Days of Rheumatism Now Over!
Wonderful Miracles Worked by "Nerviline"

Its Strange Power is the Marvel of Thousands It Has Cured.

You will welcome the good news that "Nerviline" rapidly relieves the most excruciating pains.

Nerviline penetrates deeply into the tissue, and possesses pain-subduing power at least five times greater than anything heretofore discovered. Its curative influence upon rheumatic pains is really wonderful.

Nerviline is offered to the people of this community under a positive guarantee of its reliability.

As a curative agent of severest pain, every rheumatic should test this great remedy.

Rheumatism is the greatest test Nerviline has to meet. It cures pains, big and little, but to rheumatics especially it is a great blessing, just as it is to those who suffer from neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, stiffness or enlarged joints.

Remember this: There is nothing harmful in Nerviline.

You can use it freely on your children for their aches and pains. It is dependable, reliable, safe. Nothing to equal good old Nerviline as a general family remedy.

Get the large 50 cent family bottle; it is far more economical than the 25 cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere.

WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER XIX.

"Love Came Too Late."

He stopped.
"But?" she said, anxiously.
"The money must be paid before long, you know," he went on, "and—and— See here, Olivia, it rests with you."

"With me?" faintly.
He nodded, keeping his eyes upon the carpet.

"Yes. You—your own agreement. The day we are married it shall be in your power to take all this trouble off your father's shoulders. I've said what I'll do, and I'll do it. The morning of the marriage I shall pay into the Wainford Bank the sum of fifty thousand pounds in your name. You can do what you like with it. Pitch it in the gutter, buy diamonds, or clear the squire—"

Her head drooped lower and lower, then she raised it slowly, and waited for him to continue, for she felt that more was coming.

"Why should we wait?" he continued, insidiously. "I hate long engagements; and the sooner we are married the sooner will the squire be rid of this trouble of his. Will you marry me in a fortnight, Olivia?"

She started, and every drop of blood seemed to leave her face.

She could hear her father's and Faradeane's footsteps outside, catch a word or two spoken by the latter, and his musical, true voice seemed to strike in with that of the man at her side and caused it to sound falser.

"In a fortnight?" she breathed, and her voice sounded strained and harsh.
"Why not?" he insisted. "You can get everything ready by that time. But you are not the one to think of clothes and all that sort of thing when your father's happiness is at stake."

"No," she said in a hard, mechanical voice. "But— and her hands locked together. "Give me another week!"
"Very well," he said, and his eyes shone with satisfaction, for he had expected her to plead for a month at least. "Say three weeks, then. Three weeks!" his face flushed and he smiled, "that will give me time to do up The Maples and make it fit for its mistress, its queen. Ah, how happy we will be, dearest! Where shall we go? Italy, Switzerland, the Lakes?" and he clasped her hand, which seemed to grow colder each moment. "There is nothing in the world you may want

Local Druggists Repair What Famous Surgeons Cannot Touch

Shattered nerves are beyond the reach of the Surgeon's knife. What will repair them? Dozens of people right here in your home town will bear testimony to this fact that Zoetic—the health tonic—has set them on their feet again. This famous combination of glycer-phosphates—the actual element of the human body—Cod Liver Oil and delicious tonic wine, supply the very elements that worn out nerves require. In a quiet way the action of Zoetic is truly marvellous. Without a trace of narcotic it induces sound sleep. And following that, better and better digestion. And following that a final and complete rebuilding of the nervous system drained of vitality. Two weeks' faithful use of it will convince you. Because you have been so often misled, expecting much and receiving little, we offer outright to refund the purchase price of Zoetic if at the end of two weeks you cannot report real progress toward better health. Start trying it to-day. Sold by T. McMurdo & Co., Sole Distributing Agents for Newfoundland.

CHAPTER XX.

The announcement of Olivia's approaching marriage caused almost as much excitement as the news of her engagement.

She had insisted upon the ceremony being as quiet as one as possible, and, that you shan't have, I promise you—nothing! I'm rich, as you know, and I'm prepared to spend any amount you like; you shall see."

She looked at him. It seemed to her marvelous that he should so little understand her.

"I want nothing—nothing but to see papa happy!" she said.

"Very well," he assented, "and you will do so, and have the satisfaction of feeling that it's all your doing! It isn't every girl who could pull her father out of the mud as you will do."

She winced; every word he uttered jarred upon her as it did upon the squire.

"I—I think I will go upstairs," she said. "I have a headache to-night."

"Oh," he said, in a tone of disappointment; then he added, with a cunning glance, "Don't forget you promised to sing that duet with Faradeane."

Her lips quivered and she turned her head aside.
"I had forgotten," she said, simply. He got up to hide the evil look which crossed his face.

"Yes, you'll stop to please him, my lady," he muttered. "But wait a while, wait a while!"
Faradeane and the squire came in, and the former went up to her.

"Will you sing?" he said, "or are you too tired?" he added, quick to notice her pallor and weariness.

"No," she said, and went to the piano, and he found one of the modern ballads set duet fashion, and they began.

Their voices harmonized perfectly, and the squire settled himself in a chair to listen with something like peace in his eyes.

"If you had loved me years ago, When Time was young and Fate was free
What happiness we now should know! Love came too late for you and me."

the refrain of the song ran; but at the last line of the second verse Olivia's clear voice faltered and broke, and the music ceased.

The squire rose apprehensively, and Bartley Bradstone glowered across the room suspiciously, but, with a quick, yet apparently natural motion of his hand, Faradeane caused the music to slide from the stand.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "It was my clumsiness."
She looked up at him gratefully, the moment or two giving her time to recover herself.

"Let me try it again," she said in a low voice; but he shook his head.
"No; you are tired, I can see, and I am out of voice."

"I am tired," she said, with a smile that cut him to the heart. "And I think I'll say good-night."
He went and opened the door for her, and, after bidding the rest "Good-night," she passed him with bent head and without giving him her hand.

When she had gained her own room she flung herself down beside the bed, and hid her face in her hands.
"Three weeks! Three weeks!" she moaned. Then she rose with a desperate laugh, and sang softly, with the delight in self-torture which a woman alone can feel:
"If you had loved me years ago, When Time was young and Fate was free
What happiness we now should know! Love came too late for you and me."

CHAPTER XX.

The announcement of Olivia's approaching marriage caused almost as much excitement as the news of her engagement.

She had insisted upon the ceremony being as quiet as one as possible, and,

Duncan's Deducts Were a Trifle Incomplete—BY DORGAN.

for a wonder, Bartley Bradstone assented.

At least a score of young ladies were desirous of acting as bridesmaids upon so famous an occasion, but Olivia desired to limit the number to two, and chose Annie and Mary, much to their delight and Aunt Amelia's chagrin.

"My dear Olivia," she remonstrated in her most dignified manner. "Only two bridesmaids! Why, the veriest pauper has three or four! Let me beg of you to remember your position, and what is due to it! I've nothing to say against Annie and Mary, but I cannot forget that there are others who have a claim upon us. For instance, there are those six dear girls of the duchess'. Now, why—I ask, why—cannot you choose them?"

But Olivia remained as firm over this point as she did upon the question of her trousseau. Aunt Amelia had looked forward to a visit to town, resulting in an extensive outfit, in which costly lace, and still more costly furs and tailor-made dresses should figure largely, and was proportionately disgusted when Olivia announced that she intended buying her things at Wainford, and evidently meant to confine her purchases to very narrow limits.

"Really, my dear Olivia," said Aunt Amelia, "one would think your father hadn't a penny to bless himself with! I call it ridiculous. If you have no proper pride in your own appearance you might at least show some regard for him."

And Olivia, with an aching heart, had to meet the old lady's reproaches with a smile.

On one thing at least she was resolved—that she would not spend one single sovereign more than was absolutely necessary of the money which she knew her father could so ill spare; and perhaps the sharpest pang she endured was felt by her on the morning when he called her into the study and gave her a handsome set of pearls.

"This is my present, dear," he said, his eyes dwelling on her with tender love and pride. "Your mother's jewels are yours by right, and I shall give them to you on the morning of your marriage; but this is my present. It is not—he faltered for a moment—"it is not so rich as I should like, but—"

She stopped him by putting her arms round his neck and drawing his worn face to hers.

"Why did you buy me anything, dear?" she murmured. "I only want what I have got—your love!" and she strained him to her with an almost protecting embrace. But though the squire's eyes filled with tears as he bent over her, hers were dry and hot, and wore a restless, feverish expression.

Restless would indeed best describe her state of mind since the day had been fixed for the wedding.

As Aunt Amelia said, reproachfully, it seemed as if she could not remain in one place for five minutes together, or settle to any one occupation. She wandered about the house and grounds during the day, and paced her room at night, her eyes fixed with a restless inquiet upon vacancy. But she wore the mask before the world so well that not even Faradeane could read the anguish and misery which tortured her; and if at times the ordeal through which she must pass seemed too terrible to be endured, the thought of her father and the peace she would purchase for him nerved her for the sacrifice.

Meanwhile, Bartley Bradstone had filled The Maples with an army of upholsterers, and new and luxurious as the place was already, it was to be made still more gorgeous for the reception of his bride.

Two days before the wedding, which was to take place on the Wednesday, it suddenly occurred to him that he had not yet got a best man; and, prompted by a malicious desire to make the most of his triumph, he proposed that Faradeane should occupy that position.

They were sitting at lunch, and Faradeane had walked across to the Orange, and allowed himself to be persuaded to stay.

"I want you to be my best man on Wednesday," Faradeane, said Bradstone in an offhand way, and with a sidelong glance at Olivia. She kept her eyes fixed upon her plate, and did not see the swift change which came over Faradeane's face. For a moment he was silent, and Bartley Bradstone, taking it for consent, went on, airily, "It isn't a difficult part, I believe; anyway, I'm sure you'd play it capitally—wouldn't he, squire?"

Spring Suitings!

Have just opened our new Spring Suitings. We were fortunate in securing a splendid range of English Worsteds and Irish and Scotch Tweeds.

Notwithstanding the scarcity of the woollens and the drawbacks in freights, we are able to show as good a selection as before the war. The latest in cut, the best in make. Write for samples and self-measuring cards.

Keep the Home Fires Burning Every Day!

But in the nights, and when you are away from home, you can Use one of our Alcohol HEATERS, at 50c. each.

It's a wonder. Boiler is complete with handle and cover, there is a tripod and a tin holder of solid alcohol (nothing to spill). Everything is compact. Tripod folds up and so does boiler handle, and the boiler will contain tripod and alcohol holder and a cup and saucer. Alcohol refills cost 15c. each. These Heaters are useful at all times, but especially for

- Infants and sick people at night.
- Anyone who hates laying fires in hot weather.
- Picnicers, trouters and owners of motor cars, motor cycles side-cars and motor boats.
- Travellers on the railway or elsewhere.

