THAW DECISION SAID TO HAVE BEEN REACHED

Another Hearing in Harry's Case by Immigration Authorities at Coaticook To-day—Question of Sanity Raised in the Proceedings.

Courier Will Bulletin it

COATICOOK, Sept. 5.—The board adjourned at 1 o'clock with the announcement that a decision about Thaw would be made at 4 p. m.

[Canadian Press Despatch] COATICOOK, Que., Sept. 5.—William Travers Jerome relaxed his vigil in the case of Harry K. Thaw today for the first time since he was retained by New York State to bring about the fugitive slayer's return to Matteawan. The reason was that Mr. Jerome was in jail. For nearly an hour he stood in a small cell in the Coaticook lock-up, charged with gambling on railway property.

Shortly before noon he was released on $500 bail for a hearing before a magistrate to-morrow morning.

Meanwhile the special board of inquiry, sitting to determine whether Thaw shall be deported, heard two witnesses and reached no decision. The session, in secret, was still going on at noon and the word went out that the hearing would be continued until 4 p. m.

It had been found. The witness Thaw himself and Frandlin Kennedy, deputy attorney-general of New York. Thaw was on the stand for less than two minutes. He was asked one question:

"Are you the man who killed Stanley White?"

"On the advice of counsel, I decline to answer," Thaw. He was then excused.

Reporters on a suitcase yesterday near later Mr. Kennedy was called. He identified the commitment on which Thaw was sent to Matteawan and decrees remaining in there after his defeat in various habeas corpus proceedings.

Jerome Arrested, Gambling Charge

New York Lawyer Likes Game of Poker and His Opponents Put One Over.

[Canadian Press Despatch] COATICOOK, Que., Sept. 5.—William Travers Jerome was arrested to-day charged with gambling.

The complaint was made by Wilfred Stridge, a citizen of Coaticook, who swore that he had seen Jerome playing poker in public yesterday.

Jerome was taken to jail where Thaw was confined when brought here two weeks ago. Thaw's lawyers disclaimed any knowledge of the arrest. The relief prevailed that it was due solely to illfeeling among the townspeople who resented Jerome's presence.

Mr. Jerome was taken into custody at his hotel, the Coaticook Hotel, by Policeman John Andrews. He was so surprised he could hardly speak. As a matter of fact he had indulged in a penny ante game yesterday with some newspaper men. They used a suitcase for a table and sat in an automobile waiting for the Thaw hearing to evenuate.

News of the arrest of Jerome swept through the town like wild fire. The Thaw hearing had in the meantime been adjourned.

A. C. Hanson, crown prosecutor for Stanstead county, issued the warrant.

Saskatchewan Crop Is Practically a Record

[Canadian Press Despatch] REGINA, Sask., Sept. 5.—Seventy per cent of the wheat, sixty per cent of the oats and seventy-five per cent of the barley crop of Saskatchewan, has been cut, according to the estimate of the provincial department of agriculture. In many districts the work of harvesting has been completed and threshing is now in full swing while throughout all the agricultural areas ideal weather conditions prevail, and the task of the season is being carried rapidly to completion. Warm days, with occasional light showers, have been general. At Shelbrook, to cite one of the districts in which a particularly heavy crop has been cut, wheat will average thirty bushels to the acre, oats 75, barley 50. That the slight frosts experienced in various localities on September 2, and 2, have not caused damage in any instance is apparent from a perusal of the bulletins. The labor question is not acute, although there is an increasing demand for men for threshing. Absence of damaging frosts has enabled the cultivator of the garden crops to save their produce and the yield will be an excellent one.

ceedings in New York. The arrest of Jerome grew out of his informal card game played with reporters on a suitcase yesterday near the Grand Trunk Railway station, where Thaw is held in the immigration penitentiary. It sent a thrill through the town, and crowds thronged the former district attorney to the jail, some hooting him, some shouting, "Hooray for Thaw; deport Jerome."

Thaw's lawyers unanimously denied that they were in any way responsible for Jerome's arrest and Milford Aldrich, the complainant, said he acted merely as a public spirited citizen. He is a mill hand. He complained to A. C. Hanson, crown prosecutor, that he had seen Jerome playing cards and this morning Justice of Peace James McKee signed the warrant. Jerome had just stepped from the telephone booth at his hotel when Policeman John Andrews told him he was under arrest. Jerome started with surprise and then smiled gracefully and was led away to jail. Hector Verret, of counsel for New York in Thaw proceedings, rushed to the jail and commended reports of his associate's predicament. They went to the office of the justice of peace and drew up a bail bond.

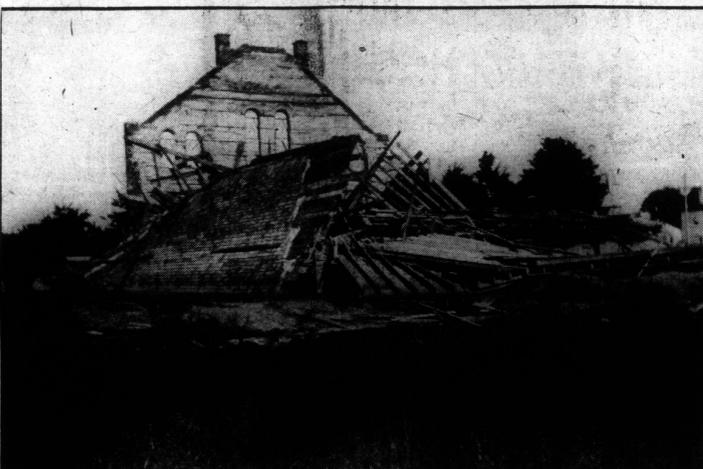

Should Thaw be deported suddenly, it will be necessary for Jerome to forfeit his bail.

Thaw laughed when he was told of the arrest. "I knew I that would never come to any good end," he said sarcastically.

Thaw's Second Night COATICOOK, Que., Sept. 5.—After spending his second night in the immigration penitentiary over the Grand Trunk Railway station here, Harry K. Thaw to-day faced the ordeal of more questioning by a special board of inquiry sitting to determine whether he shall be deported for violating the Dominion immigration laws. His mental condition now and at the time he shot down Stanford White in the Madison Square roof

Scene of Collapse of Rawdon Street Church

The above picture shows the remains of the Marlboro Street Methodist Church which collapsed yesterday while workmen were engaged in finishing the roof. There are various theories assigned as to why the building collapsed.

TWO WORKMEN INJURED WHEN LOCAL CHURCH ROOF CRASHED IN

Marlboro Street Methodist Mission Suddenly Caved in Yesterday While a Dozen Men Were at Work—Sidney Dean and Charles Benson Were Among the Worst Injured--The Cause.

The lives of a dozen workmen were imperilled and a number received painful injuries when the Marlboro Street Methodist church crashed in without a woman's notice at 5 o'clock last night. Sydney Dean and Charles Benson, 234 Grey street were among the most seriously hurt, both working together on the joists of the building at the time of the crash. Dean had his collar bone broken and Benson was injured about the hip. The latter showed great presence of mind in sawing out his companion who was pinned beneath a lot of heavy timbers. The timbers in turn supported tons of debris and were crossed in such a way as to afford some protection to Dean. Both Benson and Dean had only been employed seven days on the job. The church which was a commodious affair was being erected at a cost of $4,000, $3,600 of which had been subscribed. After the crash only the front wall remained standing.

As for the cause of the collapse there are conflicting opinions. The contractor is Mr. Alex. Lamb, a barber on Colborne street for many years, and he is also one of the trustees of the church. He has only been engaged in the building trade for two or three years.

It is stated that only three walls were built, the rear being left open, and without supports across for each wall. This may have had something to do with the crash. The contractor states that the weight of the roof proved too heavy for the truss rods which were fastened in plates and through the walls on each side. This contention is borne out by Building Inspector Bennett who made an examination of the wreck this morning. Mr. Bennett said further that he did not see any plates, but intended to go further into the matter this afternoon. That there were no fatalities as a result of the crash seems a miracle. Hundreds of people who visited the scene of the affair declared that it looked like cheap construction. There are said to be tricks in all trades and building construction is one of them. Whether the construction of the church was cheapened to such an extent that it crumbled and fell imperiling the lives of a number of men remains for what will probably be a rigid civic investigation. Mayor Hartman visited the collapse this morning and proposes to go into the matter further.

When seen last night by the Courier, Contractor Lamb refused, at the behest of his foreman, to give any explanation of the wreck, whatever. Over night reflection, however, led Mr. Lamb to talk to a Courier reporter this morning. He was at his home when the crash occurred. When seen at the church remains, Mr. Lamb did say that the building inspector had not been there in two weeks. The Courier learned from Inspector Bennett, however, that he had inspected the building a week ago.

It is expected that the injured workmen will recover, as their injuries are not considered serious. The loss resulting from the crash is estimated at $700 as the material can be used again.

Mr. Lamb's Statement The morning Mr. Alex. Lamb who had charge of the job informed the Courier that the collapse of the building was due to the plates to which the truss rods were secured, cracking owing to the weight of the roof. The truss rods were run across the building at intervals, the ends of these rods laid upon the top of the plate and were secured by bolts which ran through the plate and into the brickwork nearly two feet. The weight of the roof bearing upon the plate cracked it there was nothing to support the walls with the result that the walls were pushed outward and the roof collapsed.

