At St. Thomas C. R. Pennington's clothing stock, amounting to $4,371.91, was sold to Mr. E. A. Plater, of Chatham, at 52 cents on the dollar. The highest bid for the drygoods stock was 40 cents and it was withdrawn.

The drygoods stock amounts to $17,578.82.

People around Kingsville are becoming alarmed over the scarcity of water, and every farmer has to draw water from Mr. Davis' flowing well. It is said there were over 40 loads of water taken from this well in one day last week. Fall wheat is suffering badly for want of rain.

Chief Fevings, of St. Thomas, has received the bicycle stolen from W. M. Morse by W. Alward. Alward traded it to Geo. Visaw, Copenhagen, and he traded it with Mr. McEllan, living near Copenhagen, for a watch, $2 cash and a ferret. The chief received the wheel from Mr. McEllan.

The prospects for a big crop of fall wheat next year in the neighborhood of sixth line, Moore, are decidedly good. Early sown wheat has grown luxuriantly. One farmer on the 10th line was compelled to plow a field under, as it was too far advanced to stand winter.

Kingston City Council has decided to appeal on a technicality against the decision in the case of Miss Drennan, late of Stratford, who was awarded $1,500 damages for injuries sustained last winter by falling on a slippery pavement. It was expected that Miss Drennan would be a cripple for life, but there are now hopes that she will recover.

Thomas Page, a farmer in Blenheim, has taken action against Robert Ross, a farm hand, working in the same township, claiming $1,500 damages for the alleged seduction of his daughter Jane by the defendant. The Rosses and Pages are neighbors in the same township, their farms adjoining each other. Ross denies the charge. Unless settled the case will come up at the spring assizes.

In the presence of a large number of the citizens of Port Dover Reeve H. W. Ansley presented the Royal Canadian Humane Association's medal to Benjamin Dixon, of Port Dover. On June 24 last Mr. Dixon saved the life of a child named Edwin Mart from drowning in Silver Lake, and on July last he saved Jas. Brennan from asphyxiation in an oil tank at Port Dover.

At Tuesday evening's meeting of the Stratford branch of the Upper Canada Bible and Tract Society, the present officers were re-elected as follows: President, Rev. M. L. Leitch; vice-president, J. G. Kirk; secretary-treasurer, H. G. Hopkirk; committee, D. Davis, Jas. Ferguson, John McIntyre, Duncan Stewart, H. Monteith, John McLagan, D. D. Hay and the city clergymen.

The death occurred Tuesday morning, at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. John Gilley, Metcalfe street, Stratford, of Isabella, relict of the late James Brown, of Adelaide, aged 76 years. Her passing away was altogether unexpected and sudden, her illness only extending over a few days. She had been in Canada ever since 1834, settling in Adelaide. Six children survive her.

Renowned Establishment by a Canadian Firm of a Branch in Albany, N. Y.

Albany (Special) Nov. 4.—The outcry in certain quarters against the high tariff goes on, but it is to the tariff that Albany is likely to owe the addition of another industry to her numerous existing ones.

A Canadian firm located in Toronto has, it is understood, been interviewed by an Albany business man, with a view to establishing in this city a manufactory of the staple kidney remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills. As the business done by the Canadian firm throughout the United States has assumed very large proportions, owing to the recognition by the American public of the great value of this staple, it is probable that arrangements will be satisfactorily entered into. The annual output is very large and is rapidly increasing.

The Detroit Wreck.

Thirty-Two Bodies Taken From the Ruins.

Some of Them Holding in Their Hands the Tools They Had Been Using.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—The work of recovering the bodies of victims of the Journal boiler explosion continued yesterday. Death had come to the victims of the disaster so suddenly that many of them were found in the very attitudes in which they were killed.

Fourteen bodies were taken out of the ruins between 6 o'clock in the morning and 5 o'clock in the evening, making 32 so far found. Up to 5 o'clock every body taken from the ruins had been identified.

Three bodies were found together under the debris in the alley in the rear of the Journal building. There were two men and a woman in the group. The woman's body lay wedged in between the other bodies. She was Lou Freitz, apprentice in the machine shop of the Rogers Typograph Company. In her hand she still held the small instrument with which she was working. On either side of her were Bradley and Derby.

Penitentiary, who were caught while making some alterations in the building. Bradley held in his death grasp the hand axe with which he had been working when the accident occurred, poised as if he was delivering a blow, while Derby's hands firmly grasped the piece of wood which he was apparently steadying for Bradley when the two men and the girl were blown through the building and covered with debris.

Neelson La Croix, a Journal pressman, counted among the missing, turns out to have been sick in bed at the time of the disaster, and Lizzy Taylor was confounded with Lizzy Weidbusch.

The cause of the fatality was developed, when a piece of one of the boilers was uncovered by the wreckers. The boiler had been torn in two in the middle, tubes, rivets and plates parting as cleanly as if they were cut by a cold chisel.

A piece of the boiler had evidently been driven in each direction by the force of the explosion. The place found disclosed to the expert engineers who examined it that the cause of the explosion was low water. This throws the responsibility upon the engineer and the owners of the building.

The former had been repeatedly warned that he was too careless by neighboring engineers, while the owners of the property had been given at least one formal notice that he was negligent. The owners of the property are the heirs of the late Congressman Newberry, who was the business partner of Senator McMillan. The engineer is Thos. M. Thompson.

At all the families of the victims are in humble circumstances. Gen. Alger has headed a movement to raise a fund for their relief.

COUNTERFEITERS AT WORK.

The Profits in Exact Proportion to the Baseness of the Imitation.

The Punishment Most Feared by the Counterfeiter is Failure to Foist His Spurious Product on the Innocent Public.

The difference between the base imitation and the true coin is the temptation which incites the counterfeiter. The difference is his profit.

A few years ago a treatment for diseases of the kidneys was modestly placed on the market. A single and simple claim was made for it: "It would cure any kidney disease."

To indicate its origin and its specific nature it was named Dodd's Kidney Pills. As a result of merit this preparation has already reached the enormous sale of over one million boxes.

But this unexampled success has excited the envy and cupidity of a horde of unscrupulous imitators and counterfeiters.

The reason why Dodd's Kidney Pills are thus selected as the subject of fraud and greed is because of the great popular demand that has arisen all over this country.

Of the various methods adopted to deceive and dupe those who are led to seek kidney treatment, the most glaring are as follows:

First—To imitate the size, shape and color of the pills themselves, show them in glass bottles and to offer them for sale by count.

Second—To put up pills similar in appearance, in boxes made to resemble the genuine, and to create the impression of equality in value, to offer them at the same price.

Third—To hook on the word "kidney" in the naming, thereby seeking to increase the sale of trashy or meritorious cathartic pills, as the case may be.

Fourth—To put up pills to be offered at the same price; to generally imitate the wording and character of any advertising, and naming them by any name as nearly resembling "Dodd's" as a fear of legal injunction and escape of jail would permit.

But ordinary caution will guard the buyer. None of these counterfeiters dare name their products Dodd's Kidney Pills. The genuine are neatly put up in large, round, flat wooden boxes, covered with a label in blue and red, with white letters, and for the protection of the public this label is registered.

Dodd's Kidney Pills is the only treatment that will cure kidney disease in advanced stages.

THE WAR IN CUBA.

Defeat for the Revolutionists—A Bayonet Charge—Many Killed.

Havana, Nov. 8.—A dispatch from Santa Cruz states the Government troops, under Col. Molina, had an engagement on Tuesday with rebel bands numbering 1,000 men, under Lacret, Perez, Nunez and Pino, at Rincon Hondo, in the Cienfuegos district. The fighting lasted four hours.

