POETRY.

Chrysler's Farm.
Apropos of the Monument Dedicated Sept.
25, to commemorate the Victory in 1812.

Across the river, whittling as he came,
Strode the tall figure of old Uncle Sam;
To greet him with a neighbor's friendly hand
Stood John Bull Canuck on sacred land,
And soon the twain were in a pleasant chat Discursively discussing this and that.

From great affairs that boded ill or good
To smaller gossip of the neighborhood,
At length by chance Sam's roving eagle eye Described a new erected shaft near by.

"Oho," said he, "John this is something new—
I didn't know this sort of tree you grew."
"When did you plant it? What do you suppose
It's going to be good for when it grows?" John blandly smiled, "That special breed of tree
Is good for jogging memories," quoth he.

"You've only got to give it half a look And it will talk just like a history book."
"To our Canadian youth that is, I mean It has a lot to say about 'Thirteen.'"
"You didn't 'speak that sort of tree we grew?
If I may use your phrase, you bet we do!"

"This land round here grows up anything
It sprouts up soldiers, Sam, as well as trees."
"For don't you know"—John proudly waved his arm—
"This place you're standing on is Chrysler's Farm!"

Old Uncle Sam he raised his hat and bowed Toward the shaft, and said, "It does you pride!"

SELECT STORY.

First Fruits.

(BY LILLIAN A. TOURELLOTTE.)
"Alice," called the Rev. Clarence Harding, as he stepped into the parsonage, "I have a letter from you and tell me what your answer is to my morning."

An impatient movement of the sick man in the adjoining room drew Mrs.
Wilbur's attention, and she stepped to the door to ask if he wished anything.

"No, I don't," was the ungracious
response.

Morning came, bright and beautiful, and Alice Wilbur was up with the birds. She had altered much since that fair October day, ten years before, when she had signed herself Alice Harding for the last time. The happy circle of friends of which she had been a member so long was broken open afterward, but this autumn there was to be a reunion, so the plan was. The Rev. Fred Harding and Bessie were coming from India, and they were all to spend Thanksgiving in the home of Dr. Chas. Lane. Poor, pale, careworn Alice! Was that hope which had given elasticity to her step and light to her eyes to be shattered like all the rest?

Nay, but Alice Wilbur was no fairer flame nor careworn. There was a faint pale on her cheek and a brighter sparkle in her dark eye than was wont, and when her husband came in she said, with a wonderfully glad smile:
"We will give all the money we have by us, dear, except what we need to keep in case of sickness." At that moment Alice to the side of the bed, called Alice to the side of the patient, who groined out some unintelligible remark that sounded like, "A fool and his money are soon parted." Wondering what had brought him to this sage conclusion, Alice returned to her duties, and shortly after the Rev. Mr. Whitehall rode away on his errand of mercy with a gladdened heart and a prayer for blessing on the young minister.

It was the night before Thankgiving.
Mrs. Grace Lane was sitting near a cheerful fire, and her rocking chair was a little girl to sleep. Opposite was her little girl to sleep. Time had been very gentle
father, and the congregation who looked into his face Sunday after Sunday felt he would be spared to them for many years to come. He looked up presently and addressed his daughter:
"What happiness to see Fred and Bessie again! I hardly thought to live to such a glad day, but God has been very gracious to me."
"I cannot reconcile myself to the fact that Clarence and Alice are not coming," said Mrs. Lane. "They are wearing their lives away and burying brilliant talents in that dreadful place.
If we could see them perhaps we could persuade Clarence to give up his charge."
Mr. Howard shook his head sadly, but made no reply. He had visions

Yes. He was very glad. He was the Rev. Henry Whitehall.

The well-known evangelist was made welcome, the horse stabled, and a tempting supper prepared for the traveler. Then he proceeded to make known the grand that had brought him thither. There had been terrible washouts and floods in a neighboring state. Whole families were destitute and homeless, starting in fact. Very little substantial was being given, and he, the Rev. Mr. Whitehall, had determined to visit the churches of his denomination and solicit help for the sufferers. He had heard Brother Wilbur was a generous man, and had come to him among the first. Would he appeal to his church for money?