Many who saw the building were inclined to blame the brick work. Mr. Lamb stated this morning that it was no fault of Mr. Greet. The walls were 13 inches thick and the mortar used, Mr. Lamb stated was the usual kind.

Some of the Injured. At the time of the collapse there were 12 men working on the building, 13 men had been employed there but one of the laborers, Mr. Jack Mills, had just left off work five minutes previous to the collapse.

Mr. John Greet, who has the contract for the brick work and four of (Continued on Page 4)

MRS. EMMELINE PANKHURST IS COMING TO AMERICA

She Will Undertake a Short Lecturing Tour of the Leading Cities.

[Canadian Press Despatch] LONDON, Sept. 5.—The Women's Social and Political Union has issued a statement announcing that "as Mrs. Pankhurst has broken down her sentence of three years of penal servitude by speaking twice at a public meeting without being arrested, she has decided to undertake a short lecturing tour in America for the purpose of presenting her case for women's enfranchisement with special reference to its connection with the white slave problem and the scourge of venereal disease."

Meetings will be held in New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia and other big cities. Miss Joan Wickham sails on the Cedric on September 11 to arrange her tour.

BULWICH COLLEGE BURNED BY 'SUFFRAS'

Famous London School Was Destroyed by Fire To-day.

[Canadian Press Despatch] LONDON, Sept. 5.—Bulwich College, the famous school in the southern suburb of London, which cost in 1879 $500,000 to rebuild, was set on fire in two places at an early hour this morning, and suffragette literature pinned to trees in the vicinity of the college.

A watchful policeman on patrol duty in the neighborhood, discovered the outbreaks in time to get three fire brigades on the scene before serious damage to the handsome buildings had been done. A quantity of empty petroleum cans and traces of illuminating oil scattered on the floors of some of the rooms indicates that the fire was an incendiary one.

Bulwich College, known as the college of God's gift, has been in existence since 1810, when it was founded by Shakespeare's friend, Edward Alleyn. It provides higher school education for over 600 boys, and also has a lower grade school attached to it.

Song of the Husband's Club: 'What Are the Wild Wives Saying?'

MRS. WINSTON CHURCHILL TOOK AN AERIAL TRIP

First Lord of the Admiralty Quite Agitated During Wives Absence.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Mrs. Winston Churchill has followed her husband's example of taking a trip in the air. It just became known on Tuesday. After her husband had made a flight in a waterplane of the Admiralty on the flying ground at Hamble with Lieutenant Spencer Grey, Mrs. Churchill entered the machine. Grey was again pilot of the machine, which rose some 700 feet. He executed a graceful circle flight lasting nearly a quarter of an hour. The First Lord of the Admiralty meanwhile awaited his wife's return anxiously. He never looked up while she was flying. His explanation afterwards was, with a smile, "I have been on thorns ever since you went up." This was borne out by his agitated manner during his wife's trip. Mrs. Churchill alighted from the machine with her cap blown off shortly after she left the ground. Her face was bristling with smiles: "It was beautiful," she said.

FINE ROW STARTS OVER CHURCH CRASH HERE

Architect States That Rafters and Supports as in Building Permit Were Missing in Actual Construction of the Church.

This morning, Secretary Isaac of the Marlboro street church trustee board, telephoned The Courier, stating that at a meeting last night the trustees exonerated the contractor, Mr. Alex. Lamb, for the crash which occurred yesterday evening and imperilled the lives of several workmen. Mr. Isaac intimated that the plans as prepared by the architect had been followed by the contractor in detail.

The Courier took the pains to ask the architect, Mr. L. H. Taylor, for a statement. Mr. Taylor's statement is as follows:

"The firm of Taylor & Taylor, before it dissolved, made a plan simply; we gave no specifications, and we superintended no work. The plan calls for rafters 2 x 6 with principals 12 x 12, every 13 feet apart. Go and get the building permit and see if this is not so. These rafters and principals were not in the building. Further than that, it is not necessary for me to say anything, but I will be prepared to do so if occasion arises."

The Permit The building permit issued is as follows: Permit No. 5031

Busy Day With The Local Police

Theft and Assault Charges Galore in the Police Court Were Heard This Morning.

Theft cases, assault charges, cases in which it was alleged insulting language had been used and vagrancy charges occupied the attention of Magistrate Livingston and the police court officials for a considerable period of time this morning and the session was one of the busiest for some days.

Ed. Harrington faced a charge of stealing $22 from Frank McQuinn. A plea of not guilty was entered. The plaintiff stated that he had been drinking and went to a barn to have a sleep. When he woke up his money was gone. Friends told him that Harrington was in the barn and later when the witness accused the prisoner of the theft he admitted that he got the money.

Harrington, in the box, denied all knowledge of the theft and stated that he was only joking when he said he got the money. Magistrate Livingston expressed the opinion that there was not sufficient evidence to convict and the case was therefore dismissed.

The adjourned assault case in which James Kajari was charged with striking Steve Somidi, occupied considerable of the Court's time, but on account of the fact that the evidence pointed to the fact that Kajari was only endeavoring to act as peace-maker in a fight, the charge was dismissed. The plaintiff was assessed $4.00 costs.

A wage case, in which Henry Williams, a farmer of Brantford Township, was charged with non-payment of wages to W. J. Brooks, was dismissed as Magistrate Livingston had no jurisdiction. He advised that the boy take his case to the Division Court.

Williams claimed that Brooks quit his job without saying that he was not coming back, and had never asked for his money. An interesting assault case was heard when John Phillips was the plaintiff in a charge against Joseph Saggese, an Italian. Saggese laid a counter charge of assault against Phillips. Considerable evidence was taken, Phillips claiming that Saggese attacked him on the street and threw rocks at him, while Saggese claimed that Phillips was to blame. The trouble arose over the rent matters, Saggese going after Phillips for rent on the street.

Crazed German Teacher Shoots Entire Family

[Canadian Press Despatch] MUEHLHAUSEN, Germany, Sept. 5.—A crazed teacher named Wagner, who murdered his wife and four children at Degerloch yesterday, set fire to the village of Muehlhausen in four places during last night, and in a fusillade with the villagers, who tried to capture him, eight persons were shot and killed and ten wounded. The maniac took refuge in a stable where he killed all of the cattle. He was finally overpowered after he had exhausted all of the 250 cart-

Rafters... 2x6 with frame principals every 13 feet... Built according to plan filed at office, May 10, 13... Further particulars... Bldg 42ft 6inx 56 ft. to be built to fit from street line... The questions which will naturally arise in any civic investigation will probably be... Has the plans as shown in the permit been deliberately changed, and if so for what purpose? If the plans were changed, was the Building Inspector cognizant of the changes? Did he give consent to the same? If the plans were changed, did the Inspectors notice the change when he made his inspection a week ago? Architect Taylor further states that there was no supports to the walls at the rear of the building, which was left open. The results of the inquiry will be watched with interest, especially in view of the recent Peterboro disaster. There is likely to be a fine time over the affair. Brantford has a by-law to prevent cheap construction and loss of life therefrom, and the result will likely be a rigid enforcement of the by-law.

WILLIAM DONALDSON DIED VERY SUDDENLY

Prominent Brantford Resident Was Called to Rest on Thursday.

The death occurred suddenly yesterday afternoon of Mr. William Donaldson, for many years a highly respected resident of this city. Death was of a sudden nature, and was due to heart failure. Mr. Donaldson had walked down town and paid his water rates and on arriving at his home again, complained to his wife that he was feeling ill. His wife was busily engaged in getting a restorative ready and on returning upstairs found that her husband had expired.

The late Mr. Donaldson was 78 years old. For thirty years he conducted a bakery on Colborne street opposite Spence's Carriage factory. He was a life-long Conservative in politics and a Presbyterian in religion. He was a man of kindly disposition and of great probity in character.

A wide circle of friends will regret to learn of his passing.

Besides a widow two daughters are left to survive: Mrs. J. H. Murrode, Toronto and Mrs. Geo. F. Temple of this city.

The funeral takes place to-morrow afternoon from the late residence, 66 Marlboro street.

The Echo Place Improvement Association held a very successful smoker at the vacant room at the Moliaw School yesterday evening over 400 being in attendance. J. J. Burke acted in the capacity of chairman and welcomed the boys saying that it was an open night and wished all to make merry.

During the evening a manufacturers' committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. G. W. Hall, W. E. Day, H. Williams, H. C. Thomas and M. Myers.

Nuptial Notes

TURNBULL-COOK.

A very happy event took place yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Cook, Tunnis street, when their youngest daughter, Violet Lillian, was married in marriage to William Turnbull, son of W. H. Turnbull of Brantford. The wedding was an exceedingly pretty one, about 60 guests being present from Woodstock, Curries, Brantford, Toronto, Montreal, Calgary, New Westminster and Ingersoll.

