barnacles will be allowed to grow on his ship of state.

speechmaking when under the influence of strong indignation or making an appeal to the house to express by its legislation its love of country and empire. For example, his speeches during the great naval debate are specimens of splendid rhetoric. But he does not often give way to flights of oratory. He has too judicial a mind. He is one of the best lawyers in parliament, a statement which requires little explanation. There might be better pleaders, Hon. A. A. Aylesworth is regarded by many as the best pleader in Canada, but there is the same difference between a pleader and a lawyer that there is between a politician and a statesman. Mr. Borden is both a lawyer and a statesman. He argues and he legislates, and it is because of this that he is of such immense value to the party he leads. The ability to do so forms the basis of the most successful leadership.

Of course the opposition leader has his critics. Never yet was there an opposition leader who was not told that he did not possess the qualifications necessary to make him a premier. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had this dinned into his ears: Sir John Thompson, Sir John Macdonald and Alex. Mackenzie had the same experience. Nothing succeeds like success and the criticisms were forgotten in the applause which greeted their entry into office. So it is today with Mr. Borden, but the criticism of him is exceedingly lenient. It is said that he is not tyrannical enough in his leadership. How could he be tyrannical is difficult to understand. An opposition leader has not the power nor the authority of a premier. He cannot discipline a refractory follower. He has not the wherewithal to do so. Oppositions will always be more or less disorganized forces. Their chief business is to criticize the government and to point out its faults. Their position in the house is negative rather than positive.

The truth is that Mr. Borden's kindness of heart is sometimes mistaken for laxity. He may be kind to a fault, but if there is discovered to be a fault none can be found more unforgiving than he. After all, the most of the world's greatest men have had the biggest hearts.

An acute writer has told us that one of our faults as a people is that we are unfair to our public men. Just as soon as they enter public life we make it our purpose to level our political opponents with the dust. This may account for the failure of many to realize that Mr. Borden is one of the most wonderful men Canada has produced. Of whom can it be said that while yet in his teens he was named to the dignity of a professor in a college. Law claimed him however, and he returned to Canada to qualify himself for the bar. His success was phenomenal, and his income was large. He was soon found the possessor of a handsome fortune. It is rarely that a member of one of the learned professions achieves wealth so soon, especially in so new a country as Canada. Mr. Borden's hard work enabled him to enter parliament a young man just turned 40 and of independent means, all of his own making. So determinedly did he work that for weeks at a time he did not devote more than two hours a night to sleep. The Canada Law Journal said of him at that time:

"Mr. Borden has attained his position as head of the bar of Nova Scotia by hard, unremitting and conscientious work. To the smallest and most unimportant matter entrusted to him he gives as careful attention as he does to a matter involving large interests. He goes to trial with every detail thoroughly prepared, knowing how he must prove every fact on his own side, and keenly attack the case of his opponents. If genius be as Carlyle once defined it, the capacity for taking infinite pains, then Mr. Borden does not fall far short of being a genius. With a wide and accurate knowledge of the law, fertility of resources and firmness of purpose Mr. Borden unites a dignified and courteous manner which wins for him the friendship as well as the confidence of his clientele. In court he is respectful to a degree to the bench, the opposing counsel and the witnesses, and under no amount of provocation will he permit his good temper to forsake him."

He was not long in the house before he was looked upon as the debater of most account on the Conservative side and in a few years his fellows made him their leader. No opposition leader in Canada has received so much attention from the British press. The "Morning Post" remarked of him four years ago that in six years he would be premier. While it is not the intention of this article to enter into the political controversies of the day this reference serves to show the estimate in which he is held by one of the greatest newspapers in the world, although so directly opposed in politics. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has occasionally adopted his suggestions. In his personal habits Mr. Borden is as particular as in his public life. After a gruelling day's work he smokes his briar pipe with a smile of angelic peace, and enjoys it more than the more aristocratic cigar. Like the premier he practices teetotalism. In this respect the times are changing in Ottawa. There are far more total abstainers in this parliament than ever was the case before.

SURVEYOR GENERAL VISITS FAIR GROUNDS

Hon. W. C. H. Grimmer Much Impressed by Work Already Accomplished -- New Brunswick's Exhibit Banner One.

Hon. W. C. H. Grimmer, surveyor general, visited the Exhibition building and grounds this forenoon, in company with the manager and went fully into the details of the local government's big display at the Dominion Fair. Mr. Grimmer brought with him Harry Allen, the well-known guide, who will doubtless have charge of the game exhibits, etc., in connection with the government section.

Mr. Grimmer was surprised and delighted with the practical completion of the network and with the general appearance and up-to-dateness of the facilities. Its was particularly struck with the modern construction of the cattle accommodations and well pleased with the space allotted the government in the Drill Shed building.

He promised the local management that the government display will be a credit to New Brunswick and will eclipse anything attempted before. Besides the mineral and forestry sections, to be supervised by men well versed in both branches, there will be a log cabin setting with native woods and natural surroundings, picturing a camping scene in a New Brunswick hunting haunt.

A moose and beavers and other denizens of the native woods will be included in the display and numerous mountings of game fish and feathered game. Ample space has been allotted under the new arrangements to make a superb display and considerable trouble and expense is being incurred to that end.

MR. ELLIOTT REPORTS TO THE GOVERNMENT

Agricultural Expert Gives His Impressions of Recent Addresses to Farmers of the Province.

Andrew Elliott, delegate to the summer meetings for the New Brunswick Department of Agriculture, June 13 to July 23, 1910, has submitted the following report to Hon. D. V. Laundy, Commissioner for Agriculture: "In presenting to you my report of work done June 13 to July 23, 1910, I allow me to acknowledge the completeness of preliminary work. I found that the meetings had been well advertised and arrangements for meetings placed in careful hands. I am pleased also to note that quite a number of members of the legislature attended meetings and gave addresses, among whom were Premier Haen, Dr. Landry, Commissioner for Agriculture; Mr. Dixon, of Hillsboro; Mr. Woods, of Westford; and a number of others whose names nor addresses I did not catch. One thing particularly pleasing to me was the fact that not once was there the remotest hint as to the political alignment of the persons who spoke, all alike expressing their appreciation of the importance of a better agriculture throughout the province.

To me these meetings have been particularly encouraging. They were well attended by an enquiring people, and I am hopeful that the foundation is being firmly laid for a general uplift of the agriculture of the province. Perhaps by no means can this be done so effectively as by bringing before the people—all the people—at all times the tremendous importance of the soil as the only foundation of Provincial and Canadian greatness. Compared with the soil every other avenue of wealth sinks into insignificance.

"From my observation, I think that the best time to hold these meetings is during the summer between seed-time and laying.

"If I may be allowed to suggest, I think it would be a move in the right direction to have a woman delegate along to give separate talks and addresses to the women during the afternoon and address joint meetings in the evening.

"I have to acknowledge the valuable assistance I received from John Woods of Westford, who with me for six days, also from Rev. B. Duggett, with whom I went to Deer Campobello and Grand Manan Islands.

GRAIN AND CATTLE IN CHICAGO MARKET

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET IS QUIET

New York, Aug. 5.—The stock market, while still narrow and professional today reflected a more aggressive mood on the part of that element in the speculation. Their position was adhered to with more determination and was not changed until the end of the day. The attitude assumed by the professional traders was based on a conviction that a large short interest remained uncovered and was in a vulnerable position through the cessation of urgent liquidation. The borrowing demand for stocks constituted the evidence on which the traders rallied for the belief in the over-extended short interest, although the borrowing of stocks for delivery in recent markets has been under suspicion of a device of sellers of long stock to conceal their identity. It was not until the last hour that an attempt to take profits demonstrated the hollowness of the market and wiped out the previous gains.

TRADE REVIEW FOR THIS WEEK

New York, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Flour—Weekly review of trade will say tomorrow. Business conditions are irregular and at some points unsatisfactory, and yet, while falling short in volume and profits that of state of buoyancy that existed at the beginning of the year, it is better than the superficial aspect of the leading markets makes it appear. While it is evident that the country is carrying on a large business, the latest bank clearings showing a gain of 3.9 per cent. over 1909 and of 2.7 per cent. over 1906 outside of New York, yet the situation as a whole indicates that the trade is still in a state of transition and readjustment. With the report on cotton and further curtailment of production there has been a further hardening of prices in cotton goods, and in general the stability of the trade is better than it appears. Its condition of activity, wide-print clothes are now firmly on the basis of 55 cents for 64s, 55 for 62s, and 63 for 72s. Narrow cloths are in better demand, with sales made at 33 cents for 27 inch 64s, while heavy brown sheetings are about quarter cent higher. The demand for printers, converters and the manufacturing traders, who must anticipate their wants is restricted in most quarters. Sole leather is in better shape than upper stock, as the unsatisfactory conditions ruling in splits has had a depressing effect on upper leathers. Trade in domestic packer hides is less active but sufficient business is communicated to advance the market about half cent on all varieties and packers are now holding out for an additional half cent increase which has served to again check inquiry. Common varieties of foreign dry hides are well cleaned up at a slight decline and domestic country slaughter stock is in a firmer position than a fortnight ago with somewhat more business being effected. Failures this week in the United States are 229 against 238 last year. Failures in Canada number 26 against 17 last year.

