The Die is Cast For Better or For Worse.

CHAPTER XXV.
Back With the "Boys."

She turned, for she knew it would be impossible to avoid him, and Bickers, with a gasp of astonishment and joy, exclaimed:

"It is Miss Kittie! Why—why! I'm so knocked over that I can scarcely speak!" He had got hold of both her hands and was holding them tightly, as if he feared that she might rise from the pavement and float away from him. "It really is you! Where have you been, why did you go away so suddenly? We were all so gut up, we've been so anxious! Has anything happened? You look—different, somehow. As beautiful as ever, though—I beg your pardon, Miss Kittie! But I am in such a state of confusion at seeing you. Come into the square and tell me—Oh, tell me everything!"

With her heart beating with a mixture of anxiety and affectionate gladness at the meeting, Kittie turned with him into the square. He listened intently as she told him guardedly that she had been abroad with a lady, but that she was now back in London trying to earn her living. Of course, Bickers saw that she was keeping something back; but he was too tactful, too faithful, to harass her with questions. Indeed, it was enough for him that she was back.

"I can't tell you how glad I am to see you; of course you know that, and the rest of the boys, they'll be half-crazy with delight! Where are you living? You must let us see you; you must come back to us, really come back to us, and let us look after you and take care of you. Look here, Miss Kittie, we're all going to dine at the Potted Shrimp to-night—you remember the dear old place? Back of the Empire, you know? You'll come and meet them there? Ah, don't say no! I needn't tell you how we've missed you. There isn't a day that we don't speak of you; we've been so end anxious. And my mother, she's always writing to ask whether we've heard of you. You'll have to go down and see her, Miss Kittie, unless you want to break her heart."

They talked for some time, and at last Kittie promised she would come; it was impossible to refuse. Bickers wrung both her hands at parting and went off humming like a man who has come into a fortune.

The boys had a little room to themselves at the Potted Shrimp. Bickers was the first to arrive, and ordered an extra place to be laid. They all turned up, Teddy Wilson, Percy Villierne, Herbert Mandeville, all of them. Fritz began to bring in the soup; Bickers looked at the clock anxiously; Kittie had not arrived. Was she going to disappoint them? Surely not! That would be unlike Miss Kittie.

"Hello, there's a place too many!" said Mandeville.

"It's—it's for a friend of mine I'm expecting," said Bickers, reddening. "We won't wait, she—she—mayn't turn up."

At that moment the door opened gently, and Kittie entered, and stood looking at them with a faint smile on her pale face. For a moment there was the silence of consternation; then the boys sprang to their feet, and with a wild "Whoop!" rushed at her, overturning Fritz and his soup-tureen, knocking aside the chairs and dragging the cloth half off the table. Calling on her beloved name, they almost fought for her hands, Bickers chuckling and crowing triumphantly as he helped her to take off her jacket.

"Why, where have you been?" some one exclaimed; but Bickers broke in before she could answer.

"She's been abroad, paying visits to some of the other crowned heads of Europe. Don't badger her with questions. We've got her back again, and that's enough."

"So it is!" they chorused happily. They escorted her to the head of the table, as if they were indeed escorting a queen to her throne.

"Fritz, a magnum of our own particular champagne to-night!" cried Mandeville. "Miss Kittie, I give you my word, this is the happiest night of my life; the happiest in all our lives, eh, boys?"

"It is, it is!" they responded, knocking the table with the ends of their knives; and the music was sweet in Kittie's ears. For the moment she almost forgot her great trouble; there is only one salve for sorrow, and the name of this wonderful medicine is Love.

The dinner proceeded in a kind of whirlwind of talk and laughter, in an atmosphere of rejoicing. Their gods had come back to them, their hearts were warm again with the sunshine of her presence. They all talked at once, they all wanted to get her ear at the same time, they told her of their troubles and trials, successes and failures. The champagne went round briskly—Fritz pouring out libations with a smile which stretched his mouth from ear to ear—Kittie was made to drink a glass, the dishes of the simple but admirably cooked menu were delicately pressed upon her, her plate was piled with fruit; they hung on every word, fed on every smile of hers. It was indeed an "evening" like those of old times.

More than half their noise was prompted by loving cunning; for they saw that Kittie had changed, and that she had passed through some trouble. Perhaps she would tell them some day; but meanwhile the thing to do was to lure her on to forgetting the trouble, to realizing that she was safe back among them and that they were all her sworn friends and protectors. The party broke up at last; they all wanted to see her home, but Bickers claimed the privilege.

"You see," he said apologetically. "Miss Kittie's a kind of ward of my mother's, and I feel that I am responsible for her."

Teddy Wilson groaned. "We've had a rest from 'his mother' while you've been away, Miss Kittie," he said; "but now," with exaggerated apprehension, "I'm afraid he's going to trot her out and crow over us as he used to do. Some of us will have to go down and painlessly kill that old lady, or there will be no living with Bickers."

Bickers walked with her to the little narrow street in which her attic lay, and lingered with her at the door, just as he had done in the square, as if he were afraid of losing her; and even when she had said good-by, and had promised, for the twentieth time, to meet them all again he came running back.

"Oh, Miss Kittie, I had nearly forgotten! It's been such a night that really there is some excuse for me. You remember that old bureau writing-stand of—of your father's? Well, you know, I bought that; and the other day, only a few days ago, I was lugging out a drawer to get at something—you remember now those blessed old drawers always used to stick?—and I came upon a kind of secret place at the back, one of those places they used to put in old-fashioned bureaus. I thought it was empty at first, but I found a packet of papers lying at the bottom. I don't suppose they are of any account, any value, I mean; but I put 'em in an envelope and sealed 'em up. They look like old bills and things of that sort; and p'raps they're nothing whatever to do with your father. I'll send them to you. Good night once more. You'll meet me on Tuesday at Hyde Park corner? Right! Good night, and—God bless you, Miss Kittie!"

This meetin with the boys lightened the darkness of Kittie's sorrow, if only for a few hours. Alas! it bore down upon her again before the dawn had come. She met Bickers on Tuesday, and they walked into the park, Bickers with his head erect and proud of his beautiful companion.

"Here is the packet," he said, almost immediately. "I wish it were full of bank-notes, Miss Kittie; but there was nothing but old bills and letters, as far as I could see."

She took the envelope and managed to get it into her pocket; and they talked of old times and old friends.

"Hagnes Hevangeline is married," he said. "Married the baker; red-headed man, with a face like a quatern loaf; you remember?"

"I must go and see her," said Kittie. "Let me see, who else is there? Oh, Mr. Levinson?"