What was to be done? Long after the Rev. Mr. Whitehall had retired Clarence and Alice sat talking the matter over.

"The church can give nothing," said Alice. "It would be wrong to ask them; but if you and I could give something—"

"There is that money we were going to give to the church," said Clarence, suddenly.

"Clarence," exclaimed his wife,
"what are you thinking of? That money we have been saving all this time!"

"It must go," was the reply. "There is nothing else."
"I don't believe God requires such a sacrifice as that," cried Alice. "How can we give up the trip to the dear old home we have not seen for ten years, and probably will never see again?
And Fred and Bessie will be there, too. It is more than humanity can do."

"Alice, my love," said her husband gently, "we will say no more about it at present, but I desire you will ask God to decide the matter for you, and tell me what your answer is to me tomorrow."

An impatient movement of the sick
man in the adjoining room drew Mrs.
Wilbur's attention, and she stepped to
the door to ask if he wished anything.

"No, I don't," was the ungracious
response.

Morning came, bright and beautiful,

It was the night before Thankgiving.
Mrs. Grace Lane was sitting near
a cheerful fire, and her rocking chair
was a little girl to sleep. Opposite was her little girl to sleep. Time had been very gentle
father, and the congregation
who looked into his face Sunday after Sunday felt he would be spared to them for many years to come. He looked up presently and addressed his

"What happiness to see Fred and

"I cannot reconcile myself to the fact that Clarence and Alice are not

wearing their lives away and burying
brilliant talents in that dreadful place.
If we could see them perhaps we could
persuade Clarence to give up his
charge."
Mr. Howard shook his head sadly,
but made no reply. He had visions of Clarence Wilbur adorning the pulpit of a fashionable city church, and swinging thousands by the wonderful magnetism of his intellect, but, like many others, had been disappointed in his expectations.

"There's the carriage now," cried
Grace, and a moment later Bessie Harding was in the arms of her friend.
The Rev. Fredrick Harding, grave and dignified, or apparently so, followed his wife into the cosy room, and was welcomed by his old pastor.

"We should have arrived this forenoon, as we wrote," he exclaimed, "but there was an accident, and we came on a special."
"I must go back to the regular train to meet Leland and Minnie," said the doctor from the doorway, "but I think you will find enough to talk about while I'm gone."
The minutes fled quickly to the reunited friends, and they had not realized the time passed when the carriage was heard again.

Grace was hushing the waking child, so she merely said:
"Lee can find his way in all right.
He's no stranger."
Has the Rev. Fredrick Harding suddenly taken leave of his senses? No sooner had the door opened than he gave one bound, past the outstretched hand of Leland Lane, and, seizing upon a figure in the doorway, bore it triumphantly into the room, shouting:
"Alice Harding! Alice Wilbur!
Is it you? Am I myself? Somebody tell me I am awake. Clarence, dear old boy, Clarence! Speak, some of you! Alice, Alice, little sister!"

"Then such kissing and crying and hand-shaking. Such tears as these strong men and women had never shed in hours of affliction, loss, and disappointment flowed freely now. When at last there came a lull in the tumult Grace asked:
"How did you happen to change your minds and come after all?"
"And why," asked Fred, "did you change your minds in the first place and decide not to come?"
Then Clarence told them the whole story.

"I can't deny," he said, "that we were rather down-hearted after the mail had been one day more with us, and appeared to be in a very ill temper, leaving without a word of thanks to Alice, but all these unpleasant things passed from our minds after a little time, and we continued to walk in the old path. Well, to conclude, a few days ago a man came from the mountains and brought us a package, quite on opening we found to contain quite a large sum of shining gold coin and a letter from John Kinsey, telling us that he was 'down east trap money.'"
"Therefore we are here."

Clarence did not mention the glowing terms in which the young man had spoken of the kindness he had received when at his home, nor how he had said that the gift of that hard-earned money had been the means of converting his soul and saving him from the degradation of a drunkard, but Alice said at the close of her husband's narrative:
"He wished to offer the first fruits to God."
"May he be blessed with this increase," said Mr. Howard.
The few days to which Clarence and Alice had limited their visit passed all too soon, and they said good-bye. All felt that it was the last time, but somehow the sorrow of parting seemed softened, for each knew that Clarence and Alice Wilbur were in their right place, and that was best.