Trade in Canada. Bradstreet's state of trade tomorrow will say of conditions in Canada. A satisfactory settlement of the strike on the Grand Trunk Railway has been reached and as a result the congestion of foreign traffic has been relieved, and in turn wholesale trade has become more normal. Montreal reports a very encouraging crop outlook, especially for hay. Orders for fall dry goods from the Northwestern market make up a goodly volume, and fairly good business is coming from travelers in the dairying districts, where higher prices are being paid for both butter and cheese. Collections are very slow. Toronto reports that wholesale dealers are doing a large business with western Canada, where it is stated, crops will be the equal in value to those of last year. Country trade is good and in most districts collections are satisfactory. Building operations are brisk.

CLOSING STOCK LETTER

New York, Aug. 5.—The stock market showed further marked improvement of tone during the forepart of today's session. There was no really influential news further than forecasts of a favorable bank statement tomorrow and belief that government crop report to be made public next week would indicate a more favorable condition in grain crops than is generally expected. The known movements of money show that the banks have gained from $15,000,000 to $17,000,000 in cash during the week and inasmuch as it is extremely unlikely that loans have materially increased during this period a further heavy increase of surplus reserves seems assured. This surplus was nearly $50,000,000 on last Saturday. This idleness of money reflects in large measure the heavy liquidation which has occurred in the stock market during the past few weeks, but to some extent the contracting of business throughout the country. The mercantile outlook is far from promising while there are unquestionable signs of reaction in the steel industry. It is a question therefore particularly in view of the uncertain outlook whether we may expect any sustained recovery of prices for the immediate future, although some higher levels from the acute depression may be expected.

COTTON LETTER

New York, Aug. 5.—Reiterated reports of good rains in Texas and Oklahoma over night affected the new crop months in both the Liverpool and our own market this morning and while there were many contradictory reports as to the extent and volume of this precipitation, the impression prevailed that the drought in the southwestern belt had been at least temporarily interrupted. The new months were off 12 points at the opening and continued very throughout the session. Had it not been for spectacular bull demonstration in the August option it is probable that the decline in the general market would have been more serious. The bull clique bid up the price of the spot option to 1370 or 35 points above last night's close and the greater part of this gain was held to the end. Opinion differed as to the real significance of this movement, one faction holding that the clique was determined to run the short interests to cover and to force the tender of cotton on contract while another contended that this advance was manipulated to stay the decline in the later months. The fact that spinners, taking for the week were very light, might have contributed to the heaviness of the latter options. These totaled only 91,000 bales as compared with 189,000 last year. The routine week end figures made about the expected comparisons for the week; there were brought into sight 14,636 bales, against 18,900 last year, and 26,041 in 1908 for the season; the totals foot up to 10,673,000, 13,265,000 and 11,278,000 respectively.

Poor Exhibition in Local Series

A Three-Inning Spasm of Drab Ball Playing and Incidental Scrapping Between St. Johns and Clippers Resulted in No Game.

The 800 taxpayers, bank clerks and suffragettes, who separated themselves from their loose change to witness our high priced athletes perform last evening, saw some high class specialties between the acts, that were really great as extra attractions and in which flying bats, the police, ambulance, and dire threat of assassination figured prominently. When hostilities ceased, with the fall of darkness, there were no casualties reported other than several stitches broken in the ball, although the feelings of some of our dear athletes were so badly hurt that they felt like wrapping them up in their old, dirty uniforms.

After three awful innings had been chalked up, the ump held a long and deep consultation, and after much deliberation announced that there was no game. Some rude, stingy gent, who occupied one of the commodious seats in the eastern section of the stand, murmured something that sounded like "checks," but on the whole, the vast multitude accepted the situation meekly.

Just to accommodate the populace, who were complaining of acute indignation, the men who control our athletes, thoughtfully changed the hour of starting from 6.30 to 7 o'clock, and after the usual delay the ump finally appeared upon the scene, and set the wheels in motion.

An Awful Game.

H. Howe was anchored to the mound for the McBriettes. Mr. Howe was evidently out of sorts, and as the Hon. Gero said in the course of an oration on the coaching line, was as "wild as a horse." He came out of the first stanza unscathed, but was pummeled savagely in the second and retired gracefully in favor of brother Tom.

That one session was simply painful. Hits, errors, another hit and more errors, and then a wild heave, and all this time the spectators snoozed, while some read the ten ton editorials in the evening papers. With three men home and the sacks full, Bucky Lynch smashed out a scorching drive to the agricultural section of left field and everybody scampered home.

Brother Tommy then nobly offered his services to save the day from the hated enemy. "Tommy" at once showed himself to be a much expensive heaver, by throwing the ball eleven miles in the grand stand. Searching parties were immediately sent, but at a late hour failed to locate the Spalding. Cost, $1.50. Then Tommy settled down and dismissed the enemy without further loss or expense.

That Boston boy, Humphrey, whose hospitality as a reception committee is well and favorably known, made his bow to the electors and suffragettes in the role of heaver. Much applause. The high-priced gent, while just a little erratic, was an enigma to McBriette's swatters, and his benders were generally untouched.

Trouble at Hand.

We now arrive at the crucial stage of our narrative. In the fourth section of the fray, Mr. T. Howe, the expensive heaver, put over a mighty drop, which dropped in the centre of the ignorant E. Ramsey's ear, inflicting much pain. Mr. Ramsey's rage knew no bounds and he immediately prepared to assassinate McBriette's short stop-third sacker-heaver.

With an apparently violent attack of dementia Americana the said gent heaved his big stick at Mr. Howe, which that gent miraculously escaped by an acrobatic stunt. Thereupon Manager McBriette clutched the much enraged Mr. Ramsey by the throat with dire threats of vengeance. Pandemonium ensued and somebody yelled "police!" The ump's escape was of the miraculous variety. Then Mr. Ramsey issued a challenge to each player and sundry on Mr. McBriette's payroll. Pretty young suffragettes litherto innocent of bloodshed, stood up on the benches and Salome-like, demanded the head of the salate's seer. Mr. Ramsey was so infuriated that he was content to ask for his heart stewed with brown gravy. 'Twas a tense, dramatic moment and one could almost hear the hush.

Then the ump, with a graceful, yet authoritative and almost dramatic wave of his arm cleared the diamond and proceedings were resumed.

The saints punctured the run column two distinct times after the commencement had subsided and with two Clippers hugging the shams and none down in the fourth the Czar decided that the multitude had received the worth of their coin and stopped the show.

INTEREST IS KEEN IN BALL GAME TODAY

The St. Johns and Clippers With Strong Teams in the Field Should Put Up Great Ball.

Great interest is being manifested throughout the city upon the result of today's game between the Clippers and St. John. Each team will present its strongest line and will go on the field with the determination of playing hard, aggressive baseball. After last evening's trouble, it is expected that there will be some opposition to E. Ramsey playing on Tilley's team. Manager McBriette called at the Standard office last evening and emphatically declared that he would not allow his team to play against the St. Johns if Ramsey was continued on the lineup.

Manager Tilley did not make any statement last evening, and it is thought that some compromise may be made.

Gero will be put in the box for the St. Johns, while Brogan of Marysville, who has been playing in Bangor this year and has recently been secured by McBriette, will pitch for the Clippers. Otherwise there will be no change in the lineup.

ENGLISH SPORTSMAN COMING TO ST. JOHN

Sir William Borwick Contemplates a Visit to New Brunswick After Big Game During the Autumn.

Sir Wm. Borwick, a prominent English sportsman is contemplating a trip to the wilds of New Brunswick this fall. In a letter of inquiry forwarded from the offices of Mr. Bowler, the N. B. representative in London, Eng., he asks for information as to the possibility of securing fishing privileges on an unfrequented stream, and also about the quality of the shooting. He adds that a number of his friends are thinking of trying their luck fishing and shooting in New Brunswick.

Entries continue to come in at a good rate for the exhibition. Officers of the Exhibition Association believe that ample accommodation will be available for visitors to the city for the fair. Many persons who have never before taken strangers in their homes have expressed themselves willing to make provision for boarding visitors during the time of the big fair. The association feel that there will be a very large crowd of people in the city next month, but have no doubt that there will be plenty of accommodation.