"Haven't seen him since you disappeared," replied Bickers. "He has quite vanished; and none of us know what has become of the old gentleman. You see, Miss Kittie, he was never really one of us; I mean, one of the boys. It was you and your father that he was friendly with. Took a tremendous amount of interest in the Book—I beg your pardon, Miss Kittie; I really do beg your pardon! Forgive me!"

Kittie smiled at him through her tears. "I like you to call him that," she said.

"There was no disrespect in our doing so, I assure you, Miss Kittie. We all know that he was better class than ourselves. And he looked a gentleman, an aristocrat, always. You've the same look, too, Miss Kittie. It's hard to define, but you've got it, and we boys are proud of it."

As they were leaving the park by the Albert Gate, Kittie stopped and seemed to shrink back. Sir Talbot Lyndhurst was coming toward them. She recognized him in an instant, though he was greatly changed since she had seen him by the stream at Ripley Court. He was bent, thin, and his face was haggard and wan. He looked ten years older and like a man carrying more than the burden of years. His eyes were bent on the ground, but he raised them as he drew near; Kittie, however, had turned and put Bickers between her and Sir Talbot, who passed without noticing her. She lowered her veil with a trembling hand, and told Bickers that she must go home. At parting with her he tried to get her to promise to go down to his mother; but she would not give him the promise, and begged him not to write to the old lady about her until she gave him permission.

The sight of Sir Talbot had awakened a memory of that moonlight night at Deerbrook; and for some time she sat with her hands clasped tightly, going back along the road of the bitter-sweet-past. Presently she remembered the papers Bickers had given her, and she took the envelope from her pocket; but she did not open it that night. Her heart was so sore that the touch of anything connected with her dead father was like the contact of fire with a wound. She put the envelope aside; and it was not until some days had passed that she opened it with a reluctance, with a pain, which were inevitable.

As Bickers had said, the contents appeared to be old bills, plans of literary work, agreements, written on a sheet of note-paper, with publishers and theatre managers. The sight of her father's handwriting brought the tears to her eyes; and she was putting the remainder of the papers, unread, into the envelope, when she caught a name on what looked like a certificate, which startled her and caused her to continue her examination with a sudden eagerness and interest. She read almost breathlessly, her bosom heaving, her eyes dilating; and, at last, when she had got through every paper, she rose with her arms extended, her face flushed, her lips quivering; indeed, she was shaking in every limb.

"Nerves"

Our nerves are similar to an intricate network of telegraph wires. Controlled and nourished by a portion of the brain—known as the nerve centres—the delicate threads like nerves radiate in all directions throughout the body. So long as the nerve centres are capable of continually supplying nourishment to the nerves, the nerves will remain strong and healthy. But directly the nerve centres become weakened by overwork, worry or anxiety, they are unable to transmit the necessary nourishment, and the nerves become worn out and "on edge."

Then it is that a sudden sound makes you "jump"—you get irritable—you suffer from neuralgia—you are restless and depressed. In this condition there is nothing to equal Shell Shock 246 Years Ago.

Westminster Gazette: Shell shock is commonly supposed to be a complaint, due to modern heavy artillery; but I have found a case of it as far back as the year 1471. The victim was an elector of Brandenburg, Friedrich of the Iron Teeth; and this is Carlyle's account of his experience: "In that war with Pommern, he sat besieging a Pomeranian town, Ucker-munde the name of it; when, at dinner one day, a cannon-ball plucked down upon the table, with such a crash as we can fancy—which greatly confused the nerves of Friedrich; much injured his hearing, and even his memory thenceforth." The consequence was that the Elector abdicated at once, and died soon afterwards. It is an interesting precedent, and not of evil omen.

This woman's experience will help you with your breadmaking

She writes: "My grocer told me to get Cream of the West flour for bread—he could recommend it. It makes bread white and light, so now I won't have any other." A flour so satisfactory that it deserves such praise from those who actually use it is well worth trying. Women everywhere who use it, recommend

Cream of the West Flour

the hard wheat flour that is guaranteed for bread

Give it a trial. See for yourself how splendidly it makes bread that rises right up out of the pans. Cream of the West flour is rich in gluten. This highly nutritious substance has such wonderful elasticity or power of expansion that it imprisons the gas developed by the yeast, thus enabling your bread to rise properly.

If you want fine big, bulging loaves, with delicious flavor, even crumb and all the wholesome nutritious quality of Western hard wheat, you decidedly ought to try Cream of the West flour for your next batch. If your bread proves unsatisfactory, return the unused flour to your dealer; also bring this advertisement which is our guarantee. He will return your money and we will repay him.

Our Domestic Science Experts solve your problems

Do you know what makes bread go sour sometimes? Are you puzzled about your pie crusts turning soggy for the first time, in spite of your close attention to the recipe? Would you like advice about the right kinds of pastry for different kinds of fillings? It is such unexpected, mystifying difficulties as these that we want to help you solve. No matter what your problem may be, with either your bread or your pastry baking, our Domestic Science experts are cordially willing to help you solve it—whether you use our flour or not. Just write us a letter in your own way and explain clearly what you want to know. Give name of your dealer, and also state what flour you are using. Address—Domestic Science Department, Campbell Flour Mills Co., Limited, Toronto, Canada.

You can get these famous books Free

The Old Miller's Household Book may be had for a certain number of cards. This splendid book contains 1000 recipes; large medical section—telling how to deal with accidents, sickness, etc. Every home should have this book.

Users of Cream of the West flour have the splendid privilege of selecting books free, from the Campbell Library. In every barrel, half-barrel or sack you will find a colored library card. Collect and send these cards to us in exchange for books, which become your own property. Here are some of the titles of the books you may select: "David Copperfield," by Dickens; "Last Days of Pompeii," by Lord Lytton; "The Three Musketeers," by Dumas; "Vanity Fair," by Thackeray; "Waverley," by Sir Walter Scott, and standard favorites by Fenimore Cooper, Hawthorne, Reade, Charlotte Bronte and others. Also books for boys and girls. Full list on cards.

First Two Years of War Show How Not to Raise Armies.

Baltimore, April 19, 1917. To the Editor of the New York Times: An American who has spent the first two years of the war in England can hardly remain silent when he sees Congress hesitate to pass the Universal Service Bill. During this time, from the quiet retirement of an Oxford College, I watched Great Britain slowly waken.

In the beginning one heard it said: "Conscription is out of the question because we are afraid of the labor unions, the war will be over in a few months, and, besides, every Briton will do his duty." So the call went out for volunteers. Kiaki replaced cap and gown in the Oxford lecture room. Those few undergraduates who had returned to begin the Fall trimester drilled most of the day in the Officers' Training Corps. In the quiet of the evening one heard from the meadows the call of the bugle, and in the morning was awakened by the slump, slump, slump of marching feet and the swing of a song which echoed

One Sure, Quick, Safe Tonic is better than all the Parent Medicine You Can Buy

This is what Zoetic has to offer weak, anemic, nervous, run-down people—and this is the new health Zoetic will bring to every man, woman or child whose cheerless days and sleepless nights have brought to a state of physical weakness or nervous breakdown. Only such a tonic as Zoetic, the great health tonic will revive loss of vitality, strengthen the nerves, restore health and strength by means of this scientific nourishment.

