STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER XVIII.

But his bright words—died away when he saw the white face set as if in stone, and his countenance changed.

"Are you ill, Lola? Great Heaven, what is wrong? What is the matter? Is Madame—is anything wrong with Madame?"

"There is something wrong," she said, slowly, "but it concerns me, not Madame. It is a very simple wrong, but one which I lay at your door. My heart is broken."

She looked so woe-begone that he was touched. He would have resented reproaches or passionate words; but when a beautiful girl tells a man that her heart is broken, and he knows that it is for love of him it is hard indeed to be angry.

"I must ask you if it is true," she continued—"I will believe it from no other lips but yours—that you are going to marry Dolores?"

"Yes, I hope so," he replied.

"Was it of that hope you spoke to me on the night of your return?" she asked.

"Yes, it was."

"Then," she cried, raising her miserable face to the sky, "may Heaven have mercy on me! I—I thought you were alluding to me—I felt sure of it!"

"I do not see how you could, Lola," he returned. "My friendship with you has been perfectly open. There has never been any thought of love on my part. You must remember that I told you when you spoke of it, that your friendship with me should never interfere with your marriage."

"Yes, I remember it. It must have been my fancy, then; but I did believe you were beginning to care for me—and you would have cared for me but for Lady Rhymer's cruel treachery!"

"You must not speak in that way, Lola. There is no woman on earth so good, so pure, so worthy of all honor and reverence as Lady Rhymer. Whatever you have to say to me, say; but leave her name out of the question."

"You love her so!" she cried, in tones of utter despair.

"Yes; and why not? I have never loved any one else. We may all love whom we please."

She came a little nearer to him, and laid her hand upon his arm.

"Look at me," she said, with piteous eyes; "am I not fair to see?"

"You are one of the most beautiful of women," he answered.

"Am I not as fair as Dolores?" she asked, the old, bitter jealousy rising in her heart.

"Perhaps fairer in the eyes of others, but not so fair in mine."

"I have not found favor in your eyes," she said; but Sir Karl interrupted her.

"Why say more, Lola? What is done can never be undone. I have always admired you, and been your friend; more than that I cannot say—more would not be true."

"I understand," she answered, mournfully. "I am glad I came. I should not have believed it from any other lips than yours. I do not blame you. Remember that, if she had not come between us, you would have cared for me in time—you could not have helped it. My great love must have influenced you in the end; you are not hard-hearted."

"No, I am not. I am more grieved than I can tell you, Lola; but, my dear girl, I have never misled you; it is but a fancy of yours which you will forget in a few days."

"I shall take it with me to my grave," she replied. "You call such love as mine a fancy. Oh, how blind you must be! There has never been a greater—it is a love deep enough to have shielded you from every sorrow that falls to the lot of man. No other woman will ever love you so dearly, so truly. Dolores will not you will worship her and lavish a whole world of affection and love on her; she will accept it with smiles believe it to be her due, take it as a homage you ought to pay her, but, as for returning it, women of her stamp take, but never give. My love could be as the breath of the whirlwind, hers as the faintest sigh. Ah, Karl!" she cried in a pathetic voice, "pause and think before you give up such love forever."

He could not help feeling touched. So much love lavished, and in vain! He felt for the girl herself, for what must be her humiliation, her distress, her anguish!

"The time may come," she resumed, "when feeble love will fail you, when you will want a nature as strong as your own to help you. Ah, then you will miss me—I who love you so!"

"My dear Lola," he said huggily, "if I could but persuade you that it is all too late! I am so grieved that I cannot find words to express my sorrow. Be reasonable."

"Love like mine knows no reason," she answered. "I must hear the whole truth while I am here," she added. "You say it is too late. Perhaps it is not. You do not know the love I have for you. I—I—oh that I should have to say the words! But I must speak or I shall die—I would make you happier than any one else can, because I love you so dearly. If you do not marry Dolores, she will cry for a few days, and then calmly look out for a better match; while I—when you are gone from me—I shall die!"

He took the burning hands in his. "You are not yourself, Lola," he said. "I will not listen to another word. Let me tell you this—it is better to be frank with you. If Dolores dies to-morrow, I should go unmarriage to my grave. She is the only woman I ever could love; my fate—and to me it is a very happy one—is fixed beyond recall. I could not love you, even if I could prove false to Dolores. Now be your better, brighter self, and forget all this."

"Nay," she said bitterly, "my better, brighter self is dead. But I do not blame you; you would have loved me if she had not come between us—and she shall suffer for it! My vengeance shall fall upon her, not upon you!"

She raised her right hand—and he could not but notice how white and beautiful it was—raised it toward Heaven.

"I swear vengeance against the woman who has robbed me of my love," she said solemnly, "and swear that she shall suffer pain for pain, pang for pang—the sharpest suffering that human vengeance can inflict! As for you, I—I do not hate you—a false woman has taken you from me; it may be that we shall never meet again; but remember always, when you think of me, that my heart is broken. Farewell!"

"Lola!" he cried, "do not leave me in that way! You distress me inexpressibly. Tell me that you will try to be happy. I cannot bear you to leave me like this."

She turned her white face to him in silent farewell, and then passed out of his sight.

When Lola reached home, she went straight to her mother and flung her arms round her.

"Mamma," she said, "do you really love me, and wish me to live?"

"How can you ask me that, Lola? You are all I have in the world. If you were to die, I should die too."

"Will you do that which will save my reason and my life?"

"You know that I will," replied Madame.

"Then take me away from this place at once. I must not see either Sir Karl or Lady Rhymer again; if I do, I cannot answer for myself. I hate her! I cannot breathe the same air. I cannot be where I may see her. Take me away. Never mind the expense. Let us leave the house to-morrow. Mrs. Jordan can take care of it until we return. You must write to your friends and tell them that you have been called away suddenly, and have not time to say good-bye. Leave the time of your return quite uncertain. Do you understand?"

The sight of the white, set face aroused Madame's energies.

"It shall be done," she said, "just as you wish. Rest, Lola, and to-morrow we will leave this spot, where I wish with all my heart that I had never set my foot."

Madame kept her word. On the following day all her friends received a note saying that she had been suddenly called abroad, and that the time of her return being uncertain. Lola and herself had written to say farewell.

The news of their departure was soon all over the neighborhood. Sir Karl heard it in silence, Dolores with tears. Of Lola's wild vow of vengeance Sir Karl breathed not a word to his affianced wife.

Cupid Couldn't Catch Them!
WONDERFUL WOMEN WHO NEVER MARRIED.

The death of Miss Marie Corelli was a reminder that many women who have attained to high fame never married. Probably the most famous historical spinster is Queen Elizabeth. The refusal of her hand to Philip of Spain brought the Armada up the Channel and to ultimate destruction. Miss Hannah More, the friend of Dr. Johnson, is, however, much more typical than Elizabeth of that influential line of unmarried women who have done so much to mother their country. Hannah, though staid in later years, was inclined to be almost frivolous up to middle life. She lived in the household of Garrick as companion to his wife until the great actor's death, and so vivacious, unaffected, and witty was she that she was petted and flattered by all the great literary men of the day.

Admired, But Not Married.

It was when she expressed surprise that the poet who could write "Paradise Lost" should write "such poor sonnets," that Johnson said one of his best things. "Milton, madam, was a genius that could cut a Colossus from a rock, but could not carve heads upon cherry stones." Hannah More was a pioneer of popular education, a great philanthropist, and the virtual founder of the Religious Tract Society.

Marie Edgeworth is regarded as the inventor of the novel with a purpose, of which kind "Castle Rackrent," which sent her name into immediate fame in 1800, is a typical example. Miss Edgeworth's influence was enormous. Her success with her Irish novel had much to do with turning Sir Walter Scott to the writing of prose fiction.

Her society was courted by "everybody who was anybody." Byron admired her, and Macaulay was among her enthusiastic worshippers. There is no doubt she is worth reading to-day if only for the naturalness and vivacity and character-revealing nature of her dialogue. In this respect she is comparable with Anne, Austen, another of the spinster immortals.

Disappointed in Love.

Miss Austen's reputation was almost wholly posthumous, although she is supposed to have written her masterpiece, "Pride and Prejudice," when she was twenty-one.

It is said that Miss Austen's first book was rejected with something like scorn, and though she sold "Northanger Abbey" to a publisher in Bath for £10, he did not see fit to issue it, and many years later, its author bought it back!

She depicts love-making with great humour and a touch of cynicism, which may possibly be accounted for by her own love disappointment in early girlhood.

At present there is a lively discussion as to the real author of "Wuthering Heights," but whether Branwell Bronte or his sister Emily wrote it, it is undeniable that the latter was a wonderful woman. She lived and died unmarried.

There seems to be no record of any love affair in this lonely woman's life, and for many years after her death any reputation which was her due was completely overshadowed and veiled by Charlotte's fame.

A Poet's Inspiration.

Two devoted sisters of two great men come to mind in this connection—Dorothy Wordsworth and Mary Lamb. The latter, in a fit of mental aberration, killed her mother, and thereafter Charles gave up any thought of marriage and devoted himself to his sister, a devotion she returned with an equal brother's matchless essays.

Wordsworth's sister Dorothy was the poet's comrade and companion both before and after his marriage to Mary Hutchinson. The germ of many of her brother's most famous lyrics is found in her diaries and journals.

War Sacrifices Being Forgotten

LLOYD GEORGE MAKES INTERESTING SPEECH AT MEMORIAL UNVEILING.

