LONDON, July 26.—The triennial council of the Orange Grand Lodge was held in Westminster yesterday. N. Clarke Wallace, of Canada, presided. Fifteen American and as many colonial delegates were present.

The Queen to be There.

London, July 26 .- Queen Victoria will witness the match race between the Britannia and Vigilant over the Queen's course on Aug. 4. The Prince of Wales will himself sail the Britannia and the Duke of York will also be on board.

War Declared.

LONDON, July 26 .- The Japanese and Chinese officials have received many dispatches from their home Governments today. While declining to say much of the tenor of these dispatches, the officials state that the prospect of an agreement between China and Japan remains unsatisfactory. A meeting of the committee representing Japanese residents was held at the Japanese consulate in San Francisco last night, and it was decided to make immediate efforts to raise $10,000 to assist their Government in carrying on its war with China. The San Francisco Japanese are prepared to form a brigade, arm themselves with American rifles and go to Japan at their own expense. LONDON, July 26 .- The Central News says late this evening that according to the latest information received important developments are imminent in Corea.

SHANGHAI, July 26 .- It is reported that the 12,000 Chinese troops which left Taku on July 20 for Corea, conveyed by eight gunboats, have landed in Corea. The gunboats escorting the transports had instructions to fire upon the Japanese if the latter obstructed the landing of this

The other troops which left Foo Choo for the Loo Choo Islands are also said to have safely reached their destination.

It is stated that if the report of the landing of the Chinese troops unopposed is correct, the prospects of a peaceful settlement of the disputes between China and Japan are improved, as the Chinese fleet of transports and gunboats could scarcely have escaped the vigilance of the Japanese war vessels if the latter had been preparing to oppose the landing of the Chinese force. This is said to show that Japan is now more amenable to the counsels of the treaty

LONDON, July 26 .- The Central News has this dispatch from Shanghai: "War has been declared between Japan and China. The Japanese have seized the King of Corea and hold him prisoner. Eleven Chinese steamers are on their way to Corea. Most of the troops aboard them are coolies armed with bows and arrows. Some Chinese steamers which have arrived at Corea have been prevented by the Japanese from landing troops. It is reported that the Japanese artillery sank several of them."

Imp. Fed.

LONDON, July 26 .- Sir John Lubbock presided in the London Chamber of Commerce this evening over a meeting of the city branch of the Imperial Federation League. He welcomed the Canadian delegates heartily. Col. Denison, of Toronto, spoke of the importance of maintaining the unity of the empire. Canada, he said, was absolutely true to England, and would resolutely fight against any movement to annex her to the United States. Great enmity was felt in the United States towards England. Only the better educated and higher classes there were friendly toward England. The peace was maintained only through fear of the British navy and 5,000,000 Canadians. In the event that France and Russia combine the United States would join them. This emphasized the necessity of federation. Canada was prepared to make great sacrifices for this, but she expected help from England. In conclusion Mr. Denison urged a system of preferential tariffs between Great Britain and her colonies. The motion of Sir F. Young to appoint a committee to consider the best course to pursue was carried with some opposition.

PUTTING UP THE BARS

To Keep Canadian labor Out of the United States.

WASHINGTON, July 26 .- The sub-committee of the House committee on immigration and naturalization having charge of the bill of Mr. Lockwood (New York) for the protection of American labor and the enforcement of the law of domicile, today reported it to the full committee favorably. The bill forbids entrance into the United States of subjects of the Dominion of Canada or Mexico whose purpose is to perform labor service of any kind, and makes violations of this provision punishable by a All aliens coming to the United States to perform labor of any kind are to be examined at the port of entry, and if they do to land, and all alien minors are required cassed the bill briefly, but reached no taken upon the tariff bill. Mr. Holman (Indiana) chairman of the caucus commit tee, said today that the matter of a caucus had been discussed more or less by the Democrats during the past 24 hours. It is believed that the House conferees will insist strenuously upon the Wilson Bill when they meet tomorrow, and that after several days spent in committee another disagreeing report will be made. Mr. Holman thinks that on the day such a report is made the House Democrats will meet in caucus, and that the instructions of the caucus will be of such a character as to result at the conference following in a compromise which will be acceptable to both Houses. "We must," he said, "have a bill before we adjourn; no other course is

AT ST. ANNES' SHRINE.

Miracles Reported at the Celebration There.

The Lame, Halt and Blind Claim to be Cured-Some Instances.

QUEBEC, July 27 .- Pilgrims from Ontario and the United States returned last night from the shrine of La Bonne Ste. Anne report a series of most miraculous cures during the religious celebration there yesterday in honor of the festival of the saint. Numbers of the Peterboro', Ont., pilgrims who arrived on Tuesday remained over, and yesterday morning witnessed the arrival of several hundred pilgrims from Utica, N.Y., all wearing a blue and gold

Very pitiful were the condition and infirmities of some of the pilgrims who pressed forward to communicate and to venerate the relic, and great indeed was the sensation as the various cures were reported.

David McLean, of 48 Tremont street, Boston, has been perfectly crippled and unable to walk or even stand alone for four years. Since May he has lived at Ste. Anne, close to the church, and for days past has assured his friends that he would be cured yesterday. Immediately after communicating he made the effort to stand and was able to walk feebly. He looks for a permanent cure.

More striking even is the case of Miss L. Fitzmaurice, Grafton, Ont., who fell into a well two years ago, and has never been able to move since, except with crutches. After communion yesterday she laid down her crutches and walked without them, but painfully and spasmodically. She left the church, but returned for vespers, kissed the relic, and walked easily with the aid of a cane. She left last night for home, almost perfectly cured. Cobourg, also reports a sudden acquisition of physical relief, which she attributes to miraculous interposition, though still partially invalided.

A man named Oregan had the sight of his right eye restored, he says, while invoking the saint, though he had not used it before for some time.

Mrs. Hayes, of Peterboro, Ont., came here on Tuesday with her right arm so paralyzed that she could not cross her-Yesterday strength came suddenly to the palsied limb as she venerated the relic, and she waved her hand around her head in proof thereof. An 11-year-old girl from Coaticoke had been dumb for eight years, when, after invoking the aid of Ste. Anne and communicating, the string of her tongue was loosed and she cried out: "Bonne Ste. Anne, je vous remercie." (Good Ste. Anne, I thank

But sad, very sad, were the numerous in valids-blind, lame and halt-that slowly returned home last night uncured.

WILLIAM AND JESSIE.

Interesting Case in the Windsor Police

Court. WINDSOR, July 26 .- Wm. Hiland and lessie Potter, of Maidstone, are not yet married, and the feud between their families is still in the police court. The fight at the church several weeks ago came up this morning in the trial of William John Albert and Wesley Hiland for assaulting W. H. and Geo. Potter. The first witness was William H. Potter, who said that he was the father of the girl and that she lived at his home. On the night in question he was near the house and his daughter was inside washing the dishes. He saw Wm. Hiland drive up to the gate, and the next thing he knew was that Hiland lifted the girl into the buggy and was driving off with her. He called for her to come back and Hiland turned and shook his fist at him. He and his son then harnessed their horse and drove to the church at Maidstone. They found that the couple were inside, and waited till the service was over. He then told his daughter to come with him, but Hiland refused to let her do so, and kept swinging his fist and threatening what he would do. He had forbidden his daughter to go with Hiland, as he was in the habit of keeping her out to all hours and driving with her all over the county. When he drove off with her that day he called out that he had her now and could beat them all

'The fight started," the witness said, when Hiland put her into his buggy. He said he tock her there and would take her back. I said he would do nothing of the kind. I then put her into my rig, and when I went to get in myself William and Albert Hiland pulled me out. William Hiland finally ran up and struck me." "Where was the girl meanwhile?" inquired Crown Attorney Clarke, who was acting for the prosecution. "I don't know," replied the witness; "but I suppose Hiland was pulling her around, as nearly all her clothes were torn off. Her jacket was ripped to pieces, and her hat was lying smashed on the ground. The girl finally said she would go home with her cousin, and the fight stopped." "Hiland sings in the choir of the church, does he not ?" inquired Lawyer Cowan, who appeared for the four defendants. "Yes, he does," replied Mr. Potter; and a pretty singer he is." During the hearing hot words passed be tween the different parties, and threats were made which went to show that the fine of $100 or imprisonment for 90 days. | trial, in place of being the end of the trouble, is more like the beginning. Other witnesses testified to what took place while the members of the congregation were not possess $75 they are not to be permitted looking on. An A. R. U. Convention to Meet on August 2,

Which Shall Decide Whether or Not to End the Conflict.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 26. - The directors of the American Railway Union today decided to call a convention of delegates of the local unions, to be held at Uhlich Hall, in this city, Aug. 2, to determine whether the strike shall be continued or abandoned. Each delegate will be instructed by his union before attending the convention how his colleagues feel on the question, and he will have full authority to act for them. This will relieve the directors of direct responsibility, and incidentally accomplish the purposes of Debs, Howard, Keliher and Rogers without making them liable to another case of contempt of court.