Al! patient, faithful Alice. You have no need to feel one regretful pang when you think of the quiet home life of Grace Lane and the baby lips that call her mother. No need to repine when you call to mind the multitudes who read with breathless interest, after your week, the soul-stirring lines of the gifted Bessie Lane Harding, for the angels of God smile when they hear when one of their number has done some great deed and won the approval of the everlasting King.

He was leaning dejectedly against a lamp-post, contemplating immunities, when he accidentally brushed against him.
Look out! he exclaimed. Don't you dare disturb me.

Why not I asked, turning, as I recognized his voice.
Gosh! I mean the shenter of the unicorn—
No, I mean 'un' reb, he explained thickly.

How did you find it out? I asked, admiring his egotism.
Go way, foolish man, before you pre-sophisticate chaos, he expostulated.

First tell me now you know you're the centre of the universe, I insisted.
Ah! everything revolving around me? he demanded, indignantly.

She—I don't see why you will keep on paying 15 cents for cigars when you can get one just as pretty for 5.

He—I know they are just as pretty, but those 5-cent ones are cigars that have soured. You wouldn't buy soured fruit just because it was cheaper, would you?
And the dear, innocent thing believed him.

No flattery certificates, but solid facts,

Sarsaparilla.

A Lesson from the Hard Times.

A motorman! A slave, that is what I am," and Andrew twirled the brake, sending the car spinning down grade at a rate that worried nervous passengers. "Why should I bounce up and down this rocky road, year in, year out? Dust, heat, glaring sun, windstorms, rainstorms, anything! No matter, I'm a machine, I suppose, attached to the motor in the morning and taken off again at night."

Bang! The car stops. Dingdong!
Bang! It starts again. Its load of dusty passengers is increased by a portly, haughty-looking man, who took his seat with a condescending reigation that told more plainly than any words the sacrifice imposed by rickety car seats on a being fitted only for soft cushioned carriages.

"Howling capitalist!" mutters the motorman.

"There's another of those plotting anarchists," thought the aristocrat.

"I'll shake him up, though, that's one good thing," growled Andrew.

"Wait till we get to the tracks."
Then as the conductor, springing off, signaled the crossing clear, Andrew put on more force, and rattle, whack, bang, the car flew across. Down grade, over switches, around curves, stopping here and there with a jerk, and starting up with a bounce, till the passengers, with groans and exclamations, one by one got off for transfers and home stops, until only the portly old gentleman remained.

"Wonder how he likes it?" chuckled the motorman. "What," as the car suddenly stopped, "power off? Good enough, now I hope he'll have a good time waiting here. He's bound for the Highlands two miles ahead, I'll bet."

"What's the matter?"
"How long will we have to wait?"
"Don't know, sir."

"Hang the rascal, I believe it is his fault," and the haughty individual rises and paces up and down the car. The sun is behind a cloud and the cool wind is rising. They are out of the country now and the car stands opposite a little church. Suddenly a clear soprano voice floats out of the open window of the church. The merchant pauses in his fretful walk.

"He was despaired and rejected of men," the soloist is practicing for the morning service. She is only a pale, earnest-looking girl, and as she sings alone in the cool, dark church her eyes are moist and her throat quivers with a little sob. "That is just like me," she murmurs, then repeats the refrain: "He was despaired and rejected."

"That's like me," mutters the motorman, and sitting down leans his head on the motor.

"A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief,"
Now the merchant is sitting listening. "Would I have rejected Him?" thought the haughty man.

"I'm glad he wasn't a capitalist," thought Andrew.

"The air is cooler now and the sun is still behind the clouds. "A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief," sings the clear voice. The tired lines on the merchant's face disappear. He leans his head on his hand. His hat is off, and the cool wind is softly blowing his white hair.

"Poor old chap," thought the motor-man, "let he know what trouble is."
The soloist has struck a new chord on the organ now, and the clear voice sings in a stronger tone, "O trust in the Lord! Wait patiently for Him and He will give thee thy heart's desire."