Mr. Lloyd George, unveiling a war memorial tablet at Merton House School, Penzance, said in the course of his address:

I have never criticised conscientious objectors, and I certainly should not dare to do so now, for this is their day.

I have this to say for those young men who laid down their lives, that the conscience that impelled its possessor at the call of duty to face torture and death is put to a severe strain than the conscience that induces one to escape those terrors.

I have seen these war memorials everywhere I go. Cynic and sceptic may ask to what purpose are they raised. The answer is what would have happened to all that is best in Europe if the sacrifices had not been made. As it was, it was a much nearer thing than I care to ponder over even now.

Although it is not five years since the struggle for freedom was closed in Europe, we are forgetting the sacrifices that were made, and what was achieved through those sacrifices.

One Saved

The curtain had just fallen on the second act of the opera amid terrific applause from the audience. Suddenly those nearest the stage became conscious of a stir and hurrying behind the scenes.

A faint smell began to pervade the atmosphere; smoke came from the wings.

In an instant the same thought struck everyone, and the same word left every lip: "Fire!"

A stampede seemed imminent. The hero of the hour arose from his seat in the stalls.

"Keep your seats!" he shouted. His words and manner reassured the terror-stricken people, and shamefacedly they sank back into their seats.

Slowly the man strode to where live sublimate poisoning and other maladies where death is due in consequence of overworking of kidneys, it was learned at the Hopkins School to-day. Efforts to use an artificial kidney in that manner have been used in Baltimore, but failed because Dr. Abell's work on it was interrupted by the war and that he did not have parts of a kidney and could not make it available for use here. Physicians believe that through many lives, which otherwise would be sacrificed, will be saved in future, especially lives of those who attempt suicide by taking bichloride of mercury or corrosive sublimate. The number so poisoned has been very large. The false kidney is placed in a tube of glass and other matter, which can be attached to the arm or some other part of the body. It is connected with an artery on one side and vein on the other, so that the blood flows through it and impurities are filtered by means of the artificial kidney through waters of the body and are drawn from the false kidney while the real kidney rests.

Pageant at Wembley

LONDON, July 6.—(Can. Press)—Details have now been learnt of the great Empire Pageant at Wembley, from July 21 to Aug. 30. Canada will take a prominent part in this pageant, a representation of some of the landmarks in the history of the Empire. Canada's programme covers the period of her early history from 1604 onwards. The prelude depicting Jacques Cartier's activities in the New France will show him setting sail from St. Malo on April 20, 1534, reaching Newfoundland, making a circuit of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and on his return to France on Sept. 5, 1534, taking with him two Indians. His second voyage on May 19, 1555, his landing at Quebec and pushing on to Hochelaga, the site of what is now the City of Montreal, and his taking possession of the region will be shown in the prelude to the pageant.

The programme of the pageant proper is in six scenes, the first covering from the first permanent French occupation in 1604, of a small island of the St. Croix River, down to the cession of Acadia to Great Britain in 1713, the capture of Louisburg in 1759, and of Montreal in 1760. New France, as Canada was then designated, will be reproduced in miniature, the culture, manners and customs of Old France, from which its population was wholly drawn. The Sieur de Monts, de Champlain and de Maisonneuve, Governors Montagny, Courcelles and Frontenac, Bishops Laval, St. Vallier and Pontreil, explorers Joliet, La Salle and La Verreyre, Missionaries Fathers Brebeuf, Lalonde and Marquette will pass before the spectators.

In scene two will be given a representation of the English and French armies of Wolfe and Montcalm who met in battle on the Plains of Abraham on Sept. 13, 1759.

The arrival in Canada of over 65,000 United Empire Loyalists who, during and at the conclusion of the American War of Independence, gave up all their possessions in the original 13 Colonies in order to continue to live under the British flag, is shown in the third scene.

In scene four will be depicted the principal characters of the war 1812-14 between Canada and the United States. Here will be seen Comman-der-in-Chief Sir George Prevost, Sir Isaac Brock, Sir Gordon Drummond, General Proctor, Sir James Yeo, Col. de Salaberry, the Indian Chief Tecumseh Col. Morrison and last but not least the heroine Laura Secord.

"The Fathers of Confederation" are the subject of the fifth scene. Here will be shown Sir Etienne Tache, Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir George Etienne Cartier, George Brown, Sir Oliver Mowat, Sir Charles Tupper and others.

In the closing scene will be represented the founding of the Hudson's Bay Company in 1670, and the extension of its factories towards Rupert's Land and the Pacific Ocean; the founding of the rival Northwest Company and of its quarrel with the Earl of Selkirk's Colonists on the Red River leading to the murder of Governor Simpson on June 19, 1816; of the fusion of the Northwest and Hudson Bay Companies in 1821; the Northwest Mounted Police, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the National Railway, British Columbia and the development of the Prairie lands, the Empire's greatest granary.

NEW YORK, July 12. Prohibition agents raided the Ritz Carlton Roof Garden last night, when the restaurant was serving more than 400 patrons, arrested six waiters and a patron and left a summons for the manager of the Garden. The sudden appearance of the officers threw the roof garden into turmoil. Many diners jumped from the tables and swarmed around the raiders. The agents hurried from table to table where they allege they saw dozens of filled or partly filled champagne glasses, and snatched from the tables whatever evidence they could find. Many diners spilt the evidence. The waiters appeared in court this morning in evening clothes.

Commercial Defaults in Canada

From R. G. Dun & Co's. Weekly Trade Review.

A contrast is shown between statistics of failures for the Dominion of Canada and those for the United States. Whereas, there were more defaults in the United States during the second quarter of this year than in a similar period of 1923, failures in Canada decreased by 22.7 per cent. Thus, the 427 commercial defaults in Canada, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., for the second quarter, compare with 783 in the corresponding three months of last year, while the liabilities of $11,653,847 show a reduction of 22.5 per cent from the $15,041,251 of the earlier year. Without exception, all Provinces reported fewer failures for the second quarter of this year, though there was a decrease of only one default in each case in Ontario, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. Aside from British Columbia, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, the indebtedness this year was smaller in every instance, the largest reduction being one of about $2,900,000 in Quebec.

In point of number of failures, the falling off in the Canadian business if this year, as compared with that of a similar period of 1923, extended to manufacturing, trading, and other commercial lines. The decrease in the manufacturing class as 62 and in the trading division 189, while there were five fewer defaults among agents, brokers, etc. The failures among manufacturers, moreover, involved liabilities smaller by nearly $4,000,000 than those of the second quarter of last year, and there was a reduction of about $1,700,000 in the trading indebtedness; but the liabilities of the "other commercial" defaults increased by $2,200,000.

The statement for the second quarter by provinces follows:

Provinces reported	Number	Liabilities
1924	1923	1924
Ontario	199	200	$3,295,101
Quebec	163	227	4,087,629

The Medical Association

The first conference of the Newfoundland Medical Association was held last week, and the spirit of co-operation that was so thoroughly in evidence at the dinner held in the Stirling Restaurant on Saturday night was sufficient testimony of the success of the meeting and a happy augury of its future.

Several matters of great public importance were considered during the session, chief among which were the questions of milk supply and hospital accommodation. The prohibition laws were also discussed and satisfaction was expressed at the decision of the Government to abolish the script system.

The figures quoted by the Medical Superintendent of the General Hospital are a striking illustration of the utterly inadequate provision made in Newfoundland to provide accommodation for those requiring medical attention, and also indicate the insuperable difficulties with which the Dept. of Health is faced in dealing with the numerous applications for admittance to our hospitals.

Of no less importance is the question of the milk supply both with regard to its source and its distribution. During recent years much has been done by the medical fraternity and by the citizens themselves to lessen dangers of tuberculosis, and with the enforcement of sane regulations, based on scientific knowledge and carried out by thoroughly qualified inspectors, a further advance will have been made towards the elimination of the risk of infection from this source.

The presence in St. John's of such a large number of medical men from all over the country is a splendid indication of the high public spirit which prevails throughout the Profession, and the quiet, unostentatious manner in which their deliberations were held is in keeping with its very best traditions.

While the benefit of such meetings to the public as a whole cannot be estimated, the effect upon the medical fraternity is also certain to be great. The interchange of ideas, the opinions of those who are specialists in one branch or other of the work, and the very fact of their assembling for a common purpose cannot but act as an incentive and an encouragement to those whose lives are devoted to the physical improvement of the race, the relief of suffering and to the general uplift of humanity.

A Light Needed

Complaint is made that the electric street lamp at the corner of Colonial and Bond Streets has not been in working order for nearly a week. The place has become the rendezvous of a number of disorderly persons, especially at a late hour of the night who cause considerable annoyance to residents. An occasional visit from a police officer would also be very much appreciated.

Bay Boats Ordered Home

As there is not enough traffic to warrant the enormous expense of operating, the management of the railway have deemed it advisable to discontinue the running of the bay boats at Fortune Bay, Bay of Islands and the operating of only one boat instead of two on the S. W. coast service. The Glencoe left Argentea on Saturday last taking five carloads of freight and a very small number of passengers. On arrival at Port aux Basques she will proceed direct to Humbermouth to take up the Battle Harbor service, replacing S. S. Home. The Portia will remain on the S. W. coast service and will in future make the ports of call vacated by the Glencoe.

S. S. Sebastopol leaves Humbermouth to-night for St. John's thus discontinuing the Bay of Islands route. The Wren is leaving Belleoram to-day, making all ports of call outward on her last trip to Fortune Bay. After the run has been completed she will proceed to St. John's.