Precisely at three o'clock to the strains of Lohengrin wedding march played by Miss Pansy Brandow of Woodstock, the bride-elect entered the drawing room, and was given away by her father. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. B. Christie of Burlington, assisted by Rev. L. W. Hill of the Methodist church.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of Duchess satin trimmed with baby Irish lace and pearl trimmings and she wore the customary veil and carried a handsome shower bouquet of bridal roses and lily of the valley. Miss Iva Harris, niece of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and was becomingly attired in pale yellow satin draped with cream nimon. Miss Helen Sovereign, niece of the bride, made a pretty little flower girl in a dress of white marquisette and shadow lace. The groom was supported by his cousin, Everett Roan-tree of Toronto.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace, to the bride-elect a pearl sunburst, to the best man gold cuff links, to the pianist an amethyst bar pin and to the flower girl a pearl brooch.

After hearty congratulations had been bestowed upon the newly-wed couple, the guests retired to the dining room where a buffet luncheon was served. The many beautiful gifts presented to the bride were an evidence of the high esteem in which she is held by a wide circle of friends.

The happy couple left on their honeymoon for Toronto, Montreal and a trip down the St. Lawrence and after their return will take up their residence in Brantford—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Taft's Criticism Is Supported

London Times Says American Criminal Procedure is a Joke.

[Canadian Press Despatch]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Ex-President Taft's criticism at Montreal of the American judicial system, is the theme of an outspoken editorial in the Times, which says:

"Mr. Taft's pronouncement is bound to intensify misgivings which many Americans have come to feel in the efficiency of their state courts and the system on which they are based. It would be mere flattery to pretend that judges of these tribunals have anything like the standing of our own judiciary.

"The great and growing lack of confidence in state courts, in their honesty and impartiality, as well as in their technical efficiency, is one of the most disquieting phenomena observable in America to-day. What the United States needs more than anything else is a reformer of the Jeremy Bentham type, to restore common sense to its codes and simplicity to the administration. The criminal procedure, especially, of America to-day is very much as ours was in the time of the Stuarts. It is hopelessly enmeshed in technicalities and neglects justice and perspective to chase after impossible infallibility of form.

"It is hardly, indeed, too much to say in criminal cases as conducted in the United States, that it is not the prisoner in the dock, but the judge on the bench who really is on trial.

"It is the fetish worship of forms and rules that made judicial procedure in America a hindrance to justice and a comfort to criminals, and too many decisions of wisest, on social, industrial and constitutional issues, seems to have been formed with the same quibbling spirit. They have lost touch with life; they have grown petrified in pettifoggish ab-

structions, and no problem that confronts the American people is more urgent or cuts deeper than the problem of how to lead them back to loyalty and common sense.

The announcement from Philadelphia that Lord Haldane's address to the American Bar Association, was the policy of the British Government in receiving considerable prominence in this morning's papers. The Daily Mail hopes the announcement is as true as it is interesting. The Standard says:

It is an earnest of the attention being about an Anglo-American alliance, we are afraid His Majesty's government is too sanguine and distinctly premature, unless, of course, it has some real reason to suspect the whole trend of the American policy, since Washington is likely to undergo a change under the menace of external dangers."

SHOULD REMOVE INJUSTICE.

In view of the advocacy in certain select circles for civic boundary extension, it might indeed be well in these days of strenuous municipal financing to look well within the confines of the city and enquire if there is still room available for expansion. The Courier has already expressed the view that there is plenty of room for normal expansion, and The Courier's view has been fully borne out by an investigation by City Engineer Jones.

However, while fields of conquest are looked for outside the city by certain "Big Eyes," it would be well if the fields to conquer within the city were looked over. There is a certain section, and it is no small one, just north of the Grand Trunk railway at St. Paul's Avenue, which is practically cut off from the city by reason of the closing of St. Paul's Avenue crossing for vehicular traffic. Above the tracks is an exceptionally large area ready for development, but its progress has undoubtedly been hampered by reason of the concessions granted to the Grand Trunk corporation.

The Courier believes that, however reasonable the concessions seemed at the time they were granted, a grave injustice was done to the ratepayers, not only immediately above the track but to the whole northern section of the city. As a result, property values in that section are not what they would be, had not St. Paul's Avenue been closed. The section may well be considered a desirable one for residential purposes.

The City Council of 1913 should take up the matter of having a subway built at St. Paul's Ave, just as they are built down the line to the eastern extremity of the city. With tracks of land such as that on the other side of the hospital ready to be opened up, it is not necessary to consider boundary extension with its consequent increase in civic debt and responsibility.

GREAT FINANCING.

Mackenzie and Mann are distinguished as great railway men; they seem also to be expert highway men. Either their powers of persuasion are irresistible or the calibre and quality of their guns enable them to practice "stand and deliver" methods with unique success. Sir William Mackenzie has just returned from the British money market with a trifle of thirteen million dollars in his wallet. His facility in getting money explains his prominent connection with, and inspiration of, the Canadian Northern Railway; also his directing connection with great enterprises of other kinds in Canada, and in Monterey, Mexico, Barcelona, Spain and San Paulo, Brazil. In regard to these latter, Mackenzie and Mann are national assets, in that they keep Canada, Canadian resources of soil, forest, fisheries, and men prominently before the world, and attract population, and capital. The secret of Sir William's success in raising the money market is a mystery. In the face of a dull market, when experts thought that a loan for $10 could not be floated in the London market, Sir William, without turning a hair, floated a battleship, that is a loan big enough to build a battleship. Financiers regard this capitalistic coup as a miracle, and a miracle it is. This is not Sir William's biggest "hold up." On one occasion he dropped into Lombard street, London, for a few minutes and next day there was pouring into Canada some forty millions as the fruit of his wizardry of persuasion. And it seems he can exercise his persuasive powers not only upon the mouths of the professional money bags, but even upon the elected guardians of the people's purse. At the last session of parliament Sir William went and saw and conquered. He asked the Dominion Government for a loan of a battleship—that is, the price of a Dreadnought and he got it with a facility and promptitude that suggested that a moment's delay to "cough up" would be regarded as a subject for abject apology. We don't know how Mackenzie and Mann manage to finance a railway that has planted its lines of steel across the continent with a network of connecting lines in every province of Canada except perhaps Prince Edward Island; but all the same we are proud of them as great Canadians; and their enterprise is of a piece with the national spirit of enterprise and aggressive force that has for the past fifteen years staved off the periodic assertion of hard times and kept alive and moved forward a wonderful scheme of development in all departments of national activity and enterprise.

"AS OTHERS SEE US."

How truly prophetic were the utterances of the London Morning Post which declared on the morning after the Senate's defeat of the Naval Aid bill, that the "decision would be eagerly welcomed by rivals and enemies," is made only too evident by comment of German newspapers on the effect of the Senate's action. The Hamburger Nachrichten, of Hamburg, Germany, says:

"Whatever may be decided upon later, the actual decision of the Canadian Senate means, at any rate, a heavy moral and material loss for the defence of the Empire, for Mr. Borden's promise had been foolishly enough counted on. His offer made an enormous impression on the whole world. Mr. Churchill pointed out this fact especially in the well known memorandum of the admiralty. This impression will now not only be destroyed, but people will everywhere obtain the conviction that England cannot depend upon such help from her colonies."

Dealing still further with the question of the material loss which would accrue from the Senate's short-sighted action, the Nachrichten adds that:

"Mr. Winston Churchill always included the three Canadian Dreadnoughts in his recent calculation and estimates. On March 31 he said in the House of Commons that the three Canadian ships were absolutely necessary for the defence of the Empire, especially from the end of 1915 or the beginning of 1916, so that it is impossible in England to wait and see whether the Canadians will change their minds later on. He repeated this meanwhile in a telegram to Mr. Borden. On a third occasion he emphasized the necessity once more, adding that if the Canadians should fail, others would have to make good the loss. Those others are, of course, the tax-payers at home."

Another German newspaper, the Kreuz Zeitung, of Berlin, says: "The first result of the decision of the Senate was that the English naval minister informed Parliament that the three ships of this year's programme, which are to be ordered at private dockyards, must be laid down forthwith instead of in March of next year."

Here is presented to our view a vision of ourselves as others see us. "England cannot depend on such help from her colonies." It is not a true picture, but what other conclusion could the German papers arrive at? Because a collection of partisan old men, urged on to their folly by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, in turn, was being pressed by scathless ex-ministers who thought they saw in this opportunity to embarrass the government, Canada has been placed before the world in a false light, and Canadians have been made to appear as a horde of slinkers and artful dodgers—too mean to assume a simple duty. It is degrading to our sense of true Canadian manhood, and the stigma will have to be removed. This country cannot afford to rest under the imputation that it cannot be depended upon for help in time of need. There is no such spirit prevalent in the country, and an irresponsible Senate has no right, for purely party purposes to seek to set up its narrow partisan views as those of the majority. That would be a submission to misrepresentative government such as true Liberals of an earlier day shed blood to suppress.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

"Borden and Prosperity" is a slogan which if Laurier had been allowed to finish his work, Canada would have now been an "adjunct" of the United States, as ex-president Taft so tersely put it.
 The Liberal press is exhibiting some anxiety as to when the session of parliament will be called. And these same papers a few months ago were predicting dissolution daily. It's funny what a difference just a few months make.

Hon. Dr. Reid has demonstrated that a big department like the Customs can be run on business lines, if only business principles are applied to its management. The bounding revenue returns are the worthy Doctor's best advertisement of efficiency.

Somebody has started a movement to bring the two parties together on the naval question. That will never be done so long as the Laurier Opposition determines to make a national duty into a question of party politics. It can't be done while Liberal members are ready to read the Declaration of Independence and talk about a second Boston tea party, in the Canadian House of Commons.