After the board adjourned the directors attended a meeting of local strikers at Uhlich Hall, 2,000 men being present. The cheers which went up on Debs' entrance could be heard several blocks away. Debs told his fellow-railwaymen that if the rulings of Judge Woods were correct in the United States Circuit Court then the laborer was no longer a free man, and had no right to protect and defend himself, but was a common slave to capital, and had no right to do other than his employer ordered. He said he did not believe the ruling of the judge was sound, but that if it was the only thing left to do was to muster their forces and carry to the polls a man who would bring about an amendment to the constitution which would give them their liberty. "Debs for Congress" was the cry on all sides after the speech.

OMAHA, Neb., July 26 —The national executive board of the Knights of Labor spent today going over the reports of State organizers. A great many local assemblies had lapsed in the past year, and the State organizers were ordered to report on the cause and whether reorganizations could not be effected. The majority of the organizers, it is reported, have recommended the formation of new assemblies in preference to attempting to revivify the old ones.

NEW YORK, July 26 .- Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, left last night for Detroit, Grand Rapids and Muskegon to organize labor societies in those cities under the American Federation Banner.

Two great national organizations, with a membership of 10,000, joined the Federation yesterday. They are the Brotherhood of Operative Potters and the National Association of Pattern Makers.

It is complete for the entire State, except four townships, from which no returns have been received, and the totals are believed to be substantially accurate, though they are subject to correction by further counts

The total population of the State June ] was 2,239 354, as compared with 2,093,889 in 1890, and 1,853,568 in 1884. The increase in four years has been 145,485. or 6.95 per cent. Since 1884 it has been 385,-716, or 20.81 per cent.

MR. AND MRS. GLADSTONE.

Four of the dinner guests wore elegant toilettes of velvet, brocade or satin, cut decollete, and resplendent with diamonds and other ornaments. Their heavy robes trailed across the soft carpet and added to the richness of the drawing room. In the midst of all this splendor was a quaint figure of an old lady in a sober black gown and bonnet. She looked as if she had stepped out of a Dickens novel, for her whole attire, especially the large bonnet coming over her ears, was old fashioned. "Who is she?" "Why does she wear a street costume at a dinner party?" and "Oh, why the bonnet?" These were natural questions from the Americans, to be followed by greater surprise at the information that the old lady was none other than Mrs. Gladstone, mistress of Hawarden.

It seemed quite in harmony with her costume that Mrs. Gladstone should salute the new guests with a prim little courtesy. Hardly were the responses made when a group of men in evening dress appeared in the doorway. There were tall and distinguished men in the company, a diplomet, a multi-millionaire, a noted politician; a great financier; but all made way for an old gentleman with bowed shoulders and white hair. In a moment the hostess came forward and greeted the leader in a clear voice-"Mr. Gladstone." It was difficult to realize that we were looking upon one of the greatest personages of the nineteenth century. At first glance Mr. Gladstone appeared like a man of about 83 or 84 years of age, nervous, energetic and courteous. But a closer observation enlarged the comprehension of his nature. His features are familiar through countless portraits and caricatures, but no print can give the fascination of those bright dark eyes, the brilliant indices of that intellectual activity which has carried him into many fields of study, and which has given him capacity for the labors of a political career of over 50 years .-[Harper's Bazar.

THE CHILDREN'S OUTING.

Little Ones Given a Delightful Treat

By the Children's Aid Society-Street Car Rides, Picnic, Games and Prizes.

It was a hoppy thought to give the poor children of the city an outing, as was done vesterday by the Children's Aid Society. There are numbers to whom such an outing comes as a boon and a blessing, deprived as they are of the enjoyments that fall to the lot of those better circumstanced. Two hundred and fifty children took advantage of the invitation of the Children's Aid Society, and as they gathered at the city arcade passing citizens wondered what the occasion was. Punctually at 4 o'clock three large open cars were halted at the City Hall, and a few minutes saw the happy youngsters on board, being in charge of Messrs. D. S. Perrin, Samuel R. P. GEORGE H. WILSON, YORK threat and lungs. Break, Andrew Thomson, J. W. Hyman, Samuel Grigg, Superintendent Smith, Officer Joseph Sanders and Mr. Fred W. CL. T. Matthews. When the cars, which were gaily decorated with flags and banners, reached the park Mr. Arthur Cooper took a photo of the children and the committee of ladies and gentlemen as a memento of the cccasion. A committee of ladies had preceded the excursion, and on the arrival of the youngsters everything was in readiness for the feast of good thing. That over, a ride on the merry-go-round was given all, and then games were called, in which almost all the children secured a prize. A baseball match was played from sides chosen from the boys, under the direction of Mr. J. A. Hunt, Officer Joseph Sanders superintended the games. These over the children were conducted to the cars, when they were each given a bag of candy and taken over the line of railway to the South London terminus and back to the City Hall, where they sang "God Save the Queen" and were dispersed. The society desires to thank, in the heartiest possible manner, the following contributors to the success of the occasion: Mr. D. S. Perrin, for the munificent donation of 220 pounds of the best cake and sugar; Mr. J. R. Shuttleworth, for lemons; Mrs. J. A. Hunt, Mrs. John Beattie, Mrs. Andrew Morphy, Mrs. E. W. ## WAYSIDE ADVERTISING.

In the East It is Looked Upon as Nusiance. The custom of advertising by the way. side has got to be such a nuisance that something should be done to stop it. It is carried to such an extent in many localities, and it so disfigures landscapes otherwise beautiful, that a large number of travelers would prefer to pass through such places by night rather than be subject to the continual irritation caused by such offenses to the eye. The trouble is, however, that the nusiance is becoming so universal that one would have to travel everywhere by night to avoid it. One of the latest atrocities is that of making signboards into the shape of huge bottles, and other articles, covered with inscriptions setting forth the virtues of some quack nostrum or other. A praisworthy attempt was made in the lastilegislature to prohibit or diminish this evil; but somehow it failed, probably bethose who voted with a cord of cause legislators could not see why a man should not have the right to permit his barn, shed or house to be covered with advertising signs, or his meadow or field, topasses on the highway or in the railway cars. Possibly the evil might be reached and very severely discouraged by a system of taxation at a rate increasing with the size of the lettering or dimensions of space occupied. This would certainly be a legit-imate subject for taxation. The person owning the property should be made responsible for the tax, for it might be impossible to reach the parties doing the advertising. The proprietor of the premises would thus he made shy of leasing such advertising space.

LONDONERS OUT WEST.

How They Rough It in Alberta Territory.

Experiences of Former Residents o This City and Middlesex-Laughable and Otherwise.