Zoetic, not unlike Hypos—the God of Sleep—whose help Aesculapius, the health-giver always invoked in working his miraculous cures. No—this is not both, not at all. For if Zoetic is taken regularly and according to directions you will be assured sound, restful sleep—feel well—eat well—look well—and rise in the morning refreshed and vigorous, ready for a good day's work. IRELAND.
 WASHINGTON, May 11. The Daily Telegraph's parliamentary lobby correspondent says that owing to the recent unfavorable turn in Irish affairs, several leading members of the Nationalist Party are threatening resignation of their seats in the Commons. According to the Times the South Longford election in which a Sinn Fein man won the seat, has not allowed the Government's determination to submit to Parliament proposals of an Irish settlement, but there is little doubt but it will make the ministers modify their views of the practicability of county opinion or any similar form of partition. Nationalist members, says the Times, do not conceal their anxiety over their future position and are ready, if the Government's proposals concerning their view are fair and practicable, to resign in a body and appeal to their constituencies for a mandate to accept the proposals. They feel, the Times adds, after two Sinn Fein victories they have not the necessary authority to bind the Catholic parts of Ireland to any fundamental changes.

Mr. Levy, of Liverpool, N.S., Tells How They Fixed Up His Lame Back and Other Symptoms of Kidney Trouble. Liverpool, Black Point, Queen's Co., N.S., May 11th.—(Special).—With his pain in the back all gone and his other symptoms of kidney disease no longer troubling him, Mr. Charles E. Levy, a well known resident here, is spreading the good news that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the right remedy for kidney trouble. "Yes, I am feeling quite well again," Mr. Levy says in an interview. "I know Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a great deal of good. I was much troubled with pain in the back and I knew from my other symptoms that the kidneys were the cause of my trouble. "I used pills I got from the doctor, but I only got worse. So I sent for Dodd's Kidney Pills. They fixed me up. That's why I advise all suffers from kidney trouble to use Dodd's Kidney Pills." If you haven't used Dodd's Kidney Pills ask your neighbors. In every neighbourhood you will find some one Dodd's Kidney Pills has cured. ## Smart Blouses!

Our Ladies' Dept. is now displaying a remarkably choice selection of Blouses in Crepe de Chine, Silk and Georgette Crepe. These Blouses are distinctly characteristic in style and illustrate Fashion's latest fancy in sleeves and collars, the former are all long with dainty cuffs, while the latter are very deep and quaintly cut.

The new surplice neck is very much in evidence and the entire stock is as charming and up-to-date as it can possibly be.

The leading colors are Flesh, Coral and Blue, but there is a wide choice of lovely colors, also Black and Black and White.

The High Cost of Living

Interim Report of the Commission. St. John's, Md., May 2nd, 1917.

To His Excellency, Sir W. E. Davidson, K.C.M.G., Governor. May it please Your Excellency, We, the undersigned, constituting the Commission recently appointed by you to investigate the high cost of living, beg to present the first interim report as follows:

(1) The Committee have met on six occasions and have considered exhaustively the matter of the coal supply, it having been represented that this was among the most urgent matters to be dealt with.

(2) As a result of the evidence obtained and other information supplied, we are of opinion that there is a serious shortage of coal in Cape Breton, from which most of our supplies are obtained, a shortage which last year amounted to about 500,000 tons with an increasing demand, a condition which this year is likely to be accentuated. This shortage will be increased by the increased scarcity of labor caused by over-recruiting in Cape Breton; and in the second place to the increased demands for coal arising (a) from munition making by the Nova Scotia Steel Company at New Glasgow and the smelting of munition steel by the Dominion Company at Sydney; (b) by the requirements of the Canadian railways for the carriage of troops; (c) by the requirements of the Canadian Naval Department for transports plying with troops across the Atlantic; (d) by the requirements of the same department for ships for the proposed patrol service; (e) by the needs of liners calling in increased numbers at Halifax and St. John; (f) by the requirements for factories in Canada, the activities of which have been increased by the war.

(3) We are of opinion from the foregoing and from the evidence elicited, that it will be very difficult for coal dealers to obtain full supplies of coal from the Sydney mines on their own account, and that it is desirable that the Government of this Colony should take the necessary steps to insure that an adequate supply of coal will be available for the needs of the Colony during the next twelve months.

(4) Some sixty thousand tons of coal for domestic, factory and kindred uses will be required in St. John's for the next twelve months; and about 100,000 tons in the outports.

(5) We recommend, therefore, that (a) by the Government Engineer, should be despatched to Sydney as soon as possible to make arrangements with these Companies to this end, and also to leave at the earliest possible date the Companies to do in the matter of assisting us with steamers to carry the same.

(6) With reference to the conveyance of this coal to the local markets, we regret to have to report that no suitable tramp steamers with a carrying capacity of from 1,000 tons to 1,500 tons appear to be available at present.

(7) Under these circumstances we recommend that the Government should open up negotiations immediately with a view to the chartering of purchasing of such a steamer, if same can be obtained at reasonable terms, for use in the coal trade. We feel confident that the general import trade will be able to employ any spare time of this steamer.

(8) Failing the employment of such a steamer, we recommend the engaging of portion of the sealing fleet in the coal carrying trade, but we do so reluctantly, as the adoption of this course will increase the cost to the consumer, due to these steamers being unsuitable for the purpose on account of their small carrying capacity, their slowness and the excessive cost of operating and maintaining them.

(9) If this course becomes necessary, we recommend that the owners of the sealing steamers Neptune, Diana, Bloodhound, Viking and Ranger should be notified that these ships will be required for service in bringing to St. John's part of this supply of coal.

(10) That the Bowring Coastal steamer Portia, which now has her terminus at Bonne Bay, should be permitted for the present year to terminate her fortnightly trip at Chamel, on condition that she proceed to Sydney each trip and bring back to St. John's a cargo of not less than 500 tons of coal, to be applied towards this quantity of 50,000 tons, the carrying of the coal can be obtained.

(11) That after an initial trip to Labrador by two ships to take down fishing crews, only one steamer should be maintained on the Labrador service this year, the second steamer ordinarily used being diverted to this coal trade also.

(12) We recommend that the owners of all sealing steamers sailing out of this Colony be notified that their ships should be notified that the present year they will be required to provide for the carrying out of the Colony of its products or the bringing into the Colony the necessities of life.