Looks as if Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux was "in wrong" with Commander Roper. Mr. Lemieux was guilty of launching a mean accusation under shelter of Parliamentary privilege and against a man at a supposedly safe distance. At the moment this charge was made Mr. Lemieux was doing his utmost to withhold the aid offered by a majority of Canadians to the Empire, while the man whom he attacked was risking his life in the North Sea in the service of his country. It's usually that way.

TWO WORKMEN INJURED WHEN ROOF CRASHED IN

men, Messrs. H. Reeve, F. Reeve, Ollie Lapey and R. Shribb who had been working at the front of the building were just leaving off work. Mr. Greet and Mr. H. Reeve were on the scaffold at the time of the collapse. Mr. Greet received a bruised hip and Mr. Reeve had a wrist and knee put out of joint. Messrs. F. Reeve, Lapey and Shribb were just coming down the ladder. Reeve was slightly scratched. Lapey had his fingers cut and Shribb was also slightly hurt. Chas. Clark, a laborer was working outside of the building and was not injured. The whereabouts or the name of another laborer employed on the building could not be secured.

Mr. George Johnson, the foreman of the carpenterwork had four men working with him. The men were: Chas. Champion, Chas. Benson, S. Dean and Arthur Newington.

The roof was being shingled and Mr. Johnson and Champion were on the roof. Both Johnson and Champion were slightly bruised.

Benson, who lives at 234 Grey St. has only been out from England six weeks and had been only employed on the building seven days, was at the time of the collapse on a ceiling joist. He secured a bruised hip, cut leg and was somewhat shaken up. He owes his miraculous escape to two beams which came between his head.

Although very badly shaken up he immediately started in to rescue his chief, Sidney Dean who was pinned beneath the timbers of the fallen roof. Dean had his right collar bone broken. As was the case with Benson, Dean has only been in this country six weeks and only on the job seven days. When the roof fell Dean was on the ground floor hoisting shingles up. A timber fell across his shoulder and across his face breaking his right collar bone and stunning him. Dr. Secord, Jr. was immediately on the scene and attended to Dean's injuries. He walked with assistance to 234 Grey St. where he resides. When he knew the roof was falling he tried to get into the cellar through the open floor. When seen last night by a Courier reporter he was resting quite easily.

Will Rebuild.
 The trustees have decided to go ahead immediately and rebuild. Mr. Lymb stated this morning that he had been relieved of all blame by the trustees. The damage will amount to $700 or $800. A large quantity of the material can be used again. This morning a large gang of men were at work cleaning things up and the work of rebuilding will commence at once. The front of the building which remained standing was secured this morning in order to avert another collapse.

Trustees Visit Wreck.
 The trustee board of the wrecked church visited the collapse last evening and made an inspection. They also examined the plans and were of the opinion that the work had been carried out in detail according to the same. This was the announcement made by Secretary Harry Isaac of the board this morning.

Building Inspector Talks.
 Building Inspector George Bennett when interviewed at his residence, 224 Wellington St. by a Courier reporter early yesterday evening stated that it was the first he had heard of the building collapse. Mr. Bennett stated that he had inspected the building on Thursday or Friday of last week but was not quite certain which day. At that time the brick work was satisfactory and the carpenters had the heavy beams set up temporarily and the men were working on the roof.

"Did you inspect the roof?" "No." Mr. Bennett stated that he was in the vicinity of the building this afternoon but did not go over to it. "Had the contractor any right to go on with the work on the roof without your permission?" "As long as they followed the plans that were approved of and filed."

When asked to what he attributed the cause of the roof falling Mr. Bennett stated that he had not seen the building and therefore could not exactly say, but was of the opinion that it buckled probably on account of not being sufficiently tied or bolted together.

Mr. Bennett said that he would go over to the church this morning and make a thorough inspection of the building and ascertain the possible cause of the collapse.

The assessors this morning when asked if there were many vacant houses in the city at present, answered, "no." Mr. Ludlow and Mr. Watt stated that they did not think there were so unoccupied houses in Brantford. Mr. Watt said that he noticed that where two families were living in one house last year, only one was residing this year, which meant that a number of new houses had been erected. "If you were to ask me where to go to look for one empty house I could not tell you one off handed," said Mr. Watt, "or me either," said Mr. Ludlow. Did you find the living conditions in one house better this year than last? "Very much better," replied the assessors.

NEW CITY HALL IS CALLED OFF

After a short session held in the Mayor's office last night, the members of the Board of Works Committee decided to recommend to the City Council that, that body consider the advisability of entering into negotiations with the International Masonic Company of Toronto in reference to having a mausoleum built in one of the city cemeteries. The committee also had a quiet chat about the proposed new city hall but it was not decided to build it at any near date. The tightness of the money market was considered a good reason to call the project off at present.

BAD ACCIDENT TO AUTO PARTY

George M. Cohan and Party Were Thrown From Automobile.

(Canadian Press Despatch) HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 5.—It was said at the Hartford hospital this forenoon that the condition of George M. Cohan and party, injured in an automobile accident on the Berlin turnpike last evening, was favorable in every respect. None of the party is in a serious condition.

It was at first feared that Georgia Cohan, Mr. Cohan's 13-year-old daughter had sustained a fractured skull in the accident, but a physician in attendance says she is doing well. No bones are broken; she talks freely and suffers little pain.

Details of Accident.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 5.—Thrown from their speeding automobile when it struck a garbage wagon two miles from this city late last night and all seriously injured, Geo. M. Cohan, his 13-year-old daughter, Georgia Cohan, Wallace Edinger, leading man for Mr. Cohan's new play; Francis Xavier Hope, Mr. Cohan's confidential secretary; William VanBuren, Edinger's chauffeur, were rushed to the Hartford hospital where at an early hour this morning it was said that Mr. Cohan and the other men would recover, but that the recovery of his daughter was doubtful. The party was coming from New York to Hartford to begin rehearsals for the new play, which was to be tried out here. They were in Edinger's machine. Two miles south of Hartford VanBuren, who was driving, turned out to pass a wagon, the driver of the wagon turned to the left and chauffeur was unable to stop the heavy machine. He struck the horse and the car was thrown aside by the impact. It struck an embankment by the roadside and turned turtle. All five passengers in the big machine were thrown out, but all escaped being crushed under the car as it turned over. Passing automobiles were used as ambulances to take the five injured people to the hospital.

NEW LIQUOR LAW HAS DONE MUCH GOOD IN BRANTFORD

It is Much Harder For Billed Men to Get Liquor Than it Was—Provincial Inspector Corey Was in City Yesterday.

During three years service License Inspector Eacrett stated yesterday afternoon that he has not sent a single sample of liquor to the License Department at Toronto for analysis. The reason is that the inspector if he asked for goods is almost sure to get the best over the hotel bar. He found it necessary, however, to have local option beer which was for sale at a local hotel without a license tested securing a conviction. Local option beer and like beverages can contain not more than 2-1-2 per cent alcohol and when a test was made one sample showed 3.85 per cent and another 3.2 per cent. The police department has also had a conviction, a foreigner being found guilty of the offence. The inspector has had cider, which was not being offered for sale, analyzed and one sample showed 8.88 per cent alcohol and another showed 9.30 per cent.

There are at least three circumstances under which liquid refreshments can be seized for adulteration purposes. If the hotel keeper or liquor merchant is found selling refilled bottles as handed goods, if the liquor was thought to be adulterated; if it is desired to make a test to determine the percentage of alcohol. Take for example local option beer.

Nearly 200 Billed Men. During the course of the interview the inspector stated that there are 193 billed men in the city and county, including the town of Paris. The largest number had been 207.

New Act Approved Of. When asked if the act which came into force May 15 prohibiting the sale of bottles in hotels had any effect on billed men, securing liquor from the Dominion will be a good deal harder for the billed man to secure liquor. Previous to the passing of the act the bottle could be purchased over to the bar and handed to the billed man in an alley.

Inspector Corey Interviewed. Since the act came into force the sale of bottled liquors has decreased 60 per cent. This was the statement made yesterday by Inspector T. F. Corey of the Provincial License Bureau, who was in the office of the local inspector when the Courier reporter called.

The provincial inspector spoke highly of the act which did not allow the bars to open until 8 o'clock and which prohibited the sale of bottles over hotel bars.

They Keep the Law. The local inspector stated that there had been no trouble in Brantford caused by hotel keepers violating either of the two new enactments. Inspector Corey said there had been very little trouble in the province over hotel keepers selling bottles and only five or six convictions for selling before 8 o'clock.

Marked Improvements. During the interview Inspector Corey said, "What we are trying to do is to protect the wife and kiddies. The aim of the license department is for better conditions surrounding the sale of liquor with the result that the undesirable liquor dealer is put out of the business."

Inspector Corey further stated that conditions throughout the province have greatly improved during the last five years. The class of hotels are very much better. The improvement is due entirely to the efforts of local inspectors and commissioners supported by the provincial officers in the strict enforcement of the liquor law.

THAW MAY GO TO CITY OF MONTREAL

Another Right-About Turn in Famous Case by Lawyers--Writ is Granted by Judge.

(Canadian Press Despatch) MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 5.—Judge Gervais has issued a writ of habeas corpus this morning for the production in Montreal of Harry K. Thaw at once.