The troops made a bayonet charge, and captured the rebel camp, 50 horses, arms and ammunition. Thirty rebels were killed. The Government loss was eight killed, including an officer, and fourteen wounded.

A Round Half Dozen

Claims for Damages Presented to the Board of Works.

The injured include a woman, man, horse and rig—“Rotten Laws”—Lively Discussion Over the Street Railway Company's Actions.

The Board of Works, outside of indulging in a lively discussion over street railway matters, did nothing at the regular meeting last night but receive claims for damages. The claims were six in number, and were for injuries received by a man, woman, a horse and rig, in various ways and at various times.

Mr. F. Graham, of East London, appeared on behalf of his wife, who, he said, was walking along Queen's avenue when a pedestrian in front of her stepped on a loose plank, tripping Mrs. Graham and throwing her heavily. She received injuries which laid her up for several weeks, and incurred a heavy doctor's bill.

The claim was presented before, but was filed, as the engineer stated that his department had not been notified of the defective work. Further inquiries into the circumstances will be made by Ald. Wm. Heaman and Mr. Graydon.

Alex. McKee asked the city to allow him $10 for damages done to his hack at the corner of Maitland street and Central avenue during the construction of the street railway line on the latter thoroughfare. McKee was driving over the crossing one evening, when the damages were incurred, and alleges that no lights had been placed in the roadway for the guidance of the travelling public.

Mr. J. D. LeBel, wholesale lumber merchant, was thrown from his bicycle on Wellington street, near Dufferin avenue, when he ran against an obstruction which he could not surmount, and was thrown to the ground. He carried his arm in a sling for several days. He subsequently learned that the obstruction was some material for the new Methodist Church, and threatened to enter an action against the corporation if a settlement is not arrived at.

Frank Downing asks $12 for damages sustained to his rig, he alleges, on account of the improper condition of the road at the corner of Colborne street and Central avenue. Samuel Harding's claim was for $13, the value of a ten gallon keg of ammonia which was thrown from a C. P. R. wagon and destroyed in front of R. C. Struthers & Co.'s. The accident happened while the asphalt pavement was under way, and was alleged to have been entirely due to a large gap in the road. Macbeth & Macpherson wrote on behalf of O'Neill & Co., re injuries sustained by a valuable horse at the Carling Creek bridge on Central avenue.

The O'Neill claim was referred to the street railway company, and the rest will be investigated by the chairman and engineer.

“The laws of the country must be rotten,” said the engineer, “if people can get hurt and bring in claims weeks afterwards, when there is no possibility of the circumstances being learned. Why, any of these people could get into a witness box and swear a lie through a brick wall, and we could not contradict it.”

“Has the street railway company attended to their line at the north end of Richmond street?” asked Chairman Heaman.

Engineer Graydon said the company had done nothing to put the roadway between their tracks in proper condition. Manager Carr had written asking for a certificate for the road, and it was refused.

Ald. O'Meara said he did not like to be continually finding fault, but he said that Richmond street north was in a very poor condition. Farmers had made many complaints, and threatened that if the roadway was not improved they would do their marketing elsewhere. The company should have filled their roadway in with gravel, and not red sand.

Mr. Graydon further stated that the street railway portion in the block pavement had been filled with red sand and the result was that the blocks would be raised by the first day's rainfall. He had also ordered that the block pavement be filled in with gravel screenings. Mr. Carr had given notice that he would not pay $1.50 a cord for gravel, but was arranging for a gravel pit on Wellington street, near Grosvenor. He was willing to pay 5 cents a load and have the company do the teaming. He had an offer for 6 cents a load. A petition was being circulated and signed to allow the company to run a line along St. James and up Wellington to the pit.

“Well, then, the company must be very poor if they will fight over a cent a load on gravel,” said Ald. O'Meara. In reference to the road north of the C. P. R. tracks, Engineer Graydon said it was not properly filled in, and that if so ordered by the committee he would have it dug out and filled in with gravel at the company's expense.

“The company should have put back the very same stuff as they took out,” said Ald. O'Meara. “They act very wisely. On some streets they threw the gravel to one side, and after making the excavation for their line, used the gravel as a foundation for their ties. I saw that done myself.”

The matter then dropped. The members present were: W. Heaman (chairman), J. Heaman, S. O'Meara, E. Parnell, J. Nokes, Mayor Little, Secretary Bell, Engineer Graydon and Commissioner Owens.

She Couldn't Wait.

Lady—I want to sit for a picture. Artist—I shall be very glad to paint you, if you will wait a week, until I finish the one I am at work on now. Lady—Oh! my, I couldn't wait that long. Why, I promised to be home to dinner at 5 o'clock!

That's the trouble with some people; they have no time to wait for results. Some women will take a dose or so of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and expect to feel well immediately. True, some do find marvelously speedy effects from a single dose, but chronic diseases, which have had possession of the system for years, cannot be cured in a day. Persevere with it and it will cure you, ladies, of all the ills you suffer from. Guaranteed to cure in all cases of nervousness, spasms, chorea, irregularities, painful periods and kindred ailments.

A good deed is never lost; he who sows courtesy reaps friendship, and he who plants kindness gathers love.

LONDON MILITARY EXPERIENCE.

A Pond Stocked With Fish and What Came of It.

A correspondent writes: “Some years ago when the military was situated in London, a number of officers having an eye to business, conceived the idea that there was money in fish, if they could obtain the monopoly. Accordingly they obtained a pond in the township of London, stocked it with a good supply of fish and waited the results. Everything went well for a time, young fish and spawn was being added daily and the shareholders dreamed nightly of the big profits that would arrive from the investment in this lucky enterprise. Thus the winter passed giving place to spring weather, and with it rose the spirits of the investors. But when summer came with the mercury up to 80° and the pond in the shade, the dwellers in the pond were also and many of them wrong side up, so that by the end of the summer the pond was ready for stocking again. Why! Some said the vegetable matter made it unfit for even fish to live in. Otherwise the cause lay in the spring itself, as it was not strong enough to keep the water fresh, but the hole was nothing but a stagnant pool, liable to rise and fill, just as the weather chose to be either wet or dry. The only profit the company received was experience. I don't know whether it cost them $900 or not, but if it did it seems rather high simply to find out whether the water was good enough for fish to live in or not. Supposing they wished to know the quality or quantity, whether it was fit for domestic purposes, or would it serve a couple of families during a hot spell, one could have sympathized with them at the loss of the $900 or so, but I suppose at that time fish was of more importance to London than pure water.”

DYING OF STARVATION.

Sad Condition of the Unemployed in Quebec City.

Quebec, Nov. 8.—That there is a great deal of the most acute distress among the unemployed poor of this city has now become so apparent that prompt action will have to be taken at once to save many of them from starving. Indeed some of them have nearly reached that dreadful point. Yesterday morning a poor workman dropped on the street from weakness, near the C. P. R. station at the Plains. He had not had any employment for ten weeks and no food for 48 hours. He was removed to his home by good Samaritans and his wants and those of his family relieved. The Daily Telegraph says: Only a week ago the case of a family residing in Little Champlain street was brought to light by a policeman. Since then our attention has been called to several other similar cases, where families one time in well-to-do circumstances have been reduced to the point of starvation through lack of work. Yesterday a man called at an office in Peters street and made the assertion that his family of five or six children had nothing to eat that day and prayed for the price of a loaf of bread. How many more cases there are where actual distress exists is not known. But it would be well if Mayor Parent would issue orders to the police force to report all cases of families in dire distress, and upon that report call a public meeting of citizens, with the object of doing something to relieve their wants.