(13) We recommend that the outports, which have hitherto generally obtained their supplies direct by schooners except for about 5,000 tons procured through St. John's, should endeavor to utilize schooners to an even greater extent this year than heretofore, and start them in the coal carrying trade as early as possible, as there is a strong likelihood of a greater shortage in coal at the Sydney as the season advances.

(14) We also recommend that any coal brought into St. John's under the foregoing recommendations should be reserved solely for domestic, factory and local business purposes, and that none of it should be applied to the bunkering of either foreign going or coastwise steamers whether locally owned or chartered.

(15) In conclusion, your Commissioners regret that they cannot suggest any means of cheapening the present cost of coal to the consumers, as the main controlling factors are outside their control, namely: the cost of the product at the mines which is steadily increasing, the freighting of same to this Colony which also tends to increase, and the already increased cost of handling in the Colony. Fortunately, since January, 1916 the cost to the consumer has been largely controlled by your Ministers securing portion of the supply and fixing the price to the consumer, so that no inordinate profits were earned by the local coal merchants. Owing, however, to the above increases the public will have to be prepared to pay higher prices than hitherto until the war terminates.

We are of opinion that this control by your Ministers should continue to be exercised with regard to any future imports made under their auspices. We have the honour to be, Your Excellency's, Most obedient humble servants, P. T. McGRATH, H. W. LEMESSURIER, G. H. HUTCHINGS, W. J. ELLIS, T. A. HALL.

RUTH CAMERON

To-morrow is Mother's Day. In its honour I am bringing you some of the tributes famous men and women have paid to their mothers and to motherhood.

Perhaps you will want to slip a copy of one of them into the flowers you send your mother to-morrow.

"All that I am or hope to be I owe to my angel mother."—Abraham Lincoln.

"One tear of my mother can blot out a thousand complaints against me."—Said by Alexander, when people tried to set him against his mother.

"If I were hanged on the highest hill, Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine! I know whose love would follow me still."

Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!

If I were drowned in the deepest sea, Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine! I know whose tears would come down to me.

Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!

If I were damped of body and soul I know whose prayers would make me whole.

Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!

"A mother is a mother still, The holiest thing alive."—Coleridge.

It will be readily seen that Newfoundland's industrial life has not been restricted. For the business she should have had the true confidence and instead of the annual trade amounting to million dollars it should have passed a hundred million. This statement is not exaggerated and may be confirmed by any ordinary and experienced business man within the scope of his knowledge. It has been known and true for the last centuries that the fisheries of our island had a much wider market. This they did not have in the past. The country has long-standing industries. Those were good when they were in Brazil and Portugal, Italy, and Greece. England have long been famous for their toners and for a long time. Even the Norwegians did not infringe upon their rights until thirty years ago. A petition entered our country to feel the effect of the result in our own country. This congestion is a spot of our market.

WEEK-END NOTES.

(I. C. M.)

It will be readily agreed by all sides that we have traded in too narrow a channel, and that because of this our industrial life has been cramped and restricted. For the length of time that Newfoundland has been doing business she should now have a population well beyond the million mark, and instead of the volume of her annual trade amounting to some twenty million dollars it should long ago have passed a hundred million dollars.

This statement may seem exaggerated and may be looked upon as visionary and extreme, but it is quite within the scope of possibility, and had the true conditions of the times been known and the opportunities of the last centuries been studied the fisheries of our land would have filled a much wider market than they did. This they did not do. The opportune moment was not seen, nor was the beaten track of our pioneers deviated from in the least degree.

The country had its regular and long-standing markets, and while these were good all was well, but when they were had all was wrong. Brazil and Portugal, and Spain, and Italy, and Greece and sometimes England have long been our best customers and for a while we held undisputed claim to their patronage. Even the Norwegian catch of codfish did not intrude upon us until some thirty years ago; but once that competition entered our domain we began to feel the effects of its intrusion; and the result has been that on different occasions congestion started us in the face.

This congestion is the real danger spot of our markets, and if it could be avoided it would relieve many an anxious fear, and lift many a burden from the shoulders of our fish exporters. This, then, brings us to the problem of congestion. I do not know who may be competent to solve this problem, nor do I know what the solution of it would really imply; but I will give two statements from two opposite sources, and will leave it to the judgment of the readers to decide for themselves as to the seriousness of congested markets, and the possibility of its periodical recurrence.

At the inception of the present Board of Trade the Premier, Sir Edward Morris, presided, and he had many of the most influential and representative men of the trade among his audience. The meeting was held in the Council Chamber of the Executive, in the Court House Building. The Premier reviewed the situation and displayed a very good grasp of the conditions of that time—about nine years ago. In all that he said he was sustained by the different gentlemen who spoke after him. But he made one statement which within itself was sufficient to create alarm. The statement is as follows:

"Paradoxical as it may seem, one of the worst things that could happen to Newfoundland, would be a good fishery. Our markets are so limited that it would be a death-blow to our trade if every year a large voyage were killed."

Such a statement, coming from such a source, must surely have had behind it sufficient evidence to prove its truth. Sir Edward, like many others, had seen low prices, and he knew that they sometimes were low not for the want of a market but because we catered to only one class of market. But this could not have been otherwise, for we had salt-cured our whole catch of codfish, and whether it were large or not, the one groove was continued. That was the cause of our loss, and when Sir Edward stated what I have above quoted he stated a hard but undeniable fact.

The second opinion is my own, and it is based upon the close observation of fifty years—not fifty years of theory, but fifty years of practical daily intercourse with the water front. During that period I have transacted business with two generations of merchants, and have had ample opportunity of studying the ins and outs and fluctuations of our trade and commerce. I have seen good voyages and bad ones, and big prices and small prices, and have seen fishermen at their wits' end to sell their catch. But in all the drawbacks which confronted our trade, and all the reverses which have beset it, the most serious of them all was congestion. Bad cure has played its part; and that no small part, but the overstocking of the foreign market has been the cause of many of our troubles, and the source of much of our loss. In this feature of our trade we have simply defeated our own interests, and suffered and sustained our greatest losses.

Therefore, with the evidence and conditions, the fluctuations and reverses of fifty years to work upon there is but one total to the sum, one solution of the problem, and one impartial conclusion to arrive at, and it is this: The demand for fish foods will be greater than ever before and Newfoundland should lead in the supply. The mistakes of the past should be avoidable to avoid their repetition, hence the possibility of congestion should be prevented, but to accomplish this it will be necessary to adopt additional methods in the cure and preparation of our products, and one of these methods will surely be that of Cold Storage for a portion of our codfish.

KING EDWARD'S OBJECT.