The power is on. Slowly the motor man rises and turns the brake, and as the car glides slowly on, the full sweet tones float after them—"O trust in the Lord! Wait patiently for Him."
"Hard times, stranger," says the motorman, as he turns to look at the merchant who now seems only like a worn-out, broken-hearted old gentleman, rather than a "howling capitalist."

"The times are hard," the old gentleman replies, and rising swings himself around into the seat by the anarchic-looking motorman. "You look as though you felt the times, too, my friend; we all feel them. I have lost my all, lost my all, and I am over seventy years old, but we'll come out all right. We just have to wait, wait patiently."

"That's about it, sir. Do you stop dread 'hopped the cat' now. 'Goodnight, sir.'"
"Good-night!"
Andrew reversed the trolley and started back on the home trip; but what a different world it was!
"Lost his all, poor old chap! I haven't any all to lose. Ah! haven't I, though? There's Annie, little wife Annie. Heaven bless her!" and he gayly whistled.

"She's all the world to me;
And for bonny Annie Laurie
I'd lay me down and die."

The car whirled merrily along the dusty road, the sun came out, brightening the sand-drawers along the way and over in the meadows. They lifted their golden heads and seemed to sing in their silent, swaying forms: "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow!"—

District Institutes.

Inspector Roscoe read a paper on the foregoing subject at the Teachers' Association, in Truro, on the 16th inst.

The fact that not one-fourth of the teachers engaged in the schools have received any training to teach shows the necessity of some greater effort.

A Remarkable Announcement.

A brief paragraph can hardly do justice to the interesting announcements which The Youth's Companion makes for the coming year.

As an illustration of the method of conducting Institute work the writer said: "To put before you the idea, in my own mind, of what is to be done, I will suppose that some one, who has succeeded in teaching history, has been appointed to give a lesson each day, for five days, in the history of Canada."

The paper suggested that prizes should be given, at the Institute, to Nature Lessons, Music, Drawing, Calligraphy, and such new subjects as have recently been introduced into the Course of Study.

"If time and money spent in this kind of work shall be made to contribute in a marked degree to the advancement of the school, and to their value in fitting the young for the duties awaiting them, at the completion of their school days, we need not hesitate to go forward in this direction."

Not long before his death the poet Longfellow told Elizabeth Butterworth one evening in his library how he came to write "The Psalm of Life."

Cambridge, Mass., has been eight years without a saloon. Its population is now over 80,000. The secret here have been revealed, and it has long been difficult to procure intoxicating liquor in the city.

A Rhode Island company, who are interested in several Nova Scotia gold mines already, are understood to have representatives in Halifax who are negotiating for the purchase of all the Nova Scotia company's mines at Montserrat.

A good illustration of the value of a good Rubber Stamp is given in the following advertisement.

Bee-Keepers' Convention.

A Convention of the Bee-Keepers' Association of Nova Scotia was held in Berwick on Wednesday of last week—afternoon and evening.

The afternoon session was held at the residence of the President, Mr. E. F. Beeler, and was to a considerable extent taken up in the inspection of his large apiary and in examining his methods of caring for bees and extracting honey.

Among the speakers were: Rev. P. S. McGregor, President Beeler, Mr. J. H. Cox, Mr. J. W. Hutchinson and Mr. S. C. Parker.

Mr. Cox made a feeling reference to the death of the late president Mr. J. B. Davison of Wolfville and a resolution was passed ordering that a letter of condolence be sent to the family and entered in the minutes of the convention.

Some discussion took place regarding the "pure honey" bill introduced into the Dominion Parliament at the instance of the Ontario Bee-Keepers' Association, and it was understood that petitions would be prepared and circulated asking for the passage of that bill at the approaching session of Parliament.

Personal Mention.

Mr. W. B. Merchant, of Dallas, Texas, left for her home on Wednesday.

Miss Lou Balcom left on Saturday last for a visit to friends in Bear River and Bridgetown.

Mr. J. N. Benjamin, of Pagwash, representing the New York Life Insurance Co., was in town this week.