CALAIS STARS DOWN PRESQUE ISLE PLAYERS

Two Ball Games on the Calais Diamond Yesterday Resulted in Easy Wins for the Home Team.

St. Stephen, Aug. 5.—The Presque Isle ball team played two games on the Calais diamond this afternoon, meeting defeat in each. In the first game the Indian, Neptune, borrowed from Woodstock, pitched for Presque Isle and was batted pretty freely, the score being Presque Isle, 1; Calais, 6. O'Neill and Carver were the battery for Calais.

In the second game Apton and Minner formed the battery for Presque Isle, Leighton and Cob for Calais. This was a very fair game of ball, the score being 3 to 1 in favor of Calais.

SAMMY TROTT IS AMBITIOUS

SAMMY TROTT.

Columbus, O., Aug. 5.—Followers of the fighting game who are the little men are taking notice of Sammy Trott, the Columbus product, who is to take a fling at the short round performers in New York, Philadelphia and Boston, under the direction of J. W. Hart.

Trott weighs 122, is 20, and has cleaned up about all the boys in his class in Ohio, with the exception of the Kibanes. His record contains 11 knockouts, 4 decisions, 8 draws and 2 no-decision fights. The majority of the contests have been of the few that there will be a very large crowd through a 15 round affair and two 20s in good style.

YACHTSMEN WILL HAVE GREAT DAY

Good Fixtures Today for Millidgeville Should Attract Lovers of the Yacht Racing Game.

With favorable weather conditions today should be a banner one for yachting enthusiasts.

The following boats are entered in the race: Wingoer, Nag-bond, Fel Yuan, Savatara and Edith. The time limit will be two and a half hours. The officials are, Geo. E. Holder and Wm. White, judges; Horace King and P. Sinclair, timers. Class B sailboats of the Westfield Outing Association will sail the second of the series for the Smalley cup. The entries are Rosamond and Tip II. Immediately after the start the Class B boats, the association motor boats will be started on the third race of their series. Entries for this class are: Vixen, Warwick, Crawford, Sea Gull, Reid Arrow and Keonick. The races will be followed by the usual Saturday evening dance in the pavilion.

JOE GANS WILL LIVE TO SEE PARENTS

Once Famous Fighter Wins in Race With Death—May Live Ten Days, Declares Physician.

Pittsburg, O., Aug. 5.—Joe Gans, one time lightweight champion of the prize ring, will live to see his parents in Baltimore toward whom he is speeding in a race with death. Wasted by the ravages of consumption, and only able to faintly articulate between gasps "fix my head," or "drink," the once applauded gladiator of the fist arena, passed through this city shortly before 7 o'clock this morning. His train arrived from Chicago at 6.30 a. m. and departed for the east 20 minutes later and is due at Baltimore at 3.30 this afternoon. With Gans is his wife, his attending physician Dr. H. T. Southworth, of Prescott, Arizona, and "Kid" North, an old time ring partner of the former pugilist. The party is travelling on train No. 2 of the Pennsylvania railroad in the car "Raritan" in which Gans occupies a drawing room.

Dr. Southworth to the Associated Press said that Gans had fared fitfully during the trip from Chicago, where they left at 5.30 last night and had taken but a small glass of milk for nourishment. The physician said that it had not been necessary to resort to the administration of oxygen since leaving Chicago, and expressed the opinion that the patient would live to reach Baltimore and if the weather was not too hot would survive for ten days, or two weeks.

CADETS WILL COMPETE AT D.R.A. SHOOT

Canadian Rifle League Will Bring 21 Youngsters to Ottawa—Strathcona, Alberta, Wins Earl Grey Shield.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—The first winner of the Earl Grey challenge shield is the town of Strathcona, Alberta. The conditions of the competition were that the winner was to go to the town or city in Canada which had the largest number of cadets in proportion to its population. The population was figured from 1st January, 1910, and the number of cadets from the actual strength of the corps on May 24 last.

Strathcona has a population of 5,000 and had 150 cadets. The second place goes to a county in Quebec. Towns of less than 5,000 are not considered but must include the surrounding country in the contest. It is quite coincidental that the first winner of this prize should be the town which bears the name of the man who has done so much for the cadet movement in this country.

The Canadian Rifle League will bring twenty-one cadets to Ottawa this year for the D. R. A. They are two from the University Shoot at Victoria, B. C.; three from the High School, Quebec; one from Queen's Square School, Charlottetown, P. E. I.; three from Harbor Collegiate Institute, Toronto; three from Hamilton Collegiate Institute; one from Brantford Collegiate Institute; one from Haverhill County Academy; three from Victoria School, Quebec; one from Calgary public school; one from Bishop's College School, Lennoxville; two from Parkdale C. I., Toronto, and one yet to be decided upon.

How the American and English Oarsmen Dress

English sporting writers have expressed disapproval of the manner in which American oarsmen dress in their shells. The accompanying picture shows a representative group of American and English oarsmen preparing to take a practice spin on the river. It will be noticed that there is much to support the claim of the English pressman that the American oarsmen go into their shell very lightly clad. Such costumes would not go on the Thames, but in defence of the American oarsmen it is said that the streams are much wilder in their country and consequently an athlete need not be so careful to appear in conventional garb.

JACK "TWIN" FIGHTS TEN ROUND GO

Sydney, Aug. 5.—King's Theatre here was crowded to its utmost capacity tonight when Jack (Twin) Sullivan and Andy Morris boxed a 10 round draw replete with fierce fighting. Both contestants entered the ring at 10.15 and referee Joe Francis gave them their lecture and sent them away. At the call of time Sullivan rushed the fighting, but Morris responded by clever blocking and the first six rounds were fought with honors about evenly divided. The seventh was slightly in favor of the Cambridge boy and the last three had the real prize fighters sensational fight, both contestants working hard for a decision. Sullivan was considerably irritated by the referee's decision and stated after the fight he would stop Morris inside of twelve rounds if the latter would agree to another meeting.

Tom Foley of Halifax had been asked to officiate but could not possibly do so.

MUSICAL TREAT AT ST. JOHN FAIR

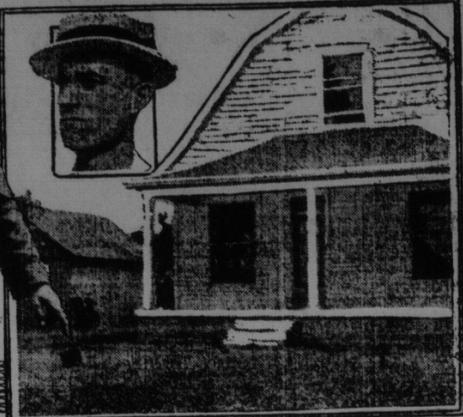

MUSIC TREAT AT ST. JOHN FAIR. Music lovers are quite rightly contemplating ten days of delightful music at the Dominion Exhibition in St. John, N. B., September 5th to 15th, and judging from the newspaper comment in American editions, their expectations will be fully met. Madame Belle Yeaton Renfrew's Ladies' Orchestra of twenty-five players will discuss programme twice daily beneath the new music gallery in the main building. This organization is one of the finest of its kind in existence, and is a favorite at important musical events, being billed in the same programme with the famous United States Marine Band of Washington, Creator's Italian Band, Sousa's Band, and Arthur Pryor's Band. In Pittsburg last year the Renfrew orchestra made a sensational hit, and after the big exhibition was closed in that city, played a successful week's engagement in one of the leading theatres at the request of a discriminating public. The following sample programme will indicate the versatility of Madame Renfrew's players:

Overture, "Beautiful Galatea."	Von Suppe.
Cornet Solo, "The Rosary."	Nevin.
American Sketch, "Swanee River."	Myddleton.
Selection from "Carmen."	Bizet.
Overture "Oberon."	Weber.
Waltz, "Artist's Life."	Strauss.
Violin Solo, "Second Polonaise."	Wieniawski.
Mexican Idyl, "The Mesa Grande."	Maurice.
Descriptive Fantasia, "Americans Abroad."	Bratton.

Centre of Population in U. S. Only Moved Few Miles in 10 yrs.

Howard Fivecoat, a rising young lawyer, points to suitable spot for '1910 center' stone among Mrs. Bert Marr's tiger lilies.

"BERT" MARR, AND HIS HOME ON THE STATE ROAD, WHERE THE 1910 CENTER OF POPULATION IS EXPECTED TO LIGHT.

Washington, August 5.—The new center of population for 1910-20 is near Columbus, Ind. That was where it was during the past 10 years. But the sharps at the census bureau figure the center will not move over a mile from its present location.