Writing from Waghern, Alberta, N. W. T., to Mr. John Connor, old book store, city, Mr Cecil Clunes Ewing, a former Londoner, says: "I like this country first-rate. We have beautiful hills, stretching to the Rockies, which are visible on fine days, though 150 miles off. The fields are covered with lilles of the valley, wild roses, pea vines and violets, and early in the season were nearly white with wild straw berry blossoms. Everything grows fast here. I have shot many rabbits. There are also wild duck, but they fly fast and are hard to get at. I am getting my shanty or "shack" put up. I cut all the top for it myself. Cooper's house is one of the biggest up here. Paisley seems to be getting along well. It is very comical to see Mr. Paisley and his company driving out in their buckboard with an ox instead of a pony. I said driving, but there is more spurting than anything else. It is a good thing Mr. Paisley doesn't swear, else the air would be blue. Mrs. Paisley has a look of calm resignation on her face when the ox takes it into his head to turn off the trail to go and feed near bushes or rushes down a steep ditch to get a drink. Mrs. Paisley seems to like the country now very much, though at first she did not. Potatoes are 90 cents a bushel, flour $2 50 (the best) Mr. Cooper paid 15 cents for a bottle of ink but I think must have been cheated, as I got mine for 10 cents. Brumpton, who used to have a store on Dundas street, has a store here. He seems to have made a lot of money. Red Deer has about seven stores, two doctors and a mounted police station. It has two hotels. There are a lot of coyotes up here. You can hear them howling at night. They will not touch people. A brown bear was seen about 100 yaras from the house the other day, but no one was at home. I am getting an Indian pony to run around on. I have been down fishing in Red Deer River. There is good fishing and the fish weigh from about three-quarters of a pound to a pound. I do not expect to do a great deal this year. It is a little lonely, but you must expect that in a newly settled country. I saw a lot of Indians on the Edmonton trail. They had their hair braided and decorated with silver ornaments and feathers. They just camp wherever they please. They take pack horses with them to carry the tents and provisions. Droves of horses from 25 to 100 travel through the country attended by cowboys. I saw 700 sheep the other day. I went to Lacombe picnic on July 2. Lacombe has three or four stores and a hotel. The people there are mostly English. We had a very fine day. We had to sit down to tables as there is no bush nearer than a mile and a half. They had poles covered with spruce branches which made it nice and cool. There were about 100 Indians and about the same number of halfbreeds. The Indians rode ponies in two or three races and one pony tried to run up on to a slanting roof and pitched the rider off. After that they had a foot race for the squaws. also pole jumping, high jumping and tug-ofwar. There must have been nearly 1,000 persons there-a very orderly crowd, no drinking at all. I expect that was because the hotel has no license yet. There were some wonderful costumes there among the Indians. One had a fur hat, a soldier's coat and blue overall pants. Some had no pants at all, but their legs are so brown you could hardly tell the difference. Each one in the pony race was armed with some kind of a club. One had a walkingstick with a hook on the end; another a stick about three feet long and a foot thick, the rest had whips. The days here are very long-sun sets at . p.m. instead of 8 p.m. as in Ontario. I can see to read at 10 p.m. on clear nights. John Perkins, son of the butcher on Dundas street, is up here boarding with Mr. Paisley. He is getting stronger I think. The land is being taken up here rapidly. We've had about three frests but they have not damaged the potatoes much.

APPLES BETTER THAN WHEAT.

Oregon Steadily Rolling Up Wealth With Fruit, Especially Apples. That it will not do to put all of one's eggs in one basket has been thoroughly demonstrated by the berry crop this season. With thousands of crates ripe, the ability to reach a market is, without any fault of ours, suddenly taken away. The strawberry crop has been the principal one of this section: and while it will not only hold its present yield, but will double and treble it, it will in a year or two become of secondary importance. Prunes, peaches, cherries and small fruits generally are a necessity to the | Florida reefs, when suddenly I felt somefruit grower because they furnish him with money early in the season, as well as early in his business. They are a means to an end, furnishing money to support the family enced when yu are falling under the influand to improve the farms. They all bear one fatal objection as a crop to be relied reached up and grabbed me by the sholder. upon, and that is the absolute necessity of gardless of the sensibilities of the public that finding a market for them as soon as they was but a short distance from the shore and are ripe. This may not be true of the prune, but for it the same condition exists I called to them for help and started to -it must be taken care of at once when

year 70 times as much, and then for twenty | nati Inquirer. years 100 times as much. In other words, one acre of winter apples is worth more, year in and year out, than 100 acres of wheat. Six acres of good orchard will yield a larger net yield than a section of wheat land. Multiply the acres in Hood River valley by 100, and some idea of the wealth that it will eventually produce may be gained.

In other words, every section in fruit will produce a cash value equal to three townships of wheat. The winter apple is going to accomplish this result. And the next few years, as the young orchards come into bearing, will prove the truth of this assertion, though it now seems a wild one. We can but reiterate our former words: "Plant apple trees-twenty acres if you can; one tree if that is your limit, but plant at every opportunity." When this valley is an orchard from the mills to the summit east of us, and from the river back for twenty miles, then only will it have attained its full development .- [Hood River

DECENERATED DEMOCRACY.

The U. S. Senate Insists on a Forty-Cent Coal Tax.

Only Six Votes Cast for Hill's Motion to Make It Free-Senator Vilas' Elcquent Defense of President

WASHINGTON, July 26 .- At 12 o'clock today the Senate took up the question of agreeing to a further conference on the tariff bill. Mr. Vilas (Dem., Wis.) addressed the Senate in a two-hours' speech, delivered off hand and with much oratorical effect. His speech was highly eulogistic of President Cleveland, whom he defended from the charges of duplicity and of improper interference with legislation made by Senator Gorman in his speech of Monday. He spoke of Mr. Cleveland as "the great first citizen of the republic," and as the "representative of national honor," and he declared, with solemnity and vehemence, that to assail Grover Cleveland was to strike at the republic; that to insult him was to affront every good citizen; and that to stab him was to sting the heart of every true American. In conclusion he withdrew his motion of Friday to strike out the discriminating duty of one-eighth of 1 cent a pound on sugar, and favored Mr. Gray's motion to insist and to consent to further conference. He did this, he said, because he was a strict party man and desired to be in accord with his Democratic brethren, and he expressed the hope that out of this conference would come a measure far better than that which had already passed the Senate. Mr. Vilas was followed by Mr. Stewart Populist, Nevada), who criticised the President's letter as an invasion of executive power such as had cost Charles I. his head. At the close of the debate the vote was taken on Mr. Hill's motion to recede from the duty of 40 cents a ton on iron ore and on coal. There were only six votes, including his own, cast in favor of it, as against 65 in the negative. Then Mr. Caffery (Democrat, Louisiana) withdrew his motion in favor of a modified sugar bounty for 1894. Mr. Quay had already withdrawn his motion to have sugar put on the free list, and the only question left was Mr. Gray's motion to insist and to agree to the further conference asked by the House. As the vote was about to be taken, Mr. Vilas' motion to recede from the 1/8 cent a pound discriminating duty on sugar was renewed by Mr. Washburn (Republican, Minnesota). A point of order was made against it, and that point was debated without a conclusion being reached until

They did some good running. There was Inhuman Treatment of Prisoners by the Superintendent of a Reformatory. ELMIRA, N. Y., July 26 .- Investigation of the charges of cruelty against Supt. Brockway, of the State Reformatory, were continued today. John J. Delaney told of six or seven incarcerations in the solitary cells, each lasting three to five days, with his hands chained to the wall during the day and to the floor during the night. Richard Quinn, a very reluctant witness. testified that he had been strung up and paddled by Brockway until he was insensible. He said he was bleeding from the nose and mouth and had wounds on the upper lip, also on the top of his head, from which scars remain.

Miss Vallance Saves a Young Man From

Drowning. Hamilton, July 26 .-- Mr. Frank Robertson, who is camping at the beach, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday morning. While sailing in a light cruiser opposite the Arlington Hotel a squall suddenly struck his boat, capsizing it immediately. The towns of Three Forks and Watson were completely destroyed, not a single building being left. The losses cannot be estimated, but they will reach into large

The Galena Trading Company and Lemon's store at Three Forks saved nothing, even the books being destroyed. Geo. V. As far as known from meager details received there has been no loss of life, but very many marvelons escapes. The inhabitants of Watson were saved by taking refuge in a tunnel.

The Camp Reduced to a Diet of Berries -Coxey Leaves His Followers.

HYATTSVILLE, Md., July 26 .- Nothing remains in the commissary of the Commonweal Army but a few pickles, and the men have had nothing to eat for two days but Tblackberries. They are suffering greatly, and another day or two without substantial food will force them to beg or steal or fight for subsistence. Five Coxeyites were committed to the House of Correction yesterday. Coxey paid a flying visitito Camp Lost Liberty, near Highland, yesterday. He spoke to his half-starved followers, telling them the outlook was very discouraging, and that hereafter the men would have to secure food as best they could. He left for Massillon, Ohio, and the men do not believe he will ever return. Jesse Coxey, his son, who has been in charge for some weeks, has also gone to Massillon.

How Much Men May Endure Before They Succumb.

(From the New York Tribune.)