King Edward was a shrewd judge of men, and he had a long and intimate knowledge of continental politics. His acquaintance with the German mind, and particularly with the ambitions of the Kaiser and the military caste, convinced him that Germany intended war and was preparing for war. He saw through the sham peace protestation and the German authorities always had the unpleasant feeling that he at least was not to be deluded.

That was the reason why Berlin never lost the opportunity of maligning and cruelly misrepresenting the British sovereign. The Germans are fond of accusing King Edward of plotting to isolate the German Empire. His real ambition was to resist German aggression. It is largely due to him that such a league sprang into being in the autumn of 1914. Civilization owes the king a heavy debt. If the European people had remained separated by jealousy and mutual ignorance, the Kaiser might have succeeded in conquering Europe without ever drawing sword, the sword which had for years rattled so successfully in its scabbard. It was Germany's pre-war policy to terrorize her neighbors with threats of what she might do. King Edward was not afraid of either the Empire or its ruler.—London Daily Express.

Household Notes.

Every child should be trained to clean the tub after bathing. This makes the work lighter for the house-keeper.

If the kitchen seems not to allow for a corner in which to sit, out of the way, the addition of a small alcove will solve the problem.

Be sure that the kitchen table is high enough to allow you to stand erect before it while working. This will save many a backache.

The Woman's Part.

The boys in their khaki go out to the front! What are the women to do?

They say, "Men must work, and the women must weep." Is that that's left for you? Don't believe it! The hardest part to play is the part of the mothers and wives;

To give your own life is a little thing! We give our men-folk's lives. The baby you've borne and suckled and put in his shortened frocks.

The boy that you've often scolded when you washed him and darned his socks: We've bred them, and reared them, and loved them—and now it's the woman's part.

To send them to die for England—with a smile and a breaking heart.

And we'll do it! Oh, girls might trifle, in the careless days of peace. With the boys on the seaside bandstand, his flannels without a crease.

We might flirt, and kiss, and flutter—but the day of the war began.

We women have done with the loofer—what we want to-day is a man!

The man that will shoulder a rifle, and go out where the bullets fly.

With his head held high, and a song on his lips, and a smile as he says "Good-bye!" We'll bid him God-speed and wish him good luck, and tell him he's one of the best.

And he'll soon come back, with his duty done, and the hero's cross on his breast.

There's no place for a girl in the fighting line—but let this be your woman's plan—

If we can't enlist for service, we can each of us send a man.

If he lags, wake him up with a scornful word! Let him feel the lash of shame!

Till you fire his soul to ardour, and kindle his blood to flame.

Let it be "Hands off!" for the slug-gard! For the nut and the flapper's joy.

No smile and no kiss for the shirker! Keep your lips for the soldier boy.

Send your boy to the Colours, mother! Hand him his belt and gun—

It's better to lose him nobly than be ashamed of your son.

When the work of the day is over, you can let yourself go, and cry, In the gloom of the desolate fireside—in the dark, when there's nobody by.

There isn't a sock wants darning; there isn't a boy to scold.

For the cigarette ash on the carpet for the dinner they've let grow cold.

Their hats still hang on the hatstand but there isn't a step on the stair;

There's no gay young voice calling "Mother!" No sound—for the boys aren't there.

That's the time you know the anguish of the waiting woman's part:

In the hush of the lonesome it's the silence that tears your heart.

Night passes! We'll welcome the morning with a smile and a steadfast will;

If we haven't our boys to work for, we'll work for our country still.

Be glad that your men are fighters—for the shame that surely hurts.

Is to have a coward man-child, who hides behind women's skirts. Just clutch your breath when you read the lists of the wounded and the dead.

And if the names you love are there be proud and hold up your head.

Don't cry! For they've climbed the pathway that heroes and martyrs trod:

They sleep in the Rest of Heaven! They stand in the Glory of God.

Let 'Er Rain.

Clon A. Parker-Fuller.

Let 'er rain! And I don't care a button if it snow's For it never hurt me yet.

Inside 'er out—

Am I'm in doubt.

If I'd ever melt away.

For I think I'm here to stay.

I'm not salt, nor yet sugar, though I s'pose

Someone's honey I must be.

But I still refuse to see.

Why I should fret

Because it's wet.

For I love a snappy breeze,

Glaring ice, or zippy freeze,

Or the sunshine that brings the fragrant rose.

LONDON GOSSIP.

PASSING OF A CAESAR.

LONDON, April 16th, 1917. With the disappearance of Czardom from Russia there are now two, instead of three, claimants to the ancient name of Caesar. He would be a bold prophet who would assert that the title is not doomed to extinction before the world is much older; but it is already clear that this war has made "Caesarism" itself impossible anywhere in the near future of the world. By what struggles the peoples of Central Europe will rid themselves of the Caesars at Berlin and the Caesars at Vienna the course of time will show. The assumption of the title Kaiser by Wilhelm I. of Prussia was sheer Hohenzollern impudence. If any dynasty had a right to it, and an exclusive right, it was the Hapsburgs. As a matter of fact no dynasty had any right to it, nor, to go further back, had any of the Roman Emperors after Nero, who was the last of the family of the Caesars. Custom sanctioned the appellation from reign to reign. Charles the Great had the wit to revive it and appropriate it for himself. Hence we get the German Kaisers of the Middle Ages. The first Russian ruler who caused himself to be crowned Czar was Ivan the Terrible in 1547; but long before that many a Mongolian Khan and Muscovy Prince used the title and claimed heirship to the glories of the Byzantine Empire.

THE POSITION OF BRAZIL.

An authority on Brazil tells me that the early entry of Brazil into the war is highly probable. Apart from the friendship of the Brazilian people towards us (which was plainly shown when H.M.S. Glasgow put into Rio de Janeiro after Admiral Cradock's defeat), the action of the United States has had an influence the strength of which is not quite estimated here. Brazil has kept out of the war so far because she has the keenest regard for Pan-American unity and has always been most anxious to steer clear of European complications. But now the United States have acted the way is open. If and when she comes in it will be a great aid, for Britain will be able to use the fine Brazilian harbors for her South Atlantic patrol, and will escape all the difficulty of coaling at sea so far from home. There are probably half a million Germans in Brazil, and there are whole communities of them in the Southern States of Santa Catarina and Rio de Grande do Sul, but they have been very largely assimilated into the life of the country, and little

A NEW DIAMOND MARKET.