Scrofula lurks in the blood of nearly every one, but Dr. Sargol's pills drive it from the system and makes pure blood.

A STRIKING ILLUSTRATION.

G. M. Gardner, solicitor, Toronto, has responded to the request of Sir Hibbert Tupper that instances should be supplied wherein prisoners have been detained in jail after it has been proved that they were suffering from serious illness. He points out that John Anderson, of Toronto, on May 9, 1898, having pleaded guilty to removing a mark from postage stamps, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and was imprisoned in the Kingston Penitentiary for two years. A petition was presented to the then Minister of Justice praying for Anderson's release on the ground that he was suffering from an incurable disease of such a nature that life could be only preserved by the exercise of the strictest care in the matter of diet and associations. The petition was accompanied by medical certificates from the jail surgeon, etc., corroborating the statements, and was signed by many well-known citizens of Toronto, for example, R. J. Fleming, then mayor of Toronto. It was, however, refused, and Anderson died in the penitentiary, after much suffering, on Aug. 21, 1894. While he was so treated, the Dominion Government pardoned on McGreevy and Connolly, particular friends and associates of the men in power at Ottawa, on the pretext that they suffered from sore ears and weak kidneys. They recovered so rapidly that they were able to attend a banquet as soon as they were released.

At Ottawa, under the present regime, there is undoubtedly one law for the rich and another for the poor.

A MANUFACTURER CANDIDATE SPEAKS.

Frost & Wood, Smith's Falls, are next to the Massey-Harris Company, the largest manufacturers of agricultural implements in the Dominion. It is a matter of considerable significance, therefore, that the head of the firm is a Liberal candidate for the House of Commons, and a repudiator of the high tax system as a help to legitimate manufacturing industries or to any other business in the community. Mr. Frost is a man who knows what he is talking about, and he asserts that "outside the monopolistic industries that profit unfairly at the expense of the people, the manufacturers were just as flourishing prior to 1873 as they are today." This is undoubtedly true. Mr. Frost could have pointed to the blotting out by the blighting effects of the high tax policy of legitimate manufacturing industries in almost every city, town and village in the west. Many industries are now seriously burdened by the N. P. taxes on their raw material. Not only are manufacturers operating outside combines established to restrict production thus handicapped and harassed, but such railways as the Grand Trunk are also injured. The tax on coal which is collected almost entirely from Ontario consumers, is a sectional tax that cannot be defended, and it flies from manufacturers and railway men money that could be much better used as a part of the wages fund for the steady employment of workmen.

Mr. Frost, in a recent address, made this strong point: "There is not a manufacturer in Canada in any line I know of who, with free raw materials, would not give the workmen more work, better wages and greater prosperity than we have had in the past. There are scores of industries in Canada that do not derive one cent of benefit from the tariff. As a manufacturer he said he believed that a revenue tariff and an economical Government would best promote the interests and prosperity of the country." With 30 years' experience as a manufacturer Mr. Frost ought to know something about the effect of the policy of high taxation. His business was a prosperous one during the revenue tariff years prior to 1873, just as many manufacturers in this and other cities were under a revenue tariff. The position of Mr. Frost and of independent manufacturers throughout Canada generally is that they wish no favors at the hands of Governments, to be paid for by huge contributions to political bribery funds; all they desire is free or low taxed raw material, and they can hold their own with any competitor.

When it is represented that the fair-play policy which these manufacturers support—that promoted by Hon. Wilfrid Laurier—would blot out the manufacturing industries, it can only be said that the foolish men who make such an unwarranted statement are beggarly for argument. The Liberal policy would build up Canada everywhere.

because it would give the great giant now bound hand and foot with monopoly cords, free scope for his mighty limbs, and set industry prospering as it can never prosper while a few are enabled to become millionaires at the expense of the remainder. Fair play to every worker, whether employer or employed, manufacturer or farmer, lumberman or miner, must rule. The country needs a change.

WHAT SLANDERERS DID.

No condemnation can be too strong for the idle and malicious slanderer, who walks about the streets retailing lies about his neighbor, to whom he is opposed in business or in politics. In one city of the United States, a few people of this sort have, through their dirty tongues, brought serious loss to the taxpayers and merchants. The manager of an extensive iron mill at Middleport, Ohio, had unfounded slanders retailed against him by these busybodies—in that place, as in this, principally composed of men and women who have nothing to do, but who have the ambition to build themselves up at the expense of their neighbors. This business man took his revenge by securing the removal of the entire plant to Columbus, and a Western newspaper chronicles the fact that as a result "hundreds of workers in the town are now idle, stores are closing, and business is completely paralyzed." Too bad that the slander-mongers could not have been ducked in the river and set on a cutty stool in the market square. All should not be made to suffer because a few resolve themselves into assassins of the character of their betters.

FARM PUPIL SWINDLES.

The Dominion High Commissioner in England is reported to be taking steps to have farm pupil swindles put down. Most people thought that with the exposures arising after Benwell's murder by Birchall there would come an end to the practice of gulling green young Englishmen into the belief that it pays them to hand over large sums of money to speculators who promise to have them taught farming in Canada in a way that will bring them riches. But it seems that the swindlers have in recent months been finding as many victims as ever.

No willing young man needs to pay to learn farming in Canada. There are farmers in plenty who will gladly give them board, lodging and instruction in return for their labor. Kid-glove farming is of no practical value in Canada.

BY THE WAY.

If, as alleged, the lamentable disaster in Detroit, by which many lives were lost, was caused by a negligent engineer, who permitted the water in a boiler to get too low, a lesson that should be laid to heart by engineers and their employers is conveyed. Every man who has charge of an engine should be an expert, and he should be trained to recognize his great responsibility. Day by day as he attends to his work he holds the safety of the lives of himself and his neighbors in his hands, and if he is in any degree negligent the most disastrous consequences may follow.

Last year it cost New York more than $10,000 to repair asphalt pavements, which had been injured by election night bonfires. They are extravagantly in Gotham.

Says the Canada Presbyterian: Is a judge above criticism? That is a question with which the press of this country wrestles occasionally. Some of our contemporaries seem to think he is, and one modifies that opinion by saying he is "virtually" above criticism. Nobody in England would ask, much less discuss, any such question. The press of England assumes that every public servant—any official in the realm who receives public money—is a fit subject for criticism. Even royalty does not escape. One reason why the administration of justice in England has become almost an exact science is because the press of the empire never hesitates a moment to criticise the proceedings in the courts. The morning after the verdict in a great trial has been given, any journal feels at liberty to publish a column of criticism, and the presiding judge often gets his share as well as all the other parties in the trial. Why should it be otherwise in Canada? Are our judges so perfect that they need no criticism, or so weak that they cannot stand it? Or is the main difference in the newspapers? The other day one of the judges was reported as saying that the decision of his learned brother in the court below was "nonsense." If judges criticise each other in that way, it seems absurd to say that the press of the country should consider them above criticism. The English plan is the safe one. John Bull dares to criticise any man that serves the public and takes public money for his work. John knows his business.

Rockefeller's latest gift of $1,000,000 to the Chicago University reminds one that there is a chance for philanthropy of the same kind right here in London.

When the Dominion Government musters enough courage to face the people, the people will face the other way.

The fact that the Turks refuse to allow Jews to return to Palestine to live indicates that there is a work for modern crusaders.

The high tax advocates have a habit of confounding the blessings of Providence with the N. P. One would infer from them that the old policy was responsible for Manitoba's wheat crop. As for the price—well the less said about that the better for the N. P.

MONTY DON'T CARE.