It is doubtful if there is any other group of buildings in or near New York where the fearful difficulties under which men labor for the bare privilege of living, are No compulsion, only we must by the East River front of Brooklyn, owned above the street level, and this group is We take this opportunity of thanking our many customers for the liberal patronage they have given us for the last 25 years, and attempts to get into the refineries he meets would say right here that if good the discipline in the shape of a gruff watchman and a club, and a call at the offices reveals it in the shape of a more or less polite negative from the clerks, who will Realistic pictures of what human beings may be compelled to undergo in earning their daily bread may be obtained there, however, and the long-continued spell of roasting weather from which New Yorkers have suffered lately has accentuated the misery which was severe enough under ordinary conditions of temperature.

There are about 3,000 men employed in the big refineries, and these are divided into day and night shifts. About 5 o'clock in the morning half of the force can be seen filing down into the basement of one of the great buildings. Work is begun immediately, and continued until 5 in the evening, when the men are supplied with checks, showing that they were on hand when work begun. If they are late there is a good chance that they will be discharged, unless they have been employed for some time, and have been found to be faithful and docile men. In case they are not discharged they will be "docked," as the superintendeut sees fit, and this generally means half

The majority of the workmen are Poles and Hungarians, and the severity of their labors is shown by the fact that they are nearly all thin and stooped, and rarely above middle age, it being a well known fact that men employed in the refineries rarely live to old age. They are nearly all new immigrants when first employed, and to the total trade carried on within before work is given them they must be the empire. Nor could all of this found perfectly docile and obedient. The 20 per cent be dragged inside the lines of applicant for employment, and he is told that he will receive $1 12, $1 25 or $1 50, as the case may be, for the first year, and then it his work in the state of the colonies, the North Amerireceive an additional 5 or 10 cents a day. The man is assigned to work in one of the the "tip" from friends of his own nationble circumstances. Then begins a life of perpetual torture as long as he remains in the refinery, and not infrequently death

The liquid is pumped up to the top story of the pile, passing through a wire strainer, which removes any particles of size which may be in it, and is emptied into great copper receptacles heated to 208 or 210 degrees Fahrenheit, known as boilers. The process of boiling requires considerable skill, and the men who have charge of it are paid $100 or $150 a month, the number receiving the latter figure being extremely limited, only about one man in a hundred who receives employment in the refineries becoming a boiler, which is the highest ambition of the work-The boiling and bubbling sugar is passed down through funnels to the next floor, where it is emptied into a box, the bottom of which consists of two thicknesses of canvas, one being coarse, the other fine. This thoroughly fifters the stuff, and the room is kept at a terrific temperature, in order that the liquid sugar may flow freely and not become cool and thick. On the floor below is another great copper tank, some 25 feet deep and nearly filled with bone black. This purifies the sugar, and, after being used for a few hours becomes surcharged with foulness, and is sent to the lower floor, where it is burned again. The sugar, which is still kept at a temperature of 150 degrees, is passed into another receptacle, which is made air tight, and the air and steam are exhausted by means of a pump. As soon as the sugar is granulated, if it is to be soft, it is let off by means of centrifugal mills. If not, it is passed on to the great plates to be dried.

WORKING IN AN INFERNO. The rooms in which the drying is carried on are veritable infernos. No man can stay in them over ten minutes without halling down utterly prostrated by the terrific heat. No one but an employe is ever allowed within these walls, and no one but an employe would dare go in them when the heat is on and the sugar is drying. Clothing is discarded, with the exception of a "breech clout" and shoes, and there is absolutely no ventilation, as the windows are kept tightly closed, and at the windows in other rooms which are permitted to re main open the men may be seen gaspin for breath, almost naked, and with their hair and bodies as wet as if they had been plunged in the East River, in their shor respite from their frightful toil. Men wh have worked in the dry room have only one expression to describe it -the short, force ible word "hell." went on. It is on record that there were 200 prostrations from the awful heat in one day last summer, the number reaching 500 in the week. This summer the harvest has been great, but public attention has not been called to it by the frequency of demands for aid from the hospitals.

But they stick to the refineries, hoping against hope that something better will turn up. Most of them live near the sugar-houses, and with hent heads and downcast eyes they wearily drag themselves away after their work is done to their foul and dingy tenement homes. Many of them are married and have large families, and it is a wonder how they exist on the small wages they receive. Their meals are of the most frugal character, black bread and coffee being the simple breakfast, while frankfruters and bolognas with a schooner of beer make up the midday meal, the beer being a luxury. Misery and distress are plain on all sides.

Children, pale and pinched for want of proper nourishment, run half naked about the streets, and frequently a drowned man is found floating in the river near the piers. The description of the tody generally says it was clothed in "a pair of overalls and a cotton undershirt," the common uniform of a sugar-house employe. Coming from northern countries these men feel the heat severely, and when under the influence of their horrible surroundings, their minds give way, the hallucination always takes the form of a belief that they are burning up, and the first mad rush is made for the nearest water, the outbreak of insanity generally ending with death and a beggar's burial in the Potter's Field.

THE BRITISH VIEW.

Leading Financial Authorities on the Ottawa Intercolonial Conference.

Freedom to Trade, Not Differential Tariffs, the Necessity.

In its last number the London Economist pronounces an absurdity the resolution passed by the Ottawa intercolonial conference in favor of differential tariffs within the empire. The aim of such a scheme is to increase the interchange of commodities among British dominions. But the Economist says that there is little left to be done in that direction. Already nearly 80 per cent of the trade of the colonies circulates under the the empire. Nor could all of this rules of the refineries are laid down to the a Zollverein, as some of it must include as the case may be, for the first year, and tries. The imperial argument that the extra duties on foreign products would furnish revenue for the common defense is disposed of by the statement that if the scheme yielded a revenue adequate for ship in which it is brought to the refineries that purpose it could not be of much But, waiving that tatal objection, the Fconomist goes on to argue that if foreign commerce did yield a fund for imperial defense the great burden of it would fall on imports into the United Kingdom. Taking the trade figures of last year, the United Kingdom's imports from foreign countries amounted to nearly 771 per cent of its total imports, while its imports from the colonies were only a little than  $22\frac{1}{2}$  per cent of its imports. This  $77\frac{1}{2}$  per cent total would be subject to the extra duty against foreigners. Recently a large tract of swamp land in the township of Brooke was reclaimed and put under cultivation by the Messrs. Fairbanks, of Petrolea. LONDON ELECTION PROTESTED. We understand that a protest against the election of Mr. W. R. Meredith, city solicitor of Toronto, who was returned by a small majority as member for this city at the last general election, was today lodged at Osgoode Hall.

Serious charges of bribery and corruption are made in the petition.

The compilation of evidence has been proceeded with quietly and unostentationsly, but it is reported that a large number of instances in which the electors were bribed or spirited away by agents of Mr. Meredith, to prevent their voting for Mr. Hobbs, have been discovered. It is also alleged that there is good evidence that voters were bribed by direct payments of money by leading agents of the Conservative candidate, while more than one supporter of Mr. Meredith, who had no right to vote, will be accused of swallowing the oath, and illegally voting. Since the protest was resolved on, other instances of corruption, bribery and intimidation on the part of Mr. Meredith's friends are stated to have come to light, and no doubt additional evidence will yet be forthcoming.

THE ELECTRIC RAILWAY OFFER.

The London City Council has got rid of the civic lighting problem for the next four or five years, by ratifying the bargain with the electric light company. There is a decided reduction in the rate per lamp when compared with the last bargain made. Now that this troublesome problem is shelved for the time being, the aldermen may be able to reach a conclusion in regard to the electric railway. They did not make much headway last night; but it may be just as well that they devote a special meeting to the final disposal of the negotiations.

Some of the aldermen appear to be very anxious to prevent an agreement regarding the general principles on which the city and company may come together until every little detail as to extensions is disposed of.

Te us this seems like attempting to put the cart before the horse. If the terms upon which the company are to be permitted the use of the streets for their electric cars are definitely laid down and agreed to, there should be little difficulty in reaching a conclusion as to where the cars should be run. The offer of the street railway company is to electrify certain well-known thoroughfares as soon as possible, and to put down lines on such other streets in the future as a two-thirds majority of the City Council may decree. This is fair. It is not in the public interest that the lines should be unduly multiplied, but it is in the public interest that there should be a fair and equitable distribution of the electric system in accordance with the genuine needs of the taxpayers. To listen to the demands of some aldermen one is almost led to the conclusion that a troiley car constantly running up and down a residential street is a thing that fathers and mothers are pining for. Rapid transit is an excellent thing, but we presume that the majority of people will be agreeable that the trolley shall be run along any street but the one on which they live.

Let the main points in the bargain be settled as speedily as possible. The quertion of further extensions will take care of

THE WAR PROCEEDS.