SAYS GERMANY WILL HAVE TO PAY.

LONDON, Sept. 2. The belief is held here that Von Hindenburg's appointment is the prelude to the resumption of ruthless submarine warfare, and has caused a revival of the demand that for every Allied merchant ship sunk by a submarine Germany will be required at the conclusion of the war to hand over equivalent in tonnage.

GERMANY'S PLANS.

LONDON, Sept. 2. A despatch to the London Times received in Paris seems to show that the Germans are preparing to bring the full weight of their effort upon the southern Rumanian frontier toward which a heavy movement of troops is reported to be in progress. It is the general opinion that Von Hindenburg's first effort will be made there upon the Danube, and that he will content himself with holding the Western front, if necessary, after withdrawing upon a shorter line.

ENEMY DRIVEN OUT OF TRENCHES.

LONDON, Sept. 2. Last night, as a result of minor operations, says a British official statement reporting operations on the Somme front in France, we drove the enemy from a portion of a small area intersected with trenches northwest of Deville Wood, which he had recaptured on Thursday.

ENEMY RETAKE TRENCHES.

PARIS, Sept. 2. After repeated and violent attacks last night, the Germans re-occupied part of the trenches taken recently by the French on the Somme front, south of Estrees.

INCREASED ARTILLERY ACTIVITY

LONDON, Sept. 2. A British official last night says that there has been increased artillery activity on both sides along the front southward of the Ancre and also on other parts of the front between the Ancre and the Somme. The only infantry action was some bombing encounters.

INFANTRY FIGHTING.

LONDON, Sept. 3. British and German forces engaged in infantry fighting this morning north of the River Somme, according to a British official this afternoon. Battles were in progress near Mou Farm, south of Thiéval, and on the banks of the River Ancre, and fighting was going on near Fallafat farm on the British right wing. The statement adds that some ground was gained by the British.

ANOTHER AIR RAID.

LONDON, Sept. 3. A squadron of German Zeppelins raided England last night with London and the western counties apparently as the objective. An official statement announces that one of the raiders was brought down in flames. Many bombs were dropped, but no reports of casualties have been received.

FIGHTING CONFINED TO ARTILLERY BOMBARDMENTS.

PARIS, Sept. 3. Fighting on the French section of the battle front in France last night was confined chiefly to artillery bombardments, according to an official statement this afternoon by the War Department. On the Somme front the French artillery was very active, while in the region northeast of Verdun the Germans violently bombarded the French positions between Thiaumont, Fleury and Chapitre woods. In the Balkans, the statement says, Bulgarian attacks northeast of Kukuruz were repulsed with heavy losses.

BULGARIANS REPULSED.

PARIS, Sept. 2. The Bulgarians returned to the attack last night on the Western end of the Macedonian front. The War Office announced to-day that an assault delivered by them, in the Vetralk sector, was repulsed by the Serbians.

AUSTRIANS REPULSED.

ROME, Sept. 2. An Austrian attack in the Sugana Valley was repulsed to-day. The War Office reported that violent artillery fighting is proceeding in Trentino.

IN MACEDONIA.

PARIS, Sept. 2. A despatch to the Petit Parisien from Salonika, dated Friday, says that the Committee of National Defence, composed of Lieut. Col. Zimbrakakis and other prominent military men and civilians has been proclaimed as a Provisional Government of Macedonia. All gendarmes and cavalry, says the despatch, have joined this movement. A parade of revolutionary troops under Zimbrakakis took place, after which there was a parade of armed civilians and volunteers wearing the Blue and White Ensign of the Macedonian Hussars.

URGENT PROMPT GREEK ACTION

PARIS, Sept. 2. An Athens despatch says that newspapers in that city publish a manifesto by General Lapatsistia appealing to Greeks to enroll as volunteers in an army which will protect Greece from its enemies. A despatch from Athens quotes La Patris as saying the Greek elections, which had been set for October 8th, will be useless, and urging prompt action on the part of the Greek Government to avert disaster.

URGED TO JOIN ALLIES.

SALONIKA, Aug. 30 (delayed.) The Committee of National Defence which has been organized here, has addressed an appeal to the public urging the population to join the Allies in defence of Macedonia. The 11th army division, the Politco, and the Liberal Party have united their forces. A general mobilization in Macedonia will be decreed this evening.

ROUMANIAN CAPTURE.

BERLIN, Sept. 2. The Rumanians have captured Hermanstadt, the former capital of Transylvania.

BULGARIANS RETIRING.

LONDON, Sept. 2. The Daily Chronicle publishes the following: The Bulgarians began a retirement from Sorovitch yesterday afternoon and are falling back towards the defiles of Kirilderven, and Paniza. Late last night detachments of Serbian cavalry arrived before Sorovitch. The Bulgarians, it is stated, evacuated their positions at three important points of the line, namely, Zaatsilar, Kievass, and Patell. Their retreat toward the low lying spurs of the hills towards the east and those bordering on Florina and the Monastir plain continues. Bulgarian outposts in Kastoria region are being withdrawn toward the north in a ravine near Gornicheva. The Serbs discovered there some Krupp guns abandoned by the Bulgarians. Everything points to a retreat toward Monastir and this may quite possibly be seen turned into a rout.

GERMAN LINERS SEIZED.

ATHENS, Sept. 2. Allied warships have seized the German Levant liners, Tenedos, Anatolia, Seriphos and Boiglies.

ROUMANIANS CAPTURE PRISONERS.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 3. The Rumanians have occupied a number of Transylvania towns, and captured 1,800 prisoners and war material.

AUSTRIANS WITHDRAW TROOPS.

VIENNA, via London, Sept. 3. Rumanian forces are successfully attacking the Austrians in an important section around Crsova. An Austrian official statement issued to-day announces that after five days' heavy fighting in this region, the Austrian troops were withdrawn to the west bank of the Cerna River.

RUSSIAN SUCCESSES.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2. The Russians have driven the Turks out of Sultanabad, a city nearly 200 miles inside the Persian border according to a despatch received in official quarters here.

AUSTRIAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 2. New Russian advances toward Lemberg are reported. Desperate resistance and counter attacks by the Austrians were repulsed. The Turk offensive near Gumahvane is smashed and the Turks are fleeing with great loss.

WILSON SIGNS EIGHT-HOUR BILL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. President Wilson to-day signed the eight-hour bill for railway employees, and left for Hodgenville, Ky., at 10:30 a.m. An order revoking the call for a country-wide railway strike was sent out by Labor Union officials last night, after Congress had passed the Adamson eight-hour day bill and sent it to the President.

EGYPT, Sept. 3. Enemy aeroplanes have dropped 25 bombs on Port Said. The British have taken three more machine guns and 15,000 rounds of ammunition at Katia.

STEAMERS CONFISCATED.

ROME, Sept. 3. Italy has confiscated 35 German interned steamers, aggregating 132,000 tons.

Interesting News For Working Men

AN ARTICLE WELL WORTH YOUR WHILE TO READ.

This is a nerve-racking age—not a man in an office or behind the counter, striving hard to get on in the world, that does not feel the strain. If nerves are in order, a man is strong, eats and sleeps well. Unstrung nerves means weakness, worry, sleeplessness and a general decay of bodily strength. Most men are careless of their health. They trust to luck and that kind of thing. Instead of taking Ferrozone for a few weeks when they feel dull in the morning, or when they sleep poorly or lose appetite. Ferrozone quickly brightens up the mind. It creates an appetite and improves digestion. Ferrozone makes blood, quiets the nerves, makes muscle like steel and induces refreshing sleep.

Ferozzone is a body builder, thousands have proved it. If you are sick or out of sorts, use Ferrozone and enjoy the splendid health it so surely brings. Permanent in its results, the greatest health-giver in the world is Ferrozone. Because nourishing and perfectly harmless, all can use it, even children. Get Ferrozone to-day, 50c. per box, at all dealers or by mail from The Catarrozone Co., Kingston Ont.

Left for Baltimore.

Captain P. Horward, the well known Master Pilot here, has been selected by a local concern to bring a steamer, newly purchased from Baltimore to St. John's, and he took passage by last evening's express train en route to the American port. We congratulate Pilot Horward and wish him a pleasant trip.

German Strategy.

Successful generals control events; unsuccessful generals are controlled by them. It is the new and unpleasant experience of the German command to find themselves in the latter category, hurried hither and thither by a current which threatens soon to sweep them off their feet. They have definitely lost the initiative of the offence—of that there can now be no doubt, but they retain yet a certain initiative of defence, and it is instructive to observe how they exercise it.

Of all the metaphors that the war has given birth to, that of the steel ring of the Allies is the favourite and most quoted, though it is hardly so much a figure as the literal truth. The shape and extent of this "ring" is most interesting. Beginning on the Belgian coast, it runs irregularly through northern France to the Swiss frontier. Here we must continue it by way of that frontier until we reach Italy, thence by way of the Trentino and Isonzo region to the Adriatic, where it is carried on by sea to Albania. Across northern Greece to the Aegean, and we must go by sea again as far as the Persian Gulf. Russia and Britain close Turkey in here, and Russian control of the Black Sea links Trebizond to the Roumanian-Bulgarian boundary. Thence sharply west along this boundary to Orsova, north by the Austro-Roumanian frontier to Bukovina and Letchitsky's army. And so north to Riga and the Baltic, whence British sea-power allows no outlet. A glance at this huge irregular line shows it to be roughly of the shape of two large bottles connected by a short and narrow neck. This neck is Bulgaria, Serbia and European Turkey. The immediate object of the Allies' strategy is to close it, cutting one "bottle" from the other; of the Germans, of course, to keep it open.

The importance of success in this endeavour to the Allies would be in the severance of Turkey from the Central Powers and the destruction of Bulgaria, but more than that in the closing of the military ring, as opposed to the naval, around Germany and Austria. The German plan of campaign, as it has revealed itself so far, is what we should have expected. They are attacking, but in a rather unexpected quarter. They are not, for the present, attempting to drive Roumania back from Transylvania (else they would hardly have let Hermannstadt fall into her hands), but are lending Bulgaria assistance in invading Roumania on the Black Sea. This is purely defensive, for the purpose of keeping the Russians from descending through Dobruja and eastern Bulgaria upon Constantinople; as an offensive it can lead them nowhere. Moreover it is almost certainly doomed to failure. Bulgaria is caught in a vise; the neck of the bottle is being subjected to too great pressure from both sides. The Allies have not really got going yet from Saloniki. The accession of Greece would only make certainty more sure, though it would be none the less welcome. Bulgaria will need to turn her whole attention to the south, as far as Roumania will permit her. At ready her forces are reported to be in retreat. Her dilemma is a desperate one, but her dilemma is also Germany's, and that country cannot afford to neglect it. So it is that the general opinion leans towards a shortening of Germany's west front that men may sent to this presently more vital region. So much the better; it will but bring nearer the coup de grace, which will assuredly be administered on that same west front, Germany yet has reserves in hand, but if this new need swallows them all, one of the first of the aims of the Allies will have been achieved in that fact alone.