Dinner at Golf Club

Violating the Rules of the Road

Our attention was drawn to two cases during the week-end of individuals who have not yet learnt the rules of the road or if they possess the information, do not show much sense in applying it. One was the case of a driver of a meat vendors wagon on Saturday evening, the other of a motor car on Sunday.

The former, regardless of the fact that two motor cars were immediately behind him on Topsail Hill, deliberately refused to pull to the left in order to enable them to pass, and continued to drive his horse in the most reckless manner through the middle of the road until the Telegraph Office was reached.

In the case of the motor driver, he came down over Spruce Hill Road at a speed which would have been excessive on a highway, although the lane is nowhere sufficiently wide to allow two cars to pass, and is used by a large number of children who are constantly running into the road from various gateways.

The name of the meat vendor and the number of the taxi driver are in our possession. This warning may be sufficient to make the individuals concerned more careful but the same leniency will not be shown in the event of a repetition of the offences.

A nine year old youth belonging to one of the city orphanages was taken in for safekeeping and ordered to be sent back to the institution. The young lad deserted his home about a week ago and it was only on Saturday night last he was found wandering about Water Street by the police.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

July 12th. - A most fair hot day, but a strong wind which makes the dust fly everywhere, and an almost choking with it, and is the contrast of climate in the whole world, since we cannot have good weather without divers disadvantages. Much more of this since the crops are getting nearly dry, and may be ruined by the heat. To the effect, where talking with dignitaries, who tell me a good deal of a fellow of his acquaintance that goes swimming at Loch Pond, and loses his teeth in the water. Going again for a bath, misfortune still dogs him, and he gives his foot a bad cut, and needs must be inoculated against tetanus. Much argument to-day with my wife about the table, she having meat daily, which is the silliest thing in hot weather, and mentions a vegetarian diet far more suitable, but cannot get the wretch to agree with me and must allow her to have her own way. This day the duller for many se'nnights and little news to be had, and indeed, the Board of Trade was deserted, which I have never known it to be before. I did see posted there a notice that Mr. Gordon, the High Commissioner, will have a meeting of the members on Monday, and I must go to it.

July 13th (Lord's Day). - Up betimes and with my wife to the Drumhead Service which the C.L.E. have on Kom-mont Road. Mignay pleasant to have the service in the open, and a good discourse by Mr. Godfrey, that is the new Curate at St. Thomas's. Talking this day with Pevoy of public matters, he says how the Auditors do still be working in dilatory departments, and are not like to complete their work for many months. They do, now be at work on the Customs and the Enquiry that will come of their report, will embrace nigh every department of the Government, and like to be productive of amazing scandals.

East End Taxi Company Joins Up

Saturday every member of that live concern, the East End Taxi Company applied for membership in the Newfoundland Motor Association as an appreciation of the excellent road repairing work done last year by the Road Commission as a result of the "Good roads" campaign originally instigated by the Motor Association.

The three leading taxi companies of the city are now members of the Newfoundland Motor Association as well as a large proportion of private car owners who appreciate the efforts that that Association has been making on behalf of all car owners since its formation in 1917. Road repairing and rebuilding will shortly be renewed under the supervision of the newly formed Road Commission.

As soon as the ship had dropped anchor in the stream, Mr. H. V. Hutchings, Acting Collector of Customs, and Mr. P. J. O'Neill, Landing Water, proceeded on board and gave the ship its official entrance. His Worship the Mayor, Hon. Tasker Cook, also boarded the ship in his official capacity, and upon being met by Mr. Charles H. Grakelov, Grand Exalted Ruler, Louis N. Goldsmith, Chairman, and F. Ralph Yocum, Secretary, tendered on behalf of the citizens of St. John's, the members of No. 3 Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, a hearty welcome to the city. His Worship at the same time expressed regret at the shortness of their stay but hoped that the few hours left at their disposal in night seeing, etc., would be enjoyable. Mr. Grakelov and party thanked the Mayor and people of St. John's for the kind invitation thrown open to them, and following three hearty cheers for the Mayor and numerous hand-shakes, the landing of the passengers began. The tugs, Moulton, John Green, and Hugh D., were engaged for this purpose, and by noon hour the 535 passengers on board had been landed at the King's wharf. Numerous taxis, carriages and motor buses, were already lined up on the wharf to be made use of by the visitors. The greater number of the party attended religious services in the various churches, while the remainder, who were a little late in getting on shore, boarded autos and carriages and drove about the city and to Signal Hill, for a visit to Cabot Tower. During the day the cable and gas were kept very busy. The day being hot, the visitors set about visiting nearby suburbs and were pleased with the splendid scenery, particularly Bowling Park, where they remained some time. Others, during the stay, preferred sight seeing about the city. They made good use of their cameras, the chief attraction being the War Memorial and the tank in front of the Court House. The party, with an excellent band of eighty musicians on board, commenced during the afternoon and treated the citizens of St. John's, who had gathered around, to a sacred band concert in front of the War Memorial. The music was of a very high order and concluded with the National Anthem.

At 4 p.m. re-embarkation commenced. The excursionists were quite pleased with their short stay, and expressing their intentions of paying a visit to the city on a future date, boarded the tugs and proceeded to the ship. By 5.30 p.m. all the passengers had returned safely to board, and amidst the tooting of horns and the cheers from the people gathered along the wharves, the passengers and crew of the Voltaire were given a hearty farewell. The big liner then proceeded out the Narrows at 6 o'clock, bound for Halifax.

The party left Philadelphia on July 5th, on a two weeks excursion, taking in Boston, St. John's, Halifax, and return to Philadelphia on July 17th. They remained four days in Boston while en route, during which time a big convention was held. The Grand parade of 15,000 Elks was marred somewhat owing to torrential falls of rain which lasted for upwards of two hours. The ship left Boston on Thursday night at 11.30 and delightful weather was encountered on the trip to this port. The ship, with an average speed of 25 knots completed the run in the short space of forty-eight hours, while the run from Cape Race to Cape Spear was accomplished in three and one-half hours.

The Voltaire is a splendid twin screw steamer of 15,500 tons gross and 7,995 tons net. She is 530 feet long, 84 feet beam and 39 feet deep. She belongs to the Lamport and Holt Lines and was built in Liverpool last year. Before being placed on charter for this trip, she was engaged in southern waters. On her last trip from Rio de Janeiro to New York she had on board a cargo of coffee, valued at $1,000,000.

Captain Ostar Penrice, in command, is no stranger to this port. In the year 1889 he first visited here as third mate on the Bamoc Airias, which Capt. James Scott in charge, running between Liverpool, St. John's, Halifax, and Baltimore.

Welcome Extended

TO N.F.L.D. HIGH COMMISSIONER BY BOARD OF TRADE.

A welcome to his native land was extended to Capt. Victor Gordon, High Commissioner at London, by the members of the Newfoundland Board of Trade at a largely attended meeting held at noon to-day. President Steer, extending a welcome to Capt. Gordon and offering congratulations on his appointment as Commissioner, paid a tribute to the work performed by his predecessor in office, Sir Edgar Bowring.

Mr. L. Outerbridge, Chairman of the Nfd. Committee of the Empire Exhibition, who has been in close contact with Capt. Gordon in this connection in extending a welcome said that an appointment was more popular or deserving than that of Capt. Gordon to the High Commissioner. Paying a tribute to the work of Sir Edgar Bowring, he said that the increased reputation of Newfoundland due to the high standard set by our first High Commissioner would be maintained by Capt. Gordon. Had we not the High Commissioner at London it would be impossible for us to put up a creditable showing at the Exhibition with the limited funds at our disposal. Our success was due more to him than to anyone other man. In order to place on record the Board of Trade's appreciation of his services Mr. Outerbridge proposed the following resolution: - WHEREAS the office of the High Commissioner for Newfoundland was instituted to assist and protect the commercial interests of Newfoundland in Great Britain and Europe during the period of the Great War; and WHEREAS much benefit has resulted through the institution of such office; and

WHEREAS the High Commissioner for Newfoundland, Captain Victor Gordon, being at present in the country, the Council and members of the Board of Trade are desirous of expressing to him their congratulations, welcome, and appreciation of his services.

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED 1.-The members of the Newfoundland Board of Trade wish to offer a warm welcome to the High Commissioner for Newfoundland on his return to his native country and their hearty congratulations on his appointment to this important office. 2.-The members of the Newfoundland Board of Trade hereby place on record their high appreciation of Capt. Victor Gordon's services since the War while in the High Commissioner's Office, while acting as High Commissioner, and since his appointment as High Commissioner, which redound to the credit and reputation of Newfoundland in Great Britain and abroad.

3.-The members of the Board of Trade wish Capt. Gordon every success in the future and express the assurance of their good will and their confidence in his great ability to perform the functions of his high office to the benefit of Newfoundland. Mr. R. E. Job seconded the resolution, and in doing so, spoke of how courteous Capt. Gordon was to all Newfoundlanders visiting London. He had watched his career with pleasure, and was pleased at his attaining the exalted position of High Commissioner.

Mr. W. A. Munn followed and spoke of the necessity of a High Commissioner in the world metropolis. He pointed out that it was in the London Hospitals that the investigations into the properties of Cod Liver Oil which promised so much for the Newfoundland product had begun. He appreciated the good work being done by Capt. Gordon and had much pleasure in welcoming him.

Welcome Extended

TO N.F.L.D. HIGH COMMISSIONER BY BOARD OF TRADE.

Mr. B. G. Rendell spoke of his recent visit to the Old Land and how Capt. Gordon had in emergencies rendered him every possible assistance, he being available night and day.