The Toronto Telegram declares that the Conservative club of London cannot use the maple leaf as a political name "without violating the sentiment which is opposed to the use of national emblems for partisan purposes." Such a small matter will not trouble Dr. Montague, the originator of the Maple Leaf Club. A man who can placard the fences in his constituency with proclamations, purporting to be issued in the name of the queen, commending him as one of her most worthy subjects and commanding the electors to vote and support his election, will not be very much worried about the violation of sentiment involved in the use of a maple leaf, emblematically or otherwise. He is a great man among the politicians. He is the newest of the cabinet ministers, he is the most enthusiastic, and he wants to do or say something which will make his name be handed down for the admiration of posterity. Will he succeed? Wait and see. Keep your eye on Monty.—Kings-ton Whig.

N. P. PRICE OF LAND.

Auctioneer Hunt sold on the market yesterday a farm previously owned by George Green, of East Oxford, and held under a mortgage by the Oxford Permanent Loan Society. Bidding started at $3,800. The property finally sold to a son of the owner for $4,700. The farm at once time, it is said, was valued at $5,000.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

SHE DOES.

Among the many people Who brighten up our lives, First ranks the splinter lady Who writes "Advice to Wives." —Chicago Times-Herald.

NOT PARTICULARLY BRIGHT.

Dun & Co.'s Review of the business Outlook in Canada.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 8.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly statement of trade in Canada says: The trade situation at Montreal is not greatly altered since a week ago. The unusually fine weather of an Indian summer character, still acts unfavorably to the active disposal of heavy drygoods, and wholesalers do not report sorting business as very brisk in these lines, though a fair proportion of orders for spring goods are being booked. In groceries there is a moderate distribution, principally in small orders. October has been a quiet month in the metal trade, but values show no tendency of weakening. Hides are dull and easy. Quotations for the fall catch of raw furs are hardly established yet, but the outlook for shipping furs is not considered very promising, and prices are not likely to rule very high. Oils and paints are momentarily quiet. Coal oil is dearer. Wool shows a steady market at late advance. Butter and cheese are a shade easier, and indications do not improve as they should, and collections from city retailers are poor. Rain continues to be badly wanted in many parts. The milder weather is detrimental to trade interests. While there is a hopeful feeling prevailing among the merchants of Toronto, the trade of the week has been somewhat unsatisfactory. Or, in most lines have been for very small parcels. The slow movement of grain accounts for the backwardness of remittances, and renewals are still very numerous. Prices of general merchandise, as a rule, are unchanged this week. Metals, hardware, cottons, woollens, and sugars are firm. White and red wheat are firmer. Indications of a little freer movement. The deliveries of barley are small, while there is an improved demand for malting qualities, and prices are higher. Canadian bank stocks are irregular. Loan company issues show few changes, but there is a limited demand for most of them.

The failures for the week are 49, as against 42 for same week of last year.

HEADLIGHT FLASHES.

C. P. R. Employees Confess to a Serious Offense.—G. T. R. Consolidation.

Freight traffic on the M. C. R. is booming.

Oscar Hunsbury, G. T. R. fireman, fell from his engine at Marshville, on Sunday, and broke his arm.

Receipts from traffic on the C. P. R. for the week ending Oct. 31, $758,000; for the same week last year, $711,000; increase $47,000.

The Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway Company and its leased lines in the United States will, within a very short time, be consolidated with the C. P. R. property. General Manager W. J. Spicer will be retired, and the office of traffic manager, now held by Geo. B. Reeve, will be abolished. The jurisdiction of the officials in Montreal will be extended to Chicago, but General Passenger Agent Davis and David Brown, the present general freight agent of the Chicago and Grand Trunk will, it is understood, remain undisturbed.

A telegram from Three Rivers, Que., via C. P. R., says: The hearing of the charges of conspiracy laid by the C. P. R. against Conductor B. D. Campbell and Ticket Clerk and Trieyer, Quillet took place this afternoon before Magistrate Desllets, of this city. The specific charge was that certain tickets which had been sold to passengers on the Grand Trunk train by conductors Quillet were not stamped, were collected on the train by Conductor Campbell and were not canceled by punching, as required by the rules of the resale. According to the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution it was proven conclusively that a private arrangement existed between the ticket agent and the conductors to divide the proceeds of such tickets resold. The company claimed that the tickets in question were only once accounted for. The evidence for the defense was so overwhelming that both prisoners pleaded guilty and elected to be tried summarily. His honor Judge Desllets remanded the accused for sentence until Friday. The maximum penalty for the offense is seven years at hard labor in the Provincial Penitentiary.

A LIFE SAVED.—Mr. James Bryson Cameron, states: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs, and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than a half-bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me any good."

China is about to establish a new foreign university at Tien Tsin, where science, civil, electrical and mechanical engineering, mining and law will be taught by foreign professors.

Catarrh in the Head

Is a dangerous disease because it is liable to result in loss of hearing or smell, or develop into consumption. Read the following:

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H. FURSTNER, Newmarket, Ontario.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is the Only True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the public eye today.

Hood's Pills cure habitual constipation. Price 25c per box.

Englishmen Win Again

The World's Four-Oared Record Smashed at Austin, Texas.

Close of the International Field Trials.

THE KENNEL

LAST OF THE FIELD TRIALS. Chatham, Ont., Nov. 8.—The annual field trials came to an end to-day. They were on the whole the most satisfactory trials that the club has ever had. The dogs were better than they have been for years, but the extreme dryness of the atmosphere and ground rendered anything like scent impossible. The birds too, were scarce, but it was evident that there were more in the locality than were flushed. Several times the best dogs landed in a bevy, flushing them in all directions without making a single point. At times, however, some very pretty ones were made, particularly by Marygold, winner of the Derby, when she held a steady point on a treed bird, while quail were rising about her in all directions, and another by Lightfield Deemster, in a field of standing corn. The second series in the all-aged stake was finished in the afternoon. Results: First, Don Antonio owned by Bangham, Windsor, and winner of last year's Derby; 2, Brighton Dick, T. G. Davey, London; 3, divided between Deemster and Faunting, the former the property of Lord Lonsdale, England, and the latter of T. G. Davey. Chatham contestants and spectators appreciated the difficult work of the judges and agreed with the decisions.

AQUATIC

AMERICANS NOT IN IT. Austin, Tex., Nov. 8.—An immense crowd witnessed the final contest between the American and English oarsmen in the great regatta, and they saw the tail feathers of the American eagle plucked again. The event was the single scull, three miles, true turn, between J. Gaudaur, Bas Rogers, B. Bear and Haines, for the world's championship, Richard K. Fox's challenge cup and $1,000. The course lay like a great mirror, with scarcely a ripple on it. A good start was made, Gaudaur taking the water first, and Rogers pushing along close behind him, but a little in the rear. B. Bear and Haines evidently were intentionally not in it, and they were dallying about to save themselves for the great four-oared race to follow. About the first quarter post Haines dropped out, and at the three-quarter post B. Bear beat a retreat, leaving the field clear to Rogers and Gaudaur. From the three-quarter post they got away together, but Gaudaur succeeded in turning the stake a half boat length in the lead. Down the course home both men did some beautiful work, Gaudaur keeping the lead and putting daylight between himself and Rogers with a long, easy stroke of 22. He crossed the finish line about three boat lengths ahead. Time, 21 minutes. Gaudaur's time over the same course last year was 20:45.