Obituary.

There passed away on Sunday at Southport, Trinity Bay, in the person of Mr. John Vey, one whom for good sterling qualities it is hard to beat. Mr. Vey was one of the old school, upright, honest and just in all his dealings, and will be sadly missed by many. The writer knew Mr. Vey for over forty years and can testify to the above. MISSING BOYS SAFE.—Yesterday afternoon two boys, Daley and Callahan, went for a stroll over the Southside Hills and straying from the main road lost their bearings and proceeded south instead of coming towards the city. The little chaps, whose ages are 12 and 9 years, kept walking till early this morning, when they took a short rest. At daylight they were again on the move and to their great delight discovered they were in sight of the houses in Freshwater, and reached the home of Mr. Ennis at 8 o'clock this morning. The boys were tenderly cared for, given food and placed in bed. They will arrive this afternoon in Mr. Ennis's motor boat.

At Wesley Church.

Good congregations heard two excellent sermons yesterday from Rev. H. Toyle. In the morning from Romans, 1st chap, 20th verse: "For the invisible things of Him from the creation of the world are clearly seen"; and in the evening from 1st Kings, 18th chap, 30th verse: "The Test at Carmel.—Baal and his prophets versus The God of Israel and his servant Elijah.—'And the fire of the Lord fell and consumed the sacrifice.'" At the close of the sermon the pastor paid a very high and appreciative tribute to the memory of the late Hon. H. J. B. Woods, a Christian gentleman, considerate of others, earnest advocate for prohibition, the sanctity of the Lord's Day, foreign missions and the circulation of the Holy Bible. He had been probably a member of the Nfld. Methodist Conference for over forty years and was several times a delegate to the General Conference at Toronto, Winnipeg, Victoria and other Canadian cities. Our sister congregation at Cochrane Street had suffered the loss of a very useful man but he had gone to his reward and received the encomium "Well done, good and faithful servant." After the benediction the congregation remained standing with bowed heads while the organist Mr. Pratt rendered the "Dead March in Saul." Two east end gentlemen who took a very active interest in the erection of the new Wesley Church and gave handsome donations, have now passed away, Hon. J. S. Pitts, C.M.G., and the Hon. H. J. B. Woods, P.M.G.

Lucania Reaches port.

The auxiliary schr. Lucania, Capt. A. Norris, reached port this morning from Cadiz via St. Anthony, where she discharged her cargo of salt. The Lucania, it will be remembered, had considerable trouble in getting her crew on board prior to her sailing from this port on June 19th. The trip to Oporto was made in 15 days where she discharged her cargo of fish. Remaining a week she proceeded to Cadiz, which she left for home on August 1st, arriving at St. Anthony early last week and sailing from there on Sept. 2nd. High wind and heavy seas were encountered on the homeward trip, which prevented the ship from making better progress. This is Capt. Norris's first trip in command and also the first voyage of the Lucania across the herring pond.

Butcher Fined.

Food Inspector O'Brien had a butcher before court to-day for wrapping beef in paper that was unfit to put pure food in. After intimating that the Public Health Department should be represented by a lawyer in court, Judge Morris commented strongly on the use of improper paper to wrap food in, particularly fresh beef intended for human consumption, and said that the defendant was liable to a heavy fine, but in this case, in view of all the circumstances, a fine of $5 and costs was imposed.

The War Week by Week.

By OBSERVER.

Last week will be forever memorable for the entry of Roumania, which, while not for the present altering the aspect of the war, has added emphasis to its new direction. For some time to come the chief interest will be centred in the Balkan operations and the struggle in the Carpathians, which they will greatly affect. As a French authority says, the Saloniki front is the one front on which we are justified in looking for rapid and decisive events. For it differs from the West front in its broken character and the absence of the highly developed trench conditions; while successes for the Allied arms there anything similar to those of Brusiloff in Galicia and Bukovina would very quickly be followed by the complete subjugation of Bulgaria.

This may be confidently predicted in any case. The struggle has only just begun. The initial successes achieved by the Bulgarians, when they anticipated the offensive by attacks on both flanks, have first to be wiped off the slate. The Serbians, borne back at first south of Monastir, have now recovered themselves and made a stand, inflicting heavy losses on the attackers. There has been great preliminary artillery fighting in the centre, leading the way to the advance of the main army up the Vardar valley which will be the beginning of Bulgaria's undoing. At the eastern end of the line her occupation of Kavala and other Greek forts has led to the exasperation of the patriot portion of the Greek people, and it is likely that Greece will soon retaliate by declaring war on the invader. An advance by the Italians from Albania, and a threatened rear attack by Russians and Roumanians in concert, make up the formidable sum of Bulgaria's difficulties. They can only end in one way. Servia will have to be relinquished and Bulgaria's own territory will only be conserved to her by an early capitulation to the Allies on what terms she may be able to secure. Unable even to preserve peace with Roumania, she now sees herself almost encircled by armed foes immensely more powerful than herself and inspired as well by the hope of victory as by the memory of her treachery last autumn.

Roumania, as was to be expected, has struck promptly and with effect at Austria. Her troops have penetrated Transylvania along a surprisingly long front. The terrain is mostly mountainous and difficult, but Austria's dearth of men makes the campaign far easier and more formidable than it would be if she could sufficiently man her natural defences. Observers have made miscalculations in underestimating Germany's reserves, but events themselves have shown how far the process of blood-letting has gone in Austria. It may even lead to an early and utter collapse of her entire campaign. Brusiloff has co-ordinated his strategy with Roumania's and already gained a big victory in the Carpathians. Hungary is faced with the prospect of an invasion from both sides, more real and terrible than in the early months of the war. If it gathers force and makes way we shall be interested to observe its effect upon Lemberg and Von Bothmer's army in the north. We can see no logical outcome of the whole present position but a general retirement, to save not only Hungary but the Austrian army across the Carpathians and covering Lemberg. Such a retirement would have to be extended to include Kovel, so that its effect would spread to the whole German line and make any contemplated counter-advance from Riga out of the question.

Little has been reported from the Italian front, but there is every reason to believe that things are proceeding satisfactorily there. The Austrians are allowed no rest, for while General Cadorna is preparing the way for the descent upon Isonzo he has pushed the enemy further back in the Trentino, where matters are even assuming the nature of a serious threat to Trent. Both fields of operations are of great value under existing circumstances, for they keep busy a very large Austrian force which would otherwise be directed to the Roumanian border and the Carpathians.

The desperate tug-of-war continues on the West front and suits well the Allied strategy. If extensive gains are not registered the more valuable work is effected of bringing up constant reserves of Germans. The drive is held up mostly by the stubborn resistance of Thiepval. This village has held out from the beginning, the new British line branching off almost at right angles just south of it. But this has the effect of almost encircling the defenders and their resistance cannot be continued indefinitely. The French appear to be systematically on the offensive at Verdun, with the obvious purpose of pinning a large army there. Whether the report that Hindenburg is likely soon to abandon the Somme salient and so shorten his lines is founded upon indications from the front, or is a natural surmise since Roumania's entry, we cannot tell, but we are sceptical. Germany is not likely to make so patent an admission of defeat until driven to it. However that may be, Roumania's participation has added another and large front to defend, which is likely to be considerably extended by the defeat of Bulgaria.

The conjectures, therefore, of big changes in the German strategy are reasonable enough. The enemy will have to give ground somewhere; it will need a leader of unusual ability to decide where it had best be and how it is to be conducted. If Hungary is to be saved, Roumania must be stopped; if it is saved at the expense of the West, the first admission of defeat will have been made which is clear enough for all the world to read.

Farewell to Rev. Bro. Kennedy

Who is Remembered by Ex-Pupils—His Departure Regretted by His Grace Archbishop Roche.

Yesterday was a memorable day in the history of the B. I. S. Rooms, it being the occasion of a presentation to Rev. Bro. A. P. Kennedy, who left by last evening's express for New Rochelle, N. Y., where he has been appointed Master of Novices and one of the Counsellors of a new province for the direction of the Christian Brothers in North America.

At noon the ex-pupils of Bro. Kennedy met in the O'Donel Wing of St. Patrick's Hall. Mr. J. C. Pippy presided and in a brief but appropriate speech, paid an eloquent tribute to Bro. Kennedy's 33 years of incessant work in this country. He then read an illuminated address, herewith appended, and made the presentation of a splendid watch bearing the inscription:—

"To Rev. Bro. A. P. Kennedy, Souvenir from his ex-pupils of St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 3rd, 1916."

ADDRESS

To Reverend Brother A. P. Kennedy from His Ex-Pupils of St. John's, Newfoundland, on the Occasion of His Departure for New York.

Dear Brother Kennedy,— We, your ex-pupils, have had the pleasure of assembling around you on many joyous occasions, but to-day we meet you with sorrowful hearts to bid you a regretful farewell because of your promotion as a Counsellor to the province of North America. Whilst recognizing the distinguished honour which has been bestowed upon you, and whilst we are aware that you are worthy of the highest gifts at the disposal of your Superiors, we cannot but feel profound grief at this parting. Your exceptional ability as a Teacher, your wide knowledge of the educational requirements of the Colony, your valuable assistance and counsel in all matters pertaining to education, are too well known to need comment; and it is no exaggeration to say that Newfoundland is to-day sustaining an irreparable loss.

During the thirty-three years you have laboured in St. John's you have not only endeared yourself to the many pupils who have, under your masterly guidance, been so well equipped for life's battle, but you have also won the admiration and esteem of all classes and creeds in the community.

We shall miss your kindly greeting, your genial smile and your affectionate interest in our welfare, but our hearts will cherish the fondest remembrance of you, and our thoughts will often linger lovingly with you. As a mark of our esteem and a token of our affection we ask your acceptance of the accompanying gift. Good-bye, devoted Teacher, and faithful friend! May health and happiness be your portion until "The Great Superior" calls you to the everlasting reward promised to the good and faithful servant.