SCHAFFER SIZES UP NEW CENTER

By Fred Schaffer

Columbus, Ind., August 5.—News from Washington that the center of population has not moved more than one mile since the last census, has awakened this section to a new industry in its midst—that of raising centers of population of the United States.

enthusiasm all around when I went down here to see just what a center of population looked like. In fact I wouldn't be surprised if the Columbus board of trade adopted some such appropriate slogan as "We pivot, while other points merely populate," or "Columbus, the center of the U. S., the center of the world, the center of the universe."

Columbus, the nearest large town to the exact center, will again be referred to as the center for convenience, but the actual point will again be within a mile of six miles southeast of Columbus, and Columbus heartily congratulates the United States upon knowing enough to hang onto a center of population that has "made good."

At present it looks as if the 1910 center will land on the property of H. B. or "Bert" Marr, a cousin of the 1900 Marr, thus giving the Marr family a distinction that will be envied by others throughout the country.

er in the last thirty or forty years has been somewhat south of west, and an advance of one mile would about put it in the door yard of "Bert" Marr's home, among Mrs. Marr's flowers and shrubs, where she could sit on the porch of evenings and look at it. Yes, decidedly, that would be a right good place to put it.

WAYS OF SOME TREES.

Trees which have their own individual methods of reproduction are interesting. The way of the Elm is one of the most remarkable, because the elm actually makes hedges, or rather it fits in with our English methods of bordering our trees and roads with hedges, and in a very accommodating way helps us with material.

The habit of the elm is to send out its roots in every direction and then to push up suckers from its spreading roots. When an elm sends itself or its planted in a hedgerow and becomes established there it sends out its roots and pushes up its suckers on all sides of it, but except on two sides the young suckers get killed; they are trodden down in the path or cut up by the plough or gnawed down by grazing animals.

But they flourish on each side of the elm in the direction in which the hedge runs, and they kill out the other trees in the hedgerow, till at last possibly the hedge is all elm. Then if the hedge is not cut or only partly cut the strongest suckers grow up and become trees themselves and carry on the process.

Other trees instead of being killed down by animals get helped and planted. Squirrels carrying off hazelnuts and burying them for private consumption later, frequently forget where they have put them, and so plant countless hazels every year. Trees with berries such as hollies, wild roses, elders and yews, have their seeds swallowed and carried about in different directions by birds and from the trees' point of view there must be good and bad seasons as regards the sowing or planting. Last winter, for instance, must have been a poor season for holly planting. Birds do not really like holly berries and will not eat them when they can get other berries or when the weather is warm and open, so that in a mild winter like the last comparatively few holly berries can have been eaten and sown.

But the trees which occasionally get self-propagated in the most interesting way is the elder. W. H. Hudson in his book, "Afoot in England," has a delightful passage giving the life story of some elders he noticed growing on a Wiltshire down. There was a small group of them set among some rabbit burrows, and a local farmer told him how they came there.

First, the rabbits, finding that the hill had softer chalk at that spot, had made burrows. Then some wheatears, which were bred in and lived about the burrows, where they rooted in the soft ground and soon established a flourishing thicket.

Washington, August 5.—The census Bureau has made public some of the results of its study of the average cost to run a 158 of the largest cities in the United States. The figures were for the year 1908 and covered the maintenance and operation of all city departments. The total for the 158 cities is about $405,000,000, more than one-fourth of which was paid by New York city alone.

The expenses of the government of Philadelphia were less than one-quarter of those of New York city. Boston was the only city whose expenses showed a higher per capita average. The Boston per capita figures were $27.58, New York came second with a per capita average of $24.71 and Washington third with $24.65. The city of over 300,000 population showing the smallest running expenses was New Orleans, whose per capita average was $12.76. Milwaukee was a close second and Baltimore also showed a per capita average of only $13.34. The maintenance of schools cost more than any other municipal function, while the protection of life and property by the police, fire and associated departments was second in cost. These two functions—education and the protection of life and property—cost 55 per cent. of the $405,000,000. For the entire 158 cities the average per capita expenses for schools was $4.70; for police department, $2.25, and for fire department, $1.72. Salt Lake City's per capita expenditure for schools was the largest, being $8.18 as compared with a little over $5 by New York, Boston and other cities.

The statistics show that the cost of maintaining government departments of cities has been increasing in recent years. In 1902 the cost $13.36 per capita to maintain the departments in 147 cities of over 30,000 population each. It cost $16.81 to run the same cities in 1908. The cost of maintaining the police department has risen since 1902 from $1.90 to $2.26 per capita; the fire departments from $1.33 to $1.72 and the schools from $2.69 to $4.70.

A PARISIAN COSTUME

Black and white as a combination has long been a fad in Paris and this sketch from that gay town indicates the craze is still on.

This is a dress of black and white striped linen, with lace shoulder caps, a belt and a rosette in black satin, and a black and white linen hat trimmed only with a cluster of white ostrich feathers.

CAPTAIN AND BRIDE ON HONEYMOON

Wreck of Swanhilda Near Cape Horn in One of the Most Pathetic Sea Tragedies -- Sailors Driven Mad.

Liverpool, August 5.—On Liverpool landing stage, where more heart-breaking scenes than comedies have taken place, pathos was in the forefront when the Pacific liner Orpesa, with the survivors of the ill-fated Glasgow barque Swanhilda on board, came alongside. Wives and mothers wept bitterly for the husbands and sons for whom they sought in vain.

The Swanhilda, a vessel of 2,000 tons, sailed from Cardiff on March 15, and was wrecked on Slatin Island, near Cape Horn. Captain Pyne, who had been married two days before he was accompanied by his wife, an Australian, and the voyage was to be their honeymoon trip. The sailors made much of their commander's wife, who introduced many homely comforts and won affection for them as a nurse.

It came like a shower of bricks to a clear sky to "Bert Marr, who was found downtown pricing binder twine, when informed that very likely the center of population would light on his place like a homing pigeon. He had thought the procession would pass by, in fact, go clear over into the rival state of Illinois.

"However," he said, "if it likes this place and wants to stay, I shall not turn it from my door. And if they want to plant a stone on my land, I'll cherish it, and tend it, and water it in drought. I'll be a foster parent to the center of population any time the government wants to give it to me to raise."

Bert is a conservationist—a real patriot.

After all, a center of population is a very desirable thing, to judge from the experience of Henry Marr, now possessing the one that spouted herobouts in 1900. Since he got it, he has built a 14-room house and purchased a corking fine automobile. This is no poverty-stricken commoner in the agricultural center of population industry. The agricultural supply houses also sell motor cars, and they sell gasoline as well as axle grease. This is no ox team country, and the county seat has an asphalt street and a white wing to keep it tidy, and two street cars for such of its agricultural neighbors who do not yet own benzine buggies.

About the next thing ought to be a subway to take tourists by a dustless route out past the German Reformed church to where the centers of population multiply in the truck gardens and wheat fields six miles southeast of town.

THE DESIRE OF ALL NATIONS

"I will shake all nations, and the desire of all nations shall come" (Haggai ii, 7).

July 31.—Colon, N. Y.—Today at this place Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle addressed the International Bible Students Association—about 4,000.

The great Messiah, "King of Glory" has long been waited for by the civilized nations. For thirty-five centuries the Jews have waited for Him as the great Prophet foretold by Moses and foretold by him (Acts iii, 22); and as the Great King foretold by the Kings David and Solomon; and as the glorious priest typified by Aaron, but specially in the former by Melchisedek—a priest upon his Throne (Psalm cx, 4).

Free masons have waited twenty-five hundred years for the same glorious personage, as Hiram the Chief, the Master Mason whose death, glorification and future appearing are continually set before them by the letters upon their keystones. He died a violent death, they claim, because of his loyalty to the Divine secrets typed in Solomon's temple. He must reappear, they claim, in order that the great antitypical Temple may be completed and its grand service for Israel and for all peoples may be accomplished.

Christians of every shade in proportion as they are conversant with the Bible (Old Testament and New) believe, also, in a great Temple pulchre to the Divine plans, re the spiritual Temple, the elect Church (I Peter ii, 4, 5). Him they expect to come a second time "in power and great glory" to complete the Temple which is His body, and in and through that spiritual and glorious Temple to bless Israel and all the families of the earth. His second presence in glory and power, but invisible to men, is believed to be the Messiah.

The Mohammedans, also worshipping the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and David and Solomon, are also expecting a great Heavenly Messenger to bless them and all peoples by the establishment of a heavenly Kingdom. They have waited His coming for centuries. They believe His Kingdom to be near at hand.

Who is this King of Glory?

The same glorious personage will fulfill all the desires—these hopes, it is not time that all of these peoples, fearing God and hoping in His promises, should come together in one hope in one expectation? It must be so, for we do not read prophetically, "The desire of all nations shall come!"