Prof. E. E. Faville, who has been touring in Europe for the past two months, arrived home on Friday last.

Mr. F. P. Rockwell, the popular Book-store man, left on Thursday morning last for a short vacation at his old home in Westport, Digby Co.

Miss Florence Seabourne, who has been in Boston for some time pursuing an extended course in music, arrived at her home in this town, on Saturday last.

Miss Bertha Rathay, of British Columbia, arrived in Wolfville on Wednesday of last week, and will be for some weeks the guest of Mr and Mrs C. B. Munro.

Mr. Israel J. Parker, of Belvidere, Annapolis Co., is visiting her parents Mr and Mrs W. C. Blackadder, who are both, we are sorry to say, in a very poor state of health.

Mr and Mrs Delap, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were in town this week, visiting their son, who is attending Horton Academy. Capt. Delap, who is a native of Annapolis County, was himself a student here at one time.

Mr S. P. Schurman, of Mount Denson was in town on Thursday last. He has been appointed a commissioner by the Minister of Militia, to obtain information respecting the old drill sheds. Mr Schurman is of the opinion that drilling by the old method is to be again brought into use.

Mr and Mrs A. Campbell, of North Sydney, who are on their wedding trip were at the American House a day or two this week. Mrs Campbell, nee Miss Ingram, formerly attended Acadia Seminary, and has many friends in Wolfville who will join with the ACADIAN in wishing her a long and happy married life.

The November Number of the Delinquent is called the Thanksgiving Number and illustrates a bewildering wealth of Autumn and Winter Fashions, the collection of stylish and becoming garments being particularly complete.

The town of Parrishore had a narrow escape from fire on Thursday morning. About half-past seven fire was discovered in the post-office, which is situated in a thickly built part of the town.

The newspapers of a town are its looking-glasses. It is here you see yourselves as others see you. You smile on them, and they smile back at you; you frown on them, and you are repaid in kind.

The residence of E. P. White, Esq., Grand Pre, was on Tuesday last, the scene of a quiet wedding, when his daughter, Mrs Hattie Hosterman, of N.
W. Arm, Halifax, was united in marriage to Mr John Kaye, of Starr's Point, Cotawaldie, the ceremony being performed by Rev. William Brown, pastor of the Methodist church. The bride was attended in a very becoming blue and white costume. The presents were numerous and handsome. The ACADIAN extends congratulations.

The turkey supper and promenade concert given by the Wolfville band in Aberdeen rink on Wednesday evening, was a pleasant and successful affair. The night was most favorable and a goodly number were in attendance. The rink looked very pretty, being tastefully decorated with flags and evergreens for the occasion. The tables were arranged most temptingly and were well patronized during the evening. The music furnished by the band was favorably commented upon. An excellent programme was furnished and heartily enjoyed by all.

The Football Games.
The Acadia football team, in charge of Capt. Cutler, left for their New Brunswick tour on Monday morning last. They arrived in Sackville in the afternoon and played the Mount Allison team, winning by a score of 8-0. Tuesday afternoon they played the St. John team, with whom they were not so successful, the score standing at the call of time 11-0 in favor of the home team. They however, in a measure regained their laurels on Wednesday, when they defeated the U. N. B. team at Fredericton by a score of 12-0. Before returning home they will play two more games—one with the city team in Fredericton, and one at Moncton.

The W. M. A. Society held a public Missionary Meeting last Sunday evening, commemorating of their 25th anniversary, Mrs Freeman presiding. Mrs Knox Bligh sketched briefly the history of the society for the last 25 years. A reading on "Jungle Work" was given by Mrs S. Sweet. Mrs Oatley Bligh gave a paper on giving. "Extra, me, and the Board" was read by Mrs I. Lantz, and Miss R. R. Freeman recited a piece entitled, "How Non-Meat-Yea found the way." The choir, under the leadership of Mr R. D. Bentley, discoursed sweet music at suitable intervals. The interest of the large congregation was held to the close, and all pronounced the Woman's Missionary Meeting a great success.

Amateur photography has become quite popular in Wolfville during the past summer. A number of our citizens have good outfits and are doing excellent work. We had the pleasure the other day of inspecting an album of exceedingly well executed photos made by our popular young druggist, Mr A. Y. Rand.