Down in the heart of the Ghetto there is a narrow, grimy little alley which is rapidly becoming one of the most romantic places in the world. Here have settled the most important of the Belgian jewellers driven from home by the layard, and the diamond industry of Antwerp—formerly rivalled London as the diamond mart of the world—now centres on this dingy back street, which is scarcely seven feet wide and no more than forty yards long. There are more than a dozen shops with small windows in which sparkle jewels worth the ransom of a city. In wealth and splendor they excel any display in Bond Street, which is London's most fashionable shopping thoroughfare. Yet they lie in a region of poverty, hunger and dirt. Belgian Jews, mostly refugees from Antwerp and Brussels, pore over stones of immense value in the dingy restaurants which abound in the district, weighing them and handling them with as much unconcern as if they were lumps of glass. Why these exiles should have settled in the East End of London rather than in Hatton Garden, the London diamond market, is a mystery, but already they are prospering so well that the supremacy of Hatton Garden is being seriously challenged. Together the two markets make London the diamond center of the world, a valuable distinction indeed.

A FAMOUS ACTRESS DIES.

Many old memories will be stirred by the announcement that Miss Bateman died on April 8th. Within comparatively recent years the once popular actress was seen at His Majesty's and the Haymarket, London, but her great days date back a long time. Born at Baltimore in 1842, she appeared first on the London stage as one of the Bateman children at the St. James's Theatre in 1851, but her real career began in 1863 when she played Leah at the Adelphi in an adaptation of Moshental's play "Deborah." It is not too much to say that she sprang into fame in one night. She became literally the talk of the town. Thousands of playgoers were thrilled by her delivery of the curse which melted to tears by her pathos in the closing scene with the child. In those days Miss Bateman had a strikingly fine face. As Julia in "The Hunchback" at that time a test part for young actresses of a serious bent—Miss Bateman did not repeat the success of her Leah, the critics finding her deficient in lightness of touch and vivacity. However, as Bianca in a revival of Milman's now forgotten tragedy of "Fazio" she recovered her lost ground. Her pathos as Bianca completely overwhelmed John Richard Green, the historian. He said the performance made him cry like a child. After winning high praise in Will's version of "Medea" she was associated with some of the first Shakespearean performances of Henry Irving, playing Lady Macbeth to his Macbeth, Emilia to his Othello, and Margaret Angolo to his Richard III. Meanwhile she created Queen Mary in Tennyson's play to Irving's Philip of Spain.

The Truth in Germany

The truth, long kept out of Germany, seems to have started at a gallop the moment it found its legs on that soggy utterance now appearing in German newspapers as astounding for their freedom and for their radical nature. No such utterances have been heard there as now coming forth daily. The Ham-burger Fremdenblatt, demanding the destruction of bureaucracy, declares: "There is no use theorizing. There is something wrong with our governmental system, as is clearly proved by Germany's political failures, and, in fact, by the whole war."

When a German newspaper links "the whole war" with "Germany's political failures" it is certain that there is a public there which has come to realize that the war was not defensive, but of German origin. If there has ever been such a public before, it must have been too small to reckon with. Vorwarts, of course, has always been radical, and has usually told as much of the truth as it could, but at this time such a declaration from it as the following may be more influential than ever before:

"Whether the remnant of futile sovereignty will hold its own for a few months or years, its hours are told and we shall live to see and celebrate its downfall. If it does not yield now, the more sudden will be its downfall."

For such utterances Vorwarts now has a more sympathetic audience than it ever had before. The fact that such utterances are permitted, that we hear of no more suppressions of newspapers and arrests of editors, undoubtedly proceeds from the fact that the situation has changed and that the Government no longer dares.—N. Truckmen Not Responsible for Rise in Coal.

St. John's, May 10, 1917. Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—On behalf of the Truckmen's Protective Union, please allow me space in your widely circulated paper, to make a few remarks concerning the cartage on coal. There has been a report around town that the price of coal went up, owing to the Truckmen's Union raising their rates of cartage.

Now, Sir, I wish it to be distinctly understood that the Truckmen's Union have not altered their tariff, which came into effect this year.

I was interviewed by two of the leading coal dealers here, and both of these men are of opinion that the cartage on coal was too low, considering what it cost for the upkeep of a horse and fit-out for carting coal. Mr. Lester, who does most of the coal carting for the leading coal dealers in the city, found that when his men looked for an increase of wages, that at the Union rate of cartage, he could not afford to pay them the wages looked for. He therefore was willing to give up the carting of coal as the horse feed, etc., was so high. The coal dealers, however, felt that they had one in Mr. Lester who could not easily be done without, and as there are no other Truckmen who have the facilities for entering into large jobs as Mr. Lester. They therefore agreed to give Mr. Lester $1 per ton, or 20c per ton more than the Union tariff calls for.

Still at it.

Undiscouraged by the mitten, Germany continues to woo Japan. The triple alliance of Japan, Mexico, and Germany against the United States which Zimmermann proposed did not seem to suit Japan's taste, so now Admiral von Hintze, who was Germany's Minister to China until China broke off relations, tries her with another. He stops off at Yokohama on his way home and proposes an alliance of Japan, Germany, and Russia, evidently counting on the success of the reactionary movement in the last-named country to restore the Russian throne with a German puppet on it. The dispatch says:

Use "Tiz" If Feet Ache, Burn, Puff Up

Can't beat "Tiz" for sore, tired, swollen, calloused feet or corns.

You can be happy-footed in a moment. Use "Tiz" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, aching feet. "Tiz" and only "Tiz" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.

Very interesting sports bags are made of pongee. The square neck line is preferred and is very high. The white blouse frequently has its touch of color. Some of the new frocks are trimmed with ostrich. The feather boa in chinchilla effect is in fashion. We folk are to wear coats and caps of dotted swiss. Light gray gingham makes a pretty spring frock. Irregular cross stitch is fashionable on wash frocks. Upturned or "bag" hems finish the new frocks. A belt that fastens on the side with buttons is pretty. Garlands of silk and linen flowers are used on large hats. Silk jersey will be very much used all through the summer.

Dear Sir—On behalf of the Truckmen's Protective Union, please allow me space in your widely circulated paper, to make a few remarks concerning the cartage on coal. There has been a report around town that the price of coal went up, owing to the Truckmen's Union raising their rates of cartage.

Now, Sir, I wish it to be distinctly understood that the Truckmen's Union have not altered their tariff, which came into effect this year.

I was interviewed by two of the leading coal dealers here, and both of these men are of opinion that the cartage on coal was too low, considering what it cost for the upkeep of a horse and fit-out for carting coal. Mr. Lester, who does most of the coal carting for the leading coal dealers in the city, found that when his men looked for an increase of wages, that at the Union rate of cartage, he could not afford to pay them the wages looked for. He therefore was willing to give up the carting of coal as the horse feed, etc., was so high. The coal dealers, however, felt that they had one in Mr. Lester who could not easily be done without, and as there are no other Truckmen who have the facilities for entering into large jobs as Mr. Lester. They therefore agreed to give Mr. Lester $1 per ton, or 20c per ton more than the Union tariff calls for.