War between Japan and China is actually in progress. The western world will be able to judge which of these two Eastern powers has most adapted itself to the use of the modern engines for the sacrifice of life. There seems to be little doubt that both have been preparing for a conflict for some time, but Japan has undoubtedly made the best use of its opportunities. China, if the reports that a large portion of her expeditionary force are armed simply with bows and arrows is true, must be yet a long way behind. It is not surprising that Japan has practically made the first big strike by sinking Chinese warships. The Japs have been sitting at the feet of expert British officers for many agencies for settlement, and to prefer the arbitration of the big guns.

How great the loss of life and property, seen. John Chinaman and Mr. Jap are uncertain in war as well as in diplomatic maneuvering.

COL. DENISON RAGES AGAIN.

Col. Denison is on a visit to England, and he has been enlightening a meeting in the British metropolis on the relations existing between Canada and the United States. The colonel is not the best authority on the subject, and it is not therefore surprising to find him asserting that great enmity is entertained by the United States towards Britain; that only "the better educated and higher classes in the United States are filendly towards England; that fear alone prevents the United States from going to war against us.

What good does Col. Denison hope to effect by such statements? It is true that over the border they have stupid, mischiefbreeding, non-intercourse preaching jingoes, just as we have them in Canada, but we are free to admit that there they are no more plentiful in proportion to population than they are in Canada. There are, too, in the United States one-fourth of the Canadian people, whose interests would be imperiled if what Col. Denison says is true. But is it not the fact that Canadians are conceded the highest places in the commercial and industrial occupations which they choose to pursue in the United States, and are treated solely on their merits? We believe that he is a true patriot who strives not to misrepresent or to exaggerate the differences between the two sections of the English-speaking race, and for selfish purposes to keep them as far apart commercially and socially as possible, but who works for the removal of differences, the minimizing of difficulties, the cementing of trade and social friendships. Thus shall be hastened the day when there will be an alliance, offensive and defensive, between the motherland and her elder and younger daughters on this continent. When once the full benefits of such an alliance are understood, a regiment of Col. Denisons will not prevent its con-

A LESSON IN ELECTRIC RAIL-

ROADING. The possibilities of the electric railway are fitly exemplified in the connecting line just established between the town of Galt and the village of Preston, which was successfully opened yesterday. This link that joins the stone town with one of the smartest villages in the Province is four miles long, and the trip through a charming farming territory can be made in fifteen minutes. Not only will the line give Preston connection with the C. P. R. and enable business men to get freight, and passenger traffic to be carried on, but both Preston and Galt will be benefited through being brought into closer contact with the rural populas tion along the route. When London gets its electric street railway problem solved, and has the summer excursion line to the waterworks finished, a good investment may be afforded by extending the system into the rural regions to tap population not served by the existing railways. It may be possible in the near future for the rural population to get about with nearly as great ease and comfort as is the present lot of residents in cities and towns. We are but at the beginning of electrical possibilities.

POTATO BLIGHTS. From various districts in Ontario comes the information that the potato crop has this year suffered to a greater or less extent from two blights known as "early" and "late." These diseases are generally recorded either as "potato rot," "potato blight," or "potato rust." As Mr. Jas. Fletcher, Dominion entomologist, points out in a recent pamphlet on the subject. which we here summarize, though these diseases are somewhat similar in general appearance they are very distinct and are due to the attacks of two different vege-

The early blight is caused by a fungus which attaches itself to the leaves, and shows itself during the months of June and July, when grayish brown spots appear upon the older leaves. These soon become dry and crisp, and in bad cases the whole leaf is affected, so that nothing is left but the stems, and the tubers stop growing. A parasitic fungus, known by the name Phytophthora Intestans, causes the late blight or potato rot. The life history of this enemy is briefly as follows: The fungus passes the winter inside the potato tuber and is planted with it in the spring. As soon as the potato throws out its shoots the parasite grows with it, running up through the tissues of the stems, and from about the end of July produces beneath the leaves an abundance of spores, or seed-like bodies. years, and they are quick to pick up new These are exceedingly minute, but are prodeas.

This war emphasizes the fact that when give a frost-like appearance to the under Wm. Trafford, 95 and 97 King street.

nations sustain large standing armies there sides of the leaves. When these spores are is always a temptation to reject pacific produced on the leaves the appearance known as "rust" shows itself in the shape of dark brown spots, which are caused by the drying up of the tissues, from the parasite havidg used nn and to what extent western nations may be their contents. From the rust stage all dragged into the embroglio, remains to be future infection takes place. Some of the spores are carried by the wind, and falling upon the leaves of other adjacent plants, produce more rust spots, while others falling to the ground are washed beneath the surface, and reaching the forming tubers produce the rot stage. The wet-rot, as seen in autumn in the tubers, is the form of this disease which is best known, but potato-rot is really a dry-rot which kills the tubers, and in the autumn the wet-rot follows as a result of decay. In winter the disease occurs in the tubers as patches of hard, whitish, diseased tissue. In this district the rust stage does not generally appear until about the first of August, and this is the first evidence that blight is present in the field. As a rule the dark spots appear only on a few leaves at first, but if the weather be favorable the disease spreads rapidly from spores carried by the wind from these centers of infection, so that a large field may become diseased in a few days, and as a result the crop of potatoes be ruined.

Careful experiments have shown that by spraying the potato tops five or six times at intervals of about two weeks, beginning early in July, for the early blight, and at the time the rust first appears, for the potato rot, with the mixture of sulphate of copper and lime, known as the Bordeaux mixture, both of these injurious diseases can in a large measure be controlled. The Bordeaux mixture is composed of six pounds of copper sulphate, four pounds of fresh lime, and 45 gallons of water.

To make Bordeaux mixture, take six pounds of copper sulphate (blue vitriol) and tie it up in a piece of thin cloth-an ordinary salt bag answers well—then suspend it from a stick laid across the top of a coal oil or other barrel half filled with clean water, so that the bag may be just beneath the surface of the water, when the copper sulphate will dissolve in an hour or two. In another vessel slack four pounds of fresh lime in sufficient water to make a thin whitewash. Strain this through a fine sieve or sack to remove all lumps. When the copper sulphate is all dissolved, pour the lime wash into the barrel slowly, stirring the mixture all the time. Now fill up the barrel to the top with water, and the mixture is ready for use.

Mr. Fletcher recommends that this mixture be applied with a spraying pump and nozzle, and it these are not available with watering cans supplied with fine roses. There are several different kinds of spraying pumps in the market; perhaps the most convenient for this work is a force pump attached to a barrel on wheels, to be drawn through the field by a horse. Smaller machines, known as Knapsack Sprayers, consist of a reservoir containing a small force pump, which can be carried upon a man's back. Both of these kinds of pumps can be purchased for about $10 to $20, and are now for sale by most of our seedsmen. It will be necessary to spray the field two or three times to protect the crop thorghly. There is no danger of injuring the foliage with the above mixture.

Paris green, the only practical remedy for the potato beetle, can be used at the same time. A quarter to half a pound of paris green to the Bordeaux mixture is a fair proportion. Spraying should be begun early in July and continued till the end of August. This being the case, Mr. Fletcher's recommendations would have been more seasonable if issued several weeks since.

THE WHEEL.

A CAPITAL RUN. The best run in the history of the Lonnon Bicycle Club was that of last evening to St. Johns and return. It was the first under the captaincy of Mr. James McCormick, and its huge success was a striking tribute to the popularity of that gentleman. There were from 80 to 100 in line when the bugle sounded the start, and not the least pleasant feature of the magnificent turnout was the presence of the adies. Victoria Park was twice encircled before Richmond street was entered, the company making an imposing spectacle. The roads to St. Johns were good, though dusty, and the ease and speed with which the ladies traveled excited the admiration of their escorts, who marveled to see them climb the terrible Mason ville hill without a dismount. More than one male scorcher has preferred to walk it in days gone by, but the ladies, who rode at the head of the column, didn't take a foot off the pedal, and compelled any weak or short winded young or suffer reproach. An advance guard composed of Fred Beltz, Dave Mills, Geo. Macbeth, Bert Glover, Harry Stanton and El. Croden, distinguished by Donneybrook hats, gaily ribboned, and carrying fog horns and tin whistles, cleared the track of stray cows and other impediments. The pace was an easy one, and in the cool of the evening the trip was delightful. On return the party dismounted "Glenmore," the London Hunt's pretty resort, where refreshments were provided by Captain McCormick and served by Mrs. Bowman and staff. A happy hour was spent in music, mirth, ice cream and cake, Messrs. Skinner and Carroll singing capital solos. The city was reentered via Richmond street, Queen's avenue and Wellington street, and on tining up at the club rooms on Dundas

CRICKET. PHILADELPHIA VS. TORONTO. TORONTO, July 26 .- At 11:30 o'clock this morning the cricket match between Philadelphia and Toronto was resumed. The weather was beautiful and the attendance large. Saunders and Martin, the not-outs of yesterday, resumed their places at bat to the bowling of E. W. Clark and Brewster. Martin drove Clark to the boundary for 4. He was soon afterwards clean bowled by Clark, after a splendid inning of 24. Score, 32 runs for one wicket. Gold-ingham joined Saunders.