The second race was probably the greatest four-oared contest the world has ever witnessed in America. The oarsmen were: English—Bubear, Barry, Haines and Wingate. Americans—Teemer, Rogers, C. Gaudaur and J. Gaudaur. Both crews had loyal backers, and the English boys, in addition to the purse, pulled in several thousand dollars. The race was three miles, with a turn. The start was a perfect one, both crews taking water at the same time. The Englishmen gained slightly after a dozen or more strokes, and at the quarter stake led by a boat's length. From there on to the three-quarter stake the Englishmen, with a long, easy, 23 stroke, widened the distance. The Americans strained every muscle, and came spinning after their English friends, but the latter made the turn for the homeward stretch at least three boat lengths ahead. It was apparent here that the Englishmen were going to win. Down the course the English flew, the plucky Americans bending to their oars with hearty goodwill. It was no use, however; the English boys gained at every stroke, and they were clock-like and beautiful, and when the quarter post was reached the Americans practically went to pieces, and the Englishmen crossed the line two boat lengths ahead. It could have been a dozen had the Englishmen chosen. The time, 17:20 1-2, broke the world's record. The race was for the world's championship and a purse of $1,000. It is conceded that the Americans had the best boat, the oars, the rowers, but the Englishmen, in a four-oared scull, outclassed them in regularity and evenness of stroke. The English crew will hardly leave for New York for next week.

ATLETICS

CORBETT SICK OF IT. Buffalo, Nov. 8.—Jim Daly, Corbett's sparring partner, has just returned from Hot Springs and says: "Corbett has decided to quit the ring for good and all. He is sick and tired of boxing, and his last experience has soured him entirely. Corbett never wanted to make the match, but he was forced to it. Corbett trained till Nov. 3 and spent $14,000 in actual cash."

THE TURF

PATCHEN DEFEATS GENTRY. Richmond, Va., Nov. 8.—John R. Gentry was not in it with Joe Patchen on the half-mile track yesterday and was drawn after the second heat by Mr. Scott, his owner and driver. Patchen then paced a third heat with running mate in 2:11, very good time considering the track.

HOCKEY

L. C. I. CLUB. The annual meeting of the hockey club of the London Collegiate Institute for the election of officers was held yesterday. The following officers were elected: Honorary president, Thomas Beattie; honorary vice-president, Claude Brown; secretary, F. H. Sreaton; treasurer, Fred Fisher; captain, C. T. Pigot; vice-captain, W. Robinson; executive committee—F. H. Sreaton, Ferguson, W. Wright. A resolution was passed thanking the London Hockey Club for their kindness in inviting the members of the L. C. I. Hockey Club to take part in their paper chases.

"Bowell Must Go!"

Such is the Cry of Many of His Former Friends.

Death of a Conservative M. P.—Great Liberal Convention in Halifax, N.S.

The Ottawa telegrams today say that a strong movement is on foot to force Premier Bowell to get out of the Cabinet. The meeting in the Commons. A. D. H. C. has been received of the death of Mr. Simard, M. P. for Charlevoix. He was a supporter of the Dominion Government. His death makes the seventh vacancy in the Commons. All the vacant seats were held by Conservatives. It is likely the Liberals will carry the seat. A Halifax, N.S., dispatch says: A large, representative and enthusiastic meeting of the executive of the Maritime Provinces Liberal Association was held in this city this afternoon and evening. Mr. L. H. Davies, M.P., Charlottetown, presided. It was decided to hold a series of public meetings in the immediate future, dates and places to be arranged by the executive officers. The meeting in the evening was very enthusiastic. The reports given of the state of public feeling throughout the Maritime Provinces were of the most encouraging character. The Liberal party will place good candidates in every constituency, and have a full discussion of the issues before the electorate, and are generally carrying on the most energetic and aggressive campaign yet undertaken. The visiting delegates were entertained at dinner at the Queen's Hotel by Premier Fielding, Hon. A. G. Jones and other local Liberals of prominence. Premier Fielding says the Maritime Provinces are ripe for a change.

GONE UP IN SMOKE

New York Has a Big Blaze—Loss $1,500,000 to $2,000,000—Brave Firemen

New York, November 8.—Six members of one family perished by fire in their home in the top floor of the four-story tenement house at 311 Van Brunt street, Brooklyn, at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The names are: Chas. Ryan, Ellen Ryan, and their daughters Johanna, 20 years old; Sarah, 17; Maggie, 14; and Lizzie, 12. The fire started from a gas jet in a hall on the ground floor. It burned out Finnegan's saloon on the ground floor, and roused Margaret Welch and her four children on the second floor. The stairway being on fire they went to the windows, from which they were rescued by policemen. The fire quickly got to the third floor, which was unoccupied. Almost before the Ryans had warning, and long before anyone could reach them, the fire came upon them. They were found dead in their beds soon after the flames were extinguished. The fire merely burned the building out on the inside, and did damage to the extent of $2,000.

New York, Nov. 8.—Fire started on Tuesday night in Keefer's shirt factory at Broadway and Bleeker streets, which extended to Crosby street. The comparatively new building of the Manhattan Savings Institution was destroyed. Two other buildings were destroyed, and others damaged by fire and water.

The Manhattan building was across the street, and every effort was made to save it, but vainly. Fire Chief Francis J. Reilly and twelve men were in the sixth story of the building when from above the flames came so rapidly that their escape was cut off. By cutting a hole through the side wall to the building to the north the flames were extinguished. The twelfth man, Fireman Fitzgerald, crawled along a narrow coping, but became so weak that two firemen had to climb out of a window and lift him along the ledge many feet above the ground to a window in the adjoining building. Chief Reilly fainted when he reached the street and was taken to a hospital, with his back injured. Fireman Walsh was overcome by the smoke in rescuing Annie Coon, aged 70, and five children from a tenement. There were many narrow escapes and 25 firemen injured. The Manhattan Bank building was occupied by many concerns. In the building were, among others, Fielding & Co., clothing; Ouyebrood Bros., silks; Guarantee Silk Company; Goldstone & Sternberg, clothing; Northwestern Store Company; J. M. Van-note, hats, and John A. Plommette & Co. It is estimated that the total loss will reach from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000.

Young Liberals.

Large Crowds Attend the First Night's Polling.

Active Canvassing and the Best of Good Nature.

A Close and Exciting Vote—Concert and Luncheon—The Election of Officers.

The first night's polling for the election of officers of the Young Liberal Club took place last evening at the club rooms, Oddfellows' Block, and although the night was of the storm-tossed description, and there were no Cabinet Ministers in town, the scene in and about the rooms was animated in the extreme. Between 8 and 9 o'clock it was next to impossible to make one's way through the dense crowds that lined the corridors, stairway and sitting rooms, while the groups around the four polling booths did not begin to thin out until long after 10 o'clock. During the evening there was the liveliest kind of canvassing in the lobbies, but good nature prevailed everywhere, and nowhere was there more apparent than among the candidates themselves. Over 500 votes were cast.

Mr. Dan Regan was returning officer-in-chief, while the different booths were attended to by the following deputies and poll clerks:

A to H—Ald. Armstrong, returning officer; John Treblelock, poll clerk. H to M—Moses Masurel, returning officer; James Milne, poll clerk. N to R—C. W. Andrus, returning officer; E. Jeffrey, poll clerk. S to Z—Ald. Brenner, returning officer; Fred Hallam, poll clerk.

The vote promised to be closer than it has ever yet been, owing to activity of the candidates, and their determination to get out all the vote. Among the visitors to the club rooms last night were Messrs. Charles Hymal, M.P.; Thomas Hobbs, M.P.P.; Ald. Jones, Ald. Nutkins, Ald. Parnell, Ald. Callahan, Ald. Wm. Heaman, Chas. F. Elliott, Ald. Talbot, Walter Bartlett, and many other prominent workers.