Com. Howley, B.N., also spoke of his acquaintance with the work done by the High Commissioner's Office. It was like stepping on a bit of the homeland when a Newfoundlandier went into the office he said. Sir Patrick McGrath endorsed what had been said by the previous speakers. He had quarters at the High Commissioner's Office during the past two years and could see how the organization was carried on. In every aspect of his duties he believed Capt. Gordon gave complete satisfaction. He therefore had much pleasure in endorsing the resolution.

Capt. Gordon replied felt overwhelmed at the kindness shown him and doubted his ability of expressing his appreciation of the hospitality and manifestations of good will which had been showered on him since his arrival. He had been told that the office was an ornamental fabric, that all they did was dine with the Lord Mayor and improve their own corporations. His desire to call personally on all his friends was a physical impossibility he said, owing to his stay being short, but he assured one and all Newfoundlanders that should they come to London they would find his door on the latch.

The service at the church was attended by a large gathering of worshippers. Included in the ranks were the Ladies of the Orange Benevolent Association, who occupied special seats. The Rector, Rev. A. B. S. Stirling, delivered a powerful sermon suitable to the occasion and was listened to with rapt attention by the congregation. Following the singing of the last hymn a collection was taken up in aid of the Benevolent Fund. The parade was one of the largest yet held.

Home Makes a Quick Trip

S.S. Home, Capt. Norman, arrived in port at 9 o'clock last night, making the run from Battle Harbor in the remarkably quick time of 33 hours. As previously reported S.S. Home hit the rocks at Isle au Bois on Friday evening, and sustained damage to her bows. As far as can be learned there was a dense fog at the time, and in addition the air which drifted across the Straits was heavily laden with smoke from forest fires on the Canadian shore. The ship was proceeding from Flower's Cove to Bonae Esperance when she struck the Southwest point of Isle au Bois. At the time a heavy tide was running to the eastward. Due to the atmospheric conditions the fog alarm was not heard up to the moment of striking, and then only in a faint manner, so that navigation was very difficult. The ship made some water in the forepeak but came off without difficulty. The damage, it is thought, is not extensive.

The World Loves a Pleasant Man

If we were delivering a dissertation for the development of the better nature of the races the above headline would represent our subject and the following quotation, true to nature, would be appended, says the Mt. Sterling (Ky.) Advocate, as it is now given for serious thought:

Learn to laugh; a good laugh is better than medicine. Learn to tell a story; a good story, well told, is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick room. Learn to stop croaking; if you cannot see any good in the world, keep the bad to yourself. Learn to hide your aches and pains under pleasant smiles; no one cares to hear whether you have headaches or rheumatism. Learn to meet your friends with a smile; a good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the dyspeptic is not wanted anywhere. Above all, give pleasure; less no chance of giving pleasure. You will pass through this world but once. Any good, therefore, that you can do, any kindness that you can show to any human being, you had better do it now; do not defer or neglect it.

BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT IN SIGHT

But Not Likely to Develop Quickly, According to Harvard Economic SERVICE. (Boston News Bureau) Boston—Harvard Economic Service says: "The present ease in the money market, which has already had a stimulating effect upon the prices of investment securities, is likewise a powerful constructive factor in the general business situation. The lowering of interest rates has clearly helped to improve sentiment, although, so far, there is little evidence that it has resulted in actual improvement in business conditions. The existence of a large accumulation of surplus funds upon the money market, as the result of continued gold imports combined with the recent recession of business, has, however, created conditions which are peculiarly favorable to security operations. Through such operations, a large volume of funds—directly as the result of easy money—is becoming available for future employment in commodity markets. Moreover, since these funds are largely used in permanent improvements, their effect will be felt in markets, many of which are now depressed. Up to the present, it is clear that such purchasing has not become generally effective, although there has been somewhat greater activity in the pig-iron and structural steel markets.

"Favorable conditions in the money market have pleased the United States in a position to stimulate foreign borrowing in significant amounts. Experience has shown that such loans are directly beneficial to export trade. It is still too early, however, to say that business improvement is definitely under way. The distinctly favorable conditions in the money market have undoubtedly strengthened the general situation; but marked business improvement is not likely to develop quickly out of the easier money condition."

Bonzo's Black Record

MONTEREAL, Que., July 8.—(Canadian Press)—One more stain was added to an already black record when Bonzo, the marauder, jail-breaker and all-round bad monkey of the Biological Building of McGill University, escaped the other day and killed five guinea pigs before he was returned to his cage, after four hours' freedom. Apparently Bonzo had spent some time mastering details of the system by which his cage-door operated, and after a period of keen observation work, he decided to apply his knowledge. Reaching through the bars of his cage he grasped the bolt which formed part of the fastening, removed it carefully and leaped out. From a vantage point somewhere near the ceiling he hurled down, imprecations on the heads of those who came to capture him, and when, a bit later, a keeper opened one of the cages to give water to a family of guinea pigs Bonzo descended in whirlwind fashion, entered the cage and before he could be stopped had ended the earthly careers of the five unfortunate guinea pigs. For four hours Bonzo enjoyed his reign of terror. Then the inner monkey proved his undoing. He began to feel a bit hollow and spring some appetizing visions on a plate in a glistening looking box he warily partook of the viands. As he did so a lid closed over his head and the next moment he was back in his cage. Escaping from his cage is the best thing Bonzo does. Six weeks after his arrival at the Biological Building, less than two years ago, he managed to get free and did $300 damage before he was recaptured. A year ago he broke his chain, and spent a hectic two weeks raising disturbances in different parts of the city. Not until his argument with a cannie had resulted in a tussle of traffic on one of Montreal's principal streets did his purveyors pick up the trail which led him back to his cell.

Newfoundland Medical Association

FIRST ANNUAL DINNER BRINGS BUSY AND PROFITABLE WEEK TO CONCLUSION.

His Excellency the Governor, Chief Justice Horwood and Prime Minister Monroe Present.

(Daily News.)

Last week will long be remembered by the medical practitioners of Newfoundland. The sessions of the newly formed Association were more of a professional than of a public nature, so that reports of the proceedings have not yet been available. Much of the work accomplished is necessarily experimental, but if nothing else resulted from this first conference, such a conference was possible, is sufficient to justify its assembling.

There are about a hundred practitioners in the Island. All could not come. Like clergymen, physicians are not free to come and go as they please. Their patients must be considered. Provision must be made for emergencies. The spirit of co-operation was everywhere in evidence. By mutual agreement difficulties and hindrances were removed. How effectively this was accomplished is shown by the fact that during the week not a message of recall was received. Men did double work. The spirit of self-sacrifice was given practical expression. Fully fifty foregathered. Most, if not all of the others were disappointed, but took their disappointment philosophically, and the hope will be that next year their turn will come.

The proceedings closed on Saturday night with a dinner at Stirling's Restaurant. Dr. L. E. Keegan, President of the Association, presided. On his right was His Excellency the Governor, Sir William L. Allardice, K.C.M.G. and the Hon. Chief Justice, Sir William Horwood, and on his left the Hon. W. S. Monroe, the Prime Minister.

After discussing a generous and dainty menu the toast to His Majesty was proposed by President Keegan, and followed by the National Anthem.

The next toast "His Excellency the Governor" as proposed by Dr. H. E. Rendell. The Doctor was in reminiscent mood, and in the few minutes at his disposal made happy references to members of the profession who had done honour to Newfoundland. He told of the Rev. Mr. Clench, a fellow-student of the great Jenner, divine, lawyer and physician, who had successfully fought in an outpost district against small-pox, which, until the discovery of vaccine had wrought continuous havoc, and filled the cemeteries with its victims. The disease broke out in St. John's and the Governor of that day called the outpost physician to the rescue. He came promptly and fortified by instruction from his old college comrade did for Newfoundland what Sir William Jenner did for England and the world. He told of Dr. Carson the elder. He, as it may be, a source of trouble to the Governor of that time. For Home Rule he struggled and won. He wondered whether were the good doctor with us to-day, he would be quite satisfied with the result of his labours. Reference was made to Dr. Crowley of later years, who was the first to use a general anaesthetic in Newfoundland.

Dr. Henry Shea, the first surgeon to perform ovariotomy, and this, at a time when he was nearer 70 years of age, than 60; to Dr. Henry Stubb, father of Dr. Fred of happy memory to whom the establishment of the Lunatic Asylum was mainly due; to Dr. Grenfell whose work was perhaps to near to adequately estimate, to the sacrificing labours of outpost practitioners, with special reference to Dr. Fitzgerald of Fortune Bay, "the young man who has worked for over half a century" around the rugged coast, and at 77 years of age, with no companion except his faithful log, is ever ready to answer the call of distress. The object of the association was, primarily, the welfare of the public on hygienic lines. Every country has its obligations towards the poor and needy. These must be met in the most economical way possible. Unfortunately the subject had never been considered on technical lines. The per capita ratio of hospital accommodation to population in most countries is 1 to 250. In Newfoundland it is 1 to 2000. The time had reached when the present system must cease. Prohibition was too controversial for discussion, but it was pleasant news that something was in contemplation whereby improvement might result. It was wrong that the profession should have been placed in the position of vendor of liquors. As he regarded it the men who gave scripts for beverage purposes were equally to blame whether they took money or not.