The ladies of the Lower Horton Methodist church are to hold a tea meeting and goose supper in their vestry on Tuesday evening next. The reputation that the ladies of Lower Horton have gained in former entertainments of this kind is sufficient to warrant us in predicting a good time for all who attend.

NOTICE.—You can save money on all purchases during the month of November, by buying at Carver's Dry Goods Importing House, Windsor, N. S.

The editor of the Lockport Hustler, E. R. L. Bill, was last week married to Miss Ida Silver, of Lunenburg, at the latter place. In consequence of the absence of the editor from his post, the issue of the Hustler was delayed a day, and the editor publishes an apology as follows: "This issue of the Hustler has been detained a day by financial matters changing Silver into Bills."

We were shown some freaks on Wednesday evening by Mr G. E. Torrie, one of which is the most remarkable that has come to our notice for some time. It is an apple of which about two-fifths is of the Golden Russet variety, and the remainder Gloria Mundi. The others were Gravenstein apple measuring twelve inches in circumference, and a full-grown and well-colored peach. These were all grown on the farm of Mr F. C. Johnson.

If you are anxious to make your money go as far as possible, get your Dry Goods during the month of November at Carver's, Windsor, N. S., as they are giving 15 per cent. discount.

Social Purty Congress.

The demand for a thoughtful and intelligent consideration of the social problems involved in the purty movement emphasizes the importance of the congress recently held in Baltimore under the auspices of the American Purty Alliance.

The following extracts are taken from a report of this congress as given in the Halifax Herald:

Baltimore, Oct. 17.—The attendance at to-day's social purty congress was large. The delegates were from almost every state in the union. The speakers were applauded vigorously and considerable enthusiasm was manifested.

Mrs Julia Ward Howe, who was to have made an address upon "Moral equality between the sexes" was not able to be present, but her paper was read by President Powell. In it Mrs Howe said: "The relations of sex are the crown of society or its ruin. Families are the wealth of states, and the ideal family life is one which we Americans used especially to cultivate."

LET THE ROMANCE OF OUR YOUTH LOOK FORWARD to married life on a plan of mutual dignity and equality. In my view the sense of equality is a most important condition in marriage and the surest guarantee of its soundness. Every man will, inferiorly, feel the ability will involve as its necessary inferiority of mental responsibility. The interests committed to the keeping of women are too momentous to be entrusted by men to his inferior. Philosophy and poetry in our days have appeared as apologists of an evil which has come to us from the barbarous past, but which has no apology in the civilized present.

Mrs Charlotte Edholm, superintendent of press of the world's W. C. T. U., delivered an address on "Trade in girls and Florence Crittenton missions." She told of the horrors suffered by thousands of young girls who are sold into infamy. She described her stunning experiences in many cities and the work of rescue of the fallen. Mrs Edholm asserted that of the 230,000 wrong girls in the country over half have been snared and bought and sold into their lives of shame. "Their average life is five years," she added. "Forty-six thousand are carried out to the Potter's field every year. Over a hundred American homes have been desolated every day to recruit the ranks of shame. Isn't it time that somebody is trying to save these girls from falling into those dens of iniquity? Twenty millions of Christians can rescue 230,000 wrong girls or surely the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ is a failure. Men go out into the country districts and bring these girls into our cities, and the girl is taken into these haunts of shame, believing she is going to a boarding house. One man, who was recently converted, told me that he had gone through the marriage ceremony twenty times, and every time sold the girl into a house of prostitution. The cursed wine rooms are sending more girls to hell than anything else, and as long as we will have the traffic in drink we will have the traffic in girls. Don't you think it was time we were leaving our fancy work and the making of pins and cakes and trying to save our boys and girls? It comes home to you fathers, too. It will be no excuse when you are asked what you did to keep your boy out of the saloons to reply that American should have free trade, and that in talking for that you did not have time to protect your offspring."