At 10 o'clock a concert was held in the club auditorium. It was a most enjoyable affair, and among those who took part were: H. F. Futhven, McDonald, S. Huntington, George Birmingham, Thomas Ranahan, Ward Sutherland, and several others. After the concert, the popular treasurer of the club, Mr. J. C. Treblelock, who was elected by acclamation, entertained a few of his friends to luncheon. Among those who accepted the invitation were: Messrs. Ward Sutherland, W. W. Davies, M.P., George C. Davis, Tom Ranahan, A. Hargreaves, Nip Tune, W. Martin, Harry Ranahan, F. H. Butler, A. Wanless, H. Vincent and Fred Hallam.

The polling will continue tonight, and close at 10:30, when the ballots will be counted and the result made known. Another concert will be given in the auditorium, commencing at 10 o'clock, and lasting until the returns are in. The vote will easily be the largest in the history of the club.

A Big Haul.

South Enders Charged With Stealing Iron From the Street Railway.

A useless Laundryman in Court—Six Months for Vagrancy—A Grey Street Assault Case.

Granville Brooks and Samuel Graham, two residents of the southern end of the city, were arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of stealing nearly four tons of old iron from the street railway company. When the company tore up their old rails on the Hamilton road a part of the equipment laid by comprised the rail supports, known as chairs. These were left at the side of the street, but when again sought for on the electric line many of them were missing. An inquiry was instituted, and Secretary Church and Engineer McKay visited some of the second-hand shops, and located between three and four tons of the missing "chairs." The prisoners happened to be at one of these places and were pointed out to the men who had brought the iron home. The prisoners were before the police magistrate this morning and were remanded until Tuesday. Brooks has been in prison many times.

Chang Lee, a Chinaman who ran a laundry on Richmond street, appeared with two other Chinese to prosecute a charge of destroying property which he had referred against Ernest Cortesi, a little Italian boy of about 8 years, charged with the destruction of the glass and giving the Chinaman 75 cents for attending court.

Archibald McFee, a laborer, was charged with assault by his father-in-law, John Campbell, 155 Grey street. McFee and his aged mother live at Campbell's. Last night the former, while drunk, began to find fault with Mrs. McFee. Campbell interfered, whereupon McFee struck him on the forehead with his fist, and in the ensuing scuffle bit a piece out of his lip. Then he threatened to slash Campbell and drew a razor. McFee could remember nothing of the affair whatever, but said if it did happen it was caused by his drinking. He was fined $5 or a month. He went down.

Walter Woolway was charged with drunkenness and vagrancy and was given six months in the Central Prison. He had been charged with vagrancy, assault and larceny before, and was in the Central twice. In June he was allowed out on suspended sentence for vagrancy, and it was on this charge that the magistrate imposed the term. The case of Hugh Sharkey, charged with desecrating the Sabbath, was adjourned for a week at the request of the defense. Breach of bylaw cases against Edward Middleton, John Hayman, jun., and James Hill were withdrawn. Hayman and Middleton had driven over sidewalks, while Hill, who is a dairyman, had allowed his horse to follow him from house to house while he was delivering milk. The horse was unattended, and the magistrate warned Hill against continuing the practice, now that the trolleys were in use.

KOMOKA.

Nov. 8.—The Mission Band social at Mr. I. Frank's Monday night was a grand success, realizing a handsome sum. The house was packed to the doors, making a little difficult for father and mother to get in.

The chairman, Rev. Mr. Haig, in his usual genial manner tried to make everybody comfortable and also saw that everybody partook of the abundance of good things that was provided by the committee of young ladies of the Mission Band.

It's just about a year since the Mission Band started here with a few members, and now they find fall plowing. Although the band has had a little uphill work since it started, it has managed to pull through with more determination than ever to go on with the work.

MASONVILLE.

Masonville, Nov. 8.—Mr. Jos. McDougall, of Masonville, has been away in Kingston securing "future happiness." He brought his bride home Thursday and commenced house-keeping in this city.

The season for chicken thieves has again arrived. Mrs. Froggett, who lives south of Masonville, had her hen-roost relieved of over twenty fowls one night lately. "Old hands" are suspected.

Farmers have finished gathering in their roots, and are now wishing for a warm weather till their fall plowing, after which they will pray for rain to fill the wells and ditches. Last Tuesday night Mr. Wm. Ridler, of Masonville, gave the boys and girls a dance. Many attended, and were away happy, though somewhat sleepy. Mr. J. YELLOW.

A Popular and Fashionable Color.

It is Not Stylish, However, When Ladies are Obligated to Wear It All the Time.

Saffron, Chrome, Old Gold and other shades of yellow are the ruling fashionable colors. There is one exception and that is when the popular color is worn in the complexion.

It is much noted that sallowness of complexion, yellow in the whites of the eyes, etc., is increasing. Our best types of womanhood are afflicted to a great extent in this manner. A woman pines more than anything for freshness of eye and complexion; her youth and beauty, and in the present day these points are much neglected.

If the bowels move regularly and habits to this end are contracted, it means a great deal. There will be no biliousness or indigestion; no dizziness, or headache; no melancholia, or sleeplessness; all forms of ill will be provided. There will be youthfulness, beauty and cheerfulness. There will be no necessity to use artificial beautifiers. Nature in all her beauty will reign supreme.

The researches of an eminent scientist were for years directed to producing a certain cure for constipation and bowel irregularities. After much experimenting "Karl's Clover Root Tea" was produced, and it is one of the greatest of modern discoveries.

Nature furnishes remedies for all ills to her creatures, man and beast, and they are always most effective, the nearer they approach to a natural state. "Karl's Clover Root Tea" is prepared directly from roots and herbs, as nature gave them, and the results are direct and perfect.

This wonderful medicine, a boon to mankind, may be procured at your druggist's. A careful use of it as directed will absolutely insure freedom from that trouble which is the curse of the women of our day, constipation of the bowels. "Karl's Clover Root Tea" cures without fail Skin Eruptions, Indigestion, Headache, Dizziness, Languor and prevents Piles, Fistula, and Blood Diseases. Trial samples free at W. T. Strong's.

CHAPTER XXIX.—DUTTON'S WILL.

Mr. Warren had run across the road, heedless of his wife's protests, not so much in the hope of shooting Wanga, for the report of his rifle sobered him a bit, as of bringing the black man to bay.

Elsie was helpless with the excitement of Wanga's reappearance, Dutton's wound and his extraordinary attempts at self-mutilation. What would you do? cried Will, springing upon him and wrestling the knife from his hand.

Dutton was remarkably cool. He looked at his bleeding wrist and remarked:

"You're right. It was very foolish, but when a man faces death he's apt to lose his head."

Mrs. Warren was now on the spot and was opening a linen press to get bandages.

"Don't let any of that blood get on you," said Dutton sharply to Will, who still held the dripping carving knife.

The young man took the knife to the sink and dropped it in a pan of dishwater.

"Out, Martha!" exclaimed Dutton, as Mrs. Warren approached him with bandages. "You may bind up the wrist, but keep your fingers free from blood, sure, or I won't let you touch me. Here, let me make a start for you."

He took the cloth from her and with his left hand covered his right wrist completely.

"Now, Martha," he said, "you may bind away and bind tight. Will, get a knife—not that carving—and cut off my right sleeve. Rip it clear down from the shoulder, if necessary, only get it off."

Dutton's manner was masterly. None of the three comprehended the situation, but there was no thought of doing aught except what he told them to.

Right, handed a pair of shears to Will, who promptly began to carry out Dutton's instructions.

Mr. Warren came in and replaced his rifle. Then he stepped into the kitchen.

"Hurt you much, Dutton?" he asked.

"It has probably killed me," answered Dutton, calmly, keeping his eyes on Mrs. Warren's operations, in order that he might snatch away his hand should there seem to be any danger that she would get blood-stained.