Mr. J. Alex Robinson proposed the "Senior practitioners of Newfoundland" coupling with the toast the name of Dr. C. Fitzgerald, Sr., of St. Jacques, Fortune Bay, and that "young man" to quote Dr. Rendell's happy Later Dr. Fitzgerald, Sr. suggested that a Medical Association Link should be forged for the Permanent Marine Disaster Fund. Although cash seldom accompanies evening dress, a substantial link was soon forthcoming whose weight was the equivalent of fifty-five dollars.

life had been saved, and that therefore, having done so, it was his responsibility to provide him with all the clothing and provisions of which he then stood in need or would thereafter require. Other stories, of interest to the profession were told humorously. Sir William disclaimed any professional qualifications as a surgeon or physician, he appears to have done some successful, if extraordinary work as an amateur.

The toast of "Our Other Guests" as proposed by Dr. Jones of Avondale, who referred to the dinner as "the bringing out party of the Newfoundland Medical Association." The Association, he said, passed the teething phase; it had got over it, and soon its voice would be heard. Professional bodies, when organized, should prove a power for good in any country.

Chief Justice, Sir William Horwood, in reply regarded the occasion as an epoch in the history of the Medical profession in Newfoundland. He referred to the fine traditions of both the medical and legal bodies in the Island, traditions of public service, and of that sense of duty professional men, in especial degree, owed to their profession. There was no more honored one than that of medicine. Not in the single instances, but in many had doctors of medicine proved themselves benefactors of the race. Great discoveries had been made, and their advantages given without thought of reward, for the benefit of humanity. Healers of men had refused to commercialize their calling and he was confident that the doctors of Newfoundland would maintain the best and noblest of the traditions that had been handed down by a long and honored line of noble and self-sacrificing men in the years gone by.

The Hon. Walter S. Monroe, Prime Minister, then proposed a toast to the Newfoundland Medical Association. He was accompanied by a real Newfoundland welcome. Bringing together of such a large body of physicians must, he thought, result in great benefit to the profession. He had heard that many questions had been discussed by them in their meetings, and amongst them the Prohibition Act. It would, he was sure, be a satisfaction to them to know that the medical men of Newfoundland are to be relieved of the responsibility of giving scripts. This announcement was received with prolonged applause. Continuing the Prime Minister said that he much appreciated the appointment of a committee from their Association to confer with the Government. There were many difficulties to be solved. Amongst these the matter of hospital patients. Better arrangements must be made, better at both ends. It was wrong to send patients to the institutions before provision for them had been made. Discrimination must be avoided through urgent cases should necessarily have precedence. It was a real pleasure to him to see so many present, and also to be thus privileged to propose a toast to an Association which he felt sure would do much for the welfare of the public and for the promotion of those things which their members lived and practised.

Dr. Keegan replying on behalf of the Association, congratulated the Prime Minister on his recent victory at the polls. His success had been largely due to alliance with the doctrines and teachings of modern hygiene; and presumably he was returned to power at the head of an aseptic government. In professional terms the Doctor wittily and incisively commented on some points of public interest. The loyal support and cordial co-operation of the medical men of Newfoundland would be available at all times for the promotion of those things that would benefit the public health and tend to make safe the future of the country. Many of the Doctors present had come to the city at great personal and professional inconvenience. They would be felt sure, return to their practices with the assurance that they had been accompanied by the welfare of the association.

The object of the association was, primarily, the welfare of the public on hygienic lines. Every country has its obligations towards the poor and needy. These must be met in the most economical way possible. Unfortunately the subject had never been considered on technical lines. The per capita ratio of hospital accommodation to population in most countries is 1 to 250. In Newfoundland it is 1 to 2000. The time had reached when the present system must cease. Prohibition was too controversial for discussion, but it was pleasant news that something was in contemplation whereby improvement might result. It was wrong that the profession should have been placed in the position of vendor of liquors. As he regarded it the men who gave scripts for beverage purposes were equally to blame whether they took money or not.

Mr. J. Alex Robinson proposed the "Senior practitioners of Newfoundland" coupling with the toast the name of Dr. C. Fitzgerald, Sr., of St. Jacques, Fortune Bay, and that "young man" to quote Dr. Rendell's happy Later Dr. Fitzgerald, Sr. suggested that a Medical Association Link should be forged for the Permanent Marine Disaster Fund. Although cash seldom accompanies evening dress, a substantial link was soon forthcoming whose weight was the equivalent of fifty-five dollars.

Throughout the proceedings good fellowship reigned. Dr. Grive led the singing. Mr. Eri Fox presided at the piano and Dr. Sinclair gave a solo. The Rotarians song book was used freely, rigorously and effectively. At the close an informal farewell took place in which college songs were sung and college memories were revived. The first Annual Dinner will not soon be forgotten by those who were privileged to take part. Even a professional gathering is not unending, and on Saturday night responsibilities and anxieties were for the moment forgotten while graduates reverted to the merry days of student life.

Disagreeable Taste Removed from C. L. Oil

Norwegian Scientist Makes Valuable Discovery in Preparing Cod Liver Oil for use.

American exporters of margarine, cotton seed oil and vegetable fats may lose the Norwegian market for their products on account of a recent discovery by a Norwegian scientist, according to a report by the American consul at Christiania to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

It seems that Professor Hjort, of the University of Christiania, after using up 500 barrels of cod liver oil in experimenting, has found a method of removing the disagreeable taste from cod liver oil. By this means it becomes suitable for a variety of uses in food products including what is now used in making margarine.

The process involves steaming, it is said. This will make it easier for folks to take cod liver as a nutritive. In addition to opening an entirely new field for this by-product of the codfishery, it will mean the production of more medicinal oil and there will be less common cod oil so that the price of the latter will go up. Trade Review.

"The White Flowers"

THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF BIG ADOLPH ZUKOR FEATURES TO-DAY AT MAJESTIC.

The Majestic to-day presents a classical list of big attractions. "The White Flower" is the big picture feature whilst Ben Redden, Tenor vocalist, is singing three very acceptable songs including "The Irish Emigrant" and "Ashore." Music lovers of some few years past will remember the celebrated O'Chughnessy when he sang these grand solos in St. Patrick's Hall. Redden likewise will render them in a very pleasing manner.

An entrancing story of the Hawaiian Islands is "The White Flower," a Paramount picture starring Betty Compson. Miss Compson plays the part of a young, half American, half Hawaiian girl who is in love with a young American, the pineapple king of the island. Many are the plans which Miss Compson forms for winning this young fellow's love. In fact, she almost does away with his fiancée by the aid of mysterious rites, so great is her love for him. She realizes, however, what she is about to do, and at the crucial moment her real womanhood asserts itself.

The photography, as well as the acting, in the production is excellent. The direction by Julia Crawford Ivers, who also wrote the story, is superb. One of the many noteworthy scenes in the picture is that showing the crater of the volcano Kilauea. The heart appeal is intense.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

The much talked of football match between the Guards and Cadets takes place to-night, commencing at 7.30. As these two teams have not as yet just a point, and are both running strong for the championship, the contest promises to be hard fought from beginning to end. No doubt the largest attendance of fans for the season will be present to witness the game. The Guards team will be minus the services of "Dicky" Quick, the tricky inside right in the game to-night. Quick has been on the sick list ever since the Guards-B.I.S. game, and it is quite probable he will be forced to remain out of the game for the season. Otherwise both teams are intact, and will enter the field very evenly matched.

WIN $10,000 TROT.

WINDSOR, Conn., July 10.—Fayette National, setting a new trotting record of 2:07 1-2, won the $10,000 purse at Sage Park to-day in straight heats. The brown gelding which diminutive Tom McKee brought on from Milwaukee for his first appearance over an Eastern course, performed true to form that has won for him the reputation of being the greatest of trotting campaigners over a double O. Exa Frisco was second. Peter Look, which "Wes" Gibbons races for A. J. Wills, of Lawrence, Mass. won the 2:09 pace in 2:10 1-4, 2:14 1-4, in which after taking the heat as he liked in 2:09 1-4.

HEALEY & MCKENNA.

Healey and McKenna are to meet at Sydney, July 20. The Sydney Record says: "McKenna is now managing his own boxing affairs, having severed connections with Joe Uvanni, his former mentor. Uvanni became unpopular with some of the Cape Breton fight clubs and the matchmakers refused to do any more business with him." Now these clubs will be ready to deal with McKenna himself, and perhaps a bout with Joe Carbons may be arranged within a short time.

A $2,000,000 OFFER.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Promoters of the Queensboro A.C. in Long Island City, announced that an offer of $2,000,000 had been made to Jack Kearns, Dempsey's Manager, for a title bout against the champion and Bartley Madden, of New York, to be held in the Queensboro Stadium on Labor Day. Kearns would not say whether the offer would be accepted or not.

WILL DEFEND TITLE WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

Abe Goldstein, bantamweight champion of the world, will defend his 113 pound crown in a 15-round match against Charley Ledoux, of France, in the New York Velodrome, July 15.

Editor of "In the Realms of Sport."

Dear Sir,—While we must agree in the main with Mr. Johnson's letter in this evening's issue, any attempt to whitewash the judges' decisions in the recent bouts is futile.

On the first night I was surprised when Phelan was not awarded at least a draw against Vandersteen. He had a huge advantage during the first round, the second was about even and if in the third Vandersteen had a shade it was all he had. I put it down, however, to a mere difference of opinion.

When Diamond, after clearly out-judging and out-punching his man right through, was made to go another round and finally done out of his decision, I was disgusted.

Thursday night I scored the Diamond-Jabbs bout myself. Not counting even-exchanges in mixups, the count of "clean forceful hits" was 11-3, 8-2, 10-2, 12-3 for the rounds, all in Diamond's superior style, cleaner boxing, and aggressiveness, this is what I call a considerable margin, and it was no wonder he had no heart for the extra round when this second raw deal was handed him.