Still at it.

Undiscouraged by the mitten, Germany continues to woo Japan. The triple alliance of Japan, Mexico, and Germany against the United States which Zimmermann proposed did not seem to suit Japan's taste, so now Admiral von Hintze, who was Germany's Minister to China until China broke off relations, tries her with another. He stops off at Yokohama on his way home and proposes an alliance of Japan, Germany, and Russia, evidently counting on the success of the reactionary movement in the last-named country to restore the Russian throne with a German puppet on it. The dispatch says:

Use "Tiz" If Feet Ache, Burn, Puff Up

Can't beat "Tiz" for sore, tired, swollen, calloused feet or corns.

You can be happy-footed in a moment. Use "Tiz" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, aching feet. "Tiz" and only "Tiz" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.

As soon as you put your feet in a "Tiz" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. How good your poor, old feet feel. They want to dance for joy. "Tiz" is grand. "Tiz" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty feet.

Get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Because your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more.

Very interesting sports bags are made of pongee. The square neck line is preferred and is very high. The white blouse frequently has its touch of color. Some of the new frocks are trimmed with ostrich. The feather boa in chinchilla effect is in fashion. We folk are to wear coats and caps of dotted swiss. Light gray gingham makes a pretty spring frock. Irregular cross stitch is fashionable on wash frocks. Upturned or "bag" hems finish the new frocks. A belt that fastens on the side with buttons is pretty. Garlands of silk and linen flowers are used on large hats. Silk jersey will be very much used all through the summer.

ENEMY LAUNCH THIRD ATTACK.

LONDON, May 11. To-night's official communication says: Early this morning the enemy launched a third attack, in which they again employed flame-thrower upon our new position south of the Souchez River. After severe fighting, lasting some three hours, the weight of the enemy's repeated assaults compelled our posts to withdraw from a portion of the front attacked. This afternoon our troops counter attacked and recaptured the whole of the lost trenches. As a result of his three attacks the enemy suffered heavy losses. Our positions remain unchanged. Activity in the air continued yesterday. Three German airplanes were brought down in air fights and three others driven down out of control. Two of ours are missing.

SERBIAN ACTIVITY.

SALONIKA, May 11. Advanced trenches in the neighborhood of Dobropolye, on the Macedonian front, have been captured by the Serbians. The Serbian official statement reads: In several localities our infantry carried out surprise attacks on trenches in the region of Dobropolye, where again we captured some advanced enemy trenches and took prisoners one officer and fifty-four men, and captured one machine gun.

DESPERATE FIGHTING.

LONDON, May 11. Desperate fighting was in progress last night on the Arras battlefield. Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters telegraphs. The Germans launched many attacks, which were all broken by British artillery and machine guns. The nights fighting began with an attempt to force the British position between Gavrelle and Souchez River. This effort was broken down. Then the Germans swarming around Fresnoy were seen to be forming for an attack on Arleux, whereupon British gunners opened fire, but they made an advance under their own barrage. The attempt cost them dearly and resulted in repulse. South of Souchez River two formidable attacks were launched. Liquid fire was employed and large bodies of infantry were thrown in the fierce fighting which followed.

The Germans came with great determination, but they finally fell back under a hail of shrapnel, and did not attempt to renew the attack. Early this morning the Germans advanced trench was captured by the British, between La Coulette and Avion. The result of this attack was not known when the despatch was filed. The night fighting, the correspondent says was very costly for the Germans.

GERMAN SUB-COMMANDERS LOST.

COPENHAGEN, May 11. The loss of two prominent German submarine commanders, in addition to several previously reported, was disclosed in a Reichstag speech yesterday. The men named were Lieut.-Commanders Wagener and Buss, who were engulfed by Herr Pilger, of the Centre Party, in his remarks giving U-boat commanders prominence who have lost their lives.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL.

PETROGRAD, May 11. The following official was given out here to-day: On the Western and Rumanian front the usual rifle firing and reconnoitering occurred. On the Caucasian front in the region of Sukkiz the Turks attempted an attack on our advanced posts. Being discovered in time part of them were killed and the remainder dispersed; in other sectors rifle firing occurred.

TROUBLE IN HUNGARY.

AMSTERDAM, May 11. The Hungarian Independence Party, headed by Count Michael Karolyi, after a conference at Budapest, issued an appeal to all suffrage reformers to apply all their efforts to bring about equal universal secret suffrage, as a despatch to the Frankfurter Zeitung. The Independence Party also urged reforms in the conduct of the propaganda for peace. The party proclaimed war against the Hungarian Government with all the means at its disposal.

NO AGREEMENT.

WASHINGTON, May 11. Secretary of State Lansing to-day denied the published report that the United States has an agreement with the Entente not to make a separate peace with Germany by saying, There is no agreement, written or unwritten, relative to peace. When pressed to say whether the subject has been discussed formally, Mr. Lansing declined to discuss the subject further. He says a probability of the United States acting separately, but said the question of agreement never had been raised. Interest in the attitude of the United States Government springs from the announcements that the German

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, May 11. To-day's early official reads: Yesterday evening we captured a strong German position in the region of Chevreux. Counter attacks with grenades were repulsed by our fire. A more vigorous attack directed by the enemy against the salient northeast of California Plateau was repulsed after a spirited engagement in the course of which the enemy suffered severe losses. Artillery fighting was rather heavy last night on the front between Cerny and Hurbes. Surprise attacks by the enemy northeast of Berry au Bac on the sectors Navarin Farm and Aberverie and south of Ste. Marie Pass were checked easily. We took prisoners. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

RUSSIAN SOCIALISTS AND PEACE.

LONDON, May 11. The Executive Committee of the Russian Workmen and Soldiers Delegates have resolved to convene in a neutral country an international socialist conference to discuss peace. Reuter's correspondent at Petrograd says.