THE FEATURES OF THE AFTERNOON SESSION

of the congress was the appearance and address of Miss Frances E. Willard, the leader of the women's Christian temperance union of America. She was received with applause and the Chautauque salutes. The order of business was suspended, and she was invited to address the congress. In her address Miss Willard said that she had read accounts of last night's meeting, and thought of what good and pure things the purty alliance was spreading out for all to read. She added: "We dare not to tell what we are thinking. The bringing out of ideas and putting them all in a common stock will build up a stalwart cause which will give a brief history of the work accomplished by the W. C. T. U., and cited the fact that there are to-day 471 colleges and universities in this country which admit and educate in which reside women. This was pointed out as an indication of a broadening of views so necessary for education and purification, ST. VITUS' DANCE.

A Malady that has Long Baffled Medical Skill.

A Speedy Cure for the Trouble at Last Discovered—The Particulars of the Cure of a Little Girl Who Was a Severe Sufferer.

In a handsome brick residence on the 10th line of Goulbourn township, Carleton Co., lives Mr Thomas Bradley, one of Goulbourn's most successful farmers. Mr Bradley's family is a bright little daughter, 8 years of age, who had been a severe sufferer from St. Vitus' dance, and who had been treated by physicians without any beneficial results. Having learned that the little one had been fully restored to health by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a correspondent of the Journal called at the family residence for the purpose of ascertaining the facts, and found the little girl a picture of brightness and good health. Mrs Faulkner, a sister of the little one, gave the following information: "About eighteen months ago Alvin's dance, and became so badly that we called in two doctors, who held out no hope to us of her ultimate cure, and she was so badly affected with the 'dance' as to require almost constant watching. About this time we read in the Ottawa Journal of a similar case cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which gave us renewed hope. We procured a couple of boxes, and before these were all used there was a perceptible improvement. After using six boxes more she was entirely free from the disease, and as you can see she is enjoying the best of health. Several other cases of a similar kind, but the Pink Pills was discontinued, but there has been no return of the malady, nor any symptoms of it. We are quite certain Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured her, and strongly recommend them to similar cases."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of a grippa, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of 50 cents in a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y.

A Great Family Newspaper.

No family is so poor that it need go without a paper. No family is so rich that it can afford to do without. The best paper is the cheapest and the one that brings big returns on the investment. The ideal family paper makes itself indispensable to every paper reader of the household. It interests, helps, amuses and instructs, makes itself invaluable, and once taken is never abandoned. There is one such paper in Canada—THE FAMILY HERALD AND WEEKLY STAR, of Montreal, which circulates in every known part of the Dominion; and is everywhere acclaimed as the greatest weekly paper published. Every subscriber to the FAMILY HERALD is insured for five hundred dollars against railway accidents free of cost. Splendid as were its qualities as a family paper, it has recently been enlarged from twelve to sixteen pages, and interesting new features and departments have been added. Each issue is a wonder, and is received by the reader with amazement that so great a paper can be published for the price. If you don't know the FAMILY HERALD you should see it at once for a sample copy. THE FAMILY HERALD AND WEEKLY STAR, from those who have seen it that the FAMILY HERALD has a premium picture, entitled "Little Queenie," this year for yearly subscribers, worth five times the whole subscription. This is verily an age of wonders.

A New Club.

Name Suggested for a New Social Organization in London.

London, (Special Oct. 23).—It has been facetiously suggested that a new social club in process of organization in this city should be entitled "The Dodds' Kidney Pill Club" as the present members are all enthusiastic advocates of that remedy and its common with many other citizens declare that in all cases of kidney trouble no other agent has been found so completely effective. Most Londoners have at their fingers' ends the particulars of the many marvellous cures through the use of this specific. In every drugstore in the city the medicine is kept in large quantities and warmly recommended.

They shook her together as the excursion steamer approached the dock after the race. She smoothed out the wrinkles in her brass mounted pea jacket. Is it over? Yes; certainly; we're home again. Thank heaven. Well, it is just grand? I—yes—that is who won? Well—er—wait till I get a newspaper.

Mother, said a little 3-year-old, why is brother Tom so cross? Indeed, my dear, I don't know. Mother, I think that God made Tom the way Ellen made our cake—He forgot to put the sugar in him!