The recipient, who was deeply moved, made a fitting reply, in which he exhorted the fostering of Christian education. Out of the 33 years he had spent here, he did not have one unhappy day. He loved Newfoundland and the people within it and their memories would always be cherished by him. He closed by wishing his lifelong happiness and success. Hon. J. D. Ryan and J. L. Slattery, Esq., President and Vice-President of the B. I. S., respectively; Rev. Fr. Pippy, Rev. Bros. Ryan and Ennis and Mr. Justice Kent followed, regretting Bro. Kennedy's departure and reviewing his wonderful education achievements.

Before the gathering dispersed Chairman Pippy expressed the hope of Bro. Kennedy's return, incidentally mentioning that several of those present would study under him before joining the Christian Bros. Order. Cheers were then heartily given for Bro. Kennedy and Hurley, the latter having recently recovered from illness.

Included in the many references of regret received by Bro. Kennedy was the accompanying from His Grace Archbishop Roche:—

"Dear Bro. Kennedy,—It was with very deepest regret that I learned yesterday of your removal from St. John's to take up the important charge in connection with the foundation of your new province in the United States. Whilst I recognize your appointment to this responsible work is a very high compliment to yourself and to the Christian Brothers of Newfoundland, at the same time I cannot but be deeply sensible of the loss that we are sustaining by your departure. You have spent the greater part of your life in educational work in Newfoundland, and I feel that I ought to say to you on your departure that the Church fully recognizes your great work amongst us in the cause of Catholic education. You have been identified with every forward movement, and in our future educational work we shall sorely miss your ripe experience and your sound judgment. We shall follow with great interest your career in your new sphere of labor, and we shall cherish the hope that your separation from us may not be permanent. Should your superiors decide to allow your return you will meet with a cordial and warm welcome from the Church and people in Newfoundland. Assuring you of my very deep regret at your departure, and wishing you every blessing and success in the great work which you are about to take up."

His Lordship Bishop Power, of St. George's, wired:—"News a personal blow to me, I lose a friend, and Newfoundland one of its most unselfish benefactors. Sympathy to the Brothers."

Notes of regret were also received from Rev. Bro. J. E. Ryan, Victoria, B.C.; Very Rev. Dean Donnelly, Rt. Rev. Mons. Veitch and many other clergymen.

Last evening many ex-pupils and prominent citizens as well as Christian Brothers were at the Railway Station to bid Bro. Kennedy adieu.

Chapter of Accidents.

MAN SERIOUSLY HURT.

James Kennedy, a middle-aged man and a cooper by trade, was brought to the General Hospital in a serious condition early Saturday afternoon, having been run down by the Reid Newfoundland Company's express horse and vehicle at the eastern end of Gower Street. Mr. Kennedy had just finished his dinner and was on his way back to work on Signal Hill at the time. He is afflicted with deafness and consequently did not hear the team approach. He was struck in the back by the horse and knocked forcibly to the ground head foremost and then was dragged several yards by the wheel of the wagon. He was picked up in an unconscious state and bleeding profusely from the head, and conveyed to the Hospital in Mr. H. D. Reid's motor car and after treatment there came to. The victim's face all over was terribly battered though no bones were broken. His injuries could have been more serious, for if the wheel of the express had gone over his head he would have been killed outright. The patient is now doing well and his recovery is only a matter of time.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDE.

Two motor cars, owned by Mr. A. S. Rendell and Mr. H. Baird, respectively, were in collision at the junction of Bond and Prescott Streets on Saturday afternoon. Baird's car was going down Prescott Street and Rendell's car across Bond Street when the crash occurred. Mr. Baird's car was struck in a vital part by the other and badly wrecked, having to be taken to a garage for repairs, whilst Mr. Rendell's was only slightly damaged. None of the occupants were hurt.

BOY RUN OVER.

Bicycle riders should exercise a little discretion, particularly at night, as to the speed at which they travel, or there will certainly be disastrous results. On Saturday night a young man came down Military Road at a fast clip and when passing Rawlins' Cross ran down a boy before he could check the machine. Fortunately, the youth was not hurt, though he was badly frightened.

Fashions and Fads.

Fancy silks are in high favor. Satins increase in fashionableness. Shot silks are good in petticoats. Fur coats are made with a ripple flare. The new flat collars are in novelty shapes. Cloth-topped shoes are always attractive. Medium-brimmed hats have draped crowns. Front and side frills are immensely popular. Practically all the new suit collars fasten high. Skirts pleated all the way round are very smart. Beaded fringes are in favor for evening dresses. Separate coats are inclined to very large sleeves. The smaller the hat the more necessary the veil. A novel idea in millinery is the hat of striped felt. Pastel shades, with silver, are lovely for evening. All-over floral patterns are seen on veils for autumn.

HUGHES IN COLORADA.

I sat with Charles on a peak that overlooked the Thompson gorge; he was so thrilled he could only say, "By George!" The abyss spread for leagues below, a fissure scooped out by the gods, and we could see the tourists go, on errands vain, to spend their wards. The sinking sun's expiring beams the canon stained with gold and red, and I was lost in noble dreams, when Charles raised his voice and said: "Man's whiskers are a precious boon, awarded by divine decree, and he is but a thoughtless loon who'd shave them off with snickersnee. I hold it sinfully unwise to stain one's whiskers brown or black, with chemicals or any dyes compounded by immoral quack. If all the money spent for shaves were used to swell poor widows' means, those 'rid' we now would cleave the waves in their own private submarines." The voices of the birds were weird, strange whistles issued from the trees, and through the statesman's germ-proof beard there blew a chilly mountain breeze.

Your Boys and Girls.

To amuse a child who is slightly ill or kept indoors by storm get out the encyclopedia and turn to the pages of flags printed in various colors. Show the child the page and suggest that you both try to make some flags in the colors shown. When I tried it with great success I found I had some scraps of saffron and cambric left over from fancy work which served the purpose admirably. Of course any other material would do, and even colored paper pasted on the background of the flag, would do all right. The most used colors are red, white and blue, which will not only make our own flag but are used also in the merchant flag of Germany, the ensign of France and in several others. Yellow and Green are the colors next most commonly used.

Even fur coats will show something of the new medieval fashions. Mulberry is one of the most liked colors for dark wists.

LONDON, Aug. 31.

LONDON LIFE IN THE
The coming of the third year of the war has brought strange experiences have even by us who have never seen the outside covers of magazines. The man who was once a Zepplin gunner, Lane, was really talking effect. It was not really content from what he expected, not really going up Fettes, malignity and the stupidity of the bombing of small houses, murdering of women who were unexpected, but after barbarities of the German nothing of the antique horror of poison-gas into warfare. The detail that even the strongest Germans had not expected years ago we did not credit would immediately be flushed and that the outside of London life—the theatre, the shops, smart men, cigars, boating up the river, as usual (up to the other side) dancing in the afternoon would not have been so long ago into something so shabby.

An Epidemic of Games.

By RUTH CAMERON.

In our neighborhood lately we have had an epidemic of simple games. It all started on a week-end house party. The weather (as usual this spring) was had and some one had an inspiration to bring, besides the inevitable bridge paraphernalia, a small collection of the games we used to play years ago.

In the middle of a drizzly afternoon, just when everyone was beginning to get a bit bored, he produced them, and you can't imagine what a diversion they created.

Those Energetic Males.
The two most energetic males left off some of their superfluous energy at ping-pong.

Four more sat down to parchesi and became children again over that foolish, funny, fascinating old game. An Entertaining Game For Two.

Two sat down to go-bang, which, on the chance it didn't enter your childhood, I will explain, consists of a contest to get five counters in a row first. It sounds simple but has almost as much science as checkers.

In the evening we all had an amusing game of letters.

We had three rainy days in succession, and before we went home, everyone blessed the man who brought the games.

The aftermath was equally interesting.

How The Virus Took.
We are having a running tournament of go-bang among the members of the family this summer.

One of the guests wrote us that she had started a parchesi tournament at the Inn where she stopped.

Still another introduced the good old game of letters to her family, and it has given bridge a rest with them.

Of course all these diversions are more or less childlike, but who doesn't enjoy being childlike once in awhile? They are simple, inexpensive, amusing entertainment and as such I call your attention to them.

Incidentally, I want to say a word about games and children.

What Games Do For Children.
Games are a great educational force. They amuse and at the same time train the mind.

I cannot understand the parents who do not play games with their children. In our home life the evening game with the grown-ups, and perhaps my beloved uncle, used to be one of the brightest spots.

Games teach concentration, they cultivate alertness and stimulate ambition and the competitive spirit.

Of course there are dangers in this latter quality, but rightly directed it is a great force, and naturally the wise parent will see that it is properly held in check by the spirit of the game, the spirit that teaches the child to be a modest winner and a good loser.

Vitagraph Co. Sues Ford For a Million.

Papers Served on Automobile Manufacturer for His Criticism of Film Advertisement is Quoted—“The Battle Cry of Peace” Damaged Complaint Says, by Charge That Millions Men Backed It.

Henry Ford, automobile manufacturer and peace advocate, was yesterday served with papers in the $1,000,000 damage suit brought against him in the Supreme Court of New York by the Vitagraph Company of America.

In the complaint, which is dated June 20, 1916, and since when efforts have been made to summon Mr. Ford, the Vitagraph Company alleges that the automobile manufacturer on May 5, “caused to be published in not less than 250 newspapers published in the United States and circulated broadcast throughout the United States and Canada, and elsewhere, an article entitled ‘Humanity and Sanity,’ in which he charged in substance that the general agitation then prevailing in this country for preparedness and defence of this country against foreign invasion was due to the efforts of munitions manufacturers to promote their selfish interests, and that ‘The Battle Cry of Peace,’ a film manufactured and produced by the plaintiff at great expense, to wit, $250,000, more or less was inspired by one Hudson Maxim, a manufacturer of munitions of war, in the interests of munition manufacturers for the personal and selfish gain and interest of said Maxim, and others interested with him in the manufacture and sale of munitions.”

Then followed a copy of the advertisement, the offending paragraph of which read:

“The Battle Cry of Maxim. ‘Have you seen that awful moving picture, ‘The Battle Cry of Peace?’ ‘Did you shake with fear and tremble for your country's safety?’ ‘Did you know that others were shaking at the same time, but with laughter at your fear, and with joy over the fat contracts your fear might bring them?’

“On the screen you were told that the play was founded on the story of Hudson Maxim, ‘Defenceless America.’ You saw Mr. Maxim in the picture. He was holding something aloft. It was an instrument of warfare.”

“Now, Mr. Maxim was merely advertising his goods and playing on your fears to make a market for his goods.”

“Mr. Maxim has something to sell—war munitions.”