We are well aware that great barriers lie between these multitudes and the Kingdom. They are chiefly barriers of superstition and ignorance. In the past they have pulled apart, and have slandered and persecuted one another if now they will sympathetically draw near to each other, surely they will find much to appreciate in each other's hopes and aims.

The Basis of Sympathy.

The fact that the Jews and Mohammedans, Catholics and Protestants and Free Masons, all base their faith on the Old Testament of the Holy Scriptures, is ground for the better understanding pleaded for.

All Christians accept the authority of the Hebrew Scriptures because the founder of Christianity Jesus, and His special mouthpiece, the Apostles, taught nothing contrary to the law and the Prophets; indeed, they professed to be the Old Testament in proof of every doctrine advanced. They claimed that they neither destroyed nor ignored the Old Testament but merely noted its fulfillment.

What All Can Agree To.

All are agreed that only the later Divine blessing! All agree that we have been laboring under a mistake in supposing that education and civilization are alone necessary to secure human happiness. We perceive that the greater the civilization the greater the unrest; and the broader the education the greater are the suggestions and opportunities for taking selfish advantage of others.

All are agreed that only the latter inventions, telephones, etc., and our modern and costly police precautions make it possible to live in civilized lands and that, despite all these, murders are a hundred-fold what they were fifty years ago. In those days a murderer would be detailed and discussed for a year. Now we give little heed to several reported in each day's newspapers. Thousands are executed, other thousands are imprisoned for life and we pay little heed—so gradually have we become accustomed to these horrors of our civilization and education.

We oppose these with Church and mission influences, with Sunday Schools, Y. M. C. A.'s, with courts, juvenile and superior, and yet they increase. We penalize the carrying of weapons and bows and arrows, we prohibit inflammatory speeches; and the better informed know that Christendom is like a powder-magazine which some unlicky friction between the classes may any day explode.

All Hopes Really One.

Admitting that all mankind are imperfect "born in iniquity," we nevertheless cannot assent to the doctrine of Total Depravity—that there is nothing good in any man; or in all men. Each one who prays "forgive us our sins" as we would pray, should concede that righteousness to sin, if the environment were different—if his appetite were not so perverse, if his will power were not so feeble, if he were a Jew, Mohammedan, Catholic, Free Mason or Protestant, do we not all really desire the one thing? And do we not admit, after centuries of endeavor along different lines, that the God alone can send us the aid which the whole world greatly needs? We do!

Let us now formulate this "desire of all nations" from those Holy Scriptures which we all acknowledge. Let us see that it is exactly what we will have been looking and praying for under different names: It is the Kingdom of God!—the Kingdom of Allah! its rule is to be "under the whole heavens" however heavenly or spiritual the great ruler will be (Daniel vi, 27). Under its beneficent and uplifting influence the glorious result will be the whole world greatly needs? We do!

Heaven. This is exactly what the Scriptures declare—that, sin and ignorance will be done away, that the knowledge of the glory of God's character will fill the whole earth. It means a strong government exercised for the restraint of sin and for the freeing of mankind from slavery to sin—the slavery of inherited weaknesses entailed by Adam's disobedience. The great Heavenly King, the Son of David, will do these things, according to the Law and the Prophets, and will have many titles indicating various features of His greatness. "He shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the mighty Elohim, the Prince of Peace, and the Father (life-giver) of eternal life (Isaiah ix, 6). He is called the Savior by the Prophet Isaiah (xlv, 15), for He shall "save from their sins" and from the penalty of sin all who shall become "His people." And all who will wickedly refuse His rule of righteousness and His assistance out of sin and death conditions will be esteemed "wicked" in the proper sense of that word; and of these we read: "All the wicked will He destroy."

Love Righteousness—Hate Iniquity.

We have had too much of hatred and persecution because of the difference in our degrees of knowledge as expressed in our differences of belief. Let this cease. Let us unite in our love for righteousness and in our hatred of unrighteousness—in equity. Let us cultivate such a sympathy for the coming reign of righteousness to be established by Messiah (by whatever name He and His Kingdom may be handed down to us) that our characters shall be transformed by the prophetic view. We are all agreed that Messiah's Kingdom is nigh, even knocking at the door of the world. In the wonderful inventions of our day we have the very foregleams of that Kingdom of glory in the necessities of the case also corroborate this: The tension between Capital and Labor will soon be to its limit and break; the grasp of monopoly will soon be so strong that the masses will be the upper and the lower will be the nether millstones; our high-tension living is calculated soon to have our race in the madhouse; specialists say, within one century. Let us believe the Word of God, delivered by the prophets of old. Let us prepare our hearts for the Great King and know that such will have the chief blessing.

He Must Reign—Untill!

According to the Bible the reign of the promised Great King shall not be an eternal reign. Eventually the dominion of earth originally given to Adam and lost by disobedience and consequent incapacity, is to be restored to such of Adam's race as shall attain earthly perfection and Jehovah's approval. Messiah's Empire will be a Mediatorial one and according to the Scriptures, will continue only one thousand years. But we are assured that the period will be quite sufficient for the great work to be accomplished. Father Adam, after being sentenced to die—"Dying thou shalt die," experienced the dying processes for 930 years. Contrariwise the world will, under the Messiah's rule as King and Priest (Melchisedek, Psalm cx, 4), gradually rise up, up, out of sin and death conditions during a very similar period of time.

Paradise restored will no longer be a garden merely, but the whole earth, as God's footstool, shall be made glorious (Isaiah lx, 13). The promises of God to the children of Isaac and Jacob are not heavenly or spiritual, but earthly. From Genesis to Malachi there is not a suggestion of a heavenly or spiritual calling. If Christians are a heavenly Mohammedans and Jews—neither of whom have conflicting hopes. There is no need for conflict—every reason for harmony.

"Times of Restitution."

Not only do the ancient prophecies foretell coming blessings of the Lord upon Jew and Gentile, bond and free, but the Law typified the same. Every fiftieth year with the Jew was to be a Jubilee year—a time of release from debt and from all bondage. The same time of jubilation to men, to all who will accept and obey His rule. The cancellation of debts represents that God (through Messiah) will thus cancel the debt of Adam and his race. All will then be given a fresh start for life eternal. The setting free from bondage in the Jubilee year typed man's release from the weaknesses by the Prophet (Isaiah lxi, 1).

If we see this great fact about to be accomplished need we quarrel about how it is to be done? Since it offers blessings to all who love God's righteousness, who dispute over details? Shall we contend with God and His plans and promises except to our injury? Let us rejoice with the Jew. God has decreed for the natural seed of Abraham a glorious share in the great work of blessing the world—to the Jew, first, this means a blessing; to the others later! The Scriptures clearly teach that Messiah will establish the New Covenant with Jacob, the Lord's acquiescence in His arrangements. And if the Jews shall some day see that the Oath-Bound Promise to Abraham meant two seeds, let them be glad and rejoice in their portion. If the great Messiah soon to be revealed in power and great glory be composed of "many members" on the spirit plane? Moreover there is no room for jealousy anyway, for these "elect" who shall be on the spirit plane are of all nations—the Jew being there given also the preferred place. Furthermore the select or "elect" few are not either Christians or Jews in the ordinary usage of those words, but saintly, holy ones chosen by the Lord from every sect and party, because of their love for righteousness and faithfulness under trials.

"I Will Shake the Earth."

The context shows us that "The desire of all nations" will be realized as the result of a great shaking of the heavens and earth and sea and all nations. This is prophetic of the great time of trouble, with which the collapse of present institutions will come about as precedent to the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom—"th, des as completely as it is now done in sire of all nations."

We are not left to speculate respecting the import of these words, "shake the heavens, the earth and the sea." The great theologian, St. Paul, quoted this very passage in his epistle to the Hebrews (xii, 26-28). He pointed out that the literal shaking of Mt. Sinai and the terrible sights associated with the inauguration of Israel's Law Covenant was but a feeble picture of the awful commotion which will prevail in its antitype—when Israel's New (Law) Covenant will be instituted at Mt. Zion in the end of this Age at the hands of the antitypical Moses—Messiah.

The prophet intimates that it will be a short, sharp, decisive shaking, quickly accomplished. And the Apostle explains that it will be so thorough-going that everything that can be shaken will be shaken and will be removed. In other words everything that is of a nature of a temporary or make-shift righteousness, truth, equity, will be shaken out of the way—not allowed to remain, because the Lord will make a thorough work. St. Paul intimates that the Kingdom which the Church is to receive will be the only institution which will stand the shaking time and that only because the "Church of the First-born, whose names are written in heaven," will have in the approval; it will be "changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye"—established enduringly on the heavenly plane at the Right Hand of God, principalities and powers being subject.