The possibility that Harry K. Thaw, held in Coaticook, Que., by the Canadian immigration department awaiting the completion of argument to decide whether or not he is to be deported from the Dominion will be brought to Montreal, says The Herald, became stronger this afternoon. Late this afternoon, it was stated on good authority at the provincial court house, that another habeas corpus writ was procured on Thaw's behalf by two Montreal members of his legal staff, Messrs. N. K. Laflamme and J. N. Greenfields, being granted by the Hon. Justice Gervais, judge of the court of King's Bench.

The ground taken in this latest effort to secure at least a temporary respite for the slayer of Stanford White, is that the escaped Matteawan lunatic is not an immigrant in the true sense of the word and cannot therefore be dealt with by the immigration authorities.

A special train was held in readiness to take Thaw's lawyers to Coaticook. Should the writ be sustained Thaw will be brought to Montreal where his case will be heard before the court by two Montreal members of his legal staff for both sides. One of the Thaw lawyers expressed the belief that the Thaws did not want to see Harry free. They were surprised and pleased at the new way he slipped out of Coaticook, and of course hoped he would make a clean getaway. But when he was caught up here and this involved legal fight, in this lawyer's opinion, seeing ahead a terrific burden of expense with defeat in the end, figuratively threw up their hands.

It was nearly 10 o'clock before the hearing got under way. Thaw again took the stand.

"I would not be surprised," said W. L. Shurtleff of the Thaw counsel, "if it was all over to-day, and they sent Thaw direct to Matteawan by train."

Thaw was withdrawn almost immediately and the board adjourned suddenly. It was reported that a decision had been reached.

Subways Flooded In New York City

Not a Wheel Moved and There Was great Congestion of Traffic

(Canadian Press Despatch) NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Not a wheel moved in the New York subway between 96th street, in Upper Manhattan and the Brooklyn terminal during the rush hour of the work-bound crowds this morning resulting in one of the worst traffic congestions the city has known. Over three inches of rain fell during the night causing a flood of subway tracks to the depth of three feet or more and over nine miles of four tracked subway were placed entirely out of commission. At 8 o'clock there was no relief in sight.

On the day of his wedding a man imagines that his wife drew a prize; but as a matter of fact he is seldom more than a consolation prize.

STEEL TUBES FOR SUBWAY TUNNEL UNDER RIVER SINKING TO BOTTOM

SINKING SECTION OF THE LEXINGTON AVENUE - BROADWAY SUBWAY IN THE HARLEM RIVER

Four steel tubes, each 220 feet long and nineteen feet in diameter, and all riveted side by side and weighing 725 tons, were sunk into a trench in the bottom of the Harlem River, New York, to form part of the Lexington avenue subway. The operation, the first of its kind in this part of the country, was observed by many distinguished engineers.

The bed of the Harlem River at that point is deep mud, which would have made tunnelling by the usual boring process difficult. Therefore, the engineers decided to build "tunnels" on the surface and sink them into place. The section lowered was the first of five which are to form four tubes, each 1,080 feet in length, and through them will run local and express trains of the new subway. The four others are being built and will be lowered into place as was the first section.

Williamson, Owen, Scanlon, Archer, Johnson, Belshaw, Coburn, Thomas. Reserves: Moorcroft, Etheridge, Rose. All players be on the ground at 5 o'clock sharp. Game starts at 5:30 sharp.

BALL PLAYER LOSES CASE.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 5.—The National Baseball Commission yesterday reversed a decision by the National Board in the case of Player H. Green against the Indianapolis Club of the American Association. Green claimed that he had been injured in some manner unknown to himself while a member of the Indianapolis Club, and asked for full salary for two weeks, half salary for two weeks, and full salary for the remainder of the time that Indianapolis retained him. The National Board allowed his claim.

The commission held yesterday that Green's injuries could not be traced to having originated during the time that he was with the Indianapolis Club, and therefore reversed the decision, and dismissed Green's claims.

ROCHESTER SELLS CONROY.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 5.—William ("Wid") Conroy, veteran of seventeen diamond campaigns, who has been with Rochester for two seasons, was yesterday sold to the Elmira Club, of the New York State League, where he will succeed Lew Ritter as manager. Conroy will take charge of the Colonels at once.

Injunction Set Aside.

TORONTO, Sept. 4.—An order has been made by Mr. Justice Leitch on the application of F. Aylesworth, acting for M. Eisenberg, Limited of Windsor, dissolving the injunction granted by Judge Elliott at London, restraining the company from carrying on its business. The appointment of a receiver was also set aside as irregular. The appointment had been made after the issue of the writ before even an appearance had been entered by the defendant.

The London and Western Trusts were named as receivers of $400,000 but Mr. Aylesworth declared that $50,000 security would not be sufficient.

A Profitable Undertaking.

Guelph Herald: If Guelph was the fortunate possessor of a few more dividend-paying utilities like the Guelph Junction railway it could dispense with the collection of taxes. The G.J.R. is Guelph's "gold mine" of apparently inexhaustible wealth. Year by year its revenue is increasing, with the result that the amount turned over by the C.P.R. as the city's 40 per cent. share in the road is yearly increasing too.

Error Of Fifty Years Ago Caused Peterboro Disaster

PETERBORO, Sept. 5.—That the collapse of a wall carelessly built 50 years ago was the cause of the disaster at the J. C. Turnbull department store on August 28 last, and the death of five persons was the opinion expressed by William Langford at the inquest before Coroner Greer here last night. Mr. Langford inspected the building on behalf of the Trusts and Loan Company while alterations to connect it with the adjoining Barrie store were in progress. His view was concurred in by W. F. Johnston, the contractor in charge of the alterations who examined the building after the accident and found that a weak wall had collapsed.

Mr. F. C. Night, manager of the Turnbull store, who was the first witness, explained the plans for the change in the building. The wall between the Turnbull and the Barrie stores was to be oggled and two arches were to be constructed on the second floor. He had left the work entirely in the hands of Mr. Belcher the architect, and Mr. Johnston, the contractor.

Mr. Langford testified that the biggest opening in the wall without a support was 10 feet wide, that the beams rested on an 18 inch wall and were amply strong enough to carry the weight. There was no doubt but that the wall, which was built 50 years ago and did not appear to be carefully built in the centre, gave way and caused the outer walls to bulge and the floors to fall in. Mr. Johnston, the contractor, said that he had been supplied by Mr. Belcher, the architect, with a blue print, showing the changes required. The beams used where the wall between the two stores had been removed, rested upon six inches of a solid brick wall. He had not examined that wall except under the joists, but believed Mr. Belcher had examined it thoroughly. Mr. Johnston said that a subsequent inspection had revealed the fact that the collapse was due to a weak wall which had been crushed down by the weight it had been required to carry.

The inquest was adjourned until Tuesday, September 16.

Parks Board Hold Meeting

A meeting of the Parks Board was held in the city hall last night. Those present were F. Cockshutt, chairman, Mayor Hartman, W. Glover, J. J. Hawkins and F. Waller, superintendent of parks.

Moved by Mr. Glover, seconded by J. J. Hawkins, that the secretary be instructed to convey to the board of Water Commissioners the hearty thanks of the board for granting of a playground, containing about 5 acres of the corner of Morrell and West Mill street.

Moved by Mayor Hartman, seconded by W. Glover, that permission be given the grounds committee to have the play grounds lately granted by the water commissioners, leveled and put in proper shape.

Mr. Cockshutt outlined what he thought would be a fine thing for the city, a general improvement plan in reference to streets, parks, boulevards, etc.

Mr. Cockshutt was in favor of having the board communicate with Messrs Dunnington, Grubb & Harris, landscape architects of Toronto, and have them send a representative here for the purpose of looking over our streets, parks, trees and suburbs, and have them draft a set of rules to be used in the future in an effort to beautify the city. Any new subdivision of property could then be laid out according to the recommendations of the architects.

Mr. Cockshutt thought that the parks board and the city council should go hand in hand in the matter and make some move toward beautifying the city.

The rest of the board were of the same opinion, and the matter will be taken up by the board, who will ask the council to co-operate in the matter. With this end in view, the parks board hope to have a plan whereby they will in time do much to beautify the city.

A Remarkable Scene.

Pittsburg Dispatch: The scenes in that Canadian court yesterday when the judge ruled against the lawyers representing New York state was later characterized by the court as the most disgraceful in the record of the Dominion courts. It seems for the moment to have shocked the judge into speechlessness, as well it might. It was certainly amazing to this side of the border, accustomed as we have been to the boast of the superiority of the Dominion procedure.

"MEAN, VILE, DOWNRIGHT LIES"

Lloyd George's Reply to Viscount Wolmer's Charges.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A long and pungent correspondence between Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George and Viscount Wolmer, Unionist member of Parliament for Lancashire, arising out of statements made by the latter in a public speech in reference to transactions in Marconi shares, is published. Mr. Lloyd George in his latest letter charges Viscount Wolmer with having stated "mean, calculated, downright lies." The Chancellor of the Exchequer complains that his transactions in the Marconi shares were grossly misrepresented, and adds that members of the last Unionist Government, relatives of Viscount Wolmer, who were directors in public companies which were engaged in contracts with the Government, "directly negotiated with the Government huge contracts which directly affected the departments which they represented."