The Vitagraph Company follows the copy of the advertisement by its specific complaint which is, “that the charge made in said article by the defendant was made and tended to convey to the public the impression that the said moving picture, ‘The Battle Cry of Peace,’ was produced by the plaintiff and in the interest of the said Hudson Maxim.”

Further the complaint says that “the charge made in said articles was meant to and tended to convey the impression to the public ‘that the plaintiff was wilfully, wickedly, and maliciously attempting to inspire in the public mind the belief that this country stood in great danger in the event of an invasion by a foreign foe by reason of its inadequate army and navy and its inability to successfully resist invasion, and that this plaintiff did this from ignoble, dishonest, dishonorable, and treasonable motives.”

The record of the Vitagraph Company is then given and the allegation made that “the defamatory article published by the defendant has to a great extent injured the reputation and plaintiff's business.”

In conclusion the complaint says “by reason of the publication of the aforesaid words and matter by the said defendant, that plaintiff has been greatly injured in its good name, fame and credit, and brought into public obloquy and disrepute throughout the United States of America and Canada, and elsewhere to its damage in the sum of $1,000,000.”

“Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment against the defendant for the sum of $1,000,000, together with the costs and disbursements of this action.”

William A. Ulman, an attorney of 233 Broadway, is acting for J. Stuart Blackton, Vice President of the Vitagraph Company. Commodore Blackton said last night that he had sued Mr. Ford “because his false and malicious allegations have injured both my reputation and my business. I am bitterly opposed to his pacifist views,” he added, “and think that his propagandist is working damage and injury to this country, but I do not print false statements and page advertisements stating that he is assuming his present spineless attitude for the purpose of increasing the sale of Ford cars. I wrote and produced ‘The Battle Cry of Peace’ to further the interests of practical preparedness.”

“The accusation that the munitions interests are responsible for the picture is absolutely without foundation.”—N. Y. Times.

SPORTING DUCHESS AT THE NICKEL.
There is another magnificent programme at the Nickel Theatre to-day. The pictures, as is always the case, have been carefully selected and are certain to afford satisfaction and pleasure to all. The Lubin Company presents the charming artists Rose Coughlan and Ethel Clayton in a powerful five act social drama entitled: “The Sporting Duchess.” This picture is adapted from the famous play of the same name by Cecil Raleigh. It abounds in beautiful settings and talented acting. “The Strange Case of Mary Page” will be continued, and there will be other pleasing films. The Nickel is the great attraction these days every one likes to go there.

AT THE CRESCENT.
Lloyd V. Hamilton, the funniest man in the movies, and Bud Duncan, appear at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day in “Ham Takes a Chance,” a laugh from start to finish. The Lubin Company presents a powerful feature in three reels: “Sold to Satan” with L. C. Shumway and E. Sloman. A beautiful scenic and instructive picture is the “Petritied Forest near Adamano, Arizona.” Mr. Sam Rose, baritone, sings “Yauka Hula Hickey Dula,” the latest song hit from the Broadway Musical Comedy, “Robinson Crusoe Jr.” Professor McCarthy presides at the piano playing a programme of the latest music including “A Poet's Vision,” waltz, “Big Ben,” “Ragtime March,” etc. etc. This big show costs no more, take it in.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, Aug. 14th, 1916.
LONDON LIFE IN THE WAR.

The coming of the third year of war reminds one that ages of new and strange experiences have been passed even by us who have never left England and that it is impossible without a great deal of thought and verification to perceive the difference between the then and now in the two years of war-time that ended on August 3rd. But although nearly everything is really changed, we are surprised not by what has happened but rather by what has not happened. The most extraordinary apparition of the war in London, for instance, has been the Zeppelin, but we knew that there were Zeppelins, and when we saw one caught in the searchlights, like a huge silver cigar in the black skies, we recognised how like it was to pictures on the outside covers of sensational magazines. The man who said "Nothing will ever astonish me again; I have seen a Zeppelin going up Fetter Lane," was really talking rather for effect. It was not really very different from what he expected, and it was not really going up Fetter Lane. The malignity and the stupid barbarity of the bombing of small houses and the murdering of women and children were unexpected, but after the first barbarities of the Germans in Belgium nothing of the antique horrors of warfare was unlikely. The introduction of poison-gas into warfare was the one detail that even the strongest critic of the Germans had not expected. Two years ago we did not expect that credit would immediately be re-established and that the outside surface of London life—the theatres, the restaurants, the shops, smart clothes, good cigars, boating up the river, motoring as usual (up to the other day), even dancing in the afternoon at hotels—would not have been worn through long ago into something grimmer and sabbier.

CHANGED STREETS.

We are in August, the dull season of ordinary years. Yet twenty-five theatres, opera-houses, and large music-halls in West London are open, and new plays are coming on. Eleven of the productions are revues. One daily paper has disappeared, but on the other hand two Sunday picture-papers have boomed forth and flourished in

A Frightful Death! Suffocated in Asthma Attack.

Every sufferer from asthma knows the terror, the abject fear that overcomes them when struggling for breath. The old-fashioned remedies may relieve, but never cure. Best results come from Catarrhoxone, which cures asthma after hope is abandoned. It's because Catarrhoxone kills the asthma germ that it cures. Choking spells and labored breathing are relieved, suffocating sensations and loss of breath are cured. Every trace of asthma is driven from the system, and even old chronics experience immediate relief and lasting cure. Equally good for bronchitis, throat trouble and catarrh. The large one dollar outfit includes the Inhaler and lasts two months, sold by all dealers or from the Catarrhoxone Co., Kingston, Canada.

ONE WHITE SUIT.

I saw an old gentleman in a white suit walk through the Embankment Gardens. The asphalt underfoot was beginning to ooze up, and every bench was crowded with hot and weary people. On one you saw three War Office characters, on the next two staff officers with faces nearly the colour of their red tabs. Even the Australian soldiers had the sleeves of their blouse tunics rolled up. Yet the old man in white looked quite cool and happy. I wish more of us had courage to imitate him. But every morning we tell ourselves that it may turn cold and rainy before night, and for this not unnatural pessimism about the weather we suffer all day. By "we" I mean male London. The female portion is now all in summer attire, save for the ponderous old woman who comes up from the East End to see the captured submarine, arraying themselves for the journey in antique black finery. Even in the House of Commons, which usually leads the way, male dress is little altered from what it was during the rigours of June. T. P. O'Connor wore a Panama, and that was about the only tribute to summer.

MY LADY'S VICTORIA.

The petrol shortage has one happy result. As a setting for a pretty woman and a well-chosen toilette, the victoria is infinitely more effective than the motor; and since the restrictions came in a number of ladies who are spending August in town are seen taking the air in victorias or barouches. In consequence the decorative aspect of the Park and Bond Street is much increased, and it is once more worth while for connoisseurs of feminine charm and habiliments to expand a pony on a garden chair at Hyde Park Corner or Stanhope Gate on a fine afternoon. The Park looks so like what it was in the latter days of Queen Victoria that it makes elderly habitues feel happier and more at home than they have felt for years.

NON-ALCOHOLIC PUBLIC HOUSES.

State restrictions on the sale of alcohol have given the National People's Palaces Association an opportunity for further successful experiment with the non-alcoholic public-houses. Oxford is the venue of the latest venture of the association, and after four weeks' trial Miss Graham Hope assures me that it is quite a success. Three different types of restaurant are provided. Working men may bring their own diners with them, purchasing only liquid refreshment. The shop restaurant, on the ground floor, is rather after the style of the old-fashioned public-house, with high-backed pews giving privacy to family parties or friends. The women's restaurant and tea-room have been specially designed to meet the need for rest and refreshment on the part of munition workers and bus and tram conductors. Lathing arrangements are excellent, payment being according to time. Sometimes a working mother will bring the whole family with her and scrub the lot for the minimum charge. Encouraged by the experiments at Highbury and Oxford, Miss Graham Hope states that the association is arranging to open a third "people's palace" in the Euston Road, the center of three important railway termini in London. "We are learning what can be done," she said, "and what is the popular need. After what they have been accustomed to, something new on these lines must be provided for the soldiers when they return." Proposals for further "palaces" are under consideration and will be dealt with as resources permit.

SHORTAGE OF CIVILIANS' BOOTS.

While the heavy demands of the Government upon our own army and the armies of the Allies will affect the supply of footwear for adult civilians, the possibility of a "famine" in boots and shoes for children is considerably greater. It is easy to manufacture a reduced stock of the larger sizes when there is a slackening in the making of service boots, but the production of boys' boots is a distinct operation requiring more preparation, and, in many cases, different varieties of leather. Already there is a shortage of certain sizes of footwear for youngsters, and there is little prospect of an improvement in this respect. Prices for all varieties of civilian boots, which are already much higher than before the war, are likely to be further increased in the near future, and the quality is very inferior.

GERMAN BUSINESS CIRCLES AND FRIGHTFULNESS.

A gentleman who is interested in British industry on a large scale suggested to me on August 3rd that when the war comes to an end there may be serious trouble between the German Admiralty and Germans who are engaged in business. When the alleged naval strategists of the "Fatherland" embark upon some new campaign of frightfulness they invariably make it appear as if they have been induced to do so by popular clamour. When the submarine piracies against merchant ships began the world was led to believe that Teuton shipowners, and not the naval authorities, were at the back of it. Similarly a day or two before the first of the latest Zeppelin raids a signed statement was published in German newspapers calling for air raids on the United Kingdom. It may be, of course, that German shipowners approve the policy of torpedoing merchant ships and fishing boats, Incandescent Gas Lighting.

The remarkable economy of the incandescent gas lamp is by no means either its chief—or even an important—claim for popularity. It meets better than any other source of artificial light the requirements of ideal light. In the color of the light produced it is far superior to any other illuminant in general and universal use. The investigations of acknowledged authorities indicate that for the approximation of artificial daylight the gas mantle has at least one and one-half times the value of the carbon-filament electric lamp. This quality is highly desirable, indeed absolutely essential where the approximation of daylight color values is important. For lighting shops, displaying haberdashery, suitings, gowns, millinery, etc., the incandescent gas lamp is not even remotely approached by any other incandescent lamp.

Of all the manifold advantages of gas light, perhaps the most important is its favourable effect upon the eyes. The development of the incandescent electric lamp with its intense brilliant and glaring filament has been accompanied by hitherto unheard-of prevalence of eye troubles and diseases which are forcing themselves upon the attention of the medical fraternity. This is resulting in a greater appreciation of the soft mellow quality of gas light and is rapidly enlarging its field of use.—July 23, 1916.