After Saunders had made two beautiful cuts to the ropes off Clarke he was bowled by Clarke for 17. Laing joined Goldingham when Goldingham drove Patterson to Brewster, bowled by Patterson, after a splendid 13. Capt. Jones partnered Wadsworth and hit Clarke twice for 3, and once to the boundary for 4. Wadsworth then drove Goodman to the western boundary for 4. Wadsworth was then caught by Ralstone after a splendid 26. Bethune joined Jones. Jones was shortly afterwards caught by J. S. Clark after scoring 13. Rykert followed Jones. When adjournment was made for lunch both were still at bat with a total of 117 runs.

TORONTO, July 26 .- After luncheon play was resumed at 2:30, and Bethune was bowled by Brewster, after contributing a splendid 14. Score, 125. McCullough joined Rykert. Rykert drove Patterson to the western boundary for 4, after which McCullough was caught by J. H. Patterson of Brewster. Score, 146. McMurtry came next, but Rykert was soon caught and bowled by Clark after a capital 21. Score, 167. Strathy, the last man, then came in. McMurtry hit Brewster to leg for 38 runs. McMurchy (not out) 15 and Strathy (not out) 8. Score, 175.

At 3:45 the Phillies went in for their second venture, having to make 220 runs to win the match in two hours and three quarters. Capt. Patterson and Dr. Thompson faced the bowling of Laing and Wadsworth. These excellent players made a splendid stand, each making several boundary hits. Thompson had the honor of go out, haven't I? being the only batsman to make a hit for 6. He lifted one of Wadsworth's entirely out of the grounds. After 46 minutes of very fine batting Thompson and Patterson separated, Thompson being caught by Jones off Goldingham. Score, 81. E. W. Clarke joined George Patterson, but in the next over Patterson was bowled by Jones for 32, Score, 103. Ralston came next, but was soon bowled by Wadsworth for 6. Aldermen Discuss the Electric Street Railway Proposition,

And Finish in the Place Which They Started.

The Lighting Contract Settled-The "Council Adjourned for Want of a Suffi-Ecient Majority to Extend the Time-Another Meeting to be Called at an Early Date-Communications.

All the members of the City Council, with the exception of Ald. Judd, were present at last night's special meeting of that body. City Clerk Kingston was on his holidays, and Mr. McEthearn occupied the desk. The council succeeded in clenching the bargain with the Canadian General Electric Company to light the city, but they failed signally to make any progress with the electric street railway proposition. They had not agreed on one clause or subdivision when the session expired at 11 o'clock for lack of the necessary two-third majority to extend the time. ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

Ald. Parnell, chairman of No. 3 committee, read the committee's report recommending the acceptance of the offer of the Canadian General Electric Company to light the city at 25 cents a light per night for five years. It was passed without discussion and without a dissenting vote. Aid. Parnell then read the bylaw making the agreement valid. The company wished a clause inserted protecting their rights under their existing franchise. If the bylaw went through as it was, if the council so ordered it, he held that the company would have to remove their incandescent light poles.

The mayor charged that the company had not acted squarely and above board in keeping back what should have been made public when the company secured its franchise. They had kept back the information that they had purchased the old poles of other companies.

Ald. Scarrow, Parnell, Thos. Jones and F. J. Fitzgerald thought that the present matter was a new deal altogether, and they did not think that the present agreement interfered in any way with the old contract. It did not take away any of the rights previously granted to the company. Ald. Taylor took the company's part and thought that it was only fair if the city's rights were protected the company's should be also.

The city solicitor said that unless the poles were used exclusively for the electric light wires during the five years it might lead to trouble at the close of the life of the franchise. If incandescent wires were strung on the poles the trouble would arise in the removal or purchasing of the poles.

On the vote the clause was inserted protecting the company.

There was a great deal of time expended in dealing with the plan for the direction of the lights. The mayor would do nothing until the plan was attached to the bylaw. and the aldermen were falling over one another to see if their wards properly. The aldermen wished to know who had prepared the plan, and after talking until ten minutes to 10 o'cleck it was found the document was the plan of the present system with four lights added. The four lights were struck out and a clause inserted leaving the extensions with the ward representatives. Mr. Cameron asked if it was the intention to put the company to the trouble of getting security.

Ald. J. W. Jones asked what security the city would have for the fulfillment of the contract in case the present company

It was decided that the company would have to give security.

He also read the company's alternative offer, based on the supplying by the company of repairing material as exclusively published in last evening's ADVER-TISER. Ald. tion of the matter be entered upon in one week. This would give the members time to read the proposition.

Ald. Pritchard moved in amendment that the council consider the proposition then and there, and the crowd applauded. The amendment carried, and the council went into committee of the whole, with

Ald. Shaw in the chair. When the matter of extensions was reached the members did as on former occasions, and moved amendment after amendment. Ald. Carrothers wanted Hill or South street traversed from Wellington to Adelaide and the Hamilton road.

Ald. O'Meara wanted the words "subject to the Proof Line Road Company" struck out of the clause relating to the Richmond street extension. He wanted the extension to be subject to the city and not an outside did not want the line extended ! Mayor Essery wanted Rectory street from Hamilton road to Dundas covered. He said that the company, while agreeing to furnish the material, the city, at the end of 30 years, according to the offer, would have to pay for the material if they wished to take over the road. Then he announced his intention of fighting in the Legislature, if he was then in the minority, against granting the franchise for more than twenty years. Ald. Pritchard got angry at this juncture. "You are just now tacking on the same amendments that you did the last time we had the question up in the council. And material and labor for paying, their offer the result was that the company threw it over. Treat the company with a little fairness. We have been dilly-dallying with the company, and it will be away into the fall before we have a tap done. There are hundreds of men waiting in this city to see the council grant this franchise. I consider that the company made a very great concession in agreeing to furnish the material and supply the labor. Meet the company in a fair light and give them a show, and for goodness sake let the council have a little common sense and get this vexed question settled and let the workingmen of this town have something to do." (Hear, hear, and applause.)

Ald. J. W. Jones said that personally he stipulated in the council's proposal, but still he was inclined to stand by it. It was a fair business offer and the company had entirely ignored the routes laid down and the question of the Springbank extension. At the same time the company wanted the use of all the bridges.

Mayor Essery took exception to the fact that the company was afraid to cross the tracks that "the poor workingmen," so much talked about, had to drive ever every day. As the aldermen bid fair to talk extensions until 6 o'clock in the morning, Mr. Ivey here interposed and mildly suggested that the question of streets not being vital could be settled after the more important clauses had been agreed upon. He ssked that the matter under discussion be deferred until the council agreed to accept or reject the vital clauses relating to fares, Ald. O'Meara and Mayor Essery agreed to withdraw their resolutions, but Ald. Carrothers was not so easily bent.

"I consider that the question of streets to be electified is just as important as the fares to be charged," said he. Then he concluded to withdraw by saying, "Well, if you are afraid to face the music I will con-

Then the clause dealing with fares was read. It provided for a workingmen's rate of eight tickets for a quarter between the hours of 6:30 and 8 a.m., and 5 and 6:30 p.m. Fare at other times as at present. you.

Ald. Taylor moved the adoption of the clause. It lacked but six minutes to 11 o'clock when someone moved that the time be extended, as by law the session closes at 11 o'clock unless a two-thirds vote of the council says nay.

The vote was taken, and Chairman Shaw said "carried," but the minority, forgetting their aldermanic dignity, laughed him to scorn. "Where is your two-thirds majority?" they asked.