BALFOUR AT NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, May 11. Arthur James Balfour, Great Britain's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and members of the Commission accompanying him to this country, received a welcome of amazing proportions on their arrival from Washington late to-day. Mr. Balfour was so impressed by what he termed a whole-hearted exhibition every-where that later in his speech in the City Hall he asserted, if those on the other side of the Atlantic could have a glimpse of it there would be renewed determination to carry through the struggle at all sacrifice. The British Commission was met at Jersey City by a group of leading citizens, among them Robert Bacon, J. P. Morgan and others of prominence. The approach across the river to the battery landing was heralded to the waiting thousands by continuous salutes from the river craft. Balfour showed keen interest in the Statue of Liberty on the trip to Manhattan. "So that's the famous statue," he said. He gazed at it for several minutes. As Balfour stepped into view after leaving the pier with Lieut-General Bridges close by, a roar went up from the crowd that appeared at the windows of skyscrapers from which British, French and American flags were waved vigorously. The greeting accorded to the distinguished Britishers appeared to be no less enthusiastic than that given to M. Viviant and Marshal Joffre. But it was observed the crowds were not so dense as those which cheered the hero of the Marne. Passing through the financial district in Lower Broadway, the visitors received great applause. Long streamers of ticker tape were thrown from windows and were carried on the streets by strong breezes intermingling with an abundant display of war-colored bunting. Entering the City Hall for the official welcome from the Mayor, Balfour and his party were escorted to the Aldermanic Chamber, where the Mayor and Joseph H. Choate outlined the aims of the United States in the war and the reasons why the nation joined in the struggle. "For the citizens of New York I present our foremost citizen, the Hon. Joseph H. Choate," said the Mayor. Mitchell introduced the former Ambassador to Great Britain. Before Choate could begin to speak, Balfour stepped down from the platform and shook Choate's hand firmly. The incident provoked cheers. "You have told us that America could no longer stand aloof," Mr. Balfour said, "but must take her place in the world struggle and bear her share. It will be a great share, a great share in that contest for the liberty of mankind which is now moving every corner of the earth." Alluding to an assertion by the Mayor that the moral sense of New York City had been with the Allied cause from the beginning, Balfour said, "I know that is so; and believe me, even before you came in, and before, as Mr. Choate said, you were prepared to throw everything before that the consciousness that we had with you the sympathy of this great nation was not a small support to those who were for the moment bearing the whole burden and heat of the day. But the happier occasion has come." Balfour added, "The United States have thrown all their great wealth and greater even in the cause of terrestrial fighting than wealth. They have thrown all those forces into the common stock, they are going to share our fortunes, share our trials, share our struggles, and, Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen, share our triumphs." Leaving the City Hall, escorted by a squadron of cavalry and two troops of mounted police, automobiles carrying the city's guests were driven north through Lafayette Street and Union Square, Fifth Avenue, thence to the home of Vincent Astor, where they will be entertained while in New York. All along the way they passed between lanes of cheering New Yorkers, who seemed proud to do honor to Britain's famous son and his associates. Balfour was kept busy doffing his hat in response to the plaudits of the throngs. He gazed curiously at the sky-scrapers along the way, and seemed intensely interested in the glimpses he caught of New York. To Mayor Mitchell who accompanied him he frequently expressed his pleasure at the cordial greeting given the Mission by the people of the city. The streets through which the envoys passed were a mass of colors. The Union Jack was displayed lavishly with the tri-color and Stars and Stripes.

EXTENDING AGE LIMIT.

LONDON, May 11. The war office announces that the voluntary recruiting age will soon be extended to men up to 50 years of age, both single and married. The announcement expresses the hope that those who come forward will be ready and willing to serve without delay when called upon.

THE SELECT SESSION.

LONDON, May 11. The following official account was given out to-day of the select session of the House of Commons, which proceeded to consider a vote for £5,000,000,000, which had been agreed to by the committee on Thursday night. A. F. Whyte called attention to naval affairs in the Mediterranean, and asked for better organization, for the consideration of high commands on that sea. Commander Bellairs pressed for more vigorous naval officers and younger personnel of the navy commands; greater approval in promotions and quicker response to important applications to the navy. Sir Henry Dalziel demanded that in addition to the King's recent proclamation a further appeal should be made to the country to economize food, and asked a number of questions ranging over many topics connected with the past, present and future. Sir Edward Carson, First Lord of the Admiralty said he welcomed instructive criticism but deprecated attacks and sometimes, therefore, endorsed the methods of the navy outside the House. He related some recent facts of gallantry and resource on the part of our patrols which had accounted for German submarines. He expressed the wish that he could publish everyone of them but explained the reasons why in the higher interest of the war it was desirable to refrain. He described the vast area over which the operations of the navy were daily and hourly worried on and asked that trifling incidents should be criticized with a true sense of their perspective. He gave information about the activity and ability in organizing anti-submarine warfare in co-operation with the naval air service and with coast patrols. Attention is being given to mercantile shipbuilding. The tonnage losses of the Allies and neutrals for each of the last three months of the war was given, to the House. Carson declined to alter the form in which weekly losses are made public, and which he said had been agreed upon among the Allies. Winston Spencer Churchill referred with satisfaction to the chief features of the debate and although he said he was not wholly convinced by the Prime Minister's speech, he thought that the demand for the secret sitting had been well justified. WAR SUMMARY.

NEW YORK, May 11. Bitter attacks by the troops of Crown Prince Rupprecht and the German Crown Prince are being made against the positions vital to the defences of Lens and Laon, held by the British and French. Field Marshal Haig and General Nivelle are holding their recent gains and throwing back the attacking Germans with heavy losses. South of the Souchez river one of the natural barriers to Lens, the Germans have made a third attempt to recapture the positions taken by the British on Thursday, and for a third time have been thrown back. A momentary footing was won by Prince Rupprecht's men, aided by liquid fire, in the new British positions, but a brilliant counter attack recaptured the lost trenches and left the British line unchanged. Around Cerny-en-Laonnois plateau overlooking the Ailette River, and only nine miles south of Laon, an important link in the German defense system in France, the German Crown Prince is expending man-power freely, but ineffectually, in an attempt to regain the lost ground, throwing his men in waves against the French on both sides of the village. He succeeded only in gaining about 200 yards of an advanced element, but the gain was short-lived, as the French counter attacked immediately and evicted the Germans. On a lengthy front in Macedonia the Entente forces continue their offensive with success between Dorian and Cerna river. The British checked Bulgarian attacks southwest of Dorian, and hold their recently-gained positions with tenacious grip. West of Dorian and west of the Vardar river the French have carried by storm important positions south of Huma on the Serbo-Greek border, and withstood violent counter attacks by the Bulgarians. Twenty miles to the west also, near the border, the Serbians have captured two Bulgarian works north of Pojar. In addition to inflicting heavy losses on the Germans and Bulgarians, the Entente forces in the Macedonian theatre on Thursday and Friday captured 300 prisoners.

will find our Prices Interesting.

We have just received a large shipment of Teas from Ceylon but same is being rapidly depleted.

We are, however, booked up for later deliveries, though at slight advances, and can at the moment (if you act quickly) book you up for Fall deliveries.

We anticipate that it will be very difficult to get freight space from Ceylon later, as it is not easy now, and we understand imports via New York are not up to requirements, which, combined with difficulties of exchange, insurance, etc., have given rise to talk of very high tea prices.

If you are a Tea Buyer and wish to avoid paying high prices now, and more especially in the Fall, call in and see us immediately, 'phone or wire.