GOOD WORK FOR SICK WOMEN

The Woman's Medicine Has Proved Its Worth.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies were first introduced, their curative powers were doubted and had to be proved. But the proof came, and gradually the use of them spread over the whole country. Now that hundreds of thousands of women have experienced the most beneficial effects from the use of these medicines, their value has become generally recognized, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard medicine for women. The following letter is only one of the thousands on file in the Pinkham office, at Lynn, Mass., proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an article of great merit as shown by the results it produces. Anamosa, Iowa.—"When I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered with a displacement, and my system was in a general run-down condition. I would have the headache for a week and my back would ache so bad when I would bend down I could hardly straighten up. My sister was sick in bed for two months and doctored, but did not get any relief. She saw an advertisement of your medicine and tried it and got better. She told me what it had done for her, and when I had taken only two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my head began to feel better. I continued its use and now I don't have any of those troubles."—Mrs. L. J. HANNAN, R.F.D. 1, Anamosa, Iowa.

and German steelmakers the dropping of bombs on "the ice-cold haberdashers" and other people who inhabit the United Kingdom. In that case British business men will know how to act when peace terms are under discussion. There are, however, shrewd men on this side of the North Sea who believe that many German manufacturers and traders have very little sympathy with the German Navy Department's frightfulness, and they look accordingly for considerable friction between the business men and the alleged strategists of the German Empire when the war comes to an end.

AUTUMN COLOURS.

The question of autumnal colours is beginning to occupy the close attention of the organizers of the fashion programme, and, except for the necessity to introduce some useful rival to the popular but scarce navy blue, there is little indication of dye difficulties in the colour card for the coming months. As a rival to navy, the very dark shade of green approximating to black which is known as "bottle green" is to have an autumn future. According to present plans, the extraordinary popularity of the tete de negre is to be transferred to the summer. The dark shades which have been in great favour throughout the summer are to appear in new editions, one of the comparative novelties being a pretty soft rose shade joining in the suggestive name of ashes of roses. Pewter grey is another of the autumn shades, and a great vogue is predicted by those who know for a whole class of shades known sometimes as neutral and sometimes as suede colours. Antelope, beige, mole, mushroom, putty, and champagne all come under this description. These are the autumnal colours, but just at the moment the West End showrooms have broken into an orgy of bright lemon and amber tints. Combined with black, these yellow shades are very striking, and quite dominate the millinery and sports coats displays.

HONOUR FOR NEWFOUNDLAND PREMIER.

Before the Newfoundland battalion of the Canadian force proceeded to France it had its headquarters near Ayr, and that burgh has resolved to commemorate the occasion by conferring its freedom upon the Prime Minister of our senior colony. Sir Edward Morris has just returned to London from visiting the front and inspecting the contingent, and the ceremony will take place this month. Sir Edward, who already possesses the freedom of several British cities, found the Newfoundlanders in splendid form after their gallant attack during the opening phase of the offensive on the Somme, and eager to give the enemy a further proof of their loyalty to the Empire.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Mother when is the proper time to send flowers to a funeral and what should I write on the card?" asked May. "Flowers may be sent any time before the funeral, only be careful to have them arrive several hours before the service, as it is most desirable to have florists' boxes coming in at the last moment." "The card alone is sufficient. You may pencil 'with sincere sympathy, however, if you like,' answered her mother.

WITLESS BAY GARDEN PARTY.—A number of people from the city went out on Saturday evening's train to attend the Garden Party in aid of the parish at Witless Bay which took place yesterday afternoon. About 250 others left town yesterday and helped by their presence to make the day a financial success.

IN FOR SUPPLIES.—The banking schooner Marjorie McGlashen arrived here yesterday from the Banks for supplies. She hauls for 1,800 quintals which she has on board now, and landed 1,200 qts altogether early in the season. The schr. F. M. Toko, Capt. Corkum, also came in from sea yesterday for salt. She has 200 qts of fish on board now. Her total catch to date is 2,000 qts. Capt. Corkum reports stormy weather, though fish plentiful.

GALLIOLI AND FRANCE VETERANS RETURN.—By this afternoon's express Lieut. Ernest Churchill, Lieut. W. Max Churchill, two brothers, Sergt. Nugent and Pte. Waugh will arrive on furlough after seeing active service in Gallipoli and France. They will be met at the railway station by the Ladies' Patriotic Reception Committee and taken in automobiles to Government House where, in the absence of His Excellency the Governor Sir Joseph Otonbridge will extend to the soldiers a hearty welcome home.

Here and There.

ORPHANAGE COLLECTION.—The annual collection for Belvidere Orphanage was taken up in all the R. C. Churches of the city yesterday morning. The aggregate amount received was over $2,000, or more than $200 in excess of last year. The total was $2,056.77 and made up as follows:—Cathedral, $1,364.85; St. Patrick's, $541.40; Mount Cashel, $40.00; Logy Bay, $11.00; Littledale, $20.82; St. Joseph's, $33.90; Kilbride, $35.50.

MEIGLE FROM LABRADOR.—The S.S. Meigle, Capt. Tavor, reached port at 9.30 p.m. on Saturday from the Labrador Mail Service, bringing a large quantity of whale oil, cod oil, and fish in drums, most of which was discharged at Job's premises yesterday and the balance at the dry dock stores. Last night at 11 p.m. she sailed for Sydney and will load coal for this port. Capt. Tavor reports fish plentiful at several places on the southern part of the Labrador coast. Trawls and hook and liners were doing well, but were somewhat hampered in their operations by unfavourable weather conditions, thick fog prevailing all along the coast. The Meigle brought 38 passengers who were landed at Carboner and Harbor Grace.

Girls Leave Home.

Last evening at the railway station hundreds of people assembled on the platform to witness the departure of the cross country express. Some of the number were saying farewell to relatives and friends, but the majority, attracted more by curiosity than anything else, gathered around a second class passenger car, in which forty girls, whose ages varied from 17 to 21 years, were starting on a long and tiresome journey to Montreal. The party was in charge of a Mrs. Francis representing an organization in Montreal whose business is to secure domestic help for homes in that city and other places in Canada. Prior to the war this business was carried on from the big cities of England, Ireland and Scotland, but owing to the high wages paid, and the demand for woman help in the munition factories in those parts, girls could not be induced to leave home. The terms under which the girls are engaged are the advance of the transportation fares which have to be returned to the organization in monthly payments till such time as the debt is paid. Many of the girls belonged to comfortable homes in the city, and while we know nothing of the homes they are going to, it does not appear necessary for girls of such tender years, inexperienced in the ways of big cities, to leave their Island Home to seek employment.

ATHENS, To-day. The French flag to-day was hoisted on four German and three Austrian merchant ships in the harbor of Piraeus.

ENTENTE POWERS PRESENT NOTE TO GREECE.

ATHENS, To-day. The representatives at Athens of Britain and France last evening presented to the Greek Government a note demanding control over the Greek ports and telegraphs, and insisting on the deportation from Greece of the agents of the Central Powers. The note reads as follows: By order of their Governments the undersigned Ministers of France and Britain have the honor to bring the following communication to the attention of the Greek Government. First, the two Allied Governments, having from a sure source learned that their enemies receive information in divers ways and notably through the agency of Greek telegraphs, demand control of the posts and telegraphs, including the wireless system. Second, the enemy agents employed in corruption and espionage must immediately leave Greece, not to return until the cessation of hostilities. Third, necessary measures have been (?) taken against such Greek subjects as rendered themselves guilty of complicity in the above mentioned corruption and espionage. The note formed the subject of a conference between Constantine and Zaimis and Dr. Streit, former Foreign Minister. It is understood there will be no objection on the part of the Greek Government to an acceptance of the Anglo-French demands.

ENTENTE PREPAREDNESS IN GREECE.

ATHENS, To-day. Ships of the Entente fleet sank a German sub this morning off Phaleron. It was claimed by the Entente military officers that the undersea boat received its supplies from the Austrian and German ships which were seized in the harbor of Piraeus yesterday by French sailors. A number of destroyers of the Entente fleet made a careful reconnaissance in the neighborhood of the arsenal yesterday afternoon. They put down submarine nets and nosed close to where the Lemnos and Killis, formerly the United States battleships Mississippi and Idaho, were lying. It is believed here that the Entente fleet desires to establish a naval base at Piraeus as a base of supplies for the Entente Allied armies' west wing on the Macedonian front, which could be more easily supplied by rail from Piraeus than from Salonika. Should this action prove to be of military value to the Entente Powers the Greek Government, it is understood, will not object to the seizure of the Austrian and German merchant ships at Piraeus. The occupation by Entente troops of the Greek wireless station on Friday, threw the Austro-German residents of Athens, especially the agents of the German Government, into a panic. Towards midnight newsboys shouting "Extras" in the street, attracted the employees of Baron Von Schenk, Director of the German propaganda in Greece, from the hotels in their night clothes to learn the facts. The fact that it was impossible to communicate with their home Government by wireless telegraph added to their consternation. Diplomats of the Entente Allies demanded that Baron Von Schenk and 60 co-workers in the employ of the Central Empire be expelled from Greece. Several arrests have already been made, and these taken into custody, including the officers of the interned Austrian and German ships. Von Schenk is believed to have escaped.

SHACKLETON EFFECTS RESCUE.

PUNTA ARENAS, To-day. Lieut. Shackleton has rescued the members of his Antarctic expedition who were marooned on Elephant Island. Shackleton returned here today with his men safe and well on board the rescue ship Yelcho.

GREAT PROGRESS ON THE SOMME.

PARIS, To-day. The villages of Forest and Clercy Sur Somme and all the German positions between those two points have been captured by a French and British joint attack after intense artillery preparation. More than 2,000 prisoners, as well as 13 cannon and 50 machine guns were taken. An official issued by the War Office last night making this announcement reported progress for the French troops in the neighborhood of Fleury with the capture of 500 prisoners.

ROMANIAN PROGRESS.

advance of our troops continues successfully in all directions. The railway stations at Orsova are under the fire of our artillery. Our losses slight.

VICTORY FOR RUSSIANS.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Furious battles are being fought by the Russian and Austro-German forces near Ziochoff and Halicz to the east and southeast of Lemberg in Galicia, according to to-day's Russian official. South of Rafaiow in the Carpathians in the region of Dorna Vetra on the Bukovina-Romanian border, Russian troops, the announcement says, have driven the Teutons from fortified positions, and captured several heights, taking 300 prisoners.

GREECE FAVORING THE ENTENTE.