If we are to boost boxing in this country this seems to me a most peculiar way to go about it, as every fan in the rank loudly attested.

Yours truly,
ENTHUSIAST.
St. John's, July 12th, 1924.

RITOLA, FINLAND, ESTABLISHES NEW WORLD'S RECORD.

Scholtz, U.S.A., Equals Record 200 Metres Dash.

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Columbus, France, July 9.—The fourth day of the Olympic Track and Field Sports saw the large and powerful United States team drawing away from its gallant rivals in the struggle for the world's athletic honors. With twelve events completed the nations stood:

United States, 135.
Finland, 73.
Great Britain, 34 1/2.
Sweden, 13 1/2.
France, 13 1/2.
Hungary, 7 1/2.
Switzerland, 5.
South Africa, 5.
Norway, 4.
New Zealand, 4.

The tragedy of to-day's events was the defeat of Harold Abrahams, Cambridge crack sprinter, who finished last in the 200 metre which was won by Jackson V. Scholz, of New York, in the record time of 21 3/4 seconds. The glory of the day was the world's record established by Finland's iron man, Willie Ritola, who did the 3,000 metre steeplechase in 9 minutes 33 1/2 seconds.

Broken by three days of fierce running, Harold Abrahams' defeat in the two hundred metres was forecasted. His British running mate, Liddell, was outpaced by two United States runners and took third place in the race.

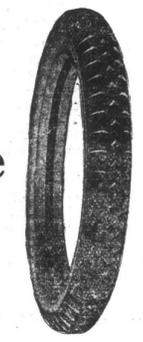

In the steeple-chase Ritola, who started off Sunday by breaking the world's 10,000 metre record, was running for his fourth consecutive day but seemed as fresh as when he started out to make Olympic endurance history. This gruelling race over hurdles, obstacles and water 'umps, gave Finland's point score a big boost, for Ritola's countryman Katz, finished second, seventy-five metres behind the winner, while another Finn, Ebb took fifth place, after being beaten out for fourth by Marvin Rick, New York.

When the Police Dig

The Fall of A Leaf Or A Broken Twig May Lead The Sleuth-Hounds Of The Law To The Solution Of A Great Crime Mystery.

Digging, as done by the police in places where bodies are supposed to be buried, does not consist of a mechanical turning over of the soil until a bone is discovered, as many people imagine. Very special powers of detection are called for by such searches.

This special ability is among the most useful assets police officials can have, especially in such a year as this, in the first five months of which the country has watched, with bated breath, daily newspaper reports of at least six police searches for bodies known or believed to be buried in or about certain spots.

I have been present at two such diggings in the last two months. At the first, the search by the Derbyshire police of a fox covert three miles from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, I had a graphic instance of how great are the difficulties and how skilled our crime investigators must be to surmount them.

Points in Plants.

This search, it will be recalled, was undertaken on a report from Canada, alleging that a certain man who had lived in the locality had murdered and buried two men in a part of the fox covert which was only roughly indicated.

The first action of the police was to bring to the spot a retired superintendent who remembered the coverts before the date given as that of the alleged murder. Where his eye suspected differences in plant growth or earth surfaces, police were soon plying their shovels.

This woods covers many acres and, as a man might bury a body six feet or more deep in any part of it, to dig all over such an area to such a depth and thoroughly sift it would take hundreds of men a very long time.

Here, again, police resource was necessary. I saw an official going around and examining the plant growth. He had sufficient knowledge of botany to judge the ages of the grasses, wild bulbs, and plants that abounded.

On a man he marked spots where whole patches of young growth were thriving among older growths, and here spades of earth were removed.

Those who superintended the digging watched the earth carefully. Taking shovels themselves, they turned over soil to see if the substances were any less solid than the surrounding earth.

How Imagination Helps.

The man who digs a deep hole usually finds himself with plenty of earth to spare when he has filled up the hole again, quite apart from the soil displaced by a body. Therefore the police suspect mounds. Also, a criminal working in a hurry does not usually pack the earth to the same solidity at all depths. This fact is of the greatest help to the police.

Again, for reasons obvious to every gardener, such men replace the earth so hurriedly that the stumps are put into the earth last. Very stony spots thus come under suspicion.

The skilled detective puts himself in the place of the man who is supposed to have committed the crime.

He approaches the wood, copse, or whatever it is that is being searched. He imagines he is carrying a body. He knows that he will seek to get as far into the wood as possible, but he knows the limitations imposed by the weight of the body.

He is now working on the law of averages, one of the most valuable helps known in the elucidation of crime.

He knows that the average criminal will avoid digging near or in a path, or anywhere where the disturbance of earth will be discovered. He is disposed to suspect bushes, but where the branches are thick, strong, and low, he knows that they would probably be too great a hindrance to digging.

Where Leaves Lie Thickly.

Where they are thin and supple, he knows that a criminal would be disposed to dig beneath them if other circumstances suited him.

It is important for him to remember where leaves lie thickly during the fall. Criminal records show that murderers have often chosen such spots, for the obvious reason that fallen leaves can be made to lie innocently over the foulest wounds in another earth.

One interesting point I noticed in connection with the second search at which I was present was that, in digging a garden, the police searched first a spot where the constant drainage of water kept the soil ever moist. In such a spot, of course, signs of recent digging would be the soonest effaced.

In a search amid stony country they looked out for places where the stones appeared to have been disturbed on a big scale. Stones that have lain in quantity for many years take on a settled appearance which the hand of man could not give to them, and the tops of them, of course, become whitened and washed clean.

It is the detective knowledge that tells the police where to dig that has sent many men to the scaffold and will send many more.—Answers.

The Riddle of the Tides

HOW THE MOON PLAYS TRICKS WITH THE EARTH.

The sea bristles with problems, of which few are more puzzling than the tides and their action. To-day, although we have proved that the tides are influenced largely by the moon, we know almost as little as the ancients did of the vagaries of the tides and of the various phenomena connected with them.

At Bournemouth, for example, there are what are known as double tides, caused, it is believed, by a tidal stream running from Spithead. This stream tends to keep back the tide in Southampton Water, with the result that at various points along the coast the tide rises for seven hours, ebbs for an hour, then rises again for about an hour and a half.

Near Arklow, on the Irish coast, there is no perceptible tide at all. Yet in the Bristol Channel the tides are among the heaviest known round our shores. Here the spring tides sometimes rise to a height of nearly fifty feet.

What the Ancients Believed.

The world's highest tides are those experienced in the Bay of Fundy, New Brunswick, where they often rise to a hundred feet.

This variation in the height of tides has claimed much expert attention. What are known as spring tides are changes that occur at or near the time when the moon is new or full, while neap tides coincide with the moon's first or third quarter.

The seaside visitor, if he is observant, will have noticed that periodically the tide reaches its greatest height and then ebbs to its farthest point. This rise and fall diminishes for a week, and then as gradually increases, until at the end of a fortnight the maximum ebb and flow is reached once more. It is these highest tides that are termed spring tides, while the lowest are known as neap tides.

Plato recorded his belief that waves and tides were the result of the convulsions of a mighty marine monster, whose rhythmic breathing caused the ebb and flow.

The Moon's Powerful Pull.

Aristotle attributed tidal movements to the sun, in which he was partly right, the sun's influence, however, being much less marked than that of the moon. A satisfactory explanation of the problem was not forthcoming until Newton pronounced his theory of gravitation two centuries ago.

"This influence of the moon is still imperfectly understood by large numbers of people. Briefly, it may be explained in this way. The moon's pull on the earth affects the near side more than it does the centre, while the sea responds more readily than the solid surface. The result is that the waters on the side of the earth nearest the moon are drawn together in a hump, as it were, high tides being a result.

Cuticura Talcum
Unadulterated
Exquisitely Scented

So far as the far side of the earth is concerned, the moon's pull affects the centre, the water being still farther away, "giving" less than the land. Hence we have high tide on this side of the earth also, with low tide occurring half-way between the two sides on which there is high tide. Six Hundred Miles an Hour.

What are known as tidal waves are the result of the sun, moon, and earth being in a straight line, the pull of gravity then affecting on a part of the earth more forcibly than any other. Such a wave may sweep right round the world at a speed of six hundred miles an hour.

Contrary to popular belief, the wind's effect on waves is comparatively slight. It has been proved that the dearest gale has no influence on water below a depth of fifty feet, whereas a tidal wave moves the whole bulk of the ocean in its path, causing an upheaval that may do in an hour or two more damage than a century of gales.

Lavish Production at the Nickel To-Night

"ENEMIES OF WOMEN" COMMENCED ENGAGEMENT.

"Enemies of Women," Cosmopolitan Corporation's production of the Vicente Blasco Ibañez story of the same title, with Lionel Barrymore and Alma Rubens featured in the two leading roles, opens at the Nickel Theatre to-night. Alan Crosland was the director, Joseph Urban designed the settings and John Lynch prepared the scenario. With many of its scenes taken on the actual locations of the story in Monte Carlo, Nice and Paris, and with a lavishness of production never surpassed the film promises to excel the average "super production" in every way.

Blasco Ibañez proved in his brilliant "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "Blood and Sand" that his stories have particular screen quality. Perhaps his ability in colorful description of characters and scenes is responsible for the ease with which his stories have been brought to the screen. In "Enemies of Women," the drama of regeneration of man and woman, is laid in the background of Russian society life, shifting to Monte Carlo, and thence to Paris. Under the revels of Russian courtiers, the tragedy of the gaming tables at Monte Carlo and the love of a man and woman, there is the constant rumbling of the cannons of war. The story has practically every element in it required for a great screen drama.