Notwithstanding the fact that Messiah's Kingdom will be introduced by a period of universal trouble, anarchy, etc., which will overthrow civilization and uproot every sinful and imperfect human organization, nevertheless this will eventually lead to the most profound and most enduring peace. In that one great lesson humanity will learn the futility of its own endeavors and will cry unto the Lord for help and for the desired peace—when the desire of all nations shall come."

Referring to this time of trouble the Prophet David declares of the Lord's work at that time, "He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth. He breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear asunder" (Psalm xli, 9). Then wonderfully He announces the climax of it all, "Be still and know that I am God. I will be exalted among the nations. I will be exalted in the earth." The only true basis of peace is righteousness and on this firm foundation Jehovah through His Anointed One will shortly establish it (Psalm xli, 10).

STREET CARS IN GERMANY.

Quite Unlike Those of the U. S. in Comfort and Neatness.

(Engineering News.) In all my street railway riding in Germany I have not yet seen a crowded street railway car. Only once have I seen passengers standing inside a car.

The Germans recognize the necessity of making street railway service flexible, to provide for variations in travel at different times, and they attach rail cars behind the motor cars, in even such small cities as Heidelberg a train consisting of a closed motor car hauling an open rail car is regularly run.

American street railways have provided for increased traffic by putting on larger and heavier cars, but the Germans have met the same problem by running trains of two or three cars. The advantages of the German system to the public are extremely great, and I believe they are almost as great to the street railway. The floors of German street cars are low, like the American street cars of a dozen years ago. They are far easier to get in and out of than our high-floored American cars, which are designed to accommodate the car builders rather than the convenience of the travelling public.

NEWEST OUTING VEIL

Styles in hair dressing are growing simpler. Hats are disappearing, and only a small one is used back of the ears to form a foundation for the low coil.

Young girls are wearing a satin ribbon to match their frocks in color, or one of black satin threaded through a shell buckle as in this sketch.

Boer Woman Created by the Askews will Hold a High Place in Fiction--Gertrude Allert n Finds Colony of Writers in California -- Wm. De Morgan Didn't Mean to Say "At Ontario."

THE ROD OF JUSTICE

Latest from Pen of The Askews Deals With Passion of a Boer Woman.

There is a Boer woman in this story of South Africa whose fury in love and whose bloodthirstiness in revenge shrivel and scorch the sensibilities of the ordinary mind as the pitiless sun toasts the widespread and unwatered veldt. She is a woman of primitive passion, and a primitive life, yet the authors have given her the full measure of his "literary license" in the matter of speech. It seems much out of place, but what is the use of being too critical of the craftsmanship of light summer fiction? This woman's emotions of love are little short of paralyzing, and she swoops along at the head of her household with all the boisterousness, irony and violence of the ancient chieftain lordling it over his pliable subjects. She loved a powerful Boer farmer, her cousin, who had lost his wife a few years before. Her heart was set on this man. It became an obsession. The farmer had not been quite satisfied with the woman he married, and he looked forward to meeting someone the picture of his dreams.

And he had not long to wait from the time the story opens, for as he was about to profess his love for the Boer woman a wagon was seen laboring on the road over the plains and in a short time the farmer caught sight of a vision of femininity that made him gasp for breath. The wagon contained an Englishwoman, young and fascinating, who was fleeing from a man in England whom she loved almost to distraction, but could not marry as his wife was still living. The farmer took her in and cared for her. She was ill for weeks. He made known his love and the stranger, in her hour of weakness, accepted him, though she made it emphatically known that she could not love him. Not long afterward another stranger appeared. It was the Englishwoman's lover who had followed her. His wife was dead and he was in a position to marry again. The Boer sent him on a mysterious chase, though the woman was in the house, but a short distance away. At last the Englishman came and with it reappeared the Englishman, who was made known of the facts. He vowed revenge. Days went by and finally one night the Boer farmer's wife received word to flee with her old friend. The Boer saw her depart. He followed with the determination to kill the man, but his gun went off in the chase and gave him a fatal wound. He died leaving a note to that effect, but the Boer woman, who would not be comforted either before the marriage or later, resolved that the English couple must die at her hands. They were found hiding in the outbuildings of the farm and were about to be hanged by the Kaffirs when help appeared. Suffice it to say they were married.

The story moves along with measured regularity. Each incident fits in well with all that has preceded, and the reader is seldom in doubt of the steps of development. But for real life passion that smells of romantic soil, the Boer woman, in the hands of these authors, will command a high place in fiction.

CALIFORNIA IN LITERATURE.

Gertrude Atherton Found a Colony of Literary Folk Under Women's Skill.

Gertrude Atherton has just sent back to Eastern friends news of a project, already well under way, of the California literary colony which lives among the Carmel hills upon the shores of Carmel Bay. A great open-air theatre is being constructed for summer time festivals which the colony hopes will grow to be for America what the opera is for Europe.

erica what those of Oberammergau are for Europe. The theatre will be opened in July, almost venturing on international competition from the start, so it seems, with a play by Constantine Skamner.

Michael Williams, the author; Geo. Sterling, the poet, and Herbert Heron and their friends organized the Forest Theatre Society for the construction of the theatre. Now all the Carmel residents are members, and famous men and women the world over are in communication with the organizers, who believe that the new theatre, with its festivals of probably a piece of drama and of plays, is going to make history in dramatic art.

Of those on the list of possible pilgrims from New York and its environs a good majority would prove on investigation not to be journeying to a strange Mecca, but merely making a visit back home. On the occasion of the recent founding of a poet's club in New York the number of Californians present was remarked, but when a Californian really sets out to enumerate those of his State who have mounted the literary ladder in its various departments he can present a formidable array.

Herman Scheffauer, the transplanted Californian poet, peculiarly characteristic of the entire literary product of California, is the equal in quality with which it suffers successful transplanting--can give such a list and some reasons why California has more than her share of authors.

The literary colony of Carmel is the California Stratford-on-Avon. San Francisco was the old literary centre; before it became commercial, but the artists are heartily ashamed of its political and commercial conditions.

Many distinctive writers hailing from out there are more appreciated in England than in the East. A notorious example is Ambrose Bierce. His "The Night of Life," issued in San Francisco seventeen years ago, has been reprinted dozens of times abroad--pirated in Germany, France and England.

"The California Atlas of Literature," Mrs. Atherton calls him, but since he came East seven or eight years ago he has not done his best work. Bierce can justly be termed the last living representative and master of the old school of satire and as an exponent of the California moral force in California during the eighties and nineties. If he could be let loose again to stab and slash with his biting wit and satire, he might clean out of California some of the moral lepers and nests of rotteness, for he caused corrupt politicians to tremble not less than the literary pretenders in the days when his regular column appeared, combining all the terrible invectives of Swift, the form and polish of Pope, the wit and brilliance of Helme. He is the last of the satirists, says the disciple modestly, quoting from his own article in a recent edition of the Fortnightly Review.

It is the influence of California that one of the greatest world poets responded," he continues, "and California is inclined to claim Robert Louis Stevenson for her own together with his close friend Charles Warren Stoddard. Among other children, native born and adopted, are Gertrude Atherton, Jack London, Helen Hunt Jackson, Frank Norris, who participated in the eastward exodus; Miriam Michelson, Herman Whitaker, John Muir, Mary Austin, Philip Mighels, Geraldine Bonner, Adeline Knapp, George Wharton James, Eleanor Yates, W. C. Morrow and C. F. Lummis.

Margaret Deland is now at her country home, Kennebunkport, Me., where she is spending the summer revising the last chapters of a new novel which has been working steadily on it for three years. Mrs. Deland this year has added sleeping in the open air to her summer scheme of combined rest and work.

Her Name is "Mike" Elliot, But Oh, Isn't She a Great Dancer

MICHAEL ELLIOT IN ONE OF HER POSES. You wouldn't think that the first name of this beautiful woman in the classical pose was "Mike." But it is; that's what her friends call her. It's Michael, by rights, after her father. Within the past two years Michael Elliot has become one of the famous dancers of the country. Now that the vogue for classical dances promises to overtake the country, Miss Chase does not refer to her next season, the services of Miss Elliot are in great demand. She will dance in many cities, to the music of Chopin, Grieg, Wagner and Bruch. No music is so thunderous that her dancing cannot match it, and her motions, in the Water numbers, are said to fully suit the vigor of the tremendous music.

Here's Ever Fair Lillian

MISS RUSSELL--A REVISED PORTRAIT.

Here is Lillian Russell's very latest counterfeited presentation. Years and years ago she was nicknamed "Airy Fairy Lillian," a title which no longer describes her style of architecture. For many years Miss Russell's press agents handed out the usual stock portraits of Lillian, which made her look like a girl just graduated from high school.