PARIS, To-day. The Ministers of the Entente Powers at Athens assured Premier Zaimis that the Entente naval demonstration was not directed against Greece, telegrams the Athens correspondent to the Havas News Agency. The correspondent adds, the Entente Powers aim to protect themselves from the actions of foreigners who are their enemies and acting against them. The adjournment of the elections was decided in accord with the Entente Powers, whose assurances tranquilized the capital. A development of opinion in favor of the Entente Powers is spreading over the entire kingdom.

AIR RAID INEFFECTIVE.

LONDON, To-day. Thirteen Zeppelin airships took part in a raid over the eastern counties last night. The following communication was issued by the Field Marshal, Commander-in-Chief of the Home Forces yesterday afternoon: Inquiries show that the casualties and damages caused by the air raid last night were quite disproportionate to the number of ships employed. The number of casualties which have been reported are as follows: Killed, one man, one woman; injured 11 men and women, two children. No casualties occurred in the metropolitan police district. Latest reports show that in the metropolitan police district 25 houses and some out buildings were slightly damaged, two water mains cut and three horses killed. Elsewhere damage was very slight. A certain number of cottages were damaged, as well as a church, while fire occurred at some gas works. There was no military damage of any sort. The measures taken for the reduction and obscuration of lights proved most efficacious, for the raiding squadrons, instead of steering a steady course as in the raids of the spring and last autumn, groped about in the darkness looking for a safe avenue to approach their objectives. Three air ships only were able to approach the outskirts of London. One of them appeared over the northern district about 2.15 this morning, where she was picked up by searchlights and heavily engaged by anti-aircraft guns and aeroplanes. After a few minutes the airship was seen to burst into flames and fall rapidly to earth. The ship was destroyed and the wreckage and engines-half burned, the bodies of the crew being found at Curley near Enfield. Experts hope to reconstruct certain portions of the framework. The large amount of wood employed in the framework of the Zeppelin is startling, and would seem to point to a shortage of aluminum in Germany. The other two ships which approached London were driven off by the defenses without being able to approach the centre of the city. A great number of bombs were dropped over the east Anglian and southeast counties, but complete reports as to casualties and damage have not yet been received. Those in hand indicate that the damage and loss of life will not be heavy, considering the number of ships engaged, a great number of the bombs dropped having fallen either into the sea or in the remote country districts. A full statement of the casualties will be issued tomorrow.

GENERAL WAR REVIEW.

LONDON, To-day.

A combined attack by the French and British forces on the Somme front on Sunday resulted in an important gain of ground between the villages of Forest and Clercy, which lie south of Combes and east of Maurepas over an extent of nearly four miles. The French, while the British captured part of the village of Ginchy and gained total possession of Guilleumont. Thus the advance of the Allies is closing in on Combes which at present is a powerfully fortified German stronghold. In the various attacks launched by the British and French upwards of 2,000 prisoners were taken together with a large number of guns. The artillery action prior to the infantry attacks was of great intensity along the Forest-Clercy sector, while both British and French inaugurated further attacks at various other points. German positions east of the village of Fleury were also overrun by the French, who carried several trenches and organized works. The Germans returned to their attacks in the Verdun sector, sending large forces of infantry against the French positions at Vaux and Chapire, and after heavy fighting gaining a foothold in one of the French salients. At points apparently the fighting continues with the utmost ferocity. In the Balkans German-Bulgarian troops have already crossed the Dobruja frontier of southeastern Rumania, doubtless with the object of preventing the advance of the Russians through that territory into Bulgaria, possibly to Constantinople. Furious battles are in progress between the Russian and Austro-German forces in Galicia east and southeast of Lemberg. Berlin reports the repulse of the Russians, but Petrograd declares the Teutons have been driven from fortified positions and several heights have been captured. The shooting down of a Zeppelin, one of the large number of German raiders on the east coast of England, caused much enthusiasm among the British, because of the indication thus given of the efficacy of the air defenses protecting London. The airships, although they dropped many bombs, did very little damage. Unofficial reports from the Greek capital intimate an early announcement of an important change in the attitude of Greece.

GREECE ACCEDS TO DEMANDS.

LONDON, To-day. The Greek Government at Athens has accepted the demands of the Entente Powers in their entirety. The agents of the French and British Governments are to-day taking over control of the postal and telegraphic communications.

CONSTANTINE'S VIEW OF IT.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to the Times from Athens states that King Constantine has informed the Entente Allied Ministers that he is not inclined to reconsider Greek policy, notwithstanding Rumania's entry into the war.

New Buildings for St. Francis Xavier's.

Antigonish, N.S., Sept. 1st, 1916. The contract for the erection of the new Library Building of St. Francis Xavier's College, Antigonish, was let to-day to John J. Grant, Contractor and Builder, of New Glasgow, N.S. This splendid fire-proof structure of brick, stone and steel has been made possible by a generous subscription from a friend whose name we are not permitted to mention, and by the splendid generosity of supporters of St. Francis Xavier's College, clerical and lay. A friend of the Institution had offered $15,000 towards the new Gymnasium provided the College could raise $25,000 for a Library building. The College authorities appealed to their friends and received at once a hearty response. St. Francis Xavier's was not going to lose any $15,000 if it could be helped. In a very short time, more than half the money had come in and the new buildings were assured. The plans for the Gymnasium are now being prepared, and will be ready within a few days. This building will be a two-storey structure in brick and stone, 100 ft. long by 50 ft. wide, modelled after the Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium in Boston, one of the most up to date buildings of its kind. The contract will be let as soon as the plans and specifications are ready. Mr. John McNeil, of the McNeil Bros. Builders, has arrived in Antigonish, and will assist in getting the buildings started. This makes the fifth new building in five years for St. Francis Xavier's.

New Buildings for St. Francis Xavier's.

Antigonish, N.S., Sept. 1st, 1916. The contract for the erection of the new Library Building of St. Francis Xavier's College, Antigonish, was let to-day to John J. Grant, Contractor and Builder, of New Glasgow, N.S. This splendid fire-proof structure of brick, stone and steel has been made possible by a generous subscription from a friend whose name we are not permitted to mention, and by the splendid generosity of supporters of St. Francis Xavier's College, clerical and lay. A friend of the Institution had offered $15,000 towards the new Gymnasium provided the College could raise $25,000 for a Library building. The College authorities appealed to their friends and received at once a hearty response. St. Francis Xavier's was not going to lose any $15,000 if it could be helped. In a very short time, more than half the money had come in and the new buildings were assured. The plans for the Gymnasium are now being prepared, and will be ready within a few days. This building will be a two-storey structure in brick and stone, 100 ft. long by 50 ft. wide, modelled after the Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium in Boston, one of the most up to date buildings of its kind. The contract will be let as soon as the plans and specifications are ready. Mr. John McNeil, of the McNeil Bros. Builders, has arrived in Antigonish, and will assist in getting the buildings started. This makes the fifth new building in five years for St. Francis Xavier's.

Italy and the Balkans. The military aspects of the Italian participation in the Allied operations in the Balkans are of minor importance now. It is interesting to note that to the huge army of Serbia, French, British and Colonial troops there is now added an Italian contingent, but knowing nothing of its numbers, it is impossible to discuss the effect it will have in the general campaign. On the political side, however, the arrival of Italian troops in the Balkans has a real meaning. We do not know in what fashion the Allies, by their agreements divided the Balkan East. We do know that Serbia is to be restored and that Russia is to be assured the possession of Valina, Scutari and perhaps a part of Northern Epirus, which may remain in Greek hands, but the question of Asia Minor remains open. The best information that has come from Europe indicates that Italy will be permitted at the end of the war to hold the island of Rhodes and the surrounding group, which she has temporarily during the war. But all of this is equally authoritative asserted that the Allied banner includes the possession of Smyrna on the coast from the Gulf of Adria to Jaffa by France. Italy, France, Russia and Britain have unquestionably agreed to see the Eastern Question in such a fashion that Austria and Germany are permanently to be excluded from the Balkans. They have agreed that Serbia shall have Bosnia, Herzegovina, the coast of Dalmatia, south of the Narenta, and a corner of Albania. It is certain, if Montenegro is to be excluded from part of Macedonia, that all of this is in the hands of Italy; therefore, if Italy is unable to claim a share in the Eastern estate she will have to claim on the basis of her participation in the campaign that definitively drove the Teutons out of Europe. It will not be surprising if Italy occupies Greece, Trieste; even her possession of the Ionian will not count; it is a matter of course that the decision will be hers. The thing to be remembered is that Europe is not now taking place in a systematic attempt to abolish German influence outside of the frontiers. The economic and the Allies aims at making a

Italy and the Balkans

The military aspects of the Italian participation in the Allied operations in the Balkans are of minor importance now. It is interesting to know that the huge army of Serbs, French, British and Colonial troops there is now added an Italian contingent, but, knowing nothing of its numbers, it is impossible to discuss the effect it will have in the general campaign.

On the political side, however, the arrival of Italian troops in the Balkans has a real meaning. We do not know in what fashion the Allies have by their agreements divided the Near East. We do know that Serbia is to be restored and that Russia is to have the city of Constantinople and both shores of the Straits, if the Allies win. We can assume that Italy has been assured the possession of Valona, a protectorate over all Albania, save for Scutari and perhaps a part of Northern Epirus, which may remain in Greek hands, but the question of Asia Minor remains open.

The best information that has come from Europe indicates that Italy will be permitted at the end of the war to hold the island of Rhodes and the surrounding group, which she occupied "temporarily" during the Tripolitan War. But it is equally authoritative asserted that the Allied bargain includes the possession of Smyrna and the Aegean coast of Asia Minor by Italy and the occupation of Syria and the coast from the Gulf of Alexandretta to Jaffa by France.

Italy, France, Russia and Britain have unquestionably agreed to settle the Eastern Question in such a fashion that Austria and Germany shall permanently be excluded from the Balkans. They have agreed that Serbia shall have Bosnia, Herzegovina, the coast of Dalmatia, south of the Neranta, and a corner of Northern Albania. It is certain, if the Allies win, that Montenegro will be joined to Serbia and that the Bulgarians will be excluded from part of Macedonia.

But all of this is contingent upon victory; therefore, if Italy is to be able to claim a share in the Eastern estate she will have to claim it on the basis of her participation in the campaign that definitively drives the German out of the Balkans and the Turk out of Europe. It will not suffice for Italy to occupy Gorizia or even Trieste; even her possession of Valona will not count; it is in Macedonia that the decision will come.

The thing to be remembered is that what is now taking place all through Europe is not one campaign or many campaigns in a war, but a deliberate, systematic attempt to abolish the German influence outside of German frontiers. The economic alliance of the Allies aims at making a tariff wall against the Germans, surrounding all the nations now fighting the Germans. The military campaigns and the naval campaigns, outside of the main field of operations in Russia, Austria, and France aim at destroying the bases of German political and economic influence in the future.