Joseph Urban has designed magnificent settings for the Russian palace of Prince Luitpold, the French villa of Alicia, a replica of the Casino, and the Monte Carlo home of the Prince. Alan Crosland, the director, has had his opportunities in a number of fete, fight, fashion and emotional scenes as well as in big war episode. Besides the two featured players the cast includes Pedro de Cordoba, W. H. Thompson, Gareth Hughes, Gladys Hulette, William Collier, Jr., Mario Majeroni, Paul Panzer and Betty Bouton.

Noted Medical Scientist to Visit Toronto

Toronto, Ont., July 10 (Canadian Press)—Dr. Cuthbert Christy, English scientist and naturalist, is one of the many leaders in science who are coming to Toronto for the 32nd annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, August 6 to 13 next.

Dr. Christy was one of a committee of three that established the fact that the tsetse fly is the transmitter of the sleeping sickness which kills thousands of negroes in Africa annually. He later sprang into fame by killing the first of the mysterious giant forest animal of the giraffe species.

The sleeping sickness of Africa is a very different disease from encephalitis lethargica, the disorder occasionally prevalent on the North American continent, sometimes called "sleeping sickness." Dr. Christy makes plain the latter malady he refers to as "sleepy sickness." The African sleeping sickness, Dr. Christy explains, originates always from the bite of the tsetse fly.

Turning Shorn Locks to Account

Victoria, B.C., July 10 (Canadian Press)—A new use has been found for the locks shorn in the process of bobbing and it remained for a Chinese woman to find that use. Jung Bo, wife of a prominent Chinese merchant of Victoria, returned to this city recently with bobbed hair, a most unusual style for a Chinese woman. But she carried her shorn tresses in the shape of an exquisite picture of Macao Harbor, embroidered on silk with her own hair, working at the picture while on board and basking in the sun before this port was reached. The necessary relief in the picture was obtained by the use of white hair, for which one of the stewards sacrificed a lock of his "pompadour."

THE BLACKMAILER IN THE HOME.

Blackmail has a long history. And yet some of us do have a 1 way seemed to me one of the most maddening. Imagine being a victim of a black-mailer! It is ink how it would destroy all peace and happiness! Never to be able to put any trust in his promises that "this is the last time. Never to know when he is going to put on the thumb screw of his threats and demand more money; never for a moment to feel perfectly safe and free from apprehension. Yes, it is a frightful crime. I don't know what the penalty is, but I don't believe it's heavy enough. Fortunately, most of us every-day folks don't have to suffer such experiences. And yet some of us do have minor experience with blackmail because we have a little blackmailer right in our home. Husbands May Do It But Less Often. I refer to the blackmailing wife. Do you recognize her? The lady next door has an unusually becoming hat. Himself notices it and says as much. "The wife mulls this over in her mind and when she gets a new hat she says: "Do you like my new hat?" Himself doesn't so terribly much. It is a good hat, but not so successful as others she has had. However he doesn't dislike it and he says: "Yes. "Do you like it as well as Mrs. Beans?" He doesn't. Does he say so? If he is a new husband and has never been black-mailed he probably does. If he has had more experience he will more likely pay over the blackmail that is being demanded, by saying: "Sure." Lip Answers And Heart Answers. Which doesn't satisfy his wife at all because, although she hasn't wisdom enough not to blackmail, she has wisdom enough to know when she is getting a lip answer instead of a heart answer. And at the same time it doesn't satisfy him because a man never has quite the right feeling about a woman when he has to lie to her. Many men have learned to avoid blackmail by never showing admiration of anything about another woman or anything she wears. But that isn't satisfactory either because it leaves the same resentment that having to lie does. Governor Morris has a story called "Why Men Hate the Women They Love." One reason is because they have to lie to them to keep the peace. It is a bitter story, but it has a salutary does for many women in the bitterness.

Be Reasonable.

If you force a man to lie, either in words or by his repressions, you take away some of his respect and love for you. And if you are not willing he shall admire anything in another woman, if you are always demanding assurances that he does not think any woman surpasses you in any single detail, you will make him lie. For, no matter how charming you are, and how much he loves you, he cannot help knowing that there are some things in which some women surpass you. This fact in itself will not necessarily affect his love for you. He can see that lady next door has a prettier hat and that the lady across the way is a better dancer and still love you tenderly and truly. But he can't stand being black-mailed without feeling resentment. And a constant resentment of this sort is very bad for love.

"Novel" Diet

Some meals in books stand out in one's memory, particularly when one is hungry. Who will ever forget some of the delectations in Dickens' books: That slice of beef and tankard of ale young David Copperfield had before setting out on his long journey to Plymouth, the succulent lunch on the coach-box with the Dingley-Deilites, the glorious feast provided by Mrs. Pipchin for herself, of muffins, hot and buttered, in "Dombey & Son," and so on? Every word of Dickens' books teems with food. Then there is the sausage Becky Sharp shared with an old-time admirer in her garret when her fine gay life was far behind her. One can never forget the paths of that solitary sausage! Harrison Ashworth tells of yawning game pies and barons of beef in "The Tower of London," while Sheila Kaye Smith, in one of her novels, actually makes one feel one is eating the crisp lettuce and slices of clean household bread and creamy butter of her characters enjoys. And those cups of tea in "Cranford." What wouldn't I give for one now!

THE HUNGRY MIND.

He never reads a book for cares To look beyond the day's affairs. The thoughts of dreamers, old or new, He has no wish to wander through. Fill up his hours with merriment, And he will laugh and be content. His stomach hungers off for meat, And with delight his food he'll eat. The loss of it he'll plainly feel; Or, over-stuffed the night before, The morrow finds him back for more. Strange, is it not, that he will take Such care for just his stomach's sake, Yet in his system cannot find He'll miss a meal, but not one grain Will warn him of a starving brain. Oh, there are many like him here Who follow pleasure far or near, And treat themselves to wins and bread, And leave their intellects un-fed. They'll fill their stomachs, praise the cook, And then refuse the mind's book!

IT DIDN'T WORK.

She married James Jinx to reform him, though he was the poorest of jays; she thought her affection would warm him, inspire him to godlier ways. "I fear," said her reverend pastor, "you're pulling a hoax, for such marriages lead to disaster, such hopes as you cherish will fade." "Odefish," said the family lawyer, whose hair was as white as the snow; "I'd hate to appear the destroyer of dreams that a damsel may know. But greatly I fear that your wedding with one who is sinful and vain will bring you the hardest of bedding, and oodles of sorrow and pain." "Gee whiz," said her Sunday school teacher, "if only you can weep and condole, beholding you marry that creature, with hope of rebuilding his soul!" Her parents, they wept and implored her to cut out so foolish a plan; they wept and besought till they bored her, as only one's fond parents can. She married that indigent fellow, she rounded him up at the kirk, a skate who was idle and yellow, a boob with a grudge against work. And now she is taking in washing, to purchase the family lash, and she is so tired of the joshing of those who predicted the smash! Her husband is patiently warming his shins at the billiard hall fire, and she is so tired of reforming she'd think it a boon to expire.

The Saviour of Italy

It is almost unnecessary to state that Signor Mussolini, the great Italian Prime Minister, has on his side the sympathy of all reasonable people in this country in the work which he has undertaken of bringing to justice the murderers of the Socialist deputy Signor Matteotti. Only the most malicious and biased of partisans could have entertained the idea that he had anything to do with this crime or that he was ready to condone it. The saviour of Italy is a man of very different stamp. If he resorted to force in the long and terrible struggle between Fascism and Communism, it was only to withstand the violence of the Communists and to preserve his country and his liberties from ruin. In office he has again and again shown his determination to govern firmly and justly, even though this involves action against the extremists of his own party. The arrest of Signor Marinelli, one of the foremost of the Fascist leaders, is, as our Rome correspondent points out in the admirable telegram which we published recently, proof that Signor Mussolini is no respecter of persons; and it is determined to get to the bottom of the Matteotti affair. No one even suspected Signor Marinelli, so that had there been any wish to hush the matter up the arrest need never have been made. As we in England have confidence in Signor Mussolini, so have Italians. The Italian Liberal Party passed a resolution assuring him of its support; and the Italian ex-Service men have just proclaimed "the strong and steadfast

Beautiful Without—Faultless Within.

It is not the embellishment of a motor car which makes it drive better or give longer service. The exterior beauty of a Jewett is only the housing of a perfect piece of mechanism. The inside mechanism is what one purchases and which the buyer should bear in mind. It is the correct mechanical construction which will make a motor car last longer with the least amount of wear. The Jewett will stand this test in comparison with any other motor car.

The selling of Jewetts to motor car buyers is not necessary. If they will investigate they will buy of their own accord. We court an opportunity to demonstrate and compare.

(Trade Review.)