Mr. Shaw could not answer, so he said instead, "Well, we will take the vote over again.' "Oh, no you won't," said Ald. O'Meara. We are adjourned. "You are not adjourned until 11 o'clock," said the mayor. (It now lacked about four minutes.) Mr. Shaw was insisting on taking the vote over again, but the mayor gave him to understand that if he did so he would vote with the minority. This threat scared away the chairman's good intentions, and while the council was waiting for 11 o'clock to strike Ald. Parnell introduced a cheap fare motion, the time mentioned being from starting in the morning till 10 o'clock at night. The mayor had time to say that seeing the company was agreeing to supply of fares was a fair one and reasonable.

Then the hour struck slowly, and for a brief moment the aldermen regarded one another. "I move the time be extended," cried

Ald. Dreaney. "Oh, you do, do you?" shouted Ald. aylor. "You are very smart."
"What's the matter with you?" asked Ald. Dreaney. Then the two aldermen glared, and the mayor said sadly: "Well, I guess the coun cil is out." And so it had sputtered out like the old are light that used to illuminate the chamber. The aldermen did not even have a chance to climb out of committee of the was not wedded to the different routes whole. The silver-headed chairman was vainly announcing that the time was extended, Mr. Ivey was heard to ask when the matter would be again dealt with, and Ald. Garratt was drawing on his Latin vocabulary to announce that he had adjourned "sine die" no matter what the others had done. The mayor said that he would see that another meeting was called shortly. Before dealing with the other matters the council disposed of the following communications. F. H. Harrison and Matilda Karr-Re

THE POLICE COURT.

A Large Docket Before Magistrate Parke.

An Assault Case in Which Italians Are Fined-Car and House Breaking.

The back-benchers got some fun out of an assault case at the Police Court this morning. Norman E. Peel, clerk at Scandrett's, said he was driving on Dundas street just east of Wellington the other day and saw an Italian, axe in hand, about to strike H. McKeown. He took the axe away and two or three other Italians came up and wrenched it from him (the witness). Then Salvator Specuzzo grabbed him by the neck, choked him and punched his head. Russel Atkinson and Wm. Wright, also clerks at Scandrett's, testified to seeing Specuzzo punching Peel. Constable Smith saw the marks on Peel's neck. Mr. Mc-Keown confirmed the statment that Peel had taken the axe away from the Italian and that Specuzzo had punched Peel. Then Michael Palmisano swore that he, himself, took the axe away from the Italian who was wrestling with McKeon, and that Peel then tried to get it from him (Palmisano.) Then Specuzzo merely shoved Peel aside. James Catalina corroborated this and said that Feel, Wright and Abkin-

Specuzzo, who doesn't speak much Engsh, was put in the box and the Italian who irst had the axe was called upon to act as examination that they were father and son, nuch to the court's amusement. Specuzzo shall, M.P., of London, was here on Monenior said he thought his son was being day, and is having a cottage built on the

He maintained, too, that Palmisano took the axe away from his son. Specuzzo senior was fined $10 or 20 days.

The row started infront of Specuzzo junior's fruit shop. McKeown was pricing bananas, and says that three Italians advanced towards him in a threatening manner. He thought they were going to attack him and threw bananas at them. Specuzzo junior had an axe and piled on him. Specuzzo junior said he was struck first. and had no intention of fighting with an axe. He was opening boxes with it at the time. A fine of $2 each was imposed. Joseph Mauriano sold bananas without a license. He claimed he had no money and had to make a living somehow. He was fined $2.

Fred Erickson and Geo. Metheau were found in a C. P. R. bonded car here. They alteged they came from Toronto and wanted to reach Chicago as cheaply as possible. As no merchandize was stolen sentence was suspended.

Mrs. Charlotte Ross, of the Cove road, was accused of using abusive language towards Theodore Hutchinson, a boy. The affair was trivial and the case dismissed. Frank Leonard, accused of breaking into

Jerry McDonald's hotel the other night, was remanded until July 30. Charles Manning, a bartender, was fined $2 for an assault on a deaf and dumb fellow whom he claimed was following and annoy-

After Closing the Door, the Transom and the Window-A Bright

Young Traveler-An Inquest.

A. R. Hibbett, a young Toronto traveler, was found dead in his room at the Grigg House at noon today from asphyxiation by gas. The affair points to suicide deliberately planned, and, as far as can be learned, drink was the cause that led to the deed. "Bert," as the young man was familiarly called, was well known in London, and has done a large amount of business with law firms here. He traveled for Joseph Doust, law stationer, Adelaide street, Toronto, who is also his brother in-law. short stand, the former having eight to his The young man was highly connected in the Queen's City.

Mr. Hibbett registered at the Grigg on Wednesday, July 25, and had been drinking heavily up to the time of his death. Yesterday he appeared to be very downcast. and lay on his bed the most of the day. About 2 o'clock in the afternoon a chambermaid had occasion to go to his room, and finding the gas turned on she closed the tap. At 8 o'clock at night a Saturday. bell boy again found the gas turned on, and It is said that Guelph has signed two when he shut it off he woke Mr. Hibbett up. Hibbett then came down to the bar and called for a cocktail. He drank the cocktail and Mr. Horsman tried to induce -The City Council meets again Monday him to go to the dining room and have supper.

"Oh, I'll come up later on," replied Hibbett. "That means that you intend to go without any," said Mr. Horsman. And so "I noticed a faraway look in his eyes." said Mr. Horsman this morning, "and I told him that he had better be careful or he would be having an attack of delirium. He had been on a spree for a couple of weeks before he came here. He has come here in the same condition before, and I have always managed to put him on his feet and send him about his business again. But he appeared to be very despondent this time, and drank hard." Hibbett had another cocktail and then went up to his room again. The bartender told him that he thought he would have a hard time of it trying to sleep after sleep ing all day, but Hibbett smiled grimly. When he went to his room he locked the door and closed the transom. Then he closed the window tight and, after turning on the gas he lay down on the top of the bed with all his clothes on and folded his arms across his breast. He apparently died without a struggle, as he was found at noon today with his arms composed as they were when he lay down to die. The fact that he did not rise early this morning did not cause any alarm about the hotel, and it was 12 o'clock before a bell boy thought it necessary to wake him. He hammered on the door, but got no response. Instead he got a whiff of the strong odor of gas, and hurried down stairs and informed Mr. Horsman. The latter went to the balcony which led past Hibbett's window and he saw Mr. Hibbett's form lying on the bed. The door was opened with a duplicate key and it was found that the young man had been dead for some time. Coroner Flock was notified and the body removed to Ferguson's morgue. Hibbett looks to be 28 or 30 years of age. He were a sandy mustache and black hair. Froth had formed at the mouth and had run down the neck to the

An inquest will be held. Joseph Doust, the young man's employer, has wired to say he will be here tonight to take charge of the remains.

For nearly 50 years this wonderful remedy has proved itself the best, quickest, safest and surest antidote for pain in the world

THE TRUE RELIEF RADWAY'S READY RELIEF is safe, reliable and effectual because of the stimulating action which it exerts over the nerves and vital powers of the bedy, adding tone to the one and inciting to renewed and increased one and inciting to renewed and increased vigor the slumbering vitality of the physical structure, and through this healthful stimulation and increased action the cause of the PAIN is driven away and a natural condition restored. It is thus that the READY RELIEF is so admirably adapted for the CURL OF PAIN and without the risk of injury which is sure to result from the use of many of the so-called pain remedies of the day.

In using medicines to stop pain we should avoid such as inflict injury on the system. Opium, Morphine, Ether, Cocaine and Chloral stop pain by destroying the sense of perception,

CHAPTER AXIII.

As he comes into the dancing-room he pauses at the door. Mr. Kitts is lounging gracefully against one of the sides, talking volubly, and making the most open and disgraceful love (considering he doesn't mean a word of it), to the maiden of bashful 15. Trefusis, looking over his head, sees Terry.

She is standing near the opposite doorway, that leads to the drawing-room, with Laurence on one side of her, and a fat young man, with something about his hair or his collar that proclaims him a soldier, on the other. Both young men are talking at once, and Terry is looking embarrassed. Trefusis goes straight to her. "Will you dance this with me?" "Oh, a third claimant!" she cries, lifting her brows. Mr. Moriand says I have promised it to him, Larry says I gave it to him. We are trying to find a little light somewhere.