For a second Mr. Warren stared.

"You must be joking," he said.

"No, I'm not. Look out, Martha, and let the sleeve fall. That's right."

Now, Nick, get a cord and bind it around my arm above the elbow as fast as you can do it, and pull until the bone cracks."

Stirred like the others by Dutton's calm mastery of the situation, Mr. Warren obeyed, and he and Will together pulled the cord so tightly about Dutton's wrist that the wounded man winced.

"That's all I can stand," he said; "it may save me, but it probably won't."

He looked around the group, his eyes resting regretfully upon pale Elsie.

"I'm so sorry, little one," he exclaimed, "that you should have had to bear another shock on my account. But you mustn't mind it. I think everybody will be the happier if I go."

Elsie burst into tears and Dutton shook his head gravely.

"Nick," he said, with some hesitation, "I suppose it would be a relief to Will and jerking his head significantly towards Elsie.

Will understood and gently led her from the room.

"Dut," said Mr. Warren, "don't finish what you were going to say. I don't understand what's the matter yet. Tell us what must be done to save you."

"Get a surgeon," replied Dutton. "I should probably bleed to death if my arm were improperly amputated. You see, Nick, I'm poisoned. Wanga could have shot me if he so desired. He prefers to torture me."

"Will you go with me to the doctor?" asked Mr. Warren quickly. "You might save valuable time."

"No, I know how this thing would work. I must be quiet. It is probably a useless errand, but—"

Mr. Warren was already out of the house, running to the farm.

Mrs. Warren was weeping silently.

"Martha," said Dutton, "I could wish for your sake that this might have happened in the wilderness of Africa instead of the Adirondacks."

"Oh, no, no!" she sobbed, terribly agitated. "A thousand times better here."

"Well, perhaps 'tis; but 'tis strange," he walked into the spare chamber.

"I suppose this will be my room again?" he asked suggestively, and with a gloomy kind of cheerfulness.

Mrs. Warren controlled her emotion measurably, and full of him asking:

"Is there nothing I can do, Freeman?"

"No," he replied; "I know that my one chance lies in keeping my blood as quiet as possible, so I'm going to lie down and wait. Yes, there is one thing—send that young man to me."

He had lain down upon the bed. Mrs. Warren hesitated.

"You're not thinking—" she began.

"Tut, tut!" he interrupted. "Secrets are secrets. It understands that he's Elsie's intended. Isn't that enough?"

Will entered the room a moment later. Mr. Warren had but just saluted out of the yard, calling to him as he went not to leave the house.

Dutton looked suspiciously around the room.

"Shall I close the doors?" asked Will, and as proceeded to do so as Dutton nodded.

"Young man," said Dutton, "have you a revolver?"

"Not here," replied Will.

"There's one in the linen bag I brought with me, but I'm afraid if you get that that Martha and Elsie may see you. Is there one around the house somewhere?"

"I believe there's an old pistol, a muzzle-loader, in the barn," said Will, hesitatingly.

"You needn't fear anything, my boy," great deal better if I had a weapon at hand. There's no telling what might happen, you know, but I don't want to alarm the women needlessly. Can you get me that pistol?"

"Why, I guess so," said Will, still in doubt as to what he had better do.

"Then, as you love that beautiful girl and care for her safety, do it. If you don't I shall go and find it myself, and that might kill me outright. Wait. While you're gone, I'll try the cock once or twice to make sure it will work, load it heavy, put a cap on, and smuggle it to me."

While Will was hunting for the pistol several neighbors came running up to the house. They had been passing by the store that Wanga had appeared again. They came around with guns, an angry, determined crowd. John Martin was among them.

"Where was he seen last?" asked Martin.

"I was in the spare room," said Elsie, "and saw him coming in at the gate. Fags seemed to see him on the knoll."

"We must rid the township of this reptile," declared Martin, savagely. "I suppose you're all in for hunting him down?"

The neighbors answered emphatically that they were.

"Going to join us, Will?" asked Martin, as the young man came to the door.

"No," he answered, "somebody's got to stay here."

"That's so," though I wish you could go along, too."

He turned then to the neighbors and proceeded to organize them for a persistent, systematic hunt. Others joined the party before a start was made.

During the preparations Will slipped into the spare room and nodded to Dutton.

"Tuck it under here," said the wounded man, raising the bed spread.

By what chance at the time to be great luck, Mr. Warren came upon Dr. Nason but a little way from the village. He briefly explained what had happened, and together they hurried back to the house.

The searching party had then just got under way.

"Well, doc," said Dutton, drowsily, as the physician entered the room, "I promise you no malingering this time, and if you find me through it will be a good job professionally speaking. In general terms, I guess the world won't suffer if I go."

The doctor made a cursory examination.

"It's blood poisoning," he said; and, as Dutton nodded, "I'm afraid it's pretty far advanced. However, we may arrest it."

"Going to saw off my arm, doctor?"

"We'll see a little later. I don't care to infect you with unnecessary suffering."

Dr. Nason worked over the patient, administered medicines, and sat down to wait. Dutton seemed to sleep, and the doctor went into the sitting room.

Mr. Warren looked at him inquiringly.

"It's a very serious case," he said.

"I don't think he will recover."

"If it would be any help to you," said Mr. Warren, "the thing that made the wound is over in that corner. Dutton warned us not to touch it."

The doctor took a piece of cloth that had been torn off in making a bandage, and gingerly picked up the fragment of glass. He took it to the sink and spent some time examining it, using a microscope, and making such simple chemical tests as he could from the limited stock of drugs he carried with him.

At length he called Warren and Will.

"I heard something about this Wanga having a pet snake," he said, "and somebody killed it, eh?"

"Yes," replied Will, "it was the snake that made Martin's dogs turn tail."

"The keepers of the lookout at Denby," said Mr. Warren, "told me he had a dead snake in his pocket when they searched him."

"That settles it, then," declared the doctor. "Dutton cannot recover. The serpent was undoubtedly one of the most venomous reptiles of a southern climate, and the black man extracted from its dead body the poison with which this glass is thickly smeared. A scratch would have done the business in time, and Dutton had a small artery as well as a vein severed. You must look out and bury this glass deep."

He then went into the spare room and roused Dutton by shaking him.

"My friend," said the doctor, "it is best that I should tell you that I shall not amputate your arm."

Dutton was silent a moment.

"All right," he said presently; "I can stand it. Bring me pen, ink and paper, and stand around here, all of you three."

Mr. Warren brought the desired articles, and Dutton raised himself on the bed while the doctor placed the pillows at his back. With his left hand Dutton scrawled very slowly a few words upon the paper, and when he had finished he looked around with a quizzical smile.

"I guess, doc," he said, "that you're the only disinterested party here, and so you'll have to witness this document."

The doctor took the paper and read:

"Granite, New York, August 29, 1895.

—My Will—I hereby give the 'President' and all I have to Elsie Warren, 'Freeman H. Dutton.'

"If I could use my right hand, I'd make it longer," said Dutton; "but could I make it more emphatic or binding?"

"This would hold in any court of law," replied the doctor gravely, as he affixed his signature.

"Better put on a postscript, 'Will Spencer, executor,'" added Dutton.

The doctor thought a moment and then made a memorandum on the paper expressing the substance of Dutton's request.

"Is there anything else you wish to say?" asked the doctor.

"No, it's all there."

Mr. Warren recalled how Dutton's narrative had been interrupted just as he seemed to be on the point of mentioning the whereabouts of the 'President,' but it seemed to him now as if he hardly cared to know. The diamond had been the source of so much that was evil, and in the very presence of death he could not bring himself to ask about it.