The campaign in German East Africa, now approaching an end, will put a crown on the efforts of two years in the matter of German colonies. Of the considerable edifice which existed before the war there is left nothing now but a little kernel, which is bound to disappear in the next few weeks or months. Germany beyond the seas will then be a memory. And since Britain has assayed her colonial troops to conquer the German colonies, it will be for the colonies to decide whether they shall be returned. The answer is known.

But more important than Germany's Colonies were her financial and economic bases in the Turkish Empire. Turkey had become in a sense a German ward, and the Bagdad Railroad was only one sign of the German expansion through the Near East. Through Turkey, Germany menaced the French, Italian and British colonies in Africa, and through the religious primacy of the Sultan of Turkey in Islam she threatened the peace of India, Egypt and French North Africa.

The Allies are now agreed to put a permanent end to this menace by transforming conditions in the Balkans. Serbia is to be made a strong state, at the expense of Austria. Bulgaria will be beaten presently, her king will lose his throne and it is quite as certain that Allied success will cost Constantinople of Greece his throne. Bulgaria, freed of Austro-German control and royalty, may receive a portion of Macedonia and her old lands in Thrace. Greece, once Constantine is gone, may get Epirus, but the total elimination of Teutonic influence is resolved upon.

The Triple Alliance ultimately broke down because of the rivalry of Austria and Italy in the Near East. Italy almost deserted Austria at the time of her Bosnia annexation. Austria nearly attacked Italy at the time of the Tripolitan War. Now, with the present war, Italy has definitely taken her stand with the Mediterranean Powers. She purposes to take the Trentino, Trieste, Dalmatia and the Adriatic Islands from Austria and by establishing herself in Albania command both sides of the Adriatic at the Straits of Otranto and dominate this sea.

Russia is resolved to take the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus and thus break the bridge between Germany and the Asiatic territories of the Turk, some of which may be left to him. Britain and France, because of their own colonies are bound to consent to this change. Allied military and commercial strategy alike aims at building a wall against Austro-German expansion at the Danube, closing Austrian outlet to the open sea at Valona as German outlet is closed at the Straits of Dover.

It is essential to remember, now, that Germany has realized, temporarily at least, her dream of expansion to the Near East. Her progress is fully revealed by her achievement. And this makes it absolutely clear what the Allies in their turn must do. More important than any present operations in the East or the West is the campaign to close the Balkans to Germany, for it is, in effect, closing the door of the future to Germany, the only door left open now that German colonies have been seized and the bases of German commerce abroad destroyed.

Germany no longer expect to hold Belgium or any portion of France, but they do hope and expect to hold the gateway to the Near East. Here alone is there a possibility of profit at all commensurate with the sacrifices they have made. The Allies on their part are resolved that there shall be no profit. This resolve gives meaning to the Italian participation in the Balkan campaign, and it explains why this Balkan campaign is, from the point of view of future consequences, the most interesting that is now going forward.—N. Y. Tribune.

Mr. Churchill on How it Began

Mr. Winston Churchill, in his third article in the Sunday Pictorial, speaks of Great Britain as "The Great Amphibian." He shows how the Grand Fleet was ready on August 4th.

"It was eleven o'clock at night—twelve by German time—when the ultimatum expired," writes Mr. Churchill. "The windows of the Admiralty were thrown wide open in the warm night air. Under the roof from which Nelson had received his orders were gathered a small group of admirals and captains and a cluster of clerks, pencil in hand, waiting."

"Along the Mall from the direction of the Palace the sound of an immense concourse singing 'God Save the King' floated in; and on this deep wave there broke the chimes of Big Ben; and, as the first stroke of the hour boomed out, a rustle of movement swept across the room."

Commence!

"The war telegram, which means 'Commence hostilities,' was flashed to the ships and establishments under the White Ensign all over the world. 'Aye!' commenced hostilities at once against Germany; urge them; persevere in them; concentrate upon them; repent not of them; pursue them to the very end."

These were the steps preceding that historic act on August 4:

"On the afternoon of July 26, 1914, orders were issued to prevent the ships of the First Fleet from dispersing, as they would otherwise have done at daylight on the 27th, or to recall such as had started. At midnight the ships of the Second Fleet were ordered to remain at their home ports in close proximity to their balance crews. On the 27th all naval aircraft moved to the vulnerable points on the East Coast, the Second Fleet was completed, an informal 'stand by' telegram was sent to the admirals abroad, and far away on the China Station the battleship Triumph began to mobilize."

"During the 27th and 28th the protecting flotillas along the East Coast were raised to full strength. On the night of the 29th the whole of the First Fleet, with its auxiliary cruiser squadrons and flotillas, passed the Straits of Dover and gained their war station in northern waters."

"That same day the official 'warning telegram' of approaching danger was issued. On the 30th the 'Precautionary Period' began, the naval harbors were cleared, and a modified examination service instituted. On the 31st the Immediate Reserve mobilized, and various reserve cruiser squadrons came into being."

"On August 1, shortly before midnight, the general mobilization of the Navy was ordered, and the Third Fleet began to come on to a war basis. This step was approved by the Cabinet on Sunday, the 2nd, and regularized by Royal Proclamation on the next day. All reservists had, however, responded to the Admiralty summons; and on August 3rd, when the ultimatum was sent requiring Germany to evacuate Belgium, the whole process by which the naval power of Britain is placed in readiness for war was completed in all respects."

"At the great War Council held on the afternoon of August 4, attended by the principal naval and military personages as well as the Cabinet Ministers directly concerned, the Admiralty were able to agree to the immediate dispatch of the whole regular Army, not four but six divisions if necessary, to the Continent, to undertake the transportation and the security of the island in their absence. This considerable undertaking has been made good by the Royal Navy."

Once More!

"Once more now in the march of the centuries Old England was to stand forth in battle against the mightiest thrones and dominations. Once more in defence of the liberties of Europe and the common right must she enter upon a voyage of great toil and hazard across waters uncharted towards coasts unknown, guided only by the stars. Once more 'the far-off line of storm-beaten ships' was to stand between the Continental Tyrant and the dominion of the world."

TWO YEARS AFTER.

Now look two years after that historic night at the Admiralty of which Mr. Churchill speaks.

"The first year passed and darkness lay on the earth," says the Observer on July 23—two years after Austria's insolent note to Serbia.

"There was a stretched ordeal; a year and more seemed like one long night of trial. The forces of iniquity were very strong. Faith in the sequel might well have been shaken more than once in all but the souls of firmest staunchness amongst those who had cherished the brighter hopes for the future of civilisation."

"Twelve months ago the confidence of the Central Empires was near its zenith. They thought that Russia was on the point of ruin; that the Allies' offensive in the West would be foiled to the end in bloody repulses; that France must sink in exhaustion; that Britain was not and never would be fully aroused."

The Darkness.

"Then Bulgaria was gained; Serbia was crushed at last like Belgium; the British were expelled from Gallipoli and brought to surrender at Kut. The attack on Verdun was followed by the Austrian blow which forced the gates of the Alps and threatened the Venetian plains. Even seven weeks ago it might have been thought at Berlin and Vienna that, despite the failure of all efforts to break Britain's sea-blockade, the spirit of the ultimatum of July 23, 1914, recognising no law but force, would win the most fatal and terrible struggle which has ever convulsed civilisation."

"The second year has passed and no longer is it darkness with the Allies, but light."

"Seven wonderful weeks have at last brought the aggressors to account and transformed the whole situation in Europe—stubborn and protracted as the fight must yet be before the Prussian creed of Might is beaten to the earth and the cause of the Allies, great and small, comes finally to its own. Again we say that there is no short cut to victory. The way is like a Roman road—long, straight, life-some. We are sure of the issue. The price to pay will test us to the utmost. Not now nor for many a day dare we relax a single fibre."

"But once again history appears visibly unto men as Justice marching. And it is an uplifting thought for all who bear the British name to-day, whether gloriously at the front or honorably at home throughout the Empire, that but for the fleets and new armies, and the workers and the free citizenship of Britain and her dominions, the mighty aggression of two years ago would have triumphed over Europe to-day, and more than Europe. We have stood in the way. History will never know a nobler vindication of the better ideals of mankind, nor a more saving proof of the mysterious brute-quelling power breathed out in manifold ways by the prophetic soul of the wide world dreaming on things to come."

"These are the thoughts we must keep before us if we would follow with a right understanding the deeds of our men in France and realize what purposes are being wrought out so largely through them in common with all the Allies. As we extend our view from the Somme to the Styr and from the southward streams of the Alps to the headwaters of the Euphrates, we shall see still more clearly how all German calculations are breaking down and how alarm and foreboding are spreading through the Central Empires, and even more through Turkey and Bulgaria. Nemesis is sternest when it turns the very purposes and methods of guilt against the authors of it. That is what we see."

What We See.

"If the Allies had designed the conditions of the final struggle they could hardly have ordered it more to their advantage as respects the extent of the enemy's lines. Stretched to the uttermost they must yield the sooner. Every day's struggle, whether ground is gained or not, thins the defence at some points, and brings the Allies nearer the day when they will rupture the enemy's dispositions, break up by degrees his continuous fronts, and roll up his sections."—Public Opinion.

Sergt. Duffett, D.C.M.

The official story in brief of the valour of Sergt. A. G. Duffett, D.C.M., is as follows:—"During a heavy bombardment he was buried by a shell explosion. Although ordered to leave the trenches he remained on duty. He was later wounded in the head and again refused to leave the guns until compelled by the seriousness of his wounds."

The EASTERN TRUST COMPANY

WE GO ON FOREVER.

Just two reasons why the Eastern Trust Company can administer an Estate better than a personal executor or administrator.

1.—It has nearly twenty-four years' experience, and its existence is perpetual, neither does it cost any more to employ the Company than an individual. The Company affords the Estate absolute security. It has a paid-up capital of $1,000,000.00 and a reserve of $250,000.00. The Estates held in trust to December 31st, 1915, amount to $15,036,683.26.

2.—In the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, your Estate must look around for a substitute. The new administrator is unfamiliar with the business and confusion is often the result. The death of any officer of this Company does not break the continuity of the policy of administration.

While the Company administers over Fifteen Million Dollars worth of Estates, it also does a very large business in executing Trusts of all kinds and acting as Financial Agents of all descriptions. We can give fullest satisfaction in the collection of rents, interests, mortgages, dividends, etc.

Full information cheerfully given and all communications treated as absolutely confidential. CALL OR WRITE.