'I am really sure, Miss O'More, you gave it to me," says the fat young man.
"I'm sure too," says Laurence, inflexibly.
"I wrote it down here," says Morland, holding up his cuff to the lamplight above him, and struggling with the remarkable ciphers upon it.

"What does your cuff say, Mr. Morland?" **Sks Terry.

"It—er—it's got a bit mixed," says Morland, with disgust. "Can't make it

"Then what's to be done?" says Terry, with pretty anxiety.

"I'll tell you," says Trefusis. He looks at Laurence. "Whilst you and Morland are making up your minds, Miss O'More wild ance this waltz with me." He passes his arm round Terry's slender waist; she sways towards him; in an instant they are mingling with the other dancers. "I told you you were very masterful," says Terry, as they stop.

"Yes. I remember. I don't deny it this time." Something in his tone strikes her as different-repressed, but full of fire.

There is a strange triumphant light in his 'I have made you mine for a moment, in "What?" The question drops from her involuntarily. She is shocked by something in his face she hardly understands. "In spite of you !"

Again his arm closes round her, and again, half against her will, she is dancing down the long room within his arms-arms that seem to clasp her closer. Coming to the door where he had seen her with the two young disputants, the door that opens on the drawing-room, he checks her, and, bringing her to a full stop, leads her through the drawing-room to the balcony beyond. It is a balcony that runs along the whole side of the house, and Trefusis hurries her on to where a window opens into a tiny bondoir, Fanny's writing-room. Within, the soft pink light of a lowered lamp can be seen; out here the moon, now at its height, is shedding a tender brilliance over all the garden. A silence falls on them.

"What a night !" says Terry, at last, in a low voice. A sudden sense of fear has fallen upon her. His manner surely has changed, and why does he not speak? The silence has become terrible, unendurable to her, before she breaks it. There was something determined, high-handed, a little violent almost, in the air with which he had taken her away from Laurence, and J. G. B. Siegert & Sons.

now--That is the second time we have ever danced together," says he, ignoring, as though he has not heard it, her faint remark. "The first-do you remember it?" Again that compelling of her memory to a past that for him at least is dead. A passion of anger against him, rising in her heart, breaks all bounds. She turns on him, her lovely eyes flashing fire into his, while her lips grow pale, and her whole sweet slender body is trembling visibly. "Remember! remember!" cries she throwing out her hands. "Do you ever let me forget? And why do you want me to remember? What is it all to you!" "Something; and you remember." He has taken a step closer to her. "Is that your revenge?" asks she, in a little strangled tone, "To compel me to keep alive the past. How will that benefit you or me? Say I behaved badly to youwell, I admit it but--

"What?" he interrupts her, brusquely. "You admit it, then? You acknowledge that you did your best to break my heart?" He has caught her by both arms.

"Yours! yours!" says she. Her voice fails her. Great tears rise in her lustrous

She makes a faint, ineffectual struggle to loosen his hold upon her, and then gives in, standing crushed, beaten, with drooping head, on which the unkindly moon is now shedding too bright a ray. He can see the trouble of her soul.

It seems to give him high courage.
"Even mine." He lets one of his hands fall from her arms, but, still holding her, moves towards the room beyond. 'Come in here: I want to speak to you.' Reluctantly, involuntarily, she goes with him, crossing the sill of the window and entering the little warm and scented room with a strange sense of newness. The lights are burning very dimly, and the perfume of heliotrope and roses mingled is sweetening the air. He turns to her as they cross the threshold. There are tears in your eyes," he says,

He waits as if for an answer, but none

Only her pretty head droops lower. "Ah !" he cries, "they are for me. You dare not deny it. You"—he pauses, as if his breath is troubling him, and then-"you thought you did not love me in those old days. But you did. You know it

The triumph of his voice ceases. Terry presses her hands tightly against her breast. Anguish leaves her dumb. And what is there to be done, or said? The awful knowledge, too, that tears are gathering, hateful betraying tears, beneath her lids, renders her almost desperate. If only, only she could get away before

No time is given her, however. With a strong and deliberate movement Trefusis takes her into his arms, and, holding her to him a moment, kisses her passionstely-not once only.

Pressing her hands against his breast, as if to keep him off, she looks up at him, The transformation in her face must be clear to him. Her eyes, within that pale sweet face, shine like two happy stars. She stands trembling before him: what eac. does it all mean? A sentence of death an hour ago, and now a glimpse of heaven!

Who can explain this thing? Her eyes are fixed on his. She would have withdrawn them if she could, but, as if spellbound, they rest on his. Tears rise and drown them, and hover on the brink of her pretty lids, yet she cannot withdraw

"Yes," faintly. She is clinging to him. "And you are going to marry me this time?" As he holds her clasped close to his heart, a laugh escapes him-a happy laugh. All his old reserve seems to have deserted him. Truly she has taught him many things. Sae slips her arm round his neck. A soft sweet sigh escapes her lips. "Oh, what a long, long time you were away !" says she brokenly. (THE END.)

Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but all to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. Important Experiment That May Affect Thousands of Miles.

THE EPEN FORUM.

The Preacher and the Workers. To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

The basel of utterances on the labor problem reminds one of the Arabian Nights fable, the journey of Hassan of Balsora through the island of the birds in Wak-wak. The bewilderment of opinion is so great that one might well despair of a solu-tion of the difficulty but that the force of events is compelling utterances from all classes and creeds, showing that the world is thinking. We know that the solution is found and that the last stumbling-block in the way of its acceptance—ignorant inability to think—is being rapidly removed. We are thus saved from despair, but are compelled to acknowledge that while much of the literature of the day on the subject bears the stamp of investigation on its face, vet more of it makes nothing clear but the gnorance of the authors. The shop, the rostrum and the press are about equally mixed in their discussion of the subject, while capital and the pulpit hide each their selfishness and their ignorance under the cloak of authority. Among late pulpit utterances, for baselessness of assertion, ignorance of the subject and misapplication of the text, that of Rev. E. B. Lance-ley in the Central Methodist Church last Ladies' Oxford Shoes, patent tip, Sovereign were striving for supremacy, they fought for the throne of the empire of labor. They would have all the workingmen bow beneath their scepter and obey their unjust mandate." The above quota-tion is a mere baseless assertion, an utter slander of Debs and Sovereign. The only justification of the reverend gentleman is that in ignorance alike of the workers' need and their leaders' motive he did it. His general ignorance of the whole question between labor and capital is exhibited so clearly by the whole selection from the sermon that any sentence will do as a quotation as well as any other. Their plan of operation was a violation of the laws which lie at the basis of the brotherhood of man, the

The LATEST, the RICHEST, the MOST EX-QUISITE porfume ever introduced to the citizens of London, and this, and this only is the delicate odor that was sprayed around the grand stand at the Cook & Whitby circus by the Parisian who informed all present that greatest good to the greatest number, and it was a violation of the law of God." The greatest good to the greatest number would be an excellent motto for a soup kitchen, but as a statement of the laws that lie at the basis of the brotherhood of man it evidences only ignorance. Justice to all is the only law that makes a brotherhood or any society possible, and the quantity of justice obtainable among any people is the measure of the national stability of that

The war on labor, mentioned by Mr. Lanceley, the suffering of the millions of innocent workingmen, together constitute the "violation of the law of God"; that is, they constitute the "violation of the laws which lie at the basis of the brotherhood of man"; that is, they constitute a breach of justice to all and they lie at the door not of Pullman & Co., not of the railroad companies nor of "Debs & Co." but at the door of the present capitalist system—that is at the door of Ignorance & Co., who have never brought anything but stupidity to any economic discussion, and who are responsible for the maintenance of the present regime of spoliation of the many to provide inordinate luxury for the few. The misapplica-tion of the text is in its reference to Debs and Sovereign, the executive of their organizations, instead of to the eapitalists who are striving unlawfully to retain for their own luxury the results of the labor of their wage slaves.

It is rather a strange coincidence-could same evening the Rev. Mr. Adams, in the Congregational Church, should have troubles, their cause and cure, with the story of an Englishman at work among the inquirers in a revival meeting. Tapping a man on the shoulder he said, "Well, my man on the shoulder he said, "Well, my friend, how is it with you?" Gruffly the answer came, "I am not you friend, I'm an infidel." "Oh," said the Englishman, Paley's Evidence of Christianity? "No, and don't want to." "Oh, well my friend, you're not a hinfidel; you're a hass." Yours respectfully, J. M. and A. S. Johnston. London, July 26, 1894.