Lloyd George continues: "Viscount Wolmer and his family have been peculiarly offensive in this business. If he wants to take a high line in reference to Ministerial investments let him begin to give lessons at home."

Bowling

Two risks of Sydenham St. bowlers visited the Heather greens last night and played a friendly game. The bowling was exceptional interesting. A. E. Tench and R. Gowman had a merry "go" and the match was a sea-saw until the seventeenth end when the Heather man drew a five end. Sydenham were four up on the sixteenth. It was a good game. Jim Osborne and Isaac Simpson also were pretty well matched. Things were pretty even until a Sydenham player moved the "jack," allowing the Heather man to count five. It was a most enjoyable match. Sydenham Scotch Doubles.
The Sydenham Bowling Club have decided to have a club Scotch double tournament all of their own. The drawing will take place on Monday evening next at 8 o'clock. Between twenty and thirty members are expected to take part. Prizes will be given the winners and runners up. Play will begin on Tuesday night. The club is the youngest in the city and is showing considerable enthusiasm. The players are all new at the game, but a number of them have developed into quite good shots.

The Town Kicker.

Toronto Star: The mayor of a town in western Ontario has made quite a sensation by offering to buy out all the property of a member of the town council who is, he says, a kicker and a knocker, on condition that the other man will go away and live somewhere else.

We do not know anything about the facts, and it may be that the mayor, by making so unusual an offer, is but scoring a telling point against an adversary. But it is heavy scoring.

The truth is that each town is burdened with men who are a detriment to it, and it would actually pay the municipality to buy them out at their own valuation and bid of them.

They oppose everything and have no faith in anybody. They suspect the motives of those who do the most generous actions.

BANKS DEFRAUDED BY FORGED LETTER

Fake Introduction Results in $8,200 Theft at Galt, Guelph and Berlin.

GALT, Sept. 5.—By the simple device of a forged letter of introduction, currency to the amount of approximately $8,200 was secured yesterday by a man calling himself James Ray, of Saskatoon, who presented cheques at banks in Galt, Guelph and Berlin. The forger immediately departed from each of these places as soon as he had secured the money. Late last night he had been traced as far as Hamilton, and was then believed to be heading for the boundary at Niagara Falls, where the police and railway people everywhere throughout Ontario are watching for him.

This Mr. Ray, who is a prosperous looking individual about 40 years of age, walked into the branch here of the Union Bank yesterday morning and announced himself as a customer. He produced what purported to be a letter of introduction from the manager of a branch of the bank near Saskatoon. This manager's signature is known to the bank people here, and the signature on the letter appeared to them to be perfectly genuine. His "Identity" thus established, Ray announced that he wanted to draw $2,800. He drew and presented a cheque for that amount and received the money in currency. Mr. Ray then politely withdrew from the bank and from these parts.

It was some time later before suspicion was aroused at the bank here. Comparison of the signature on the letter with that kept on record showed disparities, however, and it was decided to telegraph an enquiry to Saskatoon. All this took time, and it was several hours after Ray had departed when an answer came from the Saskatoon bank disclaiming any acquaintance with the gentleman. The police then were immediately notified, but Ray had by now had plenty of time to make his getaway. Precisely the same procedure was followed by the forger at Guelph, where he secured $2,000 and odd, and at Berlin, whence he carried away $2,500. The railway and radial network in this district, and the fact that discovery of his fraud was so tardy, made it possible to execute the three coups with little risk of being challenged at any of the banks.

A WONDERFUL COLD CURE.

Just think of it, a cold cured in ten minutes—that's what happens when you use "Catarrhozone." You inhale its soothing balsams and out goes the cold—sniffles are cured—headache is cured—symptoms of catarrh and grippe disappear at once. It's the healing pine essences and powerful antiseptics in Catarrhozone—that enable it to act so quickly. In discharge of the nose, for irritable throat, bronchitis, coughs and catarrh it's a marvel. Safe even for children. 25c. and $1.00 sizes at all dealers.

The demand for mercy is far from being for the sake only of the man who needs his neighbor's mercy; it is greatly more for the sake of the man who must show the mercy. It is a small thing to a man whether or not his neighbor be merciful to him; it is life or death to him whether or not he be merciful to his neighbor.—George MacDonald.

HOLLY TO BUY HAMILTON CLUB

The Toronto Globe says this morning that Eddie Holly is dickering for the franchise of the Hamilton Canadian League Club and is not coming to Brantford. There may be something in the report, as things are not in any too good shape with the Hamilton outfit.

A Sorry Spectacle.

Toronto Telegram: "Three cheers for Thaw!" cried the spectators in a Canadian court of justice. Sherbrooke has provided a sorry spectacle which will long stain the annals of this country. Such perverted emotionalism must surely be rare or the moral sense of the nation is in sorry shape. It is to be hoped that the homicidal fugitive from Matteawan asylum encountered exceptional congenial society in Judge Glensky's court-room.

There was something in her smile that suggested that she did not quite believe in his cynicism.

"Also," she said gravely, "some stronger influence might appear—an influence which I could not counteract."

Jack Meredith turned in his long chair and looked at her searchingly.

"I have a vague idea," he said, "that you are thinking of Durnovo."

"I am," she admitted, with some surprise. "I wonder how you knew?"

"I can reassure you on that score," said Meredith. "For the next two years or so Durnovo will be in daily intercourse with me. He will be under my immediate eye. I did not anticipate much pleasure from his society, but now I do."

"Why?" she asked, rather mystified.

"Because I shall have the daily satisfaction of knowing that I am relieving you of an anxiety."

"It is very kind of you to put it in that way," said Jocelyn. "But I should not like you to sacrifice yourself to what may be a foolish prejudice on my part."

"It is not a foolish prejudice. Durnovo is not a gentleman, either by birth or inclination. He is not fit to associate with you."

To this Jocelyn answered nothing. Victor Durnovo was one of her brother's closest friends; a friend of his own choosing.

"Miss Gordon," said Meredith suddenly, with a gravity that was rare, "will you do me a favor?"

"I think I should like to."

"You admit that you are afraid of Durnovo now; if at any time you have reason to be more afraid, will you make use of me? Will you write or come to me and ask my help?"

"Thank you," she said hesitatingly.

"You see," he went on in a lighter tone, "I am not afraid of Durnovo. I have met Durnovo before. You may have observed that my locks no longer resemble the raven's wing. There is a little gray, just here, above the temple. I am getting on in life, and I know how to deal with Durnovo."

"Do you know," she said, after a little silence, "that I was actually thinking of warning you against Mr. Durnovo? Now I stand aghast at my own presumption."

"It was kind of you to give the matter any thought whatever."

He rose and threw away the end of his cigar. Joseph was already before the door, leading the horse which Maurice Gordon had placed at his visitor's disposal.

CHAPTER X.

THE short equatorial twilight was drawing to an end, and all nature stood in silence, while night crept up to claim the land where her reign is more autocratic than elsewhere on earth. There was a black night above the trees, and a blacker beneath.

A sportsman was abroad. He was creeping up the right hand bank of a stream, his only chance lying in the noise of the waters which might serve to deaden the sound of broken twig or rustling leaf.

This sportsman was Jack Meredith, and it was evident that he was bringing to bear upon the matter in hand that intelligence and keenness of perception which had made him a person of some prominence in other scenes where nature has a less assured place.

Since sunset he had been crawling, scrambling, straddling up the bank of this stream in relentless pursuit of some large animal which persistently kept hidden in the tangle across the bed of the river. The strange part of it was that when he stopped to peep through the branches the animal stopped, too, and he found no way of discovering its whereabouts.

Once Meredith was able to decide approximately the whereabouts of his prey by the momentary shaking of a twig. He raised his rifle and covered that twig steadily; his forefinger played tentatively on the trigger, but on second thought he refrained. He was keenly conscious of the fact that the beast was doing his work with skill superior to his own. In comparison to this, his movements were almost noiseless.

It was terrifically hot and all the while night was stalking westward on the summits of the trees with stealthy tread.

At last he came to an open space made by a slip of the land into the bed of the river. When Jack Meredith came to this he stepped out of the thicket and stood in the open awaiting the approach of his stealthy prey. The sound of its footfall was just perceptible, slowly diminishing the distance that divided them. Then the trees were parted and a tall, fair man stepped forward on to the opposite bank.

Jack Meredith bowed gravely, and the other sportsman, seeing the absurdity of the situation, burst into hearty laughter. In a moment or two he had leaped from rock to rock and came to Meredith.

"It seems," he said, "that we have been wasting a considerable amount of time."

"I very nearly wasted powder and shot," replied Jack, significantly indicating his rifle.

"I saw you twice and raised my rifle. Your breeches are just the color of a young doe. Are you Meredith? My name is Oscar."

"Ah! Yes, I am Meredith. I am glad to see you."

They shook hands. There was a twinkle in Jack Meredith's eyes, but Oscar was quite grave. His sense of humor was not very keen, and he was before all things a sportsman.

"I left the canoe a mile below Maala and landed to shoot a deer we saw drinking, but I never saw him

DOCTOR SAID HE HAD DIABETES

That's Why Mr. David Heon of Nicolet Co. Quebec, Is Recommended the Great Kidney Remedy To His Neighbors.