Codfish—The price of codfish is keeping up well so far at home and in the foreign markets, and the indicated shortage in our shore catch may result in present good prices being maintained without a break. Some optimists even look forward to a dollar better in prices by the end of the shore voyage, which they predict cannot be but far below the average as the trap season will soon be over. The nine dollar prediction, of course, applies to good No. 1 shore fish fit for the Spanish market. Some cargoes of this spring catch have gone to Oporto from the West Coast and fetched the highest prices of the year. Since then the Nfd. prices have taken a slight decline there, as this week there is 29.54¢ qts. at that market and a consumption of 2,057 qts. for the week. Norway has been rushing steamer cargoes into Oporto at a brisk rate the past five or six weeks, and on July 7th had 27,885 qts. there which was being taken away at the rate of about 5,500 qts. for the week. Being inferior fish it is selling at a much lower price than ours especially the West Coast new, and this accounts for the more rapid consumption. It is the fish used by the poorer people in the country districts. The sailings for Oporto this week were: Astraea with 3,764 qts. from G. M. Barry, Berlin, and Ronald M. Douglas with 3,720 qts. from T. Garland, Gaultois. The following Newfoundland schooners have also arrived at Oporto this week and are now waiting to discharge: Isobel Moore, Nellie Walters, James and Stanley, E. D. Bailey, Myrtle Piercey and Queen Mae.

Common Cod Oil—There has been no new development in the market this week. Business has continued a very quiet with a rather easy tone. Consumers refuse to replenish stocks and going along from hand to mouth requirements, the market is very steady and shows no life whatever. The Menhaden fishery has just started in Chesapeake Bay and at this oil is the substitute with tanners in the United States, the result of operations will certainly have some effect on future business.

Cod Liver Oil—Many enquiries are being received. There is no trouble to make sales but the difficulty is to get a paying price. New York reports a small advance owing to a wider demand from many technical industries. Enquiries have also been received for Number Two Oil for Cattle Feeding, but prices are at such a low ebb that no reduction is possible. With increased business we are likely to see some improvement in price before long.

Flour—The advance of fully 20 cents per bushel on wheat during the month of July has been maintained till this week. The weight of the new winter wheat crop now selling is being felt, and consequently the price has this week eased off five cents per bushel. An improvement in the weather at a critical stage helped the farmers in great measure to harvest a bountiful crop in good condition. The government report for July crop is likely to show more wheat in the United States than the conditions suggested throughout the month of June. The spring crop of wheat which has been benefited by rains and hot weather promises good results, and an increase in the prospective yield is likely to be made. Foreign crop reports are talking almost famine possibilities in Russia due to drought, but such reports, it will be remembered, have been heard before and they require convincing confirmation. We have stated all along that the recent advance came at the wrong time, and it really wasn't the cause of healthy conditions in trade. We fully expect to see some reaction, but prices are not likely to go as low as they were one month ago.

Beef—The beef market is featureless and prices continue at the low levels indicated advance in pork take place owing to the extra cost of hog feeds, no doubt beef will run in sympathy with pork quotations but at present, in fact, the lower grades have fallen off 50 cents per barrel since June. Prices for the different brands range from $17.50 (best hams) to $24.50 (best flank medium) in the local market.

Molasses—The market is featureless with no change in demand, prices or supply. The producing season is ended at Barbados, and supply conditions are pretty well determined for the year. The exporters there have organized a campaign of advertising with a view of stimulating consumption of Fancy Molasses. The manufacture of Choice has been short by several thousand puncheons and there will be a shortage. It is now selling at 80 cents in the local market but an advance to 85 is likely soon. Local importers say that there is not now a puncheon to be had at Barbados and they had to take short shipments in response to their season's orders, seven eighths of the supply for Nfd. is now in or on the way.

Sugar—The "Federal Sugar Refining Co." a first rate authority on Sugar predicts as a result of a survey of all the sugar producing countries that there will be a surplus of 1,364,884 tons of sugar available for the United States between now and next October. This computation is on the basis of refined product. As a result of this news sugar prices steadily declined last month and "raws" reached the lowest point since 1922. Since then there has been a slight stiffening in prices in the U. S. market consequent on the coming in of the season of greatest consumption but experts do not expect this strong feeling to last far into the summer. The local quotation is $7.60 per 100 lb. sack and in barrels the trade is fairly brisk.

Tea—A cable from Calcutta this week reports that the Tea market has grown strong for all high grades. London cables to dealers yesterday confirm this in saying that "An advance of from one half penny to a penny per pound has taken place as compared with the previous week." The local market is well supplied and prices range from 40 to 80 cents per lb. for the different grades generally used.

Through Crooks' Gate

KEEN EYES ARE EVER ON THE WATCH AT OUR SEAPORTS TO KEEP THE UNDESIRABLE ALIEN AT BAY, BUT ONE ROAD IS ALWAYS OPEN.

Scores of thousands of "crooks," male and female, are on the official black lists circulated among the alien officers and other officials concerned at all British ports. Regularly, month after month, some of these listed criminals try to slip through from the continent and land in this country. How many succeed is unknown. But that the total number is only a small percentage of the failures is certain. The latest figures available show that in twelve months, just three short of two thousand crooks were refused admittance to the country.

Until recently, of the numerous "crooks" gates into this country the favorite was Dover. In one year, seven hundred and ninety-three crooks got the order to "About turn—and get!" within five minutes of disembarking from the boat that brought them there. The other favorite crooks' gates, in order of popularity, are Folkestone, London, Newhaven, and Southampton, at which latter port one hundred and twenty undesirables were turned back in a year.

Back to the Boat. Nearly all these undesirables are, of course, aliens, and it comes as a very great shock to most of them when the alien officer at the dock politely but firmly intimates that he knows the life history of the individual concerned from A to Z. In no circumstances will he be allowed to set foot in the street that runs by the dock gate. No, he must get on to the boat and go back where he came.

After a great deal of plotting and planning, of covering up one's movements, and doubling in one's tracks for perhaps a month or two some where on the Continent where one is unknown, it naturally would come as a shock to find oneself expected among the arrivals at a British port.

It is all due to a complicated but most efficient espionage system all over the world, in which vice-consuls and consuls do their share in noting, and immediately reporting on, the movements of all doubtful characters in their immediate neighborhoods. The facts so gathered are sorted and tabulated, and so the black list at the British ports is kept up-to-date. Arrivals and departures of crooks are entered thereon methodically and punctiliously—which explains how an incident such as the following is possible.

The Ever-Open Door. Newhaven was the gate chosen some weeks ago by a crook grown weary of the Continent. He arrived on the boat from Havre, after some rapid and "twisty" travelling in France, and was astounded by the warmth of the welcome he received from the alien officer the moment he moved down the gangway at Newhaven. That "gate" was shut irrevocably in his face. He decided to try another. He travelled back to Havre, caught a boat for Southampton, and a few hours later disembarked there.

He was too astounded even to curse when the Southampton alien officer waved in his face a lengthy telegram—a précis of the unwanted crook's reception some hours previously at Newhaven!

As intimated at the commencement of this article, Dover is no longer first favorite as the crooks' gate into Britain. The big crooks' gate now, wide-swing and always open, is the Irish Free State. Since it was established, it has become absurdly easy for the undesirable to gain admittance to our land.

There are no restrictions on anyone landing in the Irish Free State, neither is there anything to hinder the hundreds of crooks who might choose that gateway into England from using it. Arrivals from the Irish Free State are not interfered with in any way—hence the increasing popularity of the crooks' Irish gate!

Through Crooks' Gate

KEEN EYES ARE EVER ON THE WATCH AT OUR SEAPORTS TO KEEP THE UNDESIRABLE ALIEN AT BAY, BUT ONE ROAD IS ALWAYS OPEN.

Scores of thousands of "crooks," male and female, are on the official black lists circulated among the alien officers and other officials concerned at all British ports. Regularly, month after month, some of these listed criminals try to slip through from the continent and land in this country. How many succeed is unknown. But that the total number is only a small percentage of the failures is certain. The latest figures available show that in twelve months, just three short of two thousand crooks were refused admittance to the country.

Until recently, of the numerous "crooks" gates into this country the favorite was Dover. In one year, seven hundred and ninety-three crooks got the order to "About turn—and get!" within five minutes of disembarking from the boat that brought them there. The other favorite crooks' gates, in order of popularity, are Folkestone, London, Newhaven, and Southampton, at which latter port one hundred and twenty undesirables were turned back in a year.

Motor vehicles caused 15,700 deaths in the United States last year; 5,000 of the victims were children. Out of every 200 of our population it is estimated that there is one person mentally defective. A single speck of light, as seen in the night sky by the naked eye, may really be a group of thousands of stars. In the 1923 report of the Uganda Railway is the quaint entry: "Two native passengers killed by wild animals." All factory windows and skylights must be kept clean and free from obstructions, if a proposed bill becomes law. The rays of the sun take eight minutes to reach our earth; there are stars so distant that their light must travel for 36,000 years before we see it. A boot, claimed to be the largest ever made, measures thirty-five inches from heel to toe; it was shown at a recent trade exhibition at Northampton. A bridegroom aged eighty-seven recently led an eighty-year-old bride to the altar at Kettering; his first wife died only eight days before his second marriage.

CLEAN UP and KEEP CLEAN

This is what the New Government intends doing. We have been doing this for 25 years, as Cleaning, Pressing and Dyeing is our sole business. We devote our entire time to it and therefore we can give you better satisfaction than you can get elsewhere. Owing to the growth of our business we have had to remove to larger premises on the opposite side of the street (No. 22 opp. A. V. Duffy), which gives us ample room. We use the first flat, shop and showroom; second flat, repairing and pressing rooms; third flat, dyeing and renovating.

We would like you to see some of our work before sending elsewhere; all prices reduced since the New Year. Cleaning Orders given our first and personal attention. A rush job is our speciality. We call for goods and deliver them in two hours, if necessary. Suits Pressed while you wait; a nice dressing room; to change in. We can handle over one hundred pressing orders daily. In addition to Cleaning and Pressing, we clean and shape hats.