"Let me lie as I am," said Dutton. "I feel better this way. You might help me off with my collar and open my vest, for it's a hot, close day."

Mr. Warren made as comfortable as possible, and Mr. Warren sat with him when the others withdrew.

"No need of any long-winded explanation now, Nick," said the dying man after a time; "but I came back to America thinking that my immense wealth, and 'twas immense, might be a help to Martha."

"I wouldn't dwell on it, Dut," responded Mr. Warren, as he observed a tear glistening in Dutton's eye.

Under the leadership of Martin the villagers searched the woods until nightfall. They found no trace of Wanga, but they would not give up. They returned to their homes for supper, and at sundown again set forth. Martin was desperately angry with himself.

"To think!" he exclaimed, "that I should let a savage from Africa know that they had been hunting for him!"

"Isn't to be helped, Jack," said Mr. Warren, who stood talking with the men at the gate. "I wish I could join you tonight, but I think I'd better not."

"How's the stranger, Nick?"

"Sinking. The doctor went away two hours ago, saying that there was nothing to be done. He'll be back again, though, about nine or half-past."

The villagers set out again on their search and Mr. Warren returned to the house. His wife had taken her place once more beside the bed on which Dutton lay, and Elsie sat with her. Dutton lay on his back, his head propped up by the pillows, just as the doctor had left him. His face was slightly open at the neck, showing just a trace of his scapular. His face was very pale.

"I should almost think that he had passed away," whispered Mrs. Warren, "but that I can hear his heart faintly when I put my head close down."

"Probably shan't know when the end comes," responded her husband.

He went into the kitchen, moved about aimlessly a few minutes and then entered the sitting room. Granpa's head was in his usual chair by the fireplace, and he was asleep. There was relief to be found in his company, and Mr. Warren passed on. He stood in the front doorway, eagerly listening for the report of a gun that might announce the capture of the black man.

Will Spencer, who had gone home for a time after supper, came down the road, and Mr. Warren gladly went to the gate to meet him.

"Shouldn't you go and leave somebody to talk to," said Mr. Warren, "Martha and Elsie, of course, will stay in Dutton's room, and Granpa is asleep. Didn't hear anything as you passed the gate, did he?"

"No, he had not, and they remained at the gate chatting for several minutes."

Granpa Kirk was a remarkably sound sleeper when he got well started in his nap. He had sure there was nothing to disturb him this evening with the usually quiet house more than with the usually quiet house more still than ever with the hush of approaching death. And yet, even an old man might have waked when there was a distinct, scratching sound in the broad chimney at his side. It was more than a scratching—it was a rustling and a slipping; but Granpa snored lightly and did not open his eyes.

At last in speechless horror, when with a slight thud, the form of a man dropped from the vaulted opening and landed in the ashes of the fireplace.

Granpa's aged limbs were set to trembling, and he opened his eyes with an effort to speak, but articulation failed him, as Wanga, with a determined, desperate glitter in his savage eyes, ran noiselessly across the room and entered the spare chamber.

Obituary.

The Late Mr. Finlay McNeil, of This City.

The Catholic Record prints the following references to the late Finlay McNeil, who for 35 years was a resident of this city: Born in Scotland, he emigrated to this country at a very early age, and on the death of his mother, in Nova Scotia, he came to Ontario in charge of his uncle. Before coming to London he resided in Brantford for a short time. As a boy he was noted for many characteristics. Thrown on his own resources at an early age he made the best use of his opportunities. Every spare moment he devoted to study. Life's duties and obligations were opening out before him, and his purpose was to climb to an honored place amongst his fellow-men. In 1868 he married Miss Helen Gleason, of this city, sister of Mr. Thos. Gleason, publisher of the Daily News, of Kalamazoo, and niece of Mr. Thos. Coffey, publisher of the Catholic Record. Shortly after marriage he engaged in the grocery business on the corner of Maitland and Simcoe streets. Mr. McNeil's character and disposition were successful and estimable. London's pioneers, who have left to their descendants as an heirloom a name deserving of honor. Honesty, industry and perseverance, combined with a goodness and greatness of heart and mind, were the ruling traits of his character. From small beginnings his business flourished day after day and year after year. Fortune selected him as one of her favorites, and as he became possessed to a considerable extent of this world's goods, the less worldly did he become. To many and many a home in the district where he resided has he proven a father and a provider in time of need—to the sorrowing he was a kind counselor, and to all was his friendship sincere and abiding. His was a mind above the ordinary, for humanity's plea opened wide the portals of his great Catholic heart.

During Saturday and Sunday, while the remains were exposed to view at his beautiful home on Wellington street, hundreds, hour after hour, thronged to take a last loving look at one whose character would serve to convince one that life is worth the living. Catholic, true and tried as he was, in every sense of the word, yet the esteem in which he was held was not confined to people of his own faith—all classes and all creeds loved him for the good that was in him and for the greatness of soul that commanded their respect and love.

As a member of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, his purse was always open to the needy. As a member of the Board of Separate School Trustees, his best energies were directed toward the furtherance of Catholic education. As a member of the C. M. B. A., his will be felt, more especially by members of Branch No. 105, which he helped to organize, and of which he was ever an active and most interested member. In all matters pertaining to the furtherance of the interests of the church, Finlay McNeil was always ready with means and mind to take a prominent part. More eloquent than words was the tribute to the deceased on Monday morning when the funeral procession took place from his residence to St. Peter's Cathedral, in which was represented all classes of the people of the city. The funeral procession reached the Cathedral the spacious building was already found to be completely filled. The altar was draped with emblems of mourning. Soloman high mass of Requiem was celebrated by Rev. T. Noonan, and Rev. Fathers McCormack and McKee acted as deacon and sub-deacon. The service was most impressive, and from the beginning to the end served to remind us that life is transient and that death will come to claim his own, no matter how great or how good. There were present from a distance at the funeral, Mr. Thomas Gleason, of Kalamazoo, Mich., and Mr. T. J. Finn, of Montreal, uncle of Mrs. McNeil.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. D. Regan, M. Massey, W. McPhillips, H. Dignan, J. Mattinson, Robt. Reid, Jun., Philip Pocock and John Forrestal. At the cemetery the last service for the dead was performed by Rev. Father McCormack, and thus was brought to a close the final marks of respect paid to a noble soul, whose memory will, as long as life endures, remain green in the hearts of thousands who had the privilege of knowing and who could not help loving the gentle and kindly Finlay McNeil.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osceola,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

Two Accidents.

A Nervous Horse Frightened by a

Trolley,

And the Driver Is Thrown Against the

Car—Wm. Brooks Cut on the Head

With an Adze at Victoria Bridge.

The closest call for life in any trolley accident that has as yet happened occurred last night at the corner of York and Ridout streets. A nervous horse was the primary cause of the accident, and only the watchfulness of the men in charge of the car—Messrs.

Day and Kerr—prevented the loss of life. Wm. Bishop, a machinist employed at White's foundry, was about to drive across the track at the corner when he saw a trolley approaching at a good rate, coming up the hill from the west. The car travels speedily coming up the hill, and Bishop, knowing the peculiarity of the horse, he was driving, thought it better to cross the track before it came up. He did so in safety, but just as the car reached the crossing the animal shied and threw Bishop off his insecure seat against the side of the car. The motorman, anticipating trouble, had slowed up the speed of the car, and it was going so slowly that when the accident happened the car was stopped instantly. Bishop was severely cut on the forehead and received a number of face bruises. He was in an unconscious condition and was carried into a near-by doctor's office. There his wounds were dressed, and he was afterwards removed to his home, No. 44

York street.