First Pedestrienne—I see, you haven't "Peggy" with you this morning. Second Pedestrienne—No; the damp weather is apt to take the curl out of his hair. For Worms in Children—CHERRY-ORANGE VERMIFUGE.

Scraps for Odd Moments.

He—'d kiss you if I dared. She—What if you don't think I'd strike a she-do you!

Jones has a good deal of money, hasn't he? Well, he ought to have. How is that? He never pays any out.

She was a smart girl who married at fifteen, so as to have her golden wedding when it would do her some good.

To cure any scrofulous disease or tumor, try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It cleanses the blood.

He (coming out of the warm theatre)—You look like a broiled lobster. She—Well, I just feel like something to eat.

Author—I've sold $50 worth of jokes this month. Wife—What did you get for them?

Nature, said uncle Eben, don't nebbber bestow all her gifts on one individdle. De lightnin' bug ain't got no stings, an' de sketer ain't got no lamp.

Is it true that your wife is of a rather skeptical form of mind? She used to be, but I got her a few trimmed doaks, and she goes to church every Sunday now.

When I first took hold of this place said the new proprietor of the grocery store on the corner, it was doing absolutely nothing and now it's business has doubled.

For Spasmodic Coughs—MINARDS HONEY BALSAM.

Servant—Step this way, Mr Whiz! Caller—Mr Whiz! My name is Jones! Servant—Your pardon, sir. When I handed your card to Miss Mollie she said, G. Whiz! Show him in.

Have your baggage checked? I said the man with a handful of brass disks. It is all the same to you, replied Famill. I'd prefer to have a check put on the man who handles the baggage.

Swell Freshman—Say, old man, your clock is slow, isn't it? Sober-minded Tutor—No, my boy, it isn't. It only seems so to you in comparison with the way you are living.

As the name indicates, Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer is a renewer of the hair, induces its growth, healthy, youthful color and beauty. It will please you.

Mis Fly—That gentleman must have taken a liking to my new fies, from the way he stares at it.

Mis Caustique—I guess he is more attracted by the way you are holding it.

For Biliousness—MINARDS FAMILY PILLS.

Don't boddish me, he said loftily. I 'longs to do oratorical an' don't you forget it. Humph. You must have struck policy. Dat's it, persackly; I 'longs ter de foh-ebben-forty-fob-hundred.

Well, you are a peach! I exclaimed Adam enthusiastically, as he caught his first eight of Eve.

No, Adam, dear, cool'd Eve softly, as she nestled tenderly close to his manly form, we are a pair.

Blotbs—What nonsense it is for the newspapers in their accounts of wedding! to describe the bride being led to the altar.

Well, most girls could find their way there in the dark.

If you do not know how good a remedy Garfield Tea really is for constipation and sick headache, send a postal card to D. Denmore & Co, 271 Queen Street, West, Toronto.

Stragles—Misus, won't yer give a starvin' man ten cents? Kind Lady—And you won't take this ten cents and get drunk on it if I give it to you?

Stragles—Lond bless you, mum. I couldn't get drunk on no'n a dollar's raff.

What are you so cross about? I said one card sharp to another.

That duffer did me out of $10, he growled.

That's nothing. You'll get it back of the next man that you meet.

Oh, it isn't the money that makes me mad. It's the disgrace of the thing. The cove said he was from Kentville.

The variety of colors which some men wear on their persons is astonishing, said a citizen. The other day I observed a young man on College Avenue dressed in a light suit of clothes. He had on a pink bosomed shirt, blue cuffs, white collar, red necktie, a yellow band on his hat, and a black look on his face. That's a combination that would almost open a safe.

I WAS CURED OF Facial Neuralgia by MINARD'S LINIMENT. Parkdale, Ont. J. H. BAILLY.

Husband (furiously)—Here's my best needschaum pipe broken! How in the name of sense did that happen!

Wife—I don't know, except that when I got up this morning I found your needschaum pipe in the front hall, and your overhaos on the parlor mantelpiece.

Husband (mildly)—Oh, well, accidents will happen, I presume there has been an earthquake or something. Check your ledgation with K. D. C. the Great Checker.