ST. WENCESLAS, Nicolet Co., Que., Sept. 1.—(Special.)—"I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills because the doctor told me I was threatened with diabetes. After taking ten boxes I was again examined by a doctor, and he told me that all trace of diabetes has disappeared."

This is the statement of M. David Heon, well-known and highly respected here, and he is only one of many in this neighborhood who have found a new lease of life in the great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

It is cures such as this that have given Dodd's Kidney Pills their reputation. They are now known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as kidney cures that never fail to cure kidney disease, no matter where or in what form it is found.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-alls. They simply cure diseased kidneys. The reason they cure backache, dropsy, rheumatism, neuralgia, diabetes, urinary troubles and Bright's disease is that all of these are either diseases of the kidneys or are caused by disordered kidneys failing to do their work.

afterward. Then I heard you, and I have been stalking you ever since."

"But I don't expect you so soon. You were not due till—look!" Jack whispered suddenly.

Oscar turned on his heel, and the next instant his two rifles rang out through the forest stillness in one sharp crack. Across the stream, ten yards behind the spot where Oscar had emerged from the brush, a leopard sprang into the air five feet from the ground, with head thrown back and paws clawing at the thinness of space with grand free sweeps. The beast fell with a thud and lay still dead.

The two men clambered across the rocks again, side by side. While they stood over the prostrate form of the leopard, beautiful, incomparably graceful and sleek even in death, Guy Oscar stole a sidelong glance at his companion. He was a modest man, and yet he knew that he was reckoned among the big game hunters of the age. This man had fired as quickly as himself, and there were two small trickling holes in the animal's head.

While he was being quietly scrutinized Jack Meredith stooped down and taking the leopard beneath the shoulder, lifted it bodily back from the pool of blood.

"Try to spoil the skin," he explained as he put a fresh cartridge into his rifle.

Oscar nodded in an approving way. He knew the weight of a full grown leopard, all muscle and bone, and he was one of those old fashioned persons mentioned in the Scriptures as taking a delight in a man's legs or arms, so long as they were strong.

"I suppose," he said quietly, "we had better skin him here."

"Yes."

They laid the skin out on the trampled maidenhair and contemplated it with silent satisfaction. In the course of their inspection they both arrived at the head at the same moment. The two holes in the hide, just above the eyes, came under their notice at the same moment, and they turned and raised gravely at each other, thinking the same thought—the sort of thought that Englishmen rarely put into intelligible English.

"I'm glad we did that," said Guy Oscar at length; suddenly, "Whatever comes of this expedition of ours—if we fight, as we probably shall, before it is flushed—if we hate each other ever afterward, that skin ought to remind us that we are much of a muckness."

By 9 o'clock they reached the camp at Maala. Victor Durnovo was still at work superintending the discharge of the baggage and stores from the large trading canoes. They heard the shouting and chattering before coming in sight of the camp, and one voice raised angrily above the others.

"Is that Durnovo's voice?" asked Meredith.

"Yes," answered his companion curtly.

ESCAPES FROM MATTEWAN HAVE BEEN NUMEROUS IN PAST YEARS

Average of About One Each Year Escape From New York Asylum—Some Never Came Back—The Notorious Train Robber, Perry, Made Very Clever Escape.

That Thaw should make an effort to escape from Mattewan when he had exhausted all legal methods might have been safely predicted. There never was any evidence that he had resigned himself to his fate, and contemplated passing his remaining years as an inmate of an asylum. The frequent efforts of his lawyers, and at last the knowledge that he had handled over several thousand dollars to a man who had undertaken to get his discharge, might have warned his keepers. They had other precedents as well, for in the past twenty years the average has been about one escape a year from Mattewan. Of the New York State. His predecessors had been still at large. Thaw's facilities being much greater than those of any of the others, it could be calculated that he had at least an even chance of gaining his freedom. Moreover, he counted upon the law keeping him out of Mattewan once he left New York State. His predecessors had no legal advice. They trusted to their heels and to their own cunning.

Perry the Train Robber

The most famous escape from Mattewan, before Thaw's, was that of Perry, Maguire, O'Donnell and Davis in April, 1895. Oliver Curtis Perry was the most noted criminal of his day. Any kind of crime demanding nerve and daring was congenial to Perry, though he was polite and even effeminate in manner, and nervous in conversation. A New York detective said of Perry: "He is the nervous man who ever stood in two boots, and does not know the meaning of the word fear." Perry's most celebrated exploit was the robbing of a train on the New York Central. While the train was going at full speed he sawed away a piece of the door and entered the express car, standing off the agent with a revolver. He took all the plunder he could carry, about $5,000, and then cut the air brakes. When the car slowed down he jumped off. Five months later he boarded a New York Central train at Syracuse, went forward to the express car, climbed on the roof by means of a hook and rope, smashed a window and threatened the warder.

The agent, however, snarling to the bell rope and signalled to the engineer.

Insanity Feigned

Perry fired at him; the agent fired back. Perry retreated to temporary safety on the roof of the car. When the train stopped he crept down, sneaked and fired at the engineer and fireman to leave the car, and cutting loose from the rest of the train, he undertook to run the

A Hero's Death

From the London Spectator: We cannot pass over without a few words of admiration the death of Mr Grant, of the Chinese Telegraph Service, who was killed in Mongolia because he refused to leave his three Chinese servants. While on a tour of inspection he was captured by Mongols, who decided to kill the Chinese, but gave Mr Grant the opportunity of going away unharmed. It seems that he could not have saved his servants in any case, but with a magnificent sense of personal responsibility he decided to stay with his servants, a course which, as he had been informed, meant that he also would be shot. According to Mongol accounts Mr Grant, as he stood up for execution, taunted the Mongols with cowardice, and "laughed in their faces till they wondered at his bravery."

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to little ones. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and fever, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The SKY WORKERS

The Signal Man

Brantford citizens have this summer witnessed real structural iron work on the new post office building.

Of all trades that of the structural iron worker is the most hazardous, especially in the erection of tall buildings generally known as sky-scraper.

It has been said, and with knowledge founded upon statistics, that in the erection of skyscrapers an average of one life is lost upon each of them.

This, however, does not necessarily mean that the mortality should be among the iron workers, although those who erect the frames of these gigantic structures seemingly have the most dangerous work.

Since the iron worker raises the skeleton high into the air before the masons have reached the first floor, the putting up of the framework is always most interesting, and there is never a tall building erected but what there is the daily throng in attendance to watch the feats of skill and daring of the sky workers.

A skyscraper is a most interesting structure from any point of view. It is a product of this generation and represents the highest skill in construction. Long before the fourth of July the architects, who are the fathers of the building, have built the entire framework on paper.

This in itself is a task of magnitude, for, if the building is to be erected to a height of 200 or 500 feet, windage must be taken into consideration and the framework must be so arranged that it will be well braced to withstand an enormous pressure. Then, too, the foundations must be considered and it is not unusual for some of the exceptionally tall buildings to have foundations of twice the area of the street floor.

In making the detail plans for the iron work great care is exercised, and every upright, beam, strut, etc., is carefully drawn to scale every rivet and bolt hole is drawn and marked, size and all so plainly that the mill men cannot possibly make a mistake.

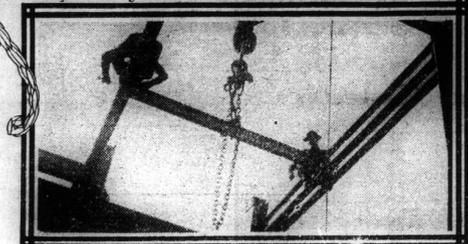

At the mill where the framework is cut out the pieces that will form the building are got out beginning with the subcellar. Then, as the iron work for each successive floor is got out, the pieces are fitted and then lettered and numbered in accordance with the blue prints.

When the iron work begins to arrive at the site of the building and piled in a heap they remind one of jack-straws and to the uninitiated the wonder is that they can ever be separated and placed where they belong. To the iron crew it is a simple matter, however, and with almost astonishing rapidity the skeleton of the skyscraper arises from the street level and pierces the air.

The most important adjunct to the iron crew is the derrick and this instrument is carried up with them, floor by floor, and by it all of the material is handled. One of the most important members of the iron crew is the derrick man, the man who holds the lives of his fellows in his hands. It is he who receives the word when to hoist or lower or to swing the derrick, and upon the signals that he transmits to the engineer, often 15 or 20 stories beneath him, depends how the derrick behaves. The giving of a wrong signal has been the cause of more than one poor fellow's death. Instances have been known where a signal has been given to lower when it should have been hoisted and half a ton of iron dropped on top of a workman, crushing him.

Inspecting the Derrick Chains

Fixing a Beam in Position

As the building rises the iron crew, seemingly take more and more risk. Without hesitation they walk along narrow beams from one upright to another with nothing between them and the street, 100 or 150 feet below them.

It is not uncommon for these men when they wish to make a trip to the street to sit in a sling and have the derrick lower them. Again they will make the trip from the street to the top of the building riding upon a load of iron that the derrick is hoisting.

It is at such exhibitions that the crowd in the street holds its breath in amazement, expecting any moment to see the daring men fall to their death. In this, however, the spectators are usually disappointed, for the iron workers, like sailors, never let go with one hand until their other hand is grasping something else that will support them.