SLIGHT MISTAKE.

Wm. de Morgan Substituted Ontario for Toronto at the Last Moment.

In the new volume of Printers' Pie is an article in which William de Morgan defends himself from some of the more captious of his critics. It is gossipy, witty and Morganesque, and in one of his paragraphs he tells us how it came about that in "Somewhat Good," there appears the phrase "at Ontario," as if Ontario were a town and not a whole province. Writing at random at first, he had determined to place Penwick while in Canada at Toronto, but finding, later, that the choice was unsuitable, he sent a message to his printer to search for all the occurrences of the word "Toronto" and substitute "Ontario." Since there appeared the expression "at Toronto," the printer merely changed it into "Ontario." That is the whole story, and the case is parallel with that of Shakespeare, who, while revising both parts of "Henry IV," and substituting everywhere for "Sir John Oldcastle" "Sir John Falstaff," omitted in the First Part to alter the phrase in which Prince Henry addresses him as "my old lad of the Castle." Such slips are of the nature of vestigial remnants, says a writer in the Manchester Guardian. In the same book, however, Mr. de Morgan may find other slips of a different sort. One is that by which he unintentionally represents a nurse who has known his heroine only as Mrs. Fenwick, addressing her as Mrs. Nightingale. The reason is obvious. Although married only twice, and both times to the same man, the heroine in the course of her career had five changes of name. She was to begin with, Miss Rosalind Graythorpe; by her marriage in India she became Mrs. Rosalind Paliser; after her desertion she called herself "Mrs. Roy," and substituting until her stepfather, on leaving her his fortune, stipulated that she should take his name, whereupon she became Mrs. Rosalind Nightingale; finally, by her marriage with Fenwick she became Mrs. Rosalind Penwick. Mr. de Morgan delights in complicating matters in this way for his reader, but it is no wonder that, once in a while he should get confused himself and forget which one of her names she was wearing at some particular time.

David Graham Phillips has gone to Europe on his usual summer trip. He expects to spend most of his time in Paris at work on a new novel.

PAULINE CHASE BACK AS 'STAR'

Returns From Europe to Play the Title Part in "Our Miss Gibbs"

Pauline Chase, who first danced into notoriety as a chorus girl in pink pajamas, and then refused to grow up as "Peter Pan," arrived home on the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II. of the North German Lloyd Line. Miss Chase does not refer to her first, successful life. She thinks her recent work in "Peter Pan" should put that among the forgotten things, especially as she now expects to have a singing-whistle acting part in "Our Miss Gibbs" next month at the Knickerbocker.

The English musical piece has been running for two years in London, but New York will be the first to see Miss Chase in it, and it will be her first public singing effort. She has made numerous efforts in private since Chase. Frohman gave her the part, but only she and her tutor know the possibilities of her voice. The tutor has not spoken, but Miss Chase charmingly hazards the hope that she is "something worth while" as a soprano.

"THE PIPER" AT STRATFORD

Notable Production of Miss Peabody's Prize Play--Audience Well Pleased

Stratford, England, July 30.--Josephine Preston Peabody, the American author of the prize play for the Shakespeare festival, had a genuine triumph when her work was produced at the Memorial Theatre. It was a romantic play, entitled "The Piper," which won a reward of $1,000 after a brisk competition with rival playwrights of England and America. Next season Miss Peabody will be seen in a new play, under the direction of Jos. Brooks.

This photograph is the first real departure from the stereotyped Lillian. It will show her wondrous beauty, her lustrous blue eyes, her Cupid's bow upper lip, but it is more maternally, more womanly, more motherly than the pictures we've all been used to. Next season Miss Russell will be seen in a new play, under the direction of Jos. Brooks.

Well Paid for Looks

HELEN WARE.

Helen Ware began life as a school teacher; then she went on the stage. Her early school room training involved looking eyes, occasionally, in school-teacher style. This very cross look is what helps her now on the stage; her ability to look cold and haughty--though she isn't that way at heart--wins her a big salary. "The Third Degree" she won her first honors. This autumn she is to open "The Deserters," a Henry B. Harris production, playing a secret service agent who tracks army deserters.

KING GEORGE WINS PUBLIC'S AFFECTION

Is Sacrificing His Personal Preference for Conclusion to the Calls of His Office--Not Hurrying His Mother's Departure from Royal Residence as the Kaiser Did.

London, August 2.--King George made what was practically his first public progress through London, and received a hearty welcome from the people on his trip to the London Hospital.

During the short period over which the new reign has extended the monarch has made a decided advance in the esteem and affection of his subjects. His public acts have been marked by seriousness of purpose and a full sense of the responsibility of his office.

Rightly or wrongly, he is credited with having played an important part in bringing about the conference between the heads of the Government and of the Opposition, which, although it may not result in anything definite, has meant the prolongation of the political truce which all parties desired at the outset of the reign.

But what has impressed the general public most has been his quiet attention to the duties of kingship, and the fact that he has spared neither time nor labor in performing them.

An atmosphere of serious work surrounds Marlborough House, and although King George has not yet won that personal popularity which was extended to his father, he is rapidly creating the impression that, like King Edward, although in a totally different way, he is likely to become a most influential figure in British life.

During this week King George has identified himself with the navy, as during the previous week he did with the army. It has been suggested in that "smart set" Court, that King George, who is now their monarch, was practically unknown to them.

BRITAIN'S LATEST IN BATTLESHIPS

Vanguard Embraces All the Naval Features with Conning Tower Divided Into Two Sections and Quarter Deck Given Over to the Crew---Hull Alone Cost $4,000,000.

London, August 5.--It is four years since the first Dreadnought made her appearance, and it is interesting now to notice the improvements that have been evolved in this type of warship during this time. H. M. S. Vanguard, the latest addition to the navy of England, is 490 feet long, has a beam of 52 feet, and displaces 13,250 tons, as compared with the 17,000 tons of the original Dreadnoughts. A number of "water-tube" boilers provide steam for turbines of the latest design, producing 25,000 horse-power. Four propellers give her a speed of twenty-one knots an hour.

The engines, boilers, shell, powder, torpedoes, auxiliary machinery, workshops and stores are all carefully protected; first, by an armored deck 2 3/4 inches in thickness, running the full length of the vessel; and, secondly, by two-inch side armor. In addition to this, the coal bunkers are so arranged as to enclose the engine rooms and thus give further protection. That part of the vessel above the armored deck is protected by side plates and an upper deck of two-inch armor. The stern is taken up by the crew's quarters, while the bows are given up to those of the officers. The result is that the quarter-deck, which in all pre-Dreadnought battleships is sacred to the officers, is now the habitat of the crew--an arrangement which is much more convenient in that the officers have direct access to the bridges and "control station." The main armament of the Vanguard consists of five barbettes of 9 3/4-inch armor, each enclosing two twelve-inch guns of the latest pattern. These are so arranged that 8 guns can be fired on a broadside weigh 850 pounds apiece, the total broadside weighs 6800 pounds. The weight of a single twelve-inch gun is fifty-eight tons.

Directly under each barbette is a space extending to the full depth of the vessel surrounded with 9 3/4-inch armor in which is to be found the hydraulic machinery for turning, raising or lowering the guns, and the hand gear which is provided in case of an emergency. Lifts are also provided for bringing the ammunition up from

King George, accompanied by Queen Mary, made a complete inspection of the hospital, speaking to many of the patients. A story which came out in the course of the visit gives an excellent indication of the King's thoroughness. It appears that he once before visited the London hospital, when he was Prince of Wales. The visit was absolutely a private one and known only to two physicians, who kept the secret. The Prince, having heard of certain disparaging articles on the treatment of women in the out-patients department, determined to see for himself the true conditions of things in the character of a student he visited the out-patients' department during the hours of the reception of patients and was able thoroughly to satisfy himself that every possible care for the efficient, respectable and decent treatment of women was taken and that the articles in question were without foundation.

ALMOST A HOOSIER.

George Randolph Chester Wrote regularly in a Newspaper but Evolves Interesting Fiction.

George Randolph Chester has not the distinction of being a Hoosier author, but he comes close to it. That is to say, he lived for a time at Connersville, Hoosierland, and married a Connersville girl. Further, it was during his residence in the State of paw-paws and poets that he wrote "The Strike Breaker," which first brought him into special prominence in the field of fiction.

It is said that Mr. Chester was the most remarkable reporter that the Cincinnati Enquirer ever had on its staff, and that he could make a first page column of intense interest out of anything. No matter what the assign-the store rooms below. On the top of each barbette is mounted a pair of four-inch quick-firing guns, fitted with light shields. These are provided in order to repel torpedo attacks. Ten others of the same type are distributed about the upper deck for the same reason. Six machine guns complete the list of armament.