As for walking along beams at dizzy heights that is a matter of trifling interest to the men themselves. From long practice they have, like steple-jacks, become accustomed to being high in the air and never for a moment do their minds dwell upon the possibility of their falling. As a matter of fact most of the steple-jacks are graduates of the structural ironworkers' trade, so that they are fully acquainted with what it means to be at great heights.

The Foreman is Everywhere

At Home on a Narrow Ledge

"This working high in the air is simple enough," exclaimed a foreman of iron workers on a skyscraper. "Take this crew for example. We all started together from the bottom. Each day or two we have raised ourselves about 20 feet and this raise has come so gradual that none of us feel it. The men who hang out over the street and who fasten the girders today did the same thing yesterday and the only difference was a matter of 20 feet. Why, we could raise a building in this manner to a height of 1,500 feet and not feel any worse than we would with a building one-third as high. It's all in getting used to it."

That's the secret. Getting used to it. Take a trip yourself to even the tenth story of a skyscraper that is being built and you will understand more clearly what getting used to it will mean. In spite of the heavy ladders on which you will climb you will imagine you are stepping up on cobblestones, while to gaze downward at the network of iron will make you feel that you cannot possibly retain your grip upon the rungs of the ladder.

To walk across one of the four or six inch beams with even twenty feet of space between you and the next floor makes you shrink, and yet it would make you laugh if any one were to suggest that you could not maintain your balance while walking on a three-inch board on the floor.

Yet, after you have made several trips to the top floor you begin to feel that you think nothing of doing what you would not have dared to do on your first trip. It is all in getting used to it, and that is one reason why foremen dislike to employ men after a building is half way up. It is all right to go up with a building, they say, but even iron men who have been off high jobs for some little time, are inclined to be a little nervous, and nervousness means almost sure death on tall structures.

The crew who "place" the iron work have the most dangerous work to do. They usually work two to a crew and each will ascend an upright to the top. Then the derrick will hand them a girder. As the ends of the girder are snipped into place the men place iron "sticks" into the holes to hold them in position and then slip in a couple of bolts, making it firm.

Upon the forman falls the real work, for he has to select the marked pieces and he is here, there and everywhere, holding in either hand his large blue prints. He gives the orders to the signal man and he frequently inspects the parts of the derrick to see that all is secure. He is held responsible for everything and naturally, he wants to see that everything goes along without a hitch.

While the men are working on the top floor placing the pieces of iron that makes up the skeleton, on the floor below are the riveters. These men form an interesting part of the iron working trade, especially the forge men and the rivet handlers.

When building skyscrapers a few years ago it was not uncommon to see 100 feet or more of pure framework go up before a floor was laid, and that meant that if a man fell from the top floor he went to the bottom, bouncing from beam to beam as he went. Now, however, it is customary to have the floors planked as rapidly as possible, and also have the top, or working floor, planked all over, thus minimizing the danger. Of course those who work on the edges of the building have no protection, and these men are the ones most likely to fall. Usually the lives lost are lost in this manner, but those who fall from 10 to 20 feet escape with their lives, even though they may suffer with broken bones.

While statistics show that mortality of structural iron workers is high, a little research will also reveal that the death rate in all mechanical trades is also high, but the deaths on skyscrapers stand out with such startlingness because they happen under circumstances that come directly into public notice.

DOES NOT WATCH TIME AS IT FLIES

Lord Strathcona Says He Has Not Followed Any Special Formula of Life.

(Montreal Star.) "I don't think there is anything better for a man, anything that tends to keep him well and useful, anything more conducive to peace of mind and contentment, than plenty of good work."

It was Lord Strathcona who spoke, replying to a Star representative who asked if he would formulate a brief rule for thinking and living to the best general advantage.

His Lordship smiled, perhaps a trifle indulgently, at the eager query: "No," he went on, "I can't say that I have followed any special formula in my life. I have just done my work. I have no 'Golden Rule of my own making,' as you put it, no secret to practice in living my life. But I might say that I have taken no account of them as they came and went, I have not considered them as some men do; and I do not think it is very usual that a man of ninety-three, as I am, is so well."

Anxious to See Friends. That may be the secret that the man who typifies everything that is splendid in Canadian industrial history and patriotism, has gone about his business regardless of the enemy so fearfully dreaded by those of lesser intelligence. And as Lord Strathcona has ignored the advance of time, he has remained unmolested. He has grown a little deaf, the broad shoulders are slightly drooping, the movement of his hands is more deliberate and cautious; but the sunken eyes that seem to look forward and backward with equal serenity, are an eloquent of confident power as ever.

His Lordship's kindness and infinitesimal tact are characteristics which have been written about at length, but they are traits which age has not staled nor custom withered. With his accustomed simplicity of manner he had chosen a straight-backed, small chair in preference to a more luxurious one, and when he was ready to end the interview, he referred to friends in Montreal he had not seen, saying, "I have so little time in a few days to see so many people."

Before this intimation that other matters claimed his attention, Lord Strathcona spoke of the difference between the Canada of to-day and of his early youth. He used the shortest, simplest words, his inflection tinged with the Scottish color which is in preference to a more luxurious one, and when he was ready to end the interview, he referred to friends in Montreal he had not seen, saying, "I have so little time in a few days to see so many people."

His First Trip to Canada. "Think of it," he admonished, "three quarters of a century ago, when I was a young man, this Canada was a wilderness. It took me forty-two days to cross by steamer, and I have made this last trip on the Lusitania in five. That old trip was by wooden steamer, of course. We had no railroads in those days. Quebec was the principal city in Canada. Ottawa was only 'By-town' and Montreal—so much of this great place, a population of 600,000 I believe, only desolation."

The light in his eyes seemed focused on a picture no one else could see. "And telephones and telegraph were unknown. We had a little gas, but electricity as light was unheard of. Wonderful! Isn't it? Wonderful!"

The words were touched with something like surprise, as if the amazement of such marvels was upon him yet. His Lordship has not evidently accepted the discoveries and benefits of modern science without appreciation. Unthinking acquiescence would be foreign in his nature. His eyes shone as he mentioned the progress of the country.

"In those old days," Lord Strathcona continued, "there were so few businesses. The Hudson Bay Company was one of the foremost, and was influential in developing the country. The reign of the Hudson's Bay Company was very beneficent. We had none of the troubles with labor or none of the disturbances which occurred at times in the United States. 'Has Your Lordship any announcement to make in regard to the High Commissioner's Office,' the reporter ventured.

"Oh, no," Lord Strathcona answered. "Of course, I do not spend as much time in the office, with my ninety-three years as a younger man would."

He laughed; the sympathetic, wholesome kind of laugh which everyone loves to hear.

"I have nothing to say officially. My visit is purely personal. I did not know I was coming until it was almost time to start, and I shall leave for New York on Tuesday morning."

A Group Photograph. Then he got up to lead the way to the conservatory that the photographer might find a good light for a picture. "I would like to be in here, with the flowers," he said, taking in their beauty with the look that sees everything without straining. "I like to be with the flowers. It is nice to have them, isn't it?"

Lots of people imagine there is something wrong with them if they haven't some physical ailment.

After a timid woman faces the parson with a man, her fear of mice and burglars is transferred to dashing widows and festive chorus girls.

GOOSE MOST VALUABLE MEMBER OF RED SOX

So Thinks Official Scorer, Ed. Stein of London Club—Good Utility Man (London Free Press.) Some one on the Brantford team has a watch and chain coming to them, but just who that player is, has not been decided on by President T. J. Helson. He announced yesterday that the official scorers in the different cities would be the judges of who was the most valuable member of the Brantford Red Sox in 1913.

Official Scorer Stein, of the London Baseball Club, after due consideration has given the preference to Coose, who played nearly every position on the team at some time during the past season. Ivers, he picks as the next best man on the team.

"I consider Coose," said Scorer Stein to the Free Press, "by far the best man on the Brantford line-up. He not only filled every position on the team but played them all very creditably. Ivers I would place second."

COST JEROME $100,000 WELL AS LIBERTY

Gambling for Which York Lawyer Was Jailed at Coaticook.

BUTTED INTO

Was Being Conducted the Tonnage of an Automobile.

[Canadian Press Dispatch] NORTON MILLS, Vt. Sept. 4.—William Travers Jerome probably not appear in Coaticook, Quebec, to answer to the charge of gambling on which he was arrested yesterday. He was still in this town this morning and announced that he would leave until afternoon. "They" "I do not know which way I shall go."

Cost Him a Dollar.

COATICOOK, Sept. 4.—The thing for which William Travers Jerome, former district attorney, York, and retained by the province to secure Thaw's extradition called to a Canadian jail, cost little more than $1 in losses, yesterday afternoon at the Trunk station that a number of York newspaper men began a game in the tonnage of an automobile by way of a time-passer. The pretty big crowd, loitering in the neighborhood, and it was not forty or fifty or so spectators were tere around the automobile, who had been sitting in his chair about fifty feet away, attracted by the crowd and wondering what was up. He should see way to the machine, and wait game for a few minutes. Then, unentered to play a hand or two, cards were dealt to him. He did into the machine, but stood in leaning against the tonnage.

It was a quarter game with cent ante. Jerome didn't have a cent at all. He played about fifteen minutes and then dropped out. The money was passed openly across back of a suit case during the game. No one it seems thought it Coaticook gambling laws were violated.