The Vanguard is fitted with a novel conning tower. It is divided into two parts. The upper part is a duplicate of the lower and is armored with a complete wall of 12-inch steel. The two communicate through a trap door in the 6-inch floor of the upper tower, so that should the upper part be shot away the captain has only to slip through into the lower tower. Above the conning tower is the lower and upper bridge and "chart room" from which the ship is controlled in time of peace. A third and single conning tower is provided behind the rear funnel.

Each of the masts is fitted with a "fire-control station," at a height of about 120 feet above the level of the water. During an action specially appointed officers are stationed here to discover the range and to note the results to the gunners. By a marvelous system of motors the officer in the control top can aim the barbettes guns himself. Each motion guided by the officer in the top for training the guns is transmitted directly and simultaneously to point the guns and also to fire them independently of the men in the barbettes.

Now let us consider the cost of this evolution.

The hull with its fittings cost the admiralty over $4,000,000; the searchlights and other electrical fittings $250,000; the boilers and turbine machinery, $1,616,990; the torpedo tubes $45,000. The steam and motor launches which she carries are worth $40,000 alone. The twelve-inch guns cost over $65,000 apiece; while the whole barbettes cost $500,000 apiece--$2,500,000 altogether. The vessel burns, for instance, about eighteen tons of Welsh coal an hour, which works out at about $65 an hour--no small coal bill. The cost of firing one shell from a twelve-inch gun is $750; while torpedoes cost $3,000 apiece.

An edition of John Redmond's speeches on "Home Rule," edited by K. Barry O'Brien and revised by Mr. Redmond himself, is to be published in London by T. Fisher Unwin. The speeches selected, twenty-four in number, cover the period of Mr. Redmond's public career from 1886 to 1909, including speeches made in Parliament and on the public platform in Ireland, England, Scotland and the United States. The first speech in the book is the one made by Mr. Redmond on the second reading of Mr. Gladstone's home rule bill of 1886, and perhaps not the least interesting part of the book is a lecture delivered by Mr. Redmond throughout the United States on "Fifteen Years in the English House of Commons," giving a picture of the men who played an important part in Irish and British politics during the years which marked the ascendancy of Charles Stewart Parnell.

Mr. Justice Miles Forman has left the house in Surrey, England, which he was occupying with Norman Haggood, and expects to be in Spain next week. He writes that his next novel will have a European setting.

The Act of "The Lily"

JULIA DEAN.

Belasco's famous and somewhat naughtily play, "The Lily," owes some of its success to the astonishing beauty of Julia Dean, who scored her first hit in the piece last season. She will appear in most American cities in the piece the coming season. A play of ranch life is being made for her for the following season.

New Square Outing Veil

This is the new square outing veil, which is held in place by a ribbon which is fastened under the chin. It is made of chiffon with wide hem, and a long broad satin ribbon, is sewed to it about a third of the way across--the ribbon, of course, being the color of the veil. It crosses the nat, ties under the chin, and can be thrown back over the hat or left to fall gracefully over the face. Plain meshed face veils are still worn and many new ones in heavy and light weight mesh are coming in, but the popular one is of the mesh design.

Customs Men Stood Aghape at Near Gowns

HALLIE ERMINE RIVES.

New York, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Post Wheeler, wife of the charge d'affaires of the American embassy at St. Petersburg, formerly of the diplomatic service at Tokyo, has returned from St. Petersburg with a bunch of gowns the value of which tied a kink in the adding machines of the customs office.

Mrs. Wheeler, who goes by the name of Hallie Ermine Rives when writing novels, believes that each gown she owns should reflect some particular mood or "flash of thought." She receives at home in a kimono a la Tokyo.

Here is a partial list of the costly gowns admired by Collector Loeb's men:

Item—Harebell blue linen, embroidered in white daisies and chrysanthemums. Sand colored hat drooping with huge blue and pink roses.

Item—Botticelli gown, white satin and mouseline de soie. Scads of embroidery; silver roses. Front of tulle holds big roses.

Item—Doucet dinner gown of hydrant blue set in crepe, gold embroidered, old Venetian point lace.

These are only samples. There are plenty more.

Note—Catalogue not sent on request.

Count Works in Mill but is a Good Sport

THE COUNTESS DE BEAUFORT AND HER "DAWG."

New York, Aug. 5.—The Countess de Beaufort and her noble consort are spending their two weeks vacation in a manner which must prove an object lesson to all other wives of laboring men.

Although Count Jacques Alexander Albert U. von Mourik de Beaufort is only a "common laborer" and goes to work in a pair of greasy overalls and a cap, his wife has economized so wisely and so well that when the count's vacation time came they had enough hid away in the family "stocking" to put up at the St. Regis, where workmen—and others—are usually taxed about $50 a day, especially if they want to sleep in the $10,000 bed, which the count much prefers to any other kind.

And the most wonderful part of it all is that the count only gets $2.49 a day for his labor in the Chicago Steel Tool Co.'s mill. It was hard for him to land that job, too, for his father-in-law only owns half of the concern. But he did land it and is the most democratic fellow one sees.

The Countess combed the city for it. The fellaers at the mill say it's gold-lined, and that he shouldn't carry anything but chocolate creams in it. This is the count's first vacation since he got his job last spring. His last vacation extended from his birth until last April. So you see why he needs a change and rest.

The count is going to work in paper-in-law Kilgallen's factory for a year—if he holds out that long—on a bet of some hundreds of thousands of dollars he made (he says so) with some foreign duke or king, name not given. The count would and won Miss Kilgallen (worth $30,000) in two weeks last spring, and has been living with "her folks" since. His titles reach back into ancient history.

"WILLINGLY GIVE THIS TESTIMONIAL"

In Favor of "FRUIT-A-TIVES" FOR THE BENEFIT OF OTHER SUFFERERS

Spoken like a man! Mr. Paul Jones, of Sarnia, is proud to acknowledge the great debt he owes to this wonderful fruit medicine.

"I have been a sufferer for the past 25 years with Constipation, Indigestion and Catarrh of the Stomach. I tried many remedies and many doctors, but derived no benefit whatever. Finally, I read an advertisement of 'Fruit-a-tives' in which Hon. John Costigan stated that he had been cured by 'Fruit-a-tives.' I decided to give 'Fruit-a-tives' a trial and found they did exactly what was claimed for them. I have now taken them for some time and find they are the only remedy that does me good. I have recommended 'Fruit-a-tives' to a great many of my friends and I cannot praise these fruit tablets too highly, as they have done me good."

"I claim 'Fruit-a-tives' are invaluable in every respect and I willingly give this testimonial for the benefit of other sufferers."

Mr. Jones is favorably known all over the District of Sarnia. He was in business there for years, and is now enjoying the fruits of a long and successful mercantile career. Every reader of this paper is at liberty to write Mr. Jones and find out for themselves that the above letter is genuine and was written to 'Fruit-a-tives' voluntarily and solely with the idea of helping the sick.

The financial and social standing of those who have written letters in favor of 'Fruit-a-tives' is the best guarantee that this famous fruit medicine is all that is claimed for it.

'Fruit-a-tives' is the only true liver stimulant in the world because it is the only medicine made of fruit juices. By its use, the amount of bile is increased while the muscles are made stronger and more capable of emptying the bowels naturally.

'Fruit-a-tives' is one of the few medicines that may be taken day after day with only benefit to the health. It is necessary, 'Fruit-a-tives' could be taken for twenty years because it contains only fruit juices and tonics—nature's natural remedies for all Stomach, Liver, Bowel, Kidney and Skin Troubles.

If you are suffering as Mr. Jones did, take his advice and try 'Fruit-a-tives.' 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid, on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

HEAD OF MASSAM CO. ASKS INVESTIGATION

City Council Will Probe the Main Street Paving Matter to the Bottom—Meeting on Monday.

There will be an investigation into the Main street paving matter. Yesterday morning Walter E. Hassam, general manager, and J. H. Crane, superintendent of construction of the Hassam Paving Company of Worcester, Mass., arrived in the city and had a conference with Mayor Frink and several of the aldermen; and later five aldermen signed a requisition asking the mayor to call a special meeting of the common council for Monday afternoon to open an enquiry.

Mr. Hassam, speaking to a reporter, said that he had read the criticism of his company which had appeared in the local papers and thought that most of it was very unjust. He had come down just to see what the trouble was, if there was any. He would welcome an investigation of the most stringent character in order to clear the air and give them a chance to justify themselves.

Regarding the rumors of graft, Mr. Hassam said that he had visited practically every city of over ten thousand population in Canada and the United States on business and never once had an alderman or civic official held out his hand to him for money or other favors. Their company had never had the slightest hint of scandal attached to their operations.
